- (a) Review existing legislation and policies in the field of education, including the Inclusive Education Policy (2021), with a view to harmonizing them with the Convention and ensure the monitoring of its implementation;
- (b) Develop and implement a strategy with clear targets, indicators, timeframe for the effective implementation of inclusive education policy providing adequate budgetary allocation, technical and personal resources to ensure that all students with disabilities are provided with reasonable accommodation and individualized support at all levels of education and also ensure that schools do not deny admission of children with disabilities on the bases of lack of necessary facilities;
- (c) Strengthen training and awareness-raising on the rights of children with disabilities, including to inclusive education, among children with disabilities themselves, their parents and relatives, teachers and members of local communities and in society as a whole, and establish and enforce clear anti-bullying policies within all educational settings, including mandatory training for teachers and staff on disability rights and inclusive education and ensure that all reports of bullying or mistreatment of students with disabilities are promptly and effectively investigated and addressed to prevent recurrence of such incidents;
- (d) Provide students with disabilities with learning support based on individual requirements, including classroom support and accessible learning environments, teaching methods and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and other modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology, and make sure that there are enough teachers proficient in Sign Language, especially in the outer islands;

(e) Take concrete measures to ensure that all schools and learning centres, including those in the outer islands, are physically accessible to students with disabilities, and ensure that accessibility is integrated into organizational policies, not as a temporary solution but as a fundamental and permanent requirement, to enable the full participation of students with disabilities in all aspects of school life, including extracurricular activities;

(f) Conduct a comprehensive analysis of the root causes hindering equal opportunities for students with disabilities in accessing higher education, and develop and implement an inclusive policy that ensures equitable access by addressing specific barriers, including those related to university entrance examinations, admission procedures, accessibility, and the provision of reasonable accommodations throughout the academic study.

Canada (2025)

47. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The prevalence of segregated educational systems, inconsistent access to inclusive education across provinces and territories, the lack of culturally-appropriate inclusive education for Indigenous persons with disabilities, the insufficient funding and qualified personnel for educational services for persons with disabilities, as well as the lack of adequate pedagogical approaches to guarantee inclusive education;

(b) Unequal access to post-secondary education for persons with disabilities, with official numbers indicating that only 19.6 per cent have a university or higher-level degree.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recalling its Concluding Observations (CRPD/C/CAN/CO/1, para. 44), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations establish a national inclusive education action plan to transition from segregated education to quality, inclusive education, including measures that:

(a) Ensure consistent policies on inclusive education throughout its provinces and territories, track the implementation of inclusive education across provinces and territories, including a database to capture comprehensive data on students with disabilities at the pre-primary, primary, secondary, and tertiary levels;

(b) Ensure that inclusive education policies include and address the distinctions-based needs, experiences, and cultural context of Indigenous persons with disabilities, including regarding their representation in school curricula;

(c) Include strategies to increase the enrolment of persons with disabilities at secondary and tertiary level of education.

Dominican Republic (2025)

43. The Committee takes note of the progress being made for the implementation of inclusive education, however it is concerned about:

(a) The National Model for Inclusive Education, approved by the National Education Council on 20 June 2024, has not fully reached the whole territory of the State party, with resources to implement it mostly allocated to the capital and prominent provinces and the lack of a mechanism to track and monitor its implementation;

(b) The lack of accessibility of schools and shortcomings in the transport services provided for students with disabilities, particularly in rural and remote areas;

(c) The low number of children with disabilities identified at the pre-primary level of the education system;

(d) The limited training provided to general education teachers on the right of children with disabilities to inclusive education and on inclusive methods of teaching such as modern assistive technologies;

(e) Reports of attitudinal barriers, including discriminatory attitudes towards children with disabilities that prevent them from enrolling in education, with resistance on the part of teachers, the school community and families.

44. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) and targets 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, including learners with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and their families:

(a) Strengthen efforts to implement the National Model for Inclusive Education across the State party, paying particular attention to rural and remote areas and establish a mechanism to monitor its implementation;

(b) Redouble efforts to ensure accessibility in mainstream schools, to provide the necessary aids for educational activities, and to adapt transport services for students with disabilities, including in rural and remote areas;

(c) Gather adequate data on the number of students with disabilities at all levels of the education system, including the pre-primary level;

(d) Improve the curricula and teaching methods used by mainstream education teachers with regard to the rights of children with disabilities to inclusive education and inclusive education methods of teaching;

(e) Address the attitudinal barriers in the school community towards students with disabilities, including by raising awareness of the right to inclusive education.

European Union (2025)

58. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Many Member States segregate education of children with disabilities; children with disabilities face difficulties to access regular schools due to a lack of qualified teachers and educational support staff, reasonable accommodation, accessible school buildings, standardized curricula that fail to meet the diverse needs of students with disabilities, and prejudice against them;

(b) The EU Regulation on artificial intelligence permits the use of AI for educational decision-making despite discrimination risks;

(c) The Erasmus+ program does not fully cover disability-related expenses.

59. The Committee recalls its previous Concluding Observations and Recommendations (para. 61) and its General Comment No. 4 (2016) and recommends that the European Union:

(a) Encourage Member States to fulfill their obligation to provide quality inclusive education throughout the entire education cycle and support them in their respective efforts;

(b) Ensure that the use of AI for decision making in education does not discriminate against persons with disabilities, as mentioned in the European Commission's 2022 Ethical guidelines on the use of artificial intelligence (AI) and data in teaching and learning for Educators;

(c) Ensure that the implementation of the Digital Education Action Plan guarantees accessibility for students with disabilities;

(d) Ensure that the Erasmus+ program covers all disability-related expenses.

Palau (2025)

45. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The fact that the national legal and policy framework regulating education for children with disabilities in the State party, is not fully compliant with the Convention, as it uses derogatory terminology such as "handicapped children," "children with severe problems," and "severe impairment", and promotes a segregated learning environment;

(b) The insufficient provision of reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities;

- (c) Insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education, proficiency in Braille, sign language and accessible modes of teaching;
- (d) Limited accessible materials, adaptive learning environments, lack of sign language, alternative and augmentative modes and methods of communication;
- (e) Lack of accessibility in physical environments of schools, including Palau Community College;
- (f) Barriers faced by students with disabilities in accessing higher education.

46. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and targets 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, in close consultation and with active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, learners with disabilities and their families, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review its legislation and policies in the field of education including the Special Education Policy, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), the Palau Public Law 3-9, the Programs and Services for Handicapped Children Act, to bring them in line with the Convention, and take measures to increase human, material and financial resources and to facilitate access and enjoyment of a quality inclusive education for all pupils with disabilities to ensure the inclusion of all students with disabilities in mainstream classrooms;
- (b) Provide reasonable accommodation for all children with disabilities to meet their individual educational requirements and to ensure inclusive education;
- (c) Ensure the training of regular education teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education and raise their awareness about the human rights model of disability;
- (d) Provide students with disabilities with learning support based on individual requirements, including classroom support and accessible learning environments, teaching methods and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and other modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology;
- (e) Take measures to ensure physical environments of all types of schools are accessible and free from any barriers;
- (f) Analyse the root causes of unequal opportunities for persons with disabilities regarding access to higher education, and develop a comprehensive policy to promote access to higher education, addressing barriers for students with disabilities in higher education, including university entrance exams and the study process.

Tuvalu (2025)

43. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That many children with disabilities remain at home and do not receive support to access inclusive education;
- (b) Discriminatory attitudes towards children with disabilities that prevent them from enrolling in school, bullying, threats to be sent to a special school, resistance from teachers, the school community and families, inaccessibility of school premises, low number of staff, inadequate teaching materials, lack of water and sanitation, insufficient material and financial resources and lack of reasonable accommodation for children with disabilities.

44. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Adopt a national policy on inclusive quality education and ensure that inclusive quality education covers all children with disabilities, regardless of their type of disability throughout the country, and adopt a timetable for the transition from special schools to inclusive mainstream education;
- (b) Strengthen training and awareness-raising on the rights of children with disabilities, including to inclusive education, among children with disabilities themselves, their parents and relatives, teachers and members of religious communities and in society as a whole;

(c) Provide students with disabilities with compensatory functional aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, as well as modes and means of communication, including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technologies.

Viet Nam (2025)

47. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The persistence of segregated special education settings for all children with disabilities, especially those who need a higher level of support, and indigenous persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of comprehensive plans for accessibility and reasonable accommodations and educational materials at all levels for students with disabilities who have diverse support needs;
- (c) Limited training for teachers, social workers, and school staff on different types of disabilities, reasonable accommodations, and strategies to create inclusive and equitable learning environments free from bullying and other forms of violence;
- (d) The shortage of teachers with disabilities in mainstream schools;
- (e) The absence of physical accessibility and access to information and communication in mainstream schools, which hinders educational inclusion.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, in close consultation and with active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, learners with disabilities and their families, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Approve, implement, and monitor policies for inclusive and quality education at all levels nationwide, eliminating segregated special education settings, focusing especially on members of indigenous communities and those living in remote and rural areas;
- (b) Adopt a strategy to render schools and other educational institutions accessible by providing accessible educational materials and utilizing relevant technology, and provide reasonable accommodations, including through classroom support;
- (c) Ensure that teachers are trained in inclusive education techniques at all levels, including sign languages and other accessible formats of information and communication;
- (d) Recruit teachers with disabilities in mainstream schools;
- (e) Adopt a national plan to ensure physical accessibility and access to information and communication in mainstream educational institutions at all levels.

Belarus (2024)

47. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Despite the formal commitment to inclusive education in the draft Law for inclusive education, there are still significant barriers to its effective implementation, including lack of resources, inadequate monitoring, and a prevailing medical and charity-based approach to disability;
- (b) A large number of students with disabilities are still learning in segregated schools and those who are learning in public schools, lack the necessary accommodations;
- (c) Most students with disabilities are not able to complete their high school nor higher education.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) and target 4.5 and indicator 4. of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Realize the commitment to inclusive education at the legal level and at the policy level with the aim of eliminating all discriminatory provisions regarding the education of students with disabilities, and explicitly provide for quality inclusive education to ensure that no child with disabilities is excluded from the general education system on the basis of disability;

- (b) Ensure access to the general education system in the community and provide the necessary reasonable accommodations for all students with disabilities on an equal basis with other children;
- (c) Guarantee access to regular education facilities and transportation for children with all kind of disabilities in their communities, including in rural areas;
- (d) Provide comprehensive and focused training for general education teachers and administrative staff on the principles and methods of inclusive education, the capacities of children with disabilities and the individualized support measures required by children with disabilities;
- (e) Develop effective measures and budget for accommodations, including at the university levels for all students with disabilities, regardless of the type of impairment.

Belgium (2024)

48. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The State party has the highest percentage of students in special education in the European Union, and that efforts to build public support for inclusive education are lacking, while high levels of negative attitudes and low expectations towards students with disabilities persist;
- (b) There is no comprehensive plan with clear objectives and methodologies for the realisation of quality inclusive education in all areas of education;
- (c) There are limited provisions of accessibility, reasonable accommodation, individualized support and assistance in classrooms in the existing framework of inclusive education.
- (d) Regular school may refuse enrolment of children with disabilities if they consider that the provision of reasonable accommodation would be too burdensome, thus often excluding children with complex support requirements from regular education.

49. Recalling its General Comment No. 4 (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Remove the barriers and meet the challenges that have prevented effective transition from special education to inclusive mainstream education, including, but not limited to, through raising awareness of the right to inclusive education, combatting negative attitudes and low expectations towards students with disabilities, promoting research on inclusive education methodologies, and defining best practices of inclusive educational facilities in the State party;
- (b) Develop a comprehensive transition plan and strategy, including a detailed timeline and the requisite funding, to promote coordinated quality inclusive education across different policy areas, with specific steps outlined to evolve toward a quality inclusive education system;
- (c) Render training on inclusive education and its implementation mandatory for all teaching and non-teaching personnel in all schools, and train and employ a sufficient number of qualified professionals to support students with disabilities, including students with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (d) Provide reasonable accommodation to students with disabilities at all educational levels, including tertiary education.

Benin (2024)

47. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are often excluded from the regular education system. It is particularly concerned about:

- (a) The fact that the national inclusive education policy does not cover all persons with disabilities and that segregated education for children with disabilities continues to be provided alongside inclusive education, in the absence of a time frame for full transition;
- (b) The pilot project for inclusive education for children with disabilities is limited to one region;
- (c) Discriminatory attitudes towards children with disabilities that prevent them from enrolling in education, resistance on the part of teachers, the school community and families, the inaccessibility of school premises, the low number of trained personnel, the inadequacy of teaching materials, the lack of water and sanitation, the long distances that must be covered to access schools and the inadequate road infrastructure, the insufficient number of teachers proficient in sign language, the inadequate material and financial resources and the lack of reasonable accommodation for children with disabilities, in particular students with intellectual disabilities, autistic children, and children with vision impairments;
- (d) The lack of disaggregated data on the number and proportion of children with disabilities in mainstream schools receiving individualized support and on the enrolment and dropout rates of children with disabilities.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement the national quality inclusive education policy and ensure that quality inclusive education covers all children with disabilities regardless type of impairment across the country, and adopt a timeframe for the transition from special schools to inclusive mainstream education;
- (b) Scale up efforts to implement the inclusive education policy, including by allocating adequate financial resources;
- (c) Modify the infrastructure in all learning institutions and ensure that new buildings meet the standards of universal design to make them accessible to persons with disabilities and that reasonable accommodation is provided;
- (d) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication, including Easy Read, communication aids and assistive and information technologies;
- (e) Collect data disaggregated by age, sex, gender, geographical location on the number of children with disabilities who have entered the mainstream school environment and been given adequate teaching support.

Burkina Faso (2024)

44. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The fact that the national inclusive education policy does not cover all persons with disabilities and that segregated education for children with disabilities continues to be provided alongside inclusive education, in the absence of a timeframe for full transition (Act No. 012-2010/AN of 1 April 2010, arts. 9, 10 and 12);
- (b) The lack of implementation of the national strategy on the development of inclusive education 2018–2022 due to a security crisis that included schools closure;
- (c) The absence of standards for establishing inclusive schools and the lack of criteria and guidance to harmonize existing methodologies and implementation of inclusive education;
- (d) A revised legal framework which plans to authorize an assistant to be present with children in inclusive school but leaves the cost to be borne by the families in the majority of cases.

45. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, in close consultation and with active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, students with disabilities and their families, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review the laws on education for children and adults with disabilities to align them with the Convention and to allow transition from segregated education to quality inclusive education;
- (b) Re-introduce a national strategy on the development of inclusive education with adequate resources, measurable indicators of progress and timebound targets, to ensure physical accessibility for children with disabilities to educational facilities, including necessary facilities such as toilets, libraries and laboratories;
- (c) Adopt national standards and norms for inclusive schools to provide education providers with guidelines to harmonise their actions in the field of quality inclusive education;
- (d) Scale up efforts to implement the inclusive education policy, including by modifying the infrastructure in all learning institutions and ensuring that new buildings meet the required standards of universal design to make them accessible to persons with disabilities, and that reasonable accommodation is provided as required by allocating adequate financial resources to enable persons with disabilities to enjoy their right to education.

Denmark (2024)

65. The Committee is concerned that the number of children attending school in segregated school settings has increased in the last 10 years, and that barriers to inclusive education, including the lack of reasonable accommodation and essential services, such as assistive devices and personal assistance, have resulted in school refusal and involuntary absence of children with disabilities, in particular students with intellectual disabilities and autism; it is also concerned that students with disabilities in vocational schools drop out at a much higher rate than their co-students without disabilities.

66. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Include children with disabilities in quality, inclusive education, and remove the barriers that have prevented effective transition from special education to quality inclusive education;
- (b) Address attitudinal barriers preventing inclusion of children with disabilities in education, including by improving qualifications for teachers in inclusive education methodologies and training tools, and undertaking organizational changes at schools and system-wide;
- (c) Provide the requisite support structures, including sign language;
- (d) Produce a set of national guidelines for early identification of the risk of students with disabilities to drop out of school and ensure equal access to education for all children, on an equal basis with others, including by ensuring that students with disabilities have the opportunity to take vocational education and disability-responsive training.

Ghana (2024)

46. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Delay in launching of Implementation of the revised Inclusive Education Policy (2024), along with a comprehensive implementation plan, communication and resource mobilization strategy, monitoring and evaluation framework, and standards and guidelines, resulting in delay in the improvement of inclusive education;
- (b) The continuation of segregated special education for children with disabilities, particularly, children who are blind, deaf and those who are deaf-blind, children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and those who require more intensive support, despite legislative and policy commitments to inclusive education;

(c) The report indicating that schools deny admission to some children with disabilities particularly children with Down syndrome, cerebral palsy, and those who need extensive support due to lack of accessible physical facilities, resources and reasonable accommodation to support inclusive education;

(d) Inadequate budgetary allocations for the promotion and implementation of inclusive education and the absence of systematic data collection, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number of students with disabilities enrolled in the education system and those who are out of education;

(e) Limited accessible materials, adaptive learning environments, lack of sign language, alternative and augmentative modes and methods of communication and individualized accommodation for students with disabilities at all levels, especially those in rural areas as well as the lack of accessible school transportation;

(f) Insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education, proficiency in Braille, sign language and accessible modes of teaching;

(g) Challenges faced by students with visual impairments at the secondary level of education in learning and teaching of science and mathematics;

47. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 and target 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee urges the State Party to:

(a) Accelerate the launch of the implementation of the revised Inclusive Education Policy (2024), along with a comprehensive implementation plan, communication and resource mobilization strategy, monitoring and evaluation framework, and standards and guidelines to facilitate acceleration towards inclusive education and ensure meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in the implementation and monitoring of the policy;

(b) Develop and implement an action plan with timeframe for the transition from segregated education to quality inclusive education providing adequate budgetary allocation, technical and personal resources to ensure that all students with disabilities are provided with reasonable accommodation and individualized support at all levels of education;

(c) Ensure access to regular schools for all children with disabilities providing the schools with necessary facilities to ensure that they do not deny admission of children with disabilities on the bases of lack of necessary facilities;

(d) Guarantee allocation of appropriate resources for the promotion and implementation of inclusive education and the collection of systematic statistical data, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment including, the number of children with disabilities who are out of education system;

(e) Provide students with disabilities with learning support based on individual requirements, including classroom support and accessible learning environments, teaching methods and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and other modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology, and make sure that there are enough teachers proficient in Ghanaian Sign Language, especially in rural and remote areas, as well as ensure accessibility of school transportation and physical environment across the education system;

(f) Ensure continuous training of regular education teachers in sign language, Brail, Easy Read and other accessible modes of teaching in mainstream schools and raise awareness on other members of the school community on inclusive education and the human rights model of disability;

(g) Provide appropriate teacher training and adopt methods and curriculum adaptation including use of tactile and audio-visual learning tool to address the challenges in the learning and teaching of science and mathematics to students with visual impairments.

Mauritius (2024)

41. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There is limited understanding of quality inclusive education, and there is a prevalence of and continued investment in segregated educational settings, such as the “special education needs institutions” and the “Integrated Units” in primary schools where children with disabilities are segregated;
- (b) There are challenges for students with disabilities to seek reasonable accommodation, individualized support and resources in schools to ensure equal education opportunities;
- (c) The accessibility of curricula, pedagogies and infrastructure in primary, secondary and tertiary education remain weak, especially in topics such as science and mathematics; there is a lack of a multisectoral evaluation system for students with disabilities; and official certificates are not always provided to students with disabilities upon completion of education curricula or programmes;
- (d) There is a lack of disaggregated data on children with disabilities deprived of education.

42. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to quality inclusive education, target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals and its previous recommendation, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, learners with disabilities and their families:

- (a) Ensure the inclusion of students with disabilities in mainstream education at all educational levels; promote a culture of inclusion among parents, educators and pupils; and adopt a strategy for the transition from the “special education needs” model to a quality inclusive mainstream education that is free at all levels;
- (b) Ensure that students with disabilities can easily seek individualized support and are provided with reasonable accommodation based on individualized human rights-based assessments of educational requirements;
- (c) Ensure that teaching materials are adapted to the requirements of students with disabilities; design and deliver curricula and pedagogies in accessible formats, including sign language, Easy Read, Braille and electronic formats, and in a manner that embraces digital technology; properly train educators at all levels; promote and implement an optimal multisectoral evaluation system for students with disabilities that is required by law; ensure that students with disabilities properly receive official certificates upon completion of education curricula or programmes; and improve the infrastructural and procedural accessibility in the schools;
- (d) Collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on students with disabilities, and use this information to inform educational planning and policies, particularly for children who were unable to enrol in mainstream schools, who participate in “special education needs institutions” and education programmes affiliated with non-governmental organizations, who are attending school on a part-time basis and who requested but were denied individualized support and accommodation, among others, as well as data on educational attainment, on completion and dropout rates, on suspension and expulsion rates and on the use of restrictive practices. Data should be disaggregated in relation to forms of intersecting discrimination against children and other relevant sociodemographic characteristics, including age, sex, gender, geographic location and migrant, asylum-seeker, refugee and refugee-like situations.

Netherlands (2024)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The perpetuation of the dual education system and the lack of concrete objectives, timelines and evaluations in the Working Agenda for Inclusive Education 2035 for developing quality inclusive education;
- (b) The high and increasing number of children placed in special education and the growing waiting lists at schools for special education, as well as the possibility and increasingly significant number of exemptions from compulsory education on the basis of article 5a of the Compulsory Education Act;
- (c) The limited training provided to general education teachers on the rights of children with disabilities to inclusive education and on inclusive education methods of teaching;
- (d) The lack of accessibility in mainstream schools to the supports necessary for inclusive education, especially the lack of reasonable accommodation, taking into account all different types of disabilities, namely for deaf pupils and students with hearing impairments;
- (e) Reports about stigma against students with disabilities, including discouraging persons with disabilities to access tertiary education.

54. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016), on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, in close consultation and with active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, learners with disabilities and their families, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Work towards a fully inclusive education system for all children, including children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and autistic children, that ends specialized education; review the current implementation plan; establish concrete objectives, timelines, and evaluation mechanisms to ensure effective transition towards inclusive education;
- (b) Take immediate measures to reduce the number of children placed in special education by increasing the capacity of mainstream schools to accommodate students with disabilities, providing adequate resources and support to mainstream schools to facilitate inclusion, including specialised training; amend national legislation on exemptions from compulsory education for children with disabilities, including children with physical and intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, with high support requirements, ensuring that all children with disabilities can exercise their right to education;
- (c) Improve the curricula and teaching methods provided to mainstream education teachers on the rights of children with disabilities to inclusive education and on inclusive education methods of teaching;
- (d) Ensure that mainstream schools are fully accessible and provide reasonable accommodation for all types of disabilities, particularly for deaf pupils and students with hearing impairments;
- (e) Ensure access to inclusive tertiary education, including vocational and higher education, for children and adults with disabilities.

Ukraine (2024)

48. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the State party has not eliminated segregated schools as an educational model;
- (b) That the National Strategy for Inclusive Education Until 2029 and corresponding operational plan for 2024-2026 do not set forth a comprehensive inclusive education strategy that guarantees the right to education for persons with disabilities, in particular children with disabilities and internally displaced persons with disabilities;
- (c) The frequent unavailability of education for children with disabilities in residential institutions;

- (d) Online learning for children with disabilities has not been accessible and inclusive on account of limited access, insufficient resources, inadequate teacher training, and societal biases that continue to contribute to the exclusion of children with disabilities from educational settings;
- (e) The lack of measures to ensure reasonable accommodation and individualized support provided upon request in all education settings;
- (f) The lack of comprehensive implementation of article 7 of the Law of Ukraine on Education (No. 2145-VIII) that grants deaf persons the right to be taught in sign language and to learn Ukrainian sign language, as well as lack of official data on the recipients of this right;
- (g) The lack of social interaction, curricular and programs for students with and without disability to obtain direct experiences of human diversity, tolerant behaviour, and building communication skills.

49. Recalling its general comment No. 4 on the right to inclusive education (2016), and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party in close consultation and with the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, learners with disabilities and their families:

- (a) Ensure that children with disabilities are not excluded from free and compulsory primary and secondary education and in the communities in which they live;
- (b) Guarantee reasonable accommodation in education, and that persons requiring a high level of individualized support receive it, as well as establish action plans to eliminate information and communication barriers in online schooling platforms;
- (c) Implement article 7 of the Law of Ukraine on Education (No. 2145-VIII) and facilitate the learning of Braille, alternative script, augmentative and alternative models, means and formats of communication, orientation and mobility skills, as well as facilitate peer support and mentoring in schools settings at all levels;
- (d) Take appropriate measures to employ teachers, including teachers with disabilities, who are qualified in sign language and/or Braille, and train professionals and staff who work at all levels of education including in online school platforms;
- (e) Adopt measures to facilitate the learning of sign language and the promotion of the linguistic identity of the deaf community;
- (f) Ensure social interaction, as well as curricular programs for students with and without disability to obtain direct experiences of human diversity, tolerant behaviour, and building communication skills. Refrain from building special schools for children with disabilities and any other form of institution that perpetuates their segregation and adopt comprehensive measures to implement an inclusive education strategy that considers the thoughts and opinions of all parents and students with disabilities.
- (g) Adopt methods and allocate necessary resources, and infrastructure to accurately track and report the enrolment of children with disabilities in kindergartens and schools;

Azerbaijan (2024)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The limited understanding of inclusive education, and the prevalence of segregated educational settings, such as boarding schools, rehabilitation centers, special educational institutions and special classes, and “integrated inclusive schools” (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, para. 217 and written replies provided by the State party after the constructive dialogue);
- (b) The limited accessibility of teaching materials and methodologies as well as barriers to the physical environment and information, the lack of trained teachers on sign language and that sign language training is not required for school teachers;
- (c) The social isolation of children with disabilities, including autistic children preventing them from attending mainstream inclusive schools and emphasizing home-schooling model for them;
- (d) The lack of reasonable accommodation and of individualized support for children with disabilities in schools.

54. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.4, 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, the State party:

(a) Ensure that the amendments to the Law "On education of persons with disabilities (special education)" (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, para. 216 (a)) recognize inclusive quality education for persons with disabilities, repeal regulations providing for special education, and ensure that children with disabilities are enrolled into regular inclusive education settings. The State party should establish monitoring mechanisms concerning inclusive education;

(b) Strengthen measures to prepare teaching material in accessible formats, including in kindergarten facilities, implement inclusive teaching methodologies and tools, ensure accessibility to textbooks and to information in digital formats for children with disabilities. The State party should ensure the use of sign language by teachers in schools, update recruiting mechanisms for teachers, and reinforce programmes, such as the pre-service teacher training course on inclusive education;

(c) Prevent stigmatization of children with disabilities and isolation at home due to disability and ensure that all children with disabilities have access to quality, inclusive education in regular education settings, on an equal basis with others;

(d) Recognize reasonable accommodation and individualized support at all levels of education and strengthen training for members of the Psychological-Medical-Pedagogical Commissions (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, para. 216 (b)) to work in line with the human rights model of disability and ensure early identification of support requirements and reasonable accommodation.

Bahrain (2024)¹

The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The absence of a national strategy for inclusive education and the absence of any provision in Law No. 74 of 2006 (on the care, rehabilitation and employment of persons with disabilities) on the right of persons with disabilities to inclusive education.

(b) The adoption of restrictive educational environments and special education at the expense of inclusive education and the lack of clear data on the number and status of students integrated into general education schools.

(c) The lack of specialized training programs for educational and administrative staff to promote inclusive education.

(d) The lack of availability of school and university curricula in accessible formats, especially for students with intellectual disabilities and blind students, especially in science and mathematics.

49. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party should

(a) Develop a national strategy and implementation plan for the transition to inclusive education for all persons with disabilities at all levels of education.

(b) Provide reliable and disaggregated data on students with disabilities enrolled in special education centers and education programs attached to non-governmental associations, their academic status and the steps to be taken to transition them to inclusive education.

(c) Develop specialized training programs for teachers and administrators working in the education sector to enable them to understand inclusive education and the requirements of providing an inclusive and safe school environment for all.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

(d) Provide school and university curricula in accessible formats, including sign language, easy reading, Braille, and electronic formats.

Costa Rica (2024)

39. Al Comité le preocupa:

- a) La falta de un marco estratégico para la implementación de un sistema educativo inclusivo, que tenga en cuenta las disparidades regionales así como los territorios indígenas, con metas, plazos y financiación para su finalización;
- b) Que aún esté pendiente la armonización del artículo 62 del Código de la Niñez y la Adolescencia con el artículo 24 de la Convención de modo a garantizar el derecho de los niños y niñas con discapacidad a una educación inclusiva de calidad;
- c) La falta de accesibilidad en los centros educativos, las deficiencias en el servicio de transporte para estudiantes con discapacidad, y la falta de información sobre las ayudas necesarias para las actividades educativas;
- d) El número insuficiente de docentes capacitados dentro del modelo de educación inclusiva y de medidas para garantizar que la tecnología educativa digital sea accesible y esté adaptada al uso de los estudiantes con discapacidades;
- e) La falta de información detallada sobre el número y la proporción de estudiantes con discapacidad que están matriculados en entornos educativos inclusivos, y que han completado la educación primaria, secundaria y superior.
- f) Que las titulaciones y los certificados otorgados a los estudiantes con discapacidad en las escuelas especiales no corresponden a las titulaciones y los certificados otorgados en las escuelas regulares, restringiendo su acceso al mercado laboral y a las universidades.

40. Recordando su observación general núm. 4 (2016), sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, y las metas 4.5 y 4.a de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité urge al Estado parte a:

- a) Adoptar un marco estratégico para la implementación del sistema educativo inclusivo, en consulta con organizaciones de las personas con discapacidad, que tenga en cuenta las disparidades regionales así como los territorios indígenas, con metas, plazos y financiación para su finalización;
- b) La armonización del artículo 62 del Código de la Niñez y la Adolescencia con el artículo 24 de la Convención para garantizar el derecho de los niños y las niñas con discapacidad a una educación inclusiva de calidad;
- c) Redoblar esfuerzos para garantizar la accesibilidad en las escuelas regulares, las ayudas necesarias para las actividades educativas, y la adecuación de los servicios de transporte para estudiantes con discapacidad, incluyendo en áreas rurales y remotas;
- d) Asegurar la capacitación continua, permanente y de calidad a los docentes, y que se apoye con maestros de educación especial como monitores a los alumnos que se integren a la educación regular para lograr una educación de calidad e inclusiva, y garantizar que la tecnología educativa digital sea accesible y esté adaptada al uso de los estudiantes con discapacidades;
- e) Garantizar la recopilación sistemática de datos, desglosados por edad, sexo, tipos de discapacidad y ubicación geográfica para contar con datos estadísticos confiables sobre los alumnos con discapacidad y donde se encuentran recibiendo su educación, como también para conocer sobre los avances hacia el logro de una educación inclusiva;
- f) Que se elimine la titulación diferenciada y que los estudiantes con discapacidad obtengan la titulación y/o certificación en igualdad de condiciones que los demás.

Kazakhstan (2024)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That children with disabilities, including children in institutions, continue to be enrolled in special education schools, in special classrooms in schools, or in home schooling (CRPD/C/KAZ/RQ/1, paras. 209, 210, 216);

(b) The lack of information about children with disabilities dropping out of mainstream educational settings and on measures to prevent such occurrences in the State Education and Science Development Programme for 2020-2025;

(c) Decisions based on the psychological and medical-pedagogical consultations depriving children with disabilities from their right to inclusive education;

(d) The insufficiencies of reasonable accommodation in educational settings at all levels.

52. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.4, 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, the State party:

(a) Thoroughly review its approach to inclusive education and ensure that it recognises quality inclusive education for all children regardless impairment, take effective measures to end segregated educational settings, to remove existing integration practices in education, and home-schooling on the basis of disability, ensure accessibility of the learning environment and remove barriers, including attitudinal barriers against inclusion at all levels of education, render teaching and learning strategies fully inclusive, including through assistive technologies, and provide individualized support, reasonable accommodation and early intervention;

(b) Take urgent measures to end educational institutions and replace them with fully inclusive educational settings in mainstream schools;

(c) Effectively prevent children with disabilities from dropping out of inclusive education at all levels;

(d) Replace the Psychological-Medical-Pedagogical consultation mechanism with an individualized assessment based on the human rights model of disability, identifying the requirements and reasonable accommodation required, to ensure full inclusion of students with disabilities in education;

(e) Adopt legislative, policy and administrative measures for the provision of reasonable accommodation in mainstream education across public and private schools, including in tertiary education.

Nicaragua (2024)

50. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) La falta de un Plan Nacional de Inclusión Educativa, por lo que los esfuerzos que se realizan son aislados e insuficientes y no toman en cuenta ajustes razonables y que se priorice la educación especial, sobre todo en estudiantes con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, lo que dificulta una transición adecuada hacia una educación regular, lo que lleva a que el 40.98%, de los niños y niñas con discapacidad se encuentra sin recibir educación;

b) Que persisten barreras de accesibilidad al medio físico, en todas las escuelas y colegios del país y en términos de acceso a la información y comunicación, especialmente para estudiantes con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, y continua la falta de docentes y/o personal de apoyo especializado en el sistema braille y lengua de señas;

c) La brecha digital entre zonas rurales y urbanas en relación con la educación, que afecta también a los estudiantes con discapacidad;

d) La falta de información sobre los avances en la capacitación y formación a docentes de escuelas urbanas y las situadas en comunidades rurales o indígenas.

51. Recordando su observación general núm. 4 (2016), sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, y las metas 4.5 y 4.a de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité urge al Estado parte a que, en consulta estrecha y colaboración activa con las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan:

a) Redoble esfuerzos para poner fin a la educación especial segregada, especialmente con respecto a estudiantes con discapacidad intelectual, del espectro autista y síndrome de Down, incluyendo por medio de un plan de acción nacional sobre la educación inclusiva de calidad, con objetivos específicos, plazos, recursos humanos y presupuesto suficiente, a fin de asegurar la provisión de apoyos y ajustes razonables para estudiantes con discapacidad que lo requieran en todos los niveles educativos, garantizando el acceso a las escuelas regulares a todos los estudiantes con discapacidad incluyendo áreas rurales y remotas;

b) Garantice la accesibilidad plena de los establecimientos educativos, así como el uso de modalidades y sistemas alternativos y aumentativos de comunicación, como el braille, los formatos de lectura fácil, la educación en lengua de señas, el uso de pictogramas, protectores auditivos, y señalética accesible, asegurando la provisión de apoyos y ajustes razonables para los estudiantes con discapacidad que los requieran;

c) Ponga especial énfasis en las áreas rurales e indígenas para proporcionarles las herramientas digitales que les permitan una mejor educación, incluyendo para los estudiantes con discapacidad;

d) Fortalezca la formación y capacitación continua, permanente y de calidad a orientadores y personal docente actual y para la totalidad de los futuros docentes en sus procesos de formación, en materia de estudiantes con discapacidad.

Sweden (2024)

53. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the increase of segregation measures in education, as well as the lack of a clear mechanism to monitor and implement inclusive education;

(b) That the choice for professional and vocational education is restricted and limited only to segregated structures;

(c) At the decrease in allocation of resources for provision of reasonable accommodation in education, such as personal assistance and support services for students with disabilities;

(d) At the insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education, and the insufficient development of specific skills and teaching methodologies.

54. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and the Sustainable Development Goal 4, target 4.5 and indicator 4(a), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities, learners with disabilities and their families:

(a) Develop a national inclusive education strategy to transition from segregated education to inclusive education, and establish a mechanism to monitor and enforce the implementation of national legislation on inclusive education;

(b) Ensure that children with disabilities can attend mainstream schools, including by enhancing accessibility and reasonable accommodation for all kinds of disabilities and providing appropriate arrangements for transportation, in particular in remote areas;

(c) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, modes and means of communication, including Easy Read, communication aids and assistive and information technology and ensure that there are enough teachers fluent in Swedish Sign language;

(d) Guarantee ongoing training for teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats of communication, and develop a monitoring system to eliminate all forms of direct and indirect discrimination against children with disabilities and their families;

(e) Allocate further resources to provide reasonable accommodation and dedicated assistance programs in higher education institutions, including professional training for students with all types of disabilities.

Zambia (2024)

47. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are often excluded from the general education system. It is particularly concerned about:

- (a) The fact that the national inclusive education policy (Educating Our Future) does not cover all types of disabilities and that segregated education for children with disabilities continues to be provided alongside inclusive education, in the absence of a time frame for full transition;
- (b) Children with albinism are placed in special schools for blind and taught Braille;
- (c) Barriers to inclusive education, such as discriminatory attitudes towards children with disabilities that prevent them from enrolling in education, resistance on the part of teachers and the school community, families, the inaccessibility of school premises, the low number of trained personnel, the inadequacy of teaching materials, the lack of water and sanitation, the long distances that must be covered to access schools and inadequate road infrastructure, the insufficient number of teachers proficient in sign language, inadequate material and financial resources, lack of reasonable accommodation for children with disabilities, in particular students with intellectual disabilities, autism, blindness and deaf-blindness;
- (d) The lack of systematic data, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number and proportion of children with disabilities in mainstream schools receiving individualized support, and on the enrolment and dropout rates of children with disabilities, as well as the lack of multi-sector evaluation system for learners with disabilities which results in incorrect evaluations.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement the national inclusive education policy, ensure the full adoption of quality inclusive education and a transition from special schools to inclusive education with a timeframe;
- (b) Ensure that children with albinism are not placed by default in the segregated schools for blind and not obliged to learn Braille, that they are provided necessary support and accommodation within mainstream educational settings;
- (c) Address barriers and challenges that prevent a meaningful transition from special education to inclusive education and raise awareness as well as enforce the Persons with Disabilities Act and the national inclusive education policy;
- (d) Take practical steps towards modifying infrastructure in all learning institutions and ensure that new buildings meet the required standards of universal design to make them accessible to learners with disabilities and ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided as required;
- (e) Promote and implement an optimal intersectional assessment system for students with disabilities and provide for it in the legal system;
- (f) Scale up efforts to implement the inclusive education policy, including allocating adequate financial resources to enable children with disabilities to fully enjoy their right to education on an equal basis with others, including creating awareness on the 10% bursaries slots to students with disabilities in higher education;
- (g) Establish an effective programme for training of teachers on inclusive education, including learning sign language, Braille and Easy Read skills;
- (h) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology;
- (i) Provide disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities mainstreamed into the regular school environment with adequate teaching support measures.

Andorra (2023)

49. The Committee acknowledges the progress in implementing inclusive education, as well as the provision of pedagogical adaptations for the student's personal project, assistants of life to facilitate autonomy of students with disabilities, and data on the number of students with disabilities par gender and educative level. However, it is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a long-term policy in the State party for implementing and monitoring inclusive education, with specific targets and timelines;

- (b) The limited inclusion of gender perspective and a disability perspective in its legislation and education policies, including Act No. 17/2018 on the Organization of the Andorran Education System (LOSEA);
- (c) The segregation of students with high requirements of support in special schools, through medical-based assessments;
- (d) The insufficient alternative and augmentative modes and methods of communication and information in regular schools;
- (e) Deaf children not having sufficient access to learning Catalan sign language.

50. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and target 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Formulate a comprehensive inclusive education policy, with strategies, measurable indicators and timelines, promoting a culture of inclusion in mainstream education at all levels, including individualized human-rights-based assessments of educational requirements and necessary accommodations, and provide appropriate training for teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education, and periodically evaluate inclusion measures;
- (b) Strengthen the incorporation of a gender perspective and a disability perspective into its legislation and education policies, including Act No. 17/2018 on the Organization of the Andorran Education System (LOSEA);
- (c) Reinforce measures to eliminate the segregation of students with high requirements of support and ensure their inclusion in mainstreaming schools;
- (d) Enhance efforts to guarantee the use of augmentative and alternative modes and methods of communication in regular education settings, including Braille, Easy Read, sign language, tactile sign language, tracking, tactile fingerspelling and speech reading and communication aids and assistive information and communication technologies;
- (e) Increase the sign language classes for deaf children, promote the deaf culture in inclusive educational environments, and allocate appropriate resources to ensure the availability of education in Catalan sign language.

Austria (2023)

55. The Committee is gravely concerned about:

- (a) The regression in inclusive education, partly due to the termination of inclusive school policies, the prioritization of segregated schools over inclusive schools in the Education Reform Act (Bildungsreformgesetz 2017), the severe capacity shortages of inclusive kindergarten and elementary education, and a lack of funding and transfer of resources from the segregated school system towards inclusive education, resulting in increased enrolment of students with disabilities in segregated schools, including at the kindergarten level;
- (b) The lack of trained personnel for inclusive education, due to cuts at the primary and secondary levels, and the insufficiency of disability specific teacher training and recruitment;
- (c) The lack of reasonable accommodation in education, such as personal assistance and support services for students with disabilities, especially at the secondary and tertiary level, and the exclusion of persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities from such supports;
- (d) Exceedingly complex and lengthy administrative procedures for access to inclusive education;
- (e) The non-admission of children with disabilities to extra-curricular pedagogical supervision services, such as complementary care facilities, and their inaccessibility;
- (f) The lack of an established, enforceable legal right for children with disabilities of age 14 and older, to attend inclusive schools at the secondary level;
- (g) The absence of Austrian Sign Language in the school programs, as a means of communication in class as well as a subject to be taught;

(h) The lack of comprehensive data on education of children with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age, level of education, region and type of impairment, and the lack of comprehensive data on financial, organizational, educational and political measures taken to implement the objective of inclusive education in accordance with the Convention.

56. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promptly end the expansion of and phase out the segregated school system, transition resources, including funding, from segregated education to inclusive education, develop a nationwide strategy for inclusive education that encompasses all education systems of all levels of education, including those of the Länder and the municipalities, establish inclusive education policies and guidelines, including on the level of the Länder and the municipalities, develop harmonized inclusive education curricula, in close consultation with and the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, and implement them with all deliberate speed;
- (b) Redevelop and expand teacher training for inclusive education;
- (c) Provide reasonable accommodation, including personal assistance, for students with disabilities at all levels of education;
- (d) Render administrative procedures for access to inclusive education fully accessible, easy to navigate, and speedy;
- (e) Take measures at all federal levels, including the municipalities, to ensure access of all children with disabilities to extra-curricular pedagogical supervision services, such as complementary care facilities;
- (f) Enact legislation providing an enforceable, legal right of all children with disabilities to attend inclusive education, including at the secondary and tertiary levels;
- (g) Recognize the Austrian Sign Language in education and effectively implement it as a means of communication at school and as a subject to be taught;
- (h) Comprehensively collect data on inclusive and non-inclusive education of all children with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age, level of education, region and type of impairment, and on financial, organizational, educational and political measures taken to implement inclusive education in accordance with the Convention.

Germany (2023)

53. The Committee is concerned about the lack of full implementation of inclusive education throughout the education system, the prevalence of special schools and classes, as well as the various barriers children with disabilities and their families encounter to enroll in and complete studies at mainstream schools, including:

- (a) The lack of clear mechanism to promote inclusive education in the Länder and at the municipal level;
- (b) The misconception and negative perception about inclusive education at some executive entities, which may take the parents' request to enroll their children in mainstream school as indication on "incapability to take care of their child";
- (c) The lack of accessibility and accommodation in public schools and the lack of accessible transportation, in particular in rural areas;
- (d) Insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education as well as the development of specific skills and teaching methodologies and reported pressure on parents to enroll children with disabilities in special schools.

54. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and active involvement of students with disabilities, their families and representative organizations:

- (a) Develop a comprehensive plan to accelerate the transition from special schooling to inclusive education at Länder and municipal levels, with specific timeframes, human, technical and financial resource allocation, and clear responsibilities for implementation and monitoring.

- (b) Implement awareness raising and educational campaigns to promote inclusive education at the community level and among the relevant authorities;
- (c) Ensure that children with disabilities can attend mainstream schools, including through enhancing accessibility and accommodation to all kinds of disabilities and providing appropriate arrangements for transportation, in particular in rural areas;
- (d) Guarantee continuous training for teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats of information and communication, and develop a monitoring system to eliminate all forms of direct and indirect discrimination against children with disabilities and their families.

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of data on the access of refugee children with disabilities to education and to mainstream schools.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate sufficient resources for the regular collection of data, disaggregated by sex and type of disability, on the number and proportion of refugee children with disabilities who access education and are enrolled in mainstream and special schools as well as dropout rates.

Israel (2023)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the State party retains segregated education through the establishment of special classrooms for children with disabilities in regular schools, and the continued investment of human, technical and financial resources in segregated education;
- (b) The negative attitudes of parents and teachers that devalue and stigmatize children with disabilities, including autistic children, preventing them from enrolling in education;
- (c) The limited and inconsistent use of reasonable accommodation in mainstream schools for children with disabilities and for tertiary education students with disabilities;
- (d) Discontinuance of practices that improve accessibility to the learning environment, including distance learning and access to online classes and limited measures to ensure printed materials are available in alternative formats, such as Braille.

52. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and target 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that, in close consultation and active involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities, the State party:

- (a) Develop a strategy for the transition from special education to quality inclusive education for all children with disabilities, including by ensuring that the Convention underpins the mandate of the Shapira Committee;
- (b) Strengthen training and awareness-raising about the rights of children with disabilities, including to inclusive education, among children with disabilities, their parents and relatives, teachers, religious communities and in society at large;
- (c) Adopt legislative, policy and administrative measures for the provision of reasonable accommodation in mainstream education across public and private schools and in tertiary education, and recognise the denial of reasonable accommodation as form of discrimination.
- (d) Implement measures to ensure that the learning environment, including the physical environment, admission procedures, teaching resources and methodologies, online platforms for learning, classrooms and transport, are accessible for children with disabilities, and adopt measures to ensure the provision and availability of Braille, accessible digital material, augmentative and alternative communication and Easy Read.

Malawi (2023)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The fact that the national inclusive education policy does not cover all types of disabilities and that segregated education for children with disabilities still runs alongside with inclusive education, in absence of a timeframe for full transition;

- (b) Challenges to inclusive education, such as resistance by teachers and wide school community, inaccessibility of the school premises, few trained personnel, inadequacy of teaching material, lack of water and sanitation, long distance and inadequate road infrastructure to access schools, human, material and financial resources;
- (c) Information indicating that school-aged girls and adolescents with disabilities are often unable to attend class for a whole week at a time, due to a lack of access to essential menstruation products and taboos about menstruation;
- (d) Discriminatory attitudes towards children with disabilities preventing them from enrolling into education;
- (e) The absence of measures to track and record the participation and achievement of learners with disabilities in the inclusive setting.

50. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement the education related legal and policy framework to fully adopt quality inclusive education and transit from special and integrated schools;
- (b) Include a component of inclusive education in regular teacher training such as the use of sign language and Braille and any other assistive techniques into their curriculum;
- (c) Conduct regular needs assessment to ensure that children with disabilities in the inclusive education setting receive the appropriate support and attention;
- (d) Ensure adequate funding towards inclusive education for persons with disabilities to cover materials and reasonable accommodation;
- (e) Modify assessment methodologies to cater for individual needs of students with disabilities;
- (f) Carry out an access audit for information and infrastructure for children with disabilities in regular schools.

Mauritania (2023)

41. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) About the slow progress towards achieving inclusive education, the prevalence of special schools and classes for students with disabilities, and the persistence of barriers to inclusive education faced by children requiring higher levels of support;
- (b) That there is insufficient training for educators, teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education, and that awareness-raising curricula as part of character and citizenship education are not based on the human rights model of disability.

42. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 4 (2016) and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a strategy for the implementation of quality inclusive education for all students with disabilities, including students with intellectual disabilities, students with psychosocial disabilities and autistic students, with specific targets, timelines and a budget, at all levels of education, including tertiary and vocational education;
- (b) Ensure continuous training for educators, teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats of information and communication, including Braille and Easy Read, and ensure that awareness-raising curricula are based on the human rights model of disability.

Mongolia (2023)

47. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the State party maintains special education which results in a high number of children with disabilities, who are still receiving segregated special education;
- (b) The lack of resources in mainstream schools to support inclusive education, including the lack of sign language interpretation, reasonable accommodation, accessible school text books in Braille, large print, easy to understand format and assistive learning devices for students with disabilities based on individual needs, in particular in rural and remote areas;

(c) That the number of teachers trained on teaching children with disabilities remains low and a lack of specific measures to ensure that persons with disabilities are able to access general tertiary education, vocational training, adult education and lifelong learning without discrimination and on an equal basis with others.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Formulate a comprehensive inclusive education policy with strategies and allocated budget to promoting a culture of inclusion in mainstream education at all educational levels, including individualized human-rights based assessments of educational requirements and necessary accommodation, and provide appropriate training for regular teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education;

(b) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids, teaching and teacher aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology.

(c) Ensure the training of regular education teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education and raise their awareness about the human rights model of disability, and ensure access of persons with disabilities to general tertiary education, vocational training, adult education and lifelong learning without discrimination and on an equal basis with others.

Paraguay (2023)

43. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) Que no se haya completado la transformación de las escuelas especiales en centros de apoyo a la inclusión educativa, acorde con la Ley No. 5136/13 de Educación inclusiva y la Resolución No. 17267/2018, en la que se aprueban los lineamientos para un sistema educativo inclusivo en el Paraguay;

b) Que los costos de maestros de apoyo individualizados frecuentemente recaen en las familias de los estudiantes con discapacidad;

c) La falta de un plan de acción encaminado al logro de los indicadores de derechos humanos sobre el eje/área 11 del Plan de Acción Nacional para los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad y de la inversión del Estado parte en materia de derecho a la educación de las personas con discapacidad;

d) Que no se haya reformado la legislación para que tanto maestros de educación especial como maestros de educación regular se jubilen con los mismos años de servicio;

e) El escaso cumplimiento de la Ley N.º 4934/2013 de accesibilidad al medio físico en todas las escuelas y colegios del país y en términos de acceso a la información y comunicación, especialmente para estudiantes con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, y estudiantes que requieren un apoyo mayor;

f) Que la Dirección General de Educación Inclusiva cuente con una mínima cantidad de personal, vehículos y presupuesto para cubrir alrededor de 8.000 escuelas en más de 250 Distritos;

g) La falta de datos fiables, disponibles y precisos de los estudiantes con discapacidad, cuantos se encuentran aún en escuelas especiales, cuantos están siendo incluidos con los apoyos necesarios y cuantos niños, niñas y adolescentes no escolarizados se han encontrado a través del Programa MAPE;

h) Los escasos resultados del Plan Educativo Indígena para los años 2013-2018, así como los pocos avances en la capacitación y formación a docentes de escuelas situadas en comunidades indígenas, de acuerdo a lo establecido en la Ley de Educación Inclusiva;

i) La publicación de la Resolución No. 29664 del Ministerio de Educación y Ciencias que prohíbe temas de ideologías de género en las instituciones educativas.

44. Recordando su observación general núm. 4 (2016), sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, y las metas 4.5 y 4.a de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité urge al Estado parte a:

- a) Redoblar esfuerzos para poner fin a la educación especial segregada, cumpliendo con la Ley No. 5136/13, incluyendo un plan de acción nacional sobre la educación inclusiva de calidad, con objetivos específicos, plazos, recursos humanos y presupuesto suficiente, a fin de asegurar la provisión de apoyos y ajustes razonables para estudiantes con discapacidad que lo requieran en todos los niveles educativos, garantizando el acceso a las escuelas comunes a todos los estudiantes con discapacidad incluyendo áreas rurales y remotas;
- b) Incrementar el presupuesto público asignado para los maestros de apoyo, para que los estudiantes con discapacidad que los requieran puedan acceder a ellos sin costo;
- c) Elaborar un plan de acción con presupuesto suficiente para el cumplimiento de los indicadores de derechos humanos sobre el eje/área 11 del Plan de Acción Nacional para los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad;
- d) Modificar la legislación para que tanto maestros de educación especial como de educación regular se jubilen con los mismos años de servicio;
- e) Garantizar la accesibilidad plena de los establecimientos educativos, así como el uso de modalidades y sistemas alternativos y aumentativos de comunicación, como el braille, los formatos de lectura fácil, la educación en lengua de señas, el uso de pictogramas, protectores auditivos, y señalética accesible, asegurando la provisión de apoyos y ajustes razonables para los estudiantes con discapacidad que los requieran;
- f) Reforzar el presupuesto, el personal, y los recursos asignados a la Dirección General de Educación Inclusiva, para que cumpla con sus funciones en todo el territorio del Estado parte;
- g) Establecer acciones que permitan contar con datos estadísticos confiables sobre los alumnos con discapacidad, donde se encuentran recibiendo su educación, así como información sobre niños, niñas y adolescentes con discapacidad no escolarizados;
- h) Dar a conocer los resultados del Plan Educativo Indígena para los años 2013-2018 y los planes para su extensión, así como sobre los avances en la capacitación y formación a docentes de escuelas situadas en comunidades indígenas de acuerdo con la Ley de Educación Inclusiva;
- i) Eliminar la Resolución No. 29664 del Ministerio de Educación y Ciencias que prohíbe temas de ideologías de género en las instituciones educativas, ya que se opone al empoderamiento de mujeres y niñas, especialmente a aquellas con discapacidad.

Angola (2023)

39. The Committee notes that some measures have been taken by the State party to introduce inclusive education such as the establishment of the National Policy for Inclusive Special Education, however it is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of full implementation of the practice of inclusive education throughout the education system, the prevalence of special schools and classes and the greater barriers to education faced by children requiring higher levels of support;
- (b) The lack of accessible transport for children with disabilities to reach school;
- (c) Insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education;
- (d) Insufficient accessible learning materials, alternative communication and information methods or teachers fluent in Angola sign language (ASL).

40. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a strategy for implementing quality, inclusive education with specific targets, timelines and a budget and share responsibilities between the national and municipal levels, and ensure that children with disabilities consistently interact with those without disabilities.

- (b) Take all measures to ensure that children with disabilities can attend school, including through appropriate arrangements for transportation;
- (c) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, modes and means of communication, including Easy Read, communication aids and assistive and information technology;
- (d) Ensure continuous training for teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats of information and communication.

Argentina (2023)

45. Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

- a) El 45,2% de estudiantes con discapacidad asiste a escuelas de la modalidad de educación especial, según lo reportado por el Estado parte en su informe actualizado;
- b) Los rechazos de inscripción en escuelas comunes estatales y privadas de estudiantes con discapacidad, pese a la Resolución CFE 311/16 del Consejo Federal de Educación que, entre otras cosas, prohíbe rechazar su inscripción o reinscripción por motivos de discapacidad;
- c) Los escasos apoyos y ajustes razonables otorgados para estudiantes con discapacidad en entornos educativos comunes;
- d) La poca accesibilidad de las instalaciones de los entornos educativos regulares y en términos de acceso a la información y comunicación, especialmente para estudiantes con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, y estudiantes que requieren un apoyo más intenso;
- e) El poco alcance de la formación docente y del personal educativo no docente sobre educación inclusiva;
- f) Las barreras existentes para acceder a una educación inclusiva en el nivel superior y la discontinuidad del programa de Accesibilidad Física en edificios y predios de las Universidades Nacionales.

46. Recordando su observación general núm. 4 (2016), sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, y las metas 4.5 y 4.a de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité urge al Estado parte a:

- a) Redoblar esfuerzos para poner fin a la educación especial segregada, incluyendo un plan de acción nacional sobre la educación inclusiva de calidad, con objetivos específicos, plazos, recursos humanos y un presupuesto suficiente, a fin de asegurar la provisión de apoyos y ajustes razonables para estudiantes con discapacidad que lo requieran en todos los niveles educativos;
- b) Garantizar el acceso a las escuelas comunes a todos los estudiantes con discapacidad, incluyendo, entre otras medidas, sanciones efectivas a las escuelas comunes estatales y privadas que rechazan su inscripción o reinscripción por motivos de discapacidad;
- c) Asegurar la provisión de apoyos y ajustes razonables para todos los estudiantes con discapacidad, incluyendo a quienes se encuentran en los entornos educativos comunes;
- d) Garantizar la accesibilidad plena de los establecimientos educativos comunes, incluyendo su infraestructura, así como el uso de modalidades y sistemas alternativos y aumentativos de comunicación, como el braille, los formatos de lectura fácil, la educación en lengua de señas, el uso de pictogramas, protectores auditivos, y señalética accesible;
- e) Incrementar los esfuerzos en la formación de todo el personal educativo docente y no docente en educación inclusiva de la Convención;
- f) Garantizar la educación inclusiva en el nivel superior, incluyendo el acceso a la educación a distancia y, retomar el Programa de Accesibilidad Física en edificios y predios de las Universidades Nacionales.

Georgia (2023)

49. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That inclusive quality education has not been included in the Unified National Strategy for Education and Science of Georgia (2022-2030) and the prevalence of special education in executive provisions, such as the Decree N05/N on the Enrolment of Students in the Institutions of General Education and Termination of the Status of a Student, defining support to children with disabilities mainly on the basis of medical assessments, and the absence of monitoring, coordination and accountability mechanisms concerning implementation of inclusive education in early and pre-school education;
- (b) That children with hearing impairments and children with autism continue to be enrolled in special education, and the limited information about access to inclusive education of children with higher requirements of support;
- (c) That girls with disabilities are promoted less in their educational endeavors than boys with disabilities and face stereotyping, as do children with disabilities belonging to ethnic minorities, and children with hearing impairments;
- (d) Statistical data on students with disabilities in education is limited or missing, including drop-out rates, qualified staff, including teachers, is scarce, classrooms are often overcrowded, and infrastructure is often not safe, accessible and properly equipped for children with disabilities, and classroom material is frequently inaccessible or insufficient;
- (e) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in designing, implementing and monitoring of the Vocational Education and Training Development Strategy.

50. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 and target 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the implementation of the Unified National Strategy for Education and Science of Georgia (2022-2030) leads to inclusive, quality education for persons with disabilities, that organisations of persons with disabilities are involved in periodic monitoring of its progress and that experiences of students with disabilities of all ages inform the State party's action plans;
- (b) Implement inclusive quality education for all children with disabilities, including by developing accessible enrolment procedures, participatory assessments of students with disabilities' requirements aimed at the provision of individualized supports, including through reasonable accommodation, and periodically evaluate inclusion measures in early and pre-school education;
- (c) Adopt a strategy and allot appropriate human, technical and financial resources to ensure the availability of education in Georgian sign language, Easy Read, tactile sign language, tracking, tactile fingerspelling and speech reading;
- (d) Review national policies and administrative procedures concerning the admission and retention of students with disabilities in inclusive education with the aim of identifying and eliminating barriers and factors of drop-out. The Committee also recommends that the State party promote outreach strategies to facilitate children with disabilities to complete their studies, including through distance learning;
- (e) Take measures, including awareness-raising and specific measures to address intersecting discrimination against girls with disabilities in education and students with disabilities belonging to ethnic and religious minorities;
- (f) Collect data on enrolment and completion, disaggregated by disability status, ensure that education policies set-up measures to increase the number of qualified teachers with skills and teaching methodologies in inclusive education, and time-frames for ensuring accessibility of infrastructure and teaching materials in public and private regular schools;
- (g) Promote access of students with disabilities to vocational programmes and provide students with disabilities with sufficient financial means to apply for and complete vocational education.

Peru (2023)

48. Preocupa al Comité:

- a) El importante porcentaje de estudiantes con discapacidad que no acceden a los programas educativos y/o no permanecen en ellos debido a sus escasos recursos económicos y porque persiste la negación de admisión por motivos de discapacidad sin contar con los mecanismos que evidencien esta negativa de admisión y la escasa implementación y cobertura del Servicio de Apoyo Educativo (SAE);
- b) El limitado número y cobertura de los Programas de Intervención Temprana (PRITE), que sólo ofrecen servicios especializados a niños menores de tres años;
- c) Preocupa el aumento de casos de acoso escolar contra niños, incluidos niños con discapacidad, y que las escuelas no dispongan de protocolos ni de formación para prevenir, vigilar y combatir el acoso de niños con discapacidad.

49. Recordando su observación general núm. 4 (2016), sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, y las metas 4.5 y 4.a de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité insta al Estado parte a que:

- a) Asigne mayores recursos económicos para la realización de ajustes razonables para los estudiantes con discapacidad, así como para la implementación y aumento de cobertura del Servicio de Apoyo Educativo, y cree un mecanismo de monitoreo permanente que garantice el acceso a la escuela de todos los estudiantes con discapacidad;
- b) Aumente los recursos humanos y financieros para crear más Programas de Intervención Temprana (PRITE) y aumente la edad de las niñas y los niños cubiertos para garantizar la transición a la educación inclusiva;
- c) Adopte medidas para eliminar el abuso y el acoso contra los niños con discapacidad en las escuelas por medio de programas y protocolos contra el acoso.

Togo (2023)

47. The Committee is concerned at the absence a policy for implementing inclusive education with specific targets and timelines in the State party, the lack of educational opportunities in mainstream schools and vocational and technical training for persons with disabilities, especially girls and children who are deaf, blind or have intellectual impairments, the lack of training for teachers on the skills and competencies required to promote inclusive education, and the insufficient number of teachers proficient in sign language. It is also concerned at the lack of systematic data, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number and proportion of children with disabilities in mainstream schools receiving individualized support, and on the enrolment and dropout rates of children with disabilities.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Formulate a comprehensive inclusive education policy with strategies, measurable indicators and timelines, promoting a culture of inclusion in mainstream education at all educational levels, including individualized human-rights based assessments of educational requirements and necessary accommodation, and provide appropriate training for teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education;
- (b) Establish an effective programme for training of teachers on inclusive education, including learning sign language, Braille and Easy Read skills;
- (c) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology;
- (d) Provide disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities mainstreamed into the regular school environment with adequate teaching support measures to enable them to reach their full potential.

Tunisia (2023)

43. The Committee is concerned that limited progress has been made in the field of education for children with disabilities over a decade since the last State party's review, in particular the continuous application of old legislation which supports segregated education. It is also concerned that the budget for inclusive education remains very low. It is further concerned that children with disabilities are only allowed in inclusive setting after assessing their abilities while reasonable accommodation in inclusive settings is not provided.

44. The Committee, recalling its General Comment No. 4 (2016) on Inclusive Education as well as SDG's Goal 4 on Education recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the current laws governing education of children with disabilities to recognise the right to inclusive education and to remove all environmental barriers to educational inclusion in accordance to the Convention and the Committee's General Comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education;

(b) Adopt unified programmes with specific goals and time frames in order to promote the access of persons with disabilities to inclusive schools, ensuring that children with disabilities can seek individualized support and have the provision of reasonable accommodation;

(c) Increase the budget for educational inclusion and recognise the duty of the State party to provide reasonable accommodation in the education sector and put in place procedures for requesting and granting the service;

(d) Modify the role of the local disability commission to make it responsible for the identification and the provision of personalised support necessary for the inclusion of children with disabilities in addition to their assessments role;

(e) Transform the specialised centres progressively to make them resource centres for inclusion instead of providing segregated education.

Bangladesh (2022)

47. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The overreliance on segregated and special education, including the Combined Special Education Policy on Disability of 2019, as opposed to developing inclusive education, including the lack of statistical data on the number of children enrolled in primary schools, particularly in rural and remote areas;

(b) The lack of available learning materials in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read for blind and deaf persons and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities respectively, as well as the lack of accessible school transportation and buildings;

(c) Insufficient training for professionals in the education system in Braille, sign language and Easy Read skills and deficient individualised support and reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities;

(d) The lack of sufficient budgetary allocations for the promotion of inclusive education and the absence of systematic data collection, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number of students with disabilities enrolled in the education system.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement a national action plan on inclusive education and develop statistical data on the number of children enrolled in the education system, particularly for children with disabilities in rural and remote areas;

(b) Intensify efforts to make learning materials in accessible formats available to all students with disabilities, and provide accessible school transportation and infrastructure across the education system;

(c) Establish an effective programme for training of teachers on inclusive education, including learning sign language, Braille and Easy Read skills and facilitate individualised support and reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities;

(d) Provide sufficient budgetary allocations for the promotion of inclusive education and systematic statistical data, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number of children with disabilities enrolled in the education system.

China (2022)

50. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) The number of children in segregated educational settings remains high and there is a lack of resources in mainstream schools to support inclusive education, including lack of sign language interpretation, reasonable accommodation and teachers with specialist qualifications in inclusive education in mainstream schools, in particular in rural areas;

(b) That the updated Regulations of Education of Persons with Disabilities (2017) require that children with disabilities be evaluated by the quasi-governmental Expert Committee on the Education of Persons with Disabilities, which places children in schools according to their “physical conditions and ability to be educated and adapt to [mainstream] schools”.

51. Recalling its General Comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Introduce legislation containing an enforceable right to inclusive education and develop a comprehensive action plan for implementing high-quality inclusive education for all children with disabilities, including those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, with specific targets, time frames, budgets, the transfer of resources from special schools, and inclusive education curricula;

(b) Revise its Regulations of Education of Persons with Disabilities (2017) with the aim of eliminating all discriminatory provisions regarding the education of children with disabilities and explicitly provide for quality inclusive education to ensure that no child with disabilities is excluded from the general education system on the basis of impairment.

Indonesia (2022)

52. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The limited efforts towards achieving inclusive education, the prevalence of special schools and classes and the lack of mechanisms to ensure access to the education system at all levels for persons with disabilities;

(b) That there is a lack of accessible learning materials, alternative communication and information methods and training for teachers on Braille and sign language interpretation and other specialist services to improve the quality of inclusive education, particularly in rural and remote areas;

(c) The expulsion of children from school because they or their parents are affected by leprosy.

53. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop an inclusive education strategy, with specific targets, timelines and budget, and coordinated responsibilities between national, provincial, city and regency levels, covering all levels of education;

(b) Establish disability service units in all regions and at all educational levels to facilitate the provision of accessible learning materials, alternative communication and information methods, such as inclusive digital access, Easy Read, Braille, sign language, communication aids, and assistive and information technology, and to ensure teacher training in sign language and Braille, including in rural and remote areas;

(c) Develop policies and strategies to address stigma and misinformation about leprosy in the education system and to ensure participation of children affected by leprosy or children whose parents are affected by leprosy in inclusive education.

Japan (2022)

51. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Perpetuation of segregated special education of children with disabilities, through medical-based assessments, making education in regular environments inaccessible for children with disabilities, especially for children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and those who require more intensive support, as well as the existence of special needs education classes in regular schools;
- (b) Denials to admit children with disabilities to regular schools due to its perceived and factual unpreparedness to admit them, and the ministerial notification issued in 2022 by which students in special classes should not spend their time in regular classes for more than half of their school time;
- (c) Insufficient provision of reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities;
- (d) Lack of skills of and negative attitudes on inclusive education of regular education teachers;
- (e) Lack of alternative and augmentative modes and methods of communication and information in regular schools, including sign language education for deaf children, and inclusive education for deafblind children;
- (f) Lack of national comprehensive policy, addressing barriers for students with disabilities at higher education, including university entrance exams and the study process.

52. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and the Sustainable Development Goal 4, target 4.5 and indicator 4 (a), the Committee urges that the State party:

- (a) Recognize the right of children with disabilities to inclusive education within its national policy on education, legislation and administrative arrangement with the aim to cease segregated special education, and adopt a national action plan on quality inclusive education, with specific targets, time frames and sufficient budget, to ensure that all students with disabilities are provided with reasonable accommodation and the individualized support they need at all levels of education;
- (b) Ensure accessibility to regular schools for all children with disabilities, and put in place a "non-rejection" clause and policy to ensure that regular schools are not allowed to deny regular school for students with disabilities, and withdraw the ministerial notification related to special classes;
- (c) Guarantee reasonable accommodations for all children with disabilities for meeting their individual educational requirements and ensuring inclusive education;
- (d) Ensure training of regular education teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education and raise their awareness on the human right model of disability;
- (e) Guarantee the use of augmentative and alternative modes and methods of communication in regular settings of education, including Braille, Easy Read, sign language education for deaf children, promote the deaf culture in inclusive educational environments, and access to inclusive education for deafblind children;
- (f) Develop a national comprehensive policy, addressing barriers for students with disabilities at higher education, including university entrance exams and the study process.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

44. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Slow progress towards achieving inclusive education, insufficient implementation of the national action plan on inclusive education due to limited resources, technical assistant, lack of subsidies for persons with disabilities, and the existence of two special schools for the deaf and blind in Vientiane and Luang Prabang province, under the Ministry of Health;
- (b) High illiteracy rate among persons with disabilities and high number of students with disabilities that drops out schools due to long distances to reach the school or limited public transportation, and lack of reasonable accommodation for students in the mainstream education system;

- (c) Insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education, in particular in rural settings, and negative attitudes toward the inclusion of students with disabilities into mainstream education among teachers, school administrative staff, students without disabilities, and their parents;
- (d) Limited accessible materials, adaptive learning environments and individualized accommodation for students with disabilities at all levels, especially those residing in remote areas and those belonging to ethnic groups;
- (e) Rejection from school of students with disabilities, particularly students with intellectual disabilities and autism, girls with disabilities, and those affected by leprosy;
- (f) Limited availability of higher education opportunities for persons with disabilities, given that many university programmes do not give admission to students with disabilities;
- (g) Data collection focused only on children with physical disabilities.

45. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt the necessary measures to implement the national action plan on inclusive education, involving all line ministries and stakeholders, with sufficient budgetary allocations, to ensure that all students with disabilities have access to quality inclusive education in the mainstream education system at all levels;
- (b) Redouble its efforts to reduce illiteracy and the drop-out rate from schools among persons with disabilities, including by ensuring the availability of schools close to the communities, accessible public transportation, and establishing a centralized mechanism to request reasonable accommodation in the educational system;
- (c) Ensure continuous training for teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats for information and communication, as well as undertake raise awareness on the importance of inclusive education at all levels, among the community;
- (d) Provide students with disabilities with individualized accommodation, including classroom support and accessible learning environments, teaching methods and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology, and make sure that there are enough teachers fluent in Lao Sign Language, especially in rural and remote areas;
- (e) Take measures to prevent the rejection and stigmatization of children with disabilities and ensure that all students with disabilities, in particular, students with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, girls with disabilities, autistic students, and those affected by leprosy, receive an education in mainstream school settings;
- (f) Ensure the accessibility of tertiary and vocational inclusive education, through measures of universal design and reasonable accommodation;
- (g) Collect and disaggregate, systematically, data on all students in and out of school, and school drop out by gender, age, and disability.

New Zealand (2022)

47. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The increased enrolment of students with disabilities in separate learning environments, such as specialist schools, residential specialist schools and special education satellite units, despite legislative and policy commitments to inclusive education;
- (b) The proposal to change entry requirements for enrolment at residential specialist schools for children with disabilities rather than investing in inclusive education;
- (c) The high proportion of Māori children with disabilities in residential specialist schools.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and target 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop an inclusive education strategy that includes measures for the devolution of segregated education settings into a mainstream inclusive education system, to transition funding and resources from specialist education to inclusive education, to prioritise inclusive education in teacher training, to establish uniform inclusive education policies and guidelines, to develop an inclusive education curriculum, and to promote and raise community awareness;
- (b) Withdraw the proposal to change entry requirements for enrolment in residential specialist schools and redirect funding and resources into an inclusive education system;
- (c) Develop specific culturally appropriate strategies to address the high proportion of Māori children with disabilities in residential specialist schools, including the provision of supports to remain with whānau (extended family networks) in their local communities.

Republic of Korea (2022)

49. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the State party maintains special education based on medical impairment-based approach and regularly increases the number of special schools which results in a high number of children with disabilities, including autism, intellectual, psychosocial or multiple disabilities, who are still receiving segregated special education;
- (b) About the insufficient number of teaching and support staff trained in Braille, sign language and accessible mode of teaching and the level of training for teachers on skills and competencies required to promote inclusive education;
- (c) That children with disabilities who attend the day care centres other than kindergarten do not receive support from the Ministry of Education.

50. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee reiterates its previous recommendation (CRPD/C/KOR/CO/1, para. 46) and urges the State party to:

- (a) Formulate a comprehensive inclusive education policy with strategies to promoting a culture of inclusion in mainstream education at all educational levels, including individualized human-rights based assessments of educational requirements and necessary accommodation, and provide appropriate training for teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education;
- (b) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology;
- (c) Ensure that all children with disabilities attending segregated day-care centres operated under the Ministry of Health and Welfare are transferred to mainstream kindergarten operating under the Ministry of Education.

Singapore (2022)

47. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) About the slow progress towards achieving inclusive education, the prevalence of special schools and classes for students who are assessed as having “mild to moderate disabilities”, and the nearly insurmountable barriers to inclusive education faced by children requiring higher levels of support;
- (b) That school certificates of students with disabilities contain information on curriculum adaptations, which may arouse prejudice and discrimination by potential employers;
- (c) That there is insufficient training for Allied Educators, teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education, and that awareness-raising curricula under the Character and Citizenship Education are not based on the human rights model of disability.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and its links to target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a strategy for the implementation of quality inclusive education for all students with disabilities, including students with intellectual disabilities, students with psychosocial disabilities, and autistic students, with specific targets, timelines and a budget, at all levels of education, including tertiary and vocational education;

(b) Remove information on the adaptation of school curricula for students with disabilities from their school certificates, and strengthen measures, including by allocating financial resources, to provide for individualized support as well as reasonable accommodation in education, in order to attain full inclusion of all students with disabilities in mainstream schools;

(c) Ensure continuous training for Allied Educators, teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats of information and communication, including Braille and Easy Read, and ensure that awareness raising curricula are based on the human rights model of disability.

Hungary (2022)

48. The Committee notes with concern that children with disabilities are excluded from the general education system. In particular, it is concerned about:

(a) The Public Education Act, which provides for segregated education and omits the obligation to admit children with disabilities into general education schools, as provided in the Convention, and legitimizes both the education of children with high support requirements in residential institutions and at home and a reduced number of teaching hours for children with disabilities;

(b) The lack of access to regular education facilities and transportation for children with physical disabilities in their communities, providing reasonable accommodation for the requirements of individuals, including in rural areas;

(c) The limited knowledge and skills of teachers in the general education system that are necessary for inclusive education;

(d) The barriers experienced by deaf and hard-of-hearing children in accessing the general education system and the lack of opportunities for bilingual education within inclusive educational settings;

(e) The lack of accessibility of general vocational education facilities and programmes, particularly for autistic children and children with intellectual disabilities;

(f) The segregation of children with disabilities, including Roma children, through poor-quality education and in special schools.

49. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) and target 4.5 and indicator 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Revise its Public Education Act with the aim of eliminating all discriminatory provisions regarding the education of children with disabilities and explicitly provide for quality inclusive education to ensure that no child with disabilities is excluded from the general education system on the basis of impairment;

(b) Ensure access to the general education system in the community and provide the necessary reasonable accommodations for all children with disabilities on an equal basis with other children;

(c) Guarantee access to regular education facilities and transportation for children with physical disabilities in their communities across the State party;

(d) Provide comprehensive and focused training for general education teachers and administrative staff on the principles and methods of inclusive education, the capacities of children with disabilities and the individualized support measures required by children with disabilities;

(e) Provide access to the general education for deaf and hard-of-hearing children and promote bilingual education opportunities within an inclusive educational setting, particularly through quality sign language and other support that is required;

- (f) Ensure the accessibility of regular vocational education facilities and programmes for all children with disabilities, particularly for autistic children and children with intellectual disabilities, through measures of universal design and reasonable accommodation;
- (g) Take measures aimed at ensuring access to inclusive, high-quality and free primary, secondary and vocational education for children with disabilities, including Roma children, on an equal basis with others.

Jamaica (2022)

42. The Committee notes some measures taken by the State party to ensure online education during the COVID-19 pandemic, however it is concerned:

- (a) About the slow progress towards achieving inclusive education, the prevalence of special schools and classes, and the greater barriers to education faced by children requiring higher levels of support;
- (b) That many parents of children with disabilities keep them at home until the age of 12, while school starts at 6, and often are compelled to enrol their children in regular schools without the necessary support services;
- (c) That there is insufficient training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education;
- (d) That there are not enough accessible learning materials, alternative communication and information methods or teachers fluent in Jamaican Sign Language.

43. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a strategy for implementing quality inclusive education, with specific targets, timelines and a budget, and share responsibilities between the national and municipal levels, at all levels of education, including tertiary and vocational education;
- (b) Strengthen measures, including financial resources, to provide individualized support as well as reasonable accommodation in education, when so required;
- (c) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, and modes and means of communication including Easy Read, communication aids, and assistive and information technology, and make sure that there are enough teachers fluent in Jamaican Sign Language;
- (d) Ensure continuous training for teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including training in sign language and other accessible formats for information and communication.

Mexico (2022)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The persistence of special education;
- (b) The lack of a strategy covering all levels of the State party aimed at ensuring inclusive education for all children with disabilities;
- (c) A high dropout level of children with disabilities from the education system after age 15;
- (d) Widespread exclusion of women and girls with disabilities from educational settings in both early and higher education, due to, inter alia, their disability and gender, a lack of accessibility and reasonable accommodations, and a lack of knowledge about the requirements of students with disabilities;
- (e) The lack of accessible schools and didactic materials, including textbooks in Braille, and sign-language interpretation.

55. With reference to paragraph 48 of its previous concluding observations, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish, in law and policy, an inclusive education system at all levels – primary, secondary, post-secondary and life-long learning – including support measures, the provision of reasonable accommodation, adequate funding and training for educational staff;

- (b) Adopt measures to ensure that all children with disabilities, in particular girls with disabilities, receive an education in mainstream school settings, including children with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, blind-deaf children and children with disabilities from indigenous communities;
- (c) Implement measures for the accessibility of schools and didactic materials, including Braille and sign language, and ensure their use from the start of education;
- (d) Compile data on education, disaggregated by gender, national and ethnic origin, indigence, rural or urban living environment, and type of impairment, on enrolment in segregated school settings and in mainstream schools.

Switzerland (2022)

47. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The high number of children in segregated educational settings, and the application of the inter-cantonal agreement on special education to stream children with disabilities into special education;
- (b) The lack of resources in mainstream schools to support inclusive education, including lack of sign language interpretation, reasonable accommodation and teachers with specialist qualifications in inclusive education in mainstream schools;
- (c) The barriers in gaining access to vocational training and higher education faced by students with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Introduce a constitutional right to inclusive education and develop a comprehensive strategy for implementing high-quality inclusive education for all children with disabilities, including those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and autistic children, with specific targets, time frames, budgets, the transfer of resources from special schools, and inclusive education curricula and teaching qualifications at the federal and cantonal levels;
- (b) Ensure that the application of the inter-cantonal agreement on special education and cantonal policies does not result in the streaming of children with disabilities into special education, and upholds their right to inclusive education;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities are able to participate in accessible and inclusive higher education, including through the provision of reasonable accommodation, and that they have access to inclusive programmes for certified basic vocational and professional training.

Venezuela (2022)

42. The Committee notes with concern that the State party still makes use of a special education model, with schools for persons with hearing impairments, visual impairments, intellectual disabilities and physical disabilities, and that there is a lack of information on the progress made in introducing Venezuelan sign language in educational institutions.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party, on the basis of general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, bearing in mind target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and in line with the commitments made at the Global Disability Summit 2022:

- (a) Develop a national inclusive education plan for all persons with disabilities at all levels; redirect budget allocations from special education to the regular education system; provide personalized assistance starting from the preschool level and continuing on to higher education levels; provide appropriate training for teachers; and incorporate special education teachers into the regular education system as a form of support;
- (b) Ensure that support, specifically designed teaching materials in alternative accessible formats, modes and means of communication, and information and assistive technologies are provided and that reasonable accommodation for individual requirements is made in all educational institutions;

(c) Assess the progress made in introducing Venezuelan sign language, as well as other formats such as Braille and Easy Read, in all educational institutions.

Djibouti (2021)

41. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The prevalence of segregated special education settings for persons with disabilities and children with disabilities, which is permitted under article 10 of Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018), the high literacy rate among women with disabilities, and the absence of a policy for implementing inclusive education with specific targets and deadlines;

(b) The insufficient number of teaching and support staff trained in Braille, sign language and accessible mode of teaching and the inadequate level of training for teachers on skills and competences required to promote inclusive education;

(c) The barriers faced by children with disabilities in accessing inclusive education, particularly girls with disabilities and children with disabilities in rural areas and refugee camps.

42. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018) to eliminate segregated special education for persons with disabilities, and develop and adopt a policy on inclusive education with specific targets and sufficient budget allocation, with a particular focus on women and girls with disabilities and children with disabilities in rural areas and in refugee camps;

(b) Strengthen the provision of training for teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education, including sign language;

(c) Pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of Sustainable Development Goal 4 to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training, and build or upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

France (2021)

50. The Committee is concerned about the high rate of children with disabilities in segregated education settings, including in residential medico-social institutions or in special separated classrooms in regular schools, perpetuating stigmatization and exclusion. It also notes with concern:

(a) Insufficient statistical information about children with disabilities, including in the Overseas territories, enrolled and attending school on full or part time basis, and about access of Roma children, asylum seeking, refugee children and children with disabilities in irregular migration to inclusive education;

(b) The refusal of children with intellectual, psychosocial disabilities or autistic children, at schools;

(c) The lack of individualised supports through the provision of reasonable accommodation for children with disabilities to meet with educational requirements, particularly affecting autistic children and children with Down syndrome;

(d) A failure to provide reasonable accommodation for children with disabilities in the context of closing schools during the pandemic COVID-19, especially for deaf children;

(e) Insufficient provision of education of and in French Sign Language;

(f) The absence of learning, teaching and use of Braille and Easy Read for persons who are blind and visually impaired and persons with intellectual disabilities;

(g) Information about violence against children with disabilities, including bullying in schools;

(h) Access to higher education for persons with disabilities; support for students with disabilities, accommodations for international mobility.

51. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the Right to inclusive education and the Sustainable Development Goal 4, target 4.5 and indicator 4 (a), and it recommends that the State party strengthen measures to attain quality, inclusive education for all children with disabilities, including in the overseas territories. The State party should promptly implement the recommendations issued by the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (A/HRC/40/54/Add.1, see para. 81) in this realm. The Committee further recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop data collection systems on children with disabilities disaggregated by age, place of residence, sex and ethnic background, including information about the percentage of enrolment and attendance to school and ensure that Roma children with disabilities, asylum-seeking and refugee children with disabilities or in situation of irregular migration have effective access to education;
- (b) Adopt measures for parents or legal tutors to complaints and seek redress in cases of refusal of children at schools, on the basis of disabilities;
- (c) Develop a framework recognizing the right of persons with disabilities to seek individualised supports through the provision of reasonable accommodation to meet the individual educational requirements of children with disabilities, including accommodations for examinations for children with disabilities, particularly considering autistic children and children with Down syndrome;
- (d) Adopt programmes at the municipal level and involving public and private actors to provide support for children with disabilities in the context of the pandemic COVID-19;
- (e) Ensure that education in French Sign Language is provided at early stages of education and promote the deaf culture in inclusive educational environments;
- (f) Ensure the effective learning, teaching and use of Braille and Easy Read for persons who are blind and visually impaired and persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (g) Take measures to eliminate abuse and bullying against children with disabilities in school;
- (h) Adopt programmes with specific goals and timeframes in order to promote access of persons with disabilities to higher education, ensuring that young persons with disabilities may seek individualised supports through the provision of reasonable accommodations in tertiary education, including for facilitating international mobility, and access to sign languages.

Estonia (2021)

46. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The slow progress towards achieving inclusive education, as recognized in the Basic and Upper-Secondary School Act, the prevalence of special schools and classes and the greater barriers to education faced by children requiring higher levels of support;
- (b) That reasonable accommodation for meeting individual requirements and providing individualized support has not yet been made fully available throughout the education system;
- (c) That there are not enough accessible learning materials, alternative communication and information methods or teachers fluent in sign language;
- (d) The barriers faced by children with disabilities in gaining access to quality, inclusive education within a context of distance learning during the COVID-19 pandemic and the restrictions on school attendance imposed for children with “chronic diseases” and experiencing symptoms similar to COVID-19.

47. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) and target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a strategy for implementing quality, inclusive education with specific targets, timelines and a budget and share responsibilities between the national and municipal levels;
- (b) Establish a policy framework that recognizes the right of persons with disabilities to seek individualized support as reasonable accommodation in education, when so required;
- (c) Ensure that education is an area of life covered by anti-discrimination legislation and policies and that the denial of reasonable accommodation is included as a form of discrimination;
- (d) Provide students with disabilities with assistive compensatory aids and learning materials in alternative and accessible formats, such as inclusive digital access, modes and means of communication, including Easy Read, communication aids and assistive and information technology, and make sure that there are enough teachers fluent in Estonian sign language;

(e) Take measures, including the provision of technical equipment and the adoption of regulations, to ensure that children with disabilities, especially those in rural areas and those facing economic hardship, receive the individualized support they need, within a quality, inclusive education system, during the COVID-19 pandemic and guarantee for children with chronic diseases equal access to school.

Albania (2019)

39. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of comprehensive legislation and strategy for quality inclusive education and that segregated education environments persist, especially for students with intellectual disabilities;

(b) The lack of data on the public resources allocated to inclusive education in primary, secondary and higher education institutions;

(c) The absence of data and indicators to monitor the quality of education and inclusion of students with disabilities at all levels of education, and accessibility standards of school infrastructures, information and communications, including information and communications technologies;

(d) The limited accessibility ensured in higher education for students with disabilities and the decreasing number of enrolled students with disabilities.

40. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.8, the Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts to support the implementation of inclusive education, and in particular that it:

(a) Repeal and amend laws to recognise inclusive education as a right, and grant all students with disabilities, regardless of their personal characteristics, the right to access inclusive learning opportunities in the mainstream education system with individualized support, as required;

(b) Formulate, adopt and implement a comprehensive inclusive education policy with strategies for promoting a culture of inclusion in mainstream education, including individualized human-rights based assessments of educational requirements and necessary accommodation, guidance and support for teachers, respect for diversity in ensuring the rights to equality and non-discrimination, and the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities in society;

(c) Ensure the accessibility of school environments, in line with the Convention, including through the provision of specific measures, such as accessible and adapted materials and inclusive curricula, the provision of individualized support and accommodation;

(d) Allocate effective and sufficient financial, material and adequately and regularly trained human resources, that include persons with disabilities;

(e) Incorporate inclusive education training into university curricula for future teachers and mandatory training programmes for current teaching staff, with an adequate budget;

(f) Increase data collection on, among others, the implementation of inclusive education laws and policies, and accessibility of school infrastructures, information and communications, including information and communications technologies, to inform inclusive education policies.

Australia (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of implementation of many of the recommendations of the 2015 review of the Disability Standards for Education 2005;

(b) The significant increase in students with disabilities experiencing a segregated education, seclusion, isolation and a lack of age-appropriate settings, and about insufficient funding for inclusive education in mainstream schools;

(c) The fact that there is no national disaggregated data on students with disabilities, including on the use of restrictive practices and cases of bullying.

46. In line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee reiterates its previous recommendations on education (CRPD/C/AUS/CO/1, para. 46) and recommends that the State party:

(a) Conduct a robust review, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, of the Disability Standards for Education 2005, implement the recommendations arising from that review and develop a national action plan for inclusive education;

(b) Address the increasing rate of segregation, seclusion and isolation and the lack of age-appropriate settings for students with disabilities at all levels, in particular Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students, and redirect adequate resources to a nationwide inclusive education system for all students;

(c) Expand the collection of data on the number of students with disabilities who do not qualify for an adjustment and who are unable to enrol in local mainstream schools, as well as data on educational attainment, on completion, suspension and expulsion rates, on the use of restrictive practices and on cases of bullying.

Ecuador (2019)

43. The Committee notes with concern that the State party retains the use of a special education model; that segregated forms of education predominate in its legislation, in particular in the Organic Act on Disabilities; that 151 segregated schools still exist; and that not enough is being done to change the education system into one based on quality inclusive education.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party revise and amend the Organic Act on Disabilities without delay and that, as an overall strategy, on the basis of general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and bearing in mind target 4.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, it establish an inclusive education system for all persons with disabilities at all levels, regardless of their migration status. It also recommends that the State party redirect budget allocations from special education to the regular education system, provide personalized support starting from the preschool level and continuing on to higher education levels and provide appropriate training for teachers. It recommends that the State party ensure that support, specifically designed teaching materials in alternative accessible formats, modes and means of communication, and information and assistive technologies are provided and that reasonable accommodation for individual requirements is made.

El Salvador (2019)

46. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That limited progress has been made with regard to the right to inclusive education for persons with disabilities;

(b) At the lack of information on the number of children with disabilities in segregated schools and in mainstream schools;

(c) That the Ministry of Education's Comprehensive Sexuality Education Strategy does not include persons with disabilities in a multidimensional and intersectional manner.

47. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and targets 4.5 and 4.A of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a national strategy for the inclusion of children with disabilities in mainstream education and redirect budget from segregated to mainstream classrooms and schools, ensure full accessibility in educational premises, adopting measures to remove architectural and communication barriers, ensure that teaching and non-teaching staff are trained, and ensure the availability of accessible learning material in Easy Read and Braille and the availability of sign language interpreters;

(b) Establish a system to collect disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities, especially children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities still in segregated education and those in mainstream education, and the types of support provided to them, with a view to designing adequate public policies;

(c) Ensure that all the educational policies and strategies aimed at the general population, including the Comprehensive Sexuality Education Strategy, are applicable to persons with disabilities.

Greece (2019)

34. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There is no comprehensive, clear legislation or strategy on, or allocation of funds to, inclusive education, particularly with regard to lifelong learning;

(b) Schools and universities lack accessible and inclusive environments, buildings, educational material, services, equipment, information and communication technologies, as well as individualized support provided to students with disabilities;

(c) The access of Roma children with disabilities and refugee, asylum-seeking and migrant children with disabilities to education is severely limited;

(d) There is insufficient data on the amount of public resources allocated for inclusive education in mainstream schools and higher education institutions, on regulated transparent protocols relating to individual education plans, and on relevant technologies and forms of communication to ensure accessibility for students with disabilities at all levels of education.

35. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and taking into account Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially targets 4.5 and 4.a, the Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts to guarantee inclusive education, and in particular that it:

(a) Adopt and implement a coherent strategy on inclusive education in the mainstream educational system;

(b) Ensure the accessibility of school and university environments, in line with the Convention, by promoting universal design, the provision of specific measures and individualized support, such as accessible and adapted materials, inclusive curricula, inclusive information and communication technologies for pupils and students with disabilities, and digital pedagogy;

(c) Immediately ensure access to formal education for all refugee, asylum-seeking and migrant children with disabilities, and for Roma children with disabilities;

(d) Allocate effective and sufficient financial and material resources and adequately and regularly trained personnel, including persons with disabilities, to effectively guarantee inclusive education;

(e) Incorporate inclusive education training into higher education curricula for trainee teachers, and into training programmes for current teaching staff, with an adequate budget.

India (2019)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The prevalence of segregated education, the high illiteracy rate among persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, and the low number of students with disabilities enrolled in mainstream inclusive education;

(b) Rejection from school of children with disabilities, particularly children affected by leprosy, and bullying against intersex children, causing many to drop out of school;

(c) The lack of accessible inclusive schools in rural and remote areas;

(d) The lack of training for school personnel, the lack of teaching methodologies and material to include children with disabilities, including for deafblind students, the limited number of seats for children with disabilities in schools, and the insufficient provision of sign language interpretation for students who are deaf or hard of hearing and of safe transportation for children with disabilities.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and taking account of targets 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Take measures to ensure the implementation of inclusive education for students with disabilities, and redouble its efforts to reduce illiteracy among persons with disabilities;

(b) Take measures to prevent the rejection, stigmatization and bullying of children with disabilities, particularly children affected by leprosy and intersex children, review regulations to ensure access to education, undertake campaigns to combat disability stereotypes and establish complaint mechanisms and sanctions in cases of discrimination;

(c) Ensure sustainable human and financial resources to build and maintain accessible schools for children with disabilities in rural areas;

(d) Ensure that the learning environment, including the physical environment, admission procedures, teaching resources and methodologies, online platforms for learning, classrooms and transport, are accessible and safe for children with disabilities, and adopt measures to ensure the provision and availability of sign language interpretation in the classrooms, augmentative and alternative communication and Easy Read at all levels of education.

Iraq (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The reference to segregated classes in the State party's legislation, such as article 9 of Law No. 118 (1976) on compulsory education, the education of children with disabilities in mostly segregated classes, with children with visual and hearing impairments being unable to study beyond a primary school certificate, and the reportedly high number of children with disabilities who are out of school;

(b) The barriers faced by students with disabilities in accessing education, including the need to travel long distances, poor transportation, a lack of teachers trained in inclusive education, sign language, Braille and Easy Read and a lack of accessible curricula.

44. The Committee, guided by its general comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education, recommends that the State party:

(a) Take prompt measures to ensure that all children with disabilities have access to inclusive, high-quality and free education at all compulsory levels, and enforce the "comprehensive educational integration" of children with disabilities and the quota of places reserved for them in university programmes, according to article 15 (2) (a) and (3) (c) of Law No. 38 (2013);

(b) Allocate sufficient human, technical and financial resources for individualized supports that will enable children with disabilities, including children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, children with autism and children with visual or hearing impairments, to receive an inclusive and quality education.

Kuwait (2019)

46. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of measures taken to promote inclusive education, to ensure the provision of individualized support and to prohibit the denial of reasonable accommodation to all children with disabilities in mainstream schools;

(b) The right to inclusive education being limited to students with certain kinds of impairments while others are relegated to segregated classes within mainstream schools and to segregated schools;

(c) The lack of disaggregated data on children with disabilities deprived of an education.

47. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt the necessary legal and other measures to ensure the right of all children with disabilities, including non-Kuwaiti and Bidoon children with disabilities, to free, quality and inclusive education at all levels of education;

(b) Take advantage of the road map for inclusive education developed by the Public Authority for Disability Affairs to redirect resources from segregated educational settings towards quality, inclusive education with the provision of reasonable accommodation and individual supports, accessible environments and curricula, for all students with disabilities in mainstream schools, and mandatory in-service training of all teachers and all staff in education facilities on quality, inclusive education;

(c) Collect data, disaggregated by age, gender, nationality, disability and geographical area, on children with disabilities in and out of education in both mainstream and special education schools and on enrolment and dropout rates.

Myanmar (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Legislation providing for a dual education system that excludes children with disabilities in segregated schools, and overreliance on informal education for children with disabilities;

(b) The low rate of enrolment of children with disabilities in schools at all levels, owing to, among others, the lack of individualized accommodation for children in the mainstream education system.

46. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Revise its legislation to expressly recognize the right to inclusive education for all children, and address overreliance on informal education for children with disabilities, including by undertaking information campaigns to promote their enrolment in mainstream schools at all levels;

(b) Adopt and implement a national action plan on inclusive education, involving all line ministries and stakeholders, with sufficient budgetary allocations, to ensure that all children with disabilities have access to quality inclusive education in the mainstream education system at all levels, including by providing individualized accommodation, including classroom support and accessible learning environments, teaching methods and materials.

Cuba (2019)

41. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Children face barriers in enjoying their right to high quality, inclusive education, on an equal basis with others, and that special and segregated forms of education still prevail;

(b) Practical challenges remain for children and adult learners with disabilities to access higher education, partly due to the lack of individualized support;

(c) That information on the representation of children with disabilities in student bodies is lacking.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party, in keeping with its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education:

(a) Ensure the implementation of quality inclusive education at all levels and provide the training of teachers and non-teaching staff, the necessary support and resources, to foster inclusive environments for all students, in particular those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and girls with disabilities;

(b) Ensure the full accessibility of educational premises, including universities, take legislative and administrative measures to ensure the availability of accessible learning materials, including digital, Braille, Easy Read and sign language, at the technical and higher education levels for persons with disabilities;

(c) Take steps to facilitate the participation of children with disabilities in student bodies;

(d) Adhere to the Convention and general comment No. 4 in its implementation of targets 4.1, 4.5 and 4.A of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Niger (2019)

39. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The prevalence of segregated special education for children with disabilities; the low enrolment of children with disabilities in mainstream education, particularly girls and children with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities; the negative societal attitudes against the attendance of children with disabilities in regular schools; and the poor level of education provided to children with sensory disabilities, and those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;

(b) The lack of budget allocations for inclusive education; the insufficiency of specialists trained on inclusive education; the inaccessibility of school infrastructures and the lack of transport facilities for students with disabilities, particularly in rural areas;

(c) The lack of involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in the Sector Program for Education and Training (PSEF 2014-2024), and insufficient awareness of parents and communities about the possibility and need to educate their children with disabilities.

40. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in line with the Committee's general comment on article 24 (2016) on the right to inclusive education:

(a) Adopt a national action plan on inclusive education, with sufficient budgetary allocations, for children with disabilities, especially girls and children with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and undertake information campaigns in accessible formats, to promote the enrolment in education of all persons with disabilities;

(b) Provide trainings for teachers and non-teaching education personnel on inclusive education, including learning sign language;

(c) Involve persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in the implementation of the Sector Program for Education and Training (PSEF 2014-2024), and all education policies in accordance with article 4.3 of the CRPD;

(d) Pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4 (a) to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training, and build or upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

Norway (2019)

37. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of an effective legal mechanism, including anti-discrimination provisions to ensure that persons with disabilities can access inclusive education without discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation, in public and private schools;

(b) The lack of standards that outline the process for the provision of individualised supports in education, including the provision of assistants and support staff;

(c) Many children with disabilities not receiving an adequate standard of education and have low learning outcomes; a large proportion of special education services are provided by unskilled assistants and by teachers without the appropriate training;

(d) The lack of accessible complaint mechanisms for children with disabilities and the lack of sanctions for non-compliance;

(e) Many students with disabilities do not receive adequate training in basic skills, such as social development and communication skills, which will enhance greater learning capacities in the most suitable environment.

38. In line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen anti-discrimination provisions to explicitly cover disability-based discrimination in education, including the provision of an accessible and effective complaints mechanism;
- (b) Adopt national standards for the provision of effective individualised support measures in mainstream education, and allocate sufficient financial and human resources to ensure that persons with disabilities receive the support required to facilitate inclusive education;
- (c) Ensure all teachers have the appropriate skills for individualized instruction and ensure that individualized support measures do not entail costs for parents of children with disabilities;
- (d) Introduce legislation based on the human rights model of disability that fully complies with article 24 to ensure quality inclusive education for all children;
- (e) Take measures to guarantee that students with disabilities receive training in the necessary skills to enhance their learning capability in the environment adapted to suit their specific requirements within inclusive education system.

Rwanda (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities face barriers to the enjoyment of the right to quality, inclusive education in mainstream schools, especially children with disabilities in refugee camps and institutions. The Committee is deeply concerned that more than 40,000 children with disabilities remain out of school owing to long distances, insufficient mobility aids, and lack of accessibility and of reasonable accommodation, especially in remote or rural areas.

44. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.a, the Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate measures to ensure the right of all children with disabilities to quality and inclusive education, including by removing physical, communication, information, and other barriers and ensuring the provision of reasonable accommodation, assistive devices, support and accessible curricula, materials and environment.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned at the continuing approach to place children with disabilities in segregated educational settings, which results in the exclusion of children and persons with disabilities from the mainstream educational system on the basis of impairment.

44. In line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2014) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take the necessary measures to transform the current education system into an inclusive education system at all levels and for all children with disabilities under the Ministry of Education, and promote the provision of individualized accommodation and assistant support staff in classrooms.

Senegal (2019)

41. The Committee is concerned about the absence of an inclusive education system in the State party and:

- (a) The lack of educational opportunities in mainstream schools, as well as vocational and technical training for persons with disabilities, especially girls and children with sensory, intellectual and physical impairments;
- (b) The lack of training for teachers on the skills and competencies to promote inclusive education, as well as the insufficient number of teachers proficient in sign language;

(c) The absence of systematic data collection, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number and proportion of children with disabilities in mainstream schools receiving individualized support, and the enrolment and dropout rates of children with disabilities.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 4 (2016) and SDG 4 on the right to inclusive education:

(a) Adopt specific measures to eliminate discrimination against children with disabilities in schools and provide individualized accommodations, and ensure that children with disabilities are treated with dignity and respect and are benefiting from effective school inclusion programmes;

(b) Take necessary measures including through the adoption of legislation, policies and programmes with measurable indicators and timelines to transform the education system into an inclusive education system;

(c) Provide disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities mainstreamed into the regular school environment with adequate teaching supports to enable them reach their full potential;

(d) Pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a) to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training as well as build and upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

Spain (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned about the limited progress made by the State party with regard to inclusive education, including the lack of a clear policy and action plans for its promotion. The Committee is particularly concerned that the State party maintains all regulatory provisions on special education and a medical impairment based approach. It is concerned that a high number of children with disabilities, including autism, intellectual or psychosocial and multiple disabilities, are still receiving segregated special education.

46. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and the Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a) the Committee reiterates the recommendations provided within its report of the inquiry under article 6 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention of 2018 (CRPD/C/20/3), urging the State Party to expedite the legislative reform in line with the Convention, in order to clearly define inclusion and its specific objectives at each educational level. It recommends that the State party take measures to envisage inclusive education as a right, and grant all students with disabilities, regardless of their personal characteristics, the right to access inclusive learning opportunities in the mainstream education system, with access to support services as required, and implement all other recommendations, provided within its report of the inquiry (CRPD/C/20/3).

47. The Committee further recommends that the State party formulate a comprehensive policy of inclusive education including strategies for promoting a culture of inclusion in mainstream education including individualised human-rights based assessment of educational requirements and accommodations, support for teachers, respect for diversity for ensuring the rights to equality and non-discrimination, and the full and effective participation in society for persons with disabilities.

Türkiye (2019)

48. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The persistence of segregated education that is discriminatory at all levels, the absence of an inclusive education system, reasonable accommodation and support, at all levels of education, despite the improvement of physical accessibility of schools;

(b) The absence of systematic data on children with disabilities receiving individualized support in mainstream schools;

(c) The fact that curricula, particularly on mathematics and computing, has not adapted to the requirements of students with disabilities, that teachers and non-teaching staff lack training on fostering quality, inclusive education, resulting in de facto denial of education for students who are deaf and blind.

49. With reference to the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognize inclusive education in its legislation as a substantive enforceable right, and adopt public policies and strategies to implement it at all levels, including higher education with appropriate human, technical and financial resources.

(b) Ensure the provision of adequate individualized support and accommodations enabling children with disabilities, including children with intellectual disabilities, to receive quality inclusive education on an equal basis with others;

(c) Ensure the systematic collection of data, disaggregated by age, sex, impairment and location, on the progress to achieve inclusive education.

(d) Adapt curricula around students' requirements, and provide training to teachers and other staff working in the education system on the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention and competencies to foster inclusive education.

Vanuatu (2019)

40. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Many children with disabilities remain at home and do not receive support to access inclusive education;

(b) One of two schools with inclusive education stopped its pilot program due to the budgetary constraint;

(c) There is a lack of accessible educational materials, facilities and accessible formats of communication including sign language, Braille, Easy Read and plain language at schools;

(d) Training for teachers and non-teaching staff on the right to inclusive education is insufficient.

41. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially targets 4.5 and 4.A, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Intensify efforts to raise awareness among families of children with disabilities and their communities on the right to education of children with disabilities;

(b) Provide sufficient human, technical and financial resources and continue its effort to implement the Inclusive Education Policy and Strategic Plan (2010-2020) to ensure the right of children with disabilities to inclusive education in all mainstream schools, with individualized support;

(c) Ensure persons with disabilities are not denied reasonable accommodation at all levels of education through individualized support, including the use of technology, in-classroom support and accessible learning materials;

(d) Ensure the continuous training for teachers and non-teaching staff on inclusive education at all levels, including in sign language and other accessible formats of information and communication.

Algeria (2018)

40. The Committee is concerned that the education of children with disabilities falls under the purview of the Minister of National Solidarity and that segregated education for children with disabilities still exists. It is also concerned about the absence of a policy on the right to inclusive education for children with disabilities and a strategy to transform specialized settings into inclusive education environments, including revised curricula and training.

41. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by its General Comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education:

- (a) Ensure that the Ministry of Education is responsible for the education of all children, including children with disabilities;
- (b) Take prompt measures to ensure that all children with disabilities have access to inclusive, high-quality and free primary and secondary education, and provide reasonable accommodation to ensure that education is available for them;
- (c) Formulate, implement and monitor policy measures on the right to inclusive education, including the development of appropriate school curricula, accessible learning tools and teaching methods, in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (d) Introduce training programmes to teachers and other educational staff on the right to inclusive education.

Bulgaria (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned that segregated education systems still remain in the State party, including cases of rejection of enrolment of children with disabilities in mainstream schools. The Committee is also concerned about:

- (a) The low level of awareness about the benefits of quality inclusive education for society, including among teachers and other education staff, as well as parents of children without disabilities;
- (b) The lack of an independent mechanism to monitor and assess the implementation and effects of the Pre-school and School Education Act, especially for children with psychosocial disabilities and children still in institutions;
- (c) The uneven and unsystematic allocation of human and financial resources to ensure sufficient and qualified teachers and auxiliary staff trained in the inclusive education model;
- (d) The lack of data on the number of children and youth with disabilities not currently enrolled in any form of education.

50. The Committee recommends that State party, in line with its General comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education:

- (a) Fully replace the practice of segregated systems with quality inclusive education;
- (b) Raise awareness and promote the advantages of quality inclusive education for society, especially among teachers and other education staff, and parents of children without disabilities;
- (c) Intensify its efforts to ensure quality inclusive education and provision of reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities in the mainstream schools, including by increasing systematic and sufficient allocation of all necessary human, technical and financial resources for it;
- (d) Collect data on the number of children and youth with disabilities not currently enrolled in any form of education disaggregated by age, sex, type of impairment, place of residence, and develop a strategy to include these children into the mainstream education system.

Malta (2018)

35. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The concept of inclusive education is not fully applied in the State party;
- (b) The number of available Learning Support Educators is insufficient and that resources are lacking to ensure their replacement, in case of absence;
- (c) There are reports of children and students with disabilities having been denied access to educational institutions on the basis of their disabilities, such as childcare centres and summer schools, and the lack of accessible mechanisms for them to obtain redress when such discrimination occurs;
- (d) Many students with disabilities attend skills training at Resource Centres during their secondary education or after the completion of their secondary education which seclude them from their peers and are often distant from their school and home;

(e) The State party has not carried out sufficient research into the effectiveness of the current education inclusion policy and made research information available to professionals in the education sector and the population on the socio-economic and cultural benefits of inclusive education.

36. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.a, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the implementation of laws on education, and accelerate the adoption process of the UN CRPD Bill, to ensure that the violations of all rights under article 24 of the Convention become justiciable in the State party;

(b) Adopt measures to ensure that students with disabilities, including students with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, are provided with reasonable accommodation at all levels of education and allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation according to individual requirements in consultation with the person concerned, including the provision of Learning Support Educators and their replacement, when they are absent;

(c) Ensure accessible mechanisms for accountability and redress in cases where educational institutions, such as childcare centres and summer schools, or teachers, discriminate against students on the basis of their disability;

(d) Review the curriculum of students with disabilities through Individualised Education Plans (IEPs) to ensure that the curricula allow them to learn the skills required to access the job market on an equal basis with others;

(e) Carry out research on the extent to which accessibility standards are being complied in the State party to obtain a full understanding of the barriers persons with disabilities face in the education system and the solutions required to enable their full participation, and to make research findings on the socio-economic and cultural benefits of inclusive education available to all relevant stakeholders.

Philippines (2018)

40. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The prevalence of the special education model, and the lack of measures to provide for inclusive and mainstreamed education for persons with disabilities;

(b) The low number of children with disabilities enrolled in elementary schools (only 110,169 pupils with disabilities were enrolled in government elementary schools according to Department of Education data of 2013-2014 out of some 5.49 million children with 'special needs' which comprised 13 percent of the total population of children);

(c) The education of children, youth and adults with disabilities in regular educational facilities is hindered by barriers to accessibility and lack of universal design for learning, and reasonable accommodations in all academic and social aspects of student life;

(d) That the Education Act only covers official elementary schools;

(e) The general lack of quantitative data on access to education and outcomes of education for persons with disabilities, and the inconsistency of data collected by different entities.

41. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Enact legislation recognising inclusive education in line with the Committee's General comment No. 4 (2016) on inclusive education, and adopt a timeframe for implementing inclusion;

(b) Improve the implementation of the principle of universal design, including accessibility and reasonable accommodation for learning;

(c) Recognise and provide reasonable accommodation in all academic and social aspects of student life, and ensure teacher training to support students with disabilities in regular classrooms;

(d) Enact specific legislation to support the implementation of reasonable accommodation, individualized learning and inclusive classrooms across the State party;

- (e) Take legislative and administrative measures to ensure availability of accessible learning materials for technical and higher education levels for persons with disabilities;
- (f) Adhere to Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4 (a) to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training; as well as build and upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

Poland (2018)

40. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Lack of specific provisions to support the implementation of inclusive education, and the confusion between the terms “integration” and “inclusion” ;
- (b) Education of the majority of students with disabilities, particularly with moderate and severe disabilities, in segregated education settings;
- (c) Lack of awareness about inclusive education among school masters and parents of non-disabled children, and lack of adequate training of teachers about inclusive education.

41. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the Right to inclusive education and the Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enact specific provisions to support the implementation of reasonable accommodation, individualized learning curriculum and inclusive classroom teaching in accessible learning environments;
- (b) Support measures for schools, including support for teachers, for advancing the inclusive education for students with moderate and severe disabilities;
- (c) Raise awareness among parents of non-disabled children about the advantages of inclusive education for all, provide trainings to school masters and teachers on inclusive education methods and best practices.

South Africa (2018)

40. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The high number of students with disabilities, including girls with disabilities, those with intellectual disabilities, autism and deaf or hard of hearing, that still largely remain outside the school system and the continuing growth in special education schools as opposed to inclusive education, and the lack of safety in school hostels;
- (b) Barriers against students with disabilities to access mainstream schools, including discrimination in admissions to school, long distances, poor transportation, lack of teachers trained on inclusive education and in sign language, Braille and Easy-Read skills, lack of accessible curricula, and negative societal attitudes opposing attendance of children with disabilities to regular and inclusive schools;
- (c) The lack of information on budget allocations for the promotion of inclusive education, the absence of systematic data collection, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number of children with disabilities mainstreamed into regular and inclusive school environment, and on the enrolment and dropout of children with disabilities in both mainstream and special schools;
- (d) The absence of effective measures to provide reasonable accommodation in the education system, including absence of sufficient learning materials, especially in remote and rural areas, and a reporting mechanism for parents and children with disabilities who are denied access to education or reasonable accommodation to ensure accountability.

41. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education:

- (a) Adopt, implement and oversee inclusive education as the guiding principle of the education system and develop a comprehensive plan to extend it throughout its territory, where children can stay in their local school, not be removed from their families and live in hostels;

- (b) Intensify efforts at allocating sufficient financial and human resources for reasonable accommodations that will enable children with disabilities, including children with intellectual disabilities, autism and deaf or hard of hearing, to receive inclusive and quality education, including engaging in systematic data collection, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number of children mainstreamed into regular and inclusive schools and dropouts;
- (c) Establish an effective and permanent programme for training of teachers on inclusive education, including learning sign language, Braille and Easy-Read skills;
- (d) Prepare a time-bound plan of action to address the high levels of physical, sexual, verbal and emotional abuse, including bullying, in special schools, including a monitoring framework, and review the norms with the Children's Act's provisions on "child and youth centres" to ensure regulated and safe school environments, including school hostels.

North Macedonia (2018)

42. The Committee is concerned that the Law on Protection of Children and the Law on Primary Education still allow for the segregation of students with disabilities, and that segregated education environments persist, especially for students with intellectual disabilities. The Committee is further concerned that despite the establishment of inclusive education resource centres there is no updated comprehensive strategy aimed at an inclusive education system with fixed deadlines and outputs and allocation of adequate financial, human and technical resources, especially for students with intellectual disabilities.

43. In line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Revise the law on Protection of Children and the Law on Primary Education so that they expressly promote inclusive education and include disability as ground for discrimination, and prohibit denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability based discrimination;
- (b) Immediately enact a plan of transition to ensure inclusive education at all levels, including in higher education institutions for persons with disabilities;
- (c) Provide adequate support, resources and qualified training of teachers and auxiliary staff, to foster inclusion, in particular of students with intellectual disabilities or students with psychosocial disabilities and girls with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure universal accessibility to educational premises, including universities;
- (e) Explicitly and immediately enforce the prohibition of exclusion of learners with disabilities from regular schools on the basis of their impairments.

Haiti (2018)

42. The Committee is concerned that laws, including the Act on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities (2012), article 38, still allow for segregated education environments, especially for students with intellectual disabilities. It is also concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a legally defined procedure for the provision of reasonable accommodation and for assistant support staff in classrooms, in public and private schools and especially in rural areas;
- (b) The barriers for students with disabilities to access mainstream schools, due to the inaccessibility of facilities, discrimination against students with disabilities and negative social attitudes regarding the schooling of children with disabilities, and lack of trained teachers and non-teaching personnel on inclusive education;
- (c) The lack of updated data on the education of students with disabilities and the low number of children with disabilities, especially girls, in the mainstream education system;
- (d) Insufficient investment to foster inclusive education against the promotion of special schools;
- (e) The inadequacy of school grants for children with disabilities and their families.

43. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.8, the Committee recommends that the State party amend the Act on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities (2012) to ensure that no student is refused admission to mainstream school on the basis of disability. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a legally defined procedure for the provision of reasonable accommodation at all levels of education and allocate the resources necessary for its implementation;
- (b) Design and implement an action plan on inclusive education with sufficient resources, concrete timelines and specific goals regarding accessibility, adaptation of curricula, teaching aids and individual assistance and support in ordinary school environments as well as awareness-raising initiatives, mandatory training on inclusive education and its implementation for teachers, support teachers and non-teaching education personnel;
- (c) Increase data collection, among others, the implementation of inclusive education laws and policies, and accessibility of school infrastructures;
- (d) Increase human, technical and financial resources to implement inclusive education and conduct regular information campaigns in accessible formats, including plain language, and Easy Read, to promote education for all persons with disabilities, in particular women and children, and those living in rural areas;
- (e) Increase resources, including for school grants and awards to ensure the education of children with disabilities.

Nepal (2018)

35. The Committee is concerned that the State party maintains special and segregated schools. The Committee is particularly concerned at:

- (a) The lack of sufficient support and training for administrative and teaching staff with regard to inclusive education;
- (b) The lack of accessibility and reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities in mainstream schools;
- (c) The absence of a comprehensive strategy to promote inclusive education in urban and rural areas.

36. The Committee recommends that the State party in line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, in particular targets 4.5 and 4 (a), increase its efforts towards inclusive education by:

- (a) Adopting a policy of mandatory training of teachers in the inclusive education model based on indicators and sign posts to be achieved, and to guarantee inclusive education by providing support for trained teachers, Braille and sign language as well as alternative means and modes of communication, Easy Read and other auxiliary equipment and media;
- (b) Ensuring access to inclusive education for all persons with disabilities, at all levels of education including adult education throughout the country, and guarantee that this education model covers the most remote areas, incorporates a gender perspective and is ethnically and culturally relevant.

Oman (2018)

43. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The overall low number of children with disabilities enrolled in schools at all levels, especially girls with disabilities, the high rate of non-completion and illiteracy among children with disabilities, in particular deaf children and children with multiple disabilities;
- (b) Inadequate teaching methodologies and training for teachers on inclusive education, as well as the insufficient number of teachers proficient in sign language;
- (c) The lack of information on budget allocations for the promotion of inclusive education, including training of teachers and for ensuring that schools are accessible, adequately staffed and funded;

(d) The absence of systematic data collection, disaggregated by sex and type of impairment, on the number of children with disabilities mainstreamed into the regular school environment, and on the enrolment and dropout of children with disabilities in both mainstream and special education schools.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt measures to abolish special schools and develop an inclusive education system, including through the adoption of laws, policies and programmes with measurable indicators and timelines;

(b) Ensure the provision of adequate budgetary allocations for the promotion of inclusive education including the training of teachers, especially in sign language and/or providing certified assistants qualified in sign language for all subjects to support the teachers;

(c) Develop disaggregated database on the number of children with disabilities mainstreamed into the regular school environment with adequate teaching methodologies to enable them to reach their full potential, and adopt specific measures to eliminate discrimination against children with disabilities in schools and ensure that children with disabilities are treated with dignity and respect and are benefiting from effective school inclusion programmes;

(d) Expand educational opportunities at the tertiary level for persons with disabilities, in particular for deaf students, and step-up bilingual education in Arabic and English for children with disabilities prior to the tertiary level;

(e) Pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a) to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training as well as build and upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

Russian Federation (2018)

48. The Committee is concerned that despite the increase in the number of children with disabilities in mainstream education setting, reflecting the practice of inclusive education, the practice of segregated education system remains persistent. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of transparent financial resources allocated and mechanisms established to ensure necessary and equal conditions and support for all persons with all types of impairments in general education as guaranteed by the federal legislation as well as about the regional disparities due to varied conditions and availability of financial resources in different regions.

49. The Committee urges the State party to further promote and embrace the concept of quality inclusive education in line with the Committee's General Comment 4, and in particular, to adopt, within an established timeframe, a long term roadmap together with an action plan to achieve inclusive education with indicators and adequate and transparent budget to enable all persons with all types of impairments to access quality inclusive education.

50. The Committee also recommends the State party to be guided by the Convention and the Committee's General Comment No 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education in the implementation of targets 4.5 and 4.a. of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Seychelles (2018)

41. The Committee is concerned that special, segregated education persists, despite the policy on inclusive education adopted in 2015 and contrary to the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education. It notes with concern that:

(a) There is no legal duty to provide and monitor the provision of reasonable accommodation to students with disabilities in mainstream education;

(b) There is no mechanism to monitor accessibility standards within and outside school infrastructures and that facilities and services remain inaccessible;

(c) There is no training for pedagogical and non-pedagogical staff on the right to inclusive education;

(d) The budgetary allocation to support the policy of inclusive education is insufficient;

(e) The State party has not carried out any research on the socioeconomic and cultural benefits of inclusive education.

42. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially targets 4.5 and 4.a, the Committee urges the State party to:

(a) Introduce new legislation or amend the Education Act 2004 to bring it into line with article 24 of the Convention and its general comment No. 4, including the recognition that denial of reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities constitutes discrimination;

(b) Set up a mechanism to monitor accessibility standards both inside and outside the school environment;

(c) Ensure the adequate and continuous capacity-building and training of all schoolteachers and education personnel on inclusive education;

(d) Provide sufficient resources and continue efforts to implement its inclusive education policy and to transform its education system, ensuring that children with disabilities have the necessary support services to exercise their right to education;

(e) Carry out research on the socioeconomic and cultural benefits of the right to inclusive education as a tool to promote awareness-raising on the human rights model of disability and inclusive education.

Slovenia (2018)

39. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The existing parallel education systems, special and mainstream, for children with disabilities;

(b) The lack of concrete targets and provisions for implementing inclusive education in existing policies and legislation providing for inclusive education;

(c) The insufficient capacities of regular schools when providing for curriculum accommodation and inclusive learning environments, in particular the lack of skills and knowledge among teachers about inclusive teaching methodologies, and the low expectations regarding capacities of children with disabilities;

(d) The absence of accessibility and reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities at tertiary education, including higher education institutions and vocational schools;

(e) Physical barriers to access transport by students with disabilities, from their place of residence to school facilities.

40. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and the Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognise the right of all children with disabilities to inclusive education and abandon segregated education schemes;

(b) Adopt a strategy and action plan with a clear timeframe for implementation of inclusive education at all levels, for all children with disabilities; further, establish a comprehensive monitoring system to assess progress of inclusive education;

(c) Strengthen the capacities of inclusive schools in providing teachers with trainings on inclusive education, curriculum accommodation and teaching methods. The State party should enhance quality of educational support when ensuring individualized approach to children with disabilities and their capacity-building;

(d) Ensure lifelong learning for persons with disabilities while providing accessibility and reasonable accommodation to all tertiary education institutions, including vocational and higher education schools;

(e) Ensure transport services for students with disabilities, from their place of residence to the education facilities.

Sudan (2018)

47. While noting the progress made in the Persons with Disabilities Act of 2017 regarding access to education, the Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The low school enrolment and retention rates of children with disabilities;
- (b) The continuing approach to segregated schools, which results in the exclusion of children and persons with disabilities from mainstream educational systems on the basis of impairment;
- (c) Discrimination against children with psychosocial and/or intellectual impairments in access to education;
- (d) The limited support to learners with disabilities, including to vocational training and tertiary education.

48. In line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2014) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take prompt measures to ensure that all children with disabilities have access to inclusive, quality and free primary and secondary education, and provide reasonable accommodation to ensure children with disabilities can access education;
- (b) Take measures to establish an inclusive education system at all levels, including preschool, primary, secondary and tertiary education, and vocational training without discrimination and on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Remove the barriers to access education and promote retention for children with psychosocial and/or intellectual impairments, including by establishing a permanent programme for training of teachers on inclusive education and the development of methodological tools for teaching, with the resources necessary for its implementation;
- (d) Implement initiatives and public-private partnerships to design accessible pedagogical tools and teaching methods and provide students with disabilities with access to new technologies and the Internet;
- (e) To explicitly and immediately enforce the prohibition of exclusion of learners with disabilities from regular schools on the basis of their impairments.

Latvia (2017)

40. The Committee is concerned that the majority of children with disabilities attend special schools or are encouraged to be schooled at home as a permanent solution to the lack of reasonable accommodation and accessibility, including physical accessibility, in the majority of mainstream schools and higher education and lifelong learning institutions.

41. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially targets 4.5 and 4 (a) thereof, the Committee urges the State party to ensure that no child is refused admission to mainstream schools on the basis of disability, and that it further allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation to facilitate the accessibility of all students with disabilities to quality, inclusive education, including in preschool, tertiary and lifelong learning institutions.

Luxembourg (2017)

42. The Committee is concerned that education laws still allow for the segregation of students with disabilities, and that segregated education environments persist, especially for students with intellectual disabilities. It is also concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a legally defined procedure for the provision of reasonable accommodation and for assistant support staff in classrooms, in public and private schools;
- (b) The misunderstanding of reasonable accommodation as reflected in Act of 15 July 2011, which undermines the process of identifying the response to individual requirements in dialogue with the person concerned and limits reasonable accommodation to existing options set out by the Act;

(c) Negative attitudes towards disability in education and low expectations of students with disabilities;

(d) The insufficient training of teachers, support teachers and non-teaching personnel on inclusive education;

(e) The absence of data and indicators to monitor the quality of education and inclusion of students with disabilities, and accessibility standards of school infrastructures, information and communications, including information and communications technology.

43. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.8, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the laws on education to ensure that no student is refused admission to mainstream schools on the basis of disability, ensure accessibility and allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation, including assistant support staff, including pre-school and tertiary education and the private sector;

(b) Adopt a legally defined procedure for the provision of reasonable accommodation at all levels of education and allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation according to individual requirements in consultation with the person concerned;

(c) Design and implement an action plan on inclusive education with sufficient resources, timelines and specific goals;

(d) Increase awareness-raising initiatives, including training on inclusive education and its implementation mandatory for teachers, support teachers and non-teaching education personnel;

(e) Increase data collection on, among others, the implementation of education laws and policies, and accessibility of school infrastructures, information and communications, including information and communications technology, to inform inclusive education policies.

Montenegro (2017)

44. The Committee is concerned about the absence of any comprehensive legislation for quality, inclusive education. It is also concerned about:

(a) The lack of comparable and comprehensive data on children with disabilities in mainstream education;

(b) The prevalence of a system of assessment for children with disabilities at school enrolment that appears to be in conflict with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention;

(c) The absence of information on affirmative and non-discriminatory measures for the enrolment of and reasonable accommodation provided to students with disabilities in mainstream education;

(d) The largely insufficient accessibility of higher education.

45. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially targets 4.5 and 4.8, the Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts towards inclusive education, especially that it:

(a) Adopt and implement a coherent strategy and action plan with clear time frames, indicators, monitoring and evaluation benchmarks on inclusive and quality education in the mainstream education system;

(b) Collect data on children with disabilities in mainstream schools and progressively improve the accessibility of mainstream schools and tertiary education with time-bound goals, including the provision of reasonable accommodation and individual support, accessible environments, accessible and adapted school material and inclusive curricula;

(c) Revise the system of assessment of children with disabilities for school enrolment and ensure the non-discriminatory access by all children with disabilities to inclusive education, in line with general comment No. 4;

(d) Ensure mandatory pre- and in-service training for all teachers and other education personnel on inclusive quality education, allocating all necessary human, technical and financial resources.

Morocco (2017)

46. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The prevalence of a segregated special education system in the State party and the low number of students with disabilities in the regular education system and its classes;
- (b) Barriers faced by students with disabilities with respect to accessing mainstream schools, such as long distances, a lack of teachers trained in inclusive education, a lack of accessible curricula, a lack of knowledge of sign language and negative societal attitudes opposing the attendance of children with disabilities at regular schools;
- (c) The absence of measures to provide reasonable accommodation in the area of education, especially in rural areas, and the lack of a reporting mechanism for parents and children with disabilities who are denied access to education or reasonable accommodation, to ensure accountability.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education:

- (a) Adopt, implement and oversee a comprehensive plan to develop an inclusive education system throughout its territory, allocating resources for developing accessible education environments;
- (b) Establish a permanent programme for training of teachers on inclusive education, including, preferably, training on sign language and the development of methodological tools for teaching;
- (c) Carry out periodic information campaigns in accessible formats, including Easy Read, to promote the enrolment in education of all persons with disabilities, especially women and children with disabilities and those living in rural areas;
- (d) Adopt a strategy to provide reasonable accommodation in schools and other learning institutions, including through technology and classroom support, accessibility and learning materials;
- (e) Pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and targets 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals, with a view to ensuring equal access to all levels of education and vocational training and building and upgrading education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

Panama (2017)

48. The Committee is concerned that inclusive education is not a priority with regard to children and adults with disabilities and that special and segregated forms of education prevail. It is also concerned at the lack of action by government authorities to promote inclusive higher education.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party, in keeping with its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, ensure the implementation of a plan to transition definitively to inclusive education at all levels, including in higher education; the plan should provide for the training of teachers and the necessary support and resources, such as Braille and sign language, to foster inclusion, in particular of students with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and girls with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party ensure the universal accessibility of educational premises, including universities. Lastly, it recommends that the State party be guided by the Convention and general comment No. 4 in its implementation of targets 4.1, 4.5 and 4.A of the Sustainable Development Goals.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

50. The Committee takes note of the information provided by the State party about its reservation to article 24 (2) (a) and (b) of the Convention in relation to new evidence or research findings.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party withdraw its reservation to article 24 (2) (a) and (b) of the Convention without further delay.

52. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The persistence of a dual education system that segregates children with disabilities in special schools, including based on parental choice;
- (b) The increasing number of children with disabilities in segregated education environments;
- (c) The fact that the education system is not equipped to respond to the requirements for high-quality inclusive education, particularly reports of school authorities refusing to enrol a student with disabilities who is deemed to be “disruptive to other classmates”;
- (d) The fact that the education and training of teachers in inclusion competences does not reflect the requirements of inclusive education.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, especially organizations representing children and young persons with disabilities, and in line with the Committee’s general comment No. 4 (2014) on the right to inclusive education and targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Develop a comprehensive and coordinated legislative and policy framework for inclusive education and a timeframe to ensure that mainstream schools foster real inclusion of children with disabilities in the school environment and that teachers and all other professionals and persons in contact with children understand the concept of inclusion and are able to enhance inclusive education;
- (b) Strengthen measures to monitor school practices concerning enrolment of children with disabilities and offer appropriate remedies in cases of disability-related discrimination and/or harassment, including deciding upon schemes for compensation;
- (c) Adopt and implement a coherent and adequately financed strategy, with concrete timelines and measurable goals, on increasing and improving inclusive education. The strategy must:
 - a. Ensure the implementation of laws, decrees and regulations on improving the extent and quality of inclusive education in classrooms, support provisions and teacher training, including pedagogical capabilities, across all levels providing for high-quality inclusive environments, including within breaks between lessons and through socialization outside “education time”;
 - b. (ii) Set up awareness-raising and support initiatives about inclusive education among parents of children with disabilities;
 - c. (iii) Provide sufficient, relevant data on the number of students both in inclusive and segregated education, disaggregated by impairment, age, sex and ethnic background, and on the outcome of the education, reflecting the capabilities of the students.

Armenia (2017)

41. The Committee is concerned that, despite the increasing trend towards inclusive education, many children with disabilities remain in segregated educational settings and do not receive the support they need to access inclusive education. It is also concerned about the lack of accessibility and reasonable accommodation for children with disabilities in mainstream schools, and the lack of sufficient support and training for administrative and teaching staff with regard to inclusive education. The Committee is further concerned about the absence of a comprehensive strategy to promote inclusive education in urban and rural areas.

42. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially targets 4.5 and 4 (a), the Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts towards inclusive education, in particular that it:

(a) Intensify efforts to implement the Law on making supplements and amendments to the Law on general education in order to ensure an inclusive education system at all levels by 2025;

(b) Ensure accessibility and allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation to facilitate the access of persons with disabilities, including those living in urban and rural areas, to inclusive and quality education, including preschool and tertiary education;

(c) Make training on inclusive education and on its implementation mandatory for administrative and teaching staff.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

42. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There is no comprehensive legislation with an effective strategy on inclusive education, for example that includes preschool services for children with disabilities;

(b) There is a lack of data on measures adopted to provide standardized and regulated transparent protocols relating to individual education plans, as well as on relevant technologies and forms of communication to ensure accessibility for pupils and students with disabilities at all levels of education;

(c) There is a lack of comparable data on funding earmarked for children with disabilities in mainstream education, as well as on affirmative measures to enrol and provide accommodation for students with disabilities;

(d) Only limited accessibility is provided in higher education for students with disabilities.

43. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.8, the Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts towards inclusive education, and in particular that it:

(a) Adopt and implement a coherent strategy on inclusive education in the mainstream educational system;

(b) Ensure the accessibility of school environments, in line with the Convention, including through the provision of reasonable accommodation, accessible and adapted materials and inclusive curricula;

(c) Allocate effective and sufficient financial, material and adequately trained human resources, that include persons with disabilities;

(d) Incorporate inclusive education training into university curricula for future teachers and training programmes for current teaching staff, with an adequate budget.

Canada (2017)

43. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The persistence of segregated special education environments for students with disabilities who require a high-level of support or when it is considered that a student with disabilities may interfere in the educational process of his or her peers;

(b) The gap in access to education and educational achievements by persons with disabilities;

(c) The lower levels of educational achievement among women and girls with disabilities;

(d) Children in segregated schools not benefiting from after-school programmes, which reduce their ability to engage in leisure and physical activities that are essential for their health and development;

(e) Isolation of hard-of-hearing and deaf children in education due to the lack of peer groups.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt, implement and oversee policies on inclusive and quality education throughout its territory;
- (b) Promote the enrolment in education of all persons with disabilities, especially women and children, members of indigenous communities and those living in remote and rural areas;
- (c) Ensure that teachers are trained in inclusive education at all levels and in sign language and other accessible formats of information and communication;
- (d) Adopt a strategy for the provision of reasonable accommodation in schools and other learning institutions, including through technology and classroom support, accessibility and learning materials;
- (e) Be guided by article 24 of the Convention and by the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education while implementing targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals;
- (f) Ensure sign language learning environments in bilingual schools to enable hard-of-hearing and deaf children who sign to be fully included in education.

Cyprus (2017)

49. The Committee is deeply concerned about the absence of a clear and implemented concept of inclusive education in mainstream schools in national legislation. It notes with concern that segregated education remains rooted in the education system, which is also frequently reflected by the attitudes of teachers and other relevant professionals.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Decide upon a clear legislative scope of inclusive education and monitor its implementation with a view to fully replacing segregated education by inclusive education;
- (b) Adopt a clear, targeted and adequately funded plan of action that includes access to reasonable accommodation and adequate teacher education and training, and progressively ensure that children and adult learners with disabilities are able to exercise their right to inclusive education;
- (c) Be guided by general comment No. 4 (2016) and targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals in ensuring equal access to all levels and types of education, education facilities and vocational training by persons with disabilities.

Honduras (2017)

51. Al Comité le preocupa que la educación de las personas con discapacidad la lleve la Subdirección General de Educación para Personas con Capacidades Diferentes o Talentos Excepcionales, prevaleciendo la educación especial y segregada a todos los niveles a través de evaluaciones basadas en las discapacidades de las personas. También le preocupa que no exista una formación en la educación inclusiva para maestros, impidiendo la transición a un sistema de educación inclusiva. Asimismo, le preocupa la falta de apoyo para las niñas y niños con deficiencias auditivas y que la Universidad Nacional Autónoma de Honduras dentro de su oferta académica haya cerrado la carrera de técnico intérprete en la lengua de señas.

52. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte, en consonancia con su observación general núm. 4 (2016) sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, que la política de educación de las personas con discapacidad tenga un enfoque inclusivo, implementando un plan para una transición hacia la educación inclusiva, a todo nivel hasta el superior, capacitando a docentes y disponiendo de los apoyos y recursos necesarios, tales como la disposición de textos escolares en braille, en lectura fácil, en formato electrónico accesible, e intérpretes de lengua de señas, para llevar a cabo dicha inclusión, en particular, que se tome en cuenta a las personas con discapacidad intelectual o psicosocial, sordociegos y de comunidades afrohondureñas e indígenas. Le recomienda también que desarrolle e integre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en la formación de docentes. Asimismo, el Comité recomienda que la Universidad Nacional Autónoma de Honduras vuelva a abrir dentro de su oferta académica la carrera de técnico intérprete en la lengua de señas.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

46. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Prevalence of the model of special education in the State party, the low number of children in the mainstream school and the gap between girls and boys with disabilities attending mainstream education;
- (b) Lack of measures to train teachers, education personnel and parents concerning inclusive education;
- (c) Lack of information on the provision of reasonable accommodation and support for students in the mainstream setting; and
- (d) Absence of measures to improve access to education for children with disabilities living in rural communities.

47. The Committee calls upon the State party to:

- (a) Establish a time frame for the transition process from segregated to inclusive and quality education and ensure availability of budgetary, technical and personal resources are available to complete the process;
- (b) Collect disaggregated statistics by age, sex, gender, ethnic background, migrant, asylum seeker and refugee status, on the advancement of the inclusive education system;
- (c) Ensure and enforce non-rejection of students with disabilities from mainstream schools and introduce reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities as an obligation at private and public mainstream schools;
- (d) Take measures to employ teachers with disabilities at all levels of education;
- (e) Undertake measures, including by encouraging public-private partnerships, to ensure the provision of assistive technologies in classrooms; and
- (f) Ensure the training of all teachers in inclusive education.

Jordan (2017)

45. The Committee notes the absence of systematic data collection on the enrolment and dropout of children with disabilities in both mainstream and special education schools. It is concerned that many children with disabilities do not enjoy quality inclusive education. It is also concerned that teachers lack training on delivering the mathematics and computers curricula in a manner that is accessible to all, with the result that these curricula are being denied to deaf and blind students.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Recognize inclusive education as the guiding principle of the education system, in line with its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education;
- (b) Adopt the draft law on the national plan for inclusive education and involve persons with disabilities – more specifically children – through their representative organizations, in its adoption and implementation;³
- (c) Allocate sufficient financial and human resources to ensure the provision of individual support and reasonable accommodation to enable children with disabilities, including intellectual disabilities, to receive quality inclusive education on all curricula;⁴
- (d) Ensure systematic collection of data, disaggregated by age, sex, impairment and location, on the enrolment and dropout of children with disabilities in both mainstream and special education schools.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

44. The Committee is concerned that progress towards inclusive education in the State party has stalled and that:

- (a) Provisions in the Education Code of 2014 still allow for segregated schooling;
- (b) Children with disabilities, mainly those with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, remain in segregated educational settings, including “special schools”, “special classes”, and “home education”, and do not receive the support they need to access inclusive education;

(c) Negative attitudes towards students with disabilities persist among administrative and teaching staff, leading to cases of children being refused admission to mainstream schools and an overall lack of familiarity with, knowledge of and skills relating to inclusive education among staff.

45. Recalling its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education and Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4 (a), the Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts towards inclusive education, particularly, that it:

(a) Amend the 2014 Education Code and ensure that no child is refused admission to mainstream schools on the basis of disability, ensure accessibility and allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation to facilitate the access of students with disabilities to quality, inclusive education, including pre- school and tertiary education;

(b) Make training on inclusive education and its implementation mandatory for administrative staff and teachers.

Bolivia (2016)

55. The Committee is concerned at the low school enrolment and high dropout rates of persons with disabilities, and at the fact that most of those who are enrolled are in special, segregated schools.

56. The Committee urges the State party to:

(a) Adopt, implement and oversee policies on inclusive, quality education throughout its territory;

(b) Promote the enrolment of all persons with disabilities, especially women and children, members of indigenous communities and those living in remote and rural areas;

(c) Ensure that teachers are trained in inclusive education at all levels, in sign language, Braille and other accessible formats of information and communication;

(d) Adopt a strategy for the provision of reasonable adjustments in schools and other learning institutions, including technology and classroom support, accessibility and learning materials;

(e) Be guided by article 24 of the Convention and by general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education in its efforts to achieve targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

54. The Committee is concerned at the low levels of enrolment of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, and the prevalence of publicly funded “special classrooms” located within mainstream schools. The Committee expresses its concern that discrimination on the basis of disability is one of the main reasons that persons with disabilities are turned away by mainstream schools, particularly in municipalities and local administrations, and that that rejection impacts on families’ access to means-tested poverty-reduction programmes. It is also concerned about the lack of teaching and reading materials in accessible formats and modes of communication.

55. In line with the Committee’s general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, the Committee recommends that the State party take the necessary legal and administrative measures to prohibit and punish discrimination on grounds of disability in the education system, including by municipalities and other local community authorities. In particular, it recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national plan to transform the system into one that provides inclusive and quality education for all persons with disabilities, at all levels, and prohibits discrimination on grounds of disability;

(b) Guarantee the observance of the right to inclusive education through the adoption of a policy of non-rejection at public and private schools, and redouble efforts to enrol all persons with disabilities, especially those who require more intensive support, in rural and remote areas;

(c) Ensure the accessibility of environments, provide reasonable accommodation, and furnish pedagogical materials and techniques that are accessible to students with disabilities, including in Braille and Colombian sign language;

(d) Make inclusive education and the rights of persons with disabilities key components of teacher training from the outset and compulsory in the training of instructors before and during the exercise of their functions;

(e) Be guided by article 24 of the Convention in pursuing targets 4.1, 4.5 and 4.a of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

51. Although inclusive education resource centres have been established, the Committee notes with concern the absence of a comprehensive strategy towards inclusive education system with fixed deadlines and outputs, especially for deaf students and students with intellectual disabilities. The Committee is concerned that no policy exists to enable students with disabilities to effectively access education, especially for girls with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement a comprehensive strategy with a road map towards inclusive and quality education, eliminating gender disparities and ensuring equal access to all levels of education. It also recommends that the State party guarantee in the law a legally enforceable right to inclusive education and ensure the accessibility of school environments, materials and curricula, the provision of reasonable accommodation, and the regular and compulsory pre-service and in-service training of all teachers on inclusive education. It further recommends that the State party allocate effective and adequate financial, material and educated human resources and setting clear timelines, targets, baselines and indicators to secure timely and measurable progress in the implementation of the right to inclusive education, in line with targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals and the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education.

Guatemala (2016)

59. The Committee is particularly concerned by the low rate of school attendance of children with disabilities, especially in rural areas and indigenous communities. It also notes that special education remains virtually the only option available to them, owing to the persistence of negative attitudes towards their inclusion in the national education system and the existence of barriers of all kinds.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education:

(a) Establish, through its laws and policies, a free, high-quality, inclusive education system at all levels and guarantee the provision of reasonable accommodation for students who require it, with adequate funding and appropriate training for regular teachers;

(b) Adopt measures to ensure that all children with disabilities receive an education, especially those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, deaf-blind children and those from indigenous communities;

(c) Urgently implement measures to improve the accessibility of schools and all teaching materials, including the provision of textbooks in Braille and sign language interpreters, and ensure that such materials are used from the start of education;

(d) Be guided by article 24 of the Convention in its implementation of targets 4.5 and 4.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

55. The Committee is concerned about the absence of data and indicators to monitor the quality of education and inclusion of students with disabilities in mainstream schools and classes; the quality of teachers' education, including pre-service and in-service training on inclusive education; and the lack of implementation of laws, decrees and regulations on inclusive education.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party implement an action plan – with sufficient resources, timelines and specific goals – aimed at monitoring the implementation of laws, decrees and regulations to improve the quality of inclusive education in classrooms, support provisions and teacher training across all levels. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 24 of the Convention, including its general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, in implementing targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals, to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training, and build and upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

57. The Committee is concerned that deaf children are not provided with sign language interpreters in school if requested.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party monitor and provide highly qualified sign language interpreters for any deaf child who requests such assistance, and to desist from recommending general communication assistants as an exclusive alternative.

59. The committee is concerned at the lack of availability of accessible learning materials and the lack of assistive technology in a timely manner, which hinders the quality of education in the mainstream setting.

60. The committee recommends that the State party undertake, through legislative and other measures, including the newly drafted decree on education, to guarantee the availability of accessible learning materials and the provision of assistive technology in a timely manner in order to ensure inclusive and quality education in the mainstream setting.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

43. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That priority is still given to the provision of special education, including in mainstream schools, over the development of a fully inclusive educational system and that a comprehensive strategy for quality inclusive education is missing;

(b) That the State party has not taken sufficient steps to provide reasonable accommodation to all students with disabilities in mainstream schools, including children with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;

(c) That training on inclusive education and teaching children with disabilities is not yet an integral part of core teacher training curricula in universities;

(d) About the emphasis on vocational and crafts skills as opposed to academic training for persons with disabilities;

(e) About the lack of information about illiteracy among older adults with disabilities and about opportunities to access vocational training and tertiary education;

(f) About the lack of disaggregated statistical data on children with disabilities in inclusive education and of teachers trained on inclusive education and teaching children with disabilities;

(g) That the quality of the education available to children with disabilities is not assessed.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt all the legal and other measures necessary, including a comprehensive strategy, to ensure the right of all children with disabilities, including children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, to compulsory and free primary inclusive and quality education in public and private settings, including by ensuring the provision of reasonable accommodation, assistive devices, support and accessible curricula, materials and environments;

(b) Reorient resources from segregated educational settings towards quality inclusive education with the provision of reasonable accommodation and individual support, accessible environments and curricula, for all students with disabilities in mainstream schools, at all levels, and mandatory in-service training of all teachers and all staff in education facilities on quality inclusive education;

(c)Ensure that training on inclusive education and teaching children with disabilities is compulsory and an integral part of core teacher training curricula in universities;

(d)Be guided by article 24 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to an inclusive education in the implementation of targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals;

(e)Provide, in its next periodic report, information about illiteracy among older adults with disabilities and about opportunities to access vocational and tertiary education and statistical data on the percentage of children with disabilities in inclusive education and of teachers trained in inclusive education and in teaching children with disabilities;

(f) Takes measures to assess the quality of education of children with disabilities.

Uruguay (2016)

51. Al Comité le preocupa que no exista una política integral de educación inclusiva y que prevalezca la educación especial y segregada a todos los niveles con evaluaciones basadas en las discapacidades de las personas. También le preocupa que no exista una formación en la educación inclusiva para maestros, impidiendo la transición a un sistema de educación inclusivo.

52. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que implemente un plan con una hoja de ruta para una transición hacia la educación inclusiva de calidad, a todo nivel hasta el superior, capacitando a docentes y disponiendo de los apoyos y recursos necesarios, tales como el Braille y la lengua de señas y en particular que se tome en cuenta a las personas con discapacidad intelectual o psicosocial. Le recomienda también que desarrolle e integre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad como elemento obligatorio en la formación de docentes y adoptar una política de no rechazo para la admisión de estudiantes con discapacidad. El Comité también le recomienda que lleve a cabo campañas de toma de conciencia dirigidas a la sociedad en general, las escuelas y las familias de personas con discapacidad, con el fin de promover la educación inclusiva y de calidad. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 24 de la Convención, el Comentario general No. 4 del Comité sobre el derecho a la educación inclusiva, y las metas 4.1, 4.5 y 4.a de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, para promover la educación inclusiva y de calidad, en entornos inclusivos y con instalaciones educativas accesibles para todos.

Chile (2016)

49. Al Comité le preocupa que, pese a la reforma educativa reciente, la educación inclusiva no sea prioritaria para las niñas, niños y adultos con discapacidad, y prevalezca la educación especial y segregada. También le preocupa que no existan esfuerzos de las autoridades gubernamentales para promover la educación inclusiva superior.

50. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

(a)La implementación de un plan para transicionar hacia la educación inclusiva, a todo nivel hasta el superior, capacitando a docentes, llevando a cabo campañas integrales de toma de conciencia y fomentando la cultura de la diversidad;

(b)Asegurar la educación individualizada y disponer de los apoyos y recursos necesarios, tales como el Braille y la lengua de señas, para llevar a cabo dicha inclusión, en particular tomando en cuenta a las personas con discapacidad intelectual o discapacidad psicosocial;

(c)Asegurar la accesibilidad a las instituciones de educación superior, incluyendo mediante ajustes razonables en los procedimientos de admisión y todos los demás aspectos cubiertos por la educación superior;

(d)Prestar atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 24 de la Convención y el Objetivo de Desarrollo Sostenible 4 y las metas 4.5 y 4.8.

Lithuania (2016)

45. The Committee is concerned at reports that:

- (a) Many students with disabilities, particularly those with visual, auditory, psychosocial or intellectual impairment, in preschool and primary and secondary education are referred to and obliged to attend special schools due to a lack of reasonable accommodation and accessibility in the mainstream educational system, among other reasons;
- (b) All too often, the special education system or home schooling are the only options for children with disabilities;
- (c) Not all children with disabilities enjoy the right to free and compulsory primary education or to affordable secondary education on the equal basis as others, as some of the public special schools do not provide education free of charge;
- (d) Children with disabilities are forced to shift to special schools as they advance to higher levels of education and the rate of enrolment of persons with disabilities in tertiary education is low;
- (e) The number of accessible means of transport is insufficient to accommodate the needs of students with disabilities and to allow them to participate fully in the education system.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement a coherent strategy on inclusive education in the mainstream educational system in accordance with article 24 of the Convention and with reference to Sustainable Development Goal 4, especially its targets 4.5 and 4.8. Through such a strategy, the State party should:

- (a) Ensure the accessibility of school environments, the provision of reasonable accommodation, accessible and adapted materials and curricula, and the compulsory pre-service and in-service training of all teachers on inclusive education;
- (b) Secure a sufficient number of accessible means of transport to accommodate the needs of students with disabilities;
- (c) Set clear timelines, targets, baselines and indicators to secure time-bound and measurable progress;
- (d) Allocate effective and adequate financial, material and adequately trained human resources.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee a legally enforceable right to inclusive, quality and free primary education and to affordable secondary education on an equal basis with others.

48. The Committee also recommends that the State party facilitate access for persons with disabilities to tertiary education and vocational training, including through the provision of reasonable accommodation in higher education.

Portugal (2016)

44. The Committee notes that although the vast majority of students with disabilities in the State party attend mainstream schools, there is a lack of support, and that due to the austerity measures, there have been cuts in human and material resources that compromise the right and opportunity for an inclusive and quality education. The Committee also notes that the State party has established 'schools of reference' for deaf, deafblind, blind and partially sighted students and for students with autism, which constitutes a form of segregation and discrimination.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, revise its legislation in the field of education to bring it into line with the Convention, and take steps to increase human and material resources and to facilitate access and enjoyment of a quality inclusive education for all pupils with disabilities, providing state schools with adequate resources to ensure the inclusion of all students with disabilities in mainstream classrooms. The Committee also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and SDG 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a) to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training; as well as build and upgrade education facilities that are disability-sensitive and safe.

46. The Committee is concerned that, despite there being a special quota for students with disabilities to enter public universities, the State party has not adopted regulations governing the support universities are obliged to provide to said students. In addition, it is concerned that access to certain university degrees and professional qualifications is restricted for students with specific disabilities.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party regulates the legislation of general access for students with disabilities to further education and vocational training, under the same conditions as other students and ensuring the provision of the reasonable accommodations and necessary support services.

Serbia (2016)

47. The Committee is concerned that more than half of the children living in residential care institution are not in education and that few measures have been adopted to provide standardised and regulated transparent protocols relating to individual education plans, as well as relevant technologies and forms of communication ensuring accessibility for pupils and students with disabilities at all levels of education.

48. The Committee urges the State party to identify concrete targets in the Action Plan for inclusive education for the period 2016-2020, to meet inclusive education standards and requirements. Special attention should be given to children with multiple disabilities, pupils and students with disabilities living in institutions, to the development of individual education plans, and accommodation of all types of disabilities.

49. The Committee is concerned about the lack of comparable data on funding earmarked for children with disabilities in mainstreaming and special education as well as affirmative measures for the enrolment of and accommodation provided for student with disabilities. In addition, the Committee is also concerned about the low level of accessibility provided in higher education for students with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party take immediate steps to ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to inclusive and quality primary, secondary and tertiary education and that reasonable accommodation, in accordance with established individual education plans, is provided in mainstream education. It recommends that teachers and other education professionals receive training on inclusive education and that all secondary and tertiary education facilities be made accessible. The Committee stresses that denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination. The Committee also recommends the State party pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 4, targets 4.5 and 4(a).

Slovakia (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned that the right to inclusive education for all children and students with disabilities is not available, and about the persistence of a segregated education system. Further, the Committee is concerned at the lack of measures to implement an inclusive education system and the ongoing placement of Roma children in segregated schools for children with disabilities.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals. The Committee also recommends that the State party:

(a) Introduce an enforceable right to inclusive and quality education in the Education Act, including by defining inclusive education in accordance with the Incheon Declaration on education 2030: towards inclusive and equitable quality education and lifelong learning for all of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and Sustainable Development Goal No. 4;

- (b) Adopt a legally binding plan for the transition from segregated schools into inclusive education at all levels, including by setting timelines, identifying responsible authorities, and allocating adequate resources;
- (c) Ensure that all children with disabilities who so require have access to personal assistance and allocate resources for this purpose;
- (d) Ensure available, accessible and inclusive preschool education for all children with disabilities;
- (e) Put an end to the process of placing Roma children in segregated schools for children with disabilities on the basis of their ethnic background.

Thailand (2016)

45. The Committee is concerned that the right to inclusive education remains unfulfilled for many persons with disabilities; that some schools refuse to admit students with disabilities; and that staff and educational establishments, particularly in rural and remote areas, have limited capacity, skills and resources.

46. The Committee calls upon the State party to adopt all legal and other measures necessary to ensure the provision, as a legally enforceable right, of inclusive quality education to persons with disabilities, especially children with disabilities, in mainstream schools within their communities. The Committee also recommends that the State party allocate adequate resources, provide reasonable accommodation and individualized support measures to students with disabilities and ensure the mandatory pre-and in-service training of teachers and other education personnel on inclusive education. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals, to ensure equal access to all levels of education and vocational training, and build and upgrade education facilities that are disability- sensitive and safe.

Uganda (2016)

48. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The promotion of segregated educational institutions in the State party over an inclusive education system;
- (b) The lack of adequately trained teachers to promote inclusive education at all levels of the education system;
- (c) The inability of schools to meet the accessibility requirements of children with disabilities and the non-admission of children with severe disabilities;
- (d) The absence of statistical data on learners with disabilities disaggregated by age, gender and disability type.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite taking action, establish a time frame for the transition process from segregated to inclusive education and ensure that budgetary, technical and professional resources are available to complete the process and collect disaggregated data on the advancement of the inclusive education system;
- (b) Ensure the accessibility to school facilities for all students with disabilities, including deaf-blind children, provide materials and curricula adequate to their requirements and generally take measures to prevent non-admission of children with disabilities in the education system;
- (c) Take measures including by encouraging public/private partnerships to ensure the provision of individualized accessible information and communications technology and assistive technologies in education;
- (d) Undertake a comprehensive review of the teacher training curriculum at all levels of education and provide mandatory training on inclusive education in core curricula of teachers both pre- and in-service to provide for disability awareness, inclusive education

pedagogy, sign language, Braille, easy-to-read material and tactile communication training for all professionals;

(e) Develop a database on learners with disabilities to identify and provide specific learning aids;

(f) Pay attention to the links between article 24 of the Convention and targets 4.5 and 4 (a) of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Brazil (2015)

44. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are refused admission to schools, or are charged extra fees. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about a lack of reasonable accommodation and accessible school environments in the mainstream education system.

45. The Committee recommends the State party to strengthen its efforts with adequate budgetary allocations to consolidate an inclusive quality education system. It also recommends to implement a mechanism to prohibit, monitor and sanction disability-based discrimination in the public and private education systems, and to provide reasonable accommodation and accessibility in all educational facilities.

European Union (2015)

60. The Committee is concerned that in different European Union Member States many boys and girls, and adults with disabilities cannot access inclusive quality education in line with the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends that the European Union evaluate the current situation, and take measures to facilitate access to, and enjoyment of, inclusive quality education for all students with disabilities in line with the Convention, and include disability-specific indicators in the Europe 2020 Strategy when pursuing the target on education.

EU Institutions compliance with the Convention (as public administrations)

84. The Committee is concerned that not all students with disabilities receive the reasonable accommodation they need to enjoy their right to inclusive quality education in European Schools in line with the Convention, and that the latter do not comply with the non-rejection clause. It is further concerned that European Schools are not fully accessible to children with disabilities nor do they provide for inclusive quality education.

85. The Committee recommends that the European Union take necessary measures to ensure that all students with disabilities receive the reasonable accommodation they need to enjoy their right to inclusive quality education in European Schools. It recommends European Schools to implement a no-rejection policy based on disability and ensure quality inclusive education for all students with disabilities.

Gabon (2015)

52. The Committee is concerned that the education of children with disabilities is restricted to segregated schools and about the lack of provision of inclusive, quality education to children with disabilities in mainstream schools. It is further concerned about the so-called verbo-tonal teaching approach applied exclusively in the education of Deaf children instead of providing education in the language of their choosing.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt all necessary measures, including those of legislative nature, to ensure the provision of inclusive, quality education to children with disabilities in mainstream schools within their communities, based on the way and method of communication of their choosing. It also recommends that the State party allocate the appropriate resources, provide reasonable accommodation, accessible curricula, and ensure the mandatory pre-service and in-service training of all teachers and other educational personnel on inclusive, quality education.

Kenya (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Persistence of segregated education institutions in the State party;
- (b) Lack of information on the situation of children with high level of support needs such as deaf-mute children;
- (c) Lack of information on the provision of assistive technologies in classroom for all children with disabilities in rural and urban areas; and
- (d) Absence of measures to ensure continuous training of teachers on sign language.

44. The Committee calls upon the State party to:

- (a) Establish a timeframe for the transition process from segregated to inclusive quality education and ensure that budgetary, technical and personal resources are available to complete the process and collect disaggregated data on the advancement of the inclusive education system;
- (b) Immediately adopt a non-rejection policy for children with disabilities enrolling in regular schools and to provide reasonable accommodation;
- (c) Ensure the accessibility to schools facilities for deaf mute children and provide materials and curricula adequate to their needs;
- (d) Undertake measures, including by encouraging public private partnerships to ensure the provision of assistive technologies in education; and
- (e) Ensure the training of all teachers in inclusive education, and establish a programme for continuous training in sign language in mainstream schools and universities.

Mauritius (2015)

33. The Committee is concerned about the slow implementation of the 2006 official policy of inclusive education resulting in the education system remaining mostly segregated and many children with disabilities being fully deprived of any form of education. The Committee is also concerned about clause 11 of the draft Disability Bill which provides with a general exception to inclusive education and about the creation foreseen of 14 "integrated" units in mainstream schools, a system which would prolong segregation of pupils and delay the creation of a fully inclusive school. The Committee is concerned about children with disabilities aged two or three years old being enrolled in NGO-run specialized schools, especially pupils with sensory disabilities, thus preventing from the very beginning their inclusion in mainstream schools. It is further concerned about pupils with disabilities who do not have access to public transport in rural areas without reimbursement for other means of transport being covered.

34. The Committee recommends that the State party reconsider clause 11 of the draft Disability Bill and renounce to the creation of integrated units in schools but promptly engage in the creation of a fully funded and inclusive quality education system while ensuring that those who have been deprived of education can access life long learning education and vocational training. The State party should ensure tailored education plans for all students with disabilities, the provision of mandatory pre-service and in-service specific training to all teachers on inclusive education and the availability of assistive devices, individual support in classrooms, of accessible educational materials and curricula, and of accessible transport, equipment and school environments, with the corresponding budget allocations. The State party should also promote the enrolment of all children with disabilities in quality inclusive education.

Qatar (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not taken sufficient steps to provide reasonable accommodation to all students with disabilities in mainstream schools as well as the absence of a strategy for quality inclusive education. It is also concerned that only students with certain kinds of impairments attend mainstream education while others are enrolled at separate and segregated facilities or are awaiting placement and not in the education system. The Committee is also concerned by the high rates of illiteracy among older adults with disabilities and the lack of opportunities to access vocational training and tertiary education.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the necessary legal and other measures to ensure the right of all children with disabilities to compulsory and free primary quality inclusive education. It also recommends that the State party reorient resources from segregated educational settings towards quality inclusive education with the provision of reasonable accommodation and individual supports, accessible environments and curricula, for all students with disabilities in mainstream schools and mandatory in-service training of all teachers and all staff in education facilities on quality inclusive education. It also recommends that the State party ensure that the Supreme Education Council be responsible for coordinating the availability of appropriate life-long learning environments for persons with disabilities.

Ukraine (2015)

44. The Committee notes with deep concern that special segregated schools still remain the predominant form of educating children with disabilities. It regrets that the State party has not introduced universal design and reasonable accommodation principles in its legislative framework on education, and lacks measures such as training teachers and other professionals, providing architectural access to school premises and other support mechanisms to develop quality inclusive education.

45. The Committee recommends the State party to introduce the right to inclusive quality education, including universal design and reasonable accommodation in its legislation on education. The Committee calls upon the State party to intensify its efforts and allocate sufficient financial and human resources for training for all teachers, accessibility of school environments and educational facilities, material and curricula, including information and communications and provision of individual support.

Cook Islands (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned that there is an insufficient budget allocation and provision of support for inclusive education.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure an inclusive quality education system;
- (b) Introduce individual education plans for all students with disabilities;
- (c) Ensure the availability of assistive devices and support in classrooms, accessible educational materials and curricula, equipment and school environments, with corresponding allocation of budget.

Croatia (2015)

35. The Committee is concerned that a large number of persons with disabilities have not completed primary education, that less than 30% have completed secondary education, and that steps to provide reasonable accommodation to students with disabilities in mainstream educational facilities are insufficient. It is further concerned that exclusionary and segregated education of persons with disabilities is not considered discriminatory.

36. The Committee recommends the State party to take immediate steps to ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to inclusive quality primary, secondary and tertiary education and that reasonable accommodation is provided in mainstream education. It further recommends establishing the principle that exclusionary and segregated education is discriminatory. It recommends that teachers and other professionals receive training on inclusive education and that all secondary education facilities are made accessible to persons with disabilities.

Czech Republic (2015)

46. The Committee notes with concern that in spite of efforts made, significant number of boys and girls with disabilities, especially those with intellectual disabilities, autism and deaf-blind, still receive their education in special schools and classes, and outside of mainstream schools.

47. The Committee recommends the State party to implement the amended School Act and to embrace inclusive education as the guiding principle of the education system, and to ensure the admission in mainstream school of children with disabilities. in line with the article 24 of the Convention. The Committee calls upon the State party to intensify its efforts and allocate sufficient financial and human resources for reasonable accommodations that will enable boys and girls with disabilities, including intellectual disabilities, autism and deaf-blind, to receive inclusive quality education.

Dominican Republic (2015)

44. El Comité observa con preocupación que los esfuerzos por incluir a niñas, niños, jóvenes y personas adultas con discapacidad en la educación regular son insuficientes y dependen principalmente de las organizaciones de sociedad civil en ausencia de una política estatal con este objetivo. Adicionalmente, preocupa que todavía un alto porcentaje de centros educativos con estudiantes con discapacidad sean escuelas de educación especial, y que los docentes que se forman en las universidades lo hagan desde la perspectiva de la educación especial segregada y fomentando la continuidad de la segregación, contraria a la educación inclusiva que establece la Convención.

45. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

(a) Adoptar una política para brindar acceso a la educación inclusiva de calidad en todos los niveles educativos, tomando particularmente en cuenta el enfoque de género, tanto en zonas urbanas como rurales;

(b) Diseñar e implementar un plan con metas y plazos definidos para la transición de estudiantes con discapacidad de la educación especial a escuelas en el sistema de educación inclusiva, bajo la responsabilidad del Ministerio de Educación; y

(c) Promover una estrategia de formación de docentes y otros para la educación inclusiva en todos los niveles educativos.

Germany (2015)

45. The Committee is concerned that the State party has an education system where the majority of students with disabilities attend segregated special-needs schools.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Immediately develop a strategy, action plan, timeline and targets to provide access to a high quality inclusive education system across all Länder, including the required financial resources and personnel at all levels;

(b) Scale down segregated schools to facilitate inclusion, and recommends that the law and policies uphold the duty that mainstream schools enroll children with disabilities with immediate effect if that is their choice;

(c) Ensure reasonable accommodation is provided at all levels of education, and be legally enforceable and justiciable before the courts;

(d) Ensure training of all teachers in inclusive education and increased accessibility of the school environment, materials and curricula, and the provision of sign language in mainstream schools, including at the post-doctoral level.

Mongolia (2015)

37. The Committee is concerned that the number of teachers trained on teaching children with disabilities remains low. The Committee is also concerned that the State party does not have specific measures for ensuring an inclusive education system in pursuance of its initiatives such as the Law on Education, and the Master Plan for Developing Education in Mongolia (2006-2015).

38. The Committee recommends that the State party consider including training on education for children with disabilities as a mandatory part of the syllabus for teacher training while providing options for further specialisation or advanced training on this. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party develop specific policy and programs, with an allocated budget to implement an inclusive education system in order to ensure quality inclusive education to enable all children with disabilities to receive inclusive education in their own localities. In doing so, the State party should ensure that this does not subject children with disabilities to an assessment of whether their disability is considered “minor” or “major”.

Turkmenistan (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned about the lack of concrete data, indicators and binding targets to monitor the transition to an inclusive education system. It is especially concerned about the placement of children with disabilities in special boarding and other specialized schools. It is also concerned about the insufficient safeguards for parents with children with disabilities regarding the decisions of medical and educational assessment commissions on children’s placement in regular schools, as well as about the imposition of vocational training on some students with disabilities after completion of their basic education.

44. The Committee recommends that the process of inclusive education of students with disabilities be not dependent solely and exclusively on the decision of a commission for the medical-educational assessment only but also on providing pupils with disabilities with accessible conditions in schools and on ensuring that they are free to decide on the vocational training they want to receive. The Committee recommends the State party to publish relevant, periodic, detailed and disaggregated data, including by academic year, on achievements relating to inclusive quality education with special regards to the use of sign language, Braille, and other forms of accessible formats of augmentative and alternative communication. The State party should also ensure that inclusive education is an integral part of core teacher training in universities.

New Zealand (2014)

49. The Committee notes the steps being taken to increase inclusive primary and secondary education, and the ongoing challenges to making the education system fully inclusive, such as the lack of reasonable accommodation. The Committee is concerned at reports indicating that children with disabilities experience bullying in schools, and notes that there is no enforceable right to inclusive education.

50. The Committee recommends that further work be undertaken to increase the provision of reasonable accommodation in primary and secondary education, and to increase the levels of entry into tertiary education for persons with disabilities. The Committee encourages the State party to implement anti-bullying programmes and to establish an enforceable right to inclusive education.

Denmark (2014)

52. While noting a Government reform to promote inclusion of children with disabilities in the general education system, the Committee is concerned at the lack of clarity regarding the extent to which pupils with disabilities can receive adequate support and accommodation to facilitate their education, and regarding the discrepancies in accomplishment rates between pupils with and without disabilities in elementary, secondary and higher education.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party amend its legislation to ensure the inclusion of all children with disabilities in the mainstream education system, with adequate support and accommodation, in particular through the provision of adequate training to teachers and other employees in the school system in all parts of the Kingdom of Denmark, in order to ensure quality education for pupils with disabilities. The State party should take measures to address discrepancies in accomplishment rates between pupils with and without disabilities at all levels of education.

54. The Committee is concerned at reports that children in need of more than 9 hours of special education per week may submit a complaint to the Special Education Board, unlike children in need of fewer than 9 hours of special education per week who cannot submit a complaint to an independent authority regarding a lack of adequate educational support.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party amend its legislation to ensure that all children with disabilities can submit a complaint to an independent authority if they do not receive adequate educational support.

Republic of Korea (2014)

45. The Committee is concerned that, despite the existence of an inclusive education policy, students with disabilities in regular schools return to special schools. It is further concerned about reports that students with disabilities enrolled in regular schools fail to receive education that is suitable to their impairment-related needs.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Conduct research into the effectiveness of the current education inclusion policy;

(b) Step up efforts to provide inclusive education and reasonable accommodation in schools and other learning institutions by providing, inter alia, assistive technology and support in classrooms, accessible and adapted educational materials and curricula, and accessible school environments;

(c) Intensify training for education personnel, including teachers and administrators in regular schools.

Belgium (2014)

36. The Committee is concerned at reports that many students with disabilities are referred to and obliged to attend special schools because of the lack of reasonable accommodation in the mainstream education system. As inclusive education is not guaranteed, the special education system remains an all too frequent option for children with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about poor accessibility in schools.

37. The Committee requests that the State party implement a coherent inclusive education strategy for children with disabilities in the mainstream system and ensure the provision of adequate financial, material and human resources. It recommends that the State party ensure that children with disabilities receive the educational support they need, in particular through the provision of accessible school environments, reasonable accommodation, individual learning plans, assistive technology in classrooms, and accessible and adapted materials and curricula, and guarantee that all teachers, including teachers with disabilities, receive comprehensive training on the use of Braille and sign language with a view to improving the education of all children with disabilities, including boys and girls who are blind, deaf-blind, deaf or hard of hearing. The Committee also recommends that inclusive education should form an integral part of teacher training at university and during continuing professional development.

Ecuador (2014)

36. The Committee is concerned: (a) That persons with disabilities are educated only up to primary level and that, out of a total of 4.14 million registered students nationwide, only 24,499 are students with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that the average number of years of schooling of persons with disabilities is three to four years, compared with the national average of nine years; (b) That, despite efforts to provide professional training for teachers so that they can cope with the demands of inclusive education, a further effort is still required to meet all educational needs; (c) At the procedural and organizational guarantees that the State currently has in place for the review and monitoring by the National Council for the Equality of Persons with Disabilities and district units supporting inclusion of access by persons with disabilities to inclusive education; (d) That few persons with disabilities have access to State which have not yet adjusted their curriculum and made their main facilities accessible so that persons with disabilities can enrol in their various courses.

