Moments

Summertime pools

Made for moments

Some of the best moments in life aren't planned

Summertimepools

They're found when you're relaxing after the school run, on those warm afternoons, or during sunny weekends that seem to never end. A pool is where it all unfolds. It's where the kids can play, the conversations flow, and time melts away.

What we build goes beyond a pool. We shape spaces where summers are shared and memories are made. A space for moments to happen.

A message from our Managing Director

Building a pool can be a big decision. It's more than just a 'nice to have'. It becomes part of your home, your family, and your everyday way of living, now and into the future.

At Summertime Pools, we don't take that responsibility lightly. Every pool we build is made with the understanding that it needs to last. Not just structurally, but in how it's enjoyed by you and your family. By kids growing up. By people coming together. By life changing around it.

We choose to design, manufacture, and install our pools ourselves because it allows us to stand behind every detail and every promise we make.

If you choose to build with us, you're not just getting a beautifully designed and made pool, you're getting a team that cares deeply about doing things properly and being there for you long after your first swim.

Warm regards

Rob Kruber
Managing Director
Summertime Pools

responsibility
we take seriously

We create pools for life

Some things are worth doing the right way. That's why we own every step of the journey, from design to install, so we can be sure that you are getting the very best quality and experience. Our pools are made in Victoria, engineered for Australian conditions and built with longevity in mind. From the structure you don't see to the finish you live with every day, every detail is considered.

Model—Portsea
Featured colour: Glacier
Available sizes: 7m, 8m, 9m, 10m

We don't believe in shortcuts. And we don't believe quality should be optional. Our approach means we take more care, more skill, and more responsibility. It's how we build pools that stand the test of time and create experiences families can rely on.

Designed to stand
the test of time

Your journey to a new pool should be exciting, not overwhelming. That's why we have a clear, end-to-end process that gives you clarity from the very beginning. We take care of every detail, guiding you through your first conversation with us right through to your first swim, including how your pool is designed, built, installed and supported.

Your pool is manufactured and installed by our team under a fixed-price contract. That means no handovers to other tradespeople, no finger-pointing, and no surprises along the way. You get a calm, controlled journey that you can trust.

From order to installation, most Summertime Pools are completed in 12 weeks or less. And throughout the process, we'll make sure you always know what's happening, what's next, and who to call if you have any questions.

So, you can be confident that no matter what other projects you're taking on in your backyard, the pool itself is being handled the right way, by a team that is passionate about our quality and work.

A simpler way to build a pool

A great pool isn't defined by trends or add-ons, but by how well it works for your family every day.

Design that shines

Model—Daylesford
Design: Circular spill-over spa, sun deck
Available sizes: 8.5m, 10m

