

IT'S TIME FOR CHANGE

TECHNOLOGY

Women in Tech Speak Frankly on Culture of Harassment

Leer en español

By KATIE BENNER JUNE 30, 2017

Google employee's viral anti-diversity manifesto confirms your worst fears about tech-bro culture

The employee posited that there were biological reasons that women weren't as

Women are more likely to be in junior positions than men... regardless of age.

20%

of women over the age of 35 still in junior positions.

They are 3.5x more likely to be in junior positions than men.

25%

Computing jobs held by women.

And in the startup world...

5%

Startups owned by women.

11%

Women holding executive positions at Silicon Valley companies.

WOMENTECHOVER

seeks to create a community of women all over the world who get together to talk about their tech (not their struggle) and who continuously inspire other women and girls to pursue tech careers and fight for more inclusive work environments.

Networking and connections with other women in tech, locally and globally.

Access to exclusive events, webinars, podcasts and content as part of a community of women in tech all over the world.

Access to job opportunities at companies without a "bro" culture that value women in tech positions.

Computer Science is growing in popularity with young women & the gender gap is closing

33%

Young women today are more likely to study computer science compared with women born before 1983.

7%

There was a 20% point gap between men and women over 35 who began coding before 16 years old. Today that gap has shrunk down to 7%.

"A ship in port is safe, but that is not what ships are for. Sail out to sea and do new things."

ADMIRAL GRACE HOPPER

Developer of the first compiler for a computer programming language