37. The Committee recommends that the State party: (a) Introduce a State programme to ensure that all persons with disabilities living in Ecuador can enrol in primary, secondary and higher secondary education and have access to an inclusive education system and that the system is strengthened at the higher levels; (b) Deploy greater efforts in initial and continuous training for teachers so that they can cope with the demands of inclusive education for persons with disabilities; (c) Facilitate procedures for persons with disabilities to submit complaints to the National Council for the Equality of Persons with Disabilities so as to ensure more effective monitoring of obligations in this area. The Committee also recommends that there be a district inclusion support unit in each school district and not in each province, as is currently the case; (d) Step up efforts to implement models of inclusive education for persons with disabilities at the university level by encouraging adaptations to the curriculum and premises of universities for the various courses they offer.

Mexico (2014)

47. The Committee is particularly concerned at:

- (a) The persistence of the special education model;
- (b) The fact that not all children with disabilities receive an education; and
- (c) The lack of accessible schools and didactic materials, including textbooks in Braille and sign-language interpreters.

48. The Committee calls on the State party to:

- (a) Establish, in law and policy, an inclusive education system at all levels – primary, secondary and post-secondary – along with provisions for reasonable accommodations, adequate funding and training for regular teachers;
- (b) Adopt measures to ensure that all children with disabilities receive an education, especially those with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, blind-deaf children and those from indigenous communities; and
- (c) Urgently implement measures for the accessibility of schools and didactic materials, including Braille and sign language, and ensure their use from the start of education.

Sweden (2014)

47. The Committee is concerned by reports that schools can refuse admission to certain pupils with disabilities on the grounds of organizational and economic hardship. The Committee is further concerned at reports indicating that some children who need extensive support cannot attend school due to a lack of such support.

48. The Committee urges the State party to guarantee the inclusion of all children with disabilities in the mainstream education system and ensure that they have the required support.

Azerbaijan (2014)

40. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities continue to be placed in special boarding and other specialised schools.

41. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Step up efforts to provide inclusive education and reasonable accommodation in schools and other institutions of learning by providing, inter alia, assistive technology and support in classrooms, accessible and adapted educational materials and curricula as well as accessible school environments;
- (b) Allocate sufficient financial and human resources to implement the State Programme on Inclusive Education;

- (c) Step up efforts to provide quality training for teachers including teachers with disabilities in the use of braille and sign language with a view of enhancing the education of all categories of children with disabilities, including deaf and hard of hearing girls and boys; and ensure that inclusive education is an integral part of core teacher training in universities;
- (d) Conduct research into the effectiveness of the current inclusive education programme and the extent to which accessibility standards are being complied with in the State party; and
- (e) Include in its next periodic report data on the number of inclusive schools that enrolled students with disabilities disaggregated by academic year, sex and disability as well as region.

Costa Rica (2014)

45. The Committee regrets the continuing existence of the special education model, under which children and young people with disabilities are segregated and have no access to inclusive education, and that training for teachers and other professional staff continues to be provided within this specialized framework.

46. The Committee urges the State party to adopt a policy of training teachers in the inclusive education model, and to guarantee inclusive education by providing support for trained teachers, Braille, Costa Rican sign language, alternative means and modes of communication, easy reading texts and other auxiliary equipment and media.

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of indicators on the educational inclusion of children, young people and adults with disabilities. It is particularly concerned to note that exclusion is greater among adults with disabilities, women and girls with disabilities, persons with multiple disabilities, indigenous persons and those living in rural areas.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to inclusive education for all persons with disabilities, at all levels of education including adult education and throughout the country, and guarantee that this education model covers the most remote areas, incorporates the gender perspective and is ethnically and culturally relevant.

Australia (2013)

45. The Committee is concerned that, despite the Disability Standards for Education established to ensure access to education on an equal basis, students with disabilities continue to be placed in special schools and that many of those who are in regular schools are largely confined to special classes or units. It is further concerned that students with disabilities enrolled in regular schools receive a substandard education due to lack of reasonable accommodation. The Committee is also concerned that secondary school completion rates for students with disabilities are about half those for people without disability.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Increases its efforts to provide reasonable accommodation of the necessary quality in education;
- (b) Conducts research into the effectiveness of current education inclusion policies and the extent to which Disability Standards in Education are being implemented in each state and territory;
- (c) Sets targets to increase participation and completion rates by students with disabilities in all levels of education and training.

Austria (2013)

40. The Committee is concerned that progress towards inclusive education in Austria appears to have stagnated. The Committee notes with concern reports suggesting that the number of children in special schools is on the increase and that insufficient effort has been made to support the inclusive education of children with disabilities. It further notes that there exists some confusion between inclusive education and integrated education. However, the Committee commends the establishment in several Länder of model regions of education.

41. The Committee is disappointed that there are very few university graduates with disabilities in Austria. Although Austria is to be commended for offering sign language interpretation to all students at tertiary level, it was stated during the constructive dialogue that there have been only 13 students with hearing impairments, of whom only three have graduated from university.

42. It also appears that there is a lack of teacher training of teachers with disabilities and teachers who use sign language. Without sufficient teachers with sign language skills, deaf children are placed at a significant disadvantage.

43. The Committee recommends that greater efforts be made to support students with disabilities in all areas of inclusive education from kindergarten to secondary school. It particularly recommends the State party to ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities and their representative organisations be involved in the day-to-day implementation of the models of inclusive education introduced in various Länder. The Committee further recommends that greater efforts be made to enable persons with disabilities to study at universities and other tertiary institutions. The Committee also recommends that increased efforts be made to train teachers with disabilities and train teachers who can sign with the necessary level of quality so as to enhance the education of deaf and hard of hearing girls and boys in accordance with the formal recognition of Austrian sign language in the Constitution of Austria.

El Salvador \(2013\)

49. The Committee is concerned at the low school enrolment rates among children with disabilities and the lack of reasonable accommodation to guarantee their access to education, in both urban and rural areas, and access to adult education. The Committee is concerned about discrimination in access to school and retention in school for children with psychosocial or intellectual impairments. It is also of concern to the Committee that the State party has not laid down the principle of free education for children with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop an inclusive education model at all levels, in both urban and rural areas, including a gender and cultural perspective and the reasonable accommodation needed to ensure children and adolescents with disabilities can access education;

(b) Adopt a plan and allocate the requisite budget for the compulsory training of teachers in inclusive education techniques in respect of persons with disabilities, thereby removing the barriers to access and retention for children with psychosocial or intellectual impairments in education;

(c) Implement initiatives and public-private partnerships to design accessible pedagogical tools and teaching methods and provide students with disabilities with access to new technologies and the Internet.

Paraguay \(2013\)

57. The Committee is concerned at the low numbers of children with disabilities enrolled in school (less than 1 per cent) and at the fact that most of those schools are special schools, and at the persistent use of terminology drawn from the medical model of disability when assessing educational standards. It also regrets the lack of information on enrolment rates in urban and rural areas and on whether education is ethnically and linguistically relevant.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party implement a strategy to give all children and adolescents with disabilities access to the national education system and that education should be inclusive at all levels and throughout the country and incorporate the gender perspective and be ethnically and linguistically relevant. The Committee urges the State party to modify educational terminology drawn from the medical model and to reorient segregated special education towards the inclusive model and encourage it to move in that direction.

Argentina (2012)

37. The Committee notes that the legal framework regulating education in the State party expressly recognizes the principle of inclusive education (Act No. 26.206, art. 11). However, it is concerned that the implementation of this principle is limited, in practice, by a failure to tailor programmes and curricula to the needs of pupils with disabilities and by the prevalence of all sorts of barriers that prevent persons with disabilities from accessing the educational system without discrimination and on an equal footing with other students. The Committee is deeply concerned about the high number of children with disabilities who attend special schools and about the lack of educational resource centres that support the effective inclusion of students with disabilities.

38. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive State education policy that guarantees the right to inclusive education and allocates sufficient budgetary resources to ensure progress towards the establishment of an education system that includes students with disabilities. The Committee also urges the State party to intensify its efforts to ensure that all children with disabilities receive a full compulsory education as established by the State party, while devoting particular attention to indigenous peoples and other rural communities. It likewise urges the State party to take the necessary steps to ensure that pupils with disabilities who attend special schools are enrolled in inclusive schools and to offer reasonable adjustments for students with disabilities within the general education system.

China (2012)

35. The Committee is concerned about the high number of special schools and the State party's policy of actively developing these schools. The Committee is especially worried that in practice only students with certain kinds of impairments (physical disabilities or mild visual disabilities) are able to attend mainstream education, while all other children with disabilities are forced to either enrol in a special school or drop out altogether.

36. The Committee wishes to remind the State party that the concept of inclusion is one of the key notions of the Convention and should be especially adhered to in the field of education. In this regard, the Committee recommends that the State party reallocate resources from the special education system to promote the inclusive education in mainstream schools, so as to ensure that more children with disabilities can attend mainstream education.

Hong-Kong

73. While commending the "Integrated Education Plan" to help students with disabilities study in mainstream schools, the Committee is concerned about the implementation of the abovementioned plan. The Committee worries that the teacher-student ratio is too high and that the training for teachers in special education needs is inadequate. In addition, the Committee is troubled by the low number of students with disability in tertiary education, due to lack of a coherent education policy.

74. The Committee recommends a review of the effectiveness of the "Integrated Educated Plan" and the reduction of the teacher-student ratio as well as the training of teachers in "special education needs" and reasonable accommodation. The Committee urges Hong Kong, China, to provide sufficient resources to ensure the accessibility in tertiary education.

Macao

94. The Committee is concerned that the number of students with "special educational" needs in a non-inclusive environment is higher than that in an inclusive one. The Committee is also troubled by the low number of students with disabilities attending tertiary education.

95. The Committee wishes to remind Macao, China, that the concept of inclusive education is essential to the implementation of article 24 and should be the rule rather than an exception. The Committee calls upon the state party to continue making tertiary education more accessible to students with disabilities.

Hungary (2012)

39. The Committee notes with appreciation that students with disabilities have the opportunity to study using sign language and the Braille system. It also notes that training in those subjects is provided to teachers. However, the Committee regrets that many students with disabilities continue to attend special educational institutions. It furthermore notes with concern that the State party has not taken sufficient steps to provide reasonable accommodation to all students with disabilities in mainstream educational facilities and to develop and promote an inclusive education system as defined by the Convention.

40. The committee is further concerned by the lack of social programmes directed to ensure the access of Roma children with disabilities to mainstream education and by the lack of adequate consultation with them and their parents in order to decide what kind of support is needed to satisfy their right to education.

41. The Committee calls upon the State party to allocate sufficient resources for the development of an inclusive education system for children with disabilities. It reiterates that denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination, and recommends the State party to significantly increase its efforts to: provide reasonable accommodation to children with disabilities based on the student's individual requirements; provide students with disabilities with required support within the general education system; and to continue training teachers and all other educational staff to enable them to work in inclusive educational settings.

42. The committee urges the State party to develop programs to ensure that Roma children with disabilities are included in mainstream education programs, without disregarding the provision of reasonable accommodation that might be needed to obtain the desired outcome.

Peru (2012)

36. While taking note with appreciation of a number of Ministerial Directives aimed at establishing the framework of an inclusive education system, the Committee is concerned at the existing gaps in the de facto implementation of these provisions, in particular at the illiteracy rate among the indigenous peoples and Afro-Peruvian communities, and the impact that this may have on the indigenous and minority children with disabilities.

37. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate sufficient budget resources to achieve advances in the progress for an inclusive education system for children and adolescents with disabilities, and take appropriate measures to identify and reduce illiteracy among children with disabilities, especially indigenous and Afro-Peruvian children.

Spain (2011)

43. The Committee welcomes the fact that the principle of inclusion governs the schooling of pupils with special educational needs; that discrimination in education is prohibited; and that most children with disabilities are included in the regular education system. It commends the enactment of Organic Act 2/2006 on education, which obliges the education authorities to provide specialist teachers, qualified professionals and the necessary materials and resources, as well as the laws that oblige schools to make necessary curricular adjustments and diversifications for pupils with disabilities. However, the Committee is concerned by the implementation of these laws in practice, in view of reported cases of failure to provide reasonable accommodation, of continued segregation and exclusion, of financial arguments used as justification for discrimination, and of the cases of children enrolled in special education against their parents' will. The Committee notes with concern that parents challenging the placement of their children with disabilities in special education have no possibility of appeal and that their only alternative is to educate them at their own expense or pay for the reasonable accommodation of their child in the regular education system.

44. The Committee reiterates that denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination and that the duty to provide reasonable accommodation is immediately applicable and not subject to progressive realization. It recommends that the State party:

(a) Increase its efforts to provide reasonable accommodation in education, by: allocating sufficient financial and human resources to implement the right to inclusive education; paying particular attention to assessing the availability of teachers with specialist qualifications; and ensuring that educational departments of local governments understand their obligations under the Convention and act in conformity with its provisions;

(b) Ensure that the decisions to place children with a disability in a special school or in special classes, or to offer them solely a reduced-standard curriculum, are taken in consultation with the parents;

(c) Ensure that the parents of children with disabilities are not obliged to pay for the education or for the measures of reasonable accommodation in mainstream schools;

(d) Ensure that decisions on placing children in segregated settings can be appealed swiftly and effectively.

Tunisia (2010)

30. The Committee takes note of the national programme of inclusive education for children with disabilities. However, it notes with deep concern that, in practice, the inclusion strategy is not equally implemented in schools; rules relating to the number of children in mainstream schools and to the management of inclusive classes are commonly breached; and schools are not equitably distributed between regions of the same governorate.

31. The Committee is equally concerned that many integrated schools are not equipped to receive children with disabilities, and that the training of teachers and administrators with regard to disabilities remains a concern in the State Party.

32. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to ensure that persons with disabilities can exercise the right to freedom of expression and opinion on an equal basis with others and, in this regard, provide information intended for the general public in accessible formats and – especially with respect to the deaf, hard-of-hearing, and deafblind – recognize and promote the use of sign language;

(b) Increase its efforts to enforce inclusive education for girls and boys with disabilities in all schools;

(c) Intensify training for education personnel, including teachers and administrators;

(d) Allocate sufficient financial and human resources to implement the national programme of inclusive education for children with disabilities.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

Article 25 CRPD (Health)

September 2025

Article 25 – Health

States Parties recognize that persons with disabilities have the right to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of health without discrimination on the basis of disability. States Parties shall take all appropriate measures to ensure access for persons with disabilities to health services that are gender-sensitive, including health-related rehabilitation. In particular, States Parties shall:

- (a) Provide persons with disabilities with the same range, quality and standard of free or affordable health care and programmes as provided to other persons, including in the area of sexual and reproductive health and population-based public health programmes;*
- (b) Provide those health services needed by persons with disabilities specifically because of their disabilities, including early identification and intervention as appropriate, and services designed to minimize and prevent further disabilities, including among children and older persons;*
- (c) Provide these health services as close as possible to people's own communities, including in rural areas;*
- (d) Require health professionals to provide care of the same quality to persons with disabilities as to others, including on the basis of free and informed consent by, inter alia, raising awareness of the human rights, dignity, autonomy and needs of persons with disabilities through training and the promulgation of ethical standards for public and private health care;*
- (e) Prohibit discrimination against persons with disabilities in the provision of health insurance, and life insurance where such insurance is permitted by national law, which shall be provided in a fair and reasonable manner;*
- (f) Prevent discriminatory denial of health care or health services or food and fluids on the basis of disability.*

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)

Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)

Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Peru (2012)

Please note there are no recommendations in the Concluding Observations on art. 25 on Turkmenistan, Belgium, Sweden, Azerbaijan, Australia, Austria, Hungary, Spain and Tunisia.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

48. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Systemic barriers to healthcare for persons with disabilities, which persist despite the State Party's commitment to universal and free healthcare, due to ineffective implementation and inadequate monitoring. These barriers include inaccessible facilities and information, lack of reasonable accommodation, persisting prejudices among healthcare professionals, uneven policy implementation between urban and rural areas, and the high cost of certain treatment;
- (b) A lack of access to essential medication, including antibiotics, anaesthetics, pain relief drugs, and contraceptives, particularly in rural areas, for persons with disabilities;
- (c) The limited measures to ensure access, on an equal basis with others, to quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and sex education for all persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities;
- (d) The lack of information on healthcare budget allocations for persons with disabilities.

49. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Develop and implement a comprehensive strategy to ensure access to quality, free, universal healthcare services for all persons with disabilities, including in rural and urban areas, by implementing accessibility standards and regular monitoring, ensuring the provision of reasonable accommodation by public and private healthcare providers, and eliminate financial barriers to healthcare by covering the cost of essential medical treatments, particularly for persons with disabilities with low income;
- (b) Take urgent measures to ensure the availability and affordability of essential medication and the accessibility of its packaging for its identification as well as accessibility of healthcare, including in rural areas, and ensure non-discriminatory access to lifesaving treatment;
- (c) Ensure that high-quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and comprehensive sexual education are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, and that health professionals are trained about the human rights model of disability and the right of persons with disabilities to decide whether to give free and informed consent for any medical treatment;
- (d) Allocate adequate and transparent resources to inclusive healthcare to meet the requirements of persons with disabilities, including accessible services, assistive devices, inclusive programs, and staff training.

Finland (2025)

48. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Inequity in health services for persons with disabilities across Social Welfare Counties and the lack of disability inclusion and accessibility in the digitization of health services;
- (b) The increase in the price of specific medication and treatments disproportionately restricts access to health for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with disabilities with lower incomes.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that Social Welfare Counties abide by guidelines on the right to health of persons with disabilities that are consistent throughout the State party, that health services are not contingent upon the place of residency, that telemedicine and remote care services are available in Finnish and Finland Swedish sign language, that online portals are accessible to screen readers and incorporate Easy-Read options, and expand the training of healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adjust the pricing of medication and treatments to ensure that all persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities with lower incomes, can access them in a timely manner.

Kiribati (2025)

47. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) At the limited access of persons with disabilities to health-care services particularly those living on outer islands, due to the centralization of specialized services in South Tarawa;
- (b) The shortage of qualified health personnel, as well as the lack of training of healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities and inclusive practices;
- (c) At the limited access of persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities to sexual and reproductive health services;

(d) Insufficient measures to ensure free and informed consent of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in medical treatment.

48. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Continue the process of decentralization and strengthening of health services to ensure equal access for persons with disabilities on all islands, including through community-based approaches such as mobile outreach teams, training of primary health workers and the integration of support services into local clinics and community centres;

(b) Increase the number of qualified health personnel and provide systematic training for all healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities and inclusive practices, including communication, accessibility and the provision of reasonable accommodation;

(c) Ensure accessible and inclusive sexual and reproductive health services for women and girls with disabilities, including the provision of information in accessible formats and training of health workers;

(d) Guarantee the right to free and informed consent of all persons with disabilities in health care, including through supported decision-making measures;

(e) Ensure accessibility of health infrastructure in line with international standards and make the online information accessible as well as provide sign language interpretation and ensure the accessibility of public transport to medical infrastructure and return to home.

Maldives (2025)

49. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the limited access of persons with disabilities to health-care services, in particular on the outer islands;

(b) At the lack of access of persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to sexual and reproductive health services;

(c) The lack of availability of medicines and qualified health personnel, including rehabilitation, in health services, as well as the lack of training of healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to affordable, accessible and quality health services on an equal basis as others;

(b) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services, including to sensitization and awareness-raising on HIV/AIDS, and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities so they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;

(c) Develop a compulsory training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, free and informed consent and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible digital formats, as well as Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, including ensuring the physical accessibility of health facilities and equipment.

Canada (2025)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of comprehensive access to quality healthcare for persons with disabilities, including the inaccessibility of medical infrastructure and equipment;

(b) The limited access to medicines and culturally appropriate health services for First Nations, Inuit, and Métis with disabilities, as well as the lack of inclusion of traditional medicine within the health system;

- (c) The ableism, prejudice, and stigma amongst health professionals and within the health system in relation to dementia diagnosis, treatment, and support, including for those with early onset dementia and with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (d) Gaps in access to age appropriate and gender specific information and education on sexual and reproductive health and rights, including family planning and access to essential menstrual hygiene products.

50. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Exercise federal leadership to develop a nationally consistent approach to disability inclusive health care for all persons with disabilities across provinces and territories, including policies to ensure the accessibility of medical infrastructure and equipment;
- (b) Strengthen measures to ensure culturally appropriate health services within the Action Plan to implement the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act, including by ensuring that health policies incorporate and address the needs of Indigenous persons with disabilities, including traditional medicine and health-related practices that are culturally relevant for them;
- (c) Develop a comprehensive national action plan to implement the National Dementia Strategy with targets in coordination with the provinces and territories to ensure rights-based training of health professionals and to provide dementia care pathways through the health system, including access to the full range of services and supports and to promote and respect personal autonomy and the right to independent living.
- (d) Strengthen policies to provide women and girls with disabilities with age appropriate and gender specific accessible information and education on sexual and reproductive health and rights, including family planning and ensure access to essential menstrual hygiene products.

Dominican Republic (2025)

45. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The inaccessibility of health services for all persons with disabilities, in particular the lack of appropriate medical equipment and facilities and adequate information on health services, particularly in remote areas;
- (b) Gynaecological and obstetrical services not being accessible to women with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of regular training programmes on the human rights approach to disability for physicians and other health professionals working with persons with disabilities.

46. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to quality and gender-sensitive health services, across the State party, by ensuring reasonable accommodation is provided and the accessibility of equipment and facilities are adapted to the specific needs of each disability, information on health services is provided in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read, and that health workers are trained to treat persons with disabilities properly;
- (b) Ensure that all health care facilities provide gynaecological and obstetrical services that are accessible to women with disabilities;
- (c) Deliver continuous training programmes on the human rights approach to disability for physicians and other health professionals working with persons with disabilities and closely consult with and actively involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and delivery of the training.

European Union (2025)

60. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of explicit legal protection against disability-based discrimination in healthcare and persons with disabilities facing systemic barriers to healthcare access, due to healthcare providers' disregard or automatic attribution of health issues to disability, insufficient reasonable accommodations, lack of accessible materials and processes, and inadequate training for healthcare workers.

(b) Gaps in cross-border healthcare access, including the lack of accessible information by National Contact Points, the lack of reimbursement of disability-related expenses and the requirements of persons with limited mobility in Directive 2011/24/EU.⁶¹

61. The Committee recalls its previous Concluding Observation and Recommendation (para. 63) and recommends that the European Union:

(a) Set comprehensive accessibility standards across healthcare systems, requiring Member States to develop Easy Read medical materials, accessible administrative processes, and communication training for healthcare professionals to support persons with intellectual disabilities;

(b) Restore funding of the EU4Health programme to address health inequities for persons with disabilities;

(c) Revise the Patient Mobility Directive to guarantee equal access to healthcare for persons with disabilities in cross-border situations;

(d) Support Member States in the implementation of guidelines to increase access to healthcare.

Palau (2025)

47. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the barriers faced by persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, in accessing health-care services, which include inaccessible health-care facilities and information, lack of reasonable accommodation, and prejudices about persons with disabilities held by professionals across the health sector;

(b) Lack of accessible health related information and materials for persons with disabilities, in particular, persons who is blind, persons with hearing impairments;

(c) The limited measures to ensure access, on an equal basis with others, to quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and sex education for all persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities.

48. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Evaluate the current situation, and take measures to facilitate access to quality health services of diverse persons with disabilities, in line Convention, ensuring quality and gender-sensitive health-care services for all persons with disabilities, including the implementation of accessibility standards and the provision of reasonable accommodation by public and private health-care providers;

(b) Guarantee that information is provided in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including in Braille, sign language and Easy Read, regarding health services;

(c) Ensure that high-quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and comprehensive sexuality education are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, additionally, integrate a human rights model of disability into the training of health professionals, emphasizing that all persons with disabilities have the right to free and informed consent for any medical and surgical treatment.

Tuvalu (2025)

45. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the limited access of persons with disabilities to health-care services;

- (b) At the lack of access of persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to sexual and reproductive health services and HIV/AIDS awareness programmes;
- (c) At the absence of community-based mental health services and supports for persons with disabilities as part of general health services;
- (d) The lack of availability of medicines and qualified health personnel, including rehabilitation, in health services, as well as the lack of training of healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities.

46. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to affordable, accessible and quality health services on an equal basis as others;
- (b) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services, including to sensitization and awareness-raising on HIV/AIDS, and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities so they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;
- (c) Ensure availability of community-based mental health services and supports, including peer-led supports and allocate adequate resources for quality facilities and services of mental health care provision;
- (d) Develop a compulsory training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, free and informed consent and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, including ensuring the physical accessibility of health facilities and equipment.

Viet Nam (2025)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Lack of accessibility of health facilities infrastructure, ambulances, equipment, and information in health programmes and communication for persons with disabilities, including in their original languages, in general clinics and hospitals;
- (b) Lack of adequate and regular training for medical and paramedical personnel on their interactions with persons with disabilities, including indigenous persons with disabilities;
- (c) Reports from women with disabilities of experiencing negative, insensitive, and unsupportive attitudes from maternal healthcare providers during their pregnancy;
- (d) Inaccessibility of reproductive health services, information, and education for women and girls with disabilities, especially those with sensory and intellectual disabilities, limiting their ability to exercise their sexual and reproductive rights;
- (e) Significant barriers faced by persons with disabilities, especially children with disabilities, who live in rural and remote areas and among indigenous communities, in accessing timely healthcare services, including rehabilitation and assistive technologies;
- (f) Specification in the Persons with Disabilities Act 2010 that only persons with “severe or very severe disabilities” receive free health insurance cards and are fully reimbursed for medical examination and treatment costs, and
- (g) Low employment rate of persons with disabilities, resulting in only a small proportion of persons with middle support needs disabilities being eligible for compulsory employment-based health insurance, which is partially sponsored by employers;
- (h) Serious harm caused to farmers by the irrigation of crops with pesticides, leading to high rates of blindness among the Khmer Krom population;

(i) Lack of coverage for psychological intervention services for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities under health insurance, and lack of recognition of autism as a disability.

50. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure that general clinics and hospitals provide accessible information and communication formats for persons with disabilities, including in their original languages, and implement measures to ensure comprehensive health coverage for all persons with disabilities, including indigenous persons, regardless of their employment status, and provide accessible, affordable, and culturally appropriate services;

(b) Ensure health professionals receive training and education on the needs and treatment of persons with disabilities, particularly in maternal healthcare for women with disabilities and indigenous persons with disabilities;

(c) Implement comprehensive training programmes for maternal healthcare providers to foster positive, sensitive, and supportive attitudes towards women with disabilities, including indigenous women, during their pregnancy;

(d) Guarantee full access to sexual and reproductive health services, information, and education for women and girls with disabilities, including indigenous women and girls, through formats tailored to meet the needs of those with sensory and intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

(e) Ensure the availability of health services for persons with disabilities, especially children with disabilities, who live in rural and remote areas and among indigenous communities, that are physically accessible, staffed with trained personnel;

(f) Amend the Persons with Disabilities Act 2010 to ensure all persons with disabilities receive free health insurance cards and are fully reimbursed for medical examinations and treatments;

(g) Amend the law to allow all unemployed persons with disabilities to access the voluntary health insurance scheme, subsidized by the government, and reduce the current rates, which represent 20% of the national average monthly income per capita;

(h) Intensify efforts to eliminate the use of pesticides in fields, impose severe penalties on those who continue to distribute and use them, and establish preventative and treatment measures, as well as compensation for the Khmer Krom people affected and blinded by pesticide use;

(i) Guarantee that health insurance covers psychological interventions for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and ensure that autism is formally recognized as a disability and covered by the national health insurance.

Belarus (2024)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of person-oriented health care system for all persons with disabilities and the insufficient accessibility of health-care facilities, services and medical equipment, including physical and informational accessibility;

(b) The physical and social barriers and the lack of accommodations in the health care system, which restrict women with disabilities in the exercise of their autonomy and accessing sexual and reproductive health services;

(c) The fact that persons undertaking health consultations with psychologists or other treatments are being forced to be registered as "those with mental disorder", which has an ensuing impact that employers avoid hiring them;

(d) The absence of dedicated trainings for the medical staff, in regard to providing service to people with all persons with disabilities, and the lack of people with disabilities as part of the training system and the structure of the training content.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop action plans in line with human rights approach to ensure the accessibility and availability of health-care programs, services and equipment for persons with disabilities, with a specific emphasis on the sexual and reproductive health of women and girls with disabilities, as well as on accessible information and communication for persons with autism, persons with psychosocial disabilities and/or intellectual disabilities, persons with visual disability, deaf persons and persons of hard of hearing in general treatment in the health-care system;
- (b) Ensure access to health services for women and girls with disabilities, including sexual and reproductive health care and services and safeguard their decision-making so that they can affirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy, in particular, by intensifying efforts for women living in the rural areas;
- (c) Ensure within health services the right to privacy of persons with disabilities, by guaranteeing their personal data protection and refraining from sharing or use of such information without their consent including for any policy or administrative purposes, as well as guarantee effectively the right to remedy for any health related privacy violations.
- (d) Develop training programs, including in universities and in-service training curricula, for health-care professionals on the requirements and rights of persons with disabilities and involvement of persons with disabilities in the design, delivery and facilitation of the curricula and training.

Belgium (2024)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of access to gender-responsive, quality healthcare for persons with disabilities, including widespread inaccessibility of infrastructure and medical equipment, as well as the lack of information on physical accessibility of medical infrastructure on many websites;
- (b) Reports that persons with disabilities can often not provide their free and informed personal consent to medical procedures or interventions, in part due to a lack of accessible information on health services and treatments;
- (c) The lack of affordability of healthcare for persons with disabilities which has reportedly resulted in persons with disabilities foregoing health treatment due to financial constraints;
- (d) The lack of training of medical and healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, to prevent that existing dependencies of persons with disabilities on their medical and healthcare experts deteriorate into abuse and violence.

51. The Committee recommends the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Extend mandatory accessibility standards to all medical and paramedical infrastructures and health services, and render them age- and gender-responsive;
- (b) Establish a framework that ensures that persons with disabilities can effectively give their free and informed personal consent to any medical procedure or intervention, including through the provision of all health care and treatment information in accessible formats;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities can access health care on an equal basis with others and at an affordable cost, including by granting specific benefits to financially disadvantaged people with disabilities and by integrating these benefits into the overall benefits system across the regions;
- (d) Ensure that the human rights model of disability and respect for the dignity, autonomy and requirements of persons with disabilities are systematically included in the curricula for the training of all medical and health professionals.

Benin (2024)

49. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The limited access of persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to sexual and reproductive health-care services and to awareness-raising programmes on HIV/AIDS;
- (b) The insufficiency of community-based mental health services for persons with disabilities as part of general health services;
- (c) The lack of availability of medication and protective items, including sunscreen and sunglasses, for persons with albinism across health services;
- (d) The lack of training for medical professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly among practitioners of traditional medicine.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services, including awareness-raising on HIV/AIDS, STDs, feminine cancers etc and ensure the provision of supported decision-making for women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities concerning their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;
- (b) Ensure the availability of community-based mental health services and allocate adequate resources for the provision of good quality mental health-care facilities and services;
- (c) Take appropriate measures to address the challenges of ensuring adequate health services for persons with albinism that meet their health needs, including the provision of sunglasses and appropriate sunscreen as an essential product for the prevention of skin cancer;
- (d) Provide training for health-care professionals and traditional medicine practitioners on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on the relevant skills, support measures and information and communication means and methods, providing information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, and ensuring the physical accessibility of equipment in health facilities.

Burkina Faso (2024)

46. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Free or reduced cost of health services to persons with disabilities is conditional to holding the disability card as provided in Act No. 012-2010/AN of 1 April 2010 and Decree No. 2012-828/PRES/PM/MASSN/MEF/MS/MENA/MESS of 22 October 2012, yet obtaining a disability card remains challenging, as demonstrated by the limited number of disability card holders in comparison to the number of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of training of medical professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, attitudinal barriers and lack of awareness on the part of service providers in health, including regarding protocols for invalidity card determination and sexual and reproductive health (an example of this stigmatization);
- (c) The training of 300 health workers in home care for persons with complex support needs and in the early detection of disabilities by the SN-3PH and its Operational Action Plan (2021-2023) has been delayed.

47. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Simplify the conditions under which the disability card is issued, including by lowering the threshold to qualify for the card and making the process accessible, and take appropriate measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities receive free or reduced-cost healthcare, as provided for in the law on the protection and promotion of the rights of disabled people and its implementing decree n°2012-828/PRES/PM/MASSN/MEF/MS/MENA of 22 October 2012;

- (b) Provide training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, on early identification, and on the relevant skills, support measures, information and communication means and methods, providing information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons as well as women and girls with disabilities, and ensuring the physical accessibility of health facilities and equipment;
- (c) Implement the training of health workers in home care for persons with complex support needs planned by the SN-3PH and its Operational Action Plan 2021-2023.

Denmark (2024)

67. The Committee is concerned at the information that the average life expectancy for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities is significantly lower than that of the rest of the population; it is also concerned at information that persons with disabilities do not participate in the national preventive health programmes on an equal basis with others, including in screenings for cervical cancer, breast cancer and bowel cancer.

68. Recalling its previous recommendation , the Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, have access to the highest attainable health, on an equal basis with others. It also recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark take measures, including outreach and accessibility measures, to increase participation of persons with disabilities in public health programmes such as screenings for cervical cancer, breast cancer, and bowel cancer.

Ghana (2024)

48. The Committee note with concern:

- (a) Information that most of the health facilities, institutions and equipment are physically inaccessible and information on health services is also not in accessible formats in sign language and other modes of communication;
- (b) The stigma and discriminatory attitudes towards disability, gender and sexuality that impact negatively on how women with disabilities exercise their rights to sexual and reproductive health services and family planning;
- (c) The low levels of registration of persons with disabilities on the National Health Insurance Scheme and the fact that most essential medicines for persons with disabilities are still not covered by it, and the absence of a comprehensive strategy to train health professionals in the human rights model of disability;
- (d) The lack of reproductive health policy and standards to combat discrimination against women with disabilities who decide to have children and of measures to prevent forced contraception in adolescents with disabilities.

49. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Ensure accessibility in health facilities in urban and rural areas by ensuring infrastructure modifications;
- (b) Address stigma and discriminatory attitudes impacting women with disabilities by training health personnel on disability rights and inclusivity and improve accessibility of health facilities and information on sexual and reproductive health services to ensure equitable access for women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) Increase the registration of persons with disabilities on the NHIS, expand coverage of essential medicines for persons with disabilities under the NHIS, develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, support measures and information and communication means and methods, and provide health information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities;

(d) Established reproductive health policy and standard that would ensure accessibility, availability, and quality sexual and reproductive health services for all women and girls with disabilities, including disability training for reproductive health care providers; eliminate practices that discriminate against women with disabilities, including women and girls with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities as well as women and girls with albinism in taking decision about their sexual and reproductive health and monitor and report on the implementation of the policy and any violation of these rights.

Mauritius (2024)

43. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Insufficient universal design and accommodations for persons with disabilities at many healthcare facilities, including imaging and mammography equipment that are inaccessible to wheelchair users;

(b) The barriers in access to sexual and reproductive health services for women and girls with disabilities;

(c) The attitudinal barriers among medical professionals concerning the access of persons with disabilities to healthcare, resulting from a lack of effective awareness and training.

44. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure the development and promotion of investment in universal design of medical devices, equipment and healthcare facilities, and reinforce measures to provide persons with disabilities with information about healthcare in accessible formats;

(b) Implement measures to provide women and girls with disabilities with appropriate and accessible sexual and reproductive health services in a manner that is age- and gender-responsive, on an equal basis with others;

(c) Build the capacity of all medical and health professionals at the local level on the rights of persons with disabilities, on the provision of healthcare based on the human rights model of disability and on inclusive methods of communication.

Netherlands (2024)

55. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The interpretative declaration to article 25 in which healthcare professionals may determine which healthcare is provided solely on medical grounds;

(b) The lack of measures taken to ensure that the will and preference and the right to self-determination of persons with disabilities are respected in all medical procedures;

(c) Reports of undue influence of women undergoing prenatal screening (NIPT) for the detection of the impairment of a fetus;

(d) The waiting time for persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial disabilities, to receive health services, and the lack of effective government measures to reduce waiting time;

(e) The insufficient knowledge of professionals in healthcare facilities, especially concerning non-visible impairments, and the resulting unsuitable treatment or assessment of non-standard behaviour, as well as the persistence of negative stereotypes in regard to persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities among healthcare providers, leading to disparities in treatment and care;

(f) The barriers for persons with disabilities in accessing appropriate healthcare services, especially for persons with intellectual disabilities, due to the complicated system and the required digital skills, and the differences in quality, availability of and access to healthcare services between municipalities.

56. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Withdraw the interpretative declaration to article 25 so that persons with disabilities can experience their full right to healthcare;
- (b) Ensure that medical interventions are based on the will and preference of persons with disabilities and respect their right to self-determination;
- (c) Ensure that pregnant women undergoing prenatal screening for the detection of the impairment of a fetus can make fully informed decisions on their pregnancy without undue influence;
- (d) Ensure that all persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, persons with disabilities still living in institutions and children and women with disabilities, have access to healthcare services on a timely basis, reduce waiting time to access health-care services and increase community-based mental healthcare services;
- (e) Provide comprehensive training for healthcare professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities and the requirement for accessibility and reasonable accommodation in all aspects of health-care provision, as well as on recognition, understanding, and treatment of different types of impairments; implement mandatory training programs for healthcare providers to improve their awareness and attitudes towards persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, addressing negative stereotypes and promoting a more inclusive and respectful approach;
- (f) Improve accessibility to healthcare services and offer assistance to persons with disabilities and their families in navigating the healthcare system.

Ukraine (2024)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient measures to provide adequate, affordable and accessible health care for persons with disabilities, including in conflict areas, and for internally displaced, refugee and asylum-seeking children and adults with disabilities, and in refugee-like situations, as well as in rural and remote territories;
- (b) The lack of health care and programs on sexual and reproductive health for persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities, and those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in long-term care facilities;
- (c) The lack of clear regulations and resources to provide quality health care and services for residents who were evacuated, which has led to overcrowding in new structures hosting the evacuees, and the fact that State party has not guaranteed sufficient staffing in these new facilities;
- (d) The lack of measures to provide adequate, affordable, and accessible health care for persons affected by the conflict in eastern Ukraine, as well as for internally displaced, refugees and asylum-seeking children and adults with disabilities;
- (e) The lack of availability and quality of medical care in the rural territories of the Donetsk region;
- (f) The Order of the Cabinet of Ministers № 1018-r of December 27, 2017, that approved the Concept for the development of mental health care in Ukraine for the period until 2030, and that is not aligned with the Convention.

51. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, the Report on the Human Rights Protection of Older Persons in Emergency situations (A/HRC/42/43) of the United Nations Independent Expert on the enjoyment of all human rights by older persons, targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and the Committee's own Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Adopt measures to ensure adequate, affordable and accessible health care for persons with disabilities, including those affected by the conflict in Ukraine, in rural territories of the Donetsk region, as well as internally displaced, refugee and asylum-seeking children and adults with disabilities;
- (b) Take all appropriate measures to ensure that access to health services for persons with disabilities are accessible (including medical equipment, and health-related information) and that are gender-sensitive;
- (c) Develop effective campaigns to educate medical professionals, health-care providers, and medical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, as well as on accessible forms of communication for users of health-care services;
- (d) Take measures to amend the Order of the Cabinet of Ministers № 1018-r of December 27, 2017, so as to harmonize the concept of mental health care to that of the Convention.

Azerbaijan (2024)

55. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The inconsistent access to and low quality of health services, including sexual and reproductive health services due to lack of availability of health services, prevailing gender and disability stereotypes;
- (b) The lack of mental health services in the community and the prevalence of psychiatric services in close settings, including sanatoriums;
- (c) The lack of access by persons with disabilities to health services in the private health system.

56. Recalling targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure universal health care coverage for persons with disabilities in rural and urban areas, access to sexual and reproductive health services and rights, including maternal and child health services, accessible equipment, including gynaecological equipment, and that specialized health services are provided on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Provide training for health care professionals on gender equality and the human rights model of disability;
- (c) Adopt the community-based support as the basis of programmes for the provision of mental health, dismantle sanatoriums and other facilities for the purpose of mental health treatment;
- (d) Adopt measures to ensure equal access to health and non-discrimination in the provision of disability related health-care services in the national health-care schemes ensuring that private service providers facilitate access to health services.

Bahrain (2024)¹

50. The Committee is concerned at the lack of:

- (a) Accessible health care services for persons with disabilities.
- (b) Accessibility in a number of health service delivery facilities.
- (c) Lack of trained personnel to provide health services, especially emergency care and reproductive health services to persons with disabilities.
- (d) Lack of a legislative framework that guarantees free and informed consent of persons with disabilities before any medical intervention is performed on them.
- (e) Forced hospitalization and treatment of persons with psychosocial disabilities without any controls governing this practice in the Public Health Law No. 34 of 2018, except for what is stipulated in Article (50) at the end, which authorizes forced hospitalization and treatment at the discretion of the doctor and for the purpose of protecting others.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party

(a) Develop a national strategy and implementation plan for the comprehensive and inclusive provision of health care and specialized health services for persons with disabilities.

(b) Provide accessibility in public and private health facilities

(c) Developing and implementing specialized training for health professionals in the provision of health services to persons with disabilities.

(d) Develop a practice framework that ensures the free and informed consent of persons with disabilities to any medical procedure or intervention before it is carried out.

(e) Enact the Mental Health Law and include measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have the right to free and informed consent or refusal of treatment and prohibit forced placement and treatment on the basis of disability, as well as the use of physical and chemical restraints and electric shocks in the mental health sector.

Costa Rica (2024)

41. El Comité toma nota de las aclaraciones por escrito proporcionadas por el Estado parte al concluir el dialogo constructivo. Sin embargo, observa con preocupación:

a) La falta de accesibilidad a los servicios de salud para personas con discapacidad, en particular la escasez de equipo médico, instalaciones y mobiliario inadecuado;

b) La insuficiente inclusión de personas con discapacidad en políticas, programas y servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva, incluyendo los relacionados con el VIH/SIDA, que afecta desproporcionadamente a mujeres y niñas con discapacidad;

c) Que el abordaje de la salud mental sigue centrado en el modelo médico y la falta de medidas coordinadas para implementar el modelo de salud mental comunitaria;

d) La falta de programas regulares de capacitación para médicos y otros profesionales de la salud que trabajan con personas con discapacidad en el modelo de derechos humanos de la discapacidad.

42. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 25 de la Convención y las metas 3.7 y 3.8 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Garantizar que todas las personas con discapacidad tengan acceso a servicios de salud de calidad, con perspectiva de género e intercultural, tanto en zonas rurales como remotas, entre otras cosas, asegurando que se apliquen las normas de accesibilidad y se realicen ajustes razonables, que los equipos y el mobiliario sean adaptados a las necesidades específicas de cada discapacidad, y que la información sobre los servicios sanitarios se facilite en formatos accesibles como el braille, la lengua de señas y los formatos de lectura fácil, y se capacite al personal sanitario en el trato correcto a las personas con discapacidad;

b) Redoblar los esfuerzos para garantizar la plena accesibilidad de todas las políticas, programas y servicios de salud, incluyendo la salud sexual y reproductiva y los relacionados con el VIH/SIDA con enfoque de género, especialmente en las áreas rurales y en los niveles comunitarios, conforme recomendación CRPD/C/CRI/CO/1, párr. 50;

c) Elaborar un plan de acción, con la asignación de recursos humanos y financieros suficientes, para la implementación de la Política Nacional de Salud Mental con base en el modelo de salud mental comunitaria;

d) Implementar programas de capacitación continua para médicos y otros profesionales de la salud que trabajan con personas con discapacidad sobre el modelo de derechos humanos de la discapacidad, y consultar estrechamente e involucrar activamente a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en el diseño e implementación de la capacitación.

Kazakhstan (2024)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The physical obstacles and attitudinal barriers depriving women and men with disabilities of their sexual and reproductive rights and hinder their access to available services, on equal basis with others;

(b) Barriers for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with disabilities in rural areas, to access health services, including specialized health care, the lack of interpreters for deafblind persons with disabilities in these settings, and a lack of information in accessible formats;

54. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Provide persons with disabilities with accessible sexual and reproductive health services, including for women and girls with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

(b) Provide affordable, accessible, quality health services, including assistive and adaptive technology, information in Braille, sign language interpretation and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities in rural areas.

Nicaragua (2024)

52. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) Las barreras que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad para acceder a los servicios de salud, entre las que figuran la inaccesibilidad física, las formas de comunicación e información, la falta de ajustes razonables y la falta de capacitación de los profesionales del sector sanitario, especialmente en zonas rurales y remotas;

b) La falta de cobertura suficiente de los servicios sanitarios y la escasez de medicamentos que afectan especialmente a las mujeres en la Costa Caribe;

c) Las altas tasas de mortalidad materna entre las mujeres sin medios suficientes, las mujeres rurales, las mujeres con discapacidad, las mujeres indígenas y afrodescendientes;

d) La prevalencia de embarazos adolescentes de mujeres de entre 15 y 19 años, y de casos de embarazos de niñas menores de 15 años, así como la falta de programas educativos sobre salud sexual y reproductiva entre las mujeres y niñas en general y en especial entre aquellas con discapacidad, y que su política en este rubro se limite a la provisión de anticoncepción y la ampliación de servicios de casas maternas.

53. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 25 de la Convención y las metas 3.7 y 3.8 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Garantizar que todas las personas con discapacidad tengan acceso a servicios de salud de calidad, con perspectiva de género e intercultural, tanto en zonas rurales como remotas entre otras cosas asegurando que se apliquen las normas de accesibilidad y se realicen ajustes razonables, que los equipos y el mobiliario sean adaptados a las necesidades específicas de cada discapacidad, y que la información sobre los servicios sanitarios se facilite en formatos accesibles como el braille, la lengua de señas y los formatos de lectura fácil y se capacite al personal sanitario en el trato correcto a las personas con discapacidad;

b) Garantizar que todas las personas con discapacidad tengan acceso a servicios de atención médica oportunos y de calidad tanto en áreas rurales como urbanas, incluyendo el acceso a medicamentos y servicios de rehabilitación;

c) Investigar y abordar las causas de las altas tasas de mortalidad materna, estableciendo medidas preventivas que incluyan la capacitación a parteras rurales e indígenas;

d) Fomentar la educación sexual y reproductiva adecuada, brindar información y servicios sobre planificación familiar, especialmente a mujeres y niñas con discapacidad con el objetivo de evitar los embarazos precoces.

Sweden (2024)

55. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That compared to the general population, persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, persons with disabilities living in remote areas, persons with disabilities living in institutions and children and women with disabilities, are in significantly poorer health, have higher rates of mortality and suicides, and face barriers in accessing health services, including sexual and reproductive health, dental care, information and equipment;

(b) About a gradual return to a medical approach to disability, and the lack of measures taken to ensure that individual needs, preferences and self-determination are respected.

56. Recalling the link between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, persons with disabilities living in remote areas, persons with disabilities living in institutions and children and women with disabilities, have access to information on an equal basis with others and to affordable, accessible, quality and culturally sensitive medical equipment and health services, including sexual, reproductive and mental health services;

(b) Strengthen the requirements for systematic participation of persons with disabilities in the planning, design, monitoring and evaluation of accessibility, care processes and working methods in healthcare, and strengthen the implementation of the human rights model of disability.

Zambia (2024)

49. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the limited access of persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities to sexual and reproductive health-care services, and to sensitization and awareness-raising programmes on HIV/AIDS;

(b) At the insufficiency of mental health services for persons with disabilities as part of general health services;

(c) At the lack of availability of medication and protective items, including sunscreen and sunglasses, for persons with albinism across health services;

(d) At the lack of training for medical professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services, including to sensitization and awareness-raising on HIV/AIDS, and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual and/or disabilities and women with psychosocial disabilities so they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;

(b) Ensure availability of mental health services and allocate adequate resources for quality facilities and services of mental health care provision;

(c) Take appropriate measures to address the challenges of adequately providing health services for persons with albinism in view of their health needs, including the provision of sunglasses and appropriate sunscreen as an essential product for prevention and treatment of skin cancer;

(d) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, including ensuring the physical accessibility of health facilities and equipment.

Andorra (2023)

51. The Committee notes that Act No. 20/2017 on the rights and duties of users and professionals of the healthcare system and on medical records (2017) recognizes the right to information of persons with disabilities. Nevertheless, it is concerned about the following: (

- a) Article 16 of the Act Guaranteeing the Rights of Persons with Disabilities allows the consent given by a representative of the person with disabilities if the applicable law requires it;
- (b) The barriers faced by persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, in accessing health-care services, which include inaccessible health-care facilities and information, and lack of reasonable accommodation;
- (c) The limited access to sexual and reproductive health-care services for persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, and the lack of information on the incorporation of the disability perspective in the actions carried out by the Integral Service for the Attention of Women (SIAD);
- (d) The insufficient training for health-care personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review article 16 of the Act Guaranteeing the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and other legislation and health-care policies, ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent for any medical and surgical treatment, on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Strengthen action plans to ensure the accessibility and availability of quality health services, information and equipment for persons with disabilities, including the provision of reasonable accommodation by public and private health-care providers;
- (c) Ensure gender-sensitive and disability-inclusive sexual and reproductive health-care services for persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, and guarantee the incorporation of the disability perspective in the actions carried out by the Integral Service for the Attention of Women (SIAD);
- (d) Integrate a human rights model of disability into the systematic training of health professionals.

Austria (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The negative impact of seemingly structural deficiencies of child and adolescent mental health services on children and adolescents with disabilities, particularly pronounced after the COVID-19 pandemic, and about the lack of reliable information and data on it;
- (b) Restrictive access of women and girls with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities in institutions, to sexual and reproductive health services, including contraception, and sex education;
- (c) The lack of qualified sign language interpretation services in the provision of health services for persons with disabilities, including for refugee and stateless persons with disabilities, and persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations;
- (d) The inaccessibility, including physical inaccessibility, of many health facilities and services.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Significantly improve access to mental health services for persons with disabilities, especially for children with disabilities, and collect data on the provision of such services and their results, disaggregated by age, sex, region and type of impairment;
- (b) Ensure access for women and girls with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities in institutions, to sexual and reproductive health services, including contraception, and sex education;
- (c) Provide quality sign language interpretation in health services to persons with disabilities, including refugees and stateless persons with disabilities and persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations;
- (d) Effectively guarantee accessibility, including physical accessibility, of health facilities and services.

Germany (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of accessibility and trained health practitioners on communication and on providing information in accessible methods and formats in the health care facilities, in particular for women with disabilities and in rural areas and the fact that persons with disabilities may have to travel long distances to obtain accessible medical services;
- (b) The fact that persons with psychosocial disability, persons with intellectual disability and deaf and hard of hearing persons are less likely to receive quality health care due to the lack of training of, and discriminatory approach taken by, health professionals;
- (c) The absence of legal provisions, in particular in the Civil Code BGB, concerning the delivery of medical information for persons with disabilities in accessible formats to ensure their free and informed consent is obtained prior to any medical intervention on an equal basis with others;
- (d) The access to health services for asylum seekers, who may receive acute care but not “complementary” services such as physiotherapy, occupational therapy, and mental health treatment.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take measures to guarantee the availability and accessibility of health services across the Länder, in particular for women with disabilities and in rural areas, without discrimination, by identifying and removing barriers and providing accessible medical equipment;
- (b) Strengthen mechanisms for the regular training of health professionals about human rights, dignity, autonomy and the requirements of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Enforce regulations on the legal protection of persons with disabilities against discrimination in health-care services and define standardized protocols concerning the delivery of medical information to persons with disabilities and their free and informed consent for medical interventions in accordance with the Convention and the Committee’s general comment No. 1 (2014);
- (d) Ensure asylum seekers with disabilities have access to comprehensive health services upon their arrival on an equal basis with others.

Israel (2023)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Insufficient measures to respond to situations of mental distress among children and adolescents with disabilities in conflict affected areas;
- (b) Lack of access to health care for persons with disabilities, limited public health services and financial constraints to access private health services, particularly affecting persons with disabilities in Arab communities and persons with disabilities requiring complex support needs;
- (c) Barriers for women and girls with disabilities to access sexual and reproductive health services, including in cases of sexual violence;
- (d) Attitudinal barriers among the medical profession concerning access to health by persons with disabilities;
- (e) Discrimination in the provision of health and life insurance by private companies.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Strengthen measures to address the detrimental health impacts of the protracted occupation, hostilities, violence and insecurity on children with disabilities and ensure that programmes and support measures address the situation of children with disabilities in Arab communities and are accessible for all children with disabilities;
- (b) Increase budget allocations for improving accessibility of health services and facilities for persons with disabilities, and adopt programmes at the national and local level to provide affordable, accessible, quality and culturally sensitive health services, including assistive and adaptive technology;

- (c) Implement measures to provide women and girls with disabilities with appropriate and accessible sexual and reproductive health services, and ensure that responses and counselling in cases of gender-based violence are accessible, inclusive, and age- and gender-appropriate;
- (d) Ensure that the human rights-based approach to disability and the respect for the dignity, autonomy and requirements of persons with disabilities are included in the training curricula of all medical and health professionals;
- (e) Take all legislative, policy and administrative measures to provide health insurance for all persons with disabilities without discrimination.

Malawi (2023)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of specific provisions on disability to address stigma, prejudice and discriminatory attitudes affecting persons with disabilities in policy instruments adopted by the Ministry of Health;
- (b) Information indicating that women and girls with disabilities experience discriminatory and dismissive attitudes by medical health professionals in seeking healthcare for pregnancy and sexual and reproductive health, which is often fuelled by stigma that women with disabilities should not be engaging in sexual relations;
- (c) Barriers for persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to participate in the development of health-related legislations and policies including in the development of the recent Health Sector Strategic plan II;
- (d) Unavailability of medicine, including protective and sun screen, for persons with albinism across health services.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure specific provisions in the existing health legislations, policies and programmes which address stigma, prejudice and discriminatory attitudes by health personnel against persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities who seek sexual and reproductive health services;
- (b) Raise awareness among health personnel at all levels and particularly the nurses on the health rights of persons with disabilities, including through appropriate training;
- (c) Ensure close consultations and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in the development of health-related legislation, policies and programmes to reaffirm the effective inclusion of their concerns in relation to health ;
- (d) Take appropriate measures to address the challenges in adequately providing health services to persons with albinism in terms of their health needs and in providing the necessary health services for persons with psychosocial disabilities by addressing the acute shortage of the necessary medical personnel;
- (e) Address the problem of inaccessible built environment and equipment in health facilities both in rural and urban areas including providing appropriate beds for women with physical disabilities in labour wards.

Mauritania (2023)

43. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That persons with disabilities must obtain a Disability Card to benefit from subsidized health care, and currently only 13 per cent of persons with disabilities in the State party obtained a Disability Card;
- (b) Despite the adoption of health protocols, standards and procedure on reproductive health, persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with intellectual disabilities and women and girls with psychosocial disabilities, face barriers in accessing sexual and reproductive health-care services;

(c) The lack of awareness among health-care service providers and medical staff of the rights of persons with disabilities and the absence of accessible forms of communication with users of health services;

44. The Committee recalls the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Simplify the administrative measures for obtaining the Disability Card and for becoming affiliated with the social security system, and establish regional and local bodies to facilitate the application and issuance of the Disability Card;

(b) Provide access for persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, to sexual and reproductive health-care services, on an equal basis with others, and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual disabilities and women with psychosocial disabilities to enable them to exercise their sexual and reproductive rights and self-determination;

(c) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, throughout the territory of the State party, in particular in rural areas, including on their skills, support measures, and means and methods of information and communication, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, and women and girls with disabilities.

Mongolia (2023)

49. The Committee remains concerned about the limited access for persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, to sexual and reproductive health, particularly in rural and remote areas. It also remains concerned at the lack of progress made to ensure that persons with disabilities exercise their right to free and informed consent.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee reiterates its previous recommendation (CRPD/C/MNG/CO/1, para.39) and recommends that the State party take measures to ensure access for all persons with disabilities to health services, in particular sexual and reproductive health services, maternal and child health services, in particular in rural and remote areas. The Committee also recommends that the State party takes measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, regardless of the nature of their impairment, have the right to free and informed consent.

Paraguay (2023)

45. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) Las barreras que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad para acceder a los servicios de salud, entre las que figuran la inaccesibilidad física, las formas de comunicación e información, la falta de ajustes razonables y la falta de capacitación de los profesionales del sector sanitario, especialmente en zonas rurales y remotas, situación que se agudizó durante la pandemia;

b) Que los servicios de salud y rehabilitación para personas con discapacidad se encuentren dependiendo de la SENADIS y no del Ministerio de Salud Pública y Bienestar Social;

c) La centralización de los servicios de salud para las personas con discapacidad, así como la falta de implementación del Eje/área 12 del Plan de Acción Nacional para los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad, lo que afecta a las personas con discapacidad, especialmente a las personas indígenas y a aquellas que viven en regiones remotas y rurales;

d) La falta de reglamentación y control de los seguros de salud privados quienes se niegan a cubrir a las personas con discapacidad;

e) La limitada implementación del Plan Nacional de Salud Sexual y Salud Reproductiva 2019-2023 y la falta de aprobación del proyecto de Ley sobre Salud Sexual, Reproductiva, Maternal y Perinatal;

f) Que en la Ley No. 7018/2022 de Salud Mental persista el modelo médico de la discapacidad.

46. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 25 de la Convención y las metas 3.7 y 3.8 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Garantizar que todas las personas con discapacidad tengan acceso a servicios de salud de calidad, con perspectiva de género e intercultural, entre otras cosas asegurando que se apliquen las normas de accesibilidad y realicen ajustes razonables, y que la información se facilite en formatos accesibles como el braille, la lengua de señas y los formatos de lectura fácil y se capacite al personal de salud en el trato correcto a las personas con discapacidad;
b) Realizar las acciones pertinentes para que los servicios de salud y rehabilitación para las personas con discapacidad dependan del Ministerio de Salud Pública y Bienestar Social y no de la SENADIS;

c) Implementar las acciones necesarias para lograr la descentralización de los servicios de salud para que sean accesibles a las personas con discapacidad, especialmente aquellas que viven en regiones remotas y rurales, dando especial enfoque a la atención de las personas indígenas con discapacidad;

d) Reformar la legislación para sancionar a los seguros médicos privados que le rechacen la cobertura a personas con discapacidad;

e) Acelerar la implementación del Plan Nacional de Salud Sexual y Salud Reproductiva 2019-2023 y aprobar el proyecto de Ley sobre Salud Sexual, Reproductiva, Maternal y Perinatal a la brevedad posible;

f) Ajustar la Ley N.º 7018/2022 de Salud Mental y su reglamento al modelo de la discapacidad basado en derechos humanos de la Convención.

Angola (2023)

41. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Information about barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to health-care services and equipment, including physical barriers faced by persons with vision impairments and attitudinal barriers and the lack of solar protection and skin cancer preventive measures for persons with albinism;

(b) The lack of specific access to sexual and reproductive health-care services for persons with disabilities, particularly all women with disabilities, including those with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;

(c) Information about the lack of awareness of health-care service managers and medical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, including persons with hearing impairments, and the lack of accessible communication with users of health services;

(d) The obstacles for persons with disabilities in procuring specific medication, as well as long delays for scheduling and waiting for medical appointments;

(e) That persons with disabilities have faced obstacles in gaining access to health care throughout the COVID-19 pandemic;

(f) The insufficient early intervention and alternative care with regard to leprosy, including support from families;

(g) That between 2019 and 2020, only 454 persons with disabilities were referred by MASFAMU to various services, with references on health.

42. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen action plans to ensure the accessibility and availability of health services including preventive services and equipment for persons with disabilities, including protection and treatment for persons with albinism;

(b) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services and ensure supported decision-making for women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities so that they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy;

- (c) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, support measures and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for those persons, particularly persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and women and girls with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure that there is available medication for disability related health conditions;
- (e) Provide all persons with disabilities with access to all the health-care services available for the general population during the COVID-19 pandemic, prioritising access to diagnostic, vaccination and recovery treatments;
- (f) Intensify campaigns on leprosy awareness to destigmatize leprosy and encourage early use of health services by all members of the community.

Argentina (2023)

47. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) Las barreras que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad para acceder a los servicios de salud, entre las que figuran la inaccesibilidad de los establecimientos de salud, las formas de comunicación e información, la falta de ajustes razonables y los prejuicios de los profesionales del sector sanitario;
- b) La Ley 25.929 sobre parto humanizado y la Ley 26.862 sobre reproducción asistida no incorporan la perspectiva de discapacidad;
- c) Las brechas en la provisión de servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva entre las distintas provincias, incluyendo en materia de accesibilidad de los servicios de ginecología y obstetricia, incluidas instalaciones, mobiliario y equipos, así como el poco acceso a información en formatos accesibles sobre métodos anticonceptivos y prevención de enfermedades de transmisión sexual;
- d) Que la línea 0800 Salud Sexual no sea accesible a todas las personas con discapacidad;
- e) La Ley 26.529 de derechos del paciente señala que, en el supuesto de incapacidad del paciente, o imposibilidad de brindar el consentimiento informado a causa de su estado físico o psíquico, el consentimiento puede ser reemplazado por familiares o representantes legales;
- f) El insuficiente avance en el marco de la Ley Nacional de Salud Mental, debido entre otras cosas, a la fragmentación del sistema de salud; la persistencia del modelo médico en las reformas en salud mental; a que casi la mitad de las provincias no cuentan con órganos de revisión local de salud mental, la falta de servicios y apoyos de salud basados en la comunidad, y el insuficiente presupuesto asignado a la Estrategia Federal de Abordaje Integral de la Salud Mental;
- g) La insuficiencia de los subsidios para sufragar los costos médicos de las personas con discapacidad;
- h) La limitada información sobre los beneficios y riesgos del medicamento Voxzogo, utilizado para aumentar el crecimiento de las personas de talla baja, y la falta de regulación y seguimiento de su uso.

48. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 25 de la Convención y las metas 3.7 y 3.8 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Garantizar que todas las personas con discapacidad tengan acceso a servicios de salud de calidad, con perspectiva de género e intercultural, entre otras cosas asegurando que los proveedores de atención de la salud públicos y privados apliquen las normas de accesibilidad y realicen ajustes razonables, y que la información sobre los servicios sanitarios se facilite en formatos accesibles para las personas con discapacidad, como el braille, la lengua de señas y los formatos de lectura fácil;
- b) Integrar un modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos en la formación sistemática de los profesionales de la salud;
- c) Incorporar la perspectiva de discapacidad en la Ley 25.929 y en la Ley 26.862 y facilitar los apoyos necesarios a las gestantes con discapacidad;

- d) En el marco del Programa Salud Sexual y Procreación Responsable, incrementar esfuerzos para que las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad en todas las provincias puedan acceder a servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva de calidad y apropiados para la edad, incluyendo instalaciones, mobiliario y equipos accesibles en los servicios de ginecología y obstetricia y el acceso a información en formatos accesibles sobre métodos anticonceptivos y prevención de enfermedades de transmisión sexual;
- e) Garantizar la accesibilidad de los mecanismos de información y comunicación sobre salud sexual y reproductiva, incluyendo la Línea 0800, para las niñas y mujeres con distintas discapacidades;
- f) Revisar la Ley 26.529 (artículo 6) a fin de reconocer el derecho de todas las personas con discapacidad a que se exija su consentimiento informado para cualquier tratamiento médico;
- g) Acelerar el cierre de hospitales psiquiátricos públicos y privados en todas las jurisdicciones y la implementación de servicios y apoyos de salud mental en la comunidad en línea con la Convención y en estrecha consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad psicosocial; avanzar en un modelo de atención unificado en materia de salud mental; asegurar que todas las provincias cuenten con órganos de revisión local de salud mental, y que la Estrategia Federal de Abordaje Integral de la Salud Mental cuente con los recursos suficientes para su implementación;
- h) Incrementar los subsidios para asumir los costos médicos de la discapacidad, en particular de quienes requieren un apoyo más intenso;
- i) Investigar de manera adecuada los beneficios y riesgos asociados con el Vozzogo, regular y dar seguimiento efectivo al uso de este medicamento.

Georgia (2023)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Domestic legislation infringing on the right to sexual and reproductive rights of women and girls with disabilities, including the right to retain fertility, on equal basis with others;
- (b) Information that women with disabilities are significantly less likely to receive quality health care due to lack of training and a discriminatory approach of medical staff. They are disproportionately affected by barriers such as lack of information and accessibility, particularly concerning their sexual and reproductive health;
- (c) Discriminatory language in health care laws, contributing to disability stigma;
- (d) The absence of priority testing for persons with disabilities during the COVID-19 pandemic, and a lack of information about ensuring access to health services in the recovery plans.

52. The Committee recommends the State party to:

- (a) Give effect to all provisions in the Convention about the right to health, in domestic legislation and health care policies, ensuring the recognition of sexual and reproductive health and rights of women with disabilities, including their right to retain fertility, on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Strengthen mechanisms for regular training of medical personnel about human rights, dignity, autonomy and the requirements of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities; take measures to guarantee the availability of health services for women with disabilities, without discrimination, by identifying and removing barriers and providing accessible medical equipment, including adapted gynaecological chairs;
- (c) Rid the legislative framework on health services of discriminatory language, enforce regulations on legal protection against discrimination in health care services, and define the meaning of informed consent in accordance with the Convention and the Committee's General comment No. 1 (2014) on Equal recognition before the Law;
- (d) Ensure that recovery plans after the COVID-19 pandemic include measures to address barriers and prioritize health care, including testing, for persons with disabilities.

Peru (2023)

50. Al Comité le preocupa el hecho de que las personas con discapacidad que están afiliadas al Seguro Integral de Salud (SIS) no tengan acceso a los servicios de salud integrales, incluyendo los servicios de salud especializados y que no se respete el requisito al consentimiento libre e informado en todas las intervenciones médicas y no se apliquen las voluntades anticipadas y el acceso a los apoyos, tal y como establece la normativa vigente.

51. El Comité insta al Estado parte a que establezca regulaciones en el Seguro Integral de Salud (SIS) para fortalecer la oferta y cobertura de servicios de salud para las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo los servicios especializados y los requeridos por las personas con enfermedades crónicas y las que viven con enfermedades poco frecuentes, y a que garantice el cumplimiento del requisito de consentimiento libre e informado con respecto a todas las personas con discapacidad, incluso en los servicios de salud mental, y aplique las voluntades anticipadas y el acceso a los apoyos.

Togo (2023)

49. The Committee is concerned at the limited access of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, to sexual and reproductive health-care services, including those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, as well as at the lack of training for medical professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual and/or disabilities and women with psychosocial disabilities so they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;

(b) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, including ensuring the physical accessibility of health facilities and equipment.

Tunisia (2023)

45. The Committee is concerned that for persons with disabilities to benefit from either free health care or reduced rates, they have to obtain a disability card and be affiliated to the social security system, conditions which constitute a barrier that limits the enjoyment of these benefits by persons with disabilities. It is further concerned that the preference and will of persons with disabilities in regard to health service provision is not observed particularly for persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, as the code of medical ethics article 103 authorises the health professional to have the agreement of the guardian or legal representative to make decision without the consent of the person concerned. It is further concerned that specialised medical services are only available in the major cities, hindering the access to these services of persons with disabilities from the rural and remote areas, further complicated by the absence of safe public transport outside urban areas.

46. The Committee recommends the State party to:

(a) Simplify the administrative measures for obtaining the disability card and for affiliation to the social security system;

(b) Put in place measures, including amending Decree 93 of the medical ethics to align it with the Convention, to ensure that health services and treatments, particularly sexual and reproductive health services, are provided to persons with disabilities including person with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities on the basis of their free will and informed consent;

(c) Train doctors and other health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, throughout the territory of the State party, including in rural areas;

(d) Take all appropriate measures to ensure all persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, have access to the full variety of health and rehabilitation services in their own communities, including rural areas to avoid their having to travel far to the urban centres for these services.

Bangladesh (2022)

49. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of accessible hospitals and health centres for persons with disabilities, especially persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, women and girls with disabilities, persons with disabilities who belong to minorities, persons affected by leprosy, and migrants and refugees with disabilities;
- (b) Deficient health-care services for women and girls with disabilities, including those relating to sexual and reproductive health rights and HIV/AIDS prevention;
- (c) The lack of meaningful consultation and effective participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities, in the preparation of health policies and programmes, including in the new health policy that the State party is developing;
- (d) Insufficient budgetary allocations in the health-care system for the training of health professionals to understand the requirements of persons with disabilities.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a national strategy on accessible quality health-care services, including accessible hospitals and health centres for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, women and girls with disabilities, persons with disabilities who belong to minorities, persons affected by leprosy, migrants and refugees with disabilities;
- (b) Take concrete measures to provide women and girls with disabilities appropriate and accessible information on sexual and reproductive health and HIV/AIDS prevention, including counselling that is accessible, inclusive, and age-gender-sensitive;
- (c) Ensure the meaningful consultation and effective participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities, in the preparation of health policies and programmes, including in the new health policy that the State party is developing;
- (d) Provide budgetary allocations in the health-care system, particularly for training of health professionals on the human rights model of disability and to understand the requirements of persons with disabilities.

China (2022)

52. The Committee regrets the lack of information provided on the measures taken to implement the Committee's previous concluding observations and recommendations (CRPD/C/CHN/CO/1 and Corr.1, para. 38), in particular to ensure that individuals' autonomy, choices, dignity and privacy are respected. It is further concerned about the restrictions for persons with disabilities in access to health care, including sexual and reproductive health services; and about reports of health professionals' non-adherence to the requirement of free and informed consent with regard to persons with disabilities.

53. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure accessibility and availability of healthcare facilities, services and equipment for persons with disabilities across the State party, with specific emphasis on the sexual and reproductive health of women and girls with disabilities; and ensure accessible information and communication for all persons with disabilities in general treatment in the healthcare system;
- (b) Integrate a human rights-based approach to disability into the training curriculum of all health professionals.

Hong-Kong (2022)

75. The Committee is concerned about the reported increase in the number of persons with disabilities experiencing PTSD, anxiety and depression, and the rising rate of suicide, in persons with disabilities. The Committee further notes with concern the lack of a comprehensive, long term mental health strategy to address this context.

76. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong SAR, China allocate sufficient funds to developing a multi-year mental health care plan that includes the establishment of community and human rights-based mental health services and support across Hong Kong SAR, China.

Indonesia (2022)

54. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Information about physical barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to health services and equipment, particularly in rural and remote areas;

(b) The lack of access to sexual and reproductive health services and age-appropriate education for children and adults with disabilities, particularly for indigenous persons with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, including those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities;

(c) Information about persons with disabilities not qualifying as Health Insurance Assistance beneficiaries, according to the Minister of Social Affairs Decree No.146/HUK/2013 on Stipulation of Criteria and Documenting the Poor and Vulnerable People, resulting in lower standards of health services;

55. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen action plans to ensure the accessibility and availability of health services and equipment for persons with disabilities, particularly in rural and remote areas;

(b) Provide children and adults with disabilities, in particular indigenous persons with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health services and age-appropriate education;

(c) Ensure that public health insurance guarantees full coverage of all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

Japan (2022)

53. The Committee notes with concern the:

(a) Barriers faced by persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, in accessing health-care services, including inaccessible health-care facilities and information, lack of reasonable accommodation, and prejudices about persons with disabilities across professionals in the health sector;

(b) Segregation of psychiatric care from general medical care, as provided by the Mental Health and Welfare Act for the Mentally Disabled, and the lack of sufficient community-based, health services and support;

(c) Limited measures to ensure access, on an equal basis with others, to quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and sex education for all persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities;

(d) Insufficient medical expense subsidies for persons with disabilities, including those with more intensive support.

54. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure quality and gender-sensitive health-care services for all persons with disabilities, including by ensuring the implementation of accessibility standards and the provision of reasonable accommodation by public and private health providers;

- (b) Guarantee that information is provided in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including in Braille, sign language and Easy Read, regarding health services;
- (c) Integrate a human rights- model of disability into the training of health professionals, emphasizing that all persons with disabilities have the right to free and informed consent for any medical and surgical treatment;
- (d) Develop, in close consultation with organizations of persons with psychosocial disabilities, non-coercive, community-based mental health support, and adopt the necessary legislative and policy measures to dismantle systems that separate mental health care from general medical care;
- (e) Ensure that high-quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and comprehensive sexuality education are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities;
- (f) Establish a mechanism of medical expense subsidies based on the person's capacity to cover the costs, and expand these subsidies for all persons with disabilities, including those with more intensive support.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

46. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the National Health Insurance Strategy 2017-2020 does not include persons with disabilities in the priority groups, as well as the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health-care services at all levels, especially in rural areas, including physical, communication and financial barriers, and obstacles due to the lack of accessible and affordable public transportation;
- (b) That the majority of healthcare services available to persons with disabilities, is focused on physical disabilities and continue catering to persons affected by UXO accidents, with a strong emphasis on rehabilitation and assistive products;
- (c) The gaps in the provision of healthcare services, being substantial health facilities with more quality services located in Vientiane, as well as limited availability of primary healthcare services for blind or deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and autism;
- (d) The lack of access to sexual and reproductive health-care services for persons with disabilities, particularly all women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (e) The lack of availability and accessibility of human rights-based mental health services;
- (f) The insufficient training of health-care personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities, and the lack of information about protocols for persons with disabilities to exercise and express their free and informed consent with respect to medical treatment;
- (g) Lack of systematization of official statistics on persons with disabilities accessing public healthcare services.

47. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement a strategy, with sufficient human, technical and financial resources, to remove the physical, communication and financial barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health-care services, and guarantee their access to disability- and gender-sensitive health-care services and information, especially in rural areas, and include persons with disabilities as a priority group under the National Health Insurance Strategy 2017-2020;

- (b) Ensure quality and inclusive health care service in all the State party, including rural and remote areas, and for all the diversity of persons with disabilities, including blind or deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and autistic persons;
- (c) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services and ensure supported decision- making for women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities so that they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;

(d) Develop community and human rights-based mental health services and support across the State party;

(e) Provide systematic training to medical personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities, including the human rights model of disability, accessible formats and alternative communication methods, and improve healthcare service information packages, and community engagement with persons with disabilities and their families;

(f) Collect and disaggregate, systematically, data on persons accessing the public health services, by gender, age, and disability.

New Zealand (2022)

49. The Committee is concerned about the poorer health outcomes and life expectancy, compared to the general population, experienced by persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual disabilities, and Māori and Pasifika persons with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party progress development of the Health of Disabled People Strategy and strengthen and expedite measures within the New Zealand Disability Strategy, the Health Services and Outcomes Kaupapa Inquiry and the Pathways to Pacific Health and Wellbeing strategy, to increase access to health services and improve health outcomes for persons with disabilities.

Republic of Korea (2022)

51. The Committee remains concerned that article 732 of the Commercial Act recognizes life insurance contracts for persons with disabilities only if the person “possesses mental capacity”, which constitutes a discrimination against persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that under the Act on the Right to Health of Persons with Disabilities, women’s right to health is limited to pregnancy, childbirth and maternity.

52. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee reiterates its previous recommendation (CRPD/C/KOR/CO/1, para. 47) and recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal article 732 of the Commercial Act and develop and implement specific programs on different aspects of women’s right to health, including access to sexual and reproductive health care and services and mental health services;

(b) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities.

Singapore (2022)

49. The Committee notes with satisfaction the information provided by the State party that it is planning to withdraw its reservation to article 25 (e) of the Convention upon the adoption of the Guidelines for private insurers. However, it is concerned about:

(a) Information on barriers faced by autistic persons in their access to private health and life insurance schemes and the respective conditions;

(b) Barriers in access to sexual and reproductive health-care services for persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;

(c) Information about the lack of awareness by health-care service providers and medical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities and the absence of accessible communication with users of health services;

(d) That persons with disabilities have faced obstacles in gaining access to health care throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular persons with disabilities in places of deprivation of liberty.

50. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Enact legislation ensuring that all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, and autistic persons, have access to health and life insurance on an equal basis with others, and that they are guaranteed equal conditions, without discrimination; and establish an effective monitoring mechanism with adequate measures for the enforcement of this legislation, and remedies and sanctions in cases non-compliance; the Committee encourages the State party to withdraw its reservation to article 25 (e) of the Convention, as planned;

(b) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services, on an equal basis with others, and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities allowing them to exercise their sexual and reproductive rights and self-determination;

(c) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, and women and girls with disabilities;

(d) Provide all persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities deprived of their liberty, with access to all health-care services available for the general population during the COVID-19 pandemic, and ensure priority access to diagnostic, vaccination and recovery treatment for persons with disabilities.

Hungary (2022)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The insufficient accessibility of health-care facilities, services and medical equipment, including physical and informational accessibility, for all persons with disabilities across the State party, particularly for persons with intellectual disabilities and autistic children in general treatment and women with disabilities in relation to their sexual and reproductive health;

(b) The attitudinal barriers and limited knowledge of the rights and requirements of persons with disabilities among health-care professionals.

51. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop action plans to ensure the accessibility and availability of health-care facilities, services and equipment for persons with disabilities across the State Party, with a specific emphasis on the sexual and reproductive health of women with disabilities, as well as on accessible information and communication for autistic persons, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with visual and hearing impairments in general treatment in the health-care system;

(b) Develop training programmes, including in universities and in-service training curricula, for health-care professionals on the needs and rights of persons with disabilities.

Jamaica (2022)

44. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Information about barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to health-care services and equipment, including physical barriers faced by persons with vision impairments;

- (b) The lack of access to sexual and reproductive health-care services for persons with disabilities, particularly all women with disabilities, including those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities;
- (c) Information about the lack of awareness by health-care service managers and medical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, including persons with hearing impairments, and the lack of accessible communication with users of health services;
- (d) The obstacles for persons with disabilities in procuring medicines for the treatment of disability-related health conditions, as they are not considered to be on the essential list, as well as long delays for scheduling and waiting for medical appointments;
- (e) That persons with disabilities have faced obstacles in gaining access to health care throughout the COVID-19 pandemic;
- (f) The insufficient early intervention and alternative care with regard to mental health, including support within families.

45. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen action plans to ensure the accessibility and availability of health-care services and equipment for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Provide persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls, with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities so that they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;
- (c) Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on their skills, support measures, and information and communication means and methods, and provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure that the National Health Fund is comprehensive and covers all essential services and drugs, including those needed to specifically treat disability-related health problems;
- (e) Provide all persons with disabilities with access to all the health-care services available for the general population during the COVID-19 pandemic, ensuring priority access to diagnostic, vaccination and recovery treatments;
- (f) Intensify campaigns on mental health awareness to destigmatize mental health and encourage early use of services by all members of the community.

Mexico (2022)

56. The Committee is concerned about serious restrictions for persons with disabilities in access to health care, including mental health services and sexual and reproductive health services. It is further concerned about legal exceptions to free and informed consent to medical interventions, and about reports of non-adherence to the requirement of free and informed consent with regard to persons with disabilities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Remove legal exceptions to the requirement of free and informed consent of all persons with disabilities to medical interventions, including hospitalization, and ensure adherence to the requirement of free and informed consent with regard to all persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure available, accessible and quality health-care services, including sexual and reproductive health services, for persons with disabilities, particularly for women and girls with disabilities, make hospitals and health centres accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas, and protect pregnant women with disabilities from being pressured to undergo abortions;
- (c) Compile disaggregated data on the access of women with disabilities to safe sexual and reproductive health services, and on infringements on their right to decide on whether to have an abortion;

(d) Provide accessible, effective remedies to persons with disabilities alleging a violation of their rights under article 25, in particular to women with disabilities alleging a violation of their sexual and reproductive health rights.

58. The Committee is concerned about serious curtailments of health services for persons with disabilities during the COVID-19 pandemic, and about a lack of emergency medical services in cases of sexual violence against persons with disabilities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Restore all health services for persons with disabilities that were curtailed during the COVID-19 pandemic, and compile disaggregated data on the effects of the pandemic on the health situation of persons with disabilities and on their access to health services;

(b) Provide emergency medical services for persons with disabilities who are victims of sexual violence.

Switzerland (2022)

49. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to gender-sensitive, accessible health care, including accessibility in primary and specialist health services, the lack of reasonable accommodation, prejudices about persons with disabilities across medical specialities, and fee restrictions that prevent compensation for additional disability-related expenses;

(b) The lack of sufficient community-based, non-coercive mental health services and support, and the fact that 400 new places are being established in mental health institutions;

(c) The insufficient measures to ensure access, on an equal basis with others, to high-quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and sex education for all persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to high-quality, gender-sensitive and affordable health-care services at the federal and cantonal levels without discrimination, including by ensuring the implementation of accessibility standards and the provision of reasonable accommodation by public and private health providers;

(b) Develop professional training and continuing education for public and private health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities and the requirement for accessibility and reasonable accommodation in all aspects of health-care provision;

(c) Take effective measures to eliminate fee restrictions that prevent compensation for additional disability-related expenses;

(d) Develop, in close consultation with organizations of persons with psychosocial disabilities, non-coercive, community-based mental health support, in all cantons, that is based on the principles and standards of the Convention;

(e) Ensure that high-quality, age-appropriate sexual and reproductive health services and sex education are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities and those still in institutions.

Venezuela (2022)

44. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of information about the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities in terms of the implementation of preventive measures and accessibility of the physical environment, information and communications, trained personnel in health-care centres and disaggregated data on how many persons with disabilities contracted the virus, how many required a mechanical ventilator and how many died;

(b) The shortage of medicines, which is causing severe complications such as ulcer infections in persons with spinal cord injuries;

(c) Insufficient technical, human and economic measures and resources for guaranteeing access to sexual and reproductive health for persons with disabilities, especially women and children with disabilities.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Carry out a specific study on the extent to which persons with disabilities have been affected by the pandemic, including whether they were consulted about the implementation of preventive measures, how many contracted the virus, how many had access to a mechanical ventilator, how sequelae were monitored and how many died;

(b) Adopt measures and allocate technical resources to ensure the accessibility of the physical environment, equipment, information and communications in all places where health-care services are provided and to ensure the availability of information in accessible means and modes, including documents in Braille and Easy Read, trained personnel and certified sign language interpreters;

(c) Take specific measures to avoid medical complications for persons with disabilities as a result of the shortage of medicines;

(d) Design specific health-care protocols for persons with disabilities, especially training programmes on sexual and reproductive health, with a cross-cutting gender and intersectional perspective

Djibouti (2021)

43. The Committee notes with concern:

Lack of a comprehensive policy to effectively implement provision of the Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018) to tackle barriers faced persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas and in refugee camps, in accessing quality public health-care services and the lack of accessibility to health-care facilities;

Lack of access to sexual and reproductive health-related services for persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities;

Lack of measures adopted to ensure the right to free and informed consent of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, with respect to medical treatment and intervention;

Lack of an action plan to provide training for health-care personnel and traditional healers on the rights of persons with disabilities, in line with article 30 of Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018);

Lack of information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Develop and adopt comprehensive policy, with clear targets and sufficient budget allocation, to ensure provision of quality public health-care services to persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas and refugee camps, and ensure their accessibility to health-care facilities, services and information;

Provide women and girls with disabilities with access to sexual and reproductive health-care, including in rural areas and in refugee camps;

Integrate the rights based approach to disability into the training curriculum of health-care professionals, emphasizing that all persons with disabilities have the right to free and informed consent;

Provide information in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities.

France (2021)

52. The Committee notes with concern the information about insufficient access of persons with disabilities to vaccines against COVID-19, particularly for persons with disabilities still in institutions, and prevailing barriers to accessibility of health services by persons with disabilities, particularly:

That universal design and accommodations for persons with disabilities, particularly hard of hearing or deaf persons remain insufficient;

Barriers in access health care for persons in institutions and in penitentiary settings, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic;

Obstacles facing women with disabilities to access sexual and reproductive health, access to sexual education, contraception and gynaecological services;

Lack of awareness and training of medical and health administrative staff about diversity and rights of persons with disabilities.

53. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure equal access to persons with disabilities to vaccines against COVID-19 and to ensure accessibility of health services for persons with disabilities:

Ensure the development and promote investment in universal design of medical devices, equipment as well as health care facilities and reinforce measures to provide persons with disabilities with information about health care in accessible formats;

Ensure that plans for recovery include measures to ensure access of persons with disabilities to health care, paying particular attention to persons still in institutions, penitentiary facilities;

Provide women and girls with disabilities with appropriate and accessible sexual and reproductive health care, and consult with organizations of women with disabilities about gaps and measures to ensure progress in this regards;

Develop awareness and training programs, including in health-related higher education curriculums, for medical and health administrative staff about diversity and rights of persons with disabilities in close cooperation with organisations of persons with disabilities.

Estonia (2021)

48. The Committee notes with concern:

Information about barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to health-care services and equipment, including physical barriers faced by persons with vision impairments;

That women with disabilities subject to guardianship face greater barriers in gaining access to sexual and reproductive health-related services and to expressing their free and informed consent concerning health treatments;

Information about the lack of awareness of health-care service managers and medical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, including persons with hearing impairments, and the lack of accessible communication with users of health services;

Reports indicating that persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support receive lower-quality health services;

That persons with disabilities have faced obstacles in gaining access to health care throughout the COVID-19 pandemic;

The lack of information about protocols for persons with disabilities to exercise and express their free and informed consent with respect to medical treatment.

49. Taking into account the links between article 25 of the Convention and targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

Strengthen action plans to ensure the accessibility and availability of health-care services and equipment for persons with disabilities;

Provide women and girls with disabilities with access to sexual and reproductive health care and services and ensure supported decision-making for women with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities so that they can reaffirm their sexual and reproductive autonomy and self-determination;

Develop training for health-care professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including their skills, support measures and information and communication means and methods;

Allocate human, technical and financial resources for the development of quality health services and for health-related supervision for persons requiring higher levels of support;

Provide all persons with disabilities with access to all the health-care services available for the general population during the COVID-19 pandemic, ensuring priority access to diagnostic, vaccination and recovery treatments;

Ensure that persons with disabilities can gain access to medical services on the basis of their free and informed consent.

Albania (2019)

41. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient accessible health care services and facilities in the community for persons with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual disabilities and those that require extensive support. It is particularly concerned about the lack of:

Information on achievements of the National Health Strategy (2017–2021) together with the National Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities (2016–2020) and Action Plan for the Development of Mental Health Services in Albania (2013–2022), particularly with regard to the sufficiency of programmes for early identification, for autistic persons, and for persons with disabilities living in rural areas;

Measures taken to ensure access of persons with disabilities, particularly older persons, Roma persons, and women and girls with disabilities, to comprehensive health-care services, including concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights, on an equal basis with others.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Review plans and strategies and take effective and coordinated measures to ensure that health services adhere to the Convention;

Ensure, in practice, access to health care for persons with disabilities, including older persons, and Roma persons with disabilities, as well as early identification and intervention for children with disabilities and access to accessible health care services for all persons with disabilities;

Effectively ensure and monitor that health services providers offer health services to persons with disabilities without discrimination and on an equal basis with others by making the necessary equipment and instruments, assistive technologies included, available and accessible in order for persons with disabilities, particularly women, to access services, including reproductive health services, as close to home as possible, in close consultation with representative organisations of persons with disabilities.

Australia (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about the fact that, compared to the general population, persons with disabilities, in particular persons with disabilities living in remote areas, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, persons with disabilities living in institutions and children and women with disabilities, are in significantly poorer health and have less access to information and to adequate, affordable and accessible health services and equipment.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to article 25 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals and ensure that:

All persons with disabilities, in particular persons with disabilities living in remote areas, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, persons with disabilities living in institutions and women and children with disabilities, have access to information on an equal basis with others and to affordable, accessible, quality and culturally sensitive medical equipment and health services, including sexual, reproductive and mental health services;

All health-care services are based on a non-discriminatory, human rights model of disability and that any medical treatment is provided with the free and informed consent of the person concerned prior to any medical treatment;

Health-care practitioners receive training on the human rights model of disability to enhance their capacity to provide accessible, quality health care to persons with disabilities.

Ecuador (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned that:

Health programmes do not expressly include persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls living in rural communities and areas;

The physical environment, information and communications for health care have not been made accessible, and public programmes and policies are predominantly welfare-based;

Insufficient technical, human and economic measures and resources are in place for guaranteeing access to sexual and reproductive health for persons with disabilities, especially girls, adolescents and women with disabilities, and disability prevention measures continue to be prioritized as a means of implementing the right to health.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Design specific health-care protocols for persons with disabilities based on a cross-cutting gender and intersectional perspective;

Adopt measures and allocate technical resources to ensure the accessibility of the physical environment, infrastructure, information and communications in all places where health-care services are provided and to ensure the availability of information in accessible means and modes, including Braille, trained personnel and accredited sign language interpreters;
Exclude disability prevention measures, which do not form part of the implementation of the Convention.

El Salvador (2019)

48. The Committee is concerned that the State party highlights various programmes to contribute to women's health, but makes no specific reference to access to health insurance on an equal basis with others and access to sexual and reproductive health services for girls and women with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, and deaf, blind and deafblind persons. The Committee remains concerned at the lack of adaption to health-care infrastructure and equipment.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that in its nationwide health programmes, including its sexual and reproductive health programmes, it include persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, and deaf, blind and deafblind persons. It also recommends that persons with disabilities have access to health insurance on an equal basis with others. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate resources to ensure accessibility of health services and equipment and that medical professionals be duly trained on the rights of persons with disabilities when providing them with treatment and counselling, in both urban and rural locations.

Greece (2019)

36. The Committee is concerned about:

The insufficient access of persons with disabilities to health service facilities and medical equipment;
The insufficient measures taken to effectively guarantee persons with disabilities, particularly older persons with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, access to comprehensive health-care services (see also the report of the Commissioner for Human Rights of the Council of Europe, Dunja Mijatović, following her visit to Greece from 25 to 29 June 2018, para. 117), including sexual and reproductive health services, on an equal basis with others.

37. The Committee recommends that, taking into account targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

Put in place a stable, continuous, long-term strategy containing effective and harmonized measures to guarantee persons with disabilities access to health services;

Effectively monitor the implementation of the provision of health services by health service providers to persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others. The Committee also recommends that the State party render health facilities, equipment and instruments accessible, particularly to ensure that women and girls with disabilities have access to sexual and reproductive health services in urban and rural areas.

India (2019)

52. The Committee is concerned about:

The lack of gender-sensitive programmes on sexual and reproductive health and rights for women and girls with disabilities;

The insufficient coverage of the national health protection scheme in relation to persons with disabilities, and lack of affordable insurance for persons with intellectual disabilities;

Discrimination in disability-related health-care services in national health-care schemes, particularly affecting persons affected by leprosy and women and girls with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adhere to article 25 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals;

Adopt measures to provide women and girls with disabilities with appropriate and accessible sexual and reproductive health care, and ensure that response and counselling in cases of gender-based violence against women and girls with disabilities is accessible, inclusive and age- and gender-sensitive;

Ensure universal health-care coverage and access for all persons with disabilities in rural and urban areas;

Adopt measures to ensure equal access to health services and non-discrimination in the provision of disability-related health-care services in national health-care schemes, including for persons affected by leprosy and women and girls with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, ensuring that service providers facilitate access to health services.

Iraq (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned that:

Persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, children with disabilities, persons with disabilities living in rural areas and persons with disabilities who are internally displaced, have insufficient access to health-care services, health facilities and medical equipment;

Persons with disabilities are not provided with accessible information on health care and hence cannot access the health-care system on an equal basis with others;

Women and girls with disabilities face challenges in accessing health-care services, including sexual and reproductive health services, as a result of the considerable distances to health-care centres, the physical, financial and attitudinal barriers and the lack of accessible information on health-care services;

Medical and paramedical staff are insufficiently trained on the rights of persons with disabilities.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Increase the number and strengthen the capacity of comprehensive community-based health-care services to provide services for persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, children with disabilities, persons with disabilities living in rural areas and persons with disabilities who are internally displaced;

Ensure that information on health-care services is available to persons with disabilities in accessible formats;

Take measures to ensure universal coverage of health-care services, including sexual and reproductive health care services, for all women and girls with disabilities, in line with article 15 (1) of Law No. 38 (2013);

Allocate sufficient human, technical and financial resources to implement articles 3 (6) and (8) and 9 (h) (1) of Law No. 38 (2013) and to train medical and paramedical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on the right to free and informed consent and the right to access the health-care system on an equal basis with others.

Kuwait (2019)

48. The Committee is concerned about:

Insufficient access to quality and affordable health-care services for Bidoon and non-Kuwaiti children and adults with disabilities, who are therefore obliged to seek private health care at their own expense;

The shortage of health professionals trained in the rights of persons with disabilities;

The fact that the State party, including during the dialogue and in its initial report submitted to the Committee, does not clearly separate those issues that affect all aspects of the lives of persons with disabilities from issues that pertain strictly to their health – including access to health-care facilities, services and equipment, access to information and to accessible formats, modes and means of communication, and the training of personnel – and that there is a narrow focus on habilitation and rehabilitation.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure that all persons with disabilities, including Bidoon and non-Kuwaiti children with disabilities, can access health-care services, including sexual and reproductive health-care services, throughout the State party;

Build the capacity of health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including their right to give their free and informed consent, through systematic training and awareness-raising programmes;

Take the measures necessary to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to health facilities, services and equipment, including physical accessibility, and access to information and to accessible formats, modes and means of communication, and train staff on the health requirements of persons with disabilities.

Myanmar (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about:

The barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health-care services, especially in rural areas, including physical, communication, and financial barriers;

The lack of systematic training of health-care personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt and implement a strategy, with sufficient human, technical and financial resources, to remove physical, communication, and financial barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health-care services, and guarantee their access to disability- and gender-sensitive health-care services and information, especially in rural areas;

Provide systematic training to medical personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities, including the human rights model of disability and alternative communication methods.

Cuba (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned about the deficiencies in access to health-care services for persons with disabilities and the lack of knowledge among health care personnel concerning the specific requirements and rights of persons with disabilities.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party implement measures to guarantee accessible health-care services for all persons with disabilities, including information on sexual and reproductive health and specifically for persons living in rural areas on an equal basis with others.

Niger (2019)

41. The Committee is concerned about:

The lack of accessibility of hospitals and health centres for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with physical disabilities; insufficient access to quality health care especially for persons with disabilities in rural areas; the lack of training for health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities; and the lack of professional sign language interpreters;

The lack of information in accessible formats including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities, regarding health services and educational programmes, particularly for women, girls and young persons with disabilities concerning sexual and reproductive health rights, HIV/AIDS prevention and their right to free and informed consent.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure quality health care services for persons with disabilities, and make hospitals and health centres physically accessible to persons with disabilities, including in rural areas, for women and girls, as well as migrant and refugees with disabilities;

Integrate the human rights model of disability into the training curriculum of all health professionals, emphasizing the free, prior and informed consent of all persons with disabilities;

Provide information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, regarding health services, educational programmes, their right to free and informed consent, and to sexual and reproductive health;

Pay attention to the links between article 25 and Sustainable Development Goal 3, target 7, to ensure universal access to sexual and reproductive health care services.

Norway (2019)

39. The Committee is concerned about the lack of:

Awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities among medical professionals and that health-care services and facilities remain largely inaccessible and unavailable to persons with disabilities, including for persons with disabilities still living in institutions;

Accessibility of information on medical services and facilities, particularly relating to sexual and reproductive health and rights, for women with disabilities.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to article 25 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals and:

Strengthen measures to ensure the accessibility of health-care services and facilities in the community, including to persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and those that require extensive support, and provide information in accessible formats;

Raise awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities among medical professionals;

Take measures to provide persons with disabilities, especially women, with information in accessible formats, on accessible health-care services and facilities, including in the area of sexual and reproductive health and rights.

Rwanda (2019)

45. The Committee notes with concern:

The lack of accessible public health education, health care facilities and services, including emergency services, sexual and reproductive health services, and HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment, care and support programmes, particularly in remote, rural areas;

The lack of adequate training of health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities, including on free and informed consent;

That refugees with disabilities do not benefit from health care coverage;

The lack of specific measures on persons with albinism in policies governing health and disability, in particular concerning the prevention and treatment of skin cancer.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt and implement a strategy to ensure the availability and accessibility of public health education, health care services and facilities for all persons with disabilities throughout the country, including emergency services, sexual and reproductive health services, and HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment, care and support programmes;

Raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities among medical professionals through training and the promulgation of ethical standards, including on the right to free and informed consent;

Take measures to ensure universal, affordable, non-discriminatory access to quality health care services for all persons with disabilities, including refugees with disabilities;

Adopt specific measures on persons with albinism in policies governing health and disabilities, ensuring the availability, accessibility, affordability and quality of prevention and treatment for skin cancer.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned at:

Barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health services, especially in rural areas, due to geographic distance, physical obstacles and lack of related information in accessible formats;

The lack of information on the availability of accessible sexual and reproductive health services;

The limited availability and the high costs of specialized health care services related to disabilities.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt and implement a strategy to guarantee the access of all persons with disabilities, especially those residing in rural areas, to disability- and gender-sensitive health care services and information, and ensure that this strategy includes capacity building of medical personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities, on the human rights-based approach to disability and alternative communication methods;

Ensure the availability of gender- and disability sensitive and accessible sexual and reproductive health services in all medical facilities throughout the State party, and disseminate accessible information on sexual and reproductive health and rights;

Guarantee the availability and affordability of specialized health care services related to disabilities.

Senegal (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned about:

The challenges faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health care services, particularly women and girls with disabilities and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, migrant workers and their families, and the overall inaccessibility of the physical environment of health care facilities;

The insufficient resources allocated to the health services required by persons with disabilities, because of their disabilities, particularly persons with albinism, to have access to sunscreens;

The lack of training for health personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities and, particularly, how to ensure persons with disabilities are treated in a respectful manner;

The absence of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read regarding services and educational programmes, particularly concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights, including their right to free and informed consent on health matters.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt concrete measures to ensure that the built environment, including health care environment and all health care facilities are accessible to all persons with disabilities in all regions of the State party, including rural areas, and that quality health care is made available to all persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, as well as migrant workers and members of their families; Ensure the provision of significant budgetary allocations for the health sector to provide health care for persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, particularly to cover the costs of services required because of their disabilities, such as sunscreen for persons with albinism;

Integrate the human rights model of disability into the training curriculum of health professionals, emphasizing that medical services and treatment to persons with disabilities should be provided with the free, prior and informed consent of all persons with disabilities, and the respectful and dignified treatment of persons with disabilities;

Ensure the provision of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read regarding services and educational programmes available, particularly for persons with sensory or intellectual disabilities, women, girls and young persons with disabilities concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights in line with Sustainable Development Goal 3 (target 7).

Spain (2019)

48. The Committee is concerned about the limited:

Access to health care services for persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas;

Accessibility of health-related information and appropriate means of communication, particularly for persons who are deaf- or blind, as well as for persons with intellectual disabilities;

Access to gynaecological and obstetric care for women with disabilities.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure the accessibility and availability of health services for all persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas;

Ensure that persons with disabilities have accessible information and that health services are provided with alternative means of communication such as sign language interpretation, Braille, Easy Read and all required augmentative means for this purpose;

Guarantee universal access to accessible sexual and reproductive health-care services, including family planning, information and education, particularly for women and girls with disabilities, and integrate the right to reproductive health into national strategies and programmes, as set out in target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Türkiye (2019)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

The insufficient availability, affordability and accessibility of hospitals and other health care services for persons with disabilities, particularly concerning access to specialized treatments, physiotherapy, equipment for examination, and accessible information;

Attitudinal barriers and prejudices among health care personnel preventing persons with disabilities' access to sexual and reproductive health, and lack of measures to ensure privacy of persons with disabilities during consultations or examinations;

The lack of disaggregated data by sex, age, ethnic origin, migration status of persons with disabilities taking part in the family practice systems, mobile health care, patient transportation service, and conditional cash transfers to facilitate access to health services, in particular in rural areas.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Improve availability, accessibility and affordability of health care for persons with disabilities, and take measures to ensure that investments in health care infrastructure address universal coverage, accessible equipment, specialized care, and accessible information and interpretation services required by persons with disabilities;

Strengthen training and awareness raising among health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including their sexual and reproductive rights and adopt protocols on the conduct of medical examinations and consultation respecting the right to privacy of persons with disabilities;

Implement monitoring mechanisms for community-based health care, such as the family practice system, mobile health care, and patient transportation systems to identify the extent to which persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas, access these programmes and the health services provided.

Vanuatu (2019)

42. The Committee is concerned about:

The limited access to health care services by persons with disabilities;

The insufficient training of health personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities;

The lack of access to sexual and reproductive health care services by persons with disabilities, particularly all women with disabilities including those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities;

The lack of data on health care services provided to persons with disabilities.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to implement Health Sector Strategy (2017-2020) and other legislative measures, to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to affordable, accessible and quality health services on an equal basis with others;

Ensure that medical and health professionals receive regular and compulsory training on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on the individual requirement of health care on the basis of free and informed consent;

Ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly all women with disabilities including those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, have access to sexual and reproductive health care services in their communities, as set out in target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals;

Collect disaggregated data, by age, sex and type of impairment, to monitor medical treatment and health services for persons with disabilities.

Algeria (2018)

42. The Committee is concerned about discrimination against persons with disabilities which limits their access to health care services, including sexual and reproductive health services, and in particular: The lack of capacity of health care services, in particular for children with disabilities and in rural areas; Information and communications which are not tailored to the requirements of persons with disabilities;

The insufficiency of trained health care personnel to address the multiple barriers faced by persons with disabilities.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by the Convention in its implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 3 and:

Increase the availability and capacity of comprehensive community-based health care services to respond to the requirements of persons with disabilities, in particular for children and in rural regions;

Ensure the provision of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities such as Braille, sign language, accessible digital formats, and Easy Read, regarding available health care services and programmes, in particular concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights, maternal and child health services and psychosocial support services;

Allocate sufficient resources to train medical and paramedical staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on free and informed consent and the right to access the healthcare system on an equal basis with others.

Bulgaria (2018)

51. The Committee notes with concern the lack of training for health care professionals on human rights of persons with disabilities, especially persons with intellectual, and persons with psychosocial disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of accessible information and services on sexual and reproductive health and rights for women with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party raise awareness of the human rights model of disability among all health professionals, including training on the right to free and informed consent and to take note of article 25 of the Convention in the implementation of target 3 of the Sustainable Development Goals. It also recommends that the State party adopt a policy framework and a time bound strategy to provide women with disabilities with accessible sexual and reproductive health care and information, and services appropriate to their age.

53. The Committee notes with concern the limited access to diagnostics, health care and medical rehabilitation to persons with disabilities, in particular those with chronic, genetic and rare diseases.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to diagnostics, health care and medical rehabilitation to persons with disabilities, especially those with chronic, genetic and rare diseases.

Malta (2018)

37. The Committee is concerned about the interpretative declaration that the State party has made on article 25 (a) of the Convention, according to which the State party interprets the phrase "sexual and reproductive health" in Art 25 (a) of the Convention as not constituting recognition of any new international law obligation, creating any abortion rights nor constituting support, endorsement, or promotion of abortion.

38. The Committee urges the State party to withdraw its interpretative declaration on article 25 (a) of the Convention in order to allow persons with disabilities to enjoy the right to health on an equal basis with others.

Philippines (2018)

42. The Committee is concerned about the limited sexual reproductive health education, services and rights faced by women and girls with disabilities on account of ineffective implementation of the Responsible Parenthood and Reproductive Health Act of 2012 (Reproductive Health Law). It is also concerned about prejudices and discrimination from families, service providers, and the wider public that prevent women and girls from accessing health care.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure women, girls and persons with psychosocial disabilities comprehensive access to sexual reproductive health and community-based rehabilitation services for rural and remote areas without being confronted with prejudices;

Increase the training and sensitivity of healthcare professionals on providing sexual and reproductive healthcare education and services to women, girls and persons with psychosocial with disabilities, in line with the Convention;

Strengthen training for all regional health workers nationwide and by reactivating the Responsible Parenthood and Reproductive Health Act of 2012 (Reproductive Health Law).

Poland (2018)

The Committee is deeply concerned about the State Party's reservation to article 25(a) of the Convention and by:

The lack of health services accessible to all persons with disabilities especially in rural areas, including the lack of sign language interpretation,

The lack of health care information and services, tailored to the needs of women with disabilities, especially for blind women or women with psycho-social and/or intellectual disability, and of adapted health care equipment, adequate sexual and reproductive health services and gynaecological rooms equipped for them;

Lack of affordable high quality healthcare products and the unequal access to such products among all persons with disabilities having similar needs;

Lack of awareness and willingness of health-care personnel to provide health related services to women with disabilities;

The barriers faced by women with disabilities in accessing services for safe abortion, owing to a lack of access to information on and services related to sexual and reproductive health rights;

The implementation of the National Mental Health Programme resulting in neglect for the health needs of persons with psychosocial disabilities.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party withdraw its reservation to Article 25 (a) of the Convention and:

Ensure access to health services by all persons with disabilities and their availability, regardless of the types of impairment;

Adopt measures to ensure universal coverage of health services for all women and girls with disabilities, including information in accessible formats on their sexual and reproductive health and rights, gynaecological services, perinatal care and adapted health care equipment, such as gynaecological rooms;

Adopt measures to ensure that persons with disabilities can access high quality healthcare products at affordable price and eliminate difference in health care coverage between different groups of persons with disabilities;

Conduct training to ensure that health-care practitioners are aware of the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, under the Convention;
Take the necessary measures to ensure that the autonomy and decisions of women with disabilities are respected, that women's rights in relation to reproductive health are secured, that access to safe abortion is provided; and that women with disabilities are protected from forced sterilization and forced abortion;
Ensure that the implementation of the National Mental Health Programme results in increasing access to community-based health services for persons with psychosocial disabilities, and provide adequate resources to these services.

South Africa (2018)

42. The Committee notes with concern:

Challenges faced by persons with disabilities, especially women, girls and youth with disabilities and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, in accessing health services as a result of geographic distance to health centres, physical, financial and attitudinal barriers and lack of information and health-care services, including with regard to sexual and reproductive health and rights, and abortion.

The lack of information on sexual and reproductive rights in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including the absence of adequate training for children, teachers and healthcare workers on sexual and reproductive rights and the recognition of the sexual and reproductive rights of persons with disabilities.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by Sustainable Development Goal 3, especially target 7, and:

Adopt measures to ensure universal coverage of health services for all persons with disabilities, and that such services are accessible, affordable and culturally sensitive, and prevent the denial of health-care services;

Take measures to provide all persons with disabilities with information in accessible formats about their sexual and reproductive health and rights;

Conduct training to ensure that health-care practitioners are aware of the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention and have the tools to provide appropriate advice for persons with disabilities, including on sexual and reproductive rights.

North Macedonia (2018)

44. The Committee is concerned that disability is not a ground for discrimination in the Law on Protection of Patients' Rights, and the overall lack of accessibility in mainstream health services, in particular:

The age constraints to accessing free health care and treatment, coupled with the exemptions in the Law on Health that discriminates against persons with disabilities;

The absence of frameworks to guarantee access of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent with regard to health services;

The lack of early identification, availability and affordability of specialized health care services related to disabilities;

The lack of access to basic medical products necessary to maintain the best possible lifelong conditions;

The lack of information on sexual and reproductive health in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including women and girls and the lack of specialized services for girls and women with disabilities in all parts of the State party;

Poor access to health care and the lack of specialized services to children with disabilities.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Include disability as a ground for discrimination in the Law on Protection of Patients' Rights;

Remove age constraints to accessing free health care and treatment, as well as any exemptions in the Law on Health that discriminates against persons with disabilities;

Adopt a strategy to ensure free or affordable access to all required health services by persons with disabilities, including by training medical personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities, the human rights-based approach to disability;

Adopt health protocols aimed at ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent to medical treatments;

Take measures to ensure early identification, the availability and accessibility of health care facilities and services, including by removing physical obstacles to health centres and providing information in accessible formats;

Ensure the dissemination of information on sexual and reproductive rights in appropriate formats for all persons with disabilities, and the availability of gender and age-sensitive services, and ensure specialised services for persons with disabilities available in all parts of the State party;

Promptly adopt and implement a new action plan on improving health care for children with disabilities;

Promote the availability and affordability of specialized health care services related to disabilities.

Haiti (2018)

44. The Committee is concerned by:

Systemic, physical, attitudinal and communication barriers which impede the access of persons with disabilities to health services on an equal basis with others, particularly in rural areas and for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;

The absence of health care services, equipment, information and communications tailored to the requirements of persons with disabilities as well as the insufficiency of trained personnel to address the multiple barriers faced by persons with disabilities;

The inaccessibility of health programs or prevention campaigns against HIV/AIDS, sexually transmitted infections, and reproductive health services.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Develop a targeted, measurable and financed plan of action aiming at the elimination of barriers faced by persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, in access to health care services;

Increase efforts to ensure that health care services for persons with disabilities, including, are accessible, especially in rural areas;

Raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention among medical professionals through the promulgation of ethical standards and set up regular and mandatory trainings for health personnel;

Take measures to provide persons with disabilities, especially women, with information in accessible formats, on health care services and facilities, including in the area of sexual and reproductive health, their right to free and informed consent, sexual and reproductive health and rights and HIV/AIDS and other sexually transmitted infections;

Draw on article 25 of the Convention to achieve 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Nepal (2018)

(Recommendation regarding articles 25 and 26 together)

37. The Committee is concerned about the limited access to comprehensive health and rehabilitation services by persons with disabilities, particularly in rural and remote areas.

38. The Committee recommends that the State party develop measures to ensure comprehensive access to health services for persons with disabilities, particularly sexual and reproductive health services, maternal and child health centres, psychosocial services, and intensify the provision of comprehensive community-based rehabilitation services including in rural and remote areas.

Oman (2018)

45. While welcoming the improvement and expansion of health care services, including rehabilitation programmes and mental health care services, for persons with disabilities in the State party, the Committee is concerned about:

Inadequate accessibility of hospitals and health centres for persons with disabilities in the State party, including those with motor impairments, and insufficient access to quality health care for persons with disabilities living in rural areas and for children of migrant workers;

The insufficient training for primary health care staff;

The special requirements of women and girls with disabilities are not identified and addressed;

The lack of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including Braille, sign language and Easy-Read for persons with sensory and persons with intellectual disabilities, regarding services and educational programmes, in particular with respect to women, girls and young persons concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights, including their right to free and informed consent on health matters.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to ensure that all hospitals and other health facilities are physically accessible to all persons with disabilities in all regions of the State party, including rural areas, and that quality health care is made available to all persons with disabilities, including women and girls, as well as migrant workers and members of their families;

Integrate the human rights-based model of disability into the training curriculum of all health professionals, emphasizing that medical services and treatment to persons with disabilities should be provided with the free, prior and informed consent of all persons with disabilities;

Ensure the provision of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including Braille, sign language and Easy-Read for persons with sensory and mental impairments, regarding services and educational programmes available to persons with disabilities, in particular for women and girls and young persons concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights in line with Sustainable Development Goal 3 (target 7), including their right to free and informed consent on health matters.

Russian Federation (2018)

(Recommendation regarding articles 25 and 26 together)

51. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient and unequal access to quality health care and rehabilitation services in all regions of the State party and notes the recommendation of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights for the Russian Federation (E/C.12/RUS/CO/6), paragraphs 50-51. The Committee is also concerned that there is no information available regarding the legislation formulating the characteristics of the Technical Means of Rehabilitation (TMR).

52. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure access to quality health care and rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities in all regions of the State party. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the current legislation and practice in terms of drug policy and preventive measures by taking into account the recommendations of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights for the Russian Federation (E/C.12/RUS/CO/6), paragraphs 50-51 in particular. It also recommends that the State party elaborate legislation on the TMR system which should provide for transparent decision making process with regard to relevant safeguards.

Seychelles (2018)

43. The Committee notes that health services and health information are not accessible to persons with disabilities, including services and information relating to sexual and reproductive health and rights and HIV/AIDS. It is also concerned that:

(a) Under existing legislation, the consent to medical treatment of the person with a disability can be waived and the decision can be made by a third party;

(b) Health-care professionals are not sufficiently trained on the human rights of persons with disabilities;

(c) Primary prevention of disability is misunderstood as an implementation measure of the Convention.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party continue improving the accessibility of timely and quality health-care services for persons with disabilities, including in the areas of sexual and reproductive health and rights and HIV/AIDS prevention and care. It also recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that all medical treatments and interventions are undertaken with the free, prior and informed consent of the person with a disability concerned;

(b) Carry out accessible public health campaigns directed at persons with disabilities;

(c) Provide the services for persons with disabilities that are required by their specific disabilities as well as other services designed to minimize and prevent further disabilities, including among children;

(d) Ensure that personnel in hospitals and health-care centres receive regular and compulsory training on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on the individual right to free and informed consent, sexual and reproductive health and rights, HIV/AIDS and sexually transmitted infections;

(e) Take into account article 25 of the Convention while implementing targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Slovenia (2018)

41. The Committee is concerned about the lack of access to health services for persons with disabilities and its availability, especially for deaf, blind persons and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to health services by all persons with disabilities and its availability, regardless type of impairment, wherever they live, including in institutions. It further recommends that the State party ensures universal access to sexual and reproductive health-care services, including family planning, information and education, and the integration of the right to reproductive health into national strategies and programmes as set out in target 3.7, goal 3 of the Sustainable Development Goals. The Committee also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 25 of the Convention and target 3.8, of the Sustainable Development Goals and it ensure the implementation of the health care and health insurance act.

Sudan (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned about the overall lack of accessibility in mainstream health services, and in particular:

The general lack of awareness among medical personnel about the rights of persons with disabilities and their lack of training in other communication methods;

The absence of protocols to ensure the free and informed consent of persons with disabilities with regard to health services;

Barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health services, especially in rural areas, as a result of geographic distance to health centres, physical obstacles to health centres and lack of information in accessible formats;

The lack of information on sexual and reproductive health in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, including women and girls;

The limited availability and the high costs of accessing specialized health care services related to disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt a strategy to ensure access to health services by persons with disabilities, including by training medical personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities, the human rights-based approach to disability and in other communication methods;

Adopt health protocols aimed at ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent to medical treatments;

Take measures to ensure the availability and accessibility of health care facilities and services, including in rural areas, including by removing physical obstacles to health centres and providing information in accessible formats;

Ensure the dissemination of information on sexual and reproductive health rights in appropriate formats for all persons with disabilities, and the availability of gender and age-sensitive services, including in rural areas;

Promote the availability and affordability of specialized health care services related to disabilities.

Latvia (2017)

42. The Committee is concerned about the critical unavailability, inadequacy and inaccessibility of general health services for all persons with disabilities throughout the country

43. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the availability, adequacy and accessibility of general health-care services and facilities for all persons with disabilities throughout the country.

Luxembourg (2017)

44. The Committee is concerned about insufficient accessible health-care services and facilities in the community for persons with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual disabilities and those that require extensive support. It is also concerned about:

The insufficient training of health personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities and human rights in general;

The inadequate access to information on health-care services and facilities, including about sexual and reproductive health and rights and related services, especially for women with disabilities who are still living in institutions.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure the accessibility of health-care services and facilities in the community, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities or psychosocial disabilities and those that require extensive support. Specifically, it recommends that the State party:

Raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention among medical professionals through training and the promulgation of ethical standards;

Take measures to provide persons with disabilities, especially women, with information in accessible formats, on accessible health-care services and facilities, including in the area of sexual and reproductive health.

Montenegro (2017)

46. The Committee is concerned about the limited and unequal access to health services for persons with disabilities, especially persons in institutions. It is also concerned about:

The unequal access to sexual and reproductive health services, particularly at the local level and especially for women, which is illustrated, inter alia, by the very small number of gynaecological chairs;

The lack of adequate training of health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities;

The lack of information on measures in place to ensure that health professionals act on the basis of individual, free and informed consent in all decision-making regarding the right to health for persons with disabilities;

The lack of information on whether the sterilization of persons with disabilities without their consent is fully prohibited.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt all necessary legislative and policy measures and action plans, and allocate adequate resources to their implementation in order to ensure that:

All persons with disabilities have access to timely and quality health-care services, including at the local level;

Sexual and reproductive health services and information are fully accessible to persons with disabilities, including by increasing the number of accessible gynaecological chairs and ensuring that adequate information is provided in accessible formats and alternative methods of communication to all women and girls with disabilities concerning their sexual and reproductive rights;

Forced sterilization is fully prohibited under all circumstances;

Professionals in mainstream health services receive training on the rights enshrined in the Convention that includes training on the right to free and informed consent with particular regard to reasonable accommodation, and that such training be also provided by persons with disabilities and their representative organizations;

All health care and services provided to persons with disabilities, including all mental health care and services, are based on the free and informed consent of the individual concerned, that third party consent is explicitly prohibited, and that any failure to act in line with the free and informed consent of the patient is punished.

Morocco (2017)

48. The Committee notes with concern:

Barriers faced by persons with disabilities in accessing health services as a result of geographic distance from health centres, a lack of specialized medical services and a lack of accessible health-care facilities for persons with disabilities;

The lack of information on sexual and reproductive rights in accessible formats for persons with disabilities;

The lack of information on the administration of health-care treatments in the absence of protocols to ensure the free and informed consent of persons with disabilities with regard to health services.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt a strategy to ensure access to health services by persons with disabilities, including components covering, inter alia, the development of accessible facilities, training for health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, and the provision of information on health treatments in accessible formats, including for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

Ensure the dissemination of information on sexual and reproductive rights in appropriate formats for all persons with disabilities;

Set up protocols aimed at ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent in the implementation of the national health and disability plan for the period 2015-2021;

Pay attention to the links between article 25 of the Convention and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, with a view to ensuring universal access to sexual and reproductive health-care services.

Panama (2017)

50. The Committee is concerned that, despite the fact that Act No. 42 of 27 August 1999, subsequently amended by Act No. 15 of 31 May 2016, provides for priority access to prompt health care for persons with disabilities, this provision is not being adequately implemented. It is further concerned at the lack of access to accessible health-care services for persons with disabilities.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee, in practice, priority access to health care for persons with disabilities and access to accessible health-care services for all persons with disabilities, including in rural areas and indigenous regions, on an equal basis with others.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned about the uneven access to health across the State party, including under the devolved governments, and about:

Systemic, physical, attitudinal and/or communicative barriers preventing persons with disabilities from accessing mainstream health services, such as inaccessible furnishing, training and treatment equipment, medicine and supplies, means of information and communication, limited access to clinics and health-care professionals, hospitals, dentists, gynaecologists and obstetricians;

Barriers for persons with disabilities to obtain privacy regarding management of personal health-related data;

Multiple barriers to access to sexual and reproductive health-care services and insufficient information and education on family planning in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls;

Reports of cases in which no attempt was made to resuscitate persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

The suicide rate among persons with disabilities, particularly in Northern Ireland.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities:

Develop a targeted, measurable and financed plan of action aiming at eliminating barriers in access to health care and services, and monitor and measure its progress, especially in relation to persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and those with neurological and cognitive conditions;
Set up protocols for medical services that respect the right of persons with disabilities to privacy in information about health;

Ensure equal access to sexual and reproductive health-care services, as set out in target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and provide information and education on family planning for persons with disabilities in accessible formats, including Easy Read;

Ensure that medical professionals are under the obligation to enforce standards set in guidance and criteria on “do not resuscitate” orders for persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others; (e) Address the high suicide rate among persons with disabilities, especially persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities.

Armenia (2017)

43. The Committee is concerned about the lack of awareness among medical professionals of the rights of persons with disabilities and that health-care services and facilities, including emergency services and HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment, care and support programmes, remain inaccessible and unavailable to many persons with disabilities, especially in rural areas. It is also concerned about the lack of accessibility of medical services and facilities for women with disabilities, particularly in the area of sexual and reproductive health.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party: (a) Adopt training courses and ethical standards on the rights of persons with disabilities for medical professionals.

Ensure the availability and accessibility of health-care services and facilities for all persons with disabilities throughout the country, including emergency services and HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment, care and support programmes;

Take measures to ensure that women with disabilities have accessible medical services and facilities, including in the area of sexual and reproductive health.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

44. The Committee is concerned about the limited and unequal access to health services for children with disabilities in the State party. It is also concerned about the unequal access to sexual and reproductive health services and the lack of adequate training of health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, as well as about the inaccessibility of medical services and health facilities.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective and harmonized measures to provide early intervention services to all children with disabilities and that it ensure adequate training of health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party require providers of health services to offer health services to persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others by making the necessary equipment and instruments available and accessible in order for women with disabilities to access services, including reproductive health services, as close to home as possible.

Canada (2017)

45. The Committee is concerned about barriers faced by women with disabilities in accessing services for safe abortion, owing to a lack of access to information on and services related to sexual and reproductive health rights and the limited number of clinics that provide termination of pregnancy services. The Committee also notes with concern the stigma and attitudinal barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to medical tests and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, owing to prejudices that consider persons with disabilities "asexual" and the refusal of health-care services. It is further concerned that persons with disabilities continue to face physical, financial and attitudinal barriers in accessing information and health-care services, including with regard to sexual and reproductive health and rights, and notably abortion, and that the cost of medication remains a significant obstacle.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to ensure universal coverage of health services for all persons with disabilities, including indigenous persons with disabilities, and that services are accessible, affordable and culturally sensitive, and prevent the denial of health-care services, including abortion;

Take measures to provide persons with disabilities with information in accessible formats about their sexual and reproductive health;

Conduct training to ensure that health-care practitioners are aware of the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention and have the tools to provide appropriate advice for persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities;

Establish special measures to ensure that people with disabilities, including transgender and gender-diverse persons with disabilities, have equal access to health services, including surgical and medical abortion services, and gender-affirming comprehensive health care.

Cyprus (2017)

51. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient accessibility to health-care services by persons with disabilities. It also notes with concern that information regarding sexual and reproductive health is insufficiently accessible and that women and girls with disabilities are subjected to discrimination and stereotyping in this field. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that relevant legislation does not systematically apply a human rights-based approach to disability.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities with a special focus on the collaboration with women and girls with disabilities, and in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention, ensure accessibility to health services and facilities, and to information and communication regarding sexual and reproductive health rights and services on an equal basis with others, and that the health personnel be educated and trained on the rights of persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms to combat discrimination and stereotyping in line with general comment No. 3 (2016) and targets 3.7, 3.8 and 5.6 of the Sustainable Development Goals in the field of access to health services. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party apply a human rights- based approach to disability in the provision of health services to persons with disabilities.

Honduras (2017)

53. Al Comité le preocupa que los servicios generales de salud no sean accesibles para las personas con discapacidad, especialmente en zonas rurales y comunidades afrohondureñas e indígenas. También le preocupa la falta de profesionales debidamente formados para brindar una atención de salud incluyente y atender los requerimientos específicos de las personas con discapacidad, especialmente las personas con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, así como los estereotipos que existen en cuanto a la salud sexual y reproductiva de las mujeres con discapacidad.

54. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte planes y asigne recursos para garantizar que los servicios generales de salud, incluidos los servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva y la información a este respecto, sean accesibles para las personas con discapacidad en su territorio, especialmente en zonas rurales y comunidades afrohondureñas e indígenas. Recomienda además que el personal de los servicios de salud destinados a la población en general reciba capacitación en lo referente al trato de las personas con discapacidad, particularmente a las personas con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, y el respeto de los derechos consagrados en la Convención.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

48. The Committee observes with concern:

The absence of strategies to provide all persons with disabilities access to health services;

The absence of information about accessible information and equipment including gynecological services for women with disabilities;

The lack of information about coverage of early identification programmes among children with disabilities in rural and urban areas; and

The lack of health insurance beyond basic one for persons with disabilities who do not qualify as 'war disabled veterans' and/or martyrs.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure that all persons with disabilities, including women, girls and boys with disabilities have access on an equal basis with others to affordable, accessible, quality and culturally sensitive health services, in urban and rural areas;

Strengthen its efforts to ensure that sexual and reproductive health services and information, are fully accessible and incorporate a gender perspective;

Introduce a data collection system based on international standards on the health status of persons with disabilities, including identification and follow-up mechanism for children with disabilities; and Implement a strategy to provide health insurance to all persons with disabilities regardless of their impairment, cause of impairment, place of living, age, sex, gender or refugee status.

Jordan (2017)

47. The Committee notes with concern the restrictions imposed on persons with disabilities, in particular those with psychosocial or neurological disabilities, to subscribe to private health insurance. It is also concerned that health-care professionals lack training on the human rights of persons with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities.

48. In line with article 25 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 3, the Committee recommends that the State party:

Enact legislation explicitly recognizing the right of persons with disabilities to enjoy all private health insurance services covered by private insurance companies on an equal basis with others;

Integrate the human rights-based model of disability into the training curriculum of all health professionals, emphasizing that medical services and treatment to persons with disabilities should be provided with the free, prior and informed consent of all persons with disabilities.

Republic of Moldova

46. The Committee is concerned that there is a general lack of awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities among medical professionals and that health-care services and facilities, including emergency services, remain inaccessible and unavailable to persons with disabilities, especially in rural areas and for persons with disabilities still living in residential institutions. It is also concerned about the lack of accessibility of medical services and facilities, particularly relating to sexual and reproductive health, for women with disabilities.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities among medical professionals through training and the promulgation of ethical standards and:

Ensure the availability and accessibility of health-care services and facilities, including emergency services, for all persons with disabilities throughout the country;

Take measures to ensure that women with disabilities have access to accessible medical services and facilities, including in the area of sexual and reproductive health.

Bolivia (2016)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

The absence of measures for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the health services at all levels, and in particular the lack of protocols, the lack of accessibility in facilities and equipment, the lack of settings for the use of sign language and the lack of training for health personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities;

The continuing discrimination against persons with disabilities by denying them some or all medical services and treatment;

The lack of policies on the secondary prevention of the emergence of new impairments in persons with disabilities or the aggravation of existing disabilities;

The failure to provide universal health coverage, as provided for in Act No. 475 on comprehensive health service provision.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to promote physical and mental health and well-being, and:

Implement a strategy to ensure the accessibility of medical facilities and furnitures, information and communication for persons with disabilities;

Launch a training and promotion campaign on the rights of persons with disabilities for health professionals and staff throughout the national territory, including the right to free and informed consent and the adoption of treatment protocols that also cover sexual and reproductive health services;

Allocate sufficient human and material resources to give effect to universal health service coverage, including specialized services in the field of disability, focusing on the secondary prevention of the emergence of new impairments and the aggravation of existing disabilities.

Be guided by article 25 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

56. The Committee is concerned at:

The low level of compliance with Act No. 1616 on mental health, in relation to informed consent for invasive surgical procedures and psychiatric treatment;

The lack of accessibility in the provision of sexual and reproductive health services, including those relating to HIV/AIDS;

The prejudice and negative attitudes of health-care service providers, both generally and in services specializing by type of disability;

Inadequate or non-existent coverage in rural areas and very remote locations.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure the observance of the right of free and informed consent of persons with disabilities regarding health care, including sexual and reproductive health, services related to HIV/AIDS, and psychiatric services and interventions, through the use of protocols;

Train health personnel on the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, including the right to free and informed consent;

Take steps to ensure the accessibility of all health-care services, in terms of both information and communications, and physical facilities, equipment and furniture;

Provide the financial and human resources necessary to extend health care to all persons with disabilities, in particular those who are victims of armed conflict, women, children or older persons with disabilities; Afro-Colombian, Raizal or indigenous persons; living in rural and remote areas; or lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender or intersex;

Be guided by article 25 of the Convention in pursuing targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

53. The Committee is concerned that access to health care and the capacity of health and social services to provide care for children with disabilities is not sufficient, in particular in rural zones.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure sufficient capacity of health and social services to provide care for children with disabilities, in particular in rural regions.

55. The Committee is concerned that training for staff of hospitals and health-care centres on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on free and informed consent, sexual and reproductive health, HIV and sexually transmitted infections, is neither regular nor compulsory. The Committee is further concerned that education and information on health-care services is neither accessible nor available across all states, including in rural regions.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that hospital and health-care centre staff are given regular and compulsory training on the rights of persons with disabilities, including on the individual right to free and informed consent, sexual and reproductive health, HIV and sexually transmitted infections. It also recommends that the State party take into account article 25 of the Convention while implementing targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Guatemala (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned by the inadequacy of the health system and the barriers to health service access faced by persons with disabilities, especially in rural areas and indigenous communities. It is also concerned by the fact that the Federico Mora National Mental Health Hospital is the only mental health care solution provided by the State party. It is further concerned by the restrictions and the stereotypes that persist among health professionals with regard to access to sexual and reproductive health services for women with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure the appropriate provision of community health services for persons with disabilities throughout the country, on the basis of free and informed consent, and ensure that the pharmacological treatments needed on account of disability are provided as part of the support system, at a low cost or free of charge;

Develop community mental health services, adopting a human rights approach;

Ensure that women with disabilities are provided with safe and accessible sexual and reproductive health services in both urban and rural areas;

Provide training for all health system personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities in terms of health service access;

Take into account article 25 of the Convention in the implementation of targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned about the lack of physical accessibility and information regarding sexual and reproductive health services, including discrimination and stereotyping, particularly to women and girls with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations representing persons with disabilities and particularly those representing women with disabilities, ensure accessibility to facilities and equipment, information and communications regarding sexual and reproductive health services, and that it provide training to health personnel about the rights of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party strengthen mechanisms to combat discrimination and stereotyping in line with its general comment No. 3.

63. The Committee is concerned about the lack of data on medical treatment administered without the free and informed consent of the person, including sterilization.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party abolish all laws that permit medical treatment, including sterilization, consented by a third party (parent or guardian) without the free and informed consent of the person, and that it provide related high-quality training to health professionals.

65. The Committee is concerned at the slow progress of adopting and funding the Minimum Standards of Health Care, including early identification and intervention for children with disabilities.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite the adoption, funding and implementation of Minimum Standards of Health Care so all children have access to early identification and intervention according to their requirements. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account article 25 of the Convention while implementing targets 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

45. The Committee is concerned:

That national legislation is inconsistent with the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent in relation to medical treatment and about the absence of legislation that explicitly recognizes that right for persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;

About the lack of information on how the mandatory HIV/AIDS testing policies for pregnant women and migrant workers affect the right to health of persons with disabilities;

About the lack of accessible health-care services, including sexual and reproductive health services, and information;

About the lack of training for all health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal legislation that violates the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent in relation to medical treatment and enact legislation that explicitly recognizes that right for persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;

Revise the policy of mandatory HIV/AIDS testing, which goes against free and informed consent;

Develop a wide range of community-based health services and ensure their accessibility, including health services and information for women with disabilities on their rights enshrined in article 25 of the Convention;

Raise awareness of the human rights model of disability among all health professionals, including training on the right to free and informed consent;

Be guided by article 25 of the Convention in the implementation of target 3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

53. Al Comité le preocupa que los servicios generales de salud no sean accesibles para las personas con discapacidad, particularmente en el interior del Estado parte. También le preocupa la falta de profesionales debidamente formados para garantizar el derecho al consentimiento libre e informado, para brindar una atención de salud incluyente y atender los requerimientos específicos de las personas con discapacidad.

54. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte planes y asigne recursos para garantizar que los servicios generales de salud, incluidos los servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva y la información al respecto, sean accesibles para las personas con discapacidad en su territorio. Recomienda además que el personal de los servicios de salud destinados a la población general reciba capacitación en lo referente a la comunicación con y al trato de las personas con discapacidad en los contextos sanitarios en el Estado parte y observando el respeto al consentimiento libre e informado y otros derechos consagrados en la Convención. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 25 de la Convención y las metas 3.7 y 3.8 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, para el acceso a servicios de salud esenciales de calidad, incluidos los servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva y el acceso a medicamentos.

Chile (2016)

51. Preocupa al Comité la escasez de información relativa a la salud sexual y reproductiva accesible para personas con discapacidad, particularmente para mujeres y niñas y personas con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial.

52. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que haga accesibles la información y servicios integrales de salud sexual y reproductiva en todo el territorio chileno, incluyendo la lengua de señas y formatos accesibles, el equipo y mobiliario.

53. Al Comité le preocupa que la política de salud mental refleje el modelo médico de la discapacidad y que el personal médico en este campo no esté capacitado acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad.

54. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte una política relativa a la salud mental, fundamentada en el respeto de los derechos humanos, involucrando a las organizaciones que representan a las personas con discapacidad, particularmente discapacidad psicosocial. También le recomienda que capacite al personal médico y terapéutico acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad.

Lithuania (2016)

49. The Committee is concerned that:

The current legislation on health insurance does not fully guarantee reimbursement or other forms of compensation to persons with disabilities for expenditures caused by disability when receiving treatment within the mainstreamed health system;

The systemic barriers, including physical barriers, and the lack of accessible information, communication, training or treatment equipment, and health-care professionals trained in the human rights model of disability are limiting persons with disabilities' access to mainstream health services; Persons with disabilities face discrimination in accessing sexual and reproductive health care services due to the lack of accessible equipment suitable for use by all persons with disabilities, among other reasons.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take appropriate legislative measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to free and affordable health-related habilitation and rehabilitation goods and services;

Train health personnel on the human rights model of disability, including on the right to free and informed consent, and ensure the accessibility of health-care facilities and equipment to ensure that all such facilities and equipment, including in hospitals and in the practices of dentists, gynaecologists and obstetricians, are accessible to persons with disabilities, regardless of their impairments;

Ensure universal access to sexual and reproductive health-care services, including family planning, information and education, and ensure also the integration of reproductive health into national strategies and programmes as set out in target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Portugal (2016)

48. The Committee notes that the State party has paid scant attention to the rights of persons with disabilities in legislation and policies adopted in the State party in the fields of healthcare, sexual and reproductive health, HIV/AIDS, and sexually transmitted infections, which are not always accessible, and especially in the case of obstetrics and gynaecology services. The Committee is further concerned that primary prevention of disability is regarded as a measure of implementation of the Convention.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party take all necessary measures in order that persons with disabilities may access healthcare without restriction, including sexual and reproductive health, by explicitly prohibiting discrimination on the grounds of disability in legislation and ensuring universal access to its programmes and services, both in urban and rural areas, while providing appropriate training to healthcare staff. It is also recommended that primary prevention of disability is excluded from programs.

Serbia (2016)

51. The Committee is concerned at the lack of early identification and intervention of children with disabilities. The Committee is further concerned about the limited access to health services for persons with disabilities in the State party, particularly access to sexual and reproductive health. It is also concerned about the lack of adequate training of health professionals in caring for persons with disabilities and the inaccessibility of medical services and health facilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party provide health care personnel with adequate training and competencies required and to expedite the implementation of the national programme for enhanced early childhood development. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to health, on an equal basis with others, of all persons with disabilities including access to sexual and reproductive health. It also recommends the training of health professionals regarding attention to persons with disabilities and to make accessible medical services and health facilities.

Slovakia (2016)

69. The Committee is concerned about discrimination in access to health-care services, in particular sexual and reproductive health services, and the restrictions to the exercise of free and informed consent to treatment, especially for persons with intellectual disabilities.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party remove physical, information and communication barriers to gaining access to health-care services, and that medical services and treatment be provided on the basis of the free, prior and informed consent of all persons with disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party provide training for all health and social care personnel on the rights enshrined in the Convention.

Thailand (2016)

47. The Committee is concerned that mainstream health services and information on public health education are not accessible to persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas. It is also concerned about the insufficiency of training for all health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen its efforts to ensure that all health services for the general public are fully accessible and incorporate a gender perspective, especially in rural areas. The Committee also recommends that the State party take measures to provide mandatory training to all health professionals on the rights of persons with disabilities, including the right of all persons with disabilities to give their free and informed consent.

49. The Committee is concerned that private health insurance companies discriminate against persons with disabilities by refusing to sell them health insurance policies because of their disability.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability by private health insurance companies.

Uganda (2016)

50. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on accessible health-care facilities for persons with disabilities, and the absence of measures to ensure that information and services on sexual and reproductive rights are accessible. It is also concerned about the non-inclusion of persons with albinism in the State party's cancer policy denying them access to skin cancer treatment to prevent skin damage as well as the non-availability of essential drugs for persons with mental health conditions in health centres across the country, especially in rural areas.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Provide mandatory training on the rights of persons with disabilities to all health-care staff;

Train and recruit professional guides and sign language interpreters to assist persons with disabilities in health centres;

Include persons with albinism in the State party's cancer policy and ensure the availability of essential drugs in health centres across the country for persons with mental health conditions, including those of level II, especially in rural areas;

Adopt measures to ensure that all education, information, health care and services relating to sexual and reproductive health, HIV/AIDS and sexually transmitted infections, including treatment, advice and counselling, are made accessible to persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, in age-appropriate formats in both urban and rural areas.

Brazil (2015)

46. The Committee is concerned that mainstream health services are not accessible to persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of health professionals who have adequate training to provide inclusive health care and meet the specific needs of persons with disabilities.

47. The Committee recommends the State party to adopt plans and allocate resources to ensure that mainstream health services, including sexual and reproductive health services and information, are accessible to persons with disabilities. It also recommends the State party to ensure that health professionals in mainstream health services receive training on the rights enshrined in the Convention.

European Union (2015)

62. The Committee is concerned that disability-based discrimination is not explicitly prohibited in the field of health care. It furthermore notes the barriers persons with disabilities face in accessing health care in different Member States.

63. The Committee recommends that the European Union explicitly prohibit disability-based discrimination in the field of health care and take measures to ensure access to quality health care for all persons with all types of disabilities. It further recommends that the European Union evaluate the impact of its Cross-Border Healthcare Directive with regard to gaps in access for persons with disabilities, including accessible information, reasonable accommodation and training of professionals.

EU Institutions compliance with the Convention (as public administrations)

86. The Committee is concerned that European Union staff members with disabilities or family members with disabilities are discriminated against by European Union health insurance schemes.

87. The Committee recommends that the EU revise its Joint Sickness and Insurance Scheme so as to comprehensively cover disability-related health needs in a manner which is compliant with the Convention.

Gabon (2015)

54. The Committee is concerned that health services and information on public health education are not accessible to persons with disabilities, in particular in rural areas. It is also concerned about the lack of training for all health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that: a) All health services are accessible to persons with disabilities at all levels, in particular at the community level; b) Information for all public health education and health services be accessible, in particular community-based health services, including HIV/AIDS and sexual and reproductive health services, including in rural areas; c) Strategies to raise awareness of the human rights model of disability among all health professionals are in place.

56. The Committee is concerned that persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities, do not have equal access to the highest attainable standard of health, nor exercise their right to free and informed consent regarding health interventions.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party take the necessary steps to repeal legislation restricting the right of persons with disabilities to free and informed consent and enact laws which explicitly recognise this right of the individual and that it prohibit the substitution of consent by a third party. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, in particular persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities, have access to the highest attainable standard of health on an equal basis with others and to conduct regular training of hospital and health care staff on the rights of persons with disabilities, including their right to free and informed consent and reasonable accommodation in all healthcare settings.

Kenya (2015)

45. The Committee remains concerned about the barriers for persons with disabilities in accessing information and services of sexual and reproductive health, and the lack of information on the implementation of specific measures to prevent sexually transmissible infections, including HIV/AIDS among persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on accessible health care facilities for persons with disabilities in rural areas. It is further concerned about the State party's approach to mental health care is based on the medical model.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Strengthen its efforts to ensure that all health policies, programmes and services, including in sexual and reproductive health and those related to HIV/AIDS, are fully accessible and incorporate a gender perspective, especially in rural areas and at the community level;

Adopt measures to establish accessible health care facilities and technologies for persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas; and

Develop a wide range of community-based services that respond to the needs of persons with disabilities, and respect the person's autonomy, choices, dignity and privacy, including peer support and other alternatives to the medical model of mental health.

Mauritius (2015)

35. The Committee regrets the lack of information on the availability of health, early intervention services, including provision of sexual and reproductive health services and age appropriate habilitation and rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of social support to cover the disability-related expenses for their children with disabilities.

36. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt clear procedures for the early intervention services for persons with disabilities to appropriate and accessible habilitation and rehabilitation services, including services for parents with disabilities, with special regard to parents of all children with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that health, rehabilitation and other disability-related expenses for children with disabilities be covered.

Qatar (2015)

45. The Committee is concerned about the lack of training for all health professionals on the human rights of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on measures in place to ensure that health professionals act on the basis of individual, free and informed consent in all decision-making regarding the right to health for persons with disabilities and how the mandatory HIV/AIDS testing policies for pregnant women and migrant workers impact on this right. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accessible health care services and information, including sexual and reproductive health services and that the centralization of health services provided for persons with disabilities in the capital creates additional accessibility barriers for persons with disabilities living outside of the capital.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure that all health care and services provided to persons with disabilities, including all mental health care and services, is based on the free and informed consent of the individual concerned and that third party consent is explicitly prohibited, and recommends revising the policy of mandatory HIV/AIDS testing which goes against free and informed consent. It also recommends that the State party develop a wide range of community-based health services and ensure their accessibility. The Committee also recommends that the State party raise awareness of the human rights model of disability among all health professionals including training on the right to free and informed consent.

Ukraine (2015)

46. The Committee is concerned about the reports that persons with disabilities face difficulties accessing health care, particularly in accessing medicines and rehabilitation services and that persons with disabilities in rural areas have limited access to healthcare facilities. The Committee is furthermore concerned that women and girls with disabilities have restricted access to information on sexual and reproductive health and family planning.

47. The Committee calls upon the State party to ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to timely and quality health care services both in rural and urban areas, including by providing access to medicines and rehabilitation services and providing information and services on sexual and reproductive health and family planning, especially to women and girls with disabilities.

Cook Islands (2015)

45. The Committee is concerned that health care professionals and public health experts lack the necessary training in order to provide inclusive health care and meet the specific needs of persons with disabilities and their families, including providers of sexual and reproductive health.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure training on disability for health care professionals and public health experts, prioritising the training of sexual and reproductive health providers on accessible and inclusive services for persons with disabilities;

Amend the Criminal Code prohibiting guardianship, so that women with disabilities exercise their right to sexual and reproductive autonomy on an equal basis with others.

Provide mental health services for children and adolescents across the islands.

Croatia (2015)

37. The Committee is concerned that the excessive burden of proof placed on people with disabilities who are not insured under the compulsory health care can lead to no access to health care facilities. It is further concerned that the mainstream health services are not accessible and adequate for persons with disabilities.

38. The Committee recommends that further efforts are made to ensure that people with disabilities without compulsory health care insurance have access to health care facilities. The Committee further recommends that access to mainstream health services, sexual and reproductive health services are made accessible to people with disabilities, especially in rural areas. It also recommends that health professionals in mainstream health service are urgently trained to adequately offer services to persons with disabilities and respect the rights enshrined in the Convention.

Czech Republic (2015)

48. The Committee notes with concern the difficulties deaf persons and parents of boys and girls with intellectual and psycho-social disabilities still face in accessing health care services due to lack of accessible information in spite of the efforts made by the State party.

49. The Committee calls upon the State party to intensify the efforts to make information on health care accessible for persons with disabilities and parents of boys and girls with disabilities, including by making information on relevant service available and accessible to persons with disabilities and their families and by providing sufficient sign language interpreters to deaf persons when they seek health care.

Dominican Republic (2015)

46. Le preocupa al Comité que las acciones y políticas del Estado parte en materia de salud para las personas con discapacidad enfaticen el modelo médico de la discapacidad, en particular la prevención primaria de discapacidades. Igualmente, el Comité observa con preocupación que las instalaciones y el equipo médico en los servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva no son accesibles, particularmente a mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, la persistencia de estigmas y las prácticas lesivas a los derechos de las personas con discapacidad.

47. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

Redoblar los esfuerzos para que los servicios generales de salud sean plenamente accesibles para todas las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo los servicios de salud sexual y reproductiva, eliminando prejuicios y facilitando la actualización profesional y la capacitación a profesionales de la salud sobre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad;

Tomar en cuenta los resultados y recomendaciones del “Diagnostico participativo sobre los Derechos Sexuales y Reproductivos de las Mujeres con Discapacidad en la República Dominicana”, realizado por el Círculo de Mujeres con Discapacidad;

Asegurar que todos los servicios de salud sean accesibles en las áreas rurales y más remotas, y no se discrimine a personas con discapacidad migrantes y a sus descendientes de origen haitiano, particularmente si tienen alguna discapacidad; y

Fortalecer los servicios de salud mental con enfoque de derechos humanos.

Germany (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned about barriers in accessing healthcare and, particularly, access to healthcare for asylum seekers and refugees with disabilities.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party develop and implement plans and allocate resources for the accessibility of healthcare services, including services for refugees, rights-based training for healthcare professionals, communication, information, respect for free and informed individual consent, and universally designed equipment.

Mongolia (2015)

39. The Committee is concerned about the limited access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive health and rehabilitation services, particularly in rural and remote areas, including access to sexual and reproductive health. It is also concerned that under the health legislation of the State party, not all persons with disabilities can exercise their free and informed consent.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure access for people with disabilities to health services without financial constraints, in particular sexual and reproductive health, maternal and child health centers, psychosocial services, and comprehensive rehabilitation community-based services for rural and isolated areas. The Committee also recommends ensuring that all persons with disabilities, regardless of their deficit, have the right to free and informed consent.

New Zealand (2014)

51. The Committee is concerned that barriers still exist preventing persons with disabilities, and especially persons with intellectual disabilities, from fully accessing health-care services, including sexual and reproductive health care.

52. The Committee recommends that further measures be taken to ensure access to full health care for all persons with disabilities.

53. The Committee is concerned that Maori people have the poorest health outcomes in New Zealand. The Committee is also concerned that the prevalence of disability is higher in the Maori population as a result of poverty and disadvantages.

54. The Committee recommends that measures be strengthened to enhance the health outcomes of Maori and Pacific persons with disabilities.

Denmark (2014)

56. The Committee is concerned at information indicating that persons with psychosocial disabilities have a life expectancy that is 15 to 20 years shorter than persons without psychosocial disabilities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with psychosocial disabilities, have equal access to the highest attainable standard of health, including by providing adequate and accessible health services needed by persons with disabilities, and by providing training to health professionals and officials in the public health authorities, including on the right to free and informed consent.

Republic of Korea (2014)

47. The Committee is concerned that the recently amended article 732 of the Commercial Act recognizes life insurance contracts for persons with disabilities only if the person “possesses mental capacity”. The Committee notes that the denial of insurance contracts on the basis of “mental capacity” constitutes a discrimination against persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee encourages the State party to repeal article 732 of the Commercial Act, which recognizes life insurance contracts for a person with disability only if the person “possesses mental capacity”, and to withdraw its reservation to the provision of article 25 (e) of the Convention regarding life insurance.

Ecuador (2014)

38. The Committee is concerned that the health services provided for persons with disabilities by the Ministry of Public Health through comprehensive support centres are not accessible to persons with disabilities living there in rural areas.

39. The Committee recommends that the Ministry of Public Health carry out an accessibility programme at the comprehensive support centres with a view to implementing protocols for different types of disabilities and ensuring that its facilities are accessible to persons with disabilities living in rural areas.

40. The Committee is concerned that the Comprehensive Organic Criminal Code allows the spouse, partner, close family member or legal representative of a woman with an intellectual disability to take a decision on her behalf to have an abortion if the pregnancy is the result of rape.

41. The Committee recommends that the State party amend article 150 of the Comprehensive Organic Criminal Code and any other similar legislation that authorizes a third party to take decisions concerning the body of a woman with a disability.

Mexico (2014)

49. The Committee is concerned at the lack of community mental health services. It is further concerned by restrictions on the right of women with disabilities to safely access sexual and reproductive health services and by the pressure to undergo an abortion when they become pregnant.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure that informed consent is obtained for any medical treatment of persons with disabilities, including the possibility of advance directives; that appropriate community health services are available to persons with disabilities, based on the right to free and informed consent; and that any medication required for a disability are included in the support system and are available at no or low cost;

Ensure that women with disabilities may enjoy their right to accessible and safe sexual and reproductive health services, in both urban and rural areas, and prevent pregnant women with disabilities from being pressured to undergo abortions, investigate any such cases and punish the doctors involved.

Costa Rica (2014)

49. The Committee is concerned about the scant progress made towards ensuring that general and specialized health services are fully accessible to persons with disabilities, which is evidenced by the lack of appropriate medical equipment, fittings and facilities and the fact that neither Costa Rican sign language interpreters nor timely, accessible information are available. The Committee is also concerned about the limited extent to which persons with disabilities are included in sexual and reproductive health policies, programmes and services, including those related to HIV/AIDS, which disproportionately affects women and girls with disabilities. The Committee regrets that no mechanisms have been established to ensure that all services provided to persons with disabilities are delivered only with their free and informed consent.

50. The Committee calls for a strengthening of efforts to ensure that all health policies, programmes and services, including in sexual and reproductive health and those related to HIV/AIDS, are fully accessible and incorporate a gender perspective, especially in rural areas and at the community level. The State party should ensure that persons with disabilities give their free and informed consent, through appropriate mechanisms, before receiving health services of any kind.

51. The Committee regrets that the State party's approach to mental health care is based on the medical model and that no plans to move towards a community care model are being implemented.

52. The Committee urges the State party to allocate resources and to expedite implementation of the national policy for community-based mental health-care services.

El Salvador (2013)

51. The Committee is concerned about the discrimination against persons with disabilities in terms of access to health, including sexual and reproductive health, caused by barriers including the lack of equipment suitable for use by all, for example for obstetrical and gynaecological care. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of information on the right to health of persons with disabilities in rural areas and the availability of community rehabilitation services. The Committee is concerned about the fact that medical procedures are conducted without the free and informed consent of persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt the requisite legislative measures to protect persons with disabilities against discrimination in health matters; ensure their access to health insurance schemes; carry out public health campaigns directed at persons with disabilities, including components on gender and age, sexual and reproductive rights and HIV/AIDS prevention and care; and involve women with disabilities in campaigns to prevent breast and cervical cancer;

Adopt plans and allocate resources for the accessibility of health-care services, including equipment suitable for use by all;

Produce statistics and data on persons with disabilities so that better planning can facilitate their access to health-care services, and identify options for their access to community rehabilitation services;

Adopt measures to ensure persons with disabilities can exercise their right to free and informed consent regarding medical treatment.

Paraguay (2013)

59. The Committee is concerned at the scant information on health services for persons with disabilities, and in particular on services at the community level, including HIV-related services. It is also concerned at poor accessibility in specialist and general medical services, including barriers preventing access to physical facilities and medical equipment and furnishings, and at discrimination in the provision of sexual health and reproductive services.

60. The Committee asks the State party to take the necessary measures to ensure that all health services are fully accessible to persons with disabilities at all levels, including the community level, and that these measures incorporate the gender perspective.

Argentina (2012)

39. The Committee is concerned about the systemic barriers that make it impossible for persons with disabilities to access health services in the State party. These include physical barriers, a dearth of accessible materials, a lack of health-care professionals trained in the human rights model of disability and restrictions on the exercise of legal capacity that exclude persons with disabilities from taking decisions concerning their own treatment.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party develop comprehensive health-care programmes that specifically make provision for persons with disabilities and ensure that they have access to habilitation and rehabilitation health services. It urges the State party to allocate budgetary resources and provide training for health personnel in order to effectively realize the right to health of persons with disabilities, while also ensuring that hospitals and health centres are accessible to persons with disabilities.

41. The Committee regrets that the effective implementation of the National Mental Health Act (Act No. 26.657) is under threat because its implementing regulations have not yet been adopted and because the make-up of its review body has yet to be agreed upon. It also regrets the lack of clear-cut mechanisms for ensuring that persons with disabilities give their free and informed consent for any type of medical treatment before it is administered.

42. The Committee urges the State party to adopt the implementing regulations for the National Mental Health Act (Act No. 26.657) as soon as possible, to establish its review body, to strengthen the network of community mental health services and to improve coordination between these services and inclusive employment, education and housing mechanisms in order to guarantee the effective implementation of the National Mental Health Act. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt protocols for ensuring that all persons with disabilities give their free and informed consent for any type of medical treatment before it is administered.

China (2012)

37. The Committee is concerned about the current involuntary commitment system in the state party. It takes note of the Draft Mental Health Act and the ordinances of six major cities in the state party on mental health which do not respect the individual will of persons with disabilities.

38. The Committee advises the state party to adopt measures to ensure that all health care and services provided to persons with disabilities, including all mental health care and services, is based on the free and informed consent of the individual concerned, and that laws permitting involuntary treatment and confinement, including upon the authorisation of third party decision-makers such as family members or guardians, are repealed. It recommends the state party to develop a wide range of community-based services and supports that respond to needs expressed by persons with disabilities, and respect the person's autonomy, choices, dignity and privacy, including peer support and other alternatives to the medical model of mental health

Hong-Kong (2012)

75. The Committee is troubled by the fact that the demand for public medical services is higher than the supply. The Committee is also concerned about the fact that many insurance companies reject the applications of persons with disabilities, thus leaving them unable to pay the medical fees.

76. The Committee suggests that Hong Kong, China, allocate more human and financial resources to the public medical services and arrange the cooperation of the insurance companies.

Peru (2012)

38. The Committee is concerned that, according to State party's replies to the list of issues, no rehabilitation services exist for 81 per cent of the population with a disability, and only 1.42 per cent of persons with disabilities are covered by social security programmes. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of health services, in particular in rural areas, as well as numerous limitations to persons with disabilities imposed by the Supreme Decree 004-2007-SA on Comprehensive Health Insurance. It further regrets the lack of early detection programmes of deafness for children in order to minimize and prevent further disabilities.

39. The Committee urges the State party to elaborate comprehensive health programmes in order to ensure that persons with disabilities are specifically targeted and have access to rehabilitation and health services in general. The Committee further recommends that the State party:

Review its legal framework in order to ensure that insurance companies and other private parties do not discriminate against persons with disabilities;

Apply budgetary resources and create skills among health personnel, in order to effectively comply with the right to health care of persons with disabilities, ensuring that hospitals and health centres are accessible to persons with disabilities;

Provide services of early identification of disabilities, in particular deafness, designed to minimize and prevent further disabilities, including among children.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 26 CRPD
(Habilitation and rehabilitation)*

September 2025

Article 26 - Habilitation and rehabilitation

1. States Parties shall take effective and appropriate measures, including through peer support, to enable persons with disabilities to attain and maintain maximum independence, full physical, mental, social and vocational ability, and full inclusion and participation in all aspects of life. To that end, States Parties shall organize, strengthen and extend comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes, particularly in the areas of health, employment, education and social services, in such a way that these services and programmes:

a) Begin at the earliest possible stage, and are based on the multidisciplinary assessment of individual needs and strengths;

b) Support participation and inclusion in the community and all aspects of society, are voluntary, and are available to persons with disabilities as close as possible to their own communities, including in rural areas.

2. States Parties shall promote the development of initial and continuing training for professionals and staff working in habilitation and rehabilitation services.

3. States Parties shall promote the availability, knowledge and use of assistive devices and technologies, designed for persons with disabilities, as they relate to habilitation and rehabilitation.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Peru (2023)
Jamaica (2022)
Djibouti (2021)

Estonia (2021)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2021)
Myanmar (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Bulgaria (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)

El Salvador (2013)

Paraguay (2013)

China (2012)

Please note there are no recommendations on Israel, Mauritania, Paraguay, Georgia, Togo, Tunisia, New Zealand, France, Cuba, Niger, Norway, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Spain, Turkey, Vanuatu, Algeria, Malta, Seychelles, South Africa, Oman, Luxembourg, Montenegro, Morocco, Panama, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Canada, Cyprus, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Jordan, Republic of Moldova, Guatemala, Lithuania, Portugal, Serbia, Uganda, Brazil, European Union, Gabon, Kenya, Czech Republic, Germany, Turkmenistan, Belgium, Denmark, Ecuador, Mexico, New Zealand, Republic of Korea, Sweden, Azerbaijan, Austria, Argentina, Hungary, Peru, Spain, Tunisia, Mexico, Switzerland, Venezuela, Bangladesh, China, Indonesia, New Zealand and Singapore.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The underfunding and limited capacity of rehabilitation centres for persons with disabilities, particularly outside of Pyongyang, which results in unequal access to rehabilitation services across the State Party;
- (b) The lack of assistive devices, including wheelchairs, walkers, hearing aids and other devices and technologies designed for persons with disabilities to promote their maximum independence and full physical, mental, social, and vocational abilities.

51. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State Party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community, including in rural and remote areas. It further recommends that the State Party take measures to make available all rehabilitation equipment, assistive devices, and mobility aids and services including their repair, based on individual requirements, to promote the maximum independence and social inclusion of persons with disabilities.

Finland (2025)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The prevalence of a medical approach to rehabilitation;
- (b) The division of duties between different rehabilitation services among public entities and levels of government, restricting access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation programmes.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Take a human right approach to its habilitation and rehabilitation programmes and ensure their availability nationwide, including in the Åland Islands, guarantee comprehensive, interdisciplinary and individualized evaluations for habilitation or rehabilitation plans and make information on habilitation and rehabilitation programmes available in accessible formats, including Finnish and Finland Swedish sign languages, Easy-Read, pictograms, Braille and in digital media;
- (b) Render procedures for habilitation and rehabilitation services accessible and establish monitoring and complaint mechanisms to guarantee effective enforcement.

Kiribati (2025)

49. The Committee acknowledges the establishment of the Tungaru Rehabilitation Service, in 2013. However, it is concerned:

- (a) That rehabilitation services remain centralized in South Tarawa, creating serious barriers for persons with disabilities living on outer islands;
- (b) About the shortage of qualified rehabilitation personnel, the irregularity of outreach services, the lack of integration of habilitation and rehabilitation into community-based services and the national health system.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expand and decentralize rehabilitation services beyond South Tarawa, including through mobile outreach and community-based approaches to ensure access for persons with disabilities on outer islands;
- (b) Increase the number and capacity of qualified rehabilitation professionals, including physiotherapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists, and prosthetics/orthotics specialists and psychologists through training and retention measures, and integrate habilitation and rehabilitation into the health system and community services to ensure continuity of care and availability of assistive technologies and related professionals across all islands;

Maldives (2025)

51. The Committee is concerned about the lack of rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities and the lack of therapeutic services like speech therapy, psychotherapy, occupational therapy, and physical therapy, particularly on the outer islands. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of staff and resources for the community-based rehabilitation programme.

52. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention, and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community, including on the outer islands. It further recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that health institutions, educational institutions, vocational training programmes and other social services are equipped and adequately resourced to provide accommodation and rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities;
- (b) Establish decentralized units of the Centre for Management and Rehabilitation of Persons with Disabilities on the outer islands, and provide financial support to families who must travel to Malé to access the specialized services.

Canada (2025)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The medicalised approach to habilitation and rehabilitation programmes and disparities in access and funding complex procedures for assistive technology and devices, including prosthetics, across jurisdictions, and long wait times to receive rehabilitation, including for children with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of culturally appropriate habilitation and rehabilitation services for First Nations, Inuit, and Métis persons with disabilities, including off-reserve and non-status Indigenous persons with disabilities.

52. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention, and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

- (a) Work with provinces and territories to ensure national consistency in access and funding for habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes, and technology, with a focus on living independently and being included in the community and to streamline procedures for accessing assistive and prosthetic devices, to ensure access assessments address the individual needs of persons with disabilities and to reduce wait times, in particular for children with disabilities;
- (b) Strengthen distinctions-based measures to ensure culturally appropriate habilitation and rehabilitation within the Action Plan to implement the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act.

Dominican Republic (2025)

47. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient habilitation and rehabilitation services across the State party, as the majority are concentrated in the Santiago province. It is also concerned that the approach of these services continues to be mostly medical, without considering psychological, emotional and other important aspects.

48. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take measures to increase coverage of habilitation and rehabilitation services across all regions in the State party and review the approaches with which habilitation and rehabilitation services operate, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities.

European Union (2025)

62. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The EU lacks dedicated strategies for the provision of habilitation and rehabilitation services, their inclusion in cross-border healthcare coverage, and funding mechanisms;
- (b) There is widespread inequality in the availability, affordability, and quality of habilitation services for persons with disabilities;
- (c) Budgetary measures in Member States exacerbate the shortage of rehabilitation services and increase financial burdens on persons with disabilities and that access to habilitation programmes is insufficiently tailored to individual requirements.

63. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Increase budget allocations for habilitation and rehabilitation services, develop guidelines on evidence and rights-based intervention, and include rehabilitation services in the Patient Mobility Directive;
- (b) Support Member States financially and exchange best practices to improve access to habilitation and rehabilitation for persons with disabilities, and adopt an action plan for affordable and accessible rehabilitation across the lifespan, in line with the WHO's Rehabilitation 2030 agenda;
- (c) Promote compulsory training on specific and evidence-based habilitation strategies for autism, and adopt quality assessment systems for habilitation services focused on inclusion, participation and users' quality of life.

Palau (2025)

49. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The lack of rights-based habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes for persons with disabilities that promote their physical, mental and social development;
- (b) The lack of availability of assistive devices and technologies designed for persons with disabilities to promote their maximum independence and full physical, mental, social, and vocational abilities.

50. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community. It further recommends that the State party take measures to make available all rehabilitation equipment, assistive devices, and mobility aids and services including their repair, based on individual requirements, to promote the maximum independence and social inclusion of persons with disabilities.

Tuvalu (2025)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities and the lack of rehabilitation, health education and sanitation materials, particularly on the outer islands. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of staff and resources for the community-based rehabilitation programme.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that health institutions, educational institutions, vocational training programmes and other social services are equipped and adequately resourced to provide accommodation and rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities;
- (b) Establish a community implementation monitoring mechanism for rehabilitation in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations.

Viet Nam (2025)

51. Although the State party report having many rehabilitation centres throughout the country, the Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The proportion of persons with disabilities attending rehabilitation centres is very limited, with only 1.2% of the total number visiting rehabilitation centres in 2016;
- (c) Persons who are deaf-blind are not receiving the necessary supports to communicate and therefore be able to be included in education, employment and lead independent, employed and active lives.
- (d) The focus of training for rehabilitation professionals is mainly physical therapy;
- (e) Rehabilitation orthotics and prosthetics, hearing aids, and mobility aids, are listed as non-reimbursable items in health insurance plans;
- (f) Over the last 50 years, tens of thousands of veterans with disabilities have only received financial support from overseas Vietnamese charities, not from the government.

52. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention, and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the organizations representing them receive clear and comprehensive information about available rehabilitation services in their communities, facilitating their registration and access to these services;
- (c) Reform the Law on Persons with Disabilities to specifically address persons who are deafblind, ensuring the provision of appropriate financial means, means for communication and educational, employment and social inclusion;
- (d) Distribute comprehensive information to intermediate-level students about career opportunities in occupational, recreational, and speech therapy, encouraging them to consider these fields alongside physical therapy;
- (e) Amend legislation to include orthotics, prosthetics, hearing aids, and mobility aids in the list of reimbursable items under health insurance plans;
- (f) Conduct a census of veterans with disabilities and ensure they receive rehabilitation services and financial support from the government.

Belarus (2024)

51. The Committee is concerned about the delay and the lack of a work plan anchored in time, in favour of the construction of the rehabilitation centre, adapted to persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, the State party expand habilitation and rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities, in the community and that it defines a work plan anchored in time to adapt the building of the rehabilitation centre for persons with disabilities and make it fully accessible and inclusive.

Belgium (2024)

52. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Some persons with disabilities must travel long distances to reach rehabilitation services adapted to their individual requirements;
- (b) Persons with disabilities in institutions have no choice as to the provider of habilitation and rehabilitation services;
- (c) Measures to ensure initial and continuing training for professionals and staff providing habilitation and rehabilitation services, are lacking.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Develop a clear national strategy and implementation plan to ensure that habilitation and rehabilitation programmes and services are comprehensive and designed to promote and support the right of persons with disabilities to live independently and be included in the community, and that they are provided free of charge and close to the place of residence of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Take measures to ensure systematic and continuing training on the rights and requirements of persons with disabilities for professionals and staff providing habilitation and rehabilitation services.

Benin (2024)

51. The Committee is concerned at the insufficient rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities and the lack of rehabilitation equipment, health education and sanitation, particularly in rural areas. It is also concerned by the limited staffing and resources for the community-based rehabilitation programme.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that all major sectors particularly in rural areas including major health facilities, educational entities, vocational programs and other social services are equipped and provided with adequate resources to provide habilitation and rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities;

(b) Set a mechanism to monitor the implementation of the community rehabilitation programme, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

Burkina Faso (2024)

48. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective and properly government-funded community-based habilitation and rehabilitation services, especially for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, other than those run by non-governmental organizations.

49. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention, and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community, and in all districts/regions of the State party. It further recommends to strengthen and provide adequate funding for the comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation services of all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in both rural and urban areas.

Denmark (2024)

69. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient access to habilitation and rehabilitation services by persons with disabilities, and the insufficient adaptation of such services to specific requirements.

70. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services. It further recommends the Kingdom of Denmark ensure that assistive devices and personnel with expertise in the specific requirements of persons with disabilities are available.

Ghana (2024)

50. The Committee notes with concern, that there are only 9 public rehabilitation centres across the State party and that there is limited involvement of non-governmental organizations in community-based rehabilitation.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party expand habilitation and rehabilitation systems, including encouraging non-governmental organizations to provide community-based rehabilitation and take necessary measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities in rural areas have access to rehabilitation services.

Mauritius (2024)

45. The Committee is concerned about the shortage of comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, including for children with disabilities, despite the existence of Community Based Rehabilitation Officers under the Ministry of Health and Wellness.

46. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community, and in all islands and districts of the State party.

Netherlands (2024)

57. The Committee is concerned about barriers faced by persons with disabilities when returning home after surgery or in relation to physiotherapy, due to the expensive and complicated system.

58. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention, and target 3.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community, and in all parts of the State party.

Ukraine (2024)

52. The Committee notes that the State Party developed multidisciplinary rehabilitation teams and approved a procedure for the provision of assistive devices in specialized offices at inpatient healthcare facilities. However, the Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of comprehensive and available functioning of the State's facilities for habilitation and rehabilitation;
- (b) The assessment of requirements for assistive devices conducted by multidisciplinary rehabilitation teams excludes the involvement of persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of a coherent universal system of health and social rehabilitation for persons with disabilities and inadequate budgetary allocations, resulting in an insufficient number of health, professional, social rehabilitation centers, as well as in the unavailability of services especially in rural and remote areas.

53. Recalling the link between article 26 of the Convention, and target 3.7 and 3.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take comprehensive measures to ensure the involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organization in the multidisciplinary assessment process of individual needs on habilitation and rehabilitation;
- (b) Establish a coherent universal system of health and social rehabilitation for persons with all kinds of disabilities, and ensure that rehabilitation centers, have sufficient budget and trained personnel, both in urban and rural areas, to provide services to all persons with disabilities;
- (c) Ensure the availability, knowledge and use of assistive devices and technologies, designed for persons with disabilities relating to habilitation and rehabilitation in the response, recovery, and post conflict policies and projects.

