What is the PRS database?

A new national register requiring all private landlords in England to register themselves and each rental property they let. It forms part of Phase 2 of the Renters' Rights Act (2026) reforms.

The aim is to:

- Improve transparency in the rental sector
- Ensure landlords meet legal standards
- Provide tenants with clearer information

What information will you need to provide?

- Your legal name and contact details
- Property address
- Property type and occupancy details
- Safety compliance information (e.g. gas, electrical, smoke alarms)
- Whether the property is licensed (e.g. HMO)

Who needs to register?

All private landlords actively letting property in England. This includes:

- Individual landlords
- Companies
- Portfolio landlords

Letting agents cannot register on behalf of landlords.

Advertising requirements

Once registered, you must include your unique registration number on all rental advertisements. This applies to:

- Online listings
- Printed adverts
- Social media posts

Enforcement and penalties

Failure to register may result in:

- Civil penalties
- Enforcement action
- Restrictions on letting

Local authorities will have access to the database and can take action where landlords fail to comply.

Registration fees

£65

Per property
Per year

Payable annually and applies to each rental property.
