

Treasure Island: How AA Pays You to Go to St. Thomas

April 2021

How to add the Caribbean jewel St.Thomas to a domestic round-trip on American Airlines and pay up to $223 less.

Last month we alerted you to a stopover treat in San Juan, Puerto Rico. As it turned out, we were just getting warmed up. Now we're staying warm in tropical St. Thomas, which suns itself among the world-famous Leeward Islands.

Yes, get ready for another happy chapter of our Stopover Loophole Strategy.

THE SLS BRINGS THE HEAT WHEN YOU NEED R&R

A stopover is a planned stop between flight segments on a trip. For international trips, a stop for 24 hours is usually allowed for free, but on domestic flights it's generally just 4 hours. That said, there are some amazing "exceptions to the rule."

To offer an example, you could pay $1,145 for a Business Class return trip between San Francisco and New York. But with our stopover loophole strategy, you could sneak in a relaxing few days or longer in the Caribbean on the way home. Imagine adding a paradise like St. Thomas, and paying $223 less on your overall fare. Who wouldn't be happy as a clam with that?!

Viewed another way, you add a vacation in St. Thomas and only pay a total of $922 for the entire trip in Business Class. Not all of these add-on trips are "less than free" as we like to say (when you end up paying less than your original price, for more).

Note that you can stop in St. Thomas in either direction using the same cities, but the cost may be different. Still good, just different.

For example, Chicago-Dallas-St. Thomas-Chicago is $732 (Chicago-St. Thomas round-trip is $622) while Chicago-St. Thomas-Dallas-Chicago is $782.

You can find the current Covid testing requirements here.

NEED A REASON, OR TWO, TO VISIT ST. THOMAS?

St. Thomas is the second-largest and most visited island in the U.S. Virgin Islands, and it shows off its assets with pride. The capital of Charlotte Amalie, one of the prettiest in the Caribbean, frames a gorgeous turquoise harbor dotted with sleek yachts and splashy cruise ships. Its 200-year-old red-roofed buildings climb hillsides and offer jaw-dropping views from the top. In addition to excellent dining, exciting nightlife, duty-free shopping, and even submarine rides, you can still see remnants of the island's Dutch and Danish heritage in museums, forts, and historic houses around the island.

And we can't fail to mention the beaches. St. Thomas is blessed with 40 sun-drenched beaches — from intimate pocket coves to long sigh-worthy strands like bleach-white Magens Bay, which is the glorious granddaddy of them all. You can swim, fish, snorkel, sail, windsurf, or just swing on a hammock sipping a fancy umbrella drink. After dark, join the fun at the waterfront bars and taverns in the Red Hook area, which turns into a bustling nightlife scene.

The Over-the-Top (Under-the-Cost) Way to Asia + Europe

April 2021

Include Europe on your Asia trip, or Asia on your Europe trip, and pay less than you ever thought possible.

Whether you're an American AAdvantage elite looking to score a ton of cheap status credit, an opportunist looking for a better fare, or an adventurous type who sees a city like Helsinki and thinks it'd be interesting to visit (or anywhere else in the area), then we've got something that might turn your world on its head.

Literally.

A TO B? IT'S ALL HOW YOU LOOK AT IT.

When you picture our planet in your mind's eye, usually it's with the north pole at the top and south pole at the bottom, right? Well, it's strange that we think of the earth in this way, because we don't think of a basketball as having an up or down. It's just round.

And I think this mind's-eye view of the world makes us a little blind to actual distances.

For example, we think of Europe as being “to the right” of the U.S., and Asia “to the left.” But that's not exactly right. Asia is more “over the top,” i.e., it's not as far as we think.

So let's turn the world around and view it from above the north pole, like this.

So let's turn the world around and view it from above the north pole, like this.

Suddenly it looks like another planet. But enough upside down geography — let's talk about great flight opportunities to Asia.

ASIA VIA EUROPE?! IT'S ALL HOW YOU LOOK AT IT.

Fares to Asia right now are all over the place and they can be especially expensive in Business Class. They mostly range between $6,000 to $8,000+ if you fly nonstop or in a westerly direction.

But here's the thing.

On your return, if you add a stop in Europe (in this case Helsinki, which is perhaps the last place on earth you'd think to connect to Asia), you can save up to 50% on your fare, and you'll get a stop in Europe for free.