Azerbaijan (2024)

57. The Committee is concerned that the State party's main strategy about rehabilitation focuses on rehabilitation centres perpetuating the medical approach to disability. It is also concerned at the lack of information about access by persons with disabilities in rural areas, including children, old persons and women with disabilities, to habilitation and rehabilitation.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Reframe its rehabilitation programmes with the aim to promote community-based inclusive development and support for participation of persons with disabilities in the community;
- (b) Develop a national strategy for habilitation and rehabilitation that targets persons with disabilities in rural areas, including women with disabilities, older persons with disabilities and children with disabilities, ensure budgetary allocation for habilitation and rehabilitation and quality standards of programmes, monitoring and evaluations on regular basis.

Bahrain (2024)¹

52. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a clear strategy for rehabilitation and habilitation programs to ensure that they are comprehensive and achieve inclusion as their primary goal, and the lack of data showing the effectiveness of these programs in promoting independent living and achieving inclusion.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a clear national strategy and implementation plan to ensure that rehabilitation programs and services are comprehensive and designed to promote and support the right of persons with disabilities to independent living and inclusion in all aspects of life, and that these programs and services are provided free of charge and close to the places of residence of persons with disabilities.

Costa Rica (2024)

43. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) La existencia de solamente un centro de rehabilitación, basado en la capital, y la falta de instalaciones de habilitación y rehabilitación disponibles para personas con discapacidad que viven en otras regiones del Estado parte;
- b) La falta de información sobre la implementación de programas de rehabilitación con base comunitaria y enfocada al desarrollo de las personas con discapacidad, en particular la rehabilitación pediátrica desde la edad temprana.

44. El Comité recomienda:

- a) Garantizar la prestación de servicios de habilitación y rehabilitación a todas las personas con discapacidad, incluidos los indígenas y afrodescendientes, independientemente de su edad, sexo, origen o condición socioeconómica, en todo el territorio nacional;
- b) Acelerar la adopción de una estrategia para promover la rehabilitación con base comunitaria y enfocada al desarrollo de las personas con discapacidad, desde la edad temprana, conforme recomendado en CRPD/C/CRI/CO/1, párr. 54.

Kazakhstan (2024)

55. The Committee is concerned about the use of a medical approach to disability by the Medical Social Expert Assessment Board in its disability assessments.

56. The Committee recommends the Medical Social Expert Assessment Board follows the human rights model of disability in its assessments of disabilities with the aim of defining individually tailored rehabilitation programmes.

Nicaragua (2024)

54. Al Comité le preocupa que:

- a) Se dé prioridad a las personas con discapacidad física en los programas de rehabilitación y habilitación;
- b) La falta de información sobre las actividades del Centro de Rehabilitación para personas ciegas y de baja visión “Carlos Fonseca Amador” y si se ha ampliado para contar con un centro de rehabilitación integral;
- c) Los escasos servicios de rehabilitación estén centralizados en las áreas urbanas.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

55.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Establecer programas de rehabilitación y habilitación para personas con discapacidad sensorial, intelectual y psicosocial además de mejorar los que ya tiene para personas con discapacidad física;
- b) Ampliar el Centro de Rehabilitación “Carlos Fonseca Amador” para que cuente con servicios de rehabilitación integral e incluya aspectos de capacitación vocacional;
- c) Ampliar y descentralizar los servicios de rehabilitación a las áreas rurales dotándoles de recursos humanos capacitados y financieros para su funcionamiento.

Sweden (2024)

57. The Committee is concerned about the inconsistency and limited range of services and providers across the regions and the municipalities and the lack of nationally consistent guidelines and monitoring mechanisms to ensure persons with disabilities receive appropriate habilitation and rehabilitation services.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party develop nationally consistent guidelines, monitoring and evaluation mechanisms to ensure persons with disabilities can easily select and receive the most relevant and appropriate habilitation and rehabilitation programmes or services in accordance with their choice and preference, and can exercise independent living and have access to the labour market.

Zambia (2024)

51. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) At the lack of rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities, lack of rehabilitation equipment, health education and sanitation, particularly in the rural areas;
- (b) The delay in the development of the Community-Based Inclusive Development Policy.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that all major hospitals, in particular in rural areas, are equipped and provided with adequate resources to provide habilitation and rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities;
- (b) Accelerate the finalization of the national community-based inclusive development policy, including a mechanism to monitor its implementation, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations.

Andorra (2023)

53. The Committee expresses its concern about the prevalence of the medical model in habilitation and rehabilitation programmes.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party develop cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology available to persons with disabilities, within their community, that are based on the principles of participation and inclusion, in particular in the areas of health, employment, education and social services, with monitoring and evaluations on a regular basis.

Austria (2023)

59. The Committee is concerned about unequal and often restricted access to habilitation and rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities, depending on their employment status.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee equal and effective access to quality habilitation and rehabilitation services for all persons with disabilities, irrespective of their present or previous employment status.

Germany (2023)

59. The Committee is concerned about the lack of mechanisms in place to ensure persons with disabilities receive integral rehabilitation services from different providers across the Länder and the uncertain long-term impact of the Federal Participation Act (BTHG) in creating efficient rehabilitation systems to reduce segregation, in particular in congregate living and sheltered workshops.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party develop cross-cutting, accessible and flexible mechanisms through which persons with disabilities can easily select and receive the most relevant rehabilitation programs or services in accordance with their choice and preference, and conduct periodic thematic assessments of rehabilitation programs to ensure persons with disabilities' ample exercise of independent living and access to the labor market.

Malawi (2023)

53. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures to provide habilitation and rehabilitation and that community-based rehabilitation is available only in a few districts due to lack of funding.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that policies and programmes provide for community-based rehabilitation across the country with adequate funding. It also recommends that the State party promote local production of assistive devices to enhance habilitation and rehabilitation of all persons with disabilities both in the urban and rural areas.

Mongolia (2023)

51. The Committee is concerned that the Development centres for rehabilitation of children with disabilities and the 6 development centres for persons with disabilities established in 6 provinces, focus only on the medical model of habilitation and rehabilitation.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to expand habilitation and rehabilitation systems, taking into account the human rights model of disability, and ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to these services based on their individual requirements.

Angola (2023)

43. The Committee notes with concern, that notwithstanding the 11 Orthopaedic and Rehabilitation Centres across Angola, the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to rehabilitation services, including in rural areas and for persons who have been victims of landmines.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party expand habilitation and rehabilitation systems and take necessary measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities in rural areas and persons who have been victims of landmines, have access to rehabilitation on the basis of their individual requirements.

Argentina (2023)

49. El Comité observa con preocupación las barreras que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad, en particular los niños y las niñas, para acceder a los servicios de rehabilitación de calidad de manera oportuna, especialmente en las zonas rurales, y el énfasis de los programas de habilitación y rehabilitación en el modelo médico.

50. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que fortalezca la Red Federal de Rehabilitación y amplíe los sistemas de habilitación y rehabilitación en la comunidad, teniendo en cuenta el modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos, y asegure que las personas con discapacidad, incluidos los niños y las niñas con discapacidad de las zonas rurales, tengan acceso a esos servicios.

Peru (2023)

52. Preocupa al Comité que las personas con discapacidad en zonas rurales y remotas no tengan acceso a servicios de rehabilitación, ya que la mayoría de los proveedores se encuentran en las capitales provinciales y en Lima.

53. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que incremente el acceso a servicios de habilitación y rehabilitación para personas con discapacidad, particularmente en áreas rurales y remotas.

Jamaica (2022)

46. The Committee notes with concern the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to rehabilitation services, including in rural areas.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party expand habilitation and rehabilitation systems and ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities in rural areas, have access to habilitation and rehabilitation on the basis of their individual requirements.

Djibouti (2021)

45. The Committee is concerned about the lack of availability of comprehensive and community-based habilitation and rehabilitation programmes for persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas.

46. The Committee recommends that in the development, adoption and implementation of habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes, including in the drafting of the National Strategy on Rehabilitation, the State party ensure that it takes into account the human rights model of disability and the promotion of comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation of persons with disabilities, particularly in the areas of health, employment, education and social services.

Estonia (2021)

50. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to rehabilitation services, including in rural areas;

(b) The lack of information about measures taken to ensure the sustainability and continuity of rehabilitation services after the provision of support through the European Social Fund ends.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Expand habilitation and rehabilitation systems and ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities in rural areas, have access to rehabilitation on the basis of their individual requirements;

(b) Ensure the sustainability and continuity of rehabilitation services after the provision of support through the European Social Fund ends by taking specific policy measures and allocating a specific budget.

India (2019)

54. The Committee is concerned that the Deendayal Disabled Rehabilitation scheme emphasizes a medical and charity-based approach to disability, and that it discriminates against persons with disabilities from marginalized groups.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party promote community-based inclusive development, reframing the Deendayal Disabled Rehabilitation scheme in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, particularly those in rural areas, and ensure budgetary allocations for habilitation and rehabilitation across the State party and the quality standards of programmes, with monitoring and evaluations on a regular basis.

Iraq (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of adequate legislation, strategies and programmes and of human, technical and financial resources in the State party to ensure access to habilitation and rehabilitation services, particularly in the centre and in the south of the country.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt appropriate legislation and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to ensure access to habilitation and rehabilitation services, ensuring that such services are developed and provided with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations.

Kuwait (2021)

50. The Committee is concerned that policies on habilitation and rehabilitation overemphasize health-related issues. It is also concerned about the insufficient number of rehabilitation centres given that there is a waiting list of persons with disabilities who need rehabilitation. It is further concerned that the provision of free-of-charge assistive devices is limited to the provision of hearing aids and several categories of wheelchairs.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop comprehensive, cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes that are based on the principles of participation and inclusion, in particular in the areas of health, employment, education and social services, and that are available to persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaiti persons with disabilities, in or as close as possible to their own communities;

(b) Establish new comprehensive rehabilitation centres in order to accommodate all those on the waiting list;

(c) Expand its provision of assistive devices and technical aids taking into account the priority assistive products list of the World Health Organization and ensure accessible and fair reimbursement schemes in order to prevent any additional costs or administrative burdens for persons with disabilities.

Myanmar (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned about the lack of availability of comprehensive and community-based habilitation and rehabilitation programs for persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement laws and regulations that promote comprehensive, habilitation and rehabilitation for persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas, taking into account the human rights model of disability, such as community-based inclusive development programmes.

Rwanda (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about the shortage of comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology in the State party, especially in rural areas. It is in particular concerned that health-related habilitation and rehabilitation services and assistive devices are not covered by “Mutuelle de Santé” health insurance scheme.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to secure access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive and cross-sectoral habilitation and rehabilitation services, programmes and technology, within their community, and in all districts of the State party. It also recommends that the State party take appropriate measures, including by expanding the coverage of “Mutuelle de Santé” health insurance scheme to secure access for persons with disabilities to affordable health-related habilitation and rehabilitation devices and services.

Bulgaria (2018)

55. The Committee is concerned that habilitation and rehabilitation programmes do not target all persons with disabilities. It is also concerned at the lack of participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design of habilitation and rehabilitation programmes.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party adopts habilitation and rehabilitation programmes that target all persons with disabilities, irrespective of their impairment, sex, gender or age. It also recommends that the State party ensure meaningful participation of persons with disabilities in habilitation and rehabilitation services, and that programmes are designed in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Philippines (2018)

44. The Committee is concerned that the State party's information about the implementation of rehabilitation/habilitation services provided for in the "Magna Carta for Persons with Disabilities, and the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, is not substantiated by data. It is also concerned about the uneven implementation of community-based rehabilitation due to the different approaches of stakeholders that promote a health-focused approach rather than inclusive development. It is further concerned about information concerning current procurement procedures limiting the supply, quality of services or products, prices and choice of various assistive devices to persons with disabilities.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Redouble its efforts to implement numerous provisions for habilitation/rehabilitation as part of the general health care policies, and strengthen monitoring mechanisms of rehabilitation services;
- (b) Adopt protocols to ensure rehabilitation in compliance with the inclusive equality and development;
- (c) Improve the administration of procurement policy to ensure the supply, quality, prices and multiple choice of various assistive devices for persons with disabilities.

Poland (2018)

42. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Lack of accessibility of rehabilitation schemes for all persons with disabilities, especially for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, as well as the income criteria for eligibility to rehabilitation services, which puts undue financial burden on persons with disabilities;
- (b) Project and medical-based rehabilitation schemes, and their financial unsustainability;
- (c) Lack of monitoring of the administration of programmes of rehabilitation;
- (d) Incomplete official translation of the title of this article as 'Rehabilitation'.

43. Taking into account the links between article 26 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure accessibility and continuity of the habilitation and rehabilitation programmes for all persons with disabilities, especially for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and eliminate financial criteria for eligibility to rehabilitation;
- (b) Provide for inclusive and individualized needs-based rehabilitation schemes for persons with disabilities, within a wide range of community-based services;
- (c) Develop a monitoring mechanism of the rehabilitation programmes;
- (d) Rectify the title of this article as "Habilitation and Rehabilitation" in the Polish version of the Convention.

North Macedonia (2018)

46. The Committee is concerned about the lack of adequate legislation in the State party to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to habilitation and rehabilitation services and that habilitation and rehabilitation are not concretely defined within the laws and regulations of the State Party.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the legislation necessary to define and ensure access to habilitation and rehabilitation services, ensuring they are human rights-based and developed with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Haiti (2018)

46. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not have a National Action Plan to habilitate and rehabilitate all persons with disabilities who require such services, particularly after the 2010 earthquake and the passage of hurricane "Matthew". It is also concerned that organizations of persons with disabilities do not participate in the development and implementation of habilitation and rehabilitation programmes.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a National Action Plan on habilitation and rehabilitation in line with the Convention, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party includes mobility aids, devices and assistive technologies in the context of international cooperation.

Nepal (2018)

(Recommendation regarding articles 25 and 26 together)

37. The Committee is concerned about the limited access to comprehensive health and rehabilitation services by persons with disabilities, particularly in rural and remote areas.

38. The Committee recommends that the State party develop measures to ensure comprehensive access to health services for persons with disabilities, particularly sexual and reproductive health services, maternal and child health centres, psychosocial services, and intensify the provision of comprehensive community-based rehabilitation services including in rural and remote areas.

Russian Federation (2018)

(Recommendation regarding articles 25 and 26 together)

51. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient and unequal access to quality health care and rehabilitation services in all regions of the State party and notes the recommendation of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights for the Russian Federation (E/C.12/RUS/CO/6), paragraphs 50-51. The Committee is also concerned that there is no information available regarding the legislation formulating the characteristics of the Technical Means of Rehabilitation (TMR).

52. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure access to quality health care and rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities in all regions of the State party. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the current legislation and practice in terms of drug policy and preventive measures by taking into account the recommendations of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights for the Russian Federation (E/C.12/RUS/CO/6), paragraphs 50-51 in particular. It also recommends that the State party elaborate legislation on the TMR system which should provide for transparent decision making process with regard to relevant safeguards.

Slovenia (2018)

43. The Committee is concerned at the lack of availability and effectiveness of the rehabilitation system.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure accessibility of habilitation and rehabilitation services and programs, and provide with a comprehensive, multidisciplinary and individualized support for persons with disabilities, especially for women and children with disabilities.

Sudan (2018)

51. The Committee is concerned about the lack of adequate legislation in the State party to ensure access to habilitation and rehabilitation services and that the measures taken are not in compliance with the Convention as they maintain a medical-oriented approach and do not address the required changes in society and in education.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the legislation necessary to ensure access to habilitation and rehabilitation services, ensuring they are human rights-based and, with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Latvia (2017)

44. The Committee is concerned about the long waiting times to receive rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities throughout the country, especially for those with severe impairments.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party improve the accessibility and timely delivery of rehabilitation services throughout the country for all persons with disabilities.

Armenia (2017)

45. The Committee is concerned that habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes for persons with disabilities in the State party are not adequately rights based. It also notes with concern that more than half of children with disabilities do not benefit from an individual rehabilitation plan.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party create accessible, comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes, such as early intervention, providing comprehensive, multidisciplinary and individualized support for persons with disabilities, especially women and children.

Honduras (2017)

55. Al Comité le preocupa la ausencia de datos sobre las personas con discapacidad que tienen acceso a servicios y programas de habilitación y rehabilitación, así como la insuficiencia de los mismos en el Estado parte. Además, el Comité nota con preocupación el número de migrantes que han retornado al país con alguna discapacidad luego de emprender la ruta migratoria.

56. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte las medidas necesarias para garantizar a las personas con discapacidad, en todo su territorio, el acceso a servicios y programas de rehabilitación basados en la comunidad y con fines de inclusión social y comunitaria. Asimismo, el Comité recomienda que fortalezca las medidas de rehabilitación para la reinserción efectiva de los trabajadores migrantes que regresan con alguna discapacidad, incluyendo a través del acceso a un trabajo digno y con estabilidad.

Bolivia (2016)

59. The Committee is concerned about the poor coverage of rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities, and particularly comprehensive services for community inclusion, especially in marginal urban and rural areas.

60. The Committee urges the State party to adopt a community-based inclusive development and rehabilitation strategy, with a particular focus on early intervention, including training for parents of children with disabilities, which has sufficient resources for implementation and involves persons with disabilities in its design and implementation, through the organizations that represent them.

Colombia (2016)

58. The Committee is concerned about the fact that the State party delegates some of its obligations related to the habilitation and rehabilitation of persons with disabilities to the private company Teletón, without proper auditing or oversight, and without consulting organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that rehabilitation measures focus on physical or deficiency-related aspects of persons with disabilities, and don't take into consideration such areas as education and employment.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Monitor, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the habilitation and rehabilitation services offered by private companies;
- (b) Make habilitation and rehabilitation services comprehensive and thus in line with the Convention.

Ethiopia (2016)

57. The Committee is concerned that habilitation and rehabilitation programmes do not target all persons with disabilities. It is also concerned at the lack of participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design of habilitation and rehabilitation programmes, and in the design of mobility aids, devices and other assistive technologies.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt habilitation and rehabilitation programmes that target all persons with disabilities, irrespective of their impairment, gender or age. It also recommends that the State party ensure accessible participation of persons with disabilities in habilitation and rehabilitation services, and that programmes and assistive devices are designed in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Italy (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned at the slow progress in implementing the National Minimum Standards of Health Care with respect to comprehensive services and programmes of habilitation and rehabilitation, and the fact that those Standards do not cover independent living and personal assistance schemes to offer support for living in the local communities, but continue to direct resources to institutionalized living.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party review and revise the Minimum Standards of Health Care, in close consultation with organizations representing persons with disabilities; that it refrain from focusing resources on segregated services; and that it redirect resources to support independent living. It also recommends that the State party expedite the adoption, funding and implementation of those Standards, so that all adults and children with disabilities have full access to comprehensive services and programmes of habilitation and rehabilitation within their community.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

47. The Committee is concerned that policies on habilitation and rehabilitation overemphasize health-related issues and that non-citizens do not have access to habilitation and rehabilitation services and devices.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party develop comprehensive cross-sectorial habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes that are based on the principles of participation and inclusion, in particular in the areas of health, employment, education and social services, and that are available to persons with disabilities, including non-citizens, in or as close as possible to their own communities.

Uruguay (2016)

55. Al Comité le preocupa la ausencia de datos sobre las personas con discapacidad que tienen acceso a servicios y programas de rehabilitación así como la inexistencia de los mismos en el interior del Estado parte.

56. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte las medidas necesarias para garantizar a las personas con discapacidad, en todo su territorio, el acceso a servicios y programas de rehabilitación basados en la comunidad y con fines de la inclusión social y comunitaria.

Chile (2016)

55. Al Comité le preocupa la cobertura limitada en las acciones del Estado parte en materia de rehabilitación. Asimismo le preocupa que se destinen fondos públicos al financiamiento de organizaciones privadas que se dedican a la rehabilitación física de niños con discapacidad sin ser objeto de fiscalización, y que los servicios ofrecidos por tales organizaciones no sean universales.

56. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte priorice y destine los recursos necesarios para disponer de servicios de rehabilitación basados en la comunidad y dirigidos a todas las personas con discapacidad desde la niñez hasta la edad adulta y con fines de la inclusión social y comunitaria. En la implementación de estas medidas, lo alienta a que se consulte a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, en particular, a las que representan a mujeres, niñas y niños, indígenas y personas que viven en zonas rurales y remotas.

Slovakia (2016)

71. The Committee is concerned about the low quality and availability of State-funded rehabilitation.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the quality and availability of all rehabilitation services and the introduction of mechanisms to monitor compliance with the Convention.

Thailand (2016)

51. The Committee is concerned about the insufficiency of habilitation and rehabilitation services and technology, particularly in rural areas, and that access to these remains for the most part dependent on a medical assessment.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party increase the human, technical and financial resources to organize, strengthen and extend comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation services and technology, on the basis of the multidisciplinary assessment of individual needs and strengths.

Mauritius (2015)

35. The Committee regrets the lack of information on the availability of health, early intervention services, including provision of sexual and reproductive health services and age appropriate habilitation and rehabilitation services for persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of social support to cover the disability-related expenses for their children with disabilities.

36. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt clear procedures for the early intervention services for persons with disabilities to appropriate and accessible habilitation and rehabilitation services, including services for parents with disabilities, with special regard to parents of all children with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that health, rehabilitation and other disability-related expenses for children with disabilities be covered.

Qatar (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned that policies on habilitation and rehabilitation overemphasize health-related issues.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party develop comprehensive cross-sectorial habilitation and rehabilitation services and programs, based on participation and inclusion, particularly in the areas of health, employment, education and social services, available to persons with disabilities in or as close as possible to their own communities.

Ukraine (2015)

48. The Committee is concerned about the lack of rights-based habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes for persons with disabilities in the State party that promote their physical, mental and social development.

49. The Committee urges the State party to create accessible comprehensive habilitation and rehabilitation services and programmes such as early intervention, providing comprehensive, multidisciplinary and individualized support for persons with disabilities and their families.

Cook Islands (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned about the availability of assistive devices and high reliance of overseas aid for their provision, as well as services for rehabilitation.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party's Ministry of Health's Rehabilitation Group provide free at point of source all rehabilitation equipment, assistive devices, mobility aids (including their repair) and establish an array of rehabilitation services across the country.

Croatia (2015)

39. The Committee is concerned that many boys and girls with disabilities have no access to early intervention services, and that the situation is particularly hard for children with autism.

40. The Committee recommends the State party to take measures to provide early intervention services to all children with disabilities.

Dominican Republic (2015)

48. Al Comité le preocupa la escasez de servicios de habilitación y rehabilitación comunitarios que se brindan a las personas con discapacidad, particularmente, que el programa "Saliendo del escondite" no las incluya. Igualmente, le preocupa que cuando los servicios de habilitación y rehabilitación existen, estos solamente benefician a personas con la nacionalidad dominicana que cuentan con el seguro familiar de salud, negando así el acceso a personas en situación migratoria irregular.

49. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte ampliar los servicios de habilitación y rehabilitación, prestando especial atención al nivel comunitario, y prohíba la discriminación en estos servicios, particularmente por motivo de origen nacional o estatus migratorio.

Mongolia (2015)

39. The Committee is concerned about the limited access for persons with disabilities to comprehensive health and rehabilitation services, particularly in rural and remote areas, including access to sexual and reproductive health. It is also concerned that under the health legislation of the State party, not all persons with disabilities can exercise their free and informed consent.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure access for people with disabilities to health services without financial constraints, in particular sexual and reproductive health, maternal and child health centers, psychosocial services, and comprehensive rehabilitation community-based services for rural and isolated areas. The Committee also recommends ensuring that all persons with disabilities, regardless of their deficit, have the right to free and informed consent.

Costa Rica (2014)

53. The Committee is concerned about the centralization of rehabilitation services and the lack of community-based services. The lack of paediatric rehabilitation services is also a source of concern.

54. The Committee urges the State party to adopt a strategy to promote community-based rehabilitation services focused on developing the capacities of persons with disabilities from an early age.

Australia (2013)

47. The Committee regrets the state party's medical model of habilitation and rehabilitation is not based on the human rights model.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party establishes a framework for the protection of persons with disabilities from imposed habilitation and rehabilitation services without free and informed consent.

El Salvador (2013)

53. The Committee is concerned at the number of people acquiring a disability following migration-related accidents and the lack of vocational and social rehabilitation programmes for their integration in the community.

54. The Committee urges the State party to design and implement rehabilitation programmes for repatriated Salvadoran migrants who have acquired a disability with a view to their integration in the labour force and society.

Paraguay (2013)

61. The Committee is concerned that habilitation and rehabilitation in the State party focus solely on health and do not encompass other areas such as education, work or access to housing.

62. The Committee urges the State party to institute a broad rehabilitation strategy for persons with disabilities at the national level that is tied in with the establishment of the necessary community services and strengthens the services provided at local level so that they are able to meet individual needs.

China (2012)

39. The Committee is concerned with the imposition of rehabilitation and habilitation measures on persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, without their informed consent.

40. The Committee recommends that rights based approach to rehabilitation and habilitation be put in place and ensure that such programmes promote the informed consent of individuals with disabilities and respects their autonomy, integrity, will and preference.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 27 CRPD
(Work and employment)*

September 2025

Article 27 - Work and employment

1. States Parties recognize the right of persons with disabilities to work, on an equal basis with others; this includes the right to the opportunity to gain a living by work freely chosen or accepted in a labour market and work environment that is open, inclusive and accessible to persons with disabilities. States Parties shall safeguard and promote the realization of the right to work, including for those who acquire a disability during the course of employment, by taking appropriate steps, including through legislation, to, inter alia:

- a) Prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability with regard to all matters concerning all forms of employment, including conditions of recruitment, hiring and employment, continuance of employment, career advancement and safe and healthy working conditions;
- b) Protect the rights of persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, to just and favourable conditions of work, including equal opportunities and equal remuneration for work of equal value, safe and healthy working conditions, including protection from harassment, and the redress of grievances;
- c) Ensure that persons with disabilities are able to exercise their labour and trade union rights on an equal basis with others;
- d) Enable persons with disabilities to have effective access to general technical and vocational guidance programmes, placement services and vocational and continuing training;
- e) Promote employment opportunities and career advancement for persons with disabilities in the labour market, as well as assistance in finding, obtaining, maintaining and returning to employment;
- f) Promote opportunities for self-employment, entrepreneurship, the development of cooperatives and starting one's own business;
- g) Employ persons with disabilities in the public sector;
- h) Promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private sector through appropriate policies and measures, which may include affirmative action programmes, incentives and other measures;
- i) Ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided to persons with disabilities in the workplace;
- j) Promote the acquisition by persons with disabilities of work experience in the open labour market;
- k) Promote vocational and professional rehabilitation, job retention and return-to-work programmes for persons with disabilities.

2. States Parties shall ensure that persons with disabilities are not held in slavery or in servitude, and are protected, on an equal basis with others, from forced or compulsory labour.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)

Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)

Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)

Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)

China (2012)
Hong-Kong
Macao
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)
Tunisia (2010)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

52. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Persons with disabilities are often confined to segregated “light-labour” workshops based on type and degree of impairment, frequently in rural areas, limiting opportunities for inclusion in mainstream employment and reinforcing stigma; barriers to accessing education, discriminatory societal attitudes, and the absence of effective mechanisms to guarantee reasonable accommodation further restrict equal access to employment;

(b) The employment rate of persons with disabilities remains low, particularly among women and persons with non-military-related disabilities, with insufficient disaggregated data, inadequate workplace accommodations, and no accessible, independent mechanisms exist to address complaints of employment-related discrimination or rights violations.

53. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that, the State Party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Transition from segregated workshops to inclusive, accessible, and freely chosen employment opportunities in the open labour market, dismantle educational and training barriers, and promote inclusive workforce policies in both public and private sectors;

(b) Collect and publish disaggregated data on employment of persons with disabilities by sex, age, type of disability, and region, ensure workplace accommodations in all sectors, and establish accessible, independent complaints and monitoring mechanisms to address employment discrimination and rights violations.

Finland (2025)

52. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) Structural and entrenched prejudice and negative stereotypes about the capacity and productivity of persons with disabilities leading to barriers in access to employment;

(b) The low participation as well as the insufficient data on employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market;

(c) The lack of affirmative measures to promote employment of persons with disabilities.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations address the low participation of persons with disabilities in the open labour market by:

(a) Conducting awareness raising campaigns on the right to work of persons with disabilities, addressing stigma, discrimination and stereotypes about their labour skills; ensure accessibility of public and private employment online portals, adequate training of recruitment and human resources departments in the public and private sector, and ensure that training on occupational risk prevention is disability inclusive;

(b) Collecting data and compiling statistics on access to employment of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by gender, age, indigeneity, geographical location, and type of impairment;

(c) Actively promoting the employment of persons with disabilities and considering the implementation of affirmative action such as subsidy systems and incentives for employers, disseminating information on financial support for entrepreneurial initiatives of persons with disabilities, and ensuring the provision of support and reasonable accommodation in the workplace.

Kiribati (2025)

51. The Committee notes with concern the low employment levels of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and the limited measures in place to facilitate their access to employment, including through the provision of reasonable accommodation in the workplace, the lack of inclusive vocational training opportunities, and the barriers created by stigma and inaccessible workplaces.

52. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

(a) Adopt and enforce legislation prohibiting discrimination based on disability in employment, including a clear obligation on employers to provide reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in the workplace as well as in all processes related to recruitment, hiring, advancement in and retention of employment, promotion, safe working conditions and labour rights such as insurances, holidays and pensions including retirement;

(b) Promote inclusive vocational training and skills development programmes that are linked to sustainable employment opportunities, including self-employment, entrepreneurship, the development of cooperatives and starting one's own business;

(c) Introduce measures and incentives to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including in the private sector, and ensure accessibility of workplaces and work environments;

(d) Raise awareness among employers and the wider public to combat stigma and promote the capabilities and contributions of workers with disabilities.

Maldives (2025)

53. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That despite the recognition of the right of persons with disabilities to employment, non-discrimination on the basis of disability, and self-determination of professional development in the State party's Constitution and the Disability Act, there is a lack of affirmative measures and the lack of monitoring and complaint mechanisms to guarantee the enjoyment and exercise of these rights by persons with disabilities;

(b) Barriers to employment for persons with disabilities, such as low levels of education, poor skills training, discrimination in recruitment processes and employment conditions, and lack of reasonable accommodations in the workplace;

(c) About the lack of measures to create incentives for the private sector and for entrepreneurial initiatives by persons with disabilities, despite the existing provisions of the Disability Act.

54. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Ensure the access of persons with disabilities to vocational training and to jobs in the public and private sectors through quotas and/or tax incentives, ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation and supports in the workplace, among other measures; and establish monitoring and complaint mechanisms to guarantee the participation of persons with disabilities in the open labour market on an equal basis with others;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the regular labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others, and introduce entrepreneurial programmes and development schemes for creation of opportunities of self-employment and entrepreneurship;

(c) Raise awareness of the full range of incentives available to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, to combat discrimination in hiring processes and conditions of employment, and to provide reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in the workplace;

(d) Strengthen the implementation of the Disability Act and the Disability Employment Regulation (R-9/2024) in accordance with the provisions of the Convention and ensure that persons with disabilities effectively participate in the Sustainable and Integrated Labor Services (SAILS) project.

Canada (2025)

53. The Committee welcomes the establishment of the Employment Strategy for Canadians with Disabilities, the Indigenous Skills and Employment Training program, the Canadian Apprenticeship Strategy, the Sectoral Workforce Solutions Program, the Youth Employment and Skills and Strategy, Skills for Success, and the Disability Inclusion Business Council. However, it notes with concern:

- (a) That despite legal protections and existing policies, persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, keep encountering systemic barriers to employment and in the workplace, and they face higher unemployment rates compared to their non-disabled counterparts, as well as disparities across the provinces and territories regarding policies on work and employment for persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of nationally consistent, longitudinal measurable outcomes aimed at guaranteeing the right to work and employment of persons with disabilities, including disaggregated data, on persons with disabilities employed in the public and private sectors;
- (c) The lack of comprehensive policies to address the situation of persons with work-acquired disabilities and to counter societal stigma on the long-term use of employment injury benefits;
- (d) The absence of a centralized disability fund to assist small and micro businesses in providing reasonable accommodation for employees with disabilities;
- (e) The continued use of sheltered workshops to employ persons with disabilities.

54. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Exercise federal leadership to identify systemic barriers to employment for persons with disabilities and ensure national consistency in all work and employment policies and programs across jurisdictions;
- (b) Generate specific indicators to measure progress in the implementation of programs on employment for persons with disabilities across provinces and territories and in both public and private sectors and strengthen disaggregated data collection measures;
- (c) Develop comprehensive measures to address the situation of people with work-acquired disabilities, and carry out awareness-raising campaigns to counter societal stigma on the long-term use of employment injury benefits;
- (d) Establish a centralized fund to assist small and micro businesses to provide reasonable accommodation for employees with disabilities;
- (e) Develop a strategy with specific timelines and measurable outcomes to transition from segregated employment, such as sheltered workshops, to employment that is open, inclusive, and accessible to persons with disabilities.

Dominican Republic (2025)

49. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The prevalence of unemployment among persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities;
- (b) The low level of compliance with employment quotas established in Law 5-13 for persons with disabilities in the public sector and the lack of accountability on this regard;
- (c) That tax incentives contemplated in Law 5-13 for the private sector to generate greater employment for persons with disabilities have not been fully allocated;
- (d) The persistent discrimination and barriers that persons with disabilities face in their employment, particularly women with disabilities, including denial of reasonable accommodation.

50. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Review national employment policies to ensure the right to work for all persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Ensure strict compliance with Law 5-13 and establish mechanisms to monitor compliance with the 5 per cent employment quota for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the public sector, with penalties for non-compliance;
- (c) Ensure that tax incentives contemplated in Law 5-13 to encourage the private sector to reach their hiring target of persons with disabilities are properly earmarked and allocated;
- (d) Take effective measures to combat discrimination and address the systemic and structural barriers experienced by persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, particularly in the context of reasonable accommodation and other rights related to work and employment.

European Union (2025)

64. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Practices of segregated employment (see this Committee's General Comment No. 8 [2022] para. 14) exist across Member States, and that Member States use State aid to support segregated employment;
- (b) Employment disparities among persons with disabilities persist across Member States, due to the lack of reasonable accommodation, disability stigma, prejudice and incompatibility of disability benefits with paid work;
- (c) Despite progress in recent years, discrimination against persons with disabilities in work and employment is still pervasive, including lower wages, part-time or low paid jobs, lower participation in full-time employment affecting particularly women with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons with intensive support needs.

65. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Repeal legislation that allows public financing of segregated forms of employment for persons with disabilities, such as institutions and other segregated facilities, amend Directives 2014/23/EU and 2014/24/EU to remove the possibility of awarding public procurement to such facilities, repeal article 34(2)(f) of the General Block Exemption Regulation (Regulation (EU) No 651/2014), and prohibit State aid of segregated employment;
- (b) Support Member States in their efforts to implement the Disability Employment Package aimed at employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market that enhances access to work and employment, closes segregated workshops, raises awareness about the right to work and employment of all persons with disabilities, ensures equal pay and working conditions for persons with disabilities and the provision of reasonable accommodation, provides for transition measures and collects disaggregated data about persons with disabilities in segregated employment;
- (c) Continue and strengthen efforts to address discrimination of persons with disabilities in employment, including women and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, by, inter alia, enforcing the Equality Employment Directive across Member States and strengthening equality bodies, as provided for by Directive 2024/1499, and ensuring access to minimum wages on an equal basis with others.

Palau (2025)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That despite the adoption of the Disabled Persons Anti-Discrimination Act, which aims to ensure equal access to employment opportunities, the unemployment rate among persons with disabilities is high, and there is no comprehensive employment support policy for persons with disabilities in the State party;
- (b) That the Disabled Anti-Discrimination Act does not recognise the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination at the workplace;

- (c) The lack of awareness raising activities including trainings for employers about the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (d) The absence of affirmative actions to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the labour market.

52. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022) on the rights of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Develop and implement a comprehensive strategy with clear targets, indicators and adequate resources to promote employment opportunities for persons with disabilities in the open labour market, both in the private and public sectors, with equal remuneration for work of equal value, in an inclusive work environment, and establish effective monitoring mechanism to ensure its implementation;
- (b) Recognize in law and policies the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of workplace discrimination;
- (c) Conduct a targeted awareness-raising program among employers about the rights of persons with disabilities and the inclusive and accessible work environments;
- (d) Establish affirmative action measures to stimulate greater employment of persons with disabilities, especially for women with disabilities.

Tuvalu (2025)

49. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Barriers to employment for persons with disabilities, such as low levels of education, poor skills training, discrimination in recruitment processes and employment conditions, and lack of reasonable accommodations in the workplace;
- (b) Absence of a policy in the field of labour and employment for persons with disabilities, lack of mechanisms for the application of employment quotas for people disabilities, as well as lack of entrepreneurial programmes and development schemes to promote self-employment and entrepreneurship of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Insufficient resourcing for livelihood programs for persons with disabilities run by the Fusi Alofa Association, in particular women with disabilities.

50. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Address the lack of access to education and vocational training, take measures to address discriminatory attitudes and practices by employers and inaccessible workplaces, which affect the employment and employability of persons with disabilities, and encourage sectors other than the education sector to provide learning and employment opportunities for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the regular labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others, and introduce entrepreneurial programmes and development schemes for creation of opportunities of self-employment and entrepreneurship;
- (c) Raise awareness of the full range of incentives available to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, to combat discrimination in hiring processes and conditions of employment, and to provide reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in the workplace;
- (d) Ensure support for persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities through the livelihood programs, including on the outer islands.

Viet Nam (2025)

53. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The State party continues to train persons with disabilities in activities such as massage therapy, computer maintenance, and artisanal production, offering mainly professional subjects that “fit” their type of impairment;
- (b) The number of persons with disabilities receiving adequate vocational training remains modest due to insufficient information about programmes in some communities and a lack of professionals;
- (c) The rejection rate for job applicants with disabilities is quite high, at 53%.

54. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that, the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that persons with disabilities receive vocational guidance based on their own wishes and abilities, enabling them to compete for jobs in regular employment;
- (b) Provide adequate vocational training for persons with disabilities by trained personnel at both urban and rural levels, ensuring the inclusion of persons with disabilities from indigenous communities and ethnic minorities;
- (c) Establish a strict monitoring mechanism to prevent ministries and private companies from rejecting persons with disabilities in employment;

Belarus (2024)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The very low employment rate of persons with disabilities, particularly in the open labour market, where those employed are mostly in underpaid, unskilled jobs and in sheltered workshops;
- (b) The ineffectiveness of existing measures of support the employment of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities in an open labour market, including the obligation under the Labor Code to provide reasonable accommodation;
- (c) The barriers that persons with disabilities face in their employment, resulting from the lack of accessibility to and reasonable accommodation in workplaces, including transportation;

54. Recalling its general comment No. 8 2022, The Committee recommends in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, that the State party:

- (a) Revise the existing legislation and measures of support for the employment of persons with disabilities, and take comprehensive measures aimed at effectively supporting the work and employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and in inclusive work environments;
- (b) Adopt legislative and policy measures to promote the work of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, protect the rights of persons with disabilities to just and favourable conditions of work, and ensure that persons with disabilities are not paid below the minimum wage and are provided with work contracts and equal remuneration for work on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Redirect the allocations for the employment of person with disabilities from sheltered employment to support the employment of persons with disabilities, including of persons who require complex support needs and deinstitutionalized persons, and ensure that the right to seek reasonable accommodation in the workplace is recognized for employees in the public and private sectors;
- (d) Monitor, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the accessibility of workplaces across the State party and adopt an action plan with the aim of outlining measures, with time frames and adequate budgets, to ensure reasonable accommodation in and the accessibility of workplaces, including access to transportation;

Belgium (2024)

54. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the employment rates of persons with disabilities are too low and remain below the European employment rate average, and that there is no discernible progress towards an inclusive labour market, with the majority of employed persons with disabilities working in sheltered workshops;
- (b) That the position of women with disabilities in the employment market is weak, with only 45% of women with disabilities working full time, and women with disabilities being generally under-represented in employment;
- (c) That there is a lack of effective mechanisms to implement and monitor the Act of 10 May 2007 on combating certain forms of discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation;
- (d) About the lack of measures to ensure close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation of the policy on the reintegration of persons after a long-term work incapacity;
- (e) About the ineffective implementation of standard professional training and about the lack of measures to ensure that persons with hearing impairments, in particular French-speaking persons, have access to training in professional sign language interpretation.

55. Recalling its General Comment No. 8 (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Develop and implement a strategy and action plan, applicable at the federal and regional levels, to facilitate the transition of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, from unemployment or from employment in sheltered workshops to inclusive employment in the open labour market;
- (b) Promote employment opportunities and strengthen respective programmes to increase the employment rate of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in both the private and the public sectors, and improve assistance for finding, obtaining, maintaining and returning to employment;
- (c) Adopt effective legal mechanisms to implement and monitor the Act of 10 May 2007 on combating certain forms of discrimination, including denial of reasonable accommodation, including complaint mechanisms;
- (d) Effectively implement the 2017 policy on the reintegration of persons after a long-term work incapacity;
- (e) Ensure that persons with hearing impairments, in particular French-speaking persons, have effective access to training in professional sign language interpretation.

56. The Committee notes the lack of coherent, complete and transparent information on the impact of premiums for employers and on guidance options available to persons with disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that structural cooperation between employment services, private employers in the regular labour market, supported employment entities, and representative organisations of persons with disabilities, is highly insufficient.

57. The Committee recommends the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, provide accessible information on the measures available related to return back to regular employment, on reasonable accommodation, available benefits, and on associations that specialise in specific areas of work, on all federal levels of government, and take structural measures to ensure effective cooperation between all entities involved in supporting persons with disabilities in the labour market.

Benin (2024)

53. The Committee takes note of the positive measures taken by the state party in the field of work and employment particularly the application texts of the Act on the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities related to employment and entrepreneurship of persons with disabilities. However, it notes with concern:

- (a) Barriers to employment of persons with disabilities, such as low levels of education, inadequate skills training, discrimination in recruitment processes and employment conditions and a lack of reasonable accommodation in places of employment;
- (b) The lack of enforcement mechanisms of employment quotas for persons with disabilities;
- (c) The fact that positive measures to promote employment for persons with disabilities fail to include all persons with disabilities.

54. Recalling its General comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Address the lack of access to vocational training, take measures to combat discriminatory attitudes and practices among employers and inaccessible workplaces, which affect the employment and employability of persons with disabilities, and encourage other sectors besides the education sector to offer persons with disabilities apprenticeship and employment opportunities;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others and reinforce the implementation of quotas in the public and private sectors of employment;
- (c) Raise awareness of all the incentives that are available aimed at promoting the employment of persons with disabilities, combating discrimination in recruitment processes and employment conditions and providing reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in places of employment.

Burkina Faso (2024)

50. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The ongoing segregation of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops and the lack of concrete plans to gradually move workers with disabilities from these workshops to the open labour market;
- (b) That avenues to submit complaints in cases of discrimination in employment are mostly unknown by persons with disabilities, mainly because of the lack of awareness of procedural accommodations;
- (c) The insufficient application and monitoring of the quotas set out in articles 8 and 10 of Decree No. 2009-5030/PRES/PM/MTSS/MASSN/MS of 17 July 2009;
- (d) That persons with disabilities are not involved in the organizational process and the monitoring of the 2016-2020 National Economic and Social Development Plan's "special recruitment" initiative indicated in the report of the State Party;
- (e) That support for vocational training, employment and entrepreneurship for persons with disabilities remains a challenge and that employment of persons with disabilities continues to be hampered by lack of market-oriented skills.

51. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Raise awareness among persons with disabilities and the employers on the anti-discrimination laws in employment and provide easier and accessible mechanisms of seeking redress in cases of discrimination;
- (b) Repeal article 40 of the Labour Code and implement measures to enable persons with disabilities to transition from sheltered employment into open, inclusive and accessible employment;

- (c) Take the necessary measures to ensure the effective application and monitoring of the employment quotas provided for by the regulations for persons with disabilities in both the public and private sectors;
- (d) Closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the process and monitoring of employment programmes such as the "special recruitment" initiative;
- (e) Strengthen measures to support vocational training, employment and entrepreneurship for trainees with disabilities in order to enable them to access decent employment opportunities, including social protection.

Denmark (2024)

71. The Committee welcomes the various initiatives and amendments to reduce discrimination and prejudice preventing persons with disabilities from accessing the labour market, including the amendment of the Danish Act on Prohibition of Discrimination on the Labour Market on the provision of reasonable accommodation in the labour market, designed to improve and enhance the employment of persons with disabilities until 2025 in Denmark (with 60% of 16–64-year-olds with disabilities as compared to 86% of persons without disabilities employed in 2022). It notes, however, that the employment difference of 26% gives rise for concern. It is also concerned that no long-term programs and measures have been adopted to raise the awareness of employers on inclusion, to train social workers on disability-specific expertise, or to adapt employment programs accessible to all persons with disabilities, including seniors with disabilities, and render them disability-responsive.

72. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022), the Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, adopt a long-term employment strategy to promote full inclusion of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities in the open labour market, including:

- (a) Targeted, time-bound and financed action plans across all sectors of the economy;
- (b) Awareness-raising measures against prejudice against persons with disabilities;
- (c) Training of employment system staff, including human resource personnel and career advisors, on specialised knowledge of disability;
- (d) Provide disability-responsive support to persons with disabilities in their search for employment and in their efforts toward entrepreneurship;
- (e) Ensure that older employees with disabilities, who have not yet reached retirement age, have the possibility to stay in the workforce.

Ghana (2024)

52. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The rates of job placement among persons with disabilities remain significantly low despite some legislation, policies, and initiatives in place to support the employment of persons with disabilities, such as Article 29 (7) of the Constitution and sections 9 to 13 of Act 715 in addition to Sections 45-53 of the Labour Act (Act 651);
- (b) The fact that the Act 715 does not recognise the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination at the workplace and the absence of equal pay for equal work for persons with disabilities including in the private sector;
- (c) The lack of access to education and appropriate vocational and technical skills training as well as high level of ignorance amongst employers which contributes to the exclusion of persons with disabilities from the open labour market;
- (d) The failure to establish the employment centre for persons with disabilities and the advocated employment equity policy by organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (e) The fact that statistics of persons with disabilities employed in both private and public sector are not kept and therefore not available to help assess the progress or otherwise;

(f) Absence of affirmative actions to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the labour market.

53. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Take effective and affirmative measures to ensure the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including putting into effect and support mechanisms outlined in Article 29(7) of the Constitution and Act 715 to encourage businesses to hire and retain persons with disabilities;
- (b) Explicitly recognize in law and policy the denial of reasonable accommodation as workplace discrimination so that persons with disabilities can have access to a decent employment opportunities and equal pay for equal work;
- (c) Create and implement targeted market oriented technical vocational education and training programmes for persons with disabilities and raise awareness to employers to foster inclusive work environments and to combat negative stereotypes;
- (d) Establish and open the employment centre for persons with disabilities and adopt the OPDs proposed employment equity policy to enhance employment of persons with disabilities and Ensure OPDs actively participate in its formulation and implementation;
- (e) Collect and disseminate data on the employment of persons with disabilities in the public, private and informal sectors disaggregated by gender, professions, levels of the employment as well as geographical distribution;
- (f) Establish affirmative action measures to stimulate greater employment of persons with disabilities, especially for women with disabilities.

Mauritius (2024)

47. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The low rate of and difficulty in access to employment by persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly women and youth with disabilities, as reflected in the results of the 2022 Housing and Population Census;
- (b) The lack of enforcement of the amended Training and Employment of Disabled Persons Act 1996, in relation to sanctions for employers who have been in compliance with the quota system for the employment of persons with disabilities.

48. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Promote and ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others, in a manner that respects their right to freely choose their work, especially for women and youth;
- (b) Take the necessary measures to strictly enforce the new quota system under the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2024, including through sanctions and expanded fiscal incentives, and to provide information about employers who are in compliance with the law, including information collected in the register of employers employing persons with disabilities to be maintained by the National Empowerment Authority and formerly by the Training and Employment of Disabled Persons Board.

Netherlands (2024)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The high incidence of unemployment among persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities and young persons with disabilities, as well as the continued discrimination in payment mechanisms for persons with disabilities with "reduced work capacity";
- (b) The discrimination and barriers that persons with disabilities face in their employment, including denial of reasonable accommodation and the lack of measures to ensure the accountability of employers in the public and private sectors for not respecting the targets for employment of persons with disabilities;

(c) The use of the term “occupational disability” to refer to persons with disabilities;

(d) The continued use of the medical model to promote the employment agenda for persons with disabilities as evidenced in the use of sheltered workshops as a mean of employing persons with disabilities.

60. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organization:

(a) Review the national legislation to address systemic and structural barriers experienced by persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, young persons with disabilities, and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and take measures to increase the number of persons with disabilities in the open labour market;

(b) Enforce the implementation of the agreements for the targets of employment for persons with disabilities in both the public and the private sectors, and strengthen measures to ensure the accessibility and provision of reasonable accommodation in workplaces, including raising awareness among employers about their obligations and providing resources to facilitate the provision of reasonable accommodations;

(c) Amend the legislation to make appropriate reference to persons with disabilities instead of using the term “occupational disability” in the labour market;

(d) Take all necessary steps to align programmes, policies and legislation in the labour market to reflect the human rights approach to disability, including the current practice of sheltered workshops.

Ukraine (2024)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The low rate of employment of persons with disabilities, including internally displaced persons with disabilities (as showed by the Ombudsman's monitoring of the observance of the rights of persons with disabilities to work dated 2019), and that important obstacles persist so that persons with disabilities have more employment opportunities;

(b) Discriminatory practices in credit, lending, and insurance, the lack of adequate monitoring of the permanence in employment of persons with disabilities, as well as the lack of a comprehensive legislation to promote accessible workplaces for persons with disabilities and to protect them from all forms of discrimination;

(c) The insufficient measures and policies to promote employability and inclusive workplaces in the Labor Code of Ukraine, and the lack of implementation of Article 24 of The Law of Ukraine on Employment (No. 5067-VI) regarding the promotion of work for unemployed internally displaced persons, including persons with disabilities;

(d) The Draft Law of Ukraine on Ensuring the Rights of People with Disabilities to Work (5344-d), which is not aligned with the Convention;

(e) The lack of consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities in the formulation of plans and programs for labour inclusion.

55. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022), and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Establish a comprehensive strategy to increase the rate of employment of persons with disabilities, including internally displaced persons with disabilities, as well as an oversight mechanism to monitor its effectiveness;

(b) Adopt necessary measures to prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability with regard to all matters concerning all forms of employment, including conditions of recruitment, hiring and employment, continuance of employment, career advancement and safe and healthy working conditions, as well as provisions to promote accessibility in the workplace;

(c) Amend the State party's Labor Code to include provisions that promote the employability of persons with disabilities and inclusive workplaces, as well as to ensure the implementation of Article 24 of The Law of Ukraine on Employment (No. 5067-VI) as a means to ensure the right to work of internally displaced persons, including persons with disabilities;

(d) Include in its Labor Code provisions to promote inclusive workplaces, to protect persons with disabilities against all forms of discrimination in the workplace and to provide assistance in performing work, in particular to persons with higher need of support, intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women with disabilities;

(e) Ensure that the inputs and views of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations are incorporated in the discussion of the Draft Law of Ukraine on Ensuring the Rights of People with Disabilities to Work (5344-d) and any other relevant legislation to guarantee the right to work and employment of persons with disabilities, and ensure that such laws fully align with the Convention.

Azerbaijan (2024)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Prevailing discrimination with respect to work and employment, including prejudices among employers in hiring of persons with disabilities, and lack of accessibility to the workplace, and unemployment rates among persons with disabilities;

(b) Information about the limited implementation of quotas for persons with disabilities in work and employment;

(c) The delay in adopting legislation to recognize reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in work and employment (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, para. 242);

(d) The lack of information about participation of women with disabilities in initiatives to foster work and employment among persons with disabilities (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, paras. 219, 220 and 221);

(e) That occupations in certain industries remain prohibited for women, including women with disabilities.

60. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure access to employment in the open labour market for persons with disabilities and in all sectors of economy, address prejudices among employers in the private and public sectors, including in the framework of its strategy on business and human rights, and set up goals and strategies to achieve full accessibility to employment and the workplace;

(b) Strengthen the implementation of the quota system and introduce other positive measures to ensure access of persons with disabilities to work and employment;

(c) Enforce legislation prohibiting discrimination in employment and occupation, expedite the adoption of legislation recognizing reasonable accommodation and raise awareness about reasonable accommodation at work;

(d) Address discrimination against women with disabilities in work and employment and include them in programmes for job creation, self-employment and entrepreneurship;

(e) Ensure women with disabilities' access to all professions and jobs and implement the recommendations made by the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/AZE/CO/6, para. 32 (a)), in 2022 in this scope.

Bahrain (2024)¹

The Committee is deeply concerned that:

(a) The adoption of the criterion of health ability or fitness as a precondition for appointment to public office and a reason for termination of employment, as stipulated in article 11 (6) and article 25 (c) of the Civil Service Law No. 48 of 2010.

(b) The absence of mechanisms to ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation in the workplace, the denial of which is considered a form of discrimination.

(c) The existence of a list of specific jobs for which persons with disabilities are qualified and restricted to employment in accordance with the vocational registration and qualification certificate issued under Articles (10 and 11) of Law No. 74 of 2006 on the Care, Rehabilitation and Employment of Persons with Disabilities.

55. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party

(a) Repeal the provisions that consider ability and fitness as a condition of employment and a reason for termination of employment in national legislation.

(b) Provide accessibility and accommodations in the workplace and establish mechanisms that require public and private employers to provide them and investigate cases of denial.

(c) Providing accessibility in vocational training institutes and centers and providing programs and curricula in accessible formats for persons with disabilities and not denying them access to any of them on the basis of disability

Costa Rica (2024)

45. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) El alto nivel de desempleo entre las personas con discapacidad y la falta de información sobre las medidas adoptadas para incentivar al sector privado a generar más empleo para las personas con discapacidad;

b) El bajo nivel de cumplimiento de las cuotas de empleo para las personas con discapacidad en el sector público;

c) La ausencia de medidas para promover el trabajo por cuenta propia como medio para generar empleo particularmente para las personas con discapacidad, incluidas las de menor prevalencia.

46. Recordando su observación general núm. 8 (2022), el Comité recomienda al Estado parte a, de conformidad con la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible:

a) Adoptar medidas eficaces para garantizar el derecho al trabajo de todas las personas con discapacidad, en particular de las mujeres con discapacidad, las personas con discapacidad intelectual y las personas con discapacidad psicosocial, así como medidas para combatir la discriminación, particularmente en el contexto de los anuncios de empleo, los procesos de contratación, los ajustes razonables, el reciclaje profesional, los ascensos y otros derechos relacionados con el trabajo y el empleo, y establecer incentivos y medidas específicas para promover la inclusión de personas con discapacidad en el mercado laboral privado;

b) Garantizar el cumplimiento estricto de la Ley N. 8862 del 11 de noviembre de 2010, que trata sobre la Inclusión y Protección Laboral de las Personas con Discapacidad en el Sector Público, y establecer mecanismos de supervisión sobre el cumplimiento de las cuotas de inclusión del 5% de los empleos del sector público con personas con discapacidad, con sanciones por su incumplimiento;

c) Promover oportunidades de trabajo por cuenta propia entre las personas con discapacidad, incluso con la creación de un fondo especial dedicado a proporcionar a las personas con discapacidad subvenciones para proyectos de trabajo por cuenta propia y la exención del costo de las licencias comerciales para las personas con discapacidad.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

Kazakhstan (2024)

57. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Unemployment among persons with disabilities, particularly pronounced for persons with disabilities facing multiple and/or intersectional discrimination, and limited access of persons with disabilities to jobs in the private sector, barriers to accessibility in the workplace;
- (b) The failure to recognize reasonable accommodation as a right of persons with disabilities in the private sector;
- (c) Insufficient vocational training and retraining for persons with disabilities in employment.

58. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Promote access to employment in the open labour market for persons with disabilities and in all sectors of economy, including for migrant persons with disabilities, by, inter alia, taking effective measures against stigma of persons with disabilities in employment, developing work-related skills of persons with disabilities, including in the information technology sector, and strengthen support for self-employment and entrepreneurship;
- (b) Recognize reasonable accommodation and establish the duty to provide reasonable accommodation and to have accessible processes to assess the required reasonable accommodations on the basis of a dialogue with the person who requests them;
- (c) Provide continuous training to persons with disabilities on work competencies and entrepreneurship, including to women with disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas.

Nicaragua (2024)

56. Al Comité le preocupa que, pese a los esfuerzos realizados por el Estado parte, tengamos información de que persiste el desempleo general que afecta especialmente a las personas con discapacidad, exacerbándose por la falta de capacitación, de transporte accesible, el poco acceso al financiamiento por parte de las instituciones bancarias, las actitudes discriminatorias en los lugares de trabajo y la falta de aplicación de los mandatos contenidos en el Código del Trabajo y legislación en la materia.

57. Recordando su observación general núm. 8 (2022) y de conformidad con la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que, en consulta estrecha y colaboración activa con las personas con discapacidad:

- a) Elabore un plan de acción para la inclusión laboral de las personas con discapacidad que incluya medidas afirmativas e incentivos para alentar el empleo de las personas con discapacidad en los sectores público y privado, tanto en áreas urbanas como rurales y remotas, a través de la fijación de metas e indicadores y la asignación de recursos y capacitación necesarias;
- b) Fomente la incorporación de las personas con discapacidad en los programas de formación técnica del Instituto Nacional Tecnológico y en los programas de emprendimiento del Ministerio de la Economía Familiar, Comunitaria, Cooperativa y Asociativa (MEFCCA);
- c) Recolecte información sobre personas con discapacidad integradas a empleos regulares y sus necesidades de ajustes razonables e incrementar la supervisión y el cumplimiento estricto de las leyes en la materia.

Sweden (2024)

59. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) At the high incidence of unemployment among persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities and young persons with disabilities, national minority persons with disabilities and migrant persons with disabilities, as well as the continued discrimination in payment mechanisms for persons with disabilities with "reduced work capacity";

(b) At the discrimination and barriers that persons with disabilities face in their employment, the disparities across the regions and the municipalities with regard to provision of support, and the lack of measures to ensure the accountability of employers for not respecting the quotas for employment of persons with disabilities;

(c) The lack of vocational training and protocols to eliminate discrimination and segregation and to ensure that persons with disabilities have equal opportunities to work and employment.

60. With reference to its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the existing national legislation to address systemic, intersectional and structural barriers experienced by persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, young persons with disabilities, national minorities with disabilities, migrant persons with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and take measures to increase the number of persons with disabilities in open labour market and review the assessment of reduced capacity to work;

(b) Enforce the implementation of the quotas of employment for persons with disabilities in both the public and the private sectors, and ensure the accessibility of and reasonable accommodation in workplaces;

(c) Strengthen the vocational and professional training system and take measures to ensure accessibility and inclusiveness, including through the establishment of a complaints mechanism to investigate discriminatory practices on the basis of disability in the field of vocational rehabilitation and work, and ensure the effective transition from vocational and tertiary education to work in the open labour market.

Zambia \(2024\)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Barriers to employment such as low levels of education, poor skills training, discrimination in recruitment processes and employment conditions, as well as lack of reasonable accommodations in places of employment for persons with disabilities;

(b) The lack of enforcement mechanisms of the Persons with Disabilities Act No. 6 (2012) and National Policy on Disability (2015) on employment quota for persons with disabilities.

54. Recalling its general comment No.8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Address lack of access to education and skills training, take measures to combat discriminatory attitudes and practices among employers and inaccessible workplaces which affects employment and employability of persons with disabilities and encourage other sectors beside education to offer apprenticeship and employment opportunities for persons with disabilities;

(b) Provide enforcement mechanisms for the Persons with Disabilities Act No. 6 (2012) and National Policy on Disability (2015) on employment quota for persons with disabilities to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others;

(c) Raise awareness on all available incentives aimed at the labour market to employ persons with disabilities and to combat discrimination in recruitment processes, employment conditions and to provide reasonable accommodations in places of employment for persons with disabilities.

Andorra \(2023\)

55. The Committee notes the Labour Relations Act (2018), the Employment Act (2019), and the advances of programmes to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, including the strategy implemented between 2016 and 2019. Nevertheless, it is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a new employment strategy for persons with disabilities in the open labor market in the public and private sectors;
- (b) The insufficient measures taken to address barriers faced by persons with disabilities to access employment, including the inaccessibility of the physical environment of many workplaces, information and the lack of support and individualized accommodation;
- (c) The low rate of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, the low number of persons with disabilities hired in conventional work environments through the Public Employment Service, and the limited impact of the "Network of Inclusive Companies" project;
- (d) The persistence of segregation of persons with disabilities in "occupational centres".

56. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a national strategy, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, to ensure access to employment by persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women with disabilities, in the open labour market, both in the public and private sectors, including an effective monitoring mechanism to ensure their appropriate implementation;
- (b) Reinforce measures to remove the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in access to employment, including ensuring the provision of reasonable accommodation, workplace adaptation and accessible workplaces, enforcing compliance with the laws on the employment of persons with disabilities, including effective sanctions for employers who violate those laws, and providing employers with training on respecting and applying individualized support and accommodation;
- (c) Strengthen affirmative measures and incentives to encourage and ensure the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including reinforcing the programmes of the Public Employment Service and the "Network of Inclusive Companies";
- (d) Enhance efforts to speed up the transition of persons with disabilities from sheltered workshops and employment-related welfare services to the open labour market in the private and public sectors, in an inclusive work environment.

Austria (2023)

61. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The comparatively low rate of participation in the work force of persons with disabilities, the low employment rate of persons with disabilities in the open labor market, and the increasingly high rate of long-term unemployment of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The segregating effects of the Assessment of the ability to work by the pension insurance institute (PVA) commissioned by the Austrian Public Employment Service (AMS) on the basis of legal principles for the evaluation of "performance capability" and the ensuing classification as "unfit for work" on persons with disabilities (loss of health and pension insurance, counselling and care services, inability to retire, etc.), its grounding in a medical model of disability, its application even to children, the irreversibility of the assessment and the lack of an effective remedy against it;
- (c) The segregated employment of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops and "occupational therapy workshops", engendering, among others, the denial of the status of employed or self-employed person, and the payment of "pocket money" instead of adequate wages;
- (d) The lack of compatibility between the provision of disability benefits and payment from gainful employment by persons with disabilities;
- (e) The prerequisites for the provision of personal assistance at the workplace being based on a medical model of disability;
- (f) The lack of inclusive vocational orientation and training for persons with disabilities, in particular for young persons with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Further develop and implement the projects in the National Action Plan on Disability (NAP) 2022-2030, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, and incorporate specific measures in the NAP, endowed with adequate resources, time frames and monitoring mechanisms, ensuring the transition from segregated employment to employment in the open labor market for all persons with disabilities;
- (b) Render the assessment based on the Assessment Ordinance compliant with the human rights model of disability, do not apply it to children, re-evaluate assessments periodically, provide an effective remedy against assessments, ensure that persons with disabilities retain their social security status, including health and pension insurance, irrespective of the outcome of the assessment, and apply it retroactively to persons with disabilities already assessed as “unfit for work”;
- (c) Ensure equal payment for work of equal value to all persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, adopt measures to eliminate the gender gap in employment, including pay, and secure the provision of employment contracts or the conferment of the legal status as “employee”, and the recognition as “self-employed” for all persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others;
- (d) Harmonize disability benefits with payment from gainful employment, avoiding negative repercussions on disability benefits from taking up employment;
- (e) Ground the prerequisites for the provision of reasonable accommodation, including personal assistance, at the workplace in the human rights model of disability, as enshrined in the Convention;
- (f) Provide inclusive vocational orientation and training to persons with disabilities, particularly young persons with disabilities.

Germany (2023)

61. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The high incidence of unemployment amongst persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intensive support requirements, and the high number of persons with disabilities enrolled in sheltered workshops and low rate of transition to the open labor market;
- (b) Insufficient legal measures to guarantee the accessibility of and reasonable accommodation in workplaces and to bring the private sector accountable for not observing the quotas of employment for persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of accessible and inclusive vocational training premises as well as protocols to eliminate discrimination and segregation and to ensure persons with disabilities have equal opportunities to choose the vocational program freely, without any kind of coercion.

62. With reference to the general comment No. 8 (2022) on work and employment and reiterating the recommendations of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (E/C.12/DEU/CO/6), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop, in close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, an action plan to promote the transition of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops to the open labor market across the Länder, with allocation of resources and specific timeframe;
- (b) Enforce the implementation of the quotas of employment for persons with disabilities in both the public and private sectors, including through measures more effective than the current compensatory levy, and ensure the accessibility of and reasonable accommodation in workplaces;
- (c) Restructure the vocational training system and take measures to ensure accessibility and inclusiveness, including through the establishment of a complaints mechanism to investigate the discriminatory practices on basis of disability in the field of vocational rehabilitation and work.

Israel (2023)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Lower rates of employment of persons with disabilities, the large number of persons with disabilities working in part-time or varying scope of hours, and the limited effectiveness of measures to promote employment of persons with disabilities, stigma and negative attitudes towards persons with disabilities within the workplace and attitudinal and accessibility barriers to training for employment and career advancement;
- (b) The provision of sheltered employment as a form of rehabilitation vocational service for persons with disabilities and, where persons with disabilities are not covered by labour legislation;
- (c) The low level of awareness and provision of reasonable accommodation in the workplace, in particular in the hi-tech sector;
- (d) The lack of accessibility of vocational programmes and those aimed at strengthening entrepreneurial initiatives.

56. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt comprehensive measures to prevent employers from restricting persons with disabilities to certain occupations, reserved jobs or specific employment units and ensure equal access of persons with disabilities to opportunities for promotion and career growth, and strengthen measures to promote employment of persons with disabilities, ensuring a gender and age-perspective;
- (b) Develop a national strategy to expeditiously transition from segregated employment, including sheltered employment to freely chosen employment in the labour market and in a work environment that is open, inclusive and accessible to persons with disabilities with decent work conditions, including equal opportunities and equal remuneration for work of equal value, safe and healthy working conditions, including protection from harassment, and the redress of grievances;
- (c) Raise awareness among public and private employers of the duty to provide reasonable accommodation and the need to have clear, accessible and timely processes for responding to reasonable accommodation requests;
- (d) Ensure continuous training of persons with disabilities on work competences, entrepreneurship, and technical assistance for business management.

Malawi (2023)

55. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited scope and lack of implementation of provisions on the employment of persons with disabilities in the general employment and equal opportunity laws;
- (b) The delay in adopting the persons with Disabilities bill on the review of the Disability Act of 2012 which proposes to strengthen the provisions on the employment of persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of effective and meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development of employment policies, particularly in the current employment strategy 2 and on-going review of the Disability Act of 2012;
- (d) The prevalence of negative attitudes among employers, concerning the rights of persons with disabilities and the slow progress of awareness on the rights, capabilities and potential of persons with disabilities;
- (e) Insufficient education and vocational training for persons with disabilities that prevent persons with disabilities from access to employment;
- (f) The lack of accurate data and statistical information, disaggregated by sex and age, concerning level of education and training, employment status that impedes appropriate planning.

56. Recalling its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment and in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen legal provisions on the employment of persons with disabilities in the general employment laws and urgently progress the enactment of the new persons with Disabilities Bill that replaces the Disability Act of 2012, ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to access to employment in the open labour market;
- (b) Ensure the close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, particularly in the review of the Disability Act of 2012 and the development of employment policies;
- (c) Work in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to raise awareness on the rights, capabilities and potential of persons with disabilities and to combat negative attitudes on the part of employers;
- (d) Raise the standard of education and vocational training for all persons with disabilities to prepare them for the world of work;
- (e) Gather and appropriately disseminate data and statistical information, disaggregated by sex and age, education and training as well as employment status both in the public and private sector to enable planning.

Mauritania (2023)

45. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low rate of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly women with disabilities, the segregation of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops and barriers to employment faced by persons with disabilities, including the inaccessibility of the physical environment of workplaces, the lack of support and individualized accommodation provided to persons with disabilities;
- (b) The attitudinal barriers deterring employers from hiring persons with disabilities, the lack of awareness among employers and the reluctance of employers to provide reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities and to apply universal design.

46. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the implementation of the national legislation, particularly the Decree No.062 (2015), to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others, and move towards eradicating sheltered workshops;
- (b) Raise awareness about attitudinal barriers among private and public employers and apply universal design in all work-related environments.

Mongolia (2023)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That despite some efforts undertaken by the State party in order to improve the access to work and employment of persons with disabilities, there is a continuous exclusion of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in the labour market and persons with disabilities who are starting business;
- (b) That despite the existing legal provisions on reasonable accommodation in the Labour Code, it is not consistently recognized and applied in all sectors.

54. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, and recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Repeal all discriminatory legislation that excludes or limits the participation of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and adopt effective measures to ensure the right of all persons with disabilities to work, in particular women with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, as well as measures to combat discrimination particularly in relation to advertisements, recruitment processes, reasonable accommodation, retraining, promotion, and other rights related to work and employment;

(b) Strengthen the implementation of the Labour Code and ensure that the right to seek reasonable accommodation in the workplace is recognized for employees in the public and private sectors;

(c) Strengthen measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, particularly in relation to advertisements, recruitment processes, reasonable accommodation, retraining, promotion, starting business, and other rights related to work and employment including persons with disabilities who leave institutions, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing disability and persons with psychosocial disabilities.

Paraguay (2023)

47. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) La falta de cumplimiento de la Ley No. 4962/13, principalmente debido a que el Ministerio de Economía y Finanzas no cumple con actualizar el formulario necesario para que los empleadores utilicen los incentivos determinados en la ley al contratar a personas con discapacidad;

b) La falta de aplicación de las sanciones establecidas para garantizar la efectiva implementación de la Ley N.º 3585/08 sobre inclusión laboral de personas con discapacidad, particularmente el incumplimiento del cupo laboral establecido (5%) de personas con discapacidad en todas las instituciones públicas;

c) La escasa implementación del área/eje 13 del Plan de Acción Nacional por los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad para generar más empleo, tanto en el sector público y privado como para las personas con discapacidad en zonas urbanas, rurales y remotas.

48. Recordando su observación general núm. 8 (2022) y de conformidad con la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Asegurar que el Ministerio de Economía y Finanzas actualice de inmediato el formulario necesario para incentivar al cumplimiento de la Ley N.º 4962/13, y que aplique estrategias complementarias o adicionales a los incentivos fiscales;

b) Definir mecanismos efectivos para la aplicación de las sanciones establecidas en la Ley N.º 3585/08 sobre inclusión laboral de personas con discapacidad a las instituciones públicas que la incumplan;

c) Establecer y aplicar una estrategia eficaz para la efectiva implementación del área/eje 13 del Plan de Acción Nacional por los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad, que incluya medidas afirmativas e incentivos para alentar el empleo de las personas con discapacidad, en los sectores público y privado, tanto en áreas urbanas como rurales y remotas, a través de la fijación de metas e indicadores, y la asignación de recursos y capacitación necesarias.

Angola (2023)

45. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Despite the provision in Presidential Decree No. 12/16, of 25 January, approving the new regulations for the reservation of places and procedures for the recruitment of persons with disabilities, for a minimum of 4 per cent of jobs in the public sector and 2 per cent in the private sector reserved for persons with disabilities, based on available estimates, these targets are not being met;

(b) While a fine is imposed on private sector companies that do not comply with Presidential Decree 12/16, there is no similar penalty for public sector entities that fail to comply with the policy;

(c) The measures taken to promote the employment of persons with disabilities are insufficient to ensure access to the open labour market by persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities, the attitudinal barriers deterring employers from hiring them alongside the physical barriers in the work environment, in particular the reported lack of accessible transportation and accessible information, including for job seekers;

(d) The limited participation of persons with disabilities in market-oriented job training programmes is reportedly due to the lack of physical access and sign language interpretation resulting from a limited number of sign language interpreters available and a high cost of services;

(e) There is a lack of official data or statistics on persons with disabilities employed in the public and private sectors.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Enforce the implementation of the quotas of employment for persons with disabilities in both the public and private sectors, such as through the application of penalties, as provided in the Presidential Decree No. 12/16, while taking effective measures to combat discrimination, particularly in relation to advertisement and the recruitment process, and to ensure reasonable accommodation and the right to work;

(b) Strengthen measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, including persons with disabilities taking part in deinstitutionalization processes, persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities;

(c) Adopt measures to combat attitudinal barriers amongst employers, adopt an action plan to periodically assess accessibility in workplaces, including access to transportation, alternative means of information and communication, sign language and speech-to-text interpretation and pictograms for job seekers and employees, and adopt policies and procedures that establish and support the development of infrastructure for the provision of personal assistance in the workplace;

(d) Enhance the participation of persons with disabilities in market-oriented job training programmes by taking measures to ensure physical access, and the availability and affordability of sign language interpretation;

(e) Expand national employment programmes to enhance the transition from education into labour market for persons with disabilities, in particular persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;

(f) Collect and publicise disaggregated data on the employment of persons with disabilities in the public, private and informal sectors.

Argentina (2023)

51. Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

a) Las Leyes 23.592 y 20.744 (Ley de Contrato de Trabajo) no han incorporado claramente la discapacidad como criterio para prohibir la discriminación;

b) La segregación de las personas con discapacidad, en particular de las personas con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, en talleres protegidos para el empleo y los talleres protegidos de producción (Ley 26.816);

c) La Ley 27.555 de Teletrabajo solo menciona a las personas con discapacidad como personas al cuidado de otras;

d) La escasa inclusión laboral de las personas con discapacidad, especialmente de mujeres con discapacidad, reflejada en el cumplimiento del 0,87% del cupo laboral de 4% para personas con discapacidad en el sector público y en entidades privadas concesionarias de servicios públicos (Ley 22.431);

e) La falta de información sobre el impacto de los Responsables en la Inclusión y Desarrollo Laboral de las Personas con Discapacidad en cada organismo público, y los ingresos por debajo de la línea de pobreza otorgados por el Programa Potenciar Trabajo;

f) La falta de accesibilidad física y comunicacional, de ajustes razonables y apoyos para personas con discapacidad en ambientes laborales del sector público y privado.

52. Recordando su observación general núm. 8 (2022), el Comité recomienda al Estado parte, de conformidad con la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible:

- a) Incorporar la discapacidad como criterio para prohibir la discriminación en la Ley de Contrato de Trabajo;
- b) Derogar la Ley 26.816 y acelerar la transición de las personas con discapacidad en los talleres protegidos al mercado laboral abierto en los sectores privado y público, con igualdad de remuneración por un trabajo de igual valor, en un entorno laboral inclusivo;
- c) Incorporar la perspectiva de discapacidad en la Ley de Teletrabajo, estableciendo apoyos y ajustes razonables para las personas con discapacidad;
- d) Reforzar las medidas afirmativas y los incentivos para alentar el empleo de las personas con discapacidad, en los sectores público y privado, y cumplir al menos con el cupo laboral del 4% para personas con discapacidad en el sector público y en entidades privadas concesionarias de servicios públicos;
- e) Facilitar información sobre el impacto de los Responsables en la Inclusión y Desarrollo Laboral de las Personas con Discapacidad, e incrementar los ingresos otorgados por el Programa Potenciar Trabajo;
- f) Asegurar que los lugares de trabajo del sector público y privado sean accesibles y estén adaptados para las personas con discapacidad, e impartir capacitación a los empleadores acerca de la facilitación de apoyos y ajustes razonables.

Georgia (2023)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in employment, including in recruitment processes, partly due to attitudinal barriers and the lack of accessibility to information about job opportunities;
- (b) Legal provisions restricting employment of persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support, and of persons with disabilities who are “recipients of support”, and the limited impact of anti-discrimination laws on discriminatory practices in employment;
- (c) The wage gap of 25% affecting persons with disabilities as stated in the Labour Force Survey;
- (d) Capability assessments for job seekers with disabilities mainly being performed by specialists;
- (e) The limited understanding and implementation of support, including through reasonable accommodation at the workplace.

54. With reference to its General comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment the Committee recommends that, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

- (a) Withdraw provisions in the Law of Georgia on Public Service preventing the right of persons with disabilities from occupying positions as public servants, and legislation declaring persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support as not employable; introduce and disseminate information about complaint mechanisms and remedies concerning discrimination on the basis of disability in employment;
- (b) Adopt measures to protect the rights of persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, to just and favorable conditions of work, including equal opportunities and equal remuneration for work of equal value;
- (c) Adopt a strategy, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to promote employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including by introducing positive measures facilitating women with disabilities access to employment, and mainstreaming disability in general employment programs. Ensure that the Strategy extends to:
 - (i) Measures concerning accessible information about job vacancies and recruitment procedures;
 - (ii) Opportunities for promotion;

- (iii) Access to employment in all sectors of the economy and in the public and private sectors;
- (iv) Measures to address prejudice about the employability of persons with disabilities;
- (v) Reinforcing good practices, including appointment of job coaches referred by the State party in its report (CRPD/C/GEO/1, para. 188);
- (d) Ensure that work capability assessments are aimed at identifying and address barriers being faced by persons with disabilities at work;
- (e) Develop guidance for employers and employees about the legal duty to provide reasonable accommodation at the workplace, including individualized modifications, adjustments and support, and monitor its implementation.

Peru (2023)

54. Si bien toma nota con reconocimiento de los esfuerzos del Estado parte por incrementar la colocación de las personas con discapacidad en el ámbito laboral, sigue preocupando al Comité:

- a) La baja tasa de empleo entre las personas con discapacidad, especialmente entre las mujeres con discapacidad y las personas con discapacidad intelectual y psicosocial, y que en la práctica no se cumplan las cuotas laborales;
- b) La importante brecha salarial entre las personas con discapacidad y los demás, la cual se agrava cuando además existen otras formas de vulnerabilidad, como cuando son mujeres con discapacidad o personas con discapacidad que viven en zonas rurales;
- c) Que las personas con discapacidad tienen más probabilidades de realizar trabajos informales y de quedar excluidas de las medidas de protección social;
- d) La falta de inclusividad y accesibilidad en los programas educativos y de formación profesional, la falta de programas vocacionales en caso necesario, así como la falta de información sobre ajustes razonables para el empleo;
- e) La decisión del gobierno de interrumpir el programa de empleo con apoyo para personas con discapacidad intelectual y personas autistas.

55. Recordando su observación general núm. 8 (2022), el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que, de conformidad con la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, ajuste sus estrategias de manera coordinada para implementar medidas efectivas que promuevan el empleo de personas con discapacidad en el mercado formal con incentivos claros, garantizando la accesibilidad en los establecimientos de trabajo, acceso a ajustes razonables y apoyos, así como la aplicación de medidas de control y sanciones suficientemente disuasorias para exigir el cumplimiento de la cuota laboral establecida en la ley; y que implemente un programa permanente de formación y capacitación profesional proporcionando orientación sobre el empleo para las personas con discapacidad e información acerca de los ajustes razonables para empleadores.

Togo (2023)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Discriminatory legislation that excludes or limits the participation of persons with disabilities in the labour market, in particular by restricting access to enter the National School of Management (Ecole Nationale d'Administration – ENA), the National School of Legal Professions (Ecole Nationale des Professions de Justice) and The Ecole Normale Supérieure;
- (b) The low rate of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly women with disabilities and barriers to employment faced by persons with disabilities, including the inaccessibility of the physical environment of workplaces, the lack of support and individualized accommodation provided to persons with disabilities;

- (c) The lack of technical support to persons with disabilities who access funds through the Youth Economic Initiatives Support Fund, leading to failed businesses and subsequently being sued by the Microfinance companies who give out these funds on loans;
- (d) The absence of effective incentives and affirmative action programmes to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, both in the public and private sectors.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Repeal all discriminatory legislation that excludes or limits the participation of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and adopt effective measures to ensure the right of all persons with disabilities to work, as well as measures to combat discrimination particularly in relation to advertisements, recruitment processes, reasonable accommodation, retraining, promotion, and other rights related to work and employment;
- (b) Ensure equal access to enter the National School of Management (Ecole Nationale d'Administration – ENA), the National School of Legal Professions (Ecole Nationale des Professions de Justice) and The Ecole Normale Supérieure by, inter alia, taking specific measures to this end and by providing reasonable accommodation;
- (c) Adopt and implement a national strategy to ensure access to employment by persons with disabilities in the open labour market both in the public and private sectors, including by providing incentives and affirmative action programmes designed to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, including quotas to increase participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities in the open labour market;
- (d) Take effective measures against the systemic barriers and disability-based discrimination faced by persons with disabilities in access to employment, including ensuring the provision of reasonable accommodation, workplace adaptation and accessible workplaces;
- (e) Implement training and skills development programmes to facilitate the recruitment of persons with disabilities and to make them more competitive in the open job market as well as to support entrepreneurship among persons with disabilities;
- (f) Strengthen measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, including persons with disabilities taking part in deinstitutionalization processes, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons with hearing impairments.

Tunisia (2023)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of compliance with the laws on the employment of persons with disabilities, in particular Law No. 2005-83 which provides for the quota system as well as entry into competitive job market. It is also concerned that the majority of persons with disabilities who have any form of employment are in the informal sector where they are subjected to precarious working conditions, such as underemployment, low wages, and no social protection. It is further concerned that unemployment of persons with disabilities has also been allegedly associated with inequalities in access to education and training, negatively affecting persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee, recalling its General Comment No. 8 (2022) on work and employment and the SDG's Goal 8 to Promote sustained, inclusive, and sustainable economic growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all recommends that the State party:

- a) Take appropriate measures to enforce compliance with the laws on the employment of persons with disabilities, in particular Law No. 2005-83, including more effective sanctions for employers who violate these laws in their recruitment, hiring and retention of persons with disabilities and by denial of reasonable accommodation in their establishments;
- b) Adopt measures to secure in close and constructive dialogue with active participation and close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the development of efficient policies and programmes for the inclusion of persons with disabilities on the open labour market;

c) Adopt protection measures for persons with disabilities from employers in the informal sector where they are subjected to under precarious and unlawfully conditions;

d) Adopt legislative and policy measures to improve access and accessibility to assistive technical and vocational guidance and training of persons with disabilities to increase their employability on equal basis with other persons.

Bangladesh (2022)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Discriminatory practices, including harassment, against persons with disabilities in employment, particularly against women with disabilities, persons affected by leprosy, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and workers in tea plantations, including unequal treatment in recruitment, the lack of individualised supports and reasonable accommodation, unequal salary payment and unfavourable employment conditions and benefits;

(b) Reported cases of sexual harassment in the workplace against women with disabilities and the lack of measures to prevent and protect them;

(c) The absence of effective incentives and affirmative action programmes to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, both in the public and private sectors.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Adopt measures to address attitudinal and physical barriers including negative attitudes held by employers, lack of individualised support and reasonable accommodation and unfavourable employment conditions;

(b) Take measures to combat sexual harassment, exploitation and abuse at the workplace against women with disabilities, including through creating public awareness-raising programmes and providing redress for victims;

(c) Adopt and implement a national strategy to ensure access to employment by persons with disabilities in the open labour market both in the public and private sectors, including by providing incentives and affirmative action programmes.

China (2022)

54. The Committee notes with concern the practice of recruiting and employing small persons for the amusement park “Kingdom of the Little People”, under unhealthy working conditions that promote harmful stereotypes and are conducive to ridicule, and offer lower pay for work of equal value. Upon receiving reports of small persons lacking effective access to general technical and vocational guidance programmes, placement services and continuing training, the Committee is further concerned that, although it constitutes a segregated working environment, the “Kingdom of the Little People” has become, de facto, the only real work opportunity open to small persons. This constitutes a violation of their right to freely choose their field of work and the right to just and favourable conditions of work.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to move away from segregated working environments and facilitate small persons’ greater access to new career opportunities, by:

(a) Promoting inclusive education, and access to technical and vocational guidance programmes, continuing training, and placement services for small persons;

(b) Offering small persons’ employment opportunities in the public sector;

(c) Allocating resources to broad and targeted awareness-raising campaigns to promote the dignity, capabilities and contributions of small persons in the area of work.

