Oak Bay Beach Hotel Then & Now

1998

2012

The original Oak Bay Beach Hotel built in 1927 was completely destroyed in a fire.

An exact replica was promptly rebuilt on its ashes in 1930, and that building, with all its old-world charm, became "the place to be, and be seen" by locals and guests alike.

The building was torn down in 2006 and newly built to luxury standards in 2012, with a number of physical elements and furnishings (such as windows, bricks, beams, furniture, and artworks) preserved from the original building.

Many of our rooms accommodate up to four guests, and select side-by-side rooms with common entryways may be available upon booking.
