

A New Year, A New Chapter

"A New Chapter Begins: Make It Unforgettable"

2026 is not just a change on the calendar, but a profound opportunity to script a new, empowering chapter and truly make 2026 your defining year. It's a collective call to action, to reflect, reset, and project forward with renewed purpose.

The turn of the year traditionally serves as a powerful psychological breakpoint, offering a chance to evaluate the highs and lows of the past 365 days and shed any baggage that might impede progress. For 2026, the rhetoric suggests moving beyond passive resolutions to an active, strategic intent, urging individuals to shape their destinies rather than merely observe them.

Experts emphasize that making 2026 a standout year involves a holistic approach. It's not solely about material achievements, but also encompasses mental fortitude, emotional intelligence, and physical vitality. Prioritizing self-care, fostering meaningful connections, and cultivating a positive mindset are equally crucial components of holistic success.

Don't hesitate to take bold actions, try new things, and learn from every stroke you create. Resilience, adaptability, and an unwavering belief in your capacity to overcome obstacles will be your most valuable tools.

The digital age, while sometimes overwhelming, also provides unprecedented resources for personal development. From online learning platforms offering new skills to mental wellness apps promoting mindfulness, the tools to support individual goals are more accessible than ever before. Leveraging these resources, coupled with discipline and perseverance, can turn ambitious visions into tangible realities.

As 2026 stretches out before us, a year brimming with potential and possibilities, the opportunity to define it is yours alone. It's a chance to rewrite narratives, chase long-held dreams, and build the foundation for the future you envision.

So, as you step into this new chapter, remember: the power to make 2026 truly your year rests firmly in your hands. Embrace the journey, and write a story worthy of celebration.

KEEPING SENIORS SAFE AND COMFORTABLE DURING WINTER

The Importance of Home Care

Winter brings its own kind of beauty — crisp air, cozy evenings, and festive moments with loved ones. But for many seniors, it can also bring challenges that affect their health, safety, and overall well-being. Cold weather, icy walkways, and shorter days can make daily routines more difficult and increase the risk of accidents or illness. That's where professional home care services make a real difference.

As temperatures drop, seniors become more vulnerable to several risks, such as Falls and Injuries. Snow and ice can turn simple tasks, like checking the mail or stepping outside, into dangerous activities. A fall can lead to serious injuries and long recovery times.

Cold-Related Health Issues: Seniors are more susceptible to hypothermia, frostbite, and worsening of chronic conditions such as arthritis, heart disease, or respiratory problems.

Social Isolation: Winter often means staying indoors, which can lead to loneliness, depression, and reduced mental stimulation. These challenges highlight the importance of having consistent support and companionship throughout the season.

How Home Care Services Make a Difference

Home care professionals provide personalized, compassionate assistance that helps seniors stay safe, comfortable, and independent during the winter months.

- Safety and Fall Prevention: Caregivers ensure walkways are clear, assist with mobility, and maintain a hazard-free home environment.
- Warmth and Health: They monitor room temperatures, help seniors dress appropriately, and prepare warm, nourishing meals.
- Companionship and Emotional Support: Regular visits offer conversation, friendship, and reassurance — essential for combating feelings of isolation.
- Transportation Assistance: Whether it's a doctor's appointment or a trip to the store, caregivers help seniors get where they need to go safely.

With this kind of support, seniors can confidently enjoy their daily routines, even when the weather outside is less than ideal. If you or a loved one could use extra support this winter, our dedicated home care team is here to help. We provide personalized care plans designed to keep seniors safe, healthy, and happy — right in the comfort of their own homes.

Contact RES Home Care today. Let's make this winter a season of comfort, care, and peace of mind.

As we age, our bodies naturally become more sensitive to cold. Seniors often feel colder in winter because metabolism slows down, muscle mass decreases, and circulation isn't as strong as it used to be—making it harder to stay warm. Certain medications and medical conditions can also affect temperature regulation. That's why keeping homes cozy, dressing in layers, and staying active are especially important for older adults during the colder months.

