Jess arrived at the bright gymnastics gym, her heart full of excitement for her very first class.

She spotted Sophie, a friendly girl in a purple leotard, waving from the mats. Jess waved back, feeling a little less nervous.

Coach Mia clapped her hands and called everyone together for warm-ups. Jess listened closely and followed along, stretching her arms up high.

Today, Coach Mia introduced the balance beam. Jess watched as Sophie bravely took a step up and spread out her arms.

When it was her turn, Jess felt her knees tremble, but she remembered to breathe and climbed up slowly.

Step by step, Jess balanced across the beam. She wobbled, but found her focus by looking straight ahead.

When Jess reached the end of the beam, Sophie and Coach Mia cheered. Jess felt a warm, proud glow grow in her chest.

After practice, Jess gave Sophie a high-five. She realized she could try new things, even if they felt hard at first.

As the class finished, Coach Mia handed out fun rainbow stickers for everyone's brave efforts. Jess smiled wide and put hers on her gym bag.

Walking home, Jess felt strong and happy. She could not wait for her next big gymnastics adventure!
