COMMENTARY

The railway-focused software and systems provider, Tracsis (TRCS), posted a strong interim update this month with EBITDA up almost a third and a growing cash pile equivalent to over a quarter of its market capitalisation. But the shares are down around 65% in 2-years as Mr Market, in thrall to AI, has filed the software sector with the handloom and steam locomotive as another quaint anachronism. Software typically enjoys high operational leverage and TRCS posted an EBITDA margin on incremental revenue of around 40%. Their 'Tap Converter' Pay-As-You-Go smart ticketing software, currently used by some local and regional operators including Transport for Wales, highlights the direction of travel. At the interims TRCS transactional revenues grew 24%, but with the Tap Converter roll-out across the National Rail Network underway, TRCS expects to process 10–15% of all UK annual rail journeys in the medium term. This suggests that transaction volumes (which drive revenue) could grow 27-40x.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE

The investment objective of the Fund is to generate capital growth over the long term by typically investing at least 70% in a concentrated portfolio of UK listed equities. The Fund follows a value philosophy, looking for situations in which investors have over- reacted to events and valuations no longer reflect company fundamentals. The best opportunities are often found after a period of disappointment has created emotional reasons not to invest. Every investment requires a clear catalyst, which impacts on earnings, or the multiple the market applies to those earnings.

FUND MANAGER

Adam Rackley

After working as an analyst at the Alliance Trust, Adam joined Montanaro Asset Management, where he managed a smallcap income fund. Leaving the City in 2010, he taught the CFA qualification at BPP, and later managed equity research teams for CRISIL in Mumbai. In 2015 Adam returned to London and set-up Cape Wrath Capital. He has degrees in Philosophy, Politics & Economics, and Finance & Financial Law, and has served as a platoon commander with the 1st Battalion Black Watch. In his free time, Adam enjoys making marmalade and spending time outdoors with his children. He once took six months off to write a book ('Salt, Sweat, Tears'), and has swum the Channel, rowed the Atlantic, cycled Lands End to John o' Groats and run across England, Scotland and Wales.