RES Home Care – Aging At Home Program

The Aging at Home Program at RES Home Care empowers older adults to live confidently, safely, and independently in the comfort of their own homes—giving families true peace of mind. Designed with both support and convenience in mind, this program connects clients with personalized care, valuable resources, and services that enhance daily living.

In addition to direct care services, the program assists individuals and families with Medicaid applications and NHTD/TBI Waiver enrollment, ensuring they can access the essential long-term supports they need. By offering flexible, client-centered solutions, the Aging at Home Program helps reduce hospitalizations, delay or prevent nursing home placement, and improve overall quality of life—while guiding families toward cost-effective options that create meaningful long-term savings.

It's our commitment to making aging at home easier, more accessible, and more fulfilling—while delivering the peace of mind every family deserves.

2026 A Year of Innovation: Introducing The Hub Central

CONNECT WITH ELLIE
REGISTER NOW FOR FREE BETA TESTING

As we step into 2026, RES Home Care is embracing a powerful theme that reflects both the needs of our community and the direction of our field: A Year of Innovation. Not innovation for the sake of technology, but innovation that makes life better, strengthens independence, and supports the families who make aging at home possible.

The truth is simple: the world of home care is changing. Families are juggling more responsibilities, the cost of care continues to rise, and navigating the healthcare system has become increasingly complex. At the same time, the desire to live independently at home — with dignity, connection, and support — has never been stronger.

RES has always stepped forward in moments like this. For 25 years, whenever a gap appeared, we built something to fill it: community programs for TBI survivors, specialized waiver services, caregiver support initiatives, and mental health resources designed to protect families from burnout. Each step was driven by the same question: What does our community need now?

In 2026, the answer is clear. Families need tools that simplify daily life, reduce costs, and keep people safer at home — without losing the human connection that defines RES. This is why we are proud to introduce our next major innovation.

The Hub Central is a secure, digital Village, built to make aging at home easier, more organized, and more connected. It brings together health information, reminders, live events, care coordination, and daily support in one simple place — offering families clarity in a world that often feels overwhelming.

Here's what you'll find inside:

- The Welcome Center: A friendly digital guide to help every user feel at ease.
- The Health & Care Pavilion: Connect monitoring devices, track daily health data, and receive early alerts to prevent costly medical crises.
- The Social & Events Hub: A lively schedule of classes, workshops, and activities that keep clients socially engaged and emotionally supported.
- The Digital Support Assistant: Tools to simplify medications, appointments, schedules, and documents — reducing the burden on caregivers.

The goal is not to replace the personal relationships at the heart of RES. The goal is to strengthen them by giving families a clearer, easier, and more affordable way to stay organized and stay ahead.

Ellie, The Hub Central's AI Virtual Support Coordinator, helps seniors stay independent by guiding them through daily tasks, appointments, and reminders with ease. She provides friendly check-ins, wellness prompts, and personalized support tailored to each senior's routine. With Ellie's assistance, older adults enjoy greater confidence, safety, and connection in their day-to-day lives.

Why Now? The Cost of Care and the Future of Aging at Home

Aging at home is becoming increasingly financially challenging. Rising prices, limited caregiver availability, and increasing health needs are placing enormous pressure on families. Emergency room visits and preventable hospitalizations add to the cost, both emotionally and economically.

Innovation is no longer a bonus. It's a necessity. By giving families early warnings, better communication, and a single point of organization, The Hub can help reduce avoidable costs, improve safety, and protect independence. This is the future of sustainable home care — using smart tools to make human care stronger.

BE PART OF THE INNOVATION

As we declare 2026 a year of innovation at RES, we want to invite you to help shape the future of care at home. Your insight, your experience, and your voice will help build a platform that thousands of families will rely on in the years ahead.

They can also help with fall detection, health tracking, appointment alerts, smart home automation like lighting and temperature control, and even cognitive engagement through games and virtual activities. These advances not only bring peace of mind to families but also empower seniors to maintain their well-being with greater confidence and comfort.