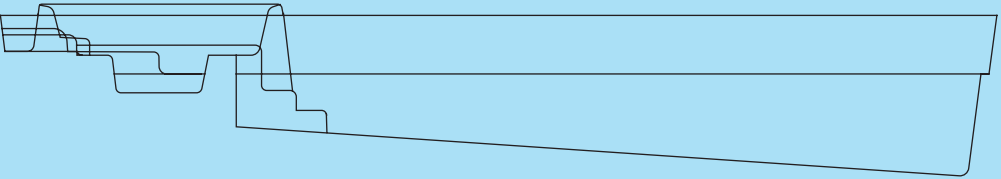

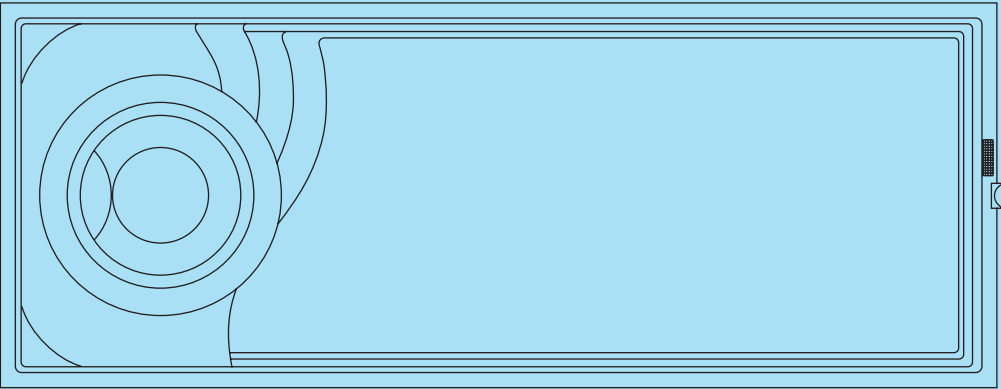

At Summertime Pools, every pool in our range is carefully designed with you in mind. We consider how families use their backyards, how people move through the space, and how a pool should not only make you feel good on day one, but also years down the track.

We focus our designs on proportion, balance, and practicality. Everything from step placement and seating to depth transitions and clean lines have been thought about, so every pool works in real Australian backyards.

Rather than custom-designing a pool from scratch, we've done the hard work and research upfront, refining our range to make sure they deliver on performance, can be installed efficiently, and suit a wide variety of homes and lifestyles.

The result is a thoughtful and timeless collection of pools that bring families together, summer after summer.

Find the right feeling for your pool

Beyond shape and size, the way a pool looks and feels is influenced by colour, light, and how it interacts with the space around it. These elements can completely change your experience, making them more important than you might think. Calm or vibrant? Subtle or dramatic? Relaxed or energetic? Picture the atmosphere you want to create, and think about how certain factors can help you achieve this.

Water colour

The colour of the pool interior has a big impact on how the water appears, from bright and fresh to deeper and more reflective. Lighter tones tend to feel open and lively, while darker ones create a more natural, resort-like look. Remember, the surrounding surfaces, sunlight, and landscaping all play a role in how your pool suits both your home and how you want the space to feel.

Light and time of day

Lighting changes how and when a pool can be used and enjoyed, especially in the evenings. Subtle underwater lighting can extend your use of the pool after sunset, while also helping to shape the mood – whether that’s soft and relaxed or more vibrant when entertaining. The aim isn’t about brightness, it’s about atmosphere.

How the pool fits the space

A pool doesn’t exist on its own, it’s part of a larger backyard. The relationship between the pool, surroundings, landscaping and the home itself plays a big role in how the final look and feel comes together. Clean lines can feel architectural. Softer edges can feel more natural. Good design is less about adding elements, and more about making sure everything compliments each other.

Your consultant will help you to make these decisions, so you can translate your ideas into choices that work in practice and still feel right years down the track.

All the essentials, already included

When you choose a Summertime Pool, you get more standard. Every model is made and installed to a level we think families should expect, not upgrade to.

Model—Flinders
Featured colour: Bermuda Blue
Available sizes: 7m, 8m

Proven build quality

Every Summertime pool is engineered and manufactured in Australia, using construction methods that are proven for long-term performance in Australian conditions. From the structure beneath the surface to the finishing touches, we think about the quality from the start, because we know that shortcuts show up later.

Installed with care

Your pool is built and installed by our team under a fixed-price contract. That means clear accountability, consistent standards, and no handovers between multiple parties. So we know your project inside out, and you get a smoother installation process and a pool that suits your specific needs.

Ready to enjoy

We make sure that the essential systems that make your pool function day after day are all included, professionally installed, and properly commissioned. Everything is set up to work as it should, because we believe that peace of mind should come as standard, not as an optional extra. So when your pool is handed over and you get final sign off, you won't need any extra add-ons or upgrades to start enjoying making memories.

Make it yours

Every Summertime pool is ready to be enjoyed as standard. From there, it's all about making choices on how you want to use your pool. How long do you want to swim for each year? How hands-on do you want to be from day to day? These choices aren't about making your pool work, they're about tailoring it to suit your lifestyle and needs.