A crazy long way? Actually, it's not as far as you might think. Let's look at that map again, this time with the applicable cities added. You're not flying one way or the other, you're creating a top-of-the-world triangle.

Of course, it's still farther than flying from Los Angeles to Hong Kong direct, but the price offsets a lot of that pain, and you're flying in Business Class comfort. Oh, AND AAdvantage elites are going to reap the miles like it's nobody's business.

Let's check out the numbers for a moment.

- The Los Angeles-Helsinki-Hong Kong-Helsinki-Los Angeles fare is $3,106 on Finnair.

The next best Los Angeles-Hong Kong fare is $5,884 on Cathay.

The chart below shows return flights on Finnair from Los Angeles, Chicago, and New York to Helsinki, as well as the prices when you add an Asian "stopover." In most cases, you save money to add on the Asian city.

The New York-Helsinki-Hong Kong-Helsinki-New York fare is $3,106. That's including the stopover in Helsinki on the return. If you stopover in Helsinki on the outbound, the fare jumps to $4,361. The chart below shows prices for outbound stopovers to and from various cities.

The deal is still good, but not quite as good as stopping over on inbound flights.

HELSINKI ELEVATOR PITCH

Finland’s capital city sits on the nation’s southern coast right on the Gulf of Finland. It’s where Scandinavian urban cool meets fresh air and gorgeous waterside living.

Water makes Helsinki, whether you’re taking a shoreside bike ride to visit Sibelius Monument, Finlandia Hall, Market Square, and Sky Wheel, or taking a tourist spin out on a ferry. You can explore beautiful nearby islands such as Lonna and Vallisaari, or the Suomenlinna maritime fortress, a UNESCO World Heritage Site built on eight islands.

There’s plenty to taste in Helsinki’s thriving street food scene, or if you’re feeling like something more refined, there are six Michelin-starred restaurants like Olo, Grön, Demo, and Ora.

If you need a mid-afternoon pick-me-up, there are great cafes (as you’d expect from the world’s biggest coffee drinkers).

Helsinki Cathedral and surrounds

Helsinki offers wonderful cultural opportunities at HAM, the Helsinki Art Museum, and the Design Museum. These are a great way to understand the country that prides itself on contemporary design.

During your Helsinki stopover, don't miss the Rock Church – Temppeliaukio Church – quarried out of natural bedrock.

You can also explore beyond Helsinki. Beautiful St. Petersburg is just an hour's flight away (4.5 hours by train), and Stockholm is about an hour and 20 minutes. Both cities are easily reachable by ferry as well.

Finnair's Business Class Cabin

AN ELITE MILE BONANZA

One of the benefits of this strategy for elites is that you earn a lot of miles for a relatively cheap price. On the Los Angeles – Helsinki – Hong Kong – Helsinki – Los Angeles trip mentioned above, the miles earned are easily valued at $523 with the American Airlines mileage program, bringing the trip down to $2,583. Here's some quick math: earned miles on Finnair are 125% for an AA mileage member, so the math is 20,920 flight miles — which become 26,160, thanks to the 125% — at 2 cents per mile that equals $523. If you are not elite and want to earn Finnair miles it is 20,920.

Finnair	Route	Base Miles	Cabin Bonus	EQMs	EQDs	EQSs
Multi-City	Los Angeles - Helsinki - Hong Kong - Helsinki - Los Angeles	20,920	5,240	41,840	5,240	4
Round-Trip	Los Angeles - Hong Kong	14,460	3,620	28,920	3,620	2

FCF's Survey of Caviar Class Seats Now Bookable to Asia for Tuna Fish Prices

April 2021

FCF finds 15 hidden routes to Asia with up to 12 cents of value per mile/point – or buy for cash at 87% / $19,627 off

I've heard about that movie Crazy Rich Asians, about the only ones that can afford off-the-shelf fares to Asia in First Class. I'm talking tickets in the range of $17,400 to $22,500. Crazy, indeed.

Here are some more crazy First Class fare examples:

- New York to Hong Kong nonstop on Cathay runs $19,706; from Los Angeles $16,430.
- New York to Tokyo nonstop on All Nippon goes for $21,736; from Los Angeles $17,406.

