

What's Your Pride Playlist?

Songs that feel like you, hold memories, lift you up and let you be yourself.

Music can hold memories, emotions, identity, comfort and joy. Your Pride playlist does not have to contain songs about being LGBTQ+, or even LGBTQ+ artists. It can simply be a collection of music that feels meaningful to you.

There is no right soundtrack for being yourself.

Choose the songs that feel like yours.

Find Your Sound

Start with the songs that already mean something to you.

A song that feels like me

What song somehow captures a little piece of you?

Song + artist

Why I chose it

A song that makes me feel confident

The one that makes you stand a little taller.

Song + artist

Why I chose it

A song that feels like freedom

Whatever freedom means to you.

Song + artist

Why I chose it

A song that brings me comfort

Something familiar you return to when you need it.

Song + artist

Why I chose it

A song that brings me joy

No deeper meaning required.

Songs & Memories

Some songs become little time capsules.

★ A song connected to a person

Who does it remind you of?

Song + artist

The memory / meaning

★ A song connected to a place or moment

Where does it take you?

Song + artist

The memory / meaning

★ A song from an important chapter of my life

What was happening then?

Song + artist

The memory / meaning

★ A song I hear differently now

Has its meaning changed as you have?

Song + artist

The memory / meaning

One song I never want to forget

The Soundtrack of Me

A few final tracks for the different versions of you.

My getting-ready anthem

My comfort song

My dance-around-the-room song

My main-character song

My sing-at-the-top-of-my-lungs song

My quiet reflective song

If this chapter of my life had a closing-credits song, it would be...

Sometimes a song just feels like home.
