Work done

The procedures selected depend on our professional judgment, including assessing the risks of material misstatement of the Management's Reserve Assets Report, whether due to fraud or error and responding to the assessed risks as necessary in the circumstances. Our engagement included evaluating the Management's assessment that the Reserve Assets Report is in compliance with the FSRA requirements.

The reasonable assurance procedures we performed included:

- Obtaining direct confirmations from the banks for the reserve asset balances.
- Independently trace the number of USDU tokens in circulation to the blockchain information available publicly (for e.g. Etherscan).
- Comparison of reserve assets with USDU tokens in circulation.

We believe that the evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our conclusion.

2. DISCUSSIONS RELATED TO CRYPTO ASSETS

As of the date of this report, crypto assets remain an evolving area of technology and marketplace activity. Those who choose to invest in crypto assets should inform themselves of the general risks and uncertainties associated with such assets.

a. Ownership of Crypto assets:

Crypto assets are owned anonymously. While the public keys of virtual wallets holding crypto assets reside on the distributed networks and can be viewed publicly, the ownership of the wallets is normally not registered and therefore, anonymous. Ownership of crypto assets is evidenced primarily by the possession of the underlying private key (e.g. passcode). The possessor of the private key controls the corresponding crypto asset wallet.

b. Risk of irreversible transactions:

Transactions for most crypto assets that occur over the blockchain are generally irreversible, even if such transactions occur fraudulently or accidentally. If a private key is lost or fraudulently used, the crypto assets in the corresponding wallet may not be recoverable.

c. Regulatory uncertainty:

Legislative and regulatory changes or actions may change or affect the use, transfer, exchange and value of crypto assets. The effects of any such changes are not determinable as of the date of this report.
