

Announcement from the AMSTRO Executive Committee

Following the tremendous success of our inaugural AMSTRO meeting in Dubai in February 2026, we have been enthusiastically preparing for our 2nd Annual AMSTRO Global Oncology Forum, originally scheduled for January 22–24, 2027.

The inaugural meeting established a high standard for AMSTRO, bringing together distinguished leaders from around the world and creating an exceptional environment for scientific exchange, partnership, and global collaboration. This extraordinary international participation and spirit of collaboration have become the hallmark of AMSTRO.

After careful consideration, the AMSTRO Executive Committee has decided to postpone the January 22-24, 2027, meeting and reschedule it for a later date. We believe this will allow us to preserve the truly international character of the forum and provide the strongest possible environment for scientific exchange, partnership, and global collaboration.

New dates and additional details will be announced as soon as possible.

We are deeply grateful to our speakers, colleagues, partners, sponsors, and friends from around the world for their extraordinary enthusiasm and continued support of AMSTRO. We look forward to building upon the remarkable momentum of our inaugural meeting.

Together, we will continue advancing the future of cancer care through global collaboration.