Swim longer

For families who want to enjoy their pool beyond the peak of summer, heating options can make a big difference. They allow you to extend the season and keep the water comfortable when the temperature drops. Options may include electric heat pumps, gas heating or integrated spa heating.

Quiet, clean and effortless

If you want to spend less time managing your pool and more time enjoying it, then automation and cleaning upgrades are a great choice. They take much of the day-to-day work out of pool ownership, helping keep everything running smoothly in the background. Options may include automated controls or robotic cleaning systems.

Feel better in the water

Different water treatment choices can change how your pool feels to swim in, and its maintenance needs over time. These options are about getting that extra comfort, balance and ease, from a softer feel on your skin in the water, to reduced handling of chemicals out of it. Options may include mineral or low-chlorine systems.

Set the mood

Lighting and water features can subtly change how your pool looks and feels. These details shape how your space is enjoyed at different times of day, and when friends and family come together. From calm and understated to dramatic and atmospheric, these upgrades can make all the difference. Options may include upgraded lighting, spa jets, or deck jets.

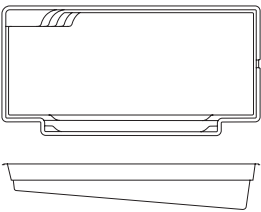

Your pool consultant can talk through all these options with you so you can get an understanding of what's possible, what makes sense for your home, and what each option costs, helping you to make the right decision for your home and budget.

In their words

For their new home, the Portsea pool became a place for Christine's family to slow down and reconnect. From the first site visit, Summertime Pools guided the process with clarity and care, balancing practical expertise with an understanding of how the pool would be used.

"The customer service was seamless from beginning to end. Every question we had was resolved instantly. We would absolutely go with Summertime Pools again."

What success looks like

Every family uses their pool a little differently. But the best spaces tend to share a few things in common. Thoughtful design, careful installation, and a pool that fits naturally into your way of living. This is just one example of how it all comes together.

Model—Peninsula
Available sizes: 6m, 7m, 8m, 10m

This backyard was imagined as a space for everyone.

The Peninsula's all-in-one design brought together everything this family wanted: a full-length pool for swimming, a spa for winding down, and a sun deck that's perfect for little feet, laid-back afternoons, or lounging in the shallow end.

Every detail was considered to make the pool feel like it belonged, flowing effortlessly from the home into the outdoors. This render shows how clean lines, calm water, and clever design come together to create a space that feels like it's always been there.

Built for active weekends and the quiet moments in between, this pool was designed to keep life feeling simple, joyful, and beautifully connected. Because when you get the design right, the memories tend to follow.

Visit our factory

We welcome and encourage all our customers to visit us at our manufacturing facility to see where their pool is made.

We offer organised factory tours and we're also happy to show you through at other times. It's an opportunity to see the care, precision, and scale behind the finished product first-hand, and provides a level of transparency that's rare in the pool industry.

Every Summertime pool is made in our purpose-built facility right here in Australia.

Over the years we've built a modern manufacturing space from the ground up that is designed to support our philosophy of continuous improvement.

When you care about millimetres, then consistency and repeatability really matter. Achieving this level of accuracy and control simply isn't possible without an environment where accurate systems, precise tooling, and rigorous quality checks can happen at every stage of production.

Our moulds are digitally engineered and CNC-machined to exact tolerances, ensuring every pool shell is true to design and finished cleanly. This precision carries through the entire manufacturing process, where material thickness is carefully measured and controlled across the structure of every pool.

By building our pools with a significantly greater structural thickness than typical industry standards, we're prioritising long-term strength and stability, and not just how the pool looks when it's new.

Because when a pool is built properly from the start, it gives families far fewer things to worry about down the track.

Manufacturing our own pools allows us to control every stage of this process, rather than relying on third-party suppliers or dealer networks. The same business that designs your pool is also responsible for building it.

