Bringing the Outside In

"[Trends are moving] to have all rooms connected with nature with more immersion in landscape," Gonzalez Touzet says.

"[Trends are moving] to have all rooms connected with nature with more immersion in landscape," Gonzalez Touzet says. She adds that buyers are looking to respect and enjoy nature, a trend that will likely be highlighted by light colors, natural stones, and plants. These materials all play into more of those floor-to-ceiling windows that allow sunlight to become a natural function of a home's layout. Even pools can play into this outside/inside aspect as infinity edges allow the pool to blend in with the sightlines of a lake or other body of water. It's fair to say these components acting together paints a picture of residential and environmental harmony.
