

Poof! These 10 MSPs Have a Secret They Hope You Won't Notice 🙄

10

The Shapeshifter with No San Antonio Office

Real Name: Custom IT

Illusion: Floats to the top of local search but never lands anywhere real.

Curse: Different face every time. Never the same rep. Never truly local.

📍 Location Fact: Their website only mentions "San Antonio" in general. When you click the map, it just zooms out to the whole city—no office, no pin, no address.

09

The Phantom MSP from Austin

Real Name: Terminal B

Illusion: Appears in San Antonio searches but disappears when you start checking.

Curse: Nowhere to be found when trouble strikes.

📍 Location Fact: The "Austin office" they list? It's inside a Havertys Furniture store. No San Antonio office. No photos. No proof they're actually local.

08

The Nashville Illusionist Who Claims to Be Local

Real Name: Novatech

Illusion: Claims to serve San Antonio... but was born in Tennessee.

Curse: Sends you in circles when you need help.

📍 Location Fact: Their LinkedIn says they're based in Nashville. There's no San Antonio location on the map. Search for it—it doesn't exist.

07

The Disappearing MSP with No Address at All

Real Name: Deft

Illusion: Hints at local support but hides behind a contact form.

Curse: Emails and vague promises but no one ever shows up.

📍 Location Fact: No office listed. No physical location on their website. Just an email and phone number. That's it.

06

The Houston Based MSP That Covers San Antonio

Real Name: Meriplex

Illusion: Claims to cover the area but they're nowhere close.

Curse: Always "available," never actually nearby.

📍 Location Fact: They're headquartered in Houston—almost 3 hours away. Their site mentions "surrounding areas in Texas," but doesn't actually list San Antonio.

05

The Top Ranked MSP That's Not Even From Here

Real Name: IT Goat

Illusion: Says they're San Antonio's top provider... but are they even here?

Curse: Support tickets vanish, just like their real office.

📍 Location Fact: They're originally from Fort Worth. Their Google profile shows vague office images—just a coffee and a notebook. That's not a workspace.

04

The Out of State MSP Hiding Behind a UPS Store

Real Name: TSR

Illusion: Claims to have a San Antonio presence but the address is sketchy.

Curse: Their "local support" disappears when things go wrong.

📍 Location Fact: They're headquartered in Wisconsin. The image on their GBP suggests the "office" is either a Safe Outlet or UPS mailbox.

03

The Infrastructure MSP That Doesn't Exist Here

Real Name: Dyopath IT

Illusion: Tries to look like a local IT hero but you won't find them here.

Curse: All talk, no team on the ground.

📍 Location Fact: They list no San Antonio address anywhere. Nothing on Google. No pin. No local presence.

02

The Empty Office Enchanter

Real Name: Integris IT

Illusion: Claims to be local in San Antonio—but their "office" feels more like a stage set.

Curse: Starts strong, then vanishes when it matters most.

📍 Location Fact: The building is real, even impressive. But peek inside and it's a ghost town—no team, no gear, no signs of life.

01

The California MSP Disguised as a Local

Real Name: Diverge IT

Illusion: Pretends to be in San Antonio but they're not even in Texas.

Curse: Support that haunts your inbox but never steps foot in your office.

📍 Location Fact: Their headquarters is in California. They list San Antonio online, but there's no address and no office available.
