Roman Roth

Radio

Opening

Saturday 15.08.
9 - 11pm | 21 - 23 Uhr

We are inviting you to join us this Saturday the 15th from 9 to 11pm for the inaugural screening of Roman Roths Radio along with some drinks.

The video work can be viewed independently of our opening hours over the coming weeks through the windows of the Paint Shop while we go on a summer break until September.

Radio uses frame displacement of a simultaneously playing video to create an oscillating composition.

As the title suggests, the work radiates light and tonal notes that move from a singular sound to symphonic density as the images move from macro to micro scale, finally ending in a one-tile-per-pixel state.

The sun's brightness is mapped to a C2 tone on a synthesizer, then pitched to a different note ramp according to its position and the offset. As more rows and columns become visible, additional voices fade in and saturate the composition.

In his time-based works, Roman Roth plays with the space between the figurative and the abstract.

Through reconfiguration, repetition and sound modification, he transforms images into a newly constructed space. His videos are both formal and funny, joyfully critiquing consumerism while mirroring the human spirit in all its contradictions.