Exciting News: RES Home Care Launches New Mental Health Program!

RES Home Care is pleased to announce our new Mental Health Program.

The need for mental health support has never been greater, and yet finding that support has never been harder. Families are juggling caregiving, work, finances, medical needs, and the emotional weight that comes with it all. Older adults are facing increased isolation. Caregivers are burning out. Individuals living with chronic illness or disability often navigate stress, anxiety, and loss without enough support.

The problem isn't that people don't want help — it's access. Across Long Island, people regularly face:

- Months-long waitlists
- Providers who no longer accept new patients
- Narrow insurance networks
- Limited availability for specialized services
- Restrictions on session length, frequency, or treatment methods
- High deductibles before coverage even begins

For many families, the door to care is technically “open,” but nearly impossible to walk through. In line with RES’s mission to alleviate real hardships, our 2026 Mental Health Program is designed to provide support directly to individuals, caregivers, and families in need.

WHY FEE FOR SERVICE?

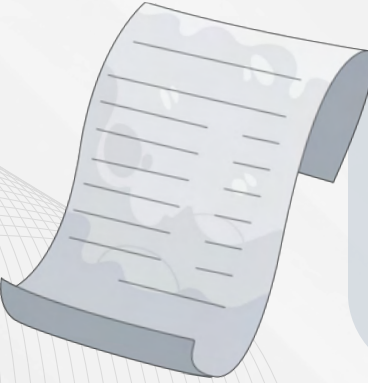

Insurance should make mental health care easier, but too often it does the opposite. Low reimbursement rates, administrative hurdles, and strict limitations on treatment all contribute to a shortage of providers. These same issues push many therapists to stop taking insurance altogether, leaving families stuck without options. A fee-for-service model provides a different path:

- No waitlists created by insurance panel restrictions
- No session limits
- No forced diagnostic labels to receive benefits
- More flexibility in scheduling and services
- The ability to match clients with the right clinician, not just an “in-network” one

For clients who have out-of-network benefits, we can provide receipts for reimbursement. For others, our goal is to keep the pricing reasonable and transparent — making counseling accessible, not burdensome. This model lets our clinicians do what they do best: help people.

No red tape. No insurance interference. No delays that allow small problems to become crises.

WHAT THE NEW PROGRAM WILL OFFER

- Individual Counseling Support for anxiety, depression, grief, caregiver burnout, life transitions, adjustment after illness or injury, and emotional health across the lifespan.
 - Group Counseling and Support Circles Sessions for caregivers, individuals with chronic or acquired disabilities, seniors coping with life changes, and others who benefit from community connection and shared experience.
 - Flexible Session Formats: In-person and virtual options to reduce barriers and meet people where they are.
 - Licensed, Compassionate Clinicians Professionals who understand the home-care world, the pressures families face, and the emotional landscape that comes with caregiving.

WHY THIS MATTERS IN 2026

If this year is truly going to be RES’s “Year of Innovation,” then innovation has to reach beyond technology. It must reach the emotional side of care — the side families rarely talk about but feel every day.

Aging at home is not just a physical journey. It’s an emotional one. Caregivers need support to stay healthy. Clients need support to stay resilient. Families need support to stay connected through challenging seasons.

The goal is simple: Make mental health care accessible, compassionate, and grounded in the realities of daily life — not in the limitations of insurance systems.

RES Home Care’s Mental Health Program is made to provide adults in New York State with compassionate, accessible, and person-centered counseling that empowers individuals and families to achieve emotional well-being and live fulfilling lives within their community. This is a fee-for-service program that allows individuals to access outpatient mental health counseling from licensed professionals at prices they can afford, while minimizing wait times and treatment limitations.

