

Marketing & Claims Disclaimer

AI Uniti Pty Ltd · ABN 36 694 238 821 · Last updated: 11 May 2026 ·
Supersedes v1.0 dated 17 January 2026

What changed in v2.0. Branding refresh and inclusion of AI Uniti's intellectual property notice (patent pending and registered trademark). Underlying disclaimer substance is unchanged: AI Uniti software provides decision-support tools only and AI Output should not be relied upon as the sole basis for decisions.

1. Scope

This Marketing & Claims Disclaimer applies to all marketing, sales and informational materials produced by AI Uniti Pty Ltd (AI Uniti), including content on aiuniti.com, social posts, sales decks, demonstrations, video and podcast appearances, press materials, customer briefings and AI-generated outputs surfaced in the Signal and Unite platforms (the Software).

2. Product and AI Output Disclaimer

AI Uniti software solutions provide AI-powered decision-support tools only. Unless expressly stated in writing:

- AI Uniti does not guarantee the accuracy, completeness or reliability of AI-generated outputs (AI Output).
- AI Output is probabilistic, generated automatically, and may be incomplete or out of date.
- AI Output should not be relied upon as the sole basis for decisions of material consequence.
- AI Uniti does not provide legal, medical, financial or other regulated professional advice.

3. Customer Responsibility

Customers are responsible for:

- configuring the Software appropriately for their environment;
- reviewing and validating AI Output before acting on it;
- ensuring use of the Software and AI Output complies with applicable laws (including data protection, consumer protection, surveillance and broadcasting laws in their jurisdiction);
- maintaining human oversight of automated decisions, consistent with the Responsible AI Policy.

4. Marketing Statements

Marketing materials (including statements about detection lead times, platform coverage, customer outcomes, market category positioning and analyst engagement) are provided for informational purposes only and do not form part of any contractual guarantee. Where marketing materials describe quantitative claims, those claims are derived from internal measurement and academic corroboration available at the time of publication and may evolve as the Software, the dataset or the threat landscape develops.

5. Forward-Looking Statements

Statements about future products, features, capabilities, partnerships, investor positioning, market category development or regulatory tailwinds are forward-looking and subject to change. They are not commitments and should not be relied upon for investment or procurement decisions.

6. Intellectual Property Notice

All AI Uniti software, models, prompts, workflows, agent orchestration logic, detection methodologies, analytics and documentation are owned exclusively by AI Uniti. AI Uniti's detection method is the subject of Australian Provisional Patent Application 2026904445 (filed 8 May 2026). The AI UNITI name and logo are trademarks of AI Uniti Pty Ltd

(TM 2618432, accepted by IP Australia in February 2026). Unauthorised use of marketing materials, the AI UNITI name and logo, or AI Uniti's detection methodology is prohibited.

7. Third-Party References

References in marketing materials to third parties (analyst houses, partners, customers, regulators, academic authors, competitor vendors or named individuals) are descriptive and used for informational context. No endorsement is implied unless expressly stated in writing by the third party.

8. No Financial or Investment Advice

Consistent with the AI Uniti Trust & Compliance Statement, nothing in AI Uniti's marketing materials constitutes financial product advice, a recommendation regarding securities or digital assets, or solicitation of investment. Users should obtain independent professional advice for decisions of financial consequence.

9. Updates

AI Uniti may update this Disclaimer from time to time. The current version is published at aiuniti.com/legal. Material changes take effect on the date stated in the updated version.