Indonesia (2022)

56. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the provision in Law No. 8 of 2016 on persons with disabilities, which allows for a minimum of 2 per cent of jobs in the public sector to be reserved for persons with disabilities, has not been widely applied for under-represented groups of persons with disabilities, such as persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) That the measures taken to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private sector are insufficient to ensure access to the open labour market by persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities who often face gender-based discrimination and larger pay gaps;
- (c) The attitudinal, physical, communication, and environmental barriers that prevent access to employment;
- (d) The requirement, enshrined in Law No. 36 of 2009 on health, for prospective employees to obtain a Mental Health Certificate when applying for a job in the public sector, institutions within the government, state-owned enterprises and private companies, which disproportionately impacts persons with psychosocial disabilities from obtaining employment.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Expedite the implementation of the reservation of 2 per cent of jobs for under-represented groups of persons with disabilities, while taking effective measures to combat discrimination particularly in relation to recruitment processes, reasonable accommodation, retraining, promotion, and other rights related to work and employment;
- (b) Strengthen measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, including for persons with disabilities living in rural and remote areas and those with intellectual disabilities or psychosocial disabilities;
- (c) Adopt measures to address attitudinal, physical, communication and environmental barriers including negative attitudes held by employers, physical barriers in the workplace, the lack of alternative means of information and communication, and lack of accessible transportation;
- (d) Repeal provisions in Law No. 36 of 2009 on health that require prospective employees to obtain mental health certificates and ensure the Convention standard of non-discrimination is applied to all recruitment processes for the public sector, institutions within the government, state-owned enterprises and private companies.

Japan (2022)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The segregation of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, in sheltered workshops and employment-related welfare services, with low wages and limited opportunities to transition to the open labour market;
- (b) Barriers to employment faced by persons with disabilities, including inaccessible workplaces, the insufficient support and individualized accommodation in both the public and private sectors, limited mobility assistance and information provided to employers about the capabilities of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Gaps in the local governments and the private sector concerning the employment rate system for persons with disabilities, as provided by the Act for the Promotion of Employment for Persons with Disabilities, and lack of a transparent and effective monitoring mechanism to ensure its implementation;
- (d) Restrictions concerning the use of personal assistance services for persons who require more intensive support at work.

58. The Committee recommends that, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

- (a) Enhance efforts to speed up the transition of persons with disabilities from sheltered workshops and employment-related welfare services to the open labour market in the private and public sectors, with equal remuneration for work of equal value, in an inclusive work environment;
- (b) Ensure that the built environment of workplaces is accessible and adapted for persons with disabilities and provide employers at all levels with training on respecting and applying individualized support and reasonable accommodation;
- (c) Reinforce affirmative measures and incentives to encourage and ensure the employment of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and women with disabilities, in the public and private sectors, and establish an effective monitoring mechanism to ensure its appropriate implementation;
- (d) Remove legal provisions that restrict the use of personal assistance for persons who require more intensive support at work.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The high rate of unemployment and part-time jobs in precarious conditions, and low-wage employment among persons with disabilities, in particular, for persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, women with disabilities, persons affected by leprosy and persons with disabilities living in rural areas;
- (b) The attitudinal barriers deterring employers from hiring persons with disabilities, and the physical barriers in the work environment, in particular the reported lack of reasonable accommodation, accessible transportation and accessible information, including for job seekers;
- (c) The insufficient and segregated access to quality professional training and vocational programmes;
- (d) The lack of official data or statistics on persons with disabilities employed in the public and private sectors.

51. The Committee recommends that, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

- (a) Take effective measures to increase employment of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, women with disabilities, persons affected by leprosy and persons with disabilities living in rural areas, in public and private sectors;
- (b) Consider implementing affirmative actions to ensure job placement and job retention for persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors;
- (c) Guarantee non-discrimination in employment, including by the provision of reasonable accommodation when required, awareness raising among employers, and ensure that the open labour market is inclusive and accessible and decent labour conditions of all persons with disabilities, including equal pay for work of equal value;
- (d) Ensure the access to inclusive and quality professional training and vocational programmes;
- (e) Collect disaggregated data on the employment of persons with disabilities in the public, private and informal sectors.

New Zealand (2022)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The continued low rate, compared to the general population, of labour force participation and the low rate of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market;
- (b) The continued segregated employment programs for persons with disabilities ("Business Enterprises") and the use of Minimum Wage Exemption Permits (MWEPS).

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite the development of the Disability Employment Action Plan in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, Māori with disabilities and Pasifika persons with disabilities.
- (b) Incorporate in the Disability Employment Action Plan, concrete measures, with resources, timeframes and monitoring mechanisms that ensure the transition from segregated employment to the open labour market.
- (c) Repeal section 8 of the Minimum Wage Act 1983 and ensure that persons with disabilities are paid on the principle of equal pay for work of equal value.

Republic of Korea (2022)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Discriminatory legislation that excludes or limits the participation of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in the labour market;
- (b) That the Minimum Wage Act excludes persons with disabilities from benefitting of the minimum wage, which resulted in many persons with disabilities who work receiving compensation below the minimum wage;
- (c) The continuous segregation of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops and the lack of concrete plans to gradually move workers with disabilities from these workshops into the open labour market.

56. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 8 (2022) on the right of persons with disabilities to work and employment, and recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Repeal all discriminatory legislation that excludes or limits the participation of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and adopt effective measures to ensure the right of all persons with disabilities to work, as well as measures to combat discrimination particularly in relation to advertisements, recruitment processes, reasonable accommodation, retraining, promotion, and other rights related to work and employment;
- (b) Review the Minimum Wage Act to ensure equal remuneration for work of equal value, and provide compensation to persons with disabilities who are excluded from the benefit of the Act;
- (c) Strengthen measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, including persons with disabilities taking part in deinstitutionalization processes, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities;
- (d) Implement measures to enable persons with disabilities to transition from sheltered employment into open, inclusive and accessible employment and ensure effective implementation of specific affirmative action measures designed to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, including quotas to increase participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in the open labour market.

Singapore (2022)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The comparatively high level of unemployment of persons with disabilities, their disproportionate employment in low-wage positions, and their segregation in sheltered workshops;
- (b) That the Tripartite Alliance for Fair and Progressive Employment Practices lacks a definition of disability and a clear and suitable understanding of indirect discrimination, as well as an effective implementation and monitoring mechanism;
- (c) That despite the allocation of resources under the Open-Door Programme, the measures taken to promote the employment of persons with disabilities are insufficient to ensure access to the open labour market by persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, and autistic persons, on an equal basis with others;

(d) That the jurisdiction of the Employment Claims Tribunal is restricted mainly to salary-related and wrongful dismissal claims, and that there are no accessible and confidential procedures to report all violations of labour law related to persons with disabilities;

(e) The attitudinal barriers deterring employers from hiring persons with disabilities, the lack of awareness and reluctance of employers to provide reasonable accommodation and make use of universal design for persons with disabilities.

52. Recalling its General Comment No. 8 (2022) on the rights of persons with disabilities to work and employment, the Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Adopt legislation and time-bound policies and benchmarks to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and are included in private and public work environments, on an equal basis with others, and move towards eradicating sheltered workshops;

(b) Undertake a comprehensive review of the Tripartite Alliance for Fair and Progressive Employment Practices and include a comprehensive definition of disability, prohibit direct and indirect discrimination and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of prohibited discrimination, and establish an effective implementation and monitoring mechanism providing redress in case of non-compliance;

(c) Expand the Open-Door Programme to provide longer-term support, in particular for persons with disabilities taking part in deinstitutionalization processes, autistic persons, persons with intellectual disabilities, and persons with psychosocial disabilities;

(d) Extend the jurisdiction of the Employment Claims Tribunal to all claims about violations of the right to work and employment of persons with disabilities, and establish an accessible and confidential mechanism to report such violations;

(e) Combat attitudinal barriers among private and public employers, apply universal design in all work-related environments.

Hungary (2022)

52. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The very low employment rate of persons with disabilities, particularly in the open labour market, where those employed are mostly in underpaid, unskilled jobs and in sheltered workshops;

(b) The ineffectiveness of existing measures of support for the employment of persons with disabilities in an open labour market, including the obligation under the Labour Code to provide reasonable accommodation;

(c) The barriers that persons with disabilities face in their employment, resulting from the lack of accessibility to and reasonable accommodation in workplaces, including transportation.

53. The Committee recommends that in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

(a) Revise the existing legislation and measures of support for the employment of persons with disabilities and take comprehensive measures aimed at effectively supporting the work and employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and in inclusive work environments;

(b) Adopt legislative and policy measures to protect the rights of persons with disabilities to just and favourable conditions of work, and ensure that persons with disabilities are not paid below the minimum wage and are provided with work contracts and equal remuneration for work on an equal basis with others;

(c) Redirect the allocations for the employment of person with disabilities from sheltered employment to support the employment of persons with disabilities, including of persons who require higher levels of support and deinstitutionalized persons, and ensure that the right to seek reasonable accommodation in the workplace is recognized for employees in the public and private sectors;

(d) Monitor, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the accessibility of workplaces across the State party and adopt an action plan with the aim of outlining measures, with time frames and adequate budgets, to ensure reasonable accommodation in and the accessibility of workplaces, including access to transportation.

Jamaica (2022)

48. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That despite the provision in the National Policy for Persons with Disabilities that a minimum of 5 per cent of jobs in the public sector should be reserved for persons with disabilities, only 15.3 per cent of persons with disabilities are in gainful employment;

(b) That the measures taken to promote the employment of persons with disabilities are insufficient to ensure access to the open labour market by persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities, due to the delay in the enactment of the Disability Act, 2014, the attitudinal barriers deterring employers from hiring persons with disabilities, and the physical barriers in the work environment, in particular the reported lack of accessible transportation and accessible information, including for job seekers;

(c) The limited participation of persons with disabilities in market-orientated job training programmes, due to lack of physical access and sign language interpretation resulting from a limited number of sign language interpreters being available and the high cost of services;

(d) That despite there being some programmes for persons with disabilities who are graduating, the percentage of graduates who are successfully absorbed in the labour market remains very low;

(e) The lack of official data or statistics on persons with disabilities employed in the public and private sectors.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Expedite the implementation of the reserving of 5 per cent of jobs for persons with disabilities, as provided in the National Policy for Persons with Disabilities and the Disability Act, 2014, while taking effective measures to combat discrimination particularly in relation to advertisements, recruitment processes, reasonable accommodation, retraining, promotion, and other rights related to work and employment;

(b) Strengthen measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, including persons with disabilities taking part in deinstitutionalization processes, persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities;

(c) Adopt measures to combat attitudinal barriers among employers, and adopt an action plan to assess periodically accessibility in the workplace, including access to transportation, alternative means of information and communication, sign language, and speech-to-text interpretation and pictograms for jobseekers and employees. The State party should adopt policies and procedures that establish and support the development of infrastructure for the provision of personal assistance in the workplace;

(d) Enhance the participation of persons with disabilities in market-oriented job training programmes by enforcing physical access and the availability and affordability of sign language interpretation;

(e) Expand the national employment programmes to enhance the transition from education to the labour market for persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;

(f) Collect disaggregated data on the employment of persons with disabilities in the public, private and informal sectors.

Mexico (2022)

60. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The persistently low employment rate among persons with disabilities, especially among women with disabilities and persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Reports of forced labour and trafficking for the purpose of labour exploitation of persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of legal provisions and specific measures to implement the national work and employment programme for people with disabilities for 2021–2024, including provisions and measures on support measures and reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in public and private employment;
- (d) The lack of vocational education and training programmes for persons with disabilities.

61. The Committee recommends that, in accordance with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

- (a) Take effective measures to increase employment of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities and persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, in public and private employment, to guarantee non-discrimination in employment and to ensure that the open labour market is inclusive and accessible;
- (b) Compile data on forced labour, exploitation and harassment, and trafficking for the purpose of labour exploitation, of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, gender, indigence, urban and rural living environment and type of impairment;
- (c) Intensify efforts to prevent and punish forced labour, exploitation and harassment, and trafficking for the purpose of labour exploitation of persons with disabilities;
- (d) Enact legal provisions and take specific measures to implement the national work and employment programme for persons with disabilities for 2021–2024, including support measures and reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities, in public and private employment;
- (e) Provide vocational education and training programmes for persons with disabilities, and guidance for persons with disabilities on employment.

Switzerland (2022)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The segregation of persons with disabilities in the “protected labour market”, with very low wages and limited opportunities to transition to the open labour market;
- (b) Barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to employment in the open labour market, resulting in high unemployment rates, in particular among women with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Develop and implement a comprehensive action plan to harmonize the competencies required at the federal and cantonal levels for participation in the labour market, and enable the transition of persons with disabilities from the “protected labour market” to the open labour market in the private and public sectors, with equal remuneration for work of equal value, in an inclusive work environment and with opportunities for professional development;
- (b) Take measures at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels to ensure that persons with disabilities have access, without discrimination, to employment in an inclusive open labour market in the public and private sectors;
- (c) Develop and implement measures to increase the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including in the private sector, through appropriate policies, such as targets, affirmative action programmes and incentives, including policies specifically aimed at increasing employment of women with disabilities.

Venezuela (2022)

46. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not have a structured programme to integrate persons with disabilities into the labour market, sheltered workshops continue to be a form of employment and denial of reasonable accommodation in the workplace is not explicitly defined as a form of discrimination.

47. The Committee recommends that, in accordance with the Convention and bearing in mind target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

(a) Develop a national programme to integrate persons with disabilities into the labour market, which includes quotas in the public sector, in order to increase the number of such persons who are employed in regular positions in open work environments, and adopt legislative measures to penalize companies that do not hire a sufficient number of persons with disabilities to fill regular positions;

(b) Amend its legislation to recognize denial of reasonable accommodation in the workplace as a form of discrimination;

(c) Thoroughly train persons with disabilities for employment in regular paid positions in both urban and rural areas.

Djibouti (2021)

47. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The high rate of unemployment among persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in the public and private sectors, including in rural areas;

(b) The prevalence of the medical approach to disability in articles 117–120 of the Labour Code;

(c) The requirement of providing reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities under Article 10 of the Decree No. 2020-294/PR/MTRA (2020) in the workplace which is not in line with the human rights based approach and that the denial of reasonable accommodation is not explicitly prohibited under article 117 of the Labour Code;

(d) Low quota levels for the employment of persons with disabilities under Decree No. 2020-294/PR/MTRA (2020), which stands at around two per cent of the total workforce;

(e) The lack of measures to provide vocational and professional training for persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(g) Amend the Labour Code to align it with the rights based approach to disability, to prohibit the denial of reasonable accommodation at work place, and to eliminate intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities;

(h) Review Decree No. 2020-294/PR/MTRA to ensure that the requirement for reasonable accommodation in the workplace is in line with the Convention and to increase the quotas for employment of persons with disabilities in public and private sectors, in line with Article 27 and ensure this does not lead to negative consequences such as reproducing segregation and stereotyping;

(i) Develop and adopt policy measures to ensure that women with disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas and in refugee camps have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments and to provide them with vocational and professional training.

France (2021)

54. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The high level of unemployment and segregation of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops, and in low-wage employment;

- (b) High rates of unemployment among women with disabilities or jobs only under partial working time or in precarious conditions, hurdles to develop professional paths, and challenges to conciliating work and family life;
- (c) The low level rate of professional qualifications among persons with disabilities due to the lack of access to professional training programs, including lack of support to access the profession of researchers;
- (d) Lack of awareness and reluctance of employers to provide reasonable accommodation and universal design for persons with disabilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Move towards eradicating sheltered workshops and adopt a time-bound policy and benchmarks to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and their meaningful inclusion in work environments, in the private and public sectors;
- (b) Review the labour conditions of all persons with disabilities and ensure that persons with disabilities are not paid below the minimum wage;
- (c) Promote employment of women with disabilities in an open labour market ensuring that women are informed and can effectively seek individualised supports through the provision of reasonable accommodation and have access to effective measures to balance work and family life;
- (d) Develop awareness raising campaigns aimed at promoting participation of women with disabilities in employment, and to shift attitudinal barriers to the recognition of the capacities of women with disabilities and their contribution to all domains of work, in an open labour market, on an equal basis with others;
- (e) Ensure persons with disabilities access to general technical and vocational guidance programmes, vocational and continuing training, and to guidance towards employment on an equal basis with others, and adopt measures to support careers of persons with disabilities, exercising the profession of a researcher through multi-year planning of the research establishments;
- (f) Ensure that the right to seek individualised supports through the provision of reasonable accommodation in the workplace is recognized for employees in the public and private sectors, and strengthen measures to inform and facilitate the recognition of reasonable accommodation for employees in the workplace.

Estonia (2021)

52. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That measures taken to promote the employment of persons with disabilities are insufficient to ensure access to the open labour market by persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities, and the prevalence of sheltered employment preventing persons with disabilities from entering inclusive work environments;
- (b) The attitudinal barriers deterring employers from hiring persons with disabilities and the physical barriers in the work environment, in particular the reported lack of accessible transportation and accessible information, including for job seekers;
- (c) That reasonable accommodation is not consistently recognized and applied in the public and private sectors;
- (d) The lack of information about vocational and professional training for persons with disabilities and about effective transitions into the open labour market.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Strengthen measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to work and employment in the open labour market and to inclusive work environments, including persons with disabilities taking part in deinstitutionalization processes, persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and persons with psychosocial disabilities;

(b) Adopt a strategy to abolish sheltered employment. The State party should review the labour conditions of all persons with disabilities and ensure that persons with disabilities are not paid below the minimum wage;

(c) Adopt measures, alongside the work ability reform, to combat attitudinal barriers among employers and adopt an action plan to assess periodically accessibility in the workplace, including access to transportation, alternative means of information and communication, sign language and speech-to-text interpretation and pictograms for job seekers and employees. The State party should adopt policies and procedures that establish and support the development of infrastructure for the provision of personal assistance in the workplace;

(d) Ensure that the right to seek reasonable accommodation in the workplace is recognized for employees in the public and private sectors;

(e) Develop a comprehensive system of vocational and professional training for persons with disabilities and for their effective transition from vocational and tertiary education to work in the open labour market.

Albania (2019)

43. The Committee notes with concern that the State party legislation still defines lack of capacity to work for persons with disabilities. The Committee is concerned about the fact that persons with disabilities, especially women, are particularly affected by unemployment. The Committee is also concerned that there are no comprehensive and comparable data on the situation of persons with disabilities employed in the public sector and on the impact of Law 15/2019.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend its legislation by adopting effective safeguards in the procedures to ensure that impairment cannot constitute an excuse for non-employment of persons with disabilities, in line with the human rights model of disability enshrined by the Convention;

(b) Further promote employment in the open labour market in the public and private sectors, with particular emphasis on women, in close consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including women's organizations;

(c) Collect disaggregated statistical data on the employment rate and situation of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age, type of employment and salary, and on the impact of Law 15/2019.

Australia (2019)

The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The narrow and incomplete scope of the review of the National Employment Framework for People with Disability and about the lack of clear measures to reform the Disability Employment Services;

(b) The ongoing segregation of persons with disabilities employed through Australian Disability Enterprises and the fact that such persons receive a sub-minimum wage;

(c) The low labour force participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds and refugee and asylum-seeking persons with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to reform the Disability Employment Services and develop a national disability employment strategy that incorporates the recommendations from the "Willing to work" inquiry and contains targeted gender-sensitive measures;

(b) Undertake a comprehensive review of Australian Disability Enterprises to ensure that they adhere to article 27 of the Convention and provide services to enable persons with disabilities to transition from sheltered employment into open, inclusive and accessible employment, ensuring equal remuneration for work of equal value;

(c) Implement measures to address systemic and structural barriers experienced by persons with disabilities, particularly by women with disabilities, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds and refugee and asylum-seeking persons with disabilities.

Ecuador (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The refusal of reasonable accommodation in the workplace as a form of discrimination in the Organic Act on Disabilities;

(b) The reduction in the number of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, engaged in regular employment; the low level of compliance by the institutions of the State party itself and by businesses with the promotion of employment by means, inter alia, of assigned hiring quotas; the scant enforcement and lack of legislative measures for penalizing companies that are not hiring a sufficient number of persons with disabilities in regular positions; and the failure to promote opportunities for self-employment and entrepreneurship incentives for persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee recommends that, in accordance with the Convention and bearing in mind target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

(a) Recognize the refusal of reasonable accommodation in the workplace as a form of discrimination in the Organic Act on Disabilities;

(b) Step up its efforts to increase the number of persons with disabilities who are employed in regular positions and who are self-employed in open work environments and to comply with measures designed to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, including quotas in the public sector, and adopt legislative measures to penalize companies that do not hire a sufficient number of persons with disabilities in regular positions;

(c) Thoroughly train persons with disabilities for employment in regular paid positions in both urban and rural areas and adopt extensive measures to promote entrepreneurship among persons with disabilities.

El Salvador (2019)

50. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Legislation does not recognize denial of reasonable accommodation in employment as discrimination on the basis of disability;

(b) There is a low rate of representation of persons with disabilities in employment, particularly as public servants;

(c) No national strategy has been established to provide vocational training programmes for persons with disabilities in either urban or rural areas and to ensure the creation of job opportunities in the open labour market.

51. Taking into account target 8.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review and modify its labour legislation to ensure that denial of reasonable accommodation in the workplace is considered discrimination on the basis of disability;

(b) Establish affirmative measures, with quotas, and with sanctions for non-compliance, to increase the proportion of persons with disabilities in the open labour market in the public and private sectors, especially women with disabilities, and in that regard monitor the work and employment situation of persons with disabilities;

(c) Design and implement a national strategy with a focus on providing vocational training programmes in urban and rural areas and creating job opportunities in the open labour market.

Greece (2019)

38. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The high level of unemployment among persons with disabilities and the insufficient efforts to ensure their inclusion in the open labour market, particularly with regard to women with disabilities;

(b) The lack of effective measures to improve and facilitate the provision of specific measures and individualized support in the workplace and of more effective and accessible services for persons with disabilities seeking employment.

39. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective measures to ensure the inclusion of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in the open labour market, with a view to achieving target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals. It also recommends that the State party ensure the provision of specific measures and individualized support in the workplace; promote among employers the right of persons with disabilities to employment on an equal basis with others; and mainstream the disability dimension in all employment policies, measures and programmes, including in the policy design of the Greek Manpower Employment Organization.

India (2019)

56. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The fact that, according to information received by the Committee, only 37 per cent of persons with disabilities have access to employment, the fact that only 1.8 per cent of women with disabilities have access to employment, and the very low representation of persons with intellectual disabilities in employment;

(b) Information about cases of sexual harassment in the workplace against women with disabilities and the lack of measures to prevent and protect them;

(c) The lack of implementation of the State party's quota of 4 per cent for persons with disabilities in employment.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt national and state strategies for ensuring access to employment by persons with disabilities in the open labour market, through equal opportunity policies, recruitment and skills development training programmes for persons with disabilities. The State party should ensure the inclusion of all persons with disabilities in the implementation of the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act, and collect information and disaggregated data on its implementation;

(b) Decisively combat sexual harassment, exploitation and abuse in the workplace against women with disabilities, including by disseminating accessible public information and providing redress for women who are victims of sexual harassment;

(c) Take effective measures to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly persons with disabilities from marginalized groups.

Iraq (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The fact that the 5 per cent quota of persons with disabilities employed in the public sector and the 3 per cent quota of persons with disabilities employed in private-sector enterprises with more than 60 employees, set out in article 16 of Law No. 38 (2013) and in Council of Ministers decision No. 205 (2013), have not been attained;

(b) The absence of regulations to implement article 15 (4) (b) of Law No. 38 (2013), which states that finding job opportunities for persons with disabilities is one of the objectives of the Law, and the absence of reasonable accommodations for persons with disabilities in the workplace in both the private and public sectors and across all areas of the economy.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures to ensure the effective implementation of article 16 of Law No. 38 (2013) and to raise awareness among public and private companies about the requirement to provide individualized support and prohibit the denial of reasonable accommodations at work;
- (b) Redouble its efforts to create job opportunities for persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, in the open labour market, including through entrepreneurship, appropriate vocational training, the facilitation of loans and the provision of specific incentives for employers to hire persons with disabilities.

Kuwait (2019)

52. The Committee is concerned about the lack of:

- (a) Inclusive employment policies and the low employment rate of persons with disabilities, despite the quota on their employment in the public, private and oil sectors;
- (b) Employment opportunities for non-Kuwaiti persons with disabilities;
- (c) Information on sanctions that have been effectively imposed for non-compliance with the employment quota system and for the denial of reasonable accommodations, as well as on monitoring mechanisms available to persons with disabilities to address discrimination in matters related to employment and conditions of work;
- (d) Disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in employment.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take advantage of the strategy to employ persons with disabilities developed by the Public Authority for Disability Affairs to increase and develop employment opportunities in the open labour market, develop specific measures to increase the inclusion of persons with disabilities, including by ensuring the implementation of the 4 per cent quota, by providing individualized support and by prohibiting the denial of reasonable accommodations at all stages of employment, including recruitment, promotion and vocational training, for all persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaitis with disabilities, and impose sanctions on employers in cases of non-compliance;
- (b) Establish mechanisms to effectively address discrimination in all matters related to employment and conditions of work;
- (c) Strengthen the collection of data on persons with disabilities in formal employment, disaggregated by age, gender, nationality, disability, geographical area and employment sector.

Myanmar (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Discrimination against persons with disabilities regarding employment, including unequal treatment in recruitment, the denial of reasonable accommodation, lower salary scales and less favourable employment benefits;
- (b) The absence of effective incentives and specific measures to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, both in the public and private sectors;
- (c) The lack of data, disaggregated by age, sex, disability and level of employment, on persons with disabilities in employment.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (d) Adopt and implement laws and policies to eliminate discrimination against persons with disabilities, including the denial of reasonable accommodation in employment in the public and private sectors to ensure the provision of individual accommodations, and provide adequate training to employers;
- (e) Take effective affirmative action measures to increase the rate of employment of persons with disabilities particularly women and youth with disabilities, in the open labour market, and promote measures to ensure that the open labour market is inclusive and accessible;

(f) Provide, in its next periodic report, data disaggregated by age, sex, disability and level of employment on the progress made overtime in inclusion of persons with disabilities in employment in the public and private sectors.

Cuba (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned about the underrepresentation of women with disabilities in the workforce and the absence of adequate and enforceable measures to ensure compliance in the public and private sector regarding the employment of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that sheltered workshops for persons with disabilities might not necessarily foster their inclusion into the regular workforce.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective and affirmative measures to encourage and ensure the employment of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in the public and private sector and to ensure non-discrimination in employment and that the open labor market is inclusive and accessible.

Niger (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Discrimination due to prejudices against persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in the area of employment and their limited employment in the open labour market;

(b) The lack of incentives to promote employment of persons with disabilities; the denial of reasonable accommodation in the workplace and the absence of incentives to employers to recruit persons with disabilities; and the absence of disaggregated statistical data on persons with disabilities currently employed.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a strategy for the employment of persons with disabilities in the private and public sectors, including women, in line with Sustainable Development Goal 8 (target 8.5), taking into account migrants workers with disabilities; eliminate intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities in employment; strengthen data collection on their employment in the open labour market disaggregated by age, sex, type of barriers encounters and geographical location; and implement affirmative action, and incentives to employers.

(b) Adopt laws and policies on reasonable accommodation and provide trainings to employers on reasonable accommodation.

Norway (2019)

41. The Committee is concerned that the efforts to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the open labour market have been limited and of little impact and that intersectional inequalities persist. It is also concerned at the perseverance of discrimination based on disability, including denial of reasonable accommodation.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities, adopt measures to increase the level of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, in line with the Convention and in view of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and that it ensure the achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities, and equal pay for work of equal value. It also recommends that the State party:

(a) Combat stereotypes and prejudice towards persons with disabilities in the labour market and adopt regulations governing disability-based discrimination including denial of reasonable accommodation;

(b) Set out a requirement of universal design in the workplace for employers in the Equality and Anti-Discrimination Act; prepare and implement a strategy on accessibility through universal design of the physical environment and universal ICT in working life;

- (c) Ensure that the requirement of active, targeted and systematic efforts is enforced to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private and public labour markets;
- (d) Give a clear mandate and sufficient resources to the Norwegian Labour and Welfare Administration to facilitate employment opportunities for persons with disabilities who are interested in entering the labour market;
- (e) Consider extending the target that five percent of new employees in the public sector should be persons with disabilities also to the private sector.

Rwanda (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The low rate of employment among persons with disabilities: 56 per cent, as indicated in the Fourth Rwanda Population and Housing Census in 2014, 77 per cent of which are in informal sector; affecting women and youth with disabilities in particular;
- (b) Systematic barriers and discrimination against persons with disabilities in the recruitment process and workplace, including the lack of reasonable accommodation, accessibility of work places, and accessible and affordable public transport;
- (c) The lack of vocational training opportunities for persons with disabilities to gain access to employment.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Convention and in view of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Adopt policies and measures necessary, including specific measures, to significantly increase the employment rate of persons with disabilities, especially women and youth, in both the formal and informal sectors;
- (b) Take effective measures against the systematic barriers and disability-based discrimination faced by persons with disabilities in access to employment, including ensuring the provision of reasonable accommodation, work place adaption, accessibility of work places, flexibility of work requirements and accessible and affordable public transport;
- (c) Implement training and skills development programmes to facilitate the recruitment of persons with disabilities and to make them more competitive in the open job market.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The lack of information on the adoption of the planned national strategy for the recruitment and employment of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The absence of complaints on the non-respect of the quota provided for under the Labor Law requiring employers of 25 or more persons to allocate 4 per cent of jobs to persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of information on sanctions imposed on places of employment that do not comply with the workplace accessibility conditions and workplace accommodation guidelines;
- (d) The lack of data disaggregated by age, sex, disability and level of employment on persons with disabilities in employment.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite the adoption and implementation of the national strategy for the recruitment and employment of persons with disabilities, ensure that it is based on the Convention and includes baselines and targets concerning access to employment for persons with disabilities, including women and young persons;
- (b) Raise awareness on Article 28 of the Labor Law and enforce the application of the quota for persons with disabilities;
- (c) Guarantee the proactive and periodic inspection of workplace accessibility conditions and individualized accommodation provided for persons with disabilities in their workplaces, in line with Article 9 (11) of the implementing regulations of the Labor Law;
- (d) Provide, in its next periodic report, data disaggregated by age, sex, disability and level of employment on persons with disabilities in employment in the public and private sectors.

Senegal (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The low rate of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly among women with disabilities and the reluctance of employers to recruit persons with disabilities;
- (b) Barriers to employment of persons with disabilities, including inaccessibility of the physical environment of employment places and the lack of support and individualized accommodation and of information provided to employers about the capability of persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of protection and compensation afforded to migrant workers, who have acquired an impairment in the workplace.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt an effective plan to increase the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly for women with disabilities, including expediting the effective implementation of Article L.180 of the 1997 Labor Code to ensure 15 percent of work places for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that the built environment of work places is accessible and adapted for persons with disabilities, especially for persons with mobility disabilities and provide training to employers at all levels to respect and apply individualized support and accommodations;
- (c) Ensure that migrant workers, including migrant domestic workers, are fully and equally protected by the labour law, and that such workers who have acquired an impairment as a result of their work in the State party receive appropriate treatment, rehabilitation and compensation;
- (d) Pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 8, target 8.5 to ensure achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities.

Spain (2019)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of progress made since the previous concluding observations (CRPD/C/ESP/CO/1, para. 46) to increase the low employment rate of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, especially affecting women with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and persons with disabilities living in rural areas;
- (b) The lack of information about the application of discrimination laws within the workplace, including direct and indirect discrimination and denial of reasonable accommodation;
- (c) Failure to comply with the quota set out in the Revised Text Law 9/2017 on Contracts of the Public Sector.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (d) Analyse and modify legislation, regulations and policies to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sector, with particular emphasis on women and persons with disabilities living in rural areas;
- (e) Ensure available and accessible provisions of reasonable accommodation with administrative safeguards for persons with disabilities, especially in case of accidents leading to disability in the workplace;
- (f) Adopt concrete measures to fully implement the legal quota foreseen in the Revised Text Law 9/2017 on Contracts of the Public Sector.

Türkiye (2019)

52. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Discriminatory policies on the basis of impairment, promoting sheltered workplaces for persons with disabilities in particular affecting persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities rather than creating opportunities for their employment in the open labour market;
- (b) Insufficient information about the provision of individualized support and accommodation in all sectors of employment and effective sanctions in cases of denial of reasonable accommodation;
- (c) The low compliance with the 3 per cent quota of employment of persons with disabilities in the public sector, and with employment quotas of persons with disabilities in the private sector.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Abolish legislation, policies and practices of sheltered employment and adopt a strategy with benchmarks and a timeframe to promote an inclusive, open and accessible labour market in all sectors for all persons with disabilities, including women and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, ensuring continuous training on work competences, entrepreneurship, and technical assistance for business management;
- (b) Ensure its legislation provide for effective remedies, including compensation in cases of discrimination on the basis of disability in the area of work and employment;
- (c) Ensure equal requirements for employment quotas in the public administration and other work sectors, and monitor their implementation and collect data on compliance with the quota system and provide for adequate sanctions in cases of non-compliance;
- (d) Bear in mind the linkages between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and ensure that persons with disabilities obtain productive and decent employment, in line with the principle of equal pay for work of equal value.

Vanuatu (2019)

44. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient employment opportunities for persons with disabilities and the fact that the Employment Act (2006) does not pay special attention to the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The absence of mechanisms for monitoring equal work conditions for persons with disabilities both in the public and private sectors;
- (c) The lack of individualized support for women with disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities in the work place;
- (d) The fact that the mandate of the Labour Inclusion Officer is limited to facilitating the participation of persons with disabilities in seasonal employment;
- (e) The cost of obtaining business licenses remains a significant obstacle for persons with disabilities to start their own business;
- (f) The absence of official data or statistics on persons with disabilities employed in the public and private sectors.

45. Adhering to article 27 of the Convention and recalling its link to target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt legislative and other measures, including the amendment of the Employment Act (2006), to promote employment opportunities for persons with disabilities in the open labour market on an equal basis with others in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that Labour Inspectors have the mandate and resources to effectively monitor working conditions for persons with disabilities and ensure the achievement of decent work for all, including persons with disabilities, and equal pay for work of equal value;
- (c) Ensure persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities and person with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, are not denied reasonable accommodation in the workplace;
- (d) Strengthen the capacity of the Labour Inclusion Officer to facilitate stable employment opportunities for persons with disabilities;

- (e) Promote self-employment opportunities among persons with disabilities, including by exempting the cost of business licences for persons with disabilities;
- (f) Collect disaggregated data on the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sector as well as informal sector.

Algeria (2018)

44. The Committee is concerned about the lack of sufficient resources and qualified professionals within the national agency responsible for the implementation and monitoring of decree No. 14-214 of 30 July 2014 to facilitate the employment of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that despite the entry into force of article 27 (1) of Law No. 02-09 of 8 May 2002, which provides that all employers must devote at least 1% of jobs to persons with disabilities who are recognized as workers, and the possibility for employers to receive funding for the adaptation of workstations (Interministerial Order of 4 October 2017), persons with disabilities continue to be discriminated in the employment sector.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the national agency responsible for the implementation of Decree No. 14-214 by allocating the necessary resources and equipping it with qualified personnel;
- (b) Prepare a national strategy in close consultation with representative organization of persons with disabilities to increase the rate of employment of persons with disabilities, particularly women;
- (c) Raise awareness among employers about the Interministerial Order of 4 October 2017 to receive the subsidies granted for adapting and equipping workplaces for persons with disabilities;
- (d) Adopt a strategy and action plan with benchmarks for the employment of persons with disabilities in line with target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, especially women with disabilities, in the open labour market.

Bulgaria (2018)

57. The Committee notes with concern that in spite of the incentives for employers who hire persons with disabilities, they continue facing unemployment and discrimination in the employment sector. The Committee is also concerned about the low level of awareness among employers about reasonable accommodation at the work place. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about low transition rate of persons with disabilities from sheltered workplaces 'into open labour market'.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a policy framework and a strategy to promote employment for persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including by increasing resources for it, with the aim to make transition from sheltered employment to open labour market easier;
- (b) Recognise in its legal and policy framework the right of persons with disabilities to reasonable accommodation at the workplace;
- (c) Raise awareness among the public and private companies about the reasonable accommodation at work;
- (d) Reinforce training programmes for persons with disabilities concerning skills that are required in the open labour market, and also skills in entrepreneurship, and collect disaggregated and targeted information about the participation of women and men with disabilities in the programmes and the outcome of the trainings for them.

Malta (2018)

39. The Committee is concerned about the low level of employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sector, despite the quota system that is provided for in articles 15 and 16 of the Persons with Disability (Employment) Act (Cap. 210) and other policy measures introduced by the State party. It further notes with concern that:

- (a) Article 17 (3) of the Constitution of the State party states that “disabled persons and persons incapable of work are entitled to education and vocational training”;
- (b) The current quota system under the Persons with Disability (Employment) Act (Cap. 210) seems ineffective, in as much as it is only applicable to employers employing 20 or more employees;
- (c) The State party uses medicalised criteria to assess the suitability of persons with disabilities to work in violation of article 1 of the Convention;
- (d) The high number of employers who do not employ persons with disabilities irrespective of their ability to work.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party adopts further enforcement mechanisms and incentives to ensure the implementation of the quota system under articles 15 and 16 of the Persons with Disability (Employment) Act (Cap. 210) and other measures to support persons with disabilities to work in the open labour market, in line with the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and ensures the achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amends article 17 (3) of the Constitution to bring it in line with article 27 of the Convention;
- (b) Review the quota system under the Persons with Disability (Employment) Act (Cap. 210) in order to make it applicable to enterprises with less than 20 employees;
- (c) To replace any assessment of suitability to work with an assessment that considers the needs and requirements for reasonable accommodation at work for persons with disabilities;
- (d) Step up efforts to raise awareness among employers on the rights of persons with disabilities to work in the open labour market, in particular the provision of reasonable accommodation, and on the benefits of employing persons with disabilities.

Philippines (2018)

46. The Committee is concerned by:

- (a) The fact that legislation and policies, such as the Presidential Decree No. 442, the Labor Code of the Philippines, the Sustainable Livelihood Self-Employment Assistance Kaunlaran program, and the Likhang Persons with Disability (State party report CRPD/C/PHL/1, see para. 210) to create employment and protect all workers from any form of discrimination regardless of disability have not been effective in creating employment opportunities for persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of sufficient implementation of the quota system for employment as it applies to different disability groups;
- (c) The continued stigmatization of persons with disabilities in the labour market, in particular, the employers’ assertion that persons with disabilities lack the necessary knowledge, skills or abilities for the jobs, and would entail higher labour costs for training and improvement of facilities.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures to ensure effective implementation of the Presidential Decree No. 442, the five per cent employment quota system and strengthen the structured orientation program for potential employers to activate employment of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt measures to provide for reasonable accommodation in job recruitment processes , ensure that these processes inclusive of persons with disabilities, and issue guidelines for the provision of reasonable accommodation and accessibility at the workplace;
- (c) Uphold Sustainable Development Goal 8, target 8.5 to ensure achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities and equal pay for work of equal value.

Poland (2018)

44. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Low rate of employment of persons with disabilities, as well as barriers faced by women with disabilities when accessing the open labour market and, as consequence, having lesser income than others, particularly in rural areas;
- (b) Promotion of sheltered workshops or offer of low status jobs for persons with disabilities, which hinders, especially for women, access to open labour market and lack of specific incentives for employers to hire persons with disabilities in the open labour market, especially persons with severe disabilities;
- (c) Lack of fulfilment of the 6% employment quota for persons with disabilities, especially in the public administration sector;
- (d) Low availability of labour market activation programmes, job offers for persons with disabilities.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party develop legislation and measures for the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and in particular:

- (a) Promote work and employment of women with disabilities and ensure equal income, especially in rural areas;
- (b) Promote decent work for persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in public and private sectors and provide specific incentives and support for reasonable accommodation, including individual assistance for employing persons with a wide range of disabilities;
- (c) Ensure the fulfilment of the 6% employment quota for persons with disabilities in all sectors, with specific emphasis on the public administration sector;
- (d) Ensure that open labour market activation programmes effectively include all persons with disabilities.

South Africa (2018)

44. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The very low rate of employment among persons with disabilities, 1.2 percent of the workforce according to the 16th Commission for Employment Equity Annual Report based on data from 2014-2015, including women with disabilities, and gender-based discrimination in the open labour market;
- (b) Lack of measures to provide accessible and adapted work places including the provision of reasonable accommodation, especially for persons with disabilities with motor impairments;
- (c) The lack of protection and compensation afforded to migrant workers, who have acquired an impairment as a result of their work;
- (d) The absence of statistical data on persons with disabilities currently employed, disaggregated by age, gender, type of impairment and geographical location.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private and public sectors, including through affirmative action, and the adoption of laws and policies on reasonable accommodation, and provide data on persons with disabilities currently employed in the open labour market, disaggregated by age, gender, type of impairment and geographical location;
- (b) Adopt a strategy to increase the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors, including through mechanisms to ensure that reasonable accommodations are provided and to prevent discrimination against persons with disabilities and their families in the labour market in line with article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to ensure productive and decent work for everyone, including persons with disabilities, in accordance with the principle of equal pay for work of equal value;
- (c) Adopt effective measures for making the physical environment of work places accessible and adapted for persons with disabilities, including reasonable accommodation, especially for persons with disabilities with motor impairments and provide training to employers at all levels to respect the concept of reasonable accommodation;

(d) Ensure that the labour law fully and equally protects migrant workers with disabilities, and that such workers who have acquired an impairment as a result of their work receive appropriate treatment, rehabilitation and compensation.

North Macedonia (2018)

48. The Committee is concerned about :

- (a) Discrimination against and inequalities in employment and working conditions for persons with disabilities, in particular women, notably those contained in some provisions of the Law on Civil Administration;
- (b) The fact that the Labour Law does not specifically oblige employers to provide reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities (CRPD/C/MKD/1, para. 25);
- (c) The fact that persons with disabilities and public and private employers are not fully aware about the rights and opportunities of employment in the open labour market.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organisations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Review and evaluate its existing legislation, both in the public and in the private sectors, to bring it in line with the Convention, and take measures to increase vocational training and adopt legislation with effective remedies and sanctions with respect to disability-based discrimination in recruitment, promotion and retention of employees;
- (b) Take effective and affirmative measures to ensure the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sector and ensure that the open labour market is inclusive and accessible, and that reasonable accommodation is available and that duty of provision of reasonable accommodation is explicitly prescribed for in the legislation.

Haiti (2018)

48. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a legal obligation to provide reasonable accommodation in the work place and lack of monitoring mechanisms of the Act on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities (2012) on “appropriate accommodation”;
- (b) The extremely low level of employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors resulting in a higher rate of poverty among persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of a designated body for monitoring and sanctioning non-compliance of labour quotas, in the public and private sectors, the absence of specific measures to improve employment of persons with disabilities, both in the public sector and in the private sector and delays in the establishment of the national solidarity fund;
- (d) The absence of official data on persons with disabilities in the labour market.

49. In line with the Convention and in view of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure the achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities, and equal pay for work of equal value. It also recommends that the State party take legal and other measures to ensure non-discrimination against persons with disabilities in their right to work and, in particular:

- (a) Clarify the legal obligation to provide reasonable accommodation in the workplace and take measures to ensure the effective monitoring of its implementation, with appropriate remedies for the denial of requests;
- (b) Adopt measures, such as a long term plan with defined objectives and timeframe, to increase the employment of persons with disabilities, particularly women and young persons with disabilities, in the private and public sector, in the open labour market;
- (c) Designate an entity for monitoring and sanctioning non-compliance of labour quotas in both the private and public sectors, expedite the implementation of the national solidarity fund, provide vocational and professional training and provide incentives for the self-employment of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities;

(d) Collect disaggregated data on the number of persons with disabilities in the labour market.

Nepal (2018)

39. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the effectiveness of the employment quota for persons with disabilities in the civil service and how these posts are filled by persons with disabilities, particularly by persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities including those from indigenous backgrounds.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party take appropriate measures to gather data and develop criteria to fill the five per cent quota for civil service positions that are reserved for persons with disabilities including undertaking a comprehensive evaluation of these jobs in terms of quality, and the extent to which persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, including those from indigenous backgrounds, have benefitted from this quota against those who remain unemployed.

Oman (2018)

47. While welcoming the establishment of the Committee for Training and Employment of Persons with Disabilities, the Committee is, however, concerned about:

(a) The low employment rate of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, and gender-based discrimination in the labour market, including failure to provide paid maternity leave;

(b) The failure to provide accessible and adapted work places including the provision of reasonable accommodation, especially for persons with disabilities with motor impairments;

(c) The lack of protection and compensation afforded to migrant workers, especially domestic workers, who have acquired an impairment as a result of their work in the State party;

(d) The absence of statistical data on persons with disabilities currently employed, disaggregated by age, gender, type of impairment and geographical location.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private and public sectors, including through affirmative action, and the adoption of laws and policies on reasonable accommodation, including by amending the Labour Act, as well as ensure implementation of the law requiring private enterprises with more than 50 employees to reserve at least two percent of positions for persons with disabilities, and also provide data on persons with disabilities currently employed in the open labour market, disaggregated by age, gender, type of impairment and geographical location;

(b) Adopt a strategy for the employment of persons with disabilities in line with Sustainable Development Goal 8 (target 8.5), especially women with disabilities, in the open labour market and adopt measures for the elimination of intersectional discrimination;

(c) Adopt effective measures for making the physical environment of work places accessible and adapted for persons with disabilities, including reasonable accommodation, especially for persons with disabilities with motor impairments and provide training to employers at all levels to respect the concept of reasonable accommodation;

(d) Ensure that migrant workers, especially domestic workers are fully and equally protected by the labour law, and that such workers who have acquired an impairment as a result of their work in the State party receive appropriate treatment, rehabilitation and compensation.

Russian Federation (2018)

53. The Committee is concerned that the denial of reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities is still not legislated as a ground for discrimination. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of sufficient information on 'special posts' and the labour market programmes for persons with disabilities, those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in particular, as well as on transparent and formalized trainings and assistance in providing reasonable accommodation for person with disabilities at workplaces.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party legislate the concept of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a ground for discrimination in accordance with the Convention, and the concept of reversal of burden of proof to the employer. It also recommends that the State party improve the available and standardized support in providing reasonable accommodation at workplace.

55. The Committee also recommends the State party to be guided by the Convention in the implementation of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Seychelles (2018)

45. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The meaning of “reasonable provision” in article 36 (a) of the Constitution, which is not the same as “reasonable accommodation” in the Convention and is unclear, and that denial of reasonable accommodation in the workplace is not a recognized form of discrimination and is not sanctioned by the law;
- (b) The lack of a designated body for monitoring and sanctioning non-compliance with the Employment Act and the 2013 policy on elimination of discrimination against persons with disabilities at work;
- (c) The absence of official data on persons with disabilities employed in the public and private sectors;
- (d) The insufficient opportunities for persons with disabilities to join and remain in the workforce.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and that it :

- (a) Revise the meaning of “ reasonable provision ” and ensure that it is in line with the Convention, and specify the legal obligation to provide reasonable accommodation in the workplace and adopt measures to ensure the effective monitoring of its implementation, with appropriate remedies for the denial of requests for such accommodation;
- (b) Designate an entity for monitoring and sanctioning non-compliance with the Employment Act and the 2013 policy on elimination of discrimination against persons with disabilities at work;
- (c) Collect disaggregated data on the number of persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors;
- (d) Adopt measures to increase the number of employed persons with disabilities, particularly women, to promote employment opportunities in the open labour market, in self-employment and in entrepreneurship.

Slovenia (2018)

45. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The persistence of sheltered workplaces that promote the charity approach and preserve the segregation of persons with disabilities in the labour market, especially of persons with intellectual disabilities, qualifying them as ‘unemployable’;
- (b) The exposure of persons with disabilities to the risk of losing their income when getting self-employed;
- (c) The lack of implementation of the employment quota system, the absence of reasonable accommodation in the workplace, and the asymmetric requirements for quotas in the public and private work sectors.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures aimed at promoting an inclusive, open and accessible labour market in all sectors for all persons with disabilities;

- (b) Create specific incentives for employers and provide reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with intellectual disabilities, aimed at facilitating their inclusion in the open labour market;
- (c) Ensure the safeguard of all incomes, including disability pensions for self-employed persons with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure equal requirements for employment quotas in the public administration and information services and other work sectors, and monitor their implementation. The State party should collect data on the compliance of the quota system and ensure adequate sanctioning in case of non-compliance.

Sudan (2018)

53. The Committee is concerned about the absence of adequate and enforceable measures to ensure compliance with policies and strategies to promote livelihood and employment opportunities in the public and private sector regarding the employment of persons with disabilities.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective and affirmative measures to ensure the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sector and ensure that the open labour market is inclusive and accessible, and that reasonable accommodation is available.

55. The Committee notes that article 24 paragraph 7 of the National Public Civil Service Act of 2007 establishes a two per cent quota for the employment of persons with disabilities, but is concerned that this provision is not legally or administratively enforceable and it allows for exceptions based on the “nature of the job and the nature of the disability”.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party review article 24 paragraph 7 of the National Public Civil Service Act of 2007 to remove exceptions to the quota system based on the “nature of the job and the nature of the disability” and to make the two per cent quota administratively and legally enforceable.

Latvia (2017)

46. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Lack of progress in improving employment for persons with disabilities in the open labour market, particularly for those with intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Continuity of the subsidized employment measures after termination of support from European structural funds.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure support for the employment of all persons with disabilities in the open labour market in inclusive employment settings on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Luxembourg (2017)

46. The Committee is concerned about the low level of employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors and the segregation of persons with disabilities in sheltered workshops. It is also concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a designated body for monitoring and sanctioning non-compliance of labour quotas, particularly in the private sector;
- (b) The lack of monitoring of the provision of reasonable accommodation.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to phase out sheltered workshops, with a time-bound schedule and plan for transfer of those currently employed in sheltered workshops into the open labour market, and increase the level of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, in line with the Convention and in view of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and that it ensure the achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities, and equal pay for work of equal value. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Designate an entity for monitoring and sanctioning non-compliance of labour quotas in both the private and public sectors;
- (b) Take measures to ensure the effective monitoring of the provision of reasonable accommodation, with appropriate remedies for the denial of requests;
- (c) Provide vocational and professional training and provide incentives for the self-employment of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities.

Montenegro (2017)

48. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the effective protection of employees with disabilities from dismissal. It is also concerned about:

- (a) The fact that persons with disabilities, especially women, are particularly affected by unemployment;
- (b) The lack of information on subsidies or any measures, beyond the obligation for employers who do not respect the minimum quota for the employment of persons with disabilities, to contribute to the Fund for the Professional Rehabilitation and Employment of Persons with Disabilities;
- (c) The insufficient provision of reasonable accommodation in workplaces;
- (d) The use of the medical model of disability to assess people's capacity for work, which is in conflict with the Convention;
- (e) Insufficient comprehensive data on the situation of persons with disabilities in employment, particularly in the private sector.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party analyse and remedy any disincentives to employment for persons with disabilities, and further promote employment in the open labour market in the public and private sectors, with particular emphasis on women, in close consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Introduce legislation providing for effective sanctions against employers who fail to provide reasonable accommodation in the workplace;
- (b) Collect disaggregated statistical data on the employment rate and situation of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age, type of employment and salary;
- (c) Reform the assessment procedures in the employment context in line with the human rights model of disability prescribed by the Convention.

Morocco (2017)

50. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The high rate of unemployment among persons with disabilities: 67.75 per cent, as indicated in the 2014 national survey on disability;
- (b) Discrimination against persons with disabilities in the workplace, including the absence of measures to provide reasonable accommodation;
- (c) The practice of reserving a list of positions for persons with disabilities, which is against the principle of open employment and hinders equal access by persons with disabilities to employment.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a long-term plan to ensure access by persons with disabilities to the open labour market, and set up specific targets and measures concerning access to employment for women and young persons with disabilities. The State party should include in those measures the establishment of public-private partnerships with cooperatives and the private sector in order to increase the employability of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Establish the legal duty of employers in all sectors of the economy to provide reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities in the workplace;

- (c) Cease the use of lists of positions reserved only for persons with disabilities, and ensure that persons with disabilities receive training for and are able to access all types of employment on an equal basis with others;
- (d) Pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goal, with a view to achieving full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities.

Panama (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned at the failure to achieve the 2 per cent quota, the limited participation of persons with disabilities in the labour market and the scarcity of statistical data on the wages of persons with disabilities. The Committee regrets the lack of mechanisms to ensure that persons with disabilities are not discriminated against in the open labour market and of measures to ensure that reasonable accommodations are made in the workplace.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party put in place specific strategies to implement the 2 per cent quota and to increase the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors, including through mechanisms to ensure that reasonable accommodations are made and to prevent discrimination against persons with disabilities and their families in the open labour market. It also recommends that the State party be mindful of the linkages between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and that it ensure productive and decent work for everyone, including persons with disabilities, in accordance with the principle of equal pay for work of equal value.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

56. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The persistent employment gap and pay gap for work of equal value affecting persons with disabilities, especially women and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, as well as persons with visual impairments;
- (b) The insufficient affirmative action measures and provision of reasonable accommodation to ensure that persons with disabilities can access employment on the open labour market, despite the obligations contained in European Union Directive 2000/78/EC on non-discrimination in the workplace;
- (c) The process related to the Employment and Support Allowance and the fact that the Work Capability Assessment emphasizes a functional evaluation of skills and capabilities, rather than recognizing the interactions between impairment and barriers in society faced by persons with disabilities;
- (d) The State party's upholding of its reservation to article 27 of the Convention, which disproportionately affects persons with disabilities who are actively involved in military matters.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, and in line with the Committee's report on its inquiry concerning the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland carried out under article 6 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention:

- (a) Develop and decide upon an effective employment policy for persons with disabilities aimed at ensuring decent work for all persons with disabilities, bearing in mind the State party's target of 1 million jobs for persons with disabilities, and ensure equal pay for work of equal value, focusing especially on women with disabilities, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with visual impairments, and monitor those developments;
- (b) Ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided to all persons with disabilities who require it in the workplace, that regular training on reasonable accommodation is available to employers and employees without disabilities, and that dissuasive and effective sanctions are in place in cases of denial of reasonable accommodation;

(c) Ensure that the legal and administrative requirements of the process to assess working capabilities, including the Work Capability Assessment, are in line with the human rights model of disability, that those who conduct the assessments are qualified and duly trained in that model, and that the assessments take into consideration work-related as well as other personal circumstances. The State party must ensure that the adjustments and support necessary to access work, as well as financial support, are provided and that they are not subject to sanctions or conditional upon carrying out job seeking activities;

(d) Withdraw its reservation to article 27 of the Convention;

(e) Bear in mind the links between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Armenia (2017)

47. The Committee is concerned about the significant unemployment rates among persons with disabilities and the lack of adequate employment policies and programmes to complement the use of quotas to enable persons with disabilities to participate effectively in the open labour market.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities into national employment policies and programmes and enforce the implementation of the Law on employment, including the mandatory quotas and incentive measures for employers in the public and private sectors. The Committee also recommends that the State party support the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including through the provision of vocational training programmes and reasonable accommodation in the labour sector, in line with the Convention and in view of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

46. The Committee is concerned about the lack of data on efficient protection of employees with disabilities from dismissal and about the insufficient provision of reasonable accommodation. The Committee is also concerned that there are no data on the situation of persons with disabilities in terms of employment in the public sector.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party amend its legislation by including the definitions of “reasonable accommodation” and “universal design” in line with the Convention and that it provide guidance and training to the public and private sectors on these concepts in order to make sure that disability cannot constitute an excuse for non-employment if the person with disability in question is qualified for the relevant job and can effectively perform his or her job with reasonable accommodation.

48. The Committee is concerned about the fact that the number of sheltered workshops has doubled since 2009 and that there is a lack of data on measures to motivate persons with disabilities effectively, including veterans of war with disabilities, and their employers, towards their employment in the open labour market.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party promote among employers the right of persons with disabilities, including veterans of war with disabilities, to employment on an equal basis with others, and reinforce measures to support the effective transition of all persons with disabilities into formal employment in the open labour market.

Canada (2017)

47. The Committee is concerned at the high number of persons with disabilities who are unemployed and at the lack of programmes to retain the jobs of persons with disabilities in periods of economic crisis. It is further concerned about the absence of strategies to end models of sheltered workshops and ensure access to the open labour market for persons with disabilities, in particular women and young persons with disabilities. The Committee notes that there is a steady increase in both the number and proportion of complaints of discrimination in employment related to disability.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a policy on the employment of persons with disabilities, including indigenous persons with disabilities, that guarantees access to employment, promotes work in open, inclusive and accessible markets and environments, equal opportunities and gender equality and provides for reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities at work;
- (b) Develop strategies aimed at providing decent job opportunities for women and young persons with disabilities, including the provision of reasonable accommodation, flexible time arrangements, appropriate training for work and measures to prevent harassment and other forms of discrimination at the workplace;
- (c) Implement binding affirmative action measures, including the allocation of targeted funding to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors;
- (d) Bear in mind article 27 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Cyprus (2017)

53. The Committee is concerned by the high level of unemployment and lack of gender, age and disability disaggregated data regarding employment of persons with disabilities, and about the insufficient measures to promote their inclusion into the open labour market regardless of the type of impairment.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to employment in the open labour market, including by ensuring that the private sector is also covered by a quota system and by ensuring equal pay for work of equal value in all settings for all persons with disabilities being guided by target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals. It furthermore recommends that the State party collect data on the employment of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by gender, age and type of impairment.

Honduras (2017)

57. Al Comité le preocupa los altos niveles de desempleo de las personas con discapacidad. También preocupa al Comité la falta de seguimiento al cumplimiento de las cuotas laborales en el sector público. Le preocupa asimismo que en los programas Con Chamba Vivís Mejor, Chamba Comunitaria y Chambita Plus no se incluya el número representativo de personas con discapacidad.

58. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que implemente estrategias específicas para elevar el nivel de empleabilidad de las personas con discapacidad en el sector público. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 27 de la Convención y la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, y asegure el logro de un empleo productivo y decente para todas las personas, incluyendo personas con discapacidad en línea con el principio de igual remuneración por un trabajo de igual valor.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

50. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low compliance with the 3 per cent quota of employment of persons with disabilities in the public sector;
- (b) The lack of recognition of reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities at the work place;
- (c) That measures to promote employment of war veterans are not implemented for other persons with disabilities; and

(d) Gaps in the participation of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, and that persons with disabilities remain in 'sheltered workshops'.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(e) Adopt measures to comply with the quota of employment of persons with disabilities in the public sector, and provide accessibility and reasonable accommodation in the workplace so as to increase employment rate of persons with disabilities;

(f) Increase its efforts to create job opportunities for persons with disabilities, including through affirmative action programmes, entrepreneurship, appropriate age training for work; loans, microcredits, and technical assistance for business management; and

(g) Bear in mind the linkages between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the SDGs, and ensure that persons with disabilities obtain productive and decent employment, in line with the principle of equal pay for work of equal value.

Jordan (2017)

49. The Committee notes with deep concern the high unemployment rate (76 per cent) of persons with disabilities in the State party. It is concerned about the perpetuation of discriminatory legislation and regulations, including article 13 of the Labour Law of 2010, annex (No. 1) of the System of Medical Committees law (No. 58 of 1977) and its regulation (No. 13 of 2014). and article 4 of the Civil Service regulation (No. 30 of 2007) which prevent persons with certain impairments from accessing employment. It is concerned about the discriminatory attitudes towards hiring persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal discriminatory legislation and regulations in order to eliminate the concept of "medical fitness" and ensure individualized assessments are conducted to determine suitability for bona fide occupational requirements;

(b) Raise awareness among employers and the general public on the right of persons with disabilities to work;

(c) Promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private and public sectors, including through affirmative action and the adoption of regulations governing reasonable accommodation.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

48. The Committee is concerned about significant unemployment and economic inactivity rates among persons with disabilities, and the fact that national employment strategies and relevant agencies do not adequately facilitate and promote the employment of persons with disabilities or implement the minimum 5 per cent mandatory employment quota for persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that the employment of persons with disabilities is generally oriented towards segregated workplaces.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities and affirmative action into national employment strategies and respective agencies, enforcing the implementation of Law No. 60 regarding employment, including the mandatory quota and incentive measures for employers;

(b) Support the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, in line with the Convention and in the light of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bolivia (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned at the failure to implement labour quotas and at the high rates of unemployment among persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that the measures to promote the employment of persons with disabilities do not include in-service training and conform to the "specialized" and segregated employment model. The Committee is further concerned that, owing to the lack of labour mobility of persons with disabilities and their families, employers are discouraged from hiring them.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a policy on the employment of persons with disabilities that guarantees access to employment, that promotes work in open, inclusive and accessible markets and environments, equal opportunities and gender equality, and that provides for reasonable adjustments for persons with disabilities. The Committee also urges the State party to effectively implement binding affirmative action measures to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, in both the public and private sectors. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 27 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

60. The Committee is concerned that, in addition to the obvious intersectional inequalities, efforts to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the labour market have been limited and of little impact. It is also concerned about the persistence of discrimination based on disability and the lack of regulation of reasonable accommodation.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take steps to expedite the full employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market by adopting affirmative action measures and combating discrimination based on disability;
- (b) Adopt regulations governing reasonable accommodation in the area of employment;
- (c) Bear in mind the linkages between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals to ensure that all persons, including persons with disabilities, obtain productive and decent employment, in keeping with the principle of equal pay for work of equal value.

Ethiopia (2016)

59. The Committee is concerned that the rate of employment of persons with disabilities is very low, which increases the risk of poverty and segregation. It is also concerned about the absence of affirmative measures to enhance the employment of persons with disabilities, both in the public and private sectors.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take effective and affirmative measures to ensure the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including by increasing vocational training opportunities;
- (b) Ensure that the open labour market is inclusive and accessible and that reasonable accommodation and support is provided in the workplace;
- (c) Be guided by article 27 of the Convention in implementing target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Guatemala (2016)

63. The Committee is concerned that the majority of persons with disabilities are not in formal employment and do not have real and effective means of obtaining the reasonable accommodation that they require in the workplace. It is also concerned by the lack of monitoring of compliance with employment quotas in the public sector and the lack of affirmative action to accelerate the achievement of de facto equality for persons with disabilities who face the greatest difficulties in accessing the labour market, such as women and indigenous peoples, especially in rural communities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party promote Bill No. 4796 on the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the world of work, together with an appropriate mechanism to monitor its implementation, and ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation as required by workers with disabilities and the implementation of affirmative action to support the groups that face the greatest difficulties in accessing the labour market. It also recommends that the State party set up a mechanism for monitoring compliance with employment quotas, with penalties for non-compliance. The Committee further recommends that the State party be guided by article 27 of the Convention in its implementation of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

69. The Committee is concerned about the high levels of unemployment among persons with disabilities, and inadequate provisions to promote their inclusion in the open labour market, in particular women with disabilities. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities in the State party may be restricted to the performance of certain professions on the grounds of their disability.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 27 of the Convention in implementing targets 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals; and that it ensure the achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all, including persons with disabilities, and equal pay for work of equal value. In addition, the State party must implement special measures to address the low level of employment for women with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party remove any legislation limiting the rights of persons with disabilities to perform any profession on the grounds of their disability.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of inclusive employment policies and the low employment rate of persons with disabilities in spite of a quota system, in particular regarding women, whose participation in employment may, in practice, be conditional on the consent of a male guardian;
- (b) The insufficient placement services and continuing training opportunities for persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of protection and compensation under the labour law for migrant workers, especially domestic workers, subjected to the kafalah system, who have acquired an impairment as a result of their work in the State party.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take measures to eliminate discriminatory practices on the basis of impairment and gender and adopt the policies and measures necessary, including affirmative action, to significantly increase the employment rate of persons with disabilities, especially women, in the open labour market, in both the public and private sectors;
- (b) Intensify its efforts to develop placement services and continuing training, as well as self-employment and entrepreneurship opportunities;
- (c) Ensure that migrant workers, especially domestic workers and including those with disabilities, are not subjected to the kafalah system and are fully and equally protected by the labour law;
- (d) Ensure that all migrant workers, including domestic workers, who have acquired impairment as a result of their work in the State party receive appropriate compensation;
- (e) Be guided by article 27 of the Convention in the implementation of target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

57. Al Comité le preocupan los altos niveles de desempleo de las personas con discapacidad. También preocupa al Comité que no se cumpla la cuota para facilitar el empleo de las personas con discapacidad en la función pública. Preocupa también la falta de información sobre los puestos de trabajo y la pirámide salarial de las personas con discapacidad en el sector privado.

58. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que implemente estrategias específicas para elevar el nivel de empleabilidad de las personas con discapacidad desempleadas en el sector público, incluyendo a través de programas vocacionales. También le recomienda recoger los datos de empleabilidad en el sector privado en el mercado laboral abierto. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte se guíe por el artículo 27 de la Convención en la implementación de la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, y asegure el logro de un empleo productivo y decente para todas las personas, incluyendo personas con discapacidad en línea con el principio de remuneración igual por trabajo de igual nivel.

Chile (2016)

57. El Comité se encuentra preocupado por la brecha de inclusión laboral en detrimento de las personas con discapacidad en el Estado parte y la ausencia de estrategias específicas para promover la vinculación de las personas con discapacidad en el empleo.

58. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte acelere la adopción de la legislación sobre inclusión laboral de las personas con discapacidad, y adopte una estrategia amplia con indicadores y plazos específicos en la materia, incluyendo a las mujeres y los jóvenes con discapacidad. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 27 de la Convención y la meta 8.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, y asegure el logro de un empleo productivo y decente para todas las personas, incluyendo personas con discapacidad en línea con el principio de remuneración igual por trabajo de igual valor.

Lithuania (2016)

51. The Committee is seriously concerned at the commonly applied concept of “working incapacity”, which results in a low employment rate among persons with disabilities, and at a singular focus on segregated work environments, such as social enterprises, to which European Union funds are being directed.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, eliminate the concept of “working incapacity” of persons with disabilities and develop and implement efficient strategies and programmes aimed at increasing the employment rate of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, by eliminating segregated work environments and investing in promoting vocational training, access to appropriately adjusted workplaces, the provision of reasonable accommodation and the training of private and public employers, as set out in target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Portugal (2016)

50. The Committee is concerned by discrimination against and inequalities in employment and working conditions for persons with disabilities, and in particular women, and by the fact that the State party’s Labour Code does not oblige employers to provide reasonable accommodation. It is also concerned about the working conditions faced by persons with disabilities in occupational activity centres, including the average salary, and by the fact that these segregated environments are the most common situation for persons with intellectual disabilities and autism when exercising the right to work and employment.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organisations which represent persons with disabilities, review its labour legislation, both in the public and in the private sectors, to bring it into line with the Convention, and take measures to enforce the rules and sanctions stipulated in its legislation in the event of non-compliance. The Committee also recommends that the State party eliminate segregated working environments, including a review of legislation governing occupational activity centres from a human rights approach to comply with the Convention, and step up its efforts to promote access for persons with intellectual disability and autism to the open labour market. Furthermore, it recommends that the State party promote corporate social responsibility with regard to the employment of persons with disabilities. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and SDG 8, target 8.5 to ensure achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all including persons with disabilities and equal pay for work of equal value.

Serbia (2016)

53. The Committee is concerned about insufficient legal protection of employees with disabilities against dismissal and the insufficient provision of reasonable accommodation. The Committee is also concerned that persons with disabilities virtually cannot establish their representative trade union in the open labour market due to their low representation and that despite the provision of multidisciplinary committees, assessment of working capacity continues to be based on a medical model of “incapacity”.

54. The Committee recommends the State party review the practice of the application of law, to make sure legislation is not disadvantageous for persons with disabilities in terms of employment and labour market participation, and guarantee the provision of reasonable accommodation at the workplace. It further recommends the State party to review the assessment of working capacity to eliminate the medicalised approach and to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the open labour market. The Committee also recommends that the limit of establishing trade union for persons with disabilities at an employer shall be changed and that the State party pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 8, target 8.5.

55. The Committee is concerned about the persistence of sheltered workshops for persons with disabilities, and that the measures to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market are not effective.

56. The Committee recommends the State party to promote the right to employment on an equal basis with others among employers, and strengthen measures to support the transition of all persons with disabilities that are currently in sheltered workshops into formal, open labour market employment, ensuring the respect of all rights, in compliance with the Convention.

Slovakia (2016)

73. The Committee is concerned about the large number of persons with disabilities employed in sheltered workshops and the lack of efficient measures taken to encourage employment in the open labour market.

74. The Committee recommends that the State party step up efforts on the transition from sheltered workshops to an open labour market for all. The process must include an action plan, timetable, budget and training for public and private sector employers, including on the provision of reasonable accommodation. The Committee also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Thailand (2016)

53. The Committee is concerned at the low employment rate among persons with disabilities, particularly among women. It is also concerned about the prejudice against persons with disabilities, their lack of opportunities for training to gain access to employment, and employers’ preference to pay a levy to the National Fund for the Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities rather than recruit persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that only a limited amount of the Fund’s loans are concretely allocated to supporting the empowerment of persons with disabilities and that its effectiveness is constrained by public regulations.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Increase employment opportunities in the open labour market for persons with disabilities, particularly women, including through awareness-raising campaigns targeting employers and the public at large to eliminate prejudice against persons with disabilities;

- (b) Implement training and skills development programmes to facilitate the recruitment of persons with disabilities and self-employment opportunities;
- (c) Provide access to supported employment measures in the open labour market, ensure the transparent and accountable management of the National Fund
- (d) for the Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities, and include persons with disabilities within its administration;
- (e) Pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 8, target 8.5, to ensure the achievement of full and productive employment and decent work for all including persons with disabilities and equal pay for work of equal value.

Uganda (2016)

52. The Committee is concerned about the few opportunities open for employment for persons with disabilities, in particular young men and women with disabilities, as well as the dismissal of persons who acquire an impairment in the course of their employment. It is also concerned about the lack of provisions to ensure persons with disabilities have equal pay for work of equal value.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a strategy and incentive measures to facilitate access to the open labour market to persons with disabilities, in particular young men and women, including through the provision of training, and accessible information on job vacancies, and ensure that persons with disabilities receive equal pay for work of equal value;
- (b) Take measures to ensure accessible and adapted workplaces in the open labour market, including provision of reasonable accommodation regardless of disability;
- (c) Pay attention to the links between article 27 of the Convention and target 8.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Brazil (2015)

48. The Committee is concerned at discrimination against persons with disabilities in the realm of employment, especially women with disabilities, and continue reliance on sheltered workshops. It is also concerned about the low levels of compliance with the quota system applying to private businesses with 100 or more employees.

49. The Committee recommends that, in consultation with organizations representing persons with disabilities, the State party develop and implement a coordinated strategy to increase employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market, including specific measures for women with disabilities. It is further recommended to take immediate action to create possibilities for transition from segregated employment to the open labour market.

European Union (2015)

64. The Committee is concerned about the high unemployment rates for persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, in comparison with other groups of population in the European Union.

65. The Committee recommends that the European Union take effective actions to measure the employment of persons with disabilities and to increase their employment rate in open labour market, including by providing training for Member States on reasonable accommodation and accessibility in the context of employment.

EU Institutions compliance with the Convention (as public administrations)

88. The Committee is concerned that European Union institutions do not play a role model with regard to employment of persons with disabilities.

89. The Committee recommends that the European Union increase employment of persons with disabilities across all European Union institutions.

Gabon (2015)

58. The Committee is concerned by the low employment rate of persons with disabilities, the lack of inclusive employment policies and provision of reasonable accommodation, including in recruitment procedures, and the certification process used to declare if persons with disabilities are 'fit for employment'.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party implement Act No.19/95 and adopt the necessary policies and measures, including of a legal nature, to further promote employment in the open labour market in public and private sectors beyond the current quota system, and the provision of reasonable accommodation and training on it. It also recommends that it increase vocational training and adopt legislation with effective remedies and sanctions with respect to disability-based discrimination in recruitment, promotion and retention of employees.

Kenya (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned at the very low employment rate among persons with disabilities of about 1%. It is also concerned about the stereotypes and lack of training for persons with disabilities to access to employment opportunities.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt immediate measures to foster compliance with the positive measures of quota for persons with disabilities in employment, including an effective enforcement mechanism and sanctions for non-compliance, in both public and private sectors;

(b) Adopt immediate measures to foster compliance with the positive measures of quota for persons with disabilities in employment, including an effective enforcement mechanism and sanctions for non-compliance, in both public and private sectors;

(c) Design work and employment programmes in the open labour market specifically oriented to persons with disabilities, which include information on job opportunities on accessible formats, and development of skills to undergo competitive selection process to access jobs;

(d) Support entrepreneurship among persons with disabilities including by providing training on accessing markets; and

(e) Collect periodically statistics and information on persons with disabilities access to work as a matter of accountability before their population.

Mauritius (2015)

37. The Committee is concerned that a large percentage of persons with disabilities is considered not suitable for the open labor market and remains highly discriminated in their access to work. The Committee is also concerned that the quota of 3% of the work force composed of persons with disabilities only applies to the private sector and remains inadequately enforced. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about the prevalence of sheltered workshops and the lack of formal transition programmes to allow young persons with disabilities to find an employment in the open labour market.

38. The Committee recommends that the State party develop effective legislative and policy measures to promote the transition from sheltered employment to the of employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market and ensure protection from discrimination in employment, including explicit recognition of the obligation to provide reasonable accommodation. The State party should extend affirmative actions to the public sector and monitor compliance, establish programmes to facilitate inclusion of young persons with disabilities in the open labour market in close consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities and ensure that penalties are applied to employer who fail to comply with the quota.

Qatar (2015)

49. The Committee is concerned by the lack of inclusive employment policies and the low employment rate of persons with disabilities in spite of a quota system, in particular regarding women, whose participation in employment may be conditional upon consent of a male guardian, in practice. It is also concerned about the lack of information on available placement services and continuing training opportunities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal discriminatory practices on the basis of impairment and gender and adopt the necessary policies and measures, including affirmative action, to significantly increase the employment rate of persons with disabilities, especially women, in the open labour market in public and private sectors. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt measures to develop placement services and continuing training as well as self-employment and entrepreneurship opportunities.

Ukraine (2015)

50. The Committee is concerned that the requirement for employment quota is not well enforced and the majority of persons with disabilities remain unemployed. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about the lack of employment opportunities for persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities and absence of policies or programmes for supported employment in the open labour market.

51. The Committee calls upon the State party to ensure effective implementation of the affirmative measures and strengthen incentives for businesses and public sector for such employments. The Committee also recommends that the State party take measures to provide for supported employment of persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities in the open labour market.

Cook Islands (2015)

49. The Committee is concerned at the low number of persons with disabilities in employment. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that there are no formal transition programs for persons with disabilities to enter the open labour market.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Collect disaggregated data and information on persons with disabilities in employment, vocational and transition programmes;
- (b) Provide support for the transition from education to the open labour market which permits freedom of choice to pursue vocations according to personal will and preferences;
- (c) Enable the public sector to serve as a role model by creating employment opportunities for persons with disabilities in the public sector.

Croatia (2015)

41. The Committee is, concerned that the majority of persons with disabilities are either unemployed or have low income employment.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party develop and implement – in cooperation with organisations of persons with disabilities (DPOs) – a plan of action to increase employment of persons with disabilities in the open labour market. It recommends that the quota system is complemented with other incentives for employers to hire persons with disabilities. Disincentives to employment for persons with disabilities should be analysed and reacted upon. Reasonable accommodation – including supported employment via personal assistance - and accessibility of the workplace should be regulated and monitored.

Czech Republic (2015)

50. The Committee notes with concern the high unemployment rate of persons with disabilities, and the fact that unemployment rate of women with disabilities is higher compared to that of men with disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee notes with concern that close to one third of employed persons with disabilities work outside the open labor market.

51. The Committee calls upon the State party to ensure the same wage for all persons with disabilities regardless of their disability classification, to develop measures and intensify its efforts and allocate sufficient resources to promote the employment of persons with disabilities at open labor market, and especially to promote employment of women with disabilities.

Dominican Republic (2015)

50. El Comité considera insuficientes las cifras de personas con discapacidad incluidas en empleos formales, lo que evidencia la ausencia de una política estatal para la no discriminación y la equiparación de oportunidades en el trabajo y el empleo de personas con discapacidad. Preocupa al Comité que no se ha regulado la obligación de proporcionar ajustes razonables y que la denegación de éstos se considere discriminatoria en cualquier etapa del empleo. También le preocupa la falta de cumplimiento de las medidas de acción afirmativa para acelerar la igualdad de facto de las personas con discapacidad en el empleo.

51. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte adoptar las medidas para fomentar el empleo de personas con discapacidad en los sectores público y privado, incluyendo medidas de acción afirmativa y regular los ajustes razonables; asimismo, le recomienda al Estado establecer un mecanismo de seguimiento al cumplimiento de las cuotas laborales en el sector público y sanciones en caso de incumplimiento.

Germany (2015)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Segregation in the labour market in the State party;
- (b) Financial disincentives for persons with disabilities preventing their entry or transition to the open labour market;
- (c) The fact that segregated, sheltered workshops fail to prepare or promote transition to the open labour market.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party provide regulations that effectively create an inclusive labour market in accordance with the Convention by:

- (a) Creating employment opportunities in accessible workplaces, in line with General Comment No. 2 (2014) of the Committee, in particular for women with disabilities;
- (b) Phasing out sheltered workshops through immediately enforceable exit strategies and timelines and incentives for public and private employment in the mainstream labour market;
- (c) Ensuring persons with disabilities do not face any reduction in social protection and pension insurance currently tied to sheltered workshops;
- (d) Collecting data on the accessibility of workplaces in the open labour market.

Mongolia (2015)

41. The Committee is concerned that the sanctions for non-compliance with the legislative requirement for public and private entities with more than 25 personnel to have four percent of personnel consisting of persons with disabilities is not commensurate and results in the majority of such entities choosing to pay the low fines for non-compliance rather than employ persons with disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that the legislation limiting the maximum number of working hours per week to 36 hours for persons with disabilities may discourage their employment.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party review its current systems for enforcement of its requirement for the minimum four percent representation rate of persons with disabilities in employment. In doing so, the State party may wish to consider increasing the financial penalties for non-compliance with the quota. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to improve vocational capacity of persons with disabilities to improve their employment prospects, along with other reinforcing statutory measures, such as monitoring the quota system and/or developing new disability employment policies.

Turkmenistan (2015)

45. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient information on the implementation of the quota system. It is also concerned about the reported practice that some persons with disabilities may be classified as “unemployable”, which prevents a person with a certain degree of disability based on medical assessment alone without taking into account the nature of the given work.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the quota system significantly enhances the participation of persons with disabilities in terms of employment and diversity in workplaces within the framework of reasonable accommodation by ensuring enforcement through effective and transparent sanctions for non-compliance available in all accessible formats for persons with disabilities. The Committee further recommends eliminating the reported practice of classifying person with disabilities as “unemployable”.

New Zealand (2014)

55. The Committee is concerned that the employment levels in New Zealand for persons with disabilities, and especially for Maori and Pacific people with disabilities, are still low.

56. The Committee recommends that further steps be taken to increase the employment levels of persons with disabilities.

57. The Committee is concerned that under the Minimum Wage Act 1983, some 1,200 persons with disabilities are paid less than the minimum wage, under minimum wage exemption permits.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party examine alternatives to minimum wage exemption permits in the employment of persons with disabilities.

Denmark (2014)

58. The Committee notes with concern that while the Act on the Prohibition of Discrimination in the Labour Market prohibits direct and indirect differential treatment on the grounds of disability, neither the general labour legislation nor collective labour agreements stipulate clear obligations on employers to afford reasonable accommodation in the labour market, which may be among the sources of a prevailing employment gap between persons with disabilities (44 per cent of whom are working) and persons without disabilities (78 per cent of whom are working).

59. The Committee recommends that the State party take all necessary measures to significantly increase, as soon as possible, the percentage of persons with disabilities working in the open labour market, including amendments to the general labour legislation so that it imposes clear obligations on employers to afford reasonable accommodation to employees with disabilities.

Republic of Korea (2014)

49. The Committee is concerned that the Minimum Wage Act excludes from the benefit of the minimum wage “those who clearly lack the capacity to work” and fails to set clear standards for conducting assessments and making decisions to define the lack of capacity to work. The Committee is also concerned that, as a result, many persons with disabilities who work, especially those with psychosocial disabilities, receive compensation below the minimum wage, and that the practice of placing such workers in sheltered workshops that do not aim to prepare them for entry into the open labour market continues.

50. The Committee encourages the State party to introduce a supplementary wage system to compensate those persons with disabilities who are excluded from the benefit of the minimum wage by the Minimum Wage Act and to eliminate sheltered workshops and seek alternatives in line with the Convention to promote the employment of persons with disabilities in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

51. The Committee is concerned that, despite the existence of a mandatory employment quota system for persons with disabilities, unemployment is higher for persons with disabilities, and in particular for women with disabilities, than for the general population.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party put in place measures to narrow the employment gap, paying particular attention to the employment of women with disabilities. It recommends, in particular, that the State party ensure the effective implementation of the mandatory employment quota system for persons with disabilities and the publication of relevant statistics on the achievements and results in that area.

Belgium (2014)

38. The Committee notes with concern the low number of persons with disabilities in regular employment. The Committee also notes the Government's failure to reach targets for the employment of persons with disabilities within its own agencies, as well as the lack of a quota in the private sector.

39. The Committee recommends that the State party take all necessary regulatory measures and incentives to guarantee the right of persons with disabilities to employment, in both the private sector and the public sector. It should ensure that they have effective protection against discrimination, vocational training, adequate accessibility and the necessary reasonable accommodation.

Ecuador (2014)

42. The Committee is concerned at the low employment rate among persons with disabilities.

43. The Committee recommends that programmes be designed to increase the employment rate of persons with disabilities and that employment programmes for persons with disabilities be developed

Mexico (2014)

51. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The low employment rate among persons with disabilities, especially intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, and the limited coverage of strategies and programmes to promote their employment;

(b) The lack of information on the working conditions of persons with disabilities;

(c) The particular discrimination women and indigenous persons with disabilities face in accessing the labour market;

(d) The lack of mechanisms to achieve the 3 per cent quota of persons with disabilities in the public sector; and

(e) The lack of regulations on the provision of reasonable accommodations for persons with disabilities in the workplace, both public and private.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Boost access-to-employment programmes for persons with disabilities, especially intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, by allocating resources and through measures to encourage their recruitment by private sector companies;

(b) Set up mechanisms to protect persons with disabilities from all forms of forced labour, exploitation and harassment in the workplace;

(c) Take corrective measures to ensure the recruitment of women and indigenous persons with disabilities;

(d) Set up a mechanism to monitor the achievement of the public sector quota of persons with disabilities and roll out similar affirmative action measures in the private sector; and

(e) Regulate the criteria for the provision of reasonable accommodations for workers with disabilities and allocate the necessary budget for such accommodations in the public and private sectors.

