About

Pamela Garrett, known as Law Mother, is an estate planning attorney, bestselling author, and speaker whose work reaches an audience of more than three million followers on social media. Through relatable comedy sketches and practical insights, she helps successful families and entrepreneurs design intentional legacies so the wealth they build strengthens relationships instead of creating conflict.

After working with thousands of families and experiencing firsthand how the absence of planning can fracture relationships, Pamela began reframing estate planning as a form of emotional leadership. Through her speaking, writing, and legal practice, she challenges leaders to create clarity today so the people they love are protected tomorrow.

Testimonials

“Pamela Garrett spoke at our leadership conference for entrepreneurial estate planning lawyers and delivered a powerful message on authenticity and taking action. She shared practical strategies for how lawyers can show up confidently on social media and build meaningful connections with the families they serve. Pam brings clarity, real-world experience, and a refreshing authenticity that deeply resonates with professional audiences.” – Ali Katz, Founder, Eyes Wide Open Life & New Law Business Model

“Pamela Garrett delivered an engaging presentation for our Colorado School of Mines faculty on wills, trusts, and family protection planning. She made estate planning accessible, educational, and even humorous while covering an important topic many people tend to avoid. Faculty appreciated the clarity of her approach and the practical guidance for protecting their families and planning for the future.” – Katie Joyce, Colorado School of Mines

“Pamela Garrett delivered an outstanding Lunch & Learn for our Medtronic team on wills, trusts, and protecting our families. She made a complex topic clear, practical, and engaging for busy professionals. Employees left with straightforward steps they could take to better protect their families and organize their financial lives.” – Jodi Kiefer, PMP, CSM, Medtronic

“Pamela Garrett spoke at our Denver Real Estate Investor Success Summit on the five levels of asset protection for real estate investors. Her presentation was engaging, practical, and packed with strategies our audience could immediately apply to protect their investments. Pamela has a rare ability to translate complex legal concepts into clear, actionable insights that real estate investors truly need.” – Kevin Amolsch, Founder, Pine Financial Group

Speaking Topics

1. Legacy by Design: Why Planning for Your Death Improves Your Life

Most people avoid conversations about death, yet the absence of planning often leaves families facing confusion and conflict during their most difficult moments. In this keynote, Pamela challenges audiences to rethink legacy and shows how creating clarity today sharpens how we lead, how we love, and how the people we care about experience us both now and later.

2. Accidental Legacy vs Intentional Legacy

Every leader leaves a legacy. The real question is whether it happens by accident or by design. Pamela shows how silence, assumptions, and avoidance create conflict across generations, and how clarity, communication, and intentional decisions allow leaders to build legacies that strengthen the next generation.

3. The Leadership Responsibility No One Talks About

Leaders spend their lives building success, yet many never plan for what happens when they are no longer in the room. Drawing from thousands of real family experiences, Pamela reframes legacy planning as emotional leadership and shows how clarity, communication, and preparation protect both the people and the future leaders who come next.

4. The Room Without You

One day, the people you care about will face decisions in a room where you are not present. The question is whether they will walk into that room with clarity or confusion. Pamela shares how intentional planning helps leaders prepare their families and teams for the future.

5. Many people spend their lives building success

But never stop to ask how that success will shape the future of their families and communities. Pamela shows how leaders can turn financial success into meaningful legacy through intentional decisions today.