Our clinicians have experience in a variety of topics, including depression and mood disorders, anxiety disorders, adjustment disorders and life transitions, stress and burnout management, as well as grief, loss, and end-of-life support. Our clinicians can also provide cognitive and aging-related support, trauma-informed counseling, chronic illness and pain management, and behavioral health treatment. Sessions are offered both in person and via telehealth. Our fees are based on a sliding scale

6 from $25 to $85 per 45-minute session. Don't hesitate to get in touch with Marissa Caponi at 631-732-4794 Ext. 120

KEEPING THE MIND ACTIVE: SIMPLE DAILY HABITS THAT SUPPORT BRAIN HEALTH

Supporting cognitive wellness doesn't require complicated programs or demanding routines. In fact, some of the most effective activities for individuals living with dementia or other memory challenges are simple, familiar, and enjoyable. Mental stimulation helps keep neural pathways active, encourages communication, and provides a sense of purpose and comfort throughout the day.

Why Mind Stimulation Matters

Engaging the brain regularly can help maintain attention, support memory recall, and reduce anxiety. These activities also create meaningful opportunities for social interaction, which is especially valuable for individuals who may feel isolated or overwhelmed by change. Even a few minutes of gentle engagement can lift mood, spark conversation, and strengthen connections with caregivers and loved ones.

Everyday Activities That Make a Difference

Reading aloud or storytelling – Hearing familiar voices and rhythms can soothe and stimulate memory.

- Music and rhythm exercises – Favorite songs often evoke positive memories and encourage movement.
- Puzzles, matching games, or sorting tasks – These activities offer mental stimulation without pressure or frustration.
- Creative expression – Coloring, painting, or simple crafts can promote focus and offer a calming, enjoyable experience.
- Reminiscence moments – Looking through photo albums or recalling past experiences helps build emotional connection and confidence.
- Light physical activity – A short walk, stretching, or chair exercises support both mind and body.

Creating a Supportive Environment

Consistency and comfort are key. Choosing activities tailored to a person's interests and abilities ensures the experience feels positive—not overwhelming. Keeping sessions short, allowing extra time for responses, and offering gentle encouragement can make each moment more meaningful. Most importantly, celebrate small successes and enjoy the shared time together.

A Note for Caregivers

Your presence and patience are powerful tools. Every smile, encouraging word, and simple shared activity contributes to emotional well-being. Remember that even on challenging days, the connection you provide makes a lasting difference.

Empowering Independence: TBI Waiver Services & Support

Living with a Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) can bring unique challenges that affect nearly every part of daily life — but you don't have to manage them on your own. The TBI Medicaid Waiver is designed to provide essential services, personalized support, and resources that help individuals live safely, confidently, and independently within their own homes and communities.

The TBI Waiver Process

The Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) waiver services provides individuals with qualifying brain injuries access to community-based supports as an alternative to institutional care. To be eligible, applicants must have a documented traumatic brain injury, demonstrate functional impairments that require a nursing-home level of care, and meet state residency and financial criteria. The process begins with a formal assessment that reviews medical records and evaluates daily living needs. Once approved, the individual collaborates with a case manager to create a person-centered service plan outlining supports such as personal care assistance, therapies, respite, or vocational services. After the plan is authorized, services begin, with ongoing monitoring to ensure the supports remain appropriate and effective.

How RES Home Care Can Assist?

RES Home Care is dedicated to delivering personalized, high-quality support for individuals living with a traumatic brain injury (TBI). Services available through the waiver include service coordination, personal care assistance, home and community support services, independent living skills training, environmental modifications, structured day programs, community integration counseling, respite care, assistive technology, and transportation assistance. Together, these services promote safety, stability, and independence while helping individuals avoid unnecessary institutionalization and remain active members of their communities.

In addition to exceptional in-home care, RES Home Care proudly offers a Structured Day Program tailored to meet each participant's unique needs. This program delivers essential services in outpatient group settings or within the community, providing a warm and engaging environment that fosters social interaction, cognitive stimulation, and emotional well-being. Participants enjoy meaningful daily activities such as games, exercise, and crafts that strengthen mental focus, social connection, and a renewed sense of purpose. The program also offers family caregivers invaluable peace of mind, knowing their loved ones are in a safe, supportive, and enriching environment each day.