Sweden (2014)

49. The Committee is concerned that the trends in the employment of persons with disabilities are controversial. The recent trends are unclear, but, over all, unemployment is higher for persons with disabilities than for the general population. Promising achievements have been made with respect to support for personal assistants and the support provided by the public employment service; however, the 100 per cent increase in the number of registered unemployed persons with disabilities since 2008, due to changes in the insurance scheme, is quite alarming. The Committee is also concerned that, with respect to employment and income, a significant gender gap remains between women with disabilities and men with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to improve opportunities for persons with disabilities to obtain work on the basis of the report presented by the FunkA Inquiry (FunkA-utredning). It further suggests that the State party increase measures of support, including, inter alia, personal assistance in employment, technical assistance in performing in the workplace, reduced social fees, financial support to employers, rehabilitation and vocational training, and that it put in place measures to narrow the employment and pay gender gap. The Committee recommends that the State party assess the impact of the use in the labour market of the term “people with reduced capacities or limitations” to refer to persons with disabilities, and revise it in accordance with the principle of non-discrimination.

Azerbaijan (2014)

42. The Committee notes that the State party has a quota system for employing persons with disabilities. However, the Committee is concerned that the number of persons benefiting from these quotas is very low. The Committee is further concerned at the lack of adequate programmes on employment to complement the use of quotas so that persons with disabilities can effectively participate in the labour market.

43. The State party should ensure that the quota system significantly enhances the participation of persons with disabilities in the labour market by ensuring enforcement through effective sanctions for non-compliance. The State party should also expand its existing programmes, including vocational training programmes, with a view to enhancing the skills of persons with disabilities so that they can competitively participate in the open labour market. The State party should further step up its efforts in the provision and enforcement of reasonable accommodation in the labour sector.

Costa Rica (2014)

55. The Committee regrets the lack of data concerning compliance with the 5 per cent employment quota for persons with disabilities in the public sector. It is also concerned about the lack of measures to promote their employment in the private sector and the absence of regulations to ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the measures necessary to raise awareness among employers and promote the employment of persons with disabilities in the private sector, including affirmative action programmes and legislation on reasonable accommodation. The State party should also monitor compliance with employment quotas in the public sector.

Australia (2013)

49. The Committee is concerned that employees with disabilities in Australian Disability enterprises (ADE) are still being paid wages based on the Business Services Wage Assessment Tool (BSWAT).

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Immediately discontinues the use of the BSWAT

(b) Ensures that the Australians Supported Wage System (SWS) is changed to secure the right assessment of the wages of persons in support employment.

(c) Adopts initiatives to increase employment participation of women with disabilities by addressing the specific underlying structural barriers to their workforce participation.

Austria (2013)

44. The Committee notes with concern that approximately 19,000 Austrians work in sheltered workshops outside of the open labour market and receive very little pay.

45. While noting that Austria has a quota system for employment of persons with disabilities, the Committee is concerned at reports that a majority of employers prefer to pay a fine rather than to comply with the quota requirement. It notes that only 22% of employers actually fulfil their obligations under the Disability Employment Act, which governs this quota system.

46. The Committee notes with concern that there is a significant gender gap in the employment and income of women with disabilities, when compared with men with disabilities.

47. The Committee recommends that the State Party enhance programs to employ persons with disabilities in the open labour market. The Committee further recommends that measures be put in place to narrow the employment and payment gender gap.

El Salvador (2013)

55. The Committee is concerned at the discrepancy in access to employment between men and women with disabilities and the fact that there are no mechanisms for monitoring equal work conditions for persons with disabilities. The Committee is concerned that providing reasonable accommodation is not an integral part of employment policies, perpetuating discrimination against persons with disabilities in that domain. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of vocational training for persons with disabilities.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures, including affirmative action, to ensure equal access to the labour market for women and men with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party implement programmes on access to vocational training for persons with disabilities and encourage their formal and informal training free of charge through the technical body recognized by the State for that purpose.

Paraguay (2013)

63. The Committee takes note of the quota system for employing persons with disabilities in the public sector, but notes with concern that there are no policies to encourage employment in the private sector. It is also concerned at the fact that employment training programmes concentrate on manual and craft work and occupations and that there is no promotion of equal employment opportunities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt without delay policies on the employment of persons with disabilities in both the public and the private sectors, including the adoption of affirmative action measures, and opportunities for persons with disabilities to choose own-account employment by means of training in areas of their choice and access to soft loans.

65. The Committee is gravely concerned at the fact that there is no legislation to protect persons with disabilities from discrimination, including denial of reasonable accommodation, in the labour sector.

66. The Committee urges the State party to encourage the adoption of legislation to prohibit and effectively penalize all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities in the labour sector, and to establish mechanisms for redress where their labour rights are violated.

Argentina (2012)

43. The Committee takes note of the labour law that establishes a minimum quota of 4 per cent for the employment of persons with disabilities in the public sector (Act No. 25.689) and of the various employment programmes for persons with disabilities that have been developed within the public sector. However, the Committee notes with concern that there is a lack of the disaggregated data (by, inter alia, sex, age, type of disability and geographic location) needed to assess compliance with this quota at the national and provincial levels. The Committee is also concerned about the cultural barriers and prejudices that hinder persons with disabilities from entering the labour market, particularly in the private sector, despite the existence of tax incentives for employers. It is also disturbed about discrimination against women with disabilities in the realm of employment.

44. The Committee urges the State party to develop a public policy to promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the labour market through, for example, the launch of awareness-raising campaigns targeting the private sector and the public at large which are designed to break down cultural barriers and prejudices against persons with disabilities, the implementation of reasonable adjustments in order to ensure that persons with disabilities in need of such adjustments can participate in the labour market, and the development of training and self-employment programmes. The Committee recommends that the State party reinforce its measures for monitoring and certifying compliance with the employment quota for persons with disabilities in the public sector. It also recommends that the State party undertake the systematic collection of disaggregated data as a basis for a proper assessment of compliance with the employment quota at the national and provincial levels.

China (2012)

41. While observing the existence of a quota system, the Committee worries that this system does not effectively address the chronic problem of unemployment among persons with disabilities or the deep-rooted causes of discrimination in employment. Specifically, the Committee is concerned that often the employment offered is only of symbolic value or that companies and government bodies frequently opt to pay the employment levy rather than employing persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about the practice of reserved employment (such as the field of “blind massage”), which discriminates persons with disabilities in their vocational and career choices.

42. The Committee recommends that the state party undertake all necessary measures to ensure the persons with disabilities freedom of choice to pursue vocations according to their preferences. It suggests that the state party create more working opportunities and enact legislature, so that companies and state organs will employ more persons with disabilities.

Hong-Kong

77. The Committee is concerned about the high unemployment rate of persons with disabilities in Hong Kong, China, and that their average salary ranks well below that of persons without disabilities. The Committee is also troubled by the low number of civil servants with disabilities.

78. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong, China, introduce affirmative actions to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, inter alia prioritize the employment of persons with disabilities as civil servants.

Macao

96. The Committee is concerned that employees with disabilities only account for 0.3 % of the total employed population.

97. The Committee recommends Macao, China, to introduce more affirmative action to enable persons with disabilities to find employment.

Hungary (2012)

43. The Committee notes with appreciation that the State party has undertaken a number of steps to promote the right to work of persons with disabilities, including through the inclusion of a provision of reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities in the 2012 Labour Code (Law 1/2012). The Committee regrets, however, that the overall employment rate of persons with disabilities remains lower than for other population groups despite such efforts.

44. The Committee recommends the State party to effectively implement the disability-specific provisions of the Labour Code and develop programs to increase employment opportunities for women and men with disabilities in the public and private sectors, as recommended by the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in 2008 (E/C.12/HUN/CO/3), through fulfilling the requirements of article 27 of the Convention, with a special view to further intensifying its efforts to include men and women with disabilities in the open labour market.

Peru (2012)

40. While taking note with appreciation of the State party's efforts to increase the level of employment of persons with disabilities, in particular the Supreme Decree No. 027-2007-PCM which requires institutions within the public sector to have at least 3 per cent of the total workforce composed of workers with disabilities, the Committee remains concerned at the high rate of unemployment and underemployment of persons with disabilities that, according to the State party's response to the list of issues, go up to nearly 60 per cent and 35.3 per cent respectively.

41. The Committee urges the State party to develop new policies that promote the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the labour market which could include tax incentives for companies and persons who employ persons with disabilities, the recruitment of persons with disabilities in public administration and the development of self-employment programmes. The Committee further recommends that the State party adopt educational programmes to capacitate persons with disabilities in order to include them in the labour market.

42. The Committee appreciates the State party's concern with the widespread poverty of persons with disabilities.

43. The Committee urges the State party to address the negative impact of poverty by mainstreaming disability inclusive socio-economic development.

Spain (2011)

45. Despite a number of enabling provisions to keep persons with disabilities in employment, the Committee is concerned with the overall low rate of employment of persons with disabilities.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party develop open and advanced programmes to increase employment opportunities for women and men with disabilities.

Tunisia (2010)

33. The Committee takes note of the State party's efforts to support the employment of persons with disabilities in public services. However, it remains concerned at the low level of inclusion of persons with disabilities in the private sector.

34. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the implementation of measures of affirmative action provided for in the law for the employment of women and men with disabilities;

- (b) Increase the diversity of employment and vocational training opportunities for persons with disabilities; and
- (c) Ensure the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations within the Labour Inspection Office and the Conciliation Committees.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

Article 28 CRPD

(Adequate standard of living and social protection)

September 2025

Article 28 - Adequate standard of living and social protection

1. States Parties recognize the right of persons with disabilities to an adequate standard of living for themselves and their families, including adequate food, clothing and housing, and to the continuous improvement of living conditions, and shall take appropriate steps to safeguard and promote the realization of this right without discrimination on the basis of disability.

2. States Parties recognize the right of persons with disabilities to social protection and to the enjoyment of that right without discrimination on the basis of disability, and shall take appropriate steps to safeguard and promote the realization of this right, including measures:

- a) To ensure equal access by persons with disabilities to clean water services, and to ensure access to appropriate and affordable services, devices and other assistance for disability-related needs;
- b) To ensure access by persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities and older persons with disabilities, to social protection programmes and poverty reduction programmes;
- c) To ensure access by persons with disabilities and their families living in situations of poverty to assistance from the State with disability-related expenses, including adequate training, counselling, financial assistance and respite care;
- d) To ensure access by persons with disabilities to public housing programmes;
- e) To ensure equal access by persons with disabilities to retirement benefits and programmes.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)

Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)

Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)

Please note there are no recommendations in the Concluding Observations on art. 28 on China, Malta, Mauritius, Qatar, Cook Islands, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Azerbaijan, Australia, Austria, Hungary, Peru, Spain, Tunisia and China.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

54. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) According to credible information, large segments of the population, including persons with disabilities, are affected by food insecurity, malnutrition and a lack of access to basic services;
- (b) According to credible reports, entitlements such as rations, assistive devices, housing support, and social protection benefits prioritise “honorary soldiers” with disabilities acquired through military service, while excluding other persons with disabilities;
- (c) There is a significant gap in the living standards between persons with disabilities living in urban environments and those in rural and remote areas.

55. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Assess the number of persons with disabilities affected by food insecurity, malnutrition, and lack of access to basic services, and adopt a strategy to reallocate resources to meet basic needs;
- (b) Ensure equal access for all persons with disabilities, regardless of cause or category of impairment, to all social protection entitlements, and remove discriminatory eligibility criteria;
- (c) Take measures to ensure an adequate standard of living for all persons with disabilities in the State Party, including in rural and remote areas.

Finland (2025)

54. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Recent and ongoing reforms, including budget cuts and downsizing of the social security system, have disproportionately affected persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial disabilities, with lower incomes and with higher support requirements, and that such reforms have lacked comprehensive disability impact assessments;
- (b) The limited funding of the Social Welfare Counties leads to restrictive practices in access to disability entitlements, endangering the rights under the Convention;
- (c) The lack of measures to ensure access to social benefits for persons with disabilities relocated to Sweden.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct a comprehensive impact assessment of recent reforms, including budget cuts and cost saving measures, and ensure they do not have an adverse impact on the standard of living of persons with disabilities, and provide information on disability benefits in accessible formats;
- (b) Ensure that the Social Welfare Counties receive a budget that allows for the provision of disability entitlements in accordance with the Convention;
- (c) Take urgent measures to guarantee the access to social benefits for persons with disabilities relocated to Sweden.

Kiribati (2025)

53. The Committee recognises the disproportionate impact of poverty, geographic isolation, and climate change on the standard of living of persons with disabilities, particularly those living on outer islands and notes with concern:

- (a) That eligibility assessments are based primarily on medical criteria, without the involvement of multidisciplinary teams, and that different levels of allowance are granted depending on the perceived type of disability;
- (b) The insufficient social protection scheme, including the Disability Support Allowance, to ensure access for persons with disabilities and their families to an adequate standard of living;

(c) The absence of accessible housing, and limited access to water and sanitation measures, particularly on outer islands.

54. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review and reform the mechanisms for assessing eligibility for social welfare schemes by moving away from a medical model, involving multidisciplinary teams such as social workers and occupational therapists, and ensuring that assessments do not discriminate between types of disabilities;

(b) Strengthen the social protection system to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and to cover additional disability-related expenses, including by increasing the adequacy and coverage of the Disability Support Allowance including for persons with disabilities living on outer islands;

(c) Develop and refurbish accessible housing for persons with disabilities and ensure access to water and sanitation to persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, with particular attention to the needs of persons with disabilities on outer islands.

Maldives (2025)

55. The Committee is concerned:

(a) About the disproportionately high risk of poverty among persons with disabilities and the insufficient support for disability-related expenses to ensure an adequate standard of living;

(b) About the lack of accessibility on the online platform of the National Disability Registry, which prevent persons with disabilities living outside of Malé to register independently.

56. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and targets 1.3 and 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Increase the budget allocated to social programmes and the amounts provided in order to achieve reduction in poverty among persons with disabilities, in particular in outer islands and amend the relevant national legislation to ensure the compatibility of the disability financial benefits with the employment;

(b) Guarantee the accessibility of the National Disability Registry portal, including compatibility with screen readers, multilingual options, and provide offline application methods, and conduct a national awareness campaign to inform persons with disabilities and their families about the National Disability Registry, the application procedures, eligibility criteria, and associated rights.

Canada (2025)

55. The Committee notes positively the issuance of the Canada Disability Benefit Act, the Poverty Reduction Act, the Poverty Reduction Strategy, and the National Housing Strategy. However, it remains concerned that:

(a) Persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, are more likely to experience homelessness and face inadequate living conditions or high housing costs and being disproportionately affected by the housing crisis in the State Party;

(b) The laws and policies on social entitlements, tax exemptions, housing and poverty strategies across jurisdictions are not disability inclusive;

(c) The disability benefit for Canadians with disabilities is woefully inadequate to address the living expenses of persons with disabilities, and the procedures to access social entitlements related to disability benefits and tax benefits are bureaucratic, complicated, and present disparities leading to unequal coverage;

(d) The current system of income-testing requirements for disability allowances in British Columbia, and similar practices in Alberta and Ontario, which affect the autonomy, life choices and right to family of persons with disabilities, by reducing the amount received if they have a full-time job, live with a partner or spouse, join a rehabilitation facility for treatment, or travel outside of the province.

56. Recalling links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that the issues and concerns of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities are included in the National Housing Strategy;
- (b) Ensure that all laws and policies on social entitlements, tax exemptions, housing and poverty strategies across jurisdictions are disability inclusive;
- (c) Exercise federal leadership to ensure that all disability entitlements, including those stemming from the Canada Disability Benefit Act support an adequate standard of living and alleviate poverty for persons with disabilities, as well as streamline procedures for accessing entitlements and tax benefits across jurisdictions;
- (d) Review the income-testing requirements for disability allowances in British Columbia, Alberta, and Ontario to ensure that they do not discriminate against persons with disabilities and allow them to exercise their autonomy, life choices and right to family on an equal basis with others.

Dominican Republic (2025)

51. The Committee is concerned about the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing access to an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including sufficient resources to cover disability-related expenses. It is also concerned about:

- (a) The Fund for Persons with Disabilities, established by Articles 136 and 137 of Law 5-13, not being yet operational;
- (b) The low number of persons with disabilities accessing the solidarity pension;
- (c) The low extent of social protection services available to Haitians with disabilities living in the State party and to women heads of household.

52. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which are aimed at empowering and promoting the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability, the Committee recommends that the State party adopt a universal social protection scheme, including sufficient subsidies or allowances to cover disability-related costs, to ensure an adequate standard of living for all persons with disabilities who do not have other sources of income. The Committee also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promptly activate the Fund for Persons with Disabilities established in Law 5-13;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities are informed of the different benefits they qualify for, including the solidarity pension;
- (c) Continue efforts to ensure that Haitians with disabilities living in the State Party and women heads of household have access to social protection services.

European Union (2025)

66. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The high levels of poverty and social exclusion of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, autistic persons and persons with disabilities with intensive support needs;
- (b) Higher levels of housing expenses for persons with disabilities compared to the overall population, and high costs for accessibility adaptations.

67. The Committee recommends that the European Union, in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Earmark allocations in the EU Social Fund to increase funding for social inclusion and combating poverty of persons with disabilities, and ensure that investments of the Social Fund address structural inequalities and intersectional discrimination of women and girls with disabilities, autistic persons and persons with intensive support needs;
- (b) In the second term of the Disability Rights Strategy, provide guidance to Member States on concrete actions to improve their legislative and policy frameworks on social protection, including coverage of disability-related expenses of persons with disabilities, and ensuring that social protection and social inclusion systems are rights-based and gender responsive;
- (c) Prioritize funding for accessible and affordable housing for persons with disabilities by the EU Regional Development Fund in the process of revising EU funding regulations for the 2028-2034 period, and adopt concrete actions to enhance availability of affordable and accessible housing for persons with disabilities in the European Affordable Housing Plan.

Palau (2025)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The insufficient social protection scheme, including the provisions to cover disability-related expenses, to ensure access for persons with disabilities and their families to an adequate standard of living;
- (b) That disability pensions are significantly lower than the average income of citizens;
- (c) The limited progress as regards the accessibility standards applied to private and public housing.

54. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the social protection system to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and to cover additional disability-related expenses, particularly for those who require more intensive support;
- (b) Review the provisions concerning the level of disability pensions, and take measures to increase the amount.

Tuvalu (2025)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That according to the Support Scheme for the Most Vulnerable Persons, persons with disabilities who reach the age of 70 will lose their disability benefit and will only be left with the benefit granted to older adults;
- (b) The situations of poverty faced by persons with disabilities, particularly persons requiring higher levels of support.

52. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) In close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, review the national social protection programme with the aim of ensuring equal access to support for persons with disabilities regardless of their age and the amount of annual income, and ensure that persons who reach the age of 70 continue to receive the disability benefit regardless of whether they receive other types of allowance;
- (b) Streamline social security support systems to ensure that they are accessible to all persons with disabilities, as a measure to tackle poverty.

Viet Nam (2025)

55. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Persons with disabilities are not benefiting from or having progress reported under the National Programme for Sustainable Poverty Reduction and the National Plan for New Rural Development based on the specific indicators developed;
- (b) There is a lack of dissemination regarding how many persons with disabilities have received information and benefits under the legislation regulating the exemption or reduction of the rental or purchase price of public housing, and how many have taken advantage of social housing policies;
- (c) Persons with disabilities continue to be classified under the pre-Convention welfare model, resulting in only a portion of them benefiting from monthly social benefits and free health insurance cards;
- (d) Persons with disabilities are not included in the Five-Year Plan for Economic and Social Development and the Work and Society Plan 2021-2025.

56. Recalling links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that persons with disabilities are covered by the National Programme for Sustainable Poverty Reduction and the National Plan for New Rural Development, using the indicators developed for this purpose, and that such disaggregated data are disseminated to decision-makers, the general population and organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities receive accurate information, in accessible ways and means, about the possibility of exemption or reduction of the rental or purchase price of public housing and social housing policies, and collect disaggregated data on how many persons with disabilities have benefited from these programmes;
- (c) Considering the paradigm shift of the Convention towards a human rights approach, implement programmes so that all persons with disabilities, regardless of the need for support they require, can benefit from monthly social benefits and free health insurance cards;
- (d) Ensure that persons with disabilities are included in the Five-Year Plan for Economic and Social Development and the Work and Society Plan 2021-2025.

Belarus (2024)

55. The Committee is concerned about the information indicating the significant tendency within the State party, to reduce the number of officially registered persons with disabilities and that considerable number of persons with disabilities do not receive their benefits.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party defines legally and at the policy level, an accessible, transparent and human rights model based system, in which all persons who declare their disabilities are included in the stipulated definition on the basis of credible and holistic standards, and as such, become eligible to receive the available benefits.

Belgium (2024)

58. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) About the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and without a regular source of income, with 13% of persons with disabilities living in households with incomes below the at-risk-of-poverty threshold;
- (b) That the upcoming federal anti-poverty plan does not sufficiently mainstream disability, and that there seem to be no regional action plans to combat poverty of persons with disabilities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State Party, with the active involvement of and in close consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure that the income of persons with disabilities is sufficient to lead a dignified life, including by maintaining the full allowance covering disability-related costs upon entering employment;

(b) Mainstream disability into poverty and homelessness reduction strategies in the upcoming federal anti-poverty plan, and adopt regional action plans to combat poverty that address particularly the situation of women and children with disabilities and older persons with disabilities, and install monitoring mechanisms to ensure effective implementation of these actions plans.

Benin (2024)

55. The Committee notes with concern the lack of information and statistical data on persons with disabilities who benefit from national programs for improving standard of living and social protection. It is also concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities in the implementation of poverty reduction social programmes.

56. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a universal social protection scheme to ensure that all persons with disabilities, regardless of impairment type, have an adequate standard of living, including programmes and initiatives to increase access to housing, safe and affordable drinking water and sanitation, including in rural areas;

(b) Improve the inclusion of persons with disabilities and their organizations in design and implementation and monitoring of national programs and policies aiming at enhancing living standards.

Burkina Faso (2024)

52. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Only a limited number of persons with disabilities hold the disability card which, according to article 4 of Act No. 012-2010/AN of 1 April 2010, conditions access to social services from the Government including support in the areas of health, education, vocational training, employment, communication, social integration, transport, housing and the living environment, sport and leisure, culture and the arts, as well as the promotion and protection of social action;

(b) The National Social Protection programme does not consider disability-related expenses.

53. Recalling links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Make the process of the issuance of the disability card easy and accessible to all persons with disabilities to enable them to receive services as provided in articles 4 and 44 of the Act No. 012-2010/AN of 1 April 2010, including by ensuring that disability assessments for recognizing the disability card address barriers faced by persons with disabilities and ease the burden of proof for a greater number of persons with disabilities to obtain it;

(b) Take the necessary measures to ensure the effective provision of basic social services to persons with disabilities through the national social protection programmes, including access to drinking water and housing, poverty reduction programmes and, in particular, to take account of the specific requirements and the recognition of disability-related expenses.

Denmark (2024)

73. The Committee is concerned about the decreasing number of persons with disabilities receiving financial benefits covering additional disability-related expenses under Section 100 of the Social Services Act, and the termination of such benefits when reaching retirement age. It is also concerned that the Social Services Act does not allow for the grant of 15 hours of accompaniment per month for activities outside the home to persons with disabilities older than 67, even though it may be kept if it was granted before reaching the age of 67.

74. The Committee recommends that, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Denmark revise the Social Services Act to ensure that persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities who have reached retirement age, keep their benefits for disability-related expenses and the provision of accompaniment;
- (b) The Faroe Islands and Greenland enact analogous legislation to the same end.

Ghana (2024)

54. The Committee notes with concern the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing access to adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including resources to cover disability related expenses.

55. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and with the active involvement:

- (a) Develop social protection and poverty reduction legislation, policies and strategies targeting persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt a universal social protection scheme to ensure an adequate standard of living for all persons with disabilities who do not have other sources of income, including those with intellectual and or psychosocial disabilities, address stigma and enhance understanding of their unique needs including subsidies or allowances to cover disability related costs;
- (c) Include persons with disabilities in programmes designed to promote an adequate standard of living, including programmes and initiatives to increase access to safe and affordable drinking water and sanitation, including in rural and remote areas;
- (d) Simplify application processes, enhance outreach efforts, and provide comprehensive guidance to increase awareness and access to the 3% allocation from the District Assembly Common Fund (DACF) for persons with disabilities.

Mauritius (2024)

49. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The term Basic "Invalidity" Pension is derogatory, and that this pension is not provided to individuals who reach the age of 60 years, as it is replaced by the Basic Retirement Pension, which fails to take into account the increased costs associated with an older age;
- (b) The eligibility requirements for social protection entitlements remain linked to disability assessment criteria based on a medical model of disability;

(c) Persons with disabilities are required to appear periodically before the relevant authorities, including the Medical Board and National Pensions Officer, to be re-assessed for eligibility of social protection, which may cause undue burden.

50. Recalling links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Rename the Basic Invalidity Pension, and consider removing the age ceiling of 60 years to continue providing this pension in addition to the Basic Retirement Pension, in order to ensure that the social protection system supports persons with disabilities, including at an older age, to have an adequate standard of living that can cover minimum disability-related costs;

(b) Adopt the human rights model for disability assessments to foster fairness in social protection, and avoid the approach of solely considering medical reports when assessing persons with disabilities for social protection;

(c) Reduce the re-assessment burdens for persons with disabilities who have already been determined to be eligible for social protection entitlements.

Netherlands (2024)

61. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The disproportionately high risk of poverty among persons with disabilities, the lack of measures to address poverty among persons with disabilities and the lack of regular studies examining the systemic causes of the intersection of poverty and disability to adequately inform governmental policies and plans, using the human rights model to disability; and the lack of data collection about poverty, income-inequality and homelessness;

(b) The lack of information on the number of persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial disabilities and/or intellectual disabilities, who have benefited from the homelessness programme;

(c) Information indicating that the combined income of the household determines the level of social benefits received by persons with disabilities and the amount of their personal contributions for long-term social allowances, limiting access to social benefits by persons with disabilities, in particular young persons with disabilities.

62. Recalling links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Address the increased risk of poverty among persons with disabilities and mainstream disability into all studies, research, policies and plans related to poverty reduction, using the human rights model of disability;

(b) Ensure equal access to persons with disabilities to homes for homeless persons, especially to persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and develop comprehensive, multi-disciplinary programs for homeless individuals tailored to persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

(c) Ensure that disability is the main factor in the recognition and calculation of assistance for disability-related expenses, social allowances for and personal contributions required from persons with disabilities, avoiding means- tested household benefits.

Ukraine (2024)

56. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That most of persons with disabilities live below the poverty line;

(b) The difficulties that persons with disabilities face to access their social entitlements including the fact that they are required to travel across the contact line or register as displaced persons to access their pensions, that the State party does not allow pensioners to appoint representatives to collect their pensions, as other citizens are entitled to do, and that the Ukrainian Pension Fund and social protection agencies do not operate in occupied territories;

(c) The deprivation of essential needs and food insecurity for persons with disabilities including older, women and children with disabilities living in conflict-affected territories;

(d) Failure to guarantee full access of persons with disabilities to the social benefits top-up cash assistance program for persons living in conflict-affected territories, in particular older persons, women and children with disabilities as well as persons with disabilities subject to multiple and/or intersecting discrimination.

57. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, as well as the Guiding Principles on extreme poverty and human rights (A/RES/67/164) according to which States must ensure that their population, especially vulnerable groups, are not in a situation of poverty and have the necessary resources to enjoy their rights, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a strategy to counter and prevent the situation of poverty and extreme poverty of persons with disabilities, and ensure the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of policies and programmes geared towards alleviating extreme poverty and deprivation among persons with disabilities;

(b) Establish mechanisms, including accessible transportation, personal assistants and representatives to ensure that persons with disabilities can access their pensions, including those in occupied territories;

(c) Ensure access to an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families, including adequate food, clothing and housing, and to the continuous improvement of living conditions, as well as take steps to safeguard and promote the realization of this right without discrimination on the basis of disability;

(d) Adopt specific measures to ensure access to the social benefits top-up cash assistance program for persons living in conflict-affected territories, in particular, older persons and women and children with disabilities as well as persons with disabilities subject to multiple and/or intersecting discrimination;

(e) Develop effective procedures to ensure that the payment of pensions to persons with disabilities turns agile, fast, efficient, and accessible.

Azerbaijan (2024)

61. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The absence of disaggregated information concerning the coverage of social protection allowances;

(b) The fact that financial assistance for persons with disabilities does not cover all persons with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Collect disaggregated information about living conditions and access to social protection by persons with disabilities, including by sex, age, gender, ethnicity, place of residence, urban and rural areas, migrant, refugee and asylum-seeking status;

(b) Ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to financial assistance for the coverage of disability-related expenses and disseminate information in accessible formats among persons with disabilities, notably on entitlements and benefits, and about eligibility criteria.

Bahrain (2024)¹

56. The Committee is concerned about the absence of:

(a) Social protection programs and services that take into account the individual and living requirements of persons with disabilities and the additional expenses they incur to carry out their daily life activities.

(b) Not including all types of disabilities in the disability allowance provided by the Ministry of Social Development, which is inadequate and determined according to medical criteria that do not take into account the diversity of individual requirements and the surrounding environmental conditions.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party

(a) Develop a comprehensive and inclusive social protection system that guarantees persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, an adequate standard of living.

(b) Revise the criteria for granting the disability allowance to include all types of disabilities and take into account the diversity and differences in their individual and livelihood requirements.

Costa Rica (2024)

47. Al Comité le preocupa el alto nivel de pobreza de las personas con discapacidad y la falta de información sobre las medidas de seguridad social específicamente diseñadas para este colectivo, en particular las mujeres y niños, las personas indígenas y afrodescendientes y la personas que viven en zonas rurales o remotas.

48. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 28 de la Convención y la meta 1.3 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que se dote de un plan nacional que aborde específicamente el elevado nivel de pobreza de las personas con discapacidad, con particular enfoque hacia a las mujeres y niños, las personas indígenas y afrodescendientes y la personas que viven en zonas rurales o remotas, y prevea las modalidades de su financiación y un calendario para su ejecución; que lo ponga en práctica y que supervise su aplicación. Recomienda también que aporte en el próximo informe periódico información sobre las Pensiones del Régimen no Contributivo a que pueden acceder las personas con discapacidad mayores de 65 años, o menores de 65 que no puedan trabajar, incluido el monto pagado a cada beneficiario y el número de personas con discapacidad que actualmente se benefician, desglosado por género.

Kazakhstan (2024)

59. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) Information about the depreciation of the real value of the State social disability benefits;

(b) Scarce information about access of women, young and older persons with disabilities to social protection, including pensions;

(c) Insufficient availability of personal assistants, low quality services and insufficient in-home support due to tight restrictions of the hours of support available, and the denial of personal assistance for single persons with disabilities who have relatives;

(d) The exclusion of persons with disabilities and parents of children with disabilities from the regular pension system and the saving-pension scheme.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adapt the State social disability benefits to the inflation rate of consumer prices, including disability-specific expenditures, and prevent persons with disabilities to fall into poverty;

(b) Ensure that women, young and older persons with disabilities have access to social protection, including pensions, on an equal basis with others;

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

- (c) Guarantee the availability of in-home support for persons with disabilities, including for persons with high support needs, ensure its quality through the improvement of human, technical and financial resources, and recognize the right of single persons with disabilities who have relatives access to personal assistance;
- (d) Recognize the right of persons with disabilities and of parents of children with disabilities to have access to the regular pension system and the saving-pension scheme.

Nicaragua (2024)

58. Al Comité le preocupa que:

- a) Las personas con discapacidad en edad laboral en su inmensa mayoría, no acceden a la seguridad social porque no han contado con un empleo formal que les permita cotizar y jubilarse con una pensión acorde a su salario. Tampoco cuentan con un ingreso económico fijo que les permita acceder por su cuenta al seguro facultativo;
- b) Únicamente el 10% de personas con discapacidad, aquellas catalogadas como “severas” por el Estado parte, reciban atención regular en cuanto a salud, mejoramientos de viviendas, alimentos y obras de accesibilidad en su entorno inmediato;
- c) La propuesta de ley para fijar un apoyo económico mensual a las personas con discapacidad, impulsada por la sociedad civil, que llegó al Parlamento en 2010 no haya sido considerada;
- d) Se desconoce el número de personas con discapacidad que se encuentra en pobreza extrema, en especial en las zonas rurales y remotas;
- e) Se desconoce el número de viviendas accesibles que el Estado parte ha otorgado mediante créditos asequibles para personas con discapacidad.

59. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 28 de la Convención y la meta 1.3 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Establecer mecanismos para que las personas con discapacidad accedan a la seguridad social a través de empleos dignos;
- b) Establecer un esquema y un presupuesto para la asignación de apoyo para todas las personas con discapacidad, independientemente de sus requerimientos específicos;
- c) Retomar y considerar la propuesta de ley para fijar un apoyo económico mensual a todas las personas con discapacidad;
- d) Investigue y determine cuantas personas con discapacidad se encuentran en situación de pobreza extrema, especialmente en zonas rurales y remotas y tome medidas necesarias para resolver esta situación;
- e) Otorgue el 5% de viviendas de interés social a las personas con discapacidad, haciéndolas accesibles a las necesidades de quien las recibe;

Sweden (2024)

61. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The higher risk of poverty among persons with disabilities, the insufficient measures to address poverty among persons with disabilities and the lack of regular studies examining the systemic causes of the intersection of poverty and disability to adequately inform governmental policies and plans;
- (b) The disparities of support measures for persons with disabilities in different regions and municipalities and the bureaucratic procedure for submitting an application for support;
- (c) The lack of access to disability support schemes for asylum-seekers, refugees and migrants with disabilities, including persons with disabilities under temporary protection.

62. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take all necessary measures to address the increased risk of poverty among persons with disabilities and mainstream disability into all studies, research, policies and plans related to poverty reduction;
- (b) Ensure equal access to support by persons with disabilities to across all regions and municipalities, and simplify procedures for the submission of applications for support;
- (c) Provide access to disability support schemes for asylum-seekers, refugees and migrants with disabilities, including persons with disabilities under temporary protection in order to prevent them from falling into poverty.

Zambia (2024)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low number of persons with disabilities covered by the cash transfer programme and the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing them and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including the resources to cover the expenses related to disability;
- (b) The National Trust Fund for Persons with Disabilities which provides loans to persons with disabilities and the Zambia Agency for Persons with Disabilities charged with empowering individuals and groups of persons with disabilities lack funding and capacity to sustainably provide support to persons with disabilities.

56. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a regulated mechanism for social protection based on the human rights model for all types of disabilities and in accordance with their various requirements in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) Develop a universal social protection scheme to ensure an adequate standard of living, including programmes and initiatives to increase access to safe and affordable drinking water and sanitation, including in rural and remote areas;
- (c) Allocate adequate financial, human and technical resources to the National Trust Fund for Persons with Disabilities and the Zambia Agency for Persons with Disabilities to enable them effectively execute their mandate;
- (d) Extend the cash transfer programme to all persons with disabilities who do not have any other income and empower persons with disabilities to sustainably live independently.

Andorra (2023)

57. The Committee notes the Act No. 6/2014 on Social and Socio-Health Services (2014) and is concerned about the following:

- (a) The insufficient social protection scheme to secure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families and cover disability-related expenses;
- (b) The requirements to access solidarity pensions for persons with disabilities and that an additional 20% of the threshold is taken into account without the consideration of the specific disability cost when the applicant for financial aid or a member of the family nucleus is a person with disabilities;
- (c) The limited availability of accessible and affordable housing for persons with disabilities, in particular, those with low or no income.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the social protection system, including the revision of Act No. 6/2014, to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and to cover disability-related expenses, particularly for those who require more intensive support;
- (b) Review the provisions concerning the solidarity pensions and financial aid for persons with disabilities, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and ensure that the specific situation of each person with disabilities is duly considered in the assessment of pensions and financial aids;
- (c) Improve the living conditions of persons with disabilities and realize their right to access housing that is affordable and located in the community.

Austria (2023)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The disproportionately high incidence of poverty among persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of access to disability support schemes for refugees with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, including persons with disabilities under temporary protection.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take effective measures, including full coverage by the social security scheme, to eradicate poverty among persons with disabilities;
- (b) Provide access to disability support schemes for refugees with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, including persons with disabilities under temporary protection, preventing them to fall into poverty.

Germany (2023)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The higher risk of poverty among persons with disability, the lack of measures to address poverty among persons with disabilities and the absence of regular research reports examining the systemic causes of the intersection of poverty and disability that are able to inform governmental policies and plans adequately;
- (b) Insufficiently individualized support, including financial support, to persons with disabilities over 25 years of age and living with their parents;
- (c) That, by taking into account the assets and income of persons with disabilities and other members of the household, the integration assistance benefit system hinders savings on an equal basis with others and jeopardizes financial security for senior citizens.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take all necessary measures to address the increased risk of poverty among persons with disabilities and mainstream disability in all studies, research, policies and plans related to poverty reduction;
- (b) Revise benefit assessment rules for persons with disabilities, in order to meet the individual support requirements of persons with disabilities;

(c) Revise the integration assistance benefits of persons with disabilities to allow for savings on an equal basis with others and guarantee their financial security at old age.

Israel (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned about disability benefits being lower than the minimum wage and the unequal access to disability allowances for persons with disabilities in residential facilities who receive only 20 percent of the total amount provided to persons with disabilities living in the community.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that persons with disabilities have access to disability-specific social protection allowances that are above the poverty line and that persons with disabilities in institutions receive disability allowances on an equal basis with other persons with disabilities.

Malawi (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Information indicating that available social protection cash transfer targets poor households and not specific persons with disabilities and therefore ends up being administered by the registered head of the household often without any consultation, participation or consideration of the individual with a disability;

(b) The cash transfer allocation does not consider disability related cost as it is uniform for all recipients irrespective of extra disability costs;;

(c) Information indicating that almost three quarters of persons with disabilities have no access to affordable and accessible housing and that social protection does not include any support to access housing.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a specific social protection scheme with adequate financing to cover and directly remit to all individuals with disabilities who do not have any other form of income and ensure that such protection scheme include consideration of individual's disability cost as well as housing.

Mauritania (2023)

47. The Committee is concerned that, despite some measures related to social protection, such as cash transfers and distribution of food packages, have not been effective enough in reducing social inequalities, given the barriers to employment the increased costs often linked to disabilities. It is also concerned that persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities living in rural areas, face economic insecurity.

48. The Committee recalls the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals – both of which seek to promote and guarantee the economic inclusion of all persons with disabilities and recommend that the State party:

(a) Strengthen its social protection system, to ensure minimum levels of economic security and access to basic support services, including disability-related costs;

(b) Put in place practical measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular women and children with disabilities, including those living in rural areas, have access to appropriate, accessible and affordable mainstream social programmes and services, including adequate food, clothing and housing;

(c) Mainstream disability into poverty reduction strategies that also include specific measures for persons with disabilities, in particular for women, girls and older persons with disabilities.

Mongolia (2023)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The inadequacy of the amount provided as disability allowance and disability pension to cover the high cost of living in the State party under the disability income and social security policy, as it does not take into account the inflation rates and the minimum standards of living;

(b) At the lack of housing programmes with allocated budget for persons with disabilities.

56. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all, irrespective of age, sex, disability, race, ethnicity, origin, religion or economic or other status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the social protection and poverty reduction schemes for persons with disabilities and review the amount of disability allowance in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, taking into account the inflation rates and the minimum standards of living;

(b) Establish accessible and affordable housing programmes for persons with disabilities, and provide sufficient budget allocations for these programmes.

Paraguay (2023)

49. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) Que a pesar de la inclusión de las personas con discapacidad al Módulo de Inclusión de Familias Indígenas al Programa Tepokora, el nivel de pobreza de este grupo no ha disminuido, ya que los montos otorgados y el presupuesto asignado a los programas sociales es insuficiente;

b) La falta de información sobre el número de viviendas accesibles que el Estado haya otorgado mediante créditos asequibles para personas con discapacidad;

c) La falta de presupuesto para la asignación de asistentes personales a las personas que los requieran.

50. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 28 de la Convención y la meta 1.3 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Incrementar el presupuesto asignado a los programas sociales y los montos otorgados, para lograr la real disminución de la pobreza entre las personas con discapacidad, especialmente las personas indígenas y las que habitan en zonas rurales y remotas;

b) Designar recursos para que las personas con discapacidad puedan acceder a créditos asequibles para la obtención de viviendas accesibles y llevar una estadística de aquellas beneficiadas;

c) Establecer un esquema y un presupuesto para la asignación de asistentes personales a personas con discapacidad.

Angola (2023)

47. The Committee notes with concern the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing them and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including resources to cover expenses related to disability.

48. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop social protection and poverty reduction strategies targeting persons with disabilities;

(b) Consider the adoption of a universal social protection scheme to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, such as through systems of subsidies or allowances permitting them to cover disability related costs;

(c) Include disability perspectives in programmes designed to promote an adequate standard of living, including programmes and initiatives to increase access to safe and affordable drinking water and sanitation, including in rural and remote areas.

Argentina (2023)

353. Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

- a) El poco acceso de las personas con discapacidad a la pensión no contributiva por “invalidéz”, y las demoras en su tramitación;
- b) La pensión no contributiva por “invalidéz” se basa en la imposibilidad para trabajar según la Ley 13.478 (1948), su monto es insuficiente y es incompatible con otro tipo de ingreso remunerado;
- c) La insuficiencia del sistema de protección social para cubrir los costos adicionales de vivir con una discapacidad;
- d) La restricción del acceso de las personas con discapacidad a las prestaciones sociales debido a las medidas adoptadas por el Estado parte para reducir el déficit del presupuesto y consolidar la deuda pública, en el marco del acuerdo con el Fondo Monetario Internacional.

54. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 28 de la Convención y la meta 1.3 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Incrementar sus acciones para eliminar las barreras que dificultan el acceso de las personas con discapacidad a la pensión no contributiva por “invalidéz”, incluyendo continuar flexibilizando los criterios para su otorgamiento, simplificando el trámite y asignando mayor presupuesto;
- b) Reformar la legislación en materia de pensión no contributiva por “invalidéz” para reemplazar el modelo médico por el de derechos humanos, cambiar su nombre, aumentar el monto a al menos el salario mínimo vital y móvil, y permitir la percepción de otros ingresos.
- c) Reforzar el sistema de protección social basado en la Convención para garantizar un nivel de vida adecuado a las personas con discapacidad en todo el país, y cubrir los costos adicionales relacionados con la discapacidad;
- d) Asegurar que las políticas de reforma económica y los acuerdos de préstamo relacionados no impacten negativamente sobre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y su acceso a los servicios sociales.

Georgia (2023)

55. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Legislation that excludes persons with disabilities receiving retirement pensions from disability benefits;
- (b) Information that social benefits are insufficient to secure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities;
- (c) The limited availability of accessible housing for persons with disabilities.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Eliminate discrimination on the basis of disability and age and reform the social protection framework in order to ensure that disability-related expenses are available to all persons with disabilities, regardless of age or socio-economic status;
- (b) Assess whether the standard of living of persons with disabilities is adequate, and adjust social disability allowances accordingly;
- (c) Adopt mechanisms in accordance with the Convention and the Committee’s General comment No. 5 (2017) on living independently and being included in the community, to improve living conditions and the right of persons with disabilities to access housing that is affordable and located in the community.

Peru (2023)

56. Al Comité le preocupa:

- a) El alto nivel de pobreza de las personas con discapacidad y la falta de medidas específicas disponibles para apoyarlas y mejorar su situación económica;
- b) Que el Sistema de Focalización de Hogares (SISFOH), el cual evalúa la elegibilidad para los programas de protección social, no tiene en cuenta el coste adicional de vivir con una discapacidad o en una familia con un miembro con alguna discapacidad;
- c) Que el programa "Contigo", una pensión no contributiva, sólo está disponible para "personas con discapacidad severa en situación de pobreza o pobreza extrema", y que el Programa Nacional de Apoyo Directo a los más Pobres -"Juntos" no aborda adecuadamente las necesidades de las familias de niños y niñas con discapacidad "severa";
- d) Que las personas con discapacidad que son beneficiarios de los programas "Contigo" y la "pensión de orfandad", pierden los beneficios automáticamente si consiguen empleo o perciben cualquier otro ingreso, por pequeña que sea la cifra, lo que desincentiva fuertemente la búsqueda de empleo e ingresos adicionales;
- e) Las escasas opciones de vivienda disponibles para las personas con discapacidad que viven en la pobreza, y el limitado impacto de los programas existentes.

57. Teniendo en cuenta la relación existente entre el artículo 28 de la Convención y la meta 1.3 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que reforme los programas de protección social contributivos y no contributivos, incluyendo "Juntos", "Contigo", la "pensión de orfandad" y las "transferencias condicionadas" incorporando el enfoque de discapacidad, para asegurar que no reproduzcan desigualdades y que sus criterios de elegibilidad no impidan la incorporación de las personas con discapacidad al mercado laboral; además, que revise el Sistema de Focalización de Hogares (SISFOH) para tomar en cuenta el costo adicional de vivir con una discapacidad; y que, en consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, diseñe e implemente programas de vivienda para personas con discapacidad, incluyendo personas con discapacidad que viven en la pobreza.

Togo (2023)

53. The Committee notes with concern the lack of an effective social protection scheme, including provisions to cover disability-related expenses, to ensure access for persons with disabilities and their families to an adequate standard of living. It is particularly concerned at the lack of social protection measures, including support with disability related expenses, for persons with disabilities, who are not in any form of employment and have no income to pay for these services.

54. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt the revised law on the social protection of persons with disabilities and the programs which provides support in the form of food, non-food items, school supplies, contributions to medical expenses and other financial support been integrated into public policy, with targets, monitoring and resources;
- (b) Ensure access by persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities and older persons with disabilities, to social protection programmes and poverty reduction programmes;
- (c) Ensure access by persons with disabilities and their families living in situations of poverty to assistance from the State with disability-related expenses, including adequate training, counselling, financial assistance and respite care.

Tunisia (2023)

49. The Committee is concerned that despite the social protection legislative and policy measures which have included grants to set up small businesses for among other persons with disabilities, these policies have not been effective enough in reducing social inequalities given the difficulties of inclusion into the world of work and the increased costs often linked to disabilities. It is further concerned that persons with disabilities are characterised by economic insecurity and this vulnerability is even more evident for a large number of women and girls with disabilities who live in rural areas, where access to basic public services is even more difficult.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Set up an effective system of social protection, which ensures minimum levels of economic security and access to basic support services including disability related costs;
- (b) Put practical measures in place to ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly women and children with disabilities, including those living in rural areas, have access to appropriate accessible, and affordable mainstream social programmes and services, including adequate food, clothing and housing;
- (c) Mainstream disability in poverty reduction strategies that also include specific measures for persons with disabilities, particularly for women, girls, and elder persons with disabilities.

Bangladesh (2022)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The high number of persons with disabilities living in extreme poverty without a regular source of income and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing to persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including resources to cover expenses related to disability.
- (b) The lack of involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities in policies and programmes geared at alleviating extreme poverty and deprivation within the disability community.

54. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a national strategy for the alleviation of poverty among persons with disabilities through developing a robust social protection scheme that would create an adequate standard of living, including helping persons with disabilities meet their additional disability-related expenses;
- (b) Ensure the full and effective participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in the design of any social protection policies and programmes;

Indonesia (2022)

58. The Committee notes with concern the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and without a regular source of income, including indigenous people and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing to persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including resources to cover expenses related to disability.

59. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop social protection and poverty reduction strategies targeting persons with disabilities;
- (b) Set up a universal social protection scheme to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through systems of compensation in the form of allowances to cover disability related costs;

(c) Include a disability perspective in programmes to promote an adequate standard of living, in particular programmes to increase access to public housing for persons with disabilities, including for those who want to leave institutions.

Japan (2022)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Insufficient social protection scheme, including provisions to cover disability-related expenses, to ensure access for persons with disabilities and their families to an adequate standard of living;

(b) Disability pensions are significantly low compared to the average income of citizens;

(c) Limited progress related to accessibility standards applied to private and public housing.

60. Taking into account the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the social protection system to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and cover additional disability-related expenses, particularly for those who require more intensive support;

(b) Review the provisions concerning the amount of disability pensions in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;

(c) Establish legally binding accessibility standards that applied to private and public housing, and ensure its implementation.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

52. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The limited access to social protection schemes and support for persons with disabilities, including victims of unexploded ordnance, persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic groups, persons affected by leprosy and persons with disabilities living in rural and remote areas;

(b) The fact that the disability assessment and certification procedures are not in line with the Convention, which leads to some persons with disabilities being excluded from social protection schemes, and that the majority of the Lao workforce comprises self-employed, homemakers, and informal workers forms which do not benefit from social protection;

(c) The high rate of poverty among persons with disabilities, including owing to disability-related expenses, and barriers to gaining access to services such as accessible public housing and transportation;

(d) The higher disability prevalence in the poorest areas in rural areas and in impoverished ethnic groups, such as the Mon-Khmer, the fail to include disability as a key intersectional component in the State party poverty analysis, and the disparity in the administration of social security and social welfare provisions in rural and remote areas.

53. Taking into account the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities into the National Social Protection Strategy, the Ninth National Socio-Economic Development Plan 2021-2025 and the National Plan for Poverty Reduction, and ensure access to social protection and support for all persons with disabilities, including victims of unexploded ordnance, persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic groups, persons affected by leprosy and persons with disabilities living in rural and remote areas;

(b) Adopt legislative and policy measures to ensure that any assessment procedures are in line with the Convention and do not lead to discriminatory treatment in gaining access to social protection schemes, and include entitlements of social protection for self-employed and informal workers;

(c) Establish social protection and poverty reduction schemes with adequate budgetary allocations to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, and provide them with allowances to meet disability-related expenses;

(d) Increase stipends and social welfare assistance to persons with disabilities, particularly those the poorest areas in rural areas and in impoverished ethnic groups, and improve information packages about social protection services in plain language and accessible formats.

New Zealand (2022)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The disproportionate levels of poverty among persons with disabilities, who are twice as likely to live in poverty than the general population, and for Māori with disabilities this increases to three times as likely, and the protracted implementation of the recommendations from the Welfare Expert Advisory Group report;
- (b) The fragmented model of support for persons with disabilities, and the disparity in access to healthcare, habilitation and rehabilitation services and income support between those who are eligible for coverage under the Accident Compensation Corporation (ACC) and those who are supported through the disability support system, with those in the latter category more likely face barriers to maintaining an adequate standard of living;
- (c) The exclusion from the disability support system of people with Foetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder (FASD), Chronic Fatigue Syndrome and other chronic and rare conditions.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite implementation of the recommendations of the report from the Welfare Expert Advisory Group to address the inequity and complexity within the social security system for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Urgently address the fragmentation of the support system for persons with disabilities through a co-design and co-production process to address the inequity between ACC recipients and other persons with disabilities, including considering an integrated model of support to ensure uniform standards for all persons with disabilities.
- (c) Ensure people with FASD, Chronic Fatigue Syndrome and other chronic and rare conditions have access to the disability support system and are included in disability policies and programs.

Republic of Korea (2022)

57. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The inadequacy of the amount provided as disability allowance and disability pension to cover the high cost of living in the State party under the disability income and social security policy.
- (b) That some persons with disabilities are still excluded from the pension system even after the disability grading system had been abolished.
- (c) The non-eligibility of migrants with disabilities to receive essential support such as disability pension even after completing disability registration.

58. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the social protection and poverty reduction schemes for persons with disabilities and review the amount of disability allowance in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Expand the eligibility for the Disability Pension System, particularly by completely abolishing the obligatory provider requirements, to ensure all persons with disabilities benefit from the disability pension;
- (c) Take immediate steps to ensure migrants and refugees living with disabilities can benefit from social security and social welfare supports, such as basic living security or disability benefits.

Singapore (2022)

53. The Committee notes with concern the situation of persons with disabilities without a regular source of income, and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing to persons with disabilities and their families an adequate standard of living, including resources to cover expenses related to disability.

54. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to promote and guarantee the economic inclusion of all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual disabilities, psychosocial disabilities, and persons with autism, the Committee recommends that the State party enact a comprehensive legal framework and allot financial resources to provide long-term support to persons with disabilities who do not have the financial means necessary to provide for an adequate standard of living and social protection.

Hungary (2022)

54. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The extremely low and inadequate disability allowances and benefits for persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support, that, alongside the lack of community-based services, result in a high risk of poverty and social marginalization of persons with disabilities and their families;

(b) The legislative changes to the disability benefits schemes in 2012, which have adversely affected the living conditions of persons with disabilities and their families;

(c) The disability entitlement system, which maintain barriers to persons with disabilities in accessing social support services and the information they require.

55. The Committee recommends that the State Party take appropriate legislative steps to:

(a) Recognize the right of persons with disabilities to an adequate standard of living for them and their families and to progressive improvement in their living conditions through decent disability allowances and benefits and accessible and available housing and services in the community;

(b) Redress the negative impacts of the reform of the disability benefits schemes in 2012 and ensure that persons with disabilities are compensated for the damage caused by the reform;

(c) Revise the disability entitlement system to make it accessible and easy to use for all persons with disabilities, through the provision of alternative and augmentative modes of information and communication.

Jamaica (2022)

50. The Committee notes with concern the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and without a regular source of income, and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system guaranteeing to persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including resources to cover expenses related to disability.

51. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which seek to empower and to promote the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop social protection and poverty reduction strategies targeting persons with disabilities;

(b) Set up a universal social protection scheme to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through systems of compensation in the form of allowances that will allow persons with disabilities to cover the costs related to disability;

(c) Include a disability perspective in programmes to promote an adequate standard of living, including programmes to increase access to safe and affordable drinking water and sanitation and initiatives to that end in rural and remote areas.

Mexico (2022)

62. The Committee is concerned about the high poverty level of persons with disabilities, and about a lack of measures specifically designed for persons with disabilities in the special programme for indigenous and Afro-Mexican people for 2020–2024.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party create a national plan specifically addressing the high level of poverty among persons with disabilities, including its financing and a time schedule for its implementation; implement it; and monitor its implementation.

Switzerland (2022)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The disproportionately high risk of poverty among persons with disabilities and the insufficient support for disability-related expenses, the lack of recognition of the relationship between poverty and disability and the absence of specific measures for persons with disabilities in the implementation plan for the National Platform to Prevent and Combat Poverty (2019–2024);

(b) The barriers for persons with disabilities, including for adults with autism that is diagnosed late and for persons whose disabilities are deemed not to meet eligibility criteria for invalidity insurance and other social security schemes.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the specific needs of persons with disabilities into the implementation plan of the National Platform to Prevent and Combat Poverty and ensure that poverty reduction measures are taken at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels;

(b) Review eligibility criteria and assessment provisions concerning invalidity insurance and other social security benefits and schemes to ensure coverage for all persons with disabilities.

Venezuela (2022)

48. Al Comité le preocupa que la situación del bloqueo económico hacia el Estado parte y la pandemia afecten en mayor medida a las personas con discapacidad y más a aquellas que se encuentran en situación de pobreza, lo que puede llevarlas a la mendicidad; y que el acceso a programas sociales este limitado a los suscritos al Carnet de la Patria.

49. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que, de acuerdo con la Convención y teniendo en cuenta la meta 10.2 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible:

a) Establezca cuantas personas con discapacidad se encuentran en la disminución de la pobreza medida por Necesidades Básicas Insatisfechas (NBI) hasta la actualidad;

b) Realice un estudio que revele la situación económica de las personas con discapacidad durante y después de la pandemia y se incremente el monto del bono que se les otorga;

c) Tomar acciones para que los programas sociales sean contemplados en las leyes sociales, de economía, trabajo, salud, educación, para que cuenten con presupuesto fijo, metas, evaluación y seguimiento, especialmente para las personas con discapacidad y recopile información sobre su eficacia durante la pandemia;

d) No se limite el acceso a los programas sociales a la posesión del Carnet de la Patria.

Djibouti (2021)

49. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient level of support for social protection for persons with disabilities under the National Strategy for Social Protection, particularly for persons with disabilities in rural areas and in refugee camps and older persons with disabilities, including regarding disability-related expenses.

50. Taking into account the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party review the National Strategy for Social Protection to strengthen the social protection and poverty reduction schemes for persons with disabilities with sufficient budget allocation to ensure disability related expenses are covered, while focusing on the situation of older persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities living in refugee camps and in rural areas.

France (2021)

56. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) Disparities of support measures for persons with disabilities on the grounds of age particularly disparities impacting persons with disabilities over 60 years, and disparities on the basis of the place of residence between urban and rural areas;

(b) The cap imposed on the adult disability allowance, which renders it insufficient to cover disability related costs, and the withdrawal of draft legislation concerning the re- calculation of this allowance;

(c) Situations of poverty faced by persons with disabilities, particularly affecting persons requiring higher levels of support;

(d) Increased risks of homelessness for persons who have left institutions, and for persons with psychosocial disabilities exposed to compulsory programmes of psychiatric treatment.

57. Taking into account the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Assess the implementation of disability legislation and policies at the national and regional levels with the aim to ensure equal access to support by persons with disabilities regardless of age, and streamline procedures at the municipal level to provide persons with disabilities with support. The State party should provide persons with disabilities with information about their rights and entitlements in accessible formats, including Easy Read;

(b) Review the provisions concerning recognition and amount of the adult disability allowance in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;

(c) Streamline social security support systems ensuring access to all persons with disabilities, as a measure to tackle poverty situations;

(d) Design and implement programmes to establish accessible housing, and reinforce human rights-based support schemes for all persons with disabilities to cover disability related expenses and gain access to an adequate standard of living.

Estonia (2021)

54. The Committee notes with concern the information about living conditions and insufficient social protection, particularly with respect to older persons with disabilities, the insufficient support for disability-related expenses for them and barriers to gaining access to services such as accessible public housing and transportation.

55. Taking into account the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

Mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities into the national strategy for poverty eradication, including by taking concrete, expeditious measures and by earmarking budgets to address situations of disadvantage and exclusion concerning older persons with disabilities, in particular older women with disabilities;

Prioritize persons with disabilities in the socioeconomic response to the COVID-19 pandemic and ensure access to appropriate and affordable services and facilities for the general population, assistance, transportation and public housing programmes for persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities.

Albania (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned that the new financial support (“allowances”) scheme provided for persons with disabilities (2015) and in particular its new index method have negatively affected persons with disabilities, especially migrant and Roma persons with disabilities.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the provisions of disability allowances in order to repeal discriminatory practices.

Australia (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

The fact that a significant proportion of persons with disabilities are living either near or below the poverty line;

The existence of eligibility restrictions to the Disability Support Pension and the inadequacy of income support payments such as the Newstart Allowance to persons with disabilities;

The limited consideration of persons with disabilities, particularly Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities, in poverty and homelessness reduction strategies, including the National Affordable Housing Agreement and the National Partnership Agreement on Homelessness.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Develop a national poverty reduction plan that is inclusive and accessible to all persons with disabilities and prioritize the realization of the right to an adequate standard of living and social protection for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities;

End the eligibility restrictions on the Disability Support Pension, increase the rate of Newstart Allowance unemployment payments and other income support payments to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to an adequate standard of living;

Ensure that persons with disabilities are included as a priority cohort in the implementation of poverty reduction and public housing programmes, including the National Affordable Housing Agreement and the National Partnership Agreement on Homelessness.

Ecuador (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned that the US$ 240 Joaquín Gallegos Lara voucher for persons with a disability classified by the State party as “severe” and the disability pension of US$ 50 granted to persons with disabilities are not sufficient to cover basic expenses and the additional costs derived from the existence of a disability. The Committee is also concerned that:

As a result of the lack of an appropriate interlinkage between the Ministry of Economic and Social Inclusion and the Ecuadorian Social Security Institute, a significant number of persons with disabilities are not covered by the social protection system;

Persons with disabilities do not have access on an equal footing with others to credits for social housing adapted to meet their accessibility needs.

50. The Committee recommends that, in accordance with the Convention and bearing in mind target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

Establish, without delay, a national social protection programme for persons with disabilities and step up its efforts to improve the standard of living of persons with disabilities, in particular women, migrants, indigenous persons with disabilities and those living in rural areas, by considering an increase in the disability-related voucher that they receive;

Guarantee access on an equal footing with others to credits for social housing and the adaptation of such housing to meet accessibility needs.

El Salvador (2019)

52. The Committee is concerned at the high illiteracy rate, and that the 2015 poverty index does not take into account multidimensional factors that result in high levels of poverty among persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, persons of African descent with disabilities, indigenous persons with disabilities, and persons with disabilities living in remote and rural areas. It is also concerned there are no statistical data available to reflect the number of persons with disabilities who have benefited from social programmes and State schemes.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Establish a national programme to address the higher levels of poverty among persons with disabilities, that includes social protection schemes inclusive of a disability perspective, and strengthen efforts to achieve Sustainable Development Goal 1 on reducing poverty;

Allocate budget to improve the standard of living of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, migrants with disabilities, indigenous persons with disabilities, persons of African descent with disabilities and persons with disabilities living in rural and remote areas.

Greece (2019)

40. The Committee is concerned that the rights of persons with disabilities under article 28 of the Convention have been negatively affected by, inter alia:

The changes in the insurance legislation and the disability certification system;

The incoherence of the domestic legislation regarding the exclusion of welfare allowances on the grounds of disability from taxable income, as well as their insufficient protection from seizure;

Reported instances of unequal treatment in the distribution of welfare allowances to persons with disabilities.

41. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the relevant legal provisions and practices on welfare allowances, benefits, pensions and tax exemptions for persons with disabilities, harmonizing the existing rules and repealing discriminatory rules and practices, including in the disability certification system. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the effective implementation of the existing social protection framework, and progressively develop further measures to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities.

India (2019)

58. The Committee is concerned about:

The lack of measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities are registered and covered by national social protection schemes;

The absence of social protection schemes covering disability-related extra costs for persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support;

The situation of homeless persons with disabilities, and the absence of policies to ensure affordable and accessible housing and security of tenure for persons with disabilities, including persons affected by leprosy.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure access for all persons with disabilities to social protection programmes, including to pension schemes and to unemployment, transportation or care allowances or other entitlements, fostering adequate living conditions in urban and rural areas. The State party should ensure adequate monitoring and collection of disaggregated data by disability, gender and age;

Introduce and ensure that all persons with disabilities have access to entitlements to cover disability-related extra costs and disability pensions, strengthen identification procedures for access to pensions, and increase pension wages;

Adopt a public policy for housing to ensure equal access by persons with disabilities to affordable housing, and measures to ensure security of tenure, paying attention to the recommendations issued in 2017 by the Special Rapporteur on adequate housing as a component of the right to an adequate standard of living, and on the right to non-discrimination in this context (A/HRC/34/51/Add.1).

Iraq (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

The insufficient social protection allocation to persons with disabilities and the lack of information on the steps taken to implement the Strategy for the Reduction of Poverty in Iraq 2018–2022 in a disability-inclusive manner;

The information received by the Committee that medical certificates are the basis for access to social protection for persons with disabilities, according to Law No. 11 (2014) on Social Protection and article 15 (4) (e) of Law No. 38 (2013), and that identity cards for persons with disabilities to receive social protection allocations have not yet been issued.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Intensify its efforts to raise the living standards of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, including through the implementation of the Strategy for the Reduction of Poverty in Iraq 2018–2022 in a disability-inclusive manner, in line with article 28 of the Convention and with the voluntary commitment made in 2014 by the State party in the context of the universal periodic review (A/HRC/28/14, paras. 127.172–127.175, and A/HRC/28/14/Add.1);

Ensure the registration of all persons with disabilities, in all parts of the State party, in order to enable access to social protection programmes in line with the human rights model of disability.

Kuwait (2019)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

Barriers to accessing the social protection scheme for persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaitis and Bidoon with disabilities;

The fact that many disability benefits are not given to persons with disabilities themselves but allocated to caregivers, which has reportedly resulted in the misuse of funds in certain cases and in persons with disabilities being discouraged from seeking education and employment opportunities;

The lack of data on Bidoon with disabilities living in the State party, including those living in poverty and those who have acquired a disability in the State party.

55. Recalling its general comment No. 5 (2017) on living independently and being included in the community, the Committee recommends that the State party:

Review its social protection scheme to ensure that all persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaitis and Bidoon with disabilities, can access it, that funding for independent living, including disability allocations, is controlled and allocated to persons with disabilities and that benefits are preserved for those in education and employment in order to promote independence, inclusion and participation;

Ensure the systematic collection of up-to-date and appropriately disaggregated data, including statistical and research data, on the situation of Bidoon with disabilities, including data on the prevalence of poverty and on access to housing, social protection and poverty reduction programmes;

Adhere to article 28 of the Convention in the implementation of target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Myanmar (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

The limited access to social protection schemes and support for persons with disabilities, including under the Social Security Law of 2012 and the Social Security Strategy of 2014;

The fact that the disability assessment and certification procedures are not in line with the Convention leads to some persons with disabilities being excluded from social protection schemes;

The high rate of poverty and deprivation among persons with disabilities, including owing to the challenges that many persons with disabilities may face in meeting the additional costs related to disability.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take measures necessary to ensure access to social protection and support for persons with disabilities;

Take legislative and policy measures to ensure that any assessment procedures are in line with the Convention and do not lead to discriminatory treatment in accessing to social protection schemes;

Establish social protection and poverty reduction schemes with adequate budgetary allocations to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, and provide them with allowances to meet disability-related expenses.

Cuba (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific social and poverty alleviation measures for persons with disabilities that allow them to meet the additional costs of disability.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Reviews its social protection and poverty alleviation schemes with the aim of guaranteeing an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through compensation schemes in the form of allowances that will enable persons with disabilities to meet disability-related expenses;

Consider the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals to empower and promote economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status.

Niger (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned by the limited budget allocated for the social protection of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities; the lack of state subsidies for persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities; and the absence of poverty reduction schemes for persons with disabilities. It is further concerned that persons with albinism live in poverty with almost no access to basic social services particularly in the areas of education, employment and health; and that persons with albinism are at a high risk of skin cancer due to the inadequate healthcare services, including sunscreens.

46. The Committee recommends that the State Party adhere to the Convention in the implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 1, targets 1.3 and 1.4, and:

Establish a social protection and poverty reduction schemes with adequate budgetary allocation to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, particularly those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism, and provide them with allowances to meet their disability-related expenses;

Provide adequate healthcare services to persons with albinism, including sunscreens.

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of persons with disabilities.

Norway (2019)

43. The Committee is concerned that existing financial support schemes are insufficient to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and to cover additional disability-related costs.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that social protection policies and programmes secure the necessary and sufficient income levels by taking into account the additional costs faced by persons with disabilities.

Rwanda (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned that many persons with disabilities live in poverty and that social protection and poverty reduction efforts for the general population are largely based on household poverty ranking index, not at the individual level, and therefore may exclude persons with disabilities, especially women, and the additional costs of disability-related requirements.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party establish social protection and poverty reduction programmes aimed at guaranteeing an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through the provision of appropriate pensions and social allowances, and ensure that these programmes take into account the additional costs related to disability. It also recommends that the State party review its poverty ranking system which is based on the household, and ensure that all persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, have access to individually designed social protection, and other community-based social services, public housing programmes and support services to enable them to live independently, with due respect to their rights, will and preferences.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned about the high percentage of persons with disabilities who do not have a regular income and the lack of a comprehensive social protection scheme that ensures persons with disabilities and their families' access to an adequate standard of living, including provisions to cover disability-related expenses.

50. The Committee draws the State party's attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which aims at empowering and promoting the social, economic and political inclusion of all, irrespective of their disability. It recommends that the State party expedite the implementation of Royal Order No. 24535 on the calculation of the absolute poverty line and adopt a social protection scheme aimed at guaranteeing an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through compensation schemes in the form of allowances that will enable persons with disabilities to meet additional disability-related expenses.

Senegal (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of an effective social protection scheme that ensures to persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including provisions to cover disability-related expenses.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to establish a social protection scheme that guarantees an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and that enables them to cover additional disability-related expenses;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status.

Spain (2019)

52. The Committee is concerned:

At the high levels of poverty among persons with disabilities, especially among women with disabilities, due to the lack of access to the labour market, lower incomes and lack of disability-related supports.

That the system of co-payments for services introduced as a measure of austerity have not been withdrawn.

53. The Committee recommends the State party to:

Ensure that the national strategy for reducing poverty incorporates a disability perspective including specific measures and allocated budget;

Repeal the system of co-payments to all services necessary for living independently in the community and ensure their full access for persons with disabilities.

Türkiye (2019)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

The negative impact of the financial crisis on persons with disabilities and their families, and their ability to cover additional costs of disability-related requirements;

Information indicating that social programmes, such as the disability pension programme and social housing projects, exclude persons with disabilities based on, inter alia, medical assessments of impairment and the level of income of their families and on the basis of nationality, and that in-cash assistance for refugee persons or those holding humanitarian residence permits rely mainly on international cooperation;

The gender gap in disability pension for women with disabilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure that adequate levels of income and access to social protection, including allowances to cover extra costs of disability are protected as core components of public policies at all times to prevent the disproportionate adverse impact on persons with disabilities in times of financial crisis;

Amend the eligibility criteria for the recognition of the disability pension and ensure that criteria and levels of support are compliant with the human rights model of disability and include all persons with disabilities; ensure the sustainability and expand the financial resources of programmes aimed at providing in-cash assistance for persons with disabilities holding humanitarian residence permits, asylum seekers and refugees;

Adopt specific measures aimed at increasing the number of women with disabilities who access allowances in the scope of social protection schemes.

Vanuatu (2019)

46. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities remain at most risk of poverty and this affects their rights to adequate standard of living. In particular, it is concerned that there is the lack of social protection programs targeting persons with disabilities and their families in the framework of the National Disabilities Inclusive Development Policy (2018-2025).

47. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt social protection programs, including allowances, for persons with disabilities and their families, particularly those who are living in poverty and/or those with high support requirements, to cover the additional costs related to disability. It also recommends that the State party allocate adequate budget and ensure that the assessment and eligibility criteria for social protection and poverty reduction programs are in line with the Convention, taking into account General Comment No. 6.

Algeria (2018)

46. The Committee is concerned that the existing social protection allocation for persons with disabilities and their families is insufficient to ensure an adequate standard of living and that persons with disabilities receiving benefits are prohibited by law from receiving income from other sources.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 28 of the Convention in the implementation of target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals and:

Identify a social protection floor that covers the minimum content of the right to an adequate standard of living, on an equal basis with others;

Ensure access of persons with disabilities especially women and children with disabilities, to social protection programmes;

Adopt the necessary measures so that persons with disabilities entitled to social protection allocations are also able to receive income from other sources, particularly employment, with a view to supporting their right to social inclusion and self-reliance.

Bulgaria (2018)

59. The Committee notes with concern that criteria for assessment of degree of impairment introduced in July 2018 amendments to legislation have a disproportionate effect on persons with lesser degree of impairment. The Committee is also concerned about the challenges many persons with disabilities may face in meeting the additional costs of disability.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the criteria for assessment of degree of impairment to incorporate the human rights model of disability in the assessment process, and ensure that persons with disabilities maintain an adequate standard of living. It furthermore calls upon the State Party to intensify its efforts to ensure that all persons with disabilities can meet the additional costs of disability, including by increasing allocations and resources for it.

Philippines (2018)

48. The Committee is concerned about the:

Lack of information about implementation of policies such as the Food Safety Act 2013, the Poverty Alleviation Fund, in ensuring a decent standard of living for persons with disabilities; The limited access of persons with disabilities to programmes in the area of access to water, housing, food;

The lack of allowances and resources to cover disability-related expenses, and the limited provision of social protection programmes for persons with disabilities regardless their employment situation.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt criteria to ensure that programmes to provide for clean water, food and housing mainstream all persons with disabilities;

Collect disaggregated data about the number and percentage of persons with disabilities who have received a minimum level of social protection from the Government, disaggregated by sex, age, and ethnicity and in particular for persons with intellectual disabilities, and persons with psychosocial disabilities.

Adopt measures to provide social protection schemes and allowances that recognise additional costs associated to disability and ensure access to disability pensions by all persons with disabilities throughout its territory;

Adhere to Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of all, in particular targeting persons with disabilities.

Poland (2018)

46. The Committee is concerned about the:

High poverty rate among persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, and the growing inequality between households with and without persons with disabilities;

Benefit dependency trap which forces persons with disabilities and their associates to choose between professional work and allowances, which consequently condemns persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, to poverty and social exclusion;

Lack of disaggregated data on poverty of persons with disabilities and of monitoring of the effectiveness of social security mechanisms designed for combating poverty;

Lack of specific measures taken to ensure accessibility of housing for persons with disabilities.

47. Taking into account the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

Mainstream and emphasize rights of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, within the national strategy for reducing poverty with concrete measures and budget;

Ensure that the employment of persons with disabilities does not make them ineligible to disability related protection schemes, including disability allowances;

Collect disaggregated data on poverty of persons with disabilities and monitor the effectiveness of social security mechanisms designed for combating poverty;

Ensure specific measures to accommodate access to housing for persons with disabilities;

Ensure correct translation of the term “public housing” in the Polish version of the Convention.

South Africa (2018)

46. The Committee notes with concern:

Challenges faced in accessing social grants, by grant beneficiaries resulting in beneficiaries being unable to pay for their daily expenses and for those of their dependents and discriminatory provision on pensions adversely impacting women with disabilities;

The absence of a comprehensive national social protection scheme that ensures persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including provisions to cover the disability-related expenses.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Eliminate challenges faced in accessing social grants by grant beneficiaries and establish a social protection scheme that is inclusive of all persons with disabilities, aimed at guaranteeing an adequate standard of living, including through compensation schemes in the form of allowances that will enable persons with disabilities meet disability-related expenses;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to empower and promote economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status.

North Macedonia (2018)

50. The Committee is concerned that the Law on Social Protection does not consider disability as a basis for discrimination. Furthermore disability benefits are age restrictive (persons with disabilities from 18 – 26 years are not considered for benefits). The Committee is further concerned about the administrative and bureaucratic requirements in regards to documentation by ‘committee assessments’ for persons with disabilities to access social benefits. It is also concerned that persons with disabilities face challenges in meeting the additional costs of disability.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Review its Law on Social Protection by introducing disability in the anti-discrimination clause and relevant by-laws and benefits schemes with the aim of guaranteeing an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through compensation schemes in the form of allowances that will enable persons with disabilities to meet disability-related expenses;

Repeal the provisions for persons with disabilities to be eligible to access social benefits at a particular age, and allocate certain allowances and benefits to children with disabilities; and ensure provision of equal material support to biological and foster families;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status.

Haiti (2018)

50. The Committee is concerned about the high number of persons with disabilities living in poverty and without a regular source of income and the absence of a comprehensive social protection system which guarantees to persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including resources to cover expenses related to disability. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of access to drinking water and sanitation and that the majority of initiatives to promote an adequate standard of living have been implemented around the capital or in large cities and not in rural and remote areas.

51. Recalling the links between article 28 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status the Committee recommends that the State party:

Develop social protection and poverty reduction strategies targeting persons with disabilities;

Set up a social protection scheme to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through systems of compensation in the form of allowances that will allow persons with disabilities to cover the costs related to disability;

Include a disability perspective in programmes to promote an adequate standard of living, including programmes to increase access to safe and affordable drinking water and sanitation and initiatives in rural and remote areas.

Nepal (2018)

41. The Committee is concerned about the actual effectiveness of a number of policy measures such as the National Policy and Plan of Action on Disability, 2006 (NPPAD) and the Poverty Alleviation Fund (PAF) in ensuring a decent standard of living for persons with disabilities and allowing them to meet the additional costs of living with a disability. The Committee is also concerned about the extent to which community based rehabilitation (the "CBR") programmes have been effective in reducing the number of persons with disabilities in poverty.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party take necessary measures to ensure that persons with disabilities throughout its territory have access to community-based rehabilitation services and adequate social protection programmes that are oriented towards social and community inclusion. The Committee requests that the State party provide updated data in its next periodic report on the number and percentage of persons with disabilities who have benefitted from social protection floors from the Government, and request that this data is disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity and in particular for persons with intellectual, and/or psychosocial disabilities, hearing or visual disabilities and multiple disabilities.

Oman (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned about the comparatively low standard of living of persons with disabilities and the lack of awareness among persons with disabilities of the availability of social protection and poverty reduction programmes. It is also concerned about discriminatory provision on pensions adversely impacting women with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Intensify its efforts to raise the living standards of persons with disabilities and their families, especially women and children with disabilities, with a view towards supporting their right to social inclusion and self-reliance;

Ensure that persons with disabilities are effectively included in all social protection and poverty reduction programmes;

Eliminate direct and indirect discrimination against women with disabilities through amending the pension legislation to take account of the requirements of women with disabilities;

Be guided by article 28 of the Convention in the implementation of target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Russian Federation (2018)

56. The Committee is concerned about the reported changes in approach toward the calculation of monthly financial support for work-related injuries and disabilities, which have reportedly been downsized on the basis of the decision of the Supreme Court.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party review the current practice and legislation concerning the administration of financial support for work-related injuries and disability and improve the applicable rules for higher level of transparency with more effective safeguards in line with the Convention.

Seychelles (2018)

47. The Committee is concerned that the assessment and eligibility criteria for access to social protection and poverty reduction programmes for children and adults with disabilities, particularly women, girls and older persons, are not based on the human rights model of disability. It notes with concern that persons with disabilities use personal finances to cover the additional financial costs resulting from disability, including the costs of duties, taxes and other charges on imported assisted devices for living independently.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party review the legislation on the provision of benefits to persons with disabilities, with genuine participation by representative organizations of persons with disabilities, to ensure that the assessment and eligibility criteria for social protection and poverty reduction programmes are in line with the Convention and the human rights model of disability. It also recommends that the State party take measures to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy the same living standards as persons without disabilities on comparable incomes.

Slovenia (2018)

47. The Committee is concerned about:

The high level of poverty among persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and women with disabilities;

The disproportional negative impacts on the rights of persons with disabilities of measures taken by the State party, such as curtailment of unemployment insurance, health insurance and care, social assistance and allowances for persons with disabilities, as a consequence of the austerity measures taken to deal with the economic crisis, and insufficient remedies in this regard;

Limited availability and accessibility to public housing for persons with disabilities;

The absence of positive measures in taxation of pension and disability insurance for persons with disabilities in situation of poverty, and the delays regarding to the right to disability pension and insurance for persons with physical disability, including unfriendly communications at disability commissions with persons with disabilities;

The lack of measures addressing rights of older persons with disabilities.

48. Paying attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure efficiency and effectiveness of social protection and poverty reduction programmes for persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;

Restore all support measures for all persons with disabilities that were curtailed under the austerity policies and prevent any hardship that can face persons with disabilities by reducing their income through austerity measures;

Ensure accessibility to public housing for persons with disabilities, disseminate information about available and affordable housing in accessible formats, and engage with the private sector with a view to promote development of accessible housing units;

Implement positive measures in taxation of pension and disability insurance for persons with disabilities in situation of poverty;

Recognise the right to full disability pension and insurance through relevant legal and administrative mechanisms for persons with disabilities;

Ensure a dignified and inclusive social protection system for elderly persons with disabilities.

Sudan (2018)

57. The Committee is concerned about social protection and poverty alleviation measures for families in vulnerable circumstances not fulfilling the basic needs of persons with disabilities. The Committee is furthermore concerned that persons with disabilities lack resources to meet the additional costs of disability.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Reviews its social protection and poverty alleviation schemes with the aim of guaranteeing an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through compensation schemes in the form of allowances that will enable persons with disabilities to meet disability-related expenses;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability status.

Latvia (2017)

48. The Committee is concerned about the low level of social benefits and pensions guaranteed to persons with disabilities and the lack of disaggregated data collected on persons with disabilities living in situations of poverty.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families, by guaranteeing, inter alia, that social protection and poverty reduction programmes take into account the additional costs related to disability;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Luxembourg (2017)

48. The Committee is concerned about the absence of data on poverty and disability in the State party and that many persons with disabilities of working age and older persons with disabilities are at higher risk of poverty. It is also concerned that the additional expenses related to disability consequently increase the risk of persons with disabilities being institutionalized. The Committee notes with concern that recent changes to care insurance regulations may lead to a deterioration of the standard of living of persons with disabilities.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party collect data on the socioeconomic situation of persons with disabilities to design appropriate policies to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families. It also recommends that the State party:

Ensure that social protection policies and programmes secure income levels by taking into account the additional costs related to disability;

Guarantee that persons with disabilities have access to sufficient community-based social services, public housing programmes and support services for living independently respectful of the rights, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3.1 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which calls upon States to implement appropriate social protection systems and measures for all, including floors.

Montenegro (2017)

50. The Committee notes with concern that the State party does not regularly and transparently monitor the increase in living costs of persons with disabilities. It is concerned that:

Women with disabilities are particularly exposed to poverty as they are particularly affected by unemployment and because their earnings and/or the benefits they receive are frequently shared or entirely used by their families;

Women with disabilities are sometimes abandoned by their husbands, which may further increase their poverty risk;

There is no available and transparent data at the local level about children with disabilities who do not have access to social protection.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Regularly monitor the living costs of persons with disabilities and adjust disability benefits accordingly;

In line with paragraph 41 (d) of the concluding observations of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/MNE/CO/2), raise awareness about the importance of economic autonomy for women with disabilities, establish appropriate procedures enabling women with disabilities to claim their earnings and/or benefits in case these are taken away from them by family members, and ensure that benefits are directly transferred to women with disabilities rather than to their family members;

Take all necessary measures, including legislative measures, to ensure that the right to alimony of women with disabilities who are deserted by their husband is duly enforced and that, if these women are destitute, they receive adequate social benefits;

Collect data on all children with disabilities at the local level and ensure that every child has access to disability benefits in order to have a standard of living above the subsistence level.

Morocco (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned about:

The high percentage of persons with disabilities who do not have a regular income;

The lack of a comprehensive social protection scheme that ensures persons with disabilities and their families access to an adequate standard of living, including provisions to cover disability-related expenses.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Establish a social protection scheme aimed at guaranteeing an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, including through compensation schemes in the form of allowances that will enable persons with disabilities to meet disability-related expenses;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, with a view to empowering and promoting the economic inclusion of all persons, irrespective of disability.

Panama (2017)

54. The Committee notes with concern the number of persons with disabilities living in poverty or extreme poverty in the State party, especially women, children, Afrodescendants and indigenous people. It is also concerned that there is no inclusive social system in the State party and, in particular, no specific retirement scheme for persons with disabilities or other financial support that would be sufficient to cover the additional costs that they face owing to their disability.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party take concrete measures to enable persons with disabilities to enjoy a decent standard of living, including by guaranteeing access to drinking water, electricity and sanitation, and to mitigate the impact of disability-related poverty, especially the impact on groups subject to intersectional discrimination, such as women, children, Afrodescendants and indigenous persons with disabilities. The Committee urges the State party to establish an inclusive social system, including a retirement scheme for persons with disabilities, in its territory. It also recommends that the State party take into account article 28 of the Convention in its implementation of targets 1.3 and 1.4 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned about:

The impact of austerity measures and anti-poverty initiatives introduced as a consequence of the financial crisis in 2008/09, which resulted in severe economic constraints among persons with disabilities and their families, particularly families with children with disabilities, including increased reliance on food banks;

The negative impact on the standard of living of persons with disabilities of, among others, the reductions in social support, unemployment allowance, independence payments and Universal Credit payments and the insufficient compensation for disability-related costs;

The eligibility criteria for and the local differences to social protection and support, and the introduction of the Personal Independence Payment, which has reduced the number of recipients of disability-related allowances and had a negative impact on the standard of living of many persons with disabilities and their families;

The detrimental impact of the Employment and Support Allowance conditionality and sanctions on persons with disabilities and the limited access to reconsideration and appeal procedures.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities across all territorial entities, in line with the Committee's report on its inquiry concerning the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland carried out under article 6 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention, guided by article 28 of the Convention and implementing target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

Introduce, adopt and implement legislative frameworks to ensure that social protection policies and programmes across the State party secure income levels for all persons with disabilities and their families, by taking into account the additional costs relating to disability, and ensuring that persons with disabilities are able to exercise their parental responsibilities. The State party must ensure that members of the new Employment and Support Allowance work-related activity group have access to full compensation of disability-related costs;

Carry out a cumulative impact assessment, based on disaggregated data, of the recent and forthcoming reforms of the social protection system for persons with disabilities, and in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities define, implement and monitor measures to tackle retrogression in their standard of living and use the cumulative impact assessment as a basis for policy development across the State party;

Repeal the Personal Independence Payment (Amendment) Regulations of 2017 and ensure that eligibility criteria and assessments to access Personal Independence Payments, Employment Support Allowance and Universal Credit are in line with the human rights model of disability;

Ensure that the budget allocation is sufficient for local authorities to meet their responsibilities regarding assistance for persons with disabilities, and extend support packages to mitigate the negative impacts of social security reform in Northern Ireland;

Conduct a review of the conditionality and sanction regimes concerning the Employment and Support Allowance, and tackle the negative consequences on the mental health and situation of persons with disabilities.