- New York to Tokyo nonstop on Japan Airlines runs $22,507; from Los Angeles $17,778.

WHAT IT COSTS WITH MILES

While we have a strategy whereby you don't need miles, and we'll get to that in a moment, here's what you can look to pay with miles or points:

Airline	First Class Route	Award Cost R/T	Transfer Partner	Lowest Amex Partner	Amex Points R/T	Lowest Cost Non-Amex Partner	Cost R/T
All Nippon Airways	Chicago - Tokyo	150,000	Amex, Marriott	Virgin Atlantic	120,000	LifeMiles	180,000
	Houston - Tokyo				120,000
	Los Angeles - Tokyo				110,000
	New York - Tokyo				120,000
	San Francisco - Tokyo				110,000
	Washington, DC - Tokyo				120,000
Cathay Pacific	Boston - Hong Kong	250,000	Amex, Citi, Marriott	Cathay Pacific	250,000	Alaska	140,000
	Los Angeles - Hong Kong	220,000			220,000
	New York - Hong Kong	250,000			250,000
	San Francisco - Hong Kong	220,000			220,000
Japan	Chicago - Tokyo	190,000	Marriott		240,000		120,000
	Los Angeles - Tokyo
	New York - Tokyo
	San Francisco - Tokyo	165,000

NO MILES? NO POINTS? NO PROBLEM.

Might it be better to save up to 87% by using your cash (to buy miles or points) instead? The chart farther below shows just how much you can save by buying miles when they're on sale (which is often) and using them rather than paying the crazy rich First Class fare.

Quick highlight: Why pay $22,507 for New York-Tokyo in First Class on Japan Airlines when you can buy the 160,000 required miles on sale at ~1.8 cents each for a total cost of $2,880? That's a $19,627 difference.

LIMITED SEATS?

So, what if despite FCF's team working night and day to find the above availability-packed routes, you can't find seat options for the route you're considering? Like maybe you want to take your husband on an anniversary trip to Asia but there's only one seat available.

HERE'S AN IDEA-STORM FOR SNARING MORE THAN ONE SEAT:

- Rather than starting your search for two seats, start with a search for one. Then go wider. For example, Cathay Pacific typically only releases one First Class award seat at a time, but... they sometimes drip-feed availability up until departure. Other airlines do the same thing. Sometimes you just have to play the patience game a bit. With All Nippon, Cathay Pacific and Japan Airlines you can redeposit the miles if you don't get exactly what you want.
- Consider getting one seat in First and the other in Business. Granted, that's not ideal for our anniversary example, but in some cases, it might be a good play.
- Play the brinkmanship game. Award space tends to open up much more as departure approaches. Get the seat in Business then rebook when and if an opportunity arises. I do this often.
- Waitlist if other ways aren't working. Cathay Pacific and All Nippon offer waitlist in Business and First Class, Japan Airlines allows waitlisting in First Class only.
- If all else fails, buy one ticket with cash and the other with miles. At least you're 50% in front.

A PLAY FOR WHEN ROUND-TRIP AWARDS AREN'T AVAILABLE

When you can't nab that round-trip award, consider one-way tickets instead. Divide your itinerary in two and search for the best deal for each leg. I rarely book round-trip mileage awards because often I'm going to multiple destinations. But it's the same idea. I'll divide and conquer to get better seats or schedules from different airline programs with the exceptions of All Nippon as it offers round-trip awards only.

CONSIDER THE LEG STRETCH STRATEGY TO ASIA

You can use all of the above to kickstart FCF's amazing Leg Stretch Strategy to Asia and another continent. Read all about it here.

DON'T WASTE YOUR TIME WITH...

American Airlines as, at the time of our research, there's no current availability on their existing three routes to Asia that offer First Class cabins (Los Angeles-Tokyo and Los Angeles and Dallas to Hong Kong)

Singapore Airlines as they're not showing any routes with First Class availability at the moment.

Delta Airlines or United Airlines: Neither have a First Class cabin. And on top of that, Delta doesn't even have access to a partner that offers First Class. High and dry.

Never a worse time to play “free” Elite Upgrade Roulette.

Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de León called it la Florida, the land of flowers. That name feels appropriate right now because we’re seeing great deals blooming all over the state.

