Naylor Love Construction

Heritage carpentry for iconic theatre restoration

Farrell Construction was proud to contribute to the post-earthquake remediation of the Isaac Theatre Royal, one of Christchurch's most treasured heritage icons.

Working as a subcontractor to Naylor Love, we provided foremen and a team of 15+ skilled carpenters experienced in heritage restoration. Our scope included carpentry, concrete and general builder's works, carried out with precision to meet the complex requirements of this project.

"Farrell's rose to the challenge of reinstating the ITR's complex floor framing and steel canopy. They provided excellent and professional service throughout the build and their attention to detail and willingness to work through complex geometrical problems with the architects has contributed to a theatre that all involved can be very proud of."
