

Levi's Magic Forest

Levi walked outside,
looking high and low.
A butterfly danced by—
“Which way shall I go?”
He skipped, and he hopped,
'til something shiny caught his eye.

“Ooh, a secret door!”
Levi bent down low.
The shiny thing wiggled—
it opened so slow!
Creeeaaak—the portal blinked,
filled with magic, gold, and pink.

Levi squeaked with joy,
and crawled right inside.
A forest of candy trees—
delights far and wide!
“Wow,” he whispered,
feeling brave and small.

Crunchy leaves crackled—
a bush giggled near!
A little voice chimed,
“Come meet your friend, dear!”
Levi waved, heart thumping, delighted by what he’d find.

Twizzle zipped around,
voice quiet and small,
“Our home’s losing color—
it’s fading for all!
The magic is weak.
We’re turning pale today!”

“Maybe Elder Oakley can help!”
Twizzle whispered fast.
Levi nodded, “Let’s go—let’s run, really fast!”
Feet pitter-pattered
on sweet-scented grass.

“To help our world, Levi,
try giving—don’t keep—
a gift from your heart.”
Levi thought, then took a leap!
He gave his red bracelet,
hoping magic would stay.

Sparkles swirled everywhere—
color flashed and spun!
Jellybeans bounced, leaves giggled,
our magic had begun.
“Thank you!” cried Twizzle,
as everything shone anew.

Twizzle twirled, “You’re our hero!”
Elder Oakley smiled, “Stay.”
But Levi knew it was time—
home was not far away.
He turned, hugging Twizzle a sweet goodbye.

Levi tiptoed out,
back to his grassy yard.
He smiled at the bush,
heart shining like a star.
His secret was safe—
he'd remember forever and ever.