It's a more deliberate way of working. And it's also a more dependable one.

Where your pool comes to life

How we build differently

A perfectly finished pool may look simple. How it’s built is anything but. Over the decades, we have refined the way our pools are designed, manufactured, and equipped. We don’t add unnecessary complexity, we strive to remove issues that surface years down the track. This is where the way we build differently matters.

Designed for Australian conditions

Our pools are engineered specifically for Australian homes, soil conditions, and climate. From structural design through to surface finishes, we want your pool to retain its appearance and performance over time, not just on day one. Advanced gel coat systems are used to resist fading and wear from everyday exposure, so the pool continues to look and feel great as the years pass.

A quieter, cleaner equipment setup

Most pools rely on a standard equipment setup that’s often noisy, visually cluttered, and left sitting in plain view. We take a different approach. Our equipment is housed in a purpose-designed station that keeps everything organised, protected, and significantly quieter in operation, while reducing visual clutter and minimising disruption around the home. It’s a detail many families don’t think about, until they experience how much nicer it is to live with.

Simple, intelligent automation

Pool ownership shouldn’t feel technical. Automation allows key systems to operate efficiently without you having to make manual changes, helping to maintain water quality, manage equipment cycles, and reduce day-to-day involvement. Rather than overwhelming you with technology, Summertime Pools focuses on simple, reliable automation that makes ownership easier, quieter, and more predictable.

Fewer choices, better outcomes

Instead of confusing you with endless combinations and decisions, we offer a number of options for things like water treatment and equipment that are made to specifically handle the job. This approach avoids incompatible systems, reduces guesswork, and ensures everything works together as intended, delivering better outcomes with less effort over time.

Good pool building isn’t about adding more. It’s about removing the things that cause problems later.

Model—Lorne
Featured colour: Bermuda Blue
Available sizes: 6m, 7m, 8m

In their words

Working within a tight backyard footprint, Alan wanted a pool that fit the space without feeling overwhelming. From the first site visit, Summertime Pools helped him visualise what would work, offering clear, practical advice that made the decision feel right from the outset.

“Summertime Pools showed me where everything was going to fit and how it would work, which made us comfortable with the decision. We have a very tight space, so we couldn’t have gone any larger than the size we chose. The Lorne fits perfectly.”

Alan R

“They were reputable, made quality products, and were easy to deal with.”

For the long run

A swimming pool isn't an impulse purchase; it's a permanent addition to your home. Peace of mind comes from knowing your pool has been designed properly, built carefully, and is backed by a company that will still be here to support you long after installation.

Built by a substantial Australian business

We don't operate through a dealer network, and we don't outsource responsibility. From the factory floor to installation, the process stays under one roof, so there is clearer accountability and fewer things that can go wrong. It also means you're working with a business that has invested heavily in its people, systems and long-term capability, not just short-term sales.

Fixed pricing, no surprises

Where your project scope is defined, pricing is fixed. That means no unexpected variations, no last-minute add-ons, and no uncomfortable conversations after work has begun. It's a straightforward approach designed to remove uncertainty and create clarity.

Clear warranties, clearly explained

Your pool is backed by comprehensive warranties that cover the pool structure and key components. More importantly, those warranties are supported by a company with the scale and stability to honour them. We don't disappear when the build is finished. Your consultant can let you know exactly what's covered, what's not, and how support works in practice.

Support beyond installation

The relationship doesn't end at handover. Summertime Pools provides guidance on care, maintenance, and ongoing support to help you enjoy your pool for years, knowing there's a team behind you if any questions come up down the track. A pool should add more enjoyment to your life, not more stress. That's why everything we do is designed to make the experience as clear, understandable, and dependable as possible.

"We feel so lucky to have chosen Summertime Pools to build our dream pool. We had our pool completed within 10 weeks since signing our contract. Their customer service was unbelievable. Nothing was ever a problem. In a reputation game Summertime Pools are second to none."
