

Product Information

Vidari Kand

Vidari Kand is a perennial, tuberous climbing herb native to India and Southeast Asia, found in tropical and subtropical, forested and hilly areas. The plant has slender, twining stems with trifoliate leaves bearing three broad leaflets, and small, purplish-blue flowers in clusters. Its large, starchy tuberous root is the most valuable part, used extensively in traditional medicine for its nourishing and rejuvenating properties.

Medicinal Uses

Pueraria tuberosa is revered in Ayurveda for its strength-enhancing, aphrodisiac, and rejuvenating properties. It is known to boost stamina, improve vitality, and promote overall strength and endurance. Vidari Kand is also used to balance Vata and Pitta doshas, making it effective in treating conditions like weakness, fatigue, and debility. Additionally, it supports reproductive health, promotes lactation in nursing mothers, and nourishes the tissues. Its anti-inflammatory and antioxidant properties help in reducing inflammation and strengthening the immune system. Due to its tonic effects, Vidari Kand is often included in formulations for promoting longevity and vitality.
