

This is a Disability Accommodation Request

I have a disability called EMR Syndrome. People with EMR Syndrome experience acute health effects when exposed to cell phones, Wi-Fi, smart meters, nearby cell towers, and other sources of man-made electromagnetic radiation (EMR) – which act as access barriers to the entry and use of public spaces available to others. The Americans with Disabilities Act requires public spaces to provide “reasonable accommodations” to those who are disabled. Thank you for accommodating my request.

About EMR Syndrome

Millions of Americans suffer from EMR Syndrome, a medical condition (Diagnosis Code: W90.0) linked to EMR exposures. EMR is also associated with longer-term cancer, heart, neurological, and reproductive disorders. Children are at greater risk due to higher absorption rates. With the expansion of wireless, EMR Syndrome is on the rise.
