BTCS is an Ethereum-focused operating company that deploys capital into on-chain liquidity markets to earn recurring, high-margin revenue, using governed leverage designed to enhance returns on equity. Its DeFi business, Imperium, earns fees from trading activity on Ethereum and Base, alongside Builder+ block building and NodeOps staking. BTCS has been public and operating through multiple crypto cycles since 2014.

HOW BTCS EARNS

Imperium · DeFi liquidity

Supplies ETH and stablecoins to on-chain AMM pools on Ethereum and Base, earning a share of fees for every swap.

Builder+ · Block building

Proprietary Ethereum block builder that orders transactions into optimized, OFAC-compliant blocks, earning gas fees and MEV net of the validator bid.

NodeOps · Staking

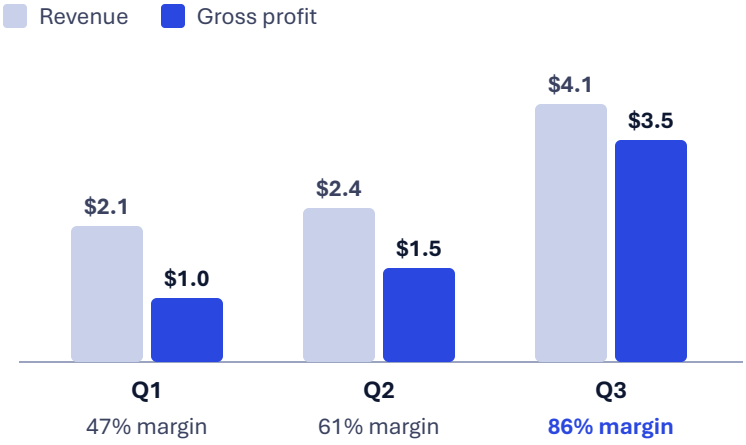

Runs Ethereum validator nodes, earning protocol staking rewards. A validator operator since 2021.

WHY BTCS

1. A real operating business earning high-margin fees from active on-chain operations, not passive holdings.
2. Proven and scaling: Nine-month gross profit up 5.3×, from $1.1M (2025) to $6.0M (2026).
3. Governed leverage: Q3 gross profit covered Aave interest 7.3×; quarterly interest steady at ~$0.5M.
4. Multi-chain and growing: live on Ethereum and Base, and positioned for tokenized-equity liquidity provisioning.
5. Differentiated: unlike an ETF or passive ETH treasury, BTCS earns operating revenue on its assets.