RES Home Care is here to make the TBI Waiver enrollment process simple and stress-free. Our experienced team provides one-on-one support to help clients access the care and independence they deserve. For personalized guidance and compassionate assistance, contact our Intake Department today at (631) 732-4794 Ext. 112 — and let us help you or your loved one take the next step toward a brighter, more independent future.

I honestly do not know what I would do without RES in my life. I am a childless widow with no siblings and I am physically disabled. I live alone. Thankfully, I am able to manage my affairs but I am equally thankful because of the wonderful, compassionate, and respectful staff at RES, especially my Case Manager, the incomparable Sally Walsh. I am indeed, NOT ALONE.

When I need to reach out, RES is there for me to help me solve every problem that arises. They make me feel at the same time that I am a human being with dignity. These wonderful people have given me a second chance at life.

NHTD WAIVER SERVICE UPDATE

Changes are coming and what you should know

Significant changes are anticipated for the NHTD Waiver in 2026 as New York State works to manage rising program costs, meet federal waiver requirements, and maintain budget neutrality. To help balance the rapid increase in applicants and ensure long-term sustainability, the State is proposing an enrollment cap that prioritizes individuals with the highest level of need.

As these updates move forward, prospective applicants are encouraged to begin the process as early as possible. You may contact RES Home Care for support with enrollment, or reach out directly to your Regional Resource Development Center (RRDC) to verify Medicaid eligibility and confirm the required nursing-home level of care.

Applicants should also review the updated 2026 service definitions and fee schedule, as both may affect the types of supports available and how care is structured. Because meeting eligibility criteria does not guarantee enrollment once the cap is reached, early preparation, complete documentation, and close coordination with the RRDC will be essential for a smooth application.

What applicants should do and know:

If you plan to apply for the 2026 NHTD Waiver, act promptly:

- Contact RES Home Care for assistance throughout the application process, or reach out to your RRDC to confirm Medicaid eligibility and your nursing-home level of care assessment.
- Review the updated 2026 service definitions and fee schedule to understand how changes may impact your supports.
- Keep in mind that even if you meet eligibility requirements, available slots may be limited due to the proposed cap. Submitting your application early and ensuring that all documentation is complete will give you the best chance for enrollment.

Did you know that small environment changes can prevent big safety issues?

Simple adjustments—like labeling drawers, using contrasting colors on stairs, or adding reminder signs—can increase safety and reduce anxiety for people with memory or reasoning difficulties.

The Critical Importance of Supervised Care for Loved Ones with Dementia and Alzheimer's

Leaving a loved one with dementia or Alzheimer's disease alone and unattended is far more than a safety concern—it is a serious risk that can place their overall well-being in jeopardy. As cognitive abilities decline, judgment, memory, and awareness become increasingly impaired, making everyday tasks—such as cooking, bathing, or simply walking through the home—potentially dangerous. The risks of wandering, falls, medication mistakes, and confusion-driven emergencies rise sharply without consistent supervision. This is why choosing a professional home care agency like RES Home Care is not just beneficial, but essential.

RES Home Care provides highly trained caregivers who specialize in dementia and Alzheimer's support, offering vigilant oversight, structured routines, and compassionate companionship that help minimize anxiety and confusion. Our caregivers ensure your loved one remains safe, engaged, and comfortable in the familiarity of their own home. Families gain invaluable peace of mind knowing that their loved one is receiving expert, attentive care—turning what could be moments of vulnerability into opportunities for dignity, comfort, and enhanced quality of life.

Are you wondering if you qualify for Medicaid or how to navigate the application process?

Our RES Home Care Aging at Home Specialist is ready to assist you."

PREPARING FOR 2026: ESSENTIAL INSIGHTS ON HOME HEALTH AIDES AND NEW IMMIGRATION LAWS

If you're working as a home health aide in the U.S., it's important to stay aware of how evolving immigration laws—especially those taking effect in 2026—could affect your employment and status. Keeping things in mind will help you avoid risks and protect your rights.

