

AWARD-WINNING LIQUEURS AND SPIRITS, CRAFTED IN SAUMUR, FRANCE, SINCE 1834.

DISTILLERIE
COMBIER
FRANCE 1834

FOUNDED IN 1834, Distillerie Combiér is the creator of the world's first orange liqueur, commonly known as Triple Sec, and one of France's oldest distilleries operating in the heart of Saumur in the Loire Valley.

Many of its liqueurs, whose recipes remain unchanged, are still produced using the original 19th-century Egrot alembic copper stills. A hallmark of Combiér's unique production methods, the iconic stills reside in the distillery's original structure designed by Gustave Eiffel, preserving a legacy of craftsmanship for over 190 years.

LIQUEUR D'ORANGE
THE WORLD'S FIRST ORANGE LIQUEUR

Invented in 1834 by Jean-Baptiste Combiér and his wife Josephine, L'Original Combiér is considered the world's first triple sec. Created in their confectionery shop's single alembic still, it has been produced continuously in Saumur's distillery using the original 19th-century copper stills. This iconic liqueur, made from hand-zested Caribbean orange peels and a pure distillation of sweet and bitter oranges, remains free from added colorings or flavorings.