And on top of that, we’ve also discovered domestic fares to other regions that are smelling particularly sweet.

Our chart below adds all the necessary color you need to score the best deal. You’ll see the airline, the cities involved, the Business and economy class fares, round-trip flying hours, and the cost per hour to upgrade from economy to Business — all the features to consider when value is on your mind. Note that these great fares are the same in both directions.

With fares this low, why would you bother playing “free” elite status upgrade roulette?

That’s possibly the biggest takeaway.

The Spring Qsuite for Fall – Enjoy This 66% Off Sale & More

April 2021

Book now for travel later and save up to 77% with AA miles, or 66% if paying in cash

We're a big fan of Qatar Airways' Qsuites with their sleek sliding-door Business Class offering. As you know, we're also a big fan of saving a lot of money on travel (hello up to 66%), so this deal combines both sweet options.

If you were to fly from New York or Los Angeles to Qatar's hub city Doha in a Qsuite, you'd be stung by high fares, as the table below shows. For example, the New York-Doha route costs $7,863 round-trip. But get this – you can stop in Doha for 24 hours (for free) and then move on to another city, and the price plummets drastically.

If You Don't Stop in Doha, Say Doh

Fly New York-Bangkok with a 24-hour stopover in Doha and it will cost you $3,784, netting a total savings of $4,079.

That's right, flying to the hub is much more expensive than flying beyond the hub. And look at their map – that hub has lots of connections. There are some very nice destinations available including Bangkok, Istanbul, Cairo, Nairobi, Delhi, and Dubai, to name a few. Some routes are opening back up faster than others.

The Qsuite Seat?

The extra sweet Qsuite seat is 21.5 inches wide and reclines to a fully lie-flat bed 79 inches long. The center section seats are set close together and can conveniently become a double bed for couples or families traveling together.

- Los Angeles-Doha: QR 740/739

Although these aircraft move around and flight numbers may change, here's the trick to finding Qsuite aircraft:

- All A350-1000s have Qsuites.
- The A350-900 can be tricky as both layouts have nine rows in Business Class. The Qsuite aircraft has row 2 D/G/J while the non-Qsuite configuration has row 2 A/E/K.
- B777-200 aircraft with 11 rows in Business Class have the Qsuite.
- B777-300 aircraft with 11 rows in Business Class have the Qsuite.

- B787-800 do NOT have the Qsuite.

Pining for Exotic Isles? Take a Sea Spell in the Seychelles

April 2021

Here are the best ways to land in luxury, now that these glamorous islands are open again – whether you have miles or points, or neither.

The beautiful Seychelles are open for business once again, but if we're really being honest, this is all about pleasure. A thousand miles off the coast of East Africa, this group of 115 islands in the Indian Ocean offers a warm vacation oasis in an exotic locale. And talk about bragging rights: You'll crush the next one-upmanship among your friends and colleagues. All you must do is present a valid negative PCR test taken no more than 72 hours before departure. Here's the official word.

GET THERE WITH EMIRATES

Emirates offers daily flights to the Seychelles via Dubai with discount award availability in First Class from Boston, Chicago, Dallas, and San Francisco. Business Class is available from Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, and Washington, DC.

Emirates First Class fares from U.S. cities range from $13,302 to $14,416 while Business Class fares range from $5,551 to $6,661.

And for “tax avoiders,” there’s more good news: Emirates recently lowered its taxes as we reported here. For Chicago to Dubai in First Class, for example, taxes were previously $1,543; currently, they’re about $400.

NO MILES? NO PROBLEM. WE SELL SEYCHELLES BY THE SEA SHORE. (UP TO 56% OFF)

You can buy points from Amex and transfer them directly to Emirates. Do this, and you’ll pay up to $8,041 / $56% less than the traveler sitting next to you. Look at the math below:

OR GET THERE WITH TURKISH AIRLINES

Turkish doesn't offer First Class flights to the Seychelles. Business Class fares from the U.S. range from $5,416 to $6,561.

However, if you use United miles for Business Class it can save big. See our chart a little further below.

Turkish flies to the Seychelles via Istanbul on Mondays and Saturdays with discount award availability using United miles in Business Class from Boston, Chicago, and New York.

Don't forget that Turkish Airlines offer fully lie-flat seats that open to a 76-inch bed. (I like these seats.)
