

The Rockies & Yellowstone Loop

Timeless Treasures Travel

Day 1: Arrival in Denver, Colorado

Welcome to the Mile High City. Stroll through Larimer Square, explore Union Station, or enjoy dinner in Denver's lively LoDo district before your mountain adventure begins.

Days 2–3: Rocky Mountain National Park

Head into the Rockies, where alpine lakes sparkle beneath towering peaks. Spend two days exploring meadows and high passes along Trail Ridge Road, rising above 12,000 feet. Early mornings bring encounters with elk, moose, and bighorn sheep. Stay in Estes Park, a charming mountain town at the park's edge.

Days 4–5: Grand Teton National Park

Continue north to Jackson, Wyoming, gateway to the Tetons. Here, jagged peaks rise straight from the valley floor, mirrored in Jenny and Jackson Lakes. Float the Snake River, wander alpine meadows, or ride the aerial tram for sweeping views. In Jackson, western dining and art galleries await.

Days 6–9: Yellowstone National Park

Immerse yourself in four days of Yellowstone’s wonders. Geysers erupt in dramatic displays, hot springs shimmer in rainbow hues, and waterfalls plunge into the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone. Wildlife roams freely—bison in the valleys, bears along the rivers, wolves in the wild Lamar Valley. Stay within the park for an unforgettable experience at the Old Faithful Inn or nearby towns like West Yellowstone.

Days 10–11: Glacier National Park

Travel north into Montana’s Glacier National Park, where turquoise lakes and snowcapped peaks create scenes straight from a postcard. Drive the Going-to-the-Sun Road, winding past waterfalls and glaciers, or hike to Avalanche Lake for serene mountain beauty.

Day 12: Montana Cowboy Country

On your return south, savor the wide-open skies of Montana. Stay in a ranch lodge, ride horseback across rolling plains, and breathe deeply beneath the endless horizon.

Day 13: Journey Back to Colorado

Head back toward Denver, stopping in small mountain towns that capture the spirit of the American West.

Day 14: Departure from Denver

Return your car and board your flight home, your journey marked by towering mountains, roaring rivers, and the untamed beauty of America’s northern wilderness.