First, many home health aides are immigrants. According to one policy brief, about one in three home-care workers are foreign-born. Because of this, changes in immigration rules may have outsized impact on your ability to secure or maintain work authorization. For example, some people with temporary protected status (TPS) are slated to lose their work authorization in early 2026.

Second, if your visa, work permit, or immigration status becomes unstable—due to new restrictions or terminations of programs—you may face legal and employment risks. Some aides have reported they could lose the legal right to work or continue care assignments if their status lapses. It's therefore wise to check whether your permit's validity extends past 2026, and to seek legal advice if the law changes or you receive notice of status termination.

Third, as the workforce shrinks or becomes more uncertain, the demand for aides may increase—but so may regulatory scrutiny. Employers may require stricter documentation of immigration status or shift more tasks onto aides who do have stable authorization. This can mean more pressure, and you may want to keep copies of your documentation and track any changes in policy that affect your rights.

Finally, you might consider planning ahead: explore options for longer-term legal status (such as adjusting to permanent residency) if eligible; stay informed about programs and resources that help immigrant workers navigate changes.

In short: 2026 is shaping up to be a year of significant change in immigration policy that may directly affect home health aides. Maintaining valid work authorization, staying informed of status changes, and understanding your rights are key to safeguarding your job and livelihood.

Integrating Neuropsychology and Creative Expression: The Work of Dr. Joseph Vollaro

Dr. Joseph Vollaro, PhD, is a licensed clinical neuropsychologist whose clinical and academic practice centres on the systematic evaluation of brain-behaviour relationships. He conducts comprehensive neuropsychological assessments—measuring cognitive domains such as memory, attention, executive functions, language and processing speed, alongside emotional and behavioural functioning—to delineate how neurological conditions, injuries, or developmental and age-related changes impact an individual's cognitive and psychological profile. From this foundation he provides clear diagnostic clarification and formulates evidence-based recommendations. Working collaboratively with physicians, rehabilitation specialists and mental-health providers, Dr. Vollaro develops individualized intervention plans, cognitive-rehabilitation strategies and appropriate academic or occupational accommodations, thereby supporting his patients in optimising daily functioning, enhancing adaptive skills and improving overall quality of life.

In addition to his neuropsychological practice, Dr. Vollaro is the driving force behind the creative enterprise The Joe Vollaro Project—a multimedia production initiative that blends original music, visual storytelling and digital art. Through this project, Dr. Vollaro incorporates his psychological expertise and passion for creative expression: the music and accompanying videos explore themes such as memory, emotional experience and the inner life—elements closely aligned with his clinical interest in brain function, cognition and mental health. In doing so, he offers a unique bridge between the science of neuropsychology and the arts, enriching his professional identity and providing a platform through which individuals might engage with concepts of identity, change and resilience in a more experiential and expressive manner.

Celebrating Teresa Blasi: A Valued Member of the RES Community Center

Teresa's journey with the RES Structured Day Program began in May 2011. After being the victim of an accident that resulted in a traumatic brain injury (TBI), Teresa faced a long road of rehabilitation. Recovery from a TBI demands determination and a refusal to give up—and Teresa embodied both.

The first challenge she overcame was accepting her new reality as a person living with a TBI. This is never easy, especially for someone as young as Teresa was at the time. Understandably, she struggled at first, but with supportive family members and consistent positive encouragement, she had the foundation she needed to move forward and work toward independence.

At RES, Teresa focused on developing healthier behaviors and strengthening her social skills. There were moments when life felt overwhelming, and progress seemed slow. Still, she persevered. Once she found her rhythm, she flourished. Her maladaptive behaviors steadily diminished—eventually disappearing to the point that her goals needed to be updated because she had surpassed them.

Teresa's progress didn't stop there. She successfully gained employment and moved into her own apartment with some HCSS support. Today, she is so independent and self-sufficient that she is considered one of RES Home Care's greatest success stories. And every time she walks in with her bright, beautiful smile, we are reminded of just how far she has come.
