One school. Three ways forward.

Individual Ontario credits

Serve students who need a university prerequisite, an additional subject, or credits toward graduation - without requiring them to commit to a full diploma program.

An OSSD pathway

Offer students a route toward the Ontario Secondary School Diploma (OSSD). FEIA assesses previous studies and identifies the remaining courses and graduation requirements.

A dual diploma arrangement

Help students pursue an Ontario diploma alongside their local qualification through a coordinated study plan.

> Recruit around the student's goal, from one required subject to a complete diploma pathway.

Why families consider an Ontario diploma.

Students and families want to understand what an additional qualification could make possible. An OSSD pathway can support further-study goals, complement local education, and build on a student's previous secondary studies.

Pursue university opportunities

Plan an academic pathway toward applications in Canada and internationally, with subjects selected around the student's intended institutions and programs.

Add an Ontario qualification

Explore earning the OSSD alongside a local diploma, giving students an additional qualification to present when pursuing their next academic step.

Build on previous studies

Previous secondary education can count following FEIA's assessment. Students receive a plan identifying what they still need to complete.

Address specific academic gaps

Students who need particular subjects can explore individual Ontario credits rather than enrolling in a full diploma pathway.

Previous education → Ontario study plan → Further-study goals

FOR PARTNERS

A clear conversation with families: What does the student want to do next, what have they already completed, and how could Ontario study help them get there?

Admission requirements vary by institution and program, including how online study is considered. Students should confirm their intended destination's requirements before choosing a pathway.

05 · STUDENT VALUE

A Canadian education pathway, without relocating for high school.

FEIA Online lets students pursue Ontario credits and diploma pathways from their home country, with flexible study that can fit alongside their existing commitments.

Move quickly when ready

Motivated students can complete a course in as little as one month by dedicating time to their studies and completing all required learning and assessments.

Study around existing commitments

Asynchronous delivery means no daily live class. Students can plan their learning around local schooling, training, work, and family life.

Start without waiting for a new school term

Year-round enrolment allows students to begin the application process when they are ready, subject to academic review and completion of enrolment requirements.

FLEXIBILITY FOR YOUR STUDENTS

- Study from home
- Take individual courses
- Pursue a diploma pathway
- Receive teacher support
- Take up to 18 months per course

The one-month completion possibility applies to an individual course, not the full diploma. Completion depends on the student's work, required assessments, and academic requirements.

Build on what your students have already achieved.

Students earn the OSSD by meeting Ontario's graduation requirements. FEIA reviews each student's academic history and identifies the requirements that remain.

30

total credits

Previous studies may count. FEIA assesses each student's academic history to determine the remaining requirements.

Compulsory and elective credits

Determined by the student's entry cohort.

Provincial literacy requirement

Demonstrated through the applicable Ontario route.

Community involvement

Completed as required for the student's pathway.

Online learning and financial literacy

Where applicable to the student's cohort.

Requirements and recognition of previous learning depend on the student's history and applicable Ontario policies. FEIA confirms the individual pathway before enrolment is finalized.

Flexible study. A clear learning process.

In asynchronous learning, students work through online materials without attending a daily live class. They still complete all required learning and assessments.

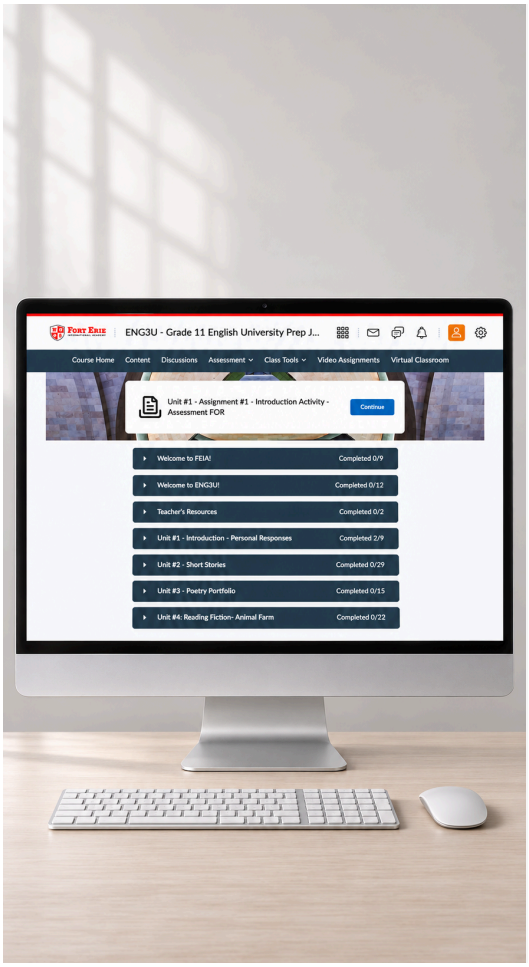

01 Receive access and orientation.

02 Work through lessons and activities.

03 Contact the teacher when support is needed.

04 Submit required assessments.

05 Review feedback and continue toward completion.

> Students work through lessons and videos, check their understanding through quizzes, and apply their learning through assignments and projects - with teacher feedback along the way.

Questions partners often ask

How can our organization earn revenue?

Earn referral commissions by introducing students, or explore a resale arrangement that gives your organization a margin on course sales. We'll discuss the model and commercial terms that fit your organization during a partnership consultation.

Do we need to hire teachers or build an online school?

No. FEIA provides the online academic program, teachers, assessment, and school administration. You focus on recruiting students and supporting your local relationships, with partner onboarding and a named FEIA contact.

How quickly can a student finish a course?

In as little as one month. Motivated students can move quickly by dedicating time to their studies and completing all required learning and assessments. Students who need more flexibility have up to 18 months per course.

Does a student need to start high school again?

No. Previous high school studies can count toward the OSSD following FEIA's assessment. Students receive a clear plan showing what they still need to complete, so they can build on the education they already have.

Can students earn a Canadian diploma without leaving home?

Yes. Students can study toward the Ontario Secondary School Diploma online while remaining in their home country, giving families an additional education pathway without relocating for high school.

Can students study alongside their current school?

Yes. Students can take additional subjects or pursue a coordinated dual diploma pathway. Flexible online study lets them continue their local education while working toward Ontario qualifications.

Can we recruit students who only need one or two courses?

Absolutely. Students may need a university prerequisite, an additional subject, or credits toward graduation. Individual courses let you serve these students without asking them to commit to a full diploma program.

Can the OSSD help students apply to universities abroad?

Yes. Students can use an OSSD pathway to pursue university opportunities in Canada and internationally, with FEIA providing course-selection and application guidance. Each institution sets its own requirements, including how online study is considered.