Armenia (2017)

49. The Committee is concerned that the majority of persons with disabilities live in poverty, including in rural and remote areas, and that the available social allowances are insufficient to cover the minimum necessary for an adequate standard of living and the additional expenses related to disability. It also notes with concern that the State party did not take appropriate measures to increase the accessibility of social protection programmes, including public housing.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee an adequate standard of living for all persons with disabilities, including through the provision of appropriate pensions and social allowances, ensuring that social protection and poverty reduction programmes take into account the additional costs related to disability and that persons with disabilities have access to mainstream services and public housing programmes. It also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

50. The Committee is concerned that the available financial support ("benefits") provided for persons with disabilities is based on discriminatory criteria.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the provisions of disability allowances by harmonizing laws and regulations at all levels of government in order to repeal the current discriminatory practice that is based on the cause of impairment, in particular for war-related and non-war-related disabilities, or on the place of residence.

Canada (2017)

49. The Committee is concerned at the fact that nearly 15 per cent of persons with disabilities live in poverty or extreme poverty and that many persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities, face homelessness. The Committee is also concerned that financial support is insufficient to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, in particular for indigenous persons with disabilities, and to cover additional disability-related costs.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take measures to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families, especially those living in poverty, those who are unemployed or who do not have a fixed income, those in rural and remote areas, those belonging to indigenous communities, women and older persons. The State party should cover the added cost of living caused by disability by, inter alia, reviewing social security measures with a view to extending their coverage to all persons with disabilities;

Ensure that the Canadian Poverty Reduction Strategy addresses multiple discrimination and poverty among women with disabilities, indigenous persons with disabilities and families with children with disabilities;

Bear in mind article 28 of the Convention while implementing targets 1.3 and 1.4 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Cyprus (2017)

55. The Committee takes note of the guaranteed minimum income. However, it remains concerned that a high number of persons with disabilities have a particularly low income. It is concerned that, regardless of their income, persons with disabilities do not have an adequate standard of living compared with others in a comparable situation of life, inter alia, because they are required to partly pay for necessary disability associated costs and assistive devices and are subjected to payments for using social services.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party implement progressively measures to ensure adequate income of persons with disabilities in order to reduce significantly the pay gap between persons with and without disabilities, regardless of gender, ethnic origin or age, and that it abolish the requirement of user payment for social services and support and partial payment for disability-related expenses and assistive devices, being guided by target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party identify a social protection floor that is not affected by expenses for disability-related costs and assistive devices and user payments for social services and support, in order to alleviate the socioeconomic disadvantages that result from the exclusion experienced by persons with disabilities.

Honduras (2017)

59. El Comité observa con preocupación el número de personas con discapacidad que viven en situación de pobreza, especialmente mujeres, niños, afrohondureños e indígenas. También le preocupa que las políticas sociales solo tengan un enfoque caritativo y asistencialista, como el bono de discapacidad, o el programa Honduras para Todos, que entrega ayudas técnicas.

60. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte medidas concretas con el fin de permitir un nivel de vida adecuado para las personas con discapacidad, así como mitigar el impacto del empobrecimiento por discapacidad, especialmente en los grupos en situación de discriminación interseccional, como mujeres y niños, afrohondureños e indígenas con discapacidad. Asimismo, le recomienda que se guíe por el artículo 28 de la Convención en la implementación de las metas 1.3 y 1.4 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned with the discriminatory treatment in social protection among persons with disabilities under the SWO and FMVA. It is further concerned about the lack of information on measures to ensure an adequate standard of living for women with disabilities who are head of households.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure that all persons with disabilities are provided with adequate standard of living, and that additional social protection schemes are adopted and monitored, paying attention to target 10.2 of Sustainable Development Goals;

Expand the coverage of the programmes of housing and interest-free loans to all persons with disabilities; and

Work in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities to create a system for disaggregated data collection on the percentage of persons with disabilities who are beneficiaries of social programmes, such as payment of financial aids for in-home support, disability pension and complementary health insurance, and the number of persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic, linguistic and religious minorities who have received disability pension.

Jordan (2017)

51. The Committee notes with concern the low standard of living of persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, intensify its efforts to raise the living standards of persons with disabilities, in particular to support their right to social inclusion and self-reliance and in line with the voluntary commitment made by the State party in the context of the universal periodic review in 2013.⁵

53. The Committee notes the absence of systematic data collection on persons with disabilities receiving funding for housing and adaptation and on the poverty rate of persons with disabilities.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, ensure systematic, up-to-date and appropriately disaggregated data collection, including statistical and research data, on the poverty rate of persons with disabilities and on those receiving funding for housing and adaptation.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

50. The Committee is concerned that the majority of persons with disabilities live in poverty, especially in rural and remote areas, and that the available social allowances are insufficient to cover the minimum necessary for an adequate standard of living. The Committee is also concerned that the additional expenses related to disability consequently increase the risk of persons with disabilities being institutionalized. The Committee is also concerned that the latest changes in pension regulations may aggravate the precarious economic status of persons with disabilities.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families, including through reasonable accommodation with regard to pensions and social allowances;

Guarantee that social protection and poverty reduction programmes take into account the additional costs related to disability;

Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to community-based social services and public housing programmes, and that these services and programmes are also available in rural and remote areas;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bolivia (2016)

63. The Committee is concerned at the fact that over 80 per cent of persons with disabilities live in poverty or extreme poverty and that very few receive the solidarity allowance. The Committee is also concerned that financial support is insufficient to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and to cover additional disability-related costs.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families, especially those living in poverty, who are unemployed or who do not have a fixed income, in particular those in rural and remote areas, those who belong to indigenous communities, women and older persons, and to cover the added cost of living caused by disability by, inter alia, reviewing social security measures, such as the solidarity allowance, with a view to extending the coverage to all persons with disabilities. The Committee further recommends that the State party be guided by article 28 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 1.3 and 1.4 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

62. The Committee notes that the majority of persons with disabilities in situations of poverty and extreme poverty, particularly those who are women, children or older persons, Afro-Colombian, Raizal or indigenous, or living in rural or remote areas, do not receive assistance or benefit from social protection programmes on the basis of disability that address their disability and related additional costs, despite being at greater risk of poverty, exclusion and violations of their rights. It is also concerned about the absence of a disability perspective in the policy on free or social housing, particularly the limited access of persons with disabilities in these programmes and their lack of accessibility.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Incorporate a disability perspective on a priority basis in poverty reduction and social inclusion strategies;

Eliminate the interdiction requirements to benefit from social protection measures and strengthen programmes of social protection and assistance, with a gender, ethnicity and age perspective, to cover the additional costs incurred as a result of disability in acquiring goods and services and, in particular, that it provide for the revision of the interpretations made in relevant rulings of the Constitutional Court and the practices of retirement and pension funds in order to guarantee the inclusiveness of such programmes;

Give priority to persons with disabilities, particularly women and persons belonging to ethnic or racial minorities and victims of armed conflict, by including accessibility as part of social housing policy;

Be guided by article 28 of the Convention in pursuing target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned that, while the State party has the second largest productive safety net programme in sub-Saharan Africa, 95 per cent of persons with disabilities live in poverty, and that there are few programmes that specifically target persons with disabilities and cover disability related expenses. It is also concerned that disability assessment is based on a medical approach, and at the absence of data on the number of households containing persons with disabilities who receive either social protection cash transfers or social cash transfers.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that poverty reduction and social protection strategies target persons with disabilities, and that disability assessments are based on human rights. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 28 of the Convention in implementing target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Guatemala (2016)

65. The Committee is deeply concerned about the exclusion, lack of access to drinking water, sanitation and decent housing, and overall conditions of poverty experienced by indigenous persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that disability is not properly taken into account in the State party's policies on indigenous peoples.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Redouble its efforts to mainstream disability in its programmes and policies on indigenous peoples, adopting a rural and community-based approach, and ensure that the needs and views of indigenous persons with disabilities are duly taken into consideration;

Establish and implement a system for regular monitoring of the situation of indigenous persons with disabilities;

Take special measures to eliminate the particular disadvantages faced by indigenous women, children and older persons with disabilities who have been abandoned or live in extreme poverty;

Be guided by article 28 of the Convention in its implementation of targets 1.3 and 1.4 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

71. The Committee is concerned about: (a) regional variations of social protection mechanisms; (b) the lack of Minimum Standards of Social Assistance; (c) the high level of poverty among persons with disabilities and their families, in particular children with disabilities; and (d) the lack of assessment of the adverse effect of austerity measures.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite constitutional reform to homogenize social protection interventions and policies throughout the national territory; expedite the adoption and implementation of the Minimum Standards of Social Assistance; conduct assessments of the impact of austerity measures on children and adults with disabilities; and prevent any further reduction in resources that could increase levels of poverty. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 28 of the Convention in implementing target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, including by mainstreaming disability in its poverty reduction policies.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

51. The Committee is concerned that the amount of pensions, social welfare, grants and other subsidies provided to persons with disabilities is insufficient to ensure an adequate standard of living and that there is a lack of awareness among persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities who are not citizens of the State party, of the availability of social protection programmes and housing in the State party.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Increase social welfare benefits, including those covering the cost of disability-related expenses, to ensure an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities and their families and take measures to increase awareness among persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities who are not citizens of the State party, of the availability of social protection programmes and housing in the State party;

Be guided by article 28 of the Convention in the implementation of target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

59. El Comité observa con preocupación el número de personas con discapacidad que viven en situación de pobreza, especialmente mujeres, niños y personas mayores.

60. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte medidas concretas con el fin de garantizar un nivel de vida decente para las personas con discapacidad, y para mitigar el impacto del empobrecimiento por discapacidad, especialmente en grupos en situación de discriminación interseccional, como mujeres, niños y personas mayores con discapacidad. Lo anterior incluye: garantizar la cobertura de los gastos relacionados con la discapacidad y atender específicamente a las personas con discapacidad en programas y estrategias de reducción de la pobreza en estrechas consultas con organizaciones representativas de personas con discapacidad. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 28 de la Convención y las metas 1.3 y 1.4 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, para implementar sistemas y medidas apropiados de protección social para todos, garantizando su acceso a los recursos económicos y a los servicios básicos.

Chile (2016)

59. Preocupan al Comité los bajos niveles de ingresos de personas mayores con discapacidad, quienes requieren de apoyos más intensos, así como quienes viven en áreas rurales y remotas o insulares y con poco acceso a los servicios básicos.

60. El Comité recomienda universalizar la cobertura de los subsidios por discapacidad con el propósito de permitir un nivel de vida adecuado a personas con discapacidad que les permita contar con servicios de apoyo por su discapacidad, así como para mitigar el impacto del empobrecimiento por discapacidad.

Lithuania (2016)

53. The Committee is concerned that:

Persons with disabilities face a higher risk of poverty than others;

Part of the support provided to persons with disabilities is based on discounts and vouchers, which increases stigmatization and harmful stereotyping of persons with disabilities as a group that lacks autonomy and is dependent on social welfare.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt new policies that secure income levels among persons with disabilities and their families that are adequate and equal to the income levels of others, and that take into account additional disability-related costs.

55. The Committee is further concerned at reports indicating that public expenditures targeted specifically at persons with disabilities have decreased owing to budgetary reductions in the social insurance and social assistance system caused by the financial crisis since 2008.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to secure that persons with disabilities and their families are not disproportionately affected by budget cuts and to ensure an adequate standard of living through income support and social security, taking note of target 1.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, which calls on States to implement appropriate social protection systems and measures for all, including floors.

Portugal (2016)

52. The Committee notes the efforts made by the State party to alleviate the impact of austerity measures on persons with disabilities. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned that there are no support services of any kind for persons with disabilities who, as a result of the implementation of austerity measures, are forced into situations of destitution or extreme poverty as they do not have family networks to provide support or company.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party, in partnership with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, undertakes the following steps:

Urgently review its austerity measures in order to avoid further negative and regressive consequences for the standard of living and social protection of persons with disabilities through the adoption of measures which facilitate their effective inclusion in the community ;

Offer support services for independent living and shelter homes which respect the rights of persons with disabilities, their will and preferences, and by putting in place financial allowances enabling persons with disabilities who are unemployed and lack family support to enjoy an adequate standard of living;

c) Strengthen its efforts to enhance the right to an adequate standard of living and to social protection for persons with disabilities who find themselves in situations of destitution and extreme poverty, according to the human rights approach of the present Convention, allocating sufficient funding for these purposes;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and SDG 10, target 10.2 to empower and promote economic inclusion of all, irrespective of disability status.

Serbia (2016)

57. The Committee is concerned at the lack of accessible social housing.

58. The Committee recommends full implementation of the law guaranteeing a 10% quota of accessible housing for persons with disabilities. It further recommends the State party pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 10, target 10.2.

Slovakia (2016)

75. The Committee notes with deep concern the numbers of persons with disabilities living below the poverty line, including Roma and ethnic minority families who have a family member with a disability.

76. The Committee recommends that the State party provide an adequate standard of living to persons with disabilities, including those from an ethnic minority background and those over the age of 65, and ensure that social protection schemes are regularly monitored to track the alleviation of poverty. The Committee also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Thailand (2016)

55. The Committee is concerned about persons with disabilities in situations of poverty, particularly those belonging to ethnic minority groups, in single parent-headed households and in families where parents care for a child with disabilities on a full-time basis. It is concerned about the low percentage of persons with disabilities entitled to receive a disability grant and the insufficiency of the grant to ensure an adequate standard of living.

56. The Committee urges the State party to review its social security legislation with a view to ensuring equal access for all persons with disabilities to social protection. It also recommends that the minimum living support is given on the basis of the personal characteristics, circumstances and requirements of persons with disabilities. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to empower and promote economic inclusion of all, irrespective of disability status.

57. The Committee is concerned about the loss of universal health-care services for persons with disabilities once they are employed and subject to the Social Insurance Act.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party make health-care services universal to all persons with disabilities, regardless of their employment status, in order to support disability-related expenses and enable them to achieve an adequate standard of living.

Uganda (2016)

54. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures and specific schemes to provide social protection for persons with disabilities in employment and out of employment. It is also concerned about the lack of coverage of the national health insurance in relation to persons with disabilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Provide social protection schemes to guarantee an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities, and develop and implement compensation schemes for persons with disabilities to meet disability-related extra expenses incurred, for example, for assistive devices, technologies and personal assistance;

Include persons with disabilities in relevant social and health insurance schemes;

Pay attention to the links between article 28 of the Convention and target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Brazil (2015)

50. The Committee is concerned that many persons with disabilities are living in poverty and have no access to resources for adequate standard of living; it is particularly concerned about persons with disabilities living in isolated indigenous communities, rural and remote areas who are exposed to exclusion and extreme poverty conditions.

51. The Committee recommends the State party to review the qualification requirements for social protection to ensure access for persons with disabilities who are living in poverty and enable them to cover expenses related to impairment, giving particular attention to those living in isolated indigenous communities, rural and remote areas.

European Union (2015)

66. The Committee notes with deep concern the disproportionately adverse and retrogressive effect the austerity measures in the EU have on the adequate standard of living of persons with disabilities.

67. The Committee recommends that the European Union take urgent measures, in cooperation with its Member States and representative organisations of persons with disabilities, to prevent further adverse and retrogressive effect of austerity measures on the adequate standard of living of persons with disabilities, including by the provision of a minimum social protection floor.

Gabon (2015)

60. The Committee is concerned that the existing allocation of social protection for persons with disabilities and their families is insufficient to ensure an adequate standard of living.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party identify a social protection floor that covers the minimum content of the right to an adequate standard of living, on an equal basis with others; ensure access of persons with disabilities to social protection programmes; and take account of and cover the additional costs of disability for the individual circumstances of each person.

Kenya (2015)

49. The Committee is concerned about the situation of poverty in households with persons with disabilities both in rural and urban areas and in particular among persons with disabilities in ethnic minority groups. It is also concerned about the lack of regularity in the distribution of support and services in rural areas and the absence of monitoring social assistance services for persons with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take steps to extend urgently the coverage of social protection schemes beyond persons with “severe disabilities” in order to ensure an adequate standard of living to all persons with disabilities that are currently not eligible for social protection schemes, as well as ensure that distribution of support services and social assistance for persons with disabilities is provided on regular basis and the monitoring in the progress in the living conditions of persons with disabilities;

Expand the coverage of the National Development Fund for Persons with Disabilities and facilitate the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the formulation of their goals and priorities; and Adopt measures to include persons with disabilities in post-2015 development policies, and monitoring with a community and rural focus, and ensure that their needs, perspectives and views are taken into account in these policies.

Ukraine (2015)

52. While noting the difficulties that the State party is facing as a consequence of the ongoing conflict, the Committee is nevertheless concerned that the disability pension is extremely low and is not sufficient to meet the basic needs of a person, including food, medical and social needs.

53. The Committee calls upon the State party to review its budgetary allocations and increase the disability pension in order to provide persons with disabilities with adequate standard of living. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that resources for persons with disabilities are not adversely affected by inflation, budget cuts or any forms of crisis.

Croatia (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned that many persons with disabilities live under conditions of poverty, particularly those in rural areas and those of Roma origin. The Committee is further concerned about the use of a restrictive financial assets test, which has downgraded the disability benefit to a social protection benefit.

44. The Committee recommends that poverty reduction programmes be strengthened. It further recommends that benefits aiming at alleviating increased costs arising from disability should be based on an assessment of the individual's support needs, and should disregard any financial assets test.

Czech Republic (2015)

52. The Committee notes with concern that the Act No. 329/2011 Coll., on the Provision of Benefits to Persons with Disabilities has led to “factual revision of the spectrum of benefits, the purpose thereof and the group of persons to be provided the benefits” (CRPD/C/ CZE /Q/1/Add.1, paragraph 170), and had an adverse effect on the enjoyment of the rights to an adequate standard of living and to social protection of persons with disabilities, including boys and girls with disabilities.

53. The Committee calls upon the State party to review the legislation, with genuine participation of persons with disabilities, to reintroduce the additional social allowance which would increase the living standard of families with children with disabilities above the subsistence level, and to broaden the range of and facilitate access to assistive devices for children with disabilities regardless of age

54. The Committee notes with concern that a number of disability pension beneficiaries are at risk of being denied access to retirement pensions as the period during which they receive a disability pension is not included in the insurance period.

55. The Committee calls upon the State party to revise its legislation and the newly established method of calculating the relevant period from the beginning of disability until the entitlement of retirement pensions, as this has resulted in the amount of the pensions received by persons with disabilities at the third level being below the minimum subsistence level.

Dominican Republic (2015)

52. Le preocupa al Comité el subregistro en las cifras del Sistema Único de Beneficiarios (SIUBEN) sobre personas con discapacidad que viven en condiciones de pobreza, lo que provoca su exclusión, de las estrategias, políticas y programas para la reducción de la pobreza. Igualmente, considera que la ausencia de apoyos financieros a las personas con discapacidad para compensar los gastos adicionales en los que incurren por motivo de su discapacidad, agravan las condiciones de pobreza en que se encuentran.

53. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte incluir de manera prioritaria a las personas con discapacidad dominicanas y a las personas con discapacidad en situación migratoria irregular en sus estrategias de reducción de la pobreza y en los programas de asistencia social, tales como apoyos para compensar los gastos adicionales en que incurren por motivo de su discapacidad, incluyendo subsidios en la compra de dispositivos de asistencia, medicamentos y servicios de asistencia, con el fin de mitigar el impacto de tales gastos en la profundización de la pobreza.

Germany (2015)

51. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities use personal finances to pay for additional disability-related costs, especially in relation to live independently.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately undertake a review of the personal income used by persons with disabilities to meet their needs and to live independently. The Committee further recommends that the State party to provide social services to persons with disabilities that provide the same living standards compared to persons without disabilities on comparable incomes.

Mongolia (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective data collection on the standard of living of persons with disabilities and the resulting lack of information to guide the formulation and implementation of social support measures for ensuring an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities.

44. The Committee recommends the State party to increase the quantity of social benefit in line with minimum wages and minimum standard of living, and develop and implement compensation schemes for persons with disabilities with regard to disability-related extra expenses incurred by persons with disabilities and their families.

Turkmenistan (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information regarding concrete references to persons with disabilities within programmes for the socioeconomic development and other national economic, political and cultural development strategies and programmes.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party make sure to include the needs of persons with disabilities expressly in all national programmes and strategies aimed at the development of the country, in close cooperation with international organizations in order to benefit from their technical assistance.

New Zealand (2014)

59. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have a lower socioeconomic status when compared with other New Zealanders. In particular, children with disabilities are overrepresented in statistics on child poverty and are more likely to be living in one-parent households. The support and income/pension provided to persons with disabilities differs according to the cause of their disability, which results in an unjustified and unreasonable difference in their standard of living and social protection.

60. The Committee recommends that a review be undertaken of disability-related costs to ensure a sufficient allocation of income/pension, in particular for children with disabilities, and their families.

Republic of Korea (2014)

53. The Committee is concerned that the National Basic Living Security Act excludes from the benefit of minimum living support those persons with disabilities whose family members have a certain amount of income or property. It is also concerned that eligibility for the minimum living support benefit is based on the existing disability grading system and is limited to "persons with severe disabilities".

54. The Committee recommends that the State party grant the minimum living support benefit on the basis of the personal characteristics, circumstances and needs of persons with disabilities, rather than on the basis of the disability grading system and on the income and property of their family.

Ecuador (2014)

44. The Committee is concerned that the social housing prototype of the Ministry of Urban Development and Housing has been designed without taking into account the universal design component that would make it possible for persons with disabilities to make use of such housing.

45. The Committee recommends that the social housing prototype be reviewed and redesigned to take account of the needs of persons with disabilities and that housing planned from the perspective of universal design.

Mexico (2014)

53. The Committee is deeply concerned at the exclusion, poverty, lack of access to drinking water, sanitation and decent housing, and the overall conditions of poverty experienced by indigenous persons with disabilities and at the lack of information in this regard. It is further concerned that the National Commission for the Development of Indigenous Peoples does not have a work programme for persons with disabilities and that its own premises and services are not accessible.

54. The Committee urges the State party to:

Step up efforts to include indigenous persons with disabilities in post-2015 development policies, with a community and rural focus, and ensure that their needs, perspectives and views are taken into account in these policies;

Set up a system to periodically monitor initiatives for indigenous peoples under the National Programme for the Development and Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities; and

Take special measures to eliminate the particular disadvantages faced by indigenous women, children and older persons with disabilities who have been abandoned or live in extreme poverty.

Costa Rica (2014)

57. The Committee is concerned that housing allowances and medicine subsidies for persons with disabilities are disbursed only to those who meet poverty criteria and do not take account of the socioeconomic factors that aggravate disabilities.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a public policy of inclusive development based on the human rights model for persons with disabilities, which incorporates the gender perspective and gives specific consideration to indigenous persons and those living in rural areas. It also recommends that, as part of its social protection and anti-poverty policies, it provides assistance in alleviating the severe socioeconomic disadvantages that result from the exclusion experienced by persons with disabilities.

El Salvador (2013)

57. The Committee notes that social protection measures mainly protect persons whose disabilities result from the armed conflict, and that the State does not have strategies for fulfilling the various aspects of the right to an adequate standard of living and social protection, such as a home, clothing, food, drinking water and poverty reduction. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities tend to be illiterate, that those living in rural and remote areas cannot access certain basic services, such as drinking water and sanitation, and that plans to provide water do not take their needs into account.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, including children, have access to social protection and non-contributory pension schemes. It also recommends that the State party adopt public policies, including poverty reduction strategies, which foster the fulfilment of the right to an adequate standard of living and social protection of persons with disabilities, as well as allocate the necessary budget for their implementation. The Committee urges the State party to adopt, through consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, measures for the elimination of barriers to the access of such persons to basic services, drinking water and sanitation in rural and remote areas, and to include the organizations in monitoring their implementation.

Paraguay (2013)

67. The Committee notes the introduction of a disability voucher. It is nevertheless concerned at the fact that, though it is non-contributory, the amount of the voucher is not consistent with the right to an adequate standard of living for persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned at the inadequacy of measures to compensate persons with disabilities and their families, whose income is reduced because of their disability; it is also concerned at the lack of policies on access to housing and development.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a public policy on development that includes gender-sensitive strategies specifically aimed at reducing poverty and providing access to development for persons with disabilities and their families, including guarantees of decent housing on an equal footing with others, and paying particular attention to persons living in rural areas.

Argentina (2012)

45. The Committee notes with concern that provisions in the State party's laws on non-contributory pensions (including the requirement set out in Regulatory Decree No. 432/97 and the eligibility requirement for a welfare pension based on the presence of a disability established in Act No. 18.910) discriminate, either directly or indirectly, against persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about the unequal treatment of migrant workers with disabilities and disabled children of migrant workers in terms of access to social protection measures, such as disability pensions, health care, rehabilitation services and housing.

46. The Committee urges the State party to review its social security legislation and to reformulate the provisions that prevent persons with disabilities, including migrant workers and disabled children of migrant workers, from having equal access to social protection in accordance with article 28 of the Convention.

China (2012)

43. While appreciating the existence of a policy of poverty reduction and providing benefits and subsidies, the Committee is concerned about the gap to receive such benefits between the persons with disabilities living in rural and urban areas.

44. The Committee recommends that the state party increases measures to remedy the gap for the awarding of benefits between rural and urban areas and take steps to ensure that persons with disabilities regardless of how they acquire their disability have immediate access to certification and benefits. It asks the state party to specifically inform persons with disabilities in rural areas of their right to benefit and develop a system to prevent the corruption in the context of allocation and distribution of welfare benefits by local officials.

Hong-Kong (2012)

79. The Committee is concerned about the family-based assessment for application and eligibility to receive the Comprehensive Social Security Assistance. In addition, the Committee is worried about the different standards employed by doctors in approving the disability allowance.

80. The Committee suggests that Hong Kong, China, replace the family-based assessment with an individual-based one in order to determine the eligibility to receive the Comprehensive Social Security Assistance. The Committee also recommends that Hong Kong, China, introduce uniform standards for approving the disability allowance.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 29 CRPD
(Participation in political and public life)*

September 2025

Article 29 - Participation in political and public life

States Parties shall guarantee to persons with disabilities political rights and the opportunity to enjoy them on an equal basis with others, and shall undertake:

a) To ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively and fully participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others, directly or through freely chosen representatives, including the right and opportunity for persons with disabilities to vote and be elected, inter alia, by:

i. Ensuring that voting procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible and easy to understand and use;

ii. Protecting the right of persons with disabilities to vote by secret ballot in elections and public referendums without intimidation, and to stand for elections, to effectively hold office and perform all public functions at all levels of government, facilitating the use of assistive and new technologies where appropriate;

iii. Guaranteeing the free expression of the will of persons with disabilities as electors and to this end, where necessary, at their request, allowing assistance in voting by a person of their own choice;

b) To promote actively an environment in which persons with disabilities can effectively and fully participate in the conduct of public affairs, without discrimination and on an equal basis with others, and encourage their participation in public affairs, including:

i. Participation in non-governmental organizations and associations concerned with the public and political life of the country, and in the activities and administration of political parties;

ii. Forming and joining organizations of persons with disabilities to represent persons with disabilities at international, national, regional and local levels.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)

Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)

Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)

Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)
Tunisia (2010)

Please note there are no recommendations on Cuba, South Africa, Nepal, Brazil, Belgium and Ecuador.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

56. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of specific information regarding persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, who hold decision-making positions in public offices, including in the Supreme People's Assembly, and the lack of accessible opportunities to participate in policymaking processes that affect them;
- (b) The lack of measures to ensure the full accessibility of polling stations and voting materials for persons with disabilities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Take specific steps to increase the representation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in decision-making positions and political bodies, including the Supreme People's Assembly;
- (b) Take measures to provide reasonable accommodation and to ensure the full accessibility of polling stations, voting materials and information for a diversity of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with autism, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities as well as persons with physical disabilities, and that it do so with the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations.

Finland (2025)

56. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The low participation of persons with disabilities in elected positions and in political parties;
- (b) Persistent accessibility barriers in voting centers, as well as deficiencies in guaranteeing the secrecy of voting;
- (c) The limited allocation of resources on specific projects for organizations of persons with disabilities, including those stemming from Funding Centre for Social Welfare and Health Organizations;
- (d) The lack of a strategy for the implementation of the new Åland Islands electoral legislation.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Develop educational programs on electoral rights and participation in public and political life of persons with disabilities, for their active participation in politics, to stand for elections, to participate in all decision-making bodies, and collect data on the participation of persons with disabilities in elections, as candidates and as voters;
- (b) Ensure accessibility of all polling stations, establish mechanisms to guarantee the secrecy of ballots for all persons with disabilities and reconsider the introduction of a digital voting system accessible for persons with disabilities;
- (c) Guarantee that organizations of persons with disabilities have sufficient funding and resources, including the Funding Centre for Social Welfare and Health Organizations, to carry out activities promoting the participation in political and public life of persons with disabilities;
- (d) Implement the new Åland Islands electoral legislation.

Kiribati (2025)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The limited accessibility of polling stations, in voting procedures, facilities and materials and the lack of election-related accessible information, taking into account the diversity of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The low level of participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that electoral legislation recognises the right of persons with disabilities to vote on an equal basis with others, including by removing any limitation to the right to vote or participate in elections due to disability, including intellectual or psychosocial disability;
- (b) Take targeted measures with adequate resources to ensure access to electoral processes by persons with disabilities including by ensuring accessibility of polling stations, voting materials, and election campaigns, and the use of Braille, audiovisual materials with sign language interpretation, and other methods of communication;
- (c) Take specific steps, including affirmative action to increase the representation of persons with disabilities in public life, decision-making positions and in elected political bodies.

Maldives (2025)

57. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That despite the provisions of the Constitution and the Electoral Law recognizing the right of persons with disabilities to political participation, the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, as well as women with disabilities, is extremely low;
- (b) The insufficient accessibility of voting material and polling stations;
- (c) The participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the Local Councils is limited.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, as well as women with disabilities, in political and public life and in public administration and facilitate an environment for them to hold public office and perform public functions at all levels, by providing assistive devices and personal assistance;
- (b) Strengthen accessibility measures for elections, including the permanent use of tactile guides for ballots, Easy Read materials, sign language interpretation, and the introduction of alternative voting methods such as postal voting or mobile voting stations;
- (c) Provide persons with disabilities with reasonable accommodation and support, such as sign language, materials accessible in digital formats, Braille, Easy Read, to guarantee their effective participation, through their representative organizations, in the design and implementation of local development plans undertaken by Local Development Councils;
- (d) Launch, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, educational programmes on participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life, including on electoral rights, as well as adopt specific policies to encourage and enable persons with disabilities to be politically active and run for elections, participate in all decision-making spaces, and collect information on persons with disabilities who run for elections.

Canada (2025)

57. The Committee commends the State Party on its policies on voting accessibility for persons with disabilities. However, it is concerned about:

- (a) Disparities in election processes across jurisdictions that impact the accessibility for persons with disabilities, including for blind persons and persons with vision impairment, insufficient sign language interpreters for deaf persons, lack of alternative methods of voting and registering to vote and lack of procedures to ensure the right to vote for persons of disabilities in institutions, including psychiatric facilities and prisons;
- (b) The lack of procedures to ensure a secret ballot for persons with disabilities;
- (c) Laws that deny legal capacity that prevent persons with disabilities from exercising their right to vote, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

58. The lack of education and capacity building measures to ensure persons with disabilities are aware of their right to vote and participate in politics and public life, and measures to address the underrepresentation of persons with disabilities in political and public life, including in decision-making positions at federal, provincial, and territorial level.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

- (a) Exercise federal leadership to ensure national consistency in the accessibility of election processes for persons with disabilities, including by ensuring accessible election materials and information and establishing procedures to ensure that persons in institutions can exercise their right vote;
- (b) Develop processes and procedures to ensure that persons with disabilities can cast a secret ballot;
- (c) Repeal laws that deny legal capacity and prevent persons with disabilities from exercising their right to vote;
- (d) Establish education and capacity building programmes on voting rights and participation in public and political life for persons with disabilities, as well as specific policies to facilitate the participation of persons with disabilities in public and political life, including by being politically active, standing for elections, and participating in decision-making fora.

Dominican Republic (2025)

53. The Committee is concerned about the low rates of representation and participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in political life and public decision-making, and the lack of affirmative action to enable persons with disabilities to stand for election, be elected and effectively hold public office at all levels of government.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations encourage the presence of persons with disabilities, especially women, in elected office, ensure that they receive the reasonable accommodations they require, and take affirmative action to enable them to stand for election, be elected and effectively hold public office at all levels of government.

European Union (2025)

68. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Barriers to full participation in public and political life by persons with disabilities, including the denial of their right to vote in European elections and to stand for public office inaccessible voting procedures and the lack of accessible information;
- (b) Barriers to access the European Parliament, European Commission and other EU buildings, including European Delegations in and outside Europe.

69. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Ensure the right to vote and stand in elections for the EU Parliament of all citizens with disabilities, irrespective of their legal capacity status, and provide reasonable accommodations and accessible voting methods and information, including Easy Read and accessible voting methods for blind, deaf and hard of hearing persons;
- (b) Render all EU buildings and institutions in and outside Europe accessible.

Palau (2025)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That article VII of the Constitution restricts the right to vote of persons with disabilities on the basis of impairment, particularly individuals with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities who have been declared mentally incompetent by a court;
- (b) About the limited accessibility in physical environments of polling stations, in voting procedures, facilities and materials and the insufficient election-related information, taking into account the diversity of persons with disabilities;
- (c) At the low level of participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Review and amend the Constitution and other discriminatory legislation that hinder the political participation of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Take targeted measures with adequate resources to ensure full accessibility of polling stations, voting materials, and election campaigns, including the use of Braille, audiovisual materials with sign language interpretation, and other methods of communication;
- (c) Take measures, including specific measures to achieve de facto equality such as quotas and other measures such as provision of support, to encourage persons with disabilities including women with disabilities to run for elections at national and local level to increase the number of persons with disabilities who take decision making positions in the legislators and public service.

Tuvalu (2025)

53. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the electoral process is not accessible and inclusive for persons with disabilities across the islands;
- (b) That Section 18 on Method of Voting of the Tuvalu Kaupule (Elections) Regulations prevents persons with disabilities to vote in secrecy, as it requires the presence of an officer to place the ballot paper;
- (c) That Falekaupule Act prevents persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities to vote;
- (d) The low representation of women with disabilities in decision-making positions and in elected political bodies.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a national plan to ensure the accessibility of election materials, polling stations and election information across the islands;
- (b) Repeal or amend all laws and policies that restrict or deny persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, the right to vote and stand for elections, and ensure their full participation in electoral process and in political and public life;
- (c) Take all measures to establish a constitutional right to vote for all persons with disabilities and amend all electoral laws to ensure access to the electoral system as voters and candidates for all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (d) Take specific steps, including affirmative action to increase the representation of women with disabilities in public life, decision-making positions and in elected political bodies.

Viet Nam (2025)

57. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Persons with disabilities who are unable to vote because of their disability have to ask another person to vote on their behalf;
- (b) Voting procedures, polling stations, and election-related information are often inaccessible, restricting the political participation and election of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Data on persons with disabilities who hold public office and perform public functions is not available;

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that all persons with disabilities, regardless of their level of support needs, are provided with the necessary assistance to exercise their right to vote and to be elected;
- (b) Take concrete steps to ensure the full accessibility of elections, including making polling stations, voting materials, and political processes fully accessible for all persons with disabilities, and facilitate the participation of persons with disabilities in political parties, ensuring they have the opportunity to run as candidates for elected office;
- (c) Collect data on persons with disabilities who hold public office and perform public functions.

Belarus (2024)

57. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) The low level of participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in the political life, including in high-level decision-making positions;
- (b) The lack of accessible leadership programs for children, youth and adults encouraging persons with disabilities serving as role models to support, mentor and train persons with disabilities for leadership.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Create infrastructures for leadership development and training especially among women and girls with disabilities, as well as taking care of the necessary adjustments, while disseminating this information widely so that people with disabilities can be used in various leadership positions;
- (b) Make leadership programs accessible to all persons, youths and children with disabilities, and allocate adequate positions for persons with disabilities to ensure their participation in decision-making processes.

Belgium (2024)

60. The Committee notes that measures have been taken at regional and community levels to improve accessibility to voting sites and procedures for persons with disabilities. However, it notes with concern:

- (a) That Article 7 of the Electoral Code allow for the suspension of voting rights based on impairment;
- (b) That under Article 492/1 of the Civil Code as amended by the law of 28 March 2023, a judge who places persons with disabilities under judicial protection measure has the power to declare them incapable of exercising their political rights;
- (c) The lack of accessibility of some polling stations, voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as of information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, and online or printed election material;
- (d) The lack of measures to ensure the effective representation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making positions at the federal, regional, community and municipal levels.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party, with the active involvement of and in close consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Amend all relevant legislative provisions, to remove all measures depriving persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disability, of their right to vote, and provide the measures necessary to support them in their decision-making processes;
- (b) Require political parties to provide their programs and other communication in accessible formats;
- (c) Enhance the measures taken to ensure accessibility of voting, including the physical environment, and the provision of electoral material and information, in accessible formats, for all persons with disabilities;
- (d) Adopt a strategy to promote the effective participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public life, and in decision-making positions of State and private entities at the national, regional, community and municipal levels.

Benin (2024)

57. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the electoral process is not accessible to and inclusive for persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas;
- (b) The low level of representation of women with disabilities in decision-making positions and in elected and appointed political bodies in rural and urban areas. (review with Getty's comment)

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a national plan to provide accessibility of electoral materials, voting polls and information about elections across the country;
- (b) Repeal all laws and policies that restrict or deny persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, the right to vote and stand for elections, and ensure their full participation in electoral processes and in political and public life;

(c) Take specific measures to increase the representation of women with disabilities in public life, decision-making positions and in elected political bodies in rural and urban areas.

Burkina Faso (2024)

54. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That there are still persons with disabilities considered “incapables” under the 2001 Electoral Code and therefore excluded from the right to vote and to stand as candidates in elections;

(b) The lack of enforcement of Article 41 of Act No. 012-2010/AN of 1 April 2010 which provides that electoral procedures, equipment and material must be appropriate and accessible to persons with disabilities;

(c) The lack of information for organizations of persons with disabilities about statistical studies carried out in connection with the electoral process.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take the necessary and effective measures to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in public and political life on an equal basis with other citizens, including amending the Electoral Code, in particular Articles 44 and 135 which restrict the electoral rights of persons with disabilities, and bring it in line with the Convention;

(b) Make the electoral processes accessible to persons with disabilities as provided in law in Article 41 of Act No. 012-2010/AN of 1 April 2010, which provides that electoral procedures, equipment and material must be appropriate and accessible to persons with disabilities;

(c) Ensure close consultations and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those of women with disabilities, in programmes and studies carried out on persons with disabilities in connection with the electoral process and other aspects of public life.

Denmark (2024)

75. The Committee notes that the amendment to the Guardianship Act introduced a form of partial deprivation of a person’s legal capacity which does not result in incapacitation of the right to stand and vote in general elections and referendum; however, it is concerned that the full deprivation of a person’s legal capacity is still in use and is still depriving persons with disabilities of their political rights. The Committee is also concerned that persons with disability have a significantly lower electoral turnout than other persons, due, in part, to inaccessible polling stations, ballots, voter meetings and election information and material.

76. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities to vote and to stand for election without exception or exclusion;

(b) Render polling stations and ballots accessible and provide electoral information and material in accessible formats, and provide supports required by persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities to effectively exercise their right to vote.

Ghana (2024)

56. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Article 42 and 94 (2)(ii) of the Constitution excludes persons with intellectual and or psychosocial disabilities from voting or registering to vote or to be members of Parliament;

- (b) Information about lack of voting locations, political platforms, and public offices that are not physically accessible to persons with disabilities;
- (c) Information on the requirements of persons with disabilities registered to vote in different voting stations is not made available to electoral officers ahead of time;
- (d) Low level of involvement of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities in representational politics;
- (e) Limited awareness among political parties and the public about the rights of persons with disabilities and hence why the representation of persons with disabilities in political positions is notably low.

57. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Review and amend the Constitution and other discriminatory legal frameworks that hinder the political participation of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Carry out accessibility audits and ensure physical accessibility of all voting locations, political platforms, and public offices to voters with disabilities;
- (c) Develop, in a manner compatible with the right to privacy, a voter registration database with information on voters with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age and impairment, and avail the information to election officers prior to the voting to enable them to prepare and ensure full participation of persons with disabilities, ensuring the confidentiality and respect for the privacy of persons with disabilities;
- (d) Encourage the active participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities in representational politics;
- (e) Raise awareness among political parties and the public about the rights and contributions of persons with disabilities, in order to increase representation in elective positions and significant public roles.

Mauritius (2024)

51. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The national legislation, including the Constitution and Local Government Act 2011, continue to restrict the right of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities to be eligible to be registered as an elector, to vote in elections and to be elected in the National Assembly and local government;
- (b) Persons with disabilities continue to face barriers in exercising their right to vote due to insufficient accessibility of polling stations, voting procedures and information about elections, including public electoral debates and electoral programmes;
- (c) There is a lack of representation of persons with disabilities among elected officials and in civil service, as well as in political and public decision-making processes, especially in matters that affect the daily living condition of persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend the Constitution and electoral laws that restrict or deny persons with disabilities the right to vote and stand for elections, and introduce legislative and policy measures to ensure their effective and full participation in electoral processes and in political and public life on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Build on the existing measures being implemented in order to progress towards the full accessibility of voting procedures, facilities, materials and election campaigns, by ensuring accessibility provisions at polling stations and access to political information through print and online election materials in accessible formats, such as Braille, plain language, Easy Read, sign language and accessible websites;
- (c) Facilitate measures and processes that empower persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, to run for office in the government and for civil service, and ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, at all levels of decision-making, planning, implementation and monitoring with regard to elections and their inclusion in other forms of public affairs.

Netherlands (2024)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The interpretative declaration to Article 29, which provides an interpretation of assistance that leads to a denial of reasonable accommodation of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The low participation of persons with disabilities in public and political life, including in election campaigns;
- (c) The continued lack of accessibility of the voting procedure, including the physical inaccessibility of polling stations and booths and the lack of accessible information.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

- (a) Withdraw its interpretative declaration to art. 29 of the Convention and amend the legislative frameworks to include assistance as a form of reasonable accommodation in order ensure the human rights of all persons with disabilities;
- (b) Develop and ensure the implementation of measures to promote the effective and full participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life on an equal basis with others, including the right and opportunity for persons with disabilities to vote and to stand for elections, and access to high-level decision-making positions at national, regions and municipal levels, and increase their participation in public services by taking into account indicator 16.7.1 of the Sustainable Development Goals;
- (c) Ensure the accessibility of voting material and polling stations across all regions and municipalities, as well as of election campaigns, including by providing support measures for persons with intellectual disabilities through alternative and augmentative modes of information.

Ukraine (2024)

58. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Article 36 of the State party's Constitution contains an exceptional condition pertaining the right to vote, and Article 7. (2) on Electoral Code prohibits the right to vote to a citizen who has been declared incapacitated by a court;
- (b) A lack of comprehensive measures to ensure voting procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible, and easy to understand and use.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

- (a) Amend article 36 of the State party's Constitution, repeal Article 7. (2) of the Electoral Code, and adopt measures to guarantee that all persons with disabilities access political rights and the opportunity to enjoy them on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Adopt comprehensive measures to ensure persons with disabilities effectively and fully participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others, directly or through freely chosen representatives, and voting procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible and easy to understand and use.

Azerbaijan (2024)

63. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) The Constitution (articles 25 VI and 56 II) restricts the right to participate in elections and referendums for persons recognized by a court decision as lacking legal capacity (HRI/CORE/AZE/2023, see para. 105);
- (b) The lack of a duty to provide the public with information about candidates with disabilities to the election commissions during elections (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, para. 246);
- (c) Reports about restrictive electoral environments limiting full participation of persons with disabilities in public affairs, including due to limitations in the right of association and expression, lack of plural electoral participation, absence of political alternatives during presidential elections.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal constitutional provisions concerning deprivation of legal capacity and excluding persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities from participation in elections and referendums and provide them with information in accessible formats, including Easy Read, about their rights to participate in political and public life, including their right to vote, the free expression of their will as electors;
- (b) Ensure the provision of information in accessible formats on candidates with disabilities during elections to the election commissions;
- (c) Allow persons with disabilities to participate in the political and electoral process and their involvement in public affairs.

Bahrain (2024)¹

58. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities are most at risk of such illegal practices, especially in the absence of measures to ensure that they can exercise their right to vote independently and confidentially, and the Committee is particularly concerned about the following:

- (a) The absence of any measures in the Law on the Exercise of Political Rights No. 14 of 2002, the Law on Shura Councils and Representatives No. 15 of 2002 and the Municipalities Law No. 35 of 2001 to ensure the effective participation of persons with disabilities in political life, including parliamentary and local elections, whether as voters or candidates; (b) The lack of accessibility and arrangements for persons with disabilities to exercise their right to vote independently and confidentially.
- (b) The lack of accessibility and accommodations at polling stations and the failure to provide information and election materials in accessible formats, especially sign language and easy reading.
- (c) Lack of representation of persons with disabilities in trade unions, political bodies and associations.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party

- (a) Review the laws governing political rights and parliamentary and municipal elections and include provisions to ensure the effective participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, in political life.
- (b) Provide accessibility of information at polling stations and electoral materials and legislation in accessible formats for persons with disabilities.
- (c) Involve persons with disabilities and their organizations, especially women with disabilities, in observing parliamentary and municipal elections.

Costa Rica (2024)

49. El Comité nota con preocupación las bajas tasas de representación y participación de las personas con discapacidad, especialmente de las mujeres con discapacidad, en la vida política y la toma de decisiones públicas, así como la falta de implementación de acciones afirmativas para que las personas con discapacidad puedan postularse como candidatos en elecciones, ser electas y ejercer efectivamente cargos públicos en todos los niveles de gobierno.

50. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte incentivar la presencia de personas con discapacidad, especialmente mujeres, en cargos de representación popular tanto en la capital como en las municipalidades y asegurarse de que reciban los ajustes razonables que requieran en cada caso, e implementar acciones afirmativas para que las personas con discapacidad puedan postularse como candidatos en elecciones, ser electas y ejercer efectivamente cargos públicos en todos los niveles de gobierno.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

Kazakhstan (2024)

61. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Provisions in the Civil Code preventing persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities under guardianship to vote, stand for public office, serve as members of election commissions or in the civil service, or to participate in public councils;
- (b) A lack of information on measures to ensure the participation of women with disabilities in officially registered political parties, in elective office and in politically appointed government positions;
- (c) A lack of information about the accessibility of election facilities and about the privacy of their vote.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Revise the Civil Code and guarantee to all persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, including persons with disabilities under guardianship, the right to vote, stand for public office, serve as members of election commission and of the civil service, and to participate in public councils;
- (b) Support persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, to stand for election and to hold office, on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Ensure full accessibility of voting procedures, the voting environment, facilities and materials, and the right of all persons with disabilities to vote through secret ballot, on their own or with the assistance of a person of their choice, and with full respect for the expression of their free will.

Nicaragua (2024)

60. El Comité nota que, a la fecha del informe, 22 alcaldes, 226 concejales y 4 diputados titulares y suplentes en el Estado parte son personas con discapacidad, sin embargo, le preocupa:

- a) La escasa participación de las personas con discapacidad, en particular de las mujeres con discapacidad, en la vida política y pública;
- b) La limitada accesibilidad de los procedimientos, las instalaciones y los materiales de votación, así como la insuficiente información sobre las elecciones, para todas las personas con discapacidad.

61. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que, en consulta estrecha y colaboración activa con las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan:

- a) Promueva activamente la participación de las personas con discapacidad, especialmente de mujeres con discapacidad, en los partidos políticos para que sean propuestas como candidatas a los puestos de elección popular tanto en la capital como en los municipios y asegurar que reciban los ajustes razonables que requieran en cada caso;
- b) Redoble esfuerzos para garantizar que los procedimientos, instalaciones y materiales de votación sean adecuados, accesibles y fáciles de entender y utilizar para todas las personas con discapacidad, así como que se realicen los ajustes necesarios en lo relativo a la información electoral, en particular en la retransmisión en los medios y las campañas electorales.

Sweden (2024)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Low participation of persons with disabilities in public and political life, including in election campaigns, as well as about the lack of leadership programs for persons with all types of disabilities, particularly women;

(b) The lack of accessibility to voting procedures, facilities and materials for all persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with physical, intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop and ensure the implementation of sustainable policies and measures to promote the effective and full participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in political and public life on an equal basis with others, including the right and opportunity for persons with disabilities to vote and to stand for elections, and access to high-level decision-making positions at national, regional and municipal levels, and increase their participation in public services by taking into account indicator 16.7.1 of the Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) Ensure the accessibility of voting material and polling stations, in particular in remote areas, across the regions and the municipalities, as well as of election campaigns, including by applying support measures for persons with intellectual disabilities through alternative and augmentative modes of information.

Zambia \(2024\)

57. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That sections 70 (2) (d), 157 (2) (f) and 116 (3) (f) of the Constitution prevent persons with physical and intellectual disabilities to stand for elections or to be appointed for some positions, and that discrimination in practice persist for persons with disabilities;

(b) That electoral process is not accessible and inclusive for persons with disabilities, particularly in the remote and rural areas;

(c) The low level of representation of women with disabilities in decision-making positions and in elected and appointed political bodies in rural and urban areas.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal or amend all laws and policies that restrict or deny persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, the right to vote and stand for elections, and ensure their full participation in electoral process and in political and public life;

(b) Take all measures to establish a constitutional right to vote for all persons with disabilities and amend all electoral laws to ensure access to the electoral system as voters and candidates for all persons with disabilities, including persons with physical, psychosocial disabilities and the deaf, and adopt effective measures to ensure the accessibility of the voting environment, including the physical environment and provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

(c) Take specific steps, including affirmative action to increase the representation of women with disabilities in public life, decision-making positions and in elected political bodies in rural and urban areas.

(c) Undertake specific public education on the rights of persons with albinism to address myths around albinism which have made them a target for ritual attacks.

Andorra (2023)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low representation and participation of persons with disabilities in political and public decision-making, taking into account that the State party reported that only two persons with disabilities hold political positions of representation, one at the Consell General and one in a Comú;
- (b) That persons with disabilities only have five working days following the day of publication of the date set for the elections to request the necessary information in accessible formats;
- (c) The insufficient accessibility of electoral procedures, facilities, polling stations, and voting materials.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen specific measures to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, in political life and in public administration and facilitate an environment for them to hold public office and perform all public functions at all levels of government by, inter alia, providing assistive devices and personal assistance;
- (b) Review electoral legislation to expand the time provided to persons with disabilities to request the necessary information in accessible formats;
- (c) Enhance measures taken to ensure the accessibility of the voting environment, including the physical environment, and the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities.

Austria (2023)

65. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Voting and election procedures (active right to vote) are not fully accessible;;
- (b) Participation in political and public life of children and young persons with disabilities is seriously limited.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that voting and election procedures are fully accessible for persons with disabilities, including by training election officials, party officials and members of civil society organizations, and by providing the respective material in accessible formats such as Easy Read, Simple German, Braille, and others.
- (b) Foster and support organizations of children with disabilities, in accordance with General Comment No. 7 (2018), to improve their participation in political and public life.

Germany (2023)

65. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of reasonable accommodation, in particular sign language interpretation, in political parties and unions, which hinders the participation of deaf and hard of hearing persons;
- (b) The low participation of women with disabilities in political and public life and the lack of data identifying barriers for their participation;
- (c) The lack of accessibility in polling stations, particularly in rural areas.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take measures to ensure accessibility and reasonable accommodation, including sign language interpretation, for persons with disabilities in political parties and unions;
- (b) Allocate the necessary resources to conduct research on barriers that prevent women with disabilities' participation and engagement in public life and promote capacity development programs, in close consultation with women with disabilities and their representative organizations;
- (c) Ensure accessibility of voting material and polling stations, particularly in rural areas, across the Länder, and in the development of electronic voting systems.

Israel (2023)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Reports of the relatively low number of accessible polling booths and insufficient measures to ensure access for persons with disabilities to cast their vote;
- (b) The limited information concerning accessibility and reasonable accommodation for members with disabilities of Knesset.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the capacity of the Subcommittee to improve accessibility for voters and adopt a plan with time frames to ensure full accessibility of voting procedures, voting environment, facilities and materials for all persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt measures to provide support for candidates with disabilities to stand for election and hold office on an equal basis with others and ensure progress in accessibility of information, premises and processes at the Knesset.

Malawi (2023)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Legislation that disenfranchises persons with psychosocial and persons with intellectual disabilities from their right to vote and restricts the right to stand for election;
- (b) The slow progress in ensuring accessibility of polling booths and the lack of electoral information and materials in accessible formats;
- (c) The limited participation of persons with disabilities in political parties, and in entities in charge of implementing disability policies at the community level, such as the Area Development Committees and Village Development Committees, and the retrogression in participation of persons with disabilities appointed at senior positions in the public sector.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Review all legislation including the Constitution with the aim to recognise the right of persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities to vote and to stand for elections;
- (b) Set-up a plan and allocate human, technical and financial resources to ensure that the voting environment including the premises, polling booths, electoral information and materials are accessible to all persons with disabilities, including the provision of information in Easy Read augmentative and alternative and all other accessible means of communication;
- (c) Adopt guidelines to ensure inclusion of persons with disabilities in political parties, introduce positive measures to encourage and facilitate persons with disabilities involvement in entities responsible for implementing disability related policies at the community level, and address the gap in representation of persons with disabilities in public positions, including at the senior level.

Mauritania (2023)

49. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low level of representation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making processes and in public life;
- (b) The lack of accessibility of polling stations, voting procedures, facilities, print and online material, and general information about elections, including public electoral debates and electoral programmes, for persons with disabilities, including persons with visual impairments, persons with hearing impairments and persons with intellectual disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making processes at all levels and in political life in general;

(b) Ensure that electoral and voting procedures, facilities, and print and online election material are accessible in all formats, such as Braille, plain language, Easy Read and sign language, or are available on accessible websites.

Mongolia (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the Civil Code and the Election Law are not harmonized with the provisions of the Convention with regard to the participation in political and public life of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons and women with disabilities are underrepresented in political and public life;

(b) The lack of accessibility to polling stations, voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as to information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, and online or printed election materials, all of which limits the effective political participation of persons with disabilities.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Civil Code and the Election Law in order to harmonize them with the provisions of the Convention, and introduce specific measures to ensure equality and foster participation of underrepresented groups of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons, and women with disabilities, including as elected representatives, and to support candidates with disabilities to stand for elections, particularly those standing for minority political parties;

(b) Guarantee that electoral and voting procedures, facilities, and online or printed election materials are accessible in plain language and Easy Read, thereby facilitating their use by all persons with disabilities.

Paraguay (2023)

51. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) La falta de aprobación de una Ley de reconocimiento de los derechos civiles y políticos de las personas con discapacidad;

b) La terminología de los artículos 55 y 61 del Código Electoral, que es contraria a la Convención, al limitar a los inhabilitados por sentencia judicial la posibilidad de afiliarse a partidos políticos y de ser candidatos a cargos partidarios;

c) La escasa participación de las personas con discapacidad, en particular de las mujeres con discapacidad, en la vida política y pública;

d) La limitada accesibilidad de los procedimientos, las instalaciones y los materiales de votación, así como la insuficiente información sobre las elecciones, para todas las personas con discapacidad.

52. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Aprobar, a la brevedad, la Ley que modifica el Código Civil, el Código de Organización Judicial y garantiza los derechos civiles y políticos de las personas con discapacidad;

b) Modificar la terminología contemplada actualmente en los artículos 55 y 61 del Código Electoral y armonizarla con la Convención;

c) Promover activamente la participación de las personas con discapacidad, especialmente de mujeres con discapacidad, en los partidos políticos para que sean propuestas como candidatas a los puestos de elección popular;

d) Redoblar esfuerzos para garantizar que los procedimientos, instalaciones y materiales de votación sean adecuados, accesibles y fáciles de entender y utilizar para todas las personas con discapacidad, así como que se realicen los ajustes necesarios en lo relativo a la información electoral, en particular en la retransmisión en los medios y las campañas electorales.

Angola (2023)

49. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of access polling stations, voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as to information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, online or printed election materials, all of which limits the effective political participation of persons with hearing impairments and persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (b) The lack of information available to electoral officers on the different needs of persons with disabilities registered to vote in their stations;
- (c) The lack of representation of persons with disabilities in the current term of Angolan Parliament (2022-2027) owing to the fact that the political parties which presented candidates with disabilities in the last general elections ranked them very low in their list of proposed deputies;
- (d) There is no participation of persons with disabilities in the public life in leadership position to serve as role models.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure the physical accessibility to polling stations and other relevant facilities, as well as the accessibility of electoral and voting procedures, and online or printed election materials, including through the use of plain language and Easy Read;
- (b) Develop, in a manner compatible with the right to privacy, a voter registration database with information on voters with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age and impairment, and avail the information to election officers prior to the voting to enable them to prepare and ensure full participation of persons with disabilities, ensuring the confidentiality and respect for their privacy;
- (c) Adopt measures necessary to guarantee the representation of persons with disabilities in Parliament at all times;
- (d) Take measures to facilitate that persons with disabilities can participate in the public life in leadership positions and thus serve as role models.

Argentina (2023)

55. El Comité observa con preocupación lo siguiente:

- a) El Código Nacional Electoral (artículo 3 inc. a) restringe el derecho al voto de las personas con discapacidad psicosocial declaradas incapaces judicialmente;
- b) La Ley 26.774 dispone que las personas con discapacidad podrán sufragar asistidas por el presidente de mesa o una persona de su elección (artículo 94);
- c) La Acordada 27/2015 de la Cámara Nacional Electoral impide que las personas con discapacidad puedan formar parte de las autoridades de mesa;
- d) La escasa participación de las personas con discapacidad, en particular de las mujeres con discapacidad, en la vida política;
- e) La limitada accesibilidad de los procedimientos, las instalaciones y los materiales de votación, así como la insuficiente información sobre las elecciones, para todas las personas con discapacidad.

56. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

- a) Reformar el Código Nacional Electoral a fin de reconocer el derecho al voto de todas las personas con discapacidad;
- b) Revisar la Ley 26.774 para asegurar el respeto a un voto autónomo y secreto de las personas con discapacidad;
- c) Derogar la Acordada 27/2015 de la Cámara Nacional Electoral;
- d) Promover la participación de las personas con discapacidad, en particular de las mujeres con discapacidad, en la vida política y pública;
- e) Fortalecer la estrategia Acción Nacional por el Voto Accesible a fin de garantizar que los procedimientos, instalaciones y materiales de votación sean adecuados, accesibles y fáciles de entender y utilizar para todas las personas con discapacidad, así como que se realicen los ajustes necesarios en lo relativo a la información electoral, en particular en la retransmisión en los medios y las campañas electorales.

Georgia (2023)

57. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low voter turnout among persons with disabilities, and its apparent decline, the low membership numbers of persons with disabilities in representative bodies on national and municipal levels;
- (b) The particularly low number of women with disabilities in representative bodies and in organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Information about insufficient accessibility of voting material and polling stations.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Appoint persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities and young persons with disabilities who represent organizations of persons with disabilities, as full and equal members of the Standing working group on Persons with Disabilities at the Central Election Commission of Georgia;
- (b) Strengthen measures to establish representative local councils for issues relating to persons with disabilities in local self-governing units in all municipalities, providing them with the appropriate human, technical and financial resources;
- (c) Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in political life and in public administration; facilitate an environment for them to hold public office and perform all public functions at all levels of government by, inter alia, providing assistive devices and personal assistance;
- (d) Ensure accessibility of voting facilities and voting material, through, among others, the provision of Easy Read, Braille, and other accessible formats.

Peru (2023)

58. Preocupa al Comité:

- a) Que a pesar de que el Decreto Legislativo N° 1384 abolió la tutela, el Registro Nacional de Identificación y Estado Civil (RENIEC), que administra el padrón electoral, mantiene que las sentencias de interdicción, incluyendo la inhabilitación para votar, son vinculantes hasta que los tribunales las anulen oficialmente, por lo que las personas con discapacidad que hubieran sido objeto de interdicción judicial continúan sin poder ejercer su derecho de voto;
- b) Que no existe un sistema de apoyo para la constitución, registro o funcionamiento de organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, y cada vez son más escasos los recursos disponibles a través de la cooperación internacional para que las personas con discapacidad se organicen, movilicen y realicen acciones de incidencia.

59. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

- a) Restituya el derecho de voto a todas las personas con discapacidad que hayan sido inhabilitadas por sentencias previas de interdicción, incluyéndolas automáticamente en el censo electoral y que el RENIEC realice campañas de difusión de información sobre el ejercicio del derecho al voto dirigidas a dichas personas;
- b) Diseñe e implemente, con la participación de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, un programa de apoyo financiero y legal para la constitución, registro y funcionamiento de organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, con pleno respeto a su independencia.

Togo (2023)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That article 173 of the Electoral Code, which includes “the incompetent adults” as part of those ineligible in participating in elections, restricts the participation of persons with disabilities in political life on the basis of disability, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

- (b) The physical inaccessibility of polling centres and lack of information regarding electoral materials in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, in particular, for blind and partially sighted persons, to exercise their franchise;
- (c) The low representation and participation of persons with disabilities, in political and public decision-making, particularly, the lack of specific measures to promote the inclusion of women with disabilities in public and political life, including their exclusion from the draft law establishing quotas for women in elected and administrative positions.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal or amend all laws and policies that restrict or deny persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, the right to vote and stand for elections, and ensure their full participation in electoral process and in political and public life;
- (b) Introduce specific measures to ensure equality and participation of underrepresented groups of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons, and women with disabilities, including as elected representatives, and to provide candidates with disabilities who stand for elections with the disability-related support necessary to campaign on an equal footing with other candidates
- (c) Adopt effective measures to ensure the accessibility of the voting environment, including the physical environment and provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;
- (d) Take all appropriate measures, including specific measures, to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in political life and public decision-making.

Tunisia (2023)

51. The Committee is concerned that the incentive given under the electoral law adopted by the Assembly of People's Representatives, which requires the reimbursement of campaign expenses by the Higher Independent Electoral Body (ISIE) to the presence of a persons with disabilities in the first ten candidates on the electoral lists in the Municipal elections and which has produced very good result in inclusion, such incentive does not apply to the election to Parliament where representation of persons with disabilities is not guaranteed. It is also concerned that the political conflict experienced since July 2022 has been a threat to the participation of persons with disabilities in the political participation. It is further concerned that the elections of 17 December 2022 reflects retrogression in the gains made in previous elections in regard to implementation of accessibility provisions.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Extend the incentives to include persons with disabilities, which are currently limited to municipal elections, to all elections, particularly parliamentary elections;
- (b) Refrain from cancelling previous gains in the area of accessibility and rather build on them to progress towards the full accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials, ensuring accessibility provisions at polling stations and access to political information;
- (c) Facilitate and ensure the participation of persons with disabilities through their organizations at all levels of decision-making, planning, implementing and monitoring of elections as well as inclusion in other public affairs.

Bangladesh (2022)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That articles 66 and 122 of the Constitution and the Electoral Rolls Act of 2009 restrict the participation of persons with disabilities in political life on the basis of impairment, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

- (b) The physical inaccessibility of polling centres and lack of information regarding electoral materials in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, in particular, blind and visually impaired persons, to exercise their franchise;
- (c) The lack of secrecy in the voting process for persons with disabilities which makes the process undemocratic;
- (d) The low representation and participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal or amend all laws and policies that restrict or deny persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, the right to vote and stand for elections;
- (b) Take concrete measures to ensure the physical accessibility of polling centres and provide information in accessible formats on electoral materials for all persons with disabilities;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities are guaranteed secrecy in the voting process;
- (d) Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making processes at all levels, including encouraging them to stand for elections.

China (2022)

56. The Committee notes with concern the lack of information provided on:

- (a) The participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities and persons with psychosocial and/ or intellectual disabilities, on an equal basis with others, in voting and electoral processes, including through guarantees of fully accessible voting procedures by secret ballot in elections and public referendums without intimidation.
- (b) The ability of organizations of persons with disabilities operating independently of the China Disabled Persons' Federation to access funds, provide services, consult on relevant laws and policies and contribute to the work of international human rights mechanisms.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend legal or policy provisions restricting the rights of all persons with disabilities to vote and to stand in elections and hold public office and promote the participation of persons with disabilities in political life and in public decision-making processes at all levels, including through affirmative action measures;
- (b) In line with the Opinion on the Reform of the Social Organization Management System and Promotion of the Healthy and Well-Ordered Development of Social Organizations (2016), provide support for organizations of persons with disabilities to operate independently of the China Disabled Persons' Federation, encouraging their participation in all decision-making processes which affect persons with disabilities.

Indonesia (2022)

60. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of measures taken to ensure the participation in political and public life of persons with disabilities, particularly underrepresented persons, such as deaf persons, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons and women with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of accessibility to polling stations, voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as to information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, and online or printed election materials;
- (c) The lack of information and training for election officers to respond to the access needs of persons with disabilities registered to vote.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement specific measures to ensure equality and participation of underrepresented groups of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons, and women with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that polling stations, electoral and voting procedures, facilities, and online or printed election materials are accessible to all persons with disabilities;

(c) Develop information and training for election officers to ensure the appropriate response to access needs of persons with disabilities.

Japan (2022)

61. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The limited accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials and the insufficient elections-related information, according to the diversity of persons with disabilities;

(b) Barriers to participate in political life and public administration, to hold office and perform public functions, particularly for women with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Public Offices Election Act, to ensure that voting procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible and easy to understand and use for all persons with disabilities, along with accommodation of election-related information, including election broadcasts and campaigns;

(b) Ensure that the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in political life and public administration is promoted, they can effectively hold office and perform all public functions at all levels of government, by facilitating the use of assistive and new technologies, and providing personal assistants.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

54. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) That persons with disabilities deemed “crazy persons”, “persons who lost mind” are excluded from exercising their right to vote and stand for elections under the Constitution, the Civil Code and the Law No.105 on Election;

(b) The lack of accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials;

(c) The low level of participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life, the limited representation of organizations of persons with disabilities at the provincial level and their limited participation in decision-making processes.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend constitutional and legislative provisions restricting the rights of persons with disabilities to vote and to stand in elections and hold public office;

(b) Guarantee the accessibility of electoral processes, facilities and materials, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;

(c) Ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively participate in political, public life and decision-making processes at all levels, including through their representative organizations, and strengthen organizational and technical capacities of these organizations.

New Zealand (2022)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of support for persons with disabilities to form their own sustainable organisations and build their capacity to represent persons with disabilities, and in particular the lack of organisations to represent Māori with disabilities, Pasifika persons with disabilities, LGBTIQ+ persons with disabilities, children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities.

56. The Committee recommends that the State Party develop strategies and measures, including financial resources to support persons with disabilities to form sustainable representative organisations, including to support the development of organisations of Māori, Pasifika, LGBTIQ+, children and women and girls with disabilities.

Republic of Korea (2022)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The discriminatory provisions of the Act on Medical Treatment and Custody, excluding persons with disabilities who are undergoing medical treatment and are in detention facilities from the election process;
- (b) The lack of measures taken to ensure the participation in political and public life of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons and women with disabilities, who are underrepresented;
- (c) The lack of accessibility to polling stations, voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as to information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, and online or printed election materials, all of which limits the effective political participation of persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal all discriminatory provisions denying the rights of persons with disabilities and ensure their full participation in electoral process and in political and public life;
- (b) Introduce specific measures to ensure equality and participation of underrepresented groups of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons, and women with disabilities, including as elected representatives, and to support candidates with disabilities to stand for elections, particularly those standing for minority political parties;
- (c) Guarantee that electoral and voting procedures, facilities, and online or printed election materials are accessible in plain language and Easy Read, thereby facilitating their use by all persons with disabilities.

Singapore (2022)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The low level of representation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making processes and in public life;
- (b) The lack of accessibility of polling stations, voting procedures facilities, print and online material, and general information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, for persons with disabilities, including persons with visual impairments, persons with hearing impairments, and persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (c) Reports about intimidation of as well as repression and retribution against organizations of persons with disabilities and their members who voice sharply critical views on government policies relating to persons with disabilities.
- (d) Reports about intimidation and possible retribution against organizations of persons with disabilities and their representatives as a consequence of their participation in the State party reporting procedure.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making processes at all levels, and in political life in general;
- (b) Ensure that electoral and voting procedures, facilities, as well as online and print election material are accessible in all formats, such as Braille, plain language, Easy Read, sign language, or on accessible websites;
- (c) Guarantee that all organizations of persons with disabilities and their members can participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others, irrespective of their views on the government's policies regarding the implementation of the Convention, and do not face any intimidation, retribution or repression whatsoever from the government or other public entities.

(d) Ensure that representatives of all organizations of persons with disabilities, irrespective of their views on the government's policies regarding the implementation of the Convention, can participate in the State party reporting procedure without fear of intimidation, retribution or repression.

Hungary (2022)

56. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Article XXIII (6) of the Fundamental Law and section 13/A and related provisions of Act XXXVI of 2013 on the electoral procedure, which allow for the restrictions on the right to vote for persons under guardianship through the discriminatory individualized judicial evaluation of a person's ability or capacity to vote;
- (b) The lack of clarity in section 181 (1) of Act XXXVI of 2013 on the electoral procedure;
- (c) The lack of accessibility to voting procedures, facilities and materials for all persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with physical, intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, hearing or visual disabilities and autistic persons;
- (d) The low level of participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, in the State party's political life, including in high-level decision-making positions.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal article XXIII (6) of the Fundamental Law and section 13/A and all related provisions of Act XXXVI of 2013 on the electoral procedure, and recognize the right to vote and stand for election of all persons with disabilities without any individualized judicial evaluation of a person's ability or capacity to vote;
- (b) Amend section 181 (1) of Act XXXVI of 2013 on the electoral procedure through recognizing the right of all persons with disabilities to access assistance to vote provided by a person of their own choice;
- (c) Ensure that electoral and voting procedures, facilities and election materials provide reasonable accommodation for persons with severe impairments and are appropriate and accessible for all persons with disabilities regardless of impairment;
- (d) Develop and ensure sustainable policies and measures to promote the election and appointment of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in high-level decision-making positions at the national and local levels, and increase their participation in public service by taking into account indicator 16.7.1 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Jamaica (2022)

52. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The discriminatory provisions excluding persons with psychosocial disabilities from appointment as members of the Senate, from election as members of the House of Representatives and from voting, as well as section 34 of the Disability Act, 2014, which prevents them from participation in civil society and from establishing their own organizations;
- (b) The lack of measures taken to ensure the participation in political and public life of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons and women with disabilities, who are underrepresented;
- (c) The lack of accessibility to polling stations, voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as to information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, and online or printed election materials, all of which limits the effective political participation of persons with hearing impairments and persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (d) The lack of information available to election officers on different needs of persons with disabilities registered to vote in their stations.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal all discriminatory provisions denying the rights of persons with disabilities to fully participate in political and public life;
- (b) Introduce specific measures to ensure equality and participation of underrepresented groups of persons with disabilities, including deaf persons, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, deafblind persons, and women with disabilities;
- (c) Guarantee that electoral and voting procedures, facilities, and online or printed election materials are accessible in plain language and Easy Read, thereby facilitating their use by all persons with disabilities;
- (d) Develop a voter registration database with information on voters with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age and impairment, and avail election officers of the information prior to the voting to enable them to prepare and to ensure full participation of persons with disabilities.

Mexico (2022)

64. The Committee is concerned that persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities are denied the right to vote, despite jurisprudence by the national Supreme Court of Justice, and that voting procedures, facilities and materials are not accessible. The Committee is also concerned about the extent of support provided for persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, participating in politics and public life.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party amend its legislation to guarantee the right to vote to all persons with disabilities. It further recommends that the State party ensure the accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials in urban areas. Additionally, it recommends that the necessary support be provided to persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, participating in politics and public life.

Switzerland (2022)

55. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That persons with disabilities deemed “permanently incapable of discernment” are excluded from exercising their right to vote at the federal and cantonal levels;
- (b) The underrepresentation of persons with disabilities in political and public life, including in decision-making positions;
- (c) Reports of persons with disabilities having lost their social insurance benefits owing to their participation in political and public life, which the authorities deemed proof that they were able to work.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal all legal provisions at the federal and cantonal levels that result in persons with disabilities, in particular those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, being denied their right to vote;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively and fully participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others, directly or through freely chosen representatives, including by ensuring the accessibility of the voting process to all persons with disabilities, including those in institutions, and by providing opportunities and support for persons with disabilities to be politically active and stand for election in all cantons and at the federal level;
- (c) Establish mechanisms to ensure the right of all persons with disabilities to participate in political and public life, including through advocacy, without incurring penalties or reprisals, such as disqualification for social insurance benefits and other entitlements.

Venezuela (2022)

48. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, especially those living in poverty, are most affected by the economic blockade against the State party and the pandemic, which may force them into begging, and that access to social programmes is limited to those covered by the Carnet de la Patria ("Card for the Nation") system.

49. The Committee recommends that, in accordance with the Convention and bearing in mind target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

(a) Determine how many persons with disabilities are living in poverty or extreme poverty, according to the unsatisfied basic needs method;

(b) Carry out a survey on the economic situation of persons with disabilities during and after the pandemic, and increase the amount of the benefits granted to them;

(c) Take steps to include social programmes in legislation on social welfare, the economy, labour, health and education so that they have a fixed budget and targets and are subject to assessment and follow-up, especially in respect of persons with disabilities, and collect information on the effectiveness of such programmes during the pandemic;

(d) Not restrict access to social programmes to those in possession of a Carnet de la Patria.

Djibouti (2021)

51. The Committee notes with concern:

The discriminatory provisions of the Civil Code excluding persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons deprived of their legal capacity from the election process;

The lack of regulation on accessibility to the voting environment and electoral material and information by all persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal all discriminatory provisions denying persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons deprived of their legal capacity from voting and participating in the electoral process;

Develop and adopt measures to ensure the accessibility of voting environment and the availability of accessible information and material for all persons with disabilities.

France (2021)

58. The Committee notes with concern:

The lack of accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials as well as of election campaigns for persons with disabilities, particularly affecting persons with intellectual disabilities;

Barriers in legislation for persons with disabilities under guardianship to stand as candidates in national and local elections;

Low participation of persons with disabilities in public and political life, including in election campaigns.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials as well as of election campaigns for all persons with disabilities, including by applying support measures for persons with intellectual disabilities through alternative and augmentative modes of information;

Repeal article L200 of the Electoral Code concerning restrictions to be elected in national and local elections for persons under substituted decision-making;

Ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively and fully participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others, including the right and opportunity for persons with disabilities to vote and to stand for elections.

Estonia (2021)

56. The Committee notes with concern:

The discriminatory provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure denying the rights of persons with disabilities to vote and to be elected when they have been subjected to restricted legal capacity;

The lack of accessibility to voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as to information about elections, including public electoral debates, electoral programmes, online or printed election materials, all of which limits the effective political participation of persons with hearing impairments and persons with intellectual disabilities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal all discriminatory provisions denying the rights of persons with disabilities to vote and to be elected;

Guarantee that electoral and voting procedures, facilities and online or printed election materials are accessible in plain language and Easy Read, thereby facilitating their use by all persons with disabilities.

Albania (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned that in the State party there are legal provisions restricting the right of persons with disabilities to vote. The Committee is concerned at the exclusion, in practice, of persons with disabilities from public life, especially women with disabilities. The Committee is further concerned about the lack of accessibility at all stages of the electoral process, in particular the accessibility of polling stations and voting materials, for persons with disabilities.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Amend the relevant laws, including electoral laws, and the rules of procedure relevant to the Central Election Commission to guarantee the right to participate in political and public life, comprising the right vote to all persons with disabilities, and repeal any provisions that deny these rights to persons who are deemed to lack legal capacity;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women, in political life and public decision-making;

Take measures to allow unhindered physical access to voting, put in place secure mechanisms to ensure the secrecy of the ballot, and ensure the availability of other electoral materials and information in accessible formats, including in sign language, Braille and Easy Read, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Australia (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned that electoral laws provide that persons of “unsound mind” are not entitled to have their names on the electoral roll or to vote in elections and may be removed from the electoral roll following someone’s objection. It is also concerned that the electoral process is not fully accessible and that it does not guarantee secret voting rights to persons with disabilities. The Committee is further concerned about the lack of information on the representation of women with disabilities, particularly Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women with disabilities, in political and public life.

54. The Committee reiterates its previous recommendation on ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to vote in elections on an equal basis with others (CRPD/C/AUS/CO/1, para. 52). It recommends that the State party develop measures, with adequate resources, to ensure the full accessibility of electoral processes and guaranteeing secret voting rights. It also recommends that the State party implement the recommendations of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/AUS/CO/8, para. 36) to ensure representation and accelerate the participation of women with disabilities, particularly Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women with disabilities, in political and public life at all levels.

Ecuador (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned at the failure to take action to ensure that persons with disabilities, especially women, have access to elected office, with the result that there has been no reinforcement or increase in the effective and independent participation of such persons or their representative organizations in all of the country's political processes. It is also concerned about the failure to disseminate information on the physical and communication accessibility measures in place in polling stations.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to elected office in order to increase and reinforce their effective and independent participation through their representative organizations in all of the country's political processes and that it disseminate information on the physical and communication accessibility measures that are in place in polling stations.

El Salvador (2019)

54. The Committee is concerned about discriminatory provisions in the Electoral Code and under article 1317 of the Civil Code which restrict the political participation of persons with disabilities declared "incapable" by law, especially persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with hearing impairments. The Committee is also concerned that infrastructural and communication barriers continue to exist in voting centres.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal the provisions of the Electoral Code and Civil Code that restrict the rights of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and those with hearing impairments to participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others, to stand in elections and to hold public office. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt measures to strengthen the participation of persons with disabilities and their organizations in political and public life. The Committee further recommends that the State party take measures to ensure the accessibility of voting centres for persons with disabilities.

Greece (2019)

42. The Committee is concerned that persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities subject to judicial support are deprived of their right to vote. It is also concerned about the lack of accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the relevant voting framework, including laws, rules of procedure and support mechanisms, to ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively and fully participate in political and public life and exercise their right to vote, inter alia, by guaranteeing unhindered physical access to voting, ensuring the secrecy of the ballot and the availability of other voting materials and information in accessible formats in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

India (2019)

60. The Committee is concerned about the constitutional provisions restricting the participation of persons with disabilities in political life on the basis of impairment, and the insufficient accessibility of information and electoral proceedings for all persons with disabilities.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Amend constitutional and legislative provisions restricting the rights of all persons with disabilities to vote and to stand in elections and hold public office, and promote the participation of persons with disabilities in political life and in public decision-making processes at all levels, including through affirmative action measures;

Ensure the accessibility of electoral processes, including physical and informational environments, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities and taking account of resolution of the sixth meeting of the Forum of Election Management Bodies of South Asia, in 2015.

Iraq (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

The legal restrictions, including those in article 49 (2) in the Constitution of Iraq, article 46 (1) of the Civil Code No. 40 (1951) and other provisions in Law No. 45 (2013) on parliamentary elections, Law No. 36 (2008) on elections to governorate, provincial and district assemblies, Law No. 12 (2010) on non-governmental organizations and Law No. 36 (2015) on political parties, which limit the right of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, to vote and to be elected and that Law No. 38 (2013) does not contain a provision on the right of persons with disabilities to fully participate in political and public life;

The physical, informational and attitudinal barriers deterring persons with disabilities from participating in election processes, including the inaccessibility of polling stations and the absence of electoral materials and information in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read;

The absence of information on the measures taken by the State party to increase the participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public life.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal discriminatory provisions that prevent persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities from exercising their rights to vote and to stand for election, and amend Law No. 38 (2013) by including in it the right of persons with disabilities to participate in political and public life;

Ensure that the special procedure to facilitate the participation of persons with disabilities in the electoral process, to render polling stations accessible and to facilitate voting described in the replies of the State party to the list of issues (CRPD/C/IRQ/Q/1/Add.1, para. 163) allows all persons with disabilities to participate in elections at all levels and to be elected, including through the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, in political and public life and decision-making.

Kuwait (2019)

56. The Committee is concerned about:

Discriminatory restrictions on the right to vote of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities under guardianship resulting from denial of their legal capacity;

The lack of accessible voting procedures, facilities and materials for all persons with disabilities;

The lack of persons with disabilities in public office;

The absence of mechanisms to consult and directly engage with persons with disabilities or their representative organizations, with the result that such persons and organizations are rarely involved in decision-making and rarely have their opinion heard.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take advantage of the review of the electoral law (Act No. 35/1962) to revise all other relevant laws and regulations to ensure that all persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, can effectively enjoy their right to vote and stand for election, strengthen the accessibility of the voting environment, including ballots, booths and polling stations, make election materials available in accessible formats, such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read, and introduce individualized accommodations for persons with disabilities who are unable to attend polling stations in person, including through assistance by a person of their choice;

Train election officials on the right of persons with disabilities to vote and participate in elections with individualized accommodations and support, in the exercise of their legal capacity;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in all areas of public and political life, including the National Assembly;

Establish mechanisms for carrying out ongoing and systematic consultations with and participation of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Myanmar (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned that:

The Pyithu Hluttaw Election Law excludes persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities from electoral processes;

The polling stations, electoral materials and information are not accessible to persons with disabilities throughout the State party;

The measures taken to assist voters with disabilities may, in fact, hinder their access to secret ballots;

Representation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political and public decision-making remains low.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal or amend legislation that denies persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, their right to participation in political and public life, including rights to vote and stand for election;

Ensure the accessibility of polling stations, electoral materials and information for the variety of persons with disabilities, including in the Union Election in 2020;

Ensure that measures taken to assist voters with disabilities guarantee their right to cast their votes in a truly secret manner;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political life and public decision-making at all levels.

Niger (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned about the denial of the right to vote for certain categories of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and those deprived of their legal capacity; and the lack of accessibility to the polling centres, electoral materials and information in accessible formats.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal or amend legislation that denies persons with disabilities the right to vote; ensure that they are able to access secret ballots, election materials and polling stations; provide information in accessible formats; guarantee voter education, voter registration processes, and awareness about the electoral process for persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities; and ensure that those who receive assistance at the polling station can cast their vote in an independent and secret manner.

Norway (2019)

45. The Committee is concerned that voting procedures, facilities and materials are not accessible. The Committee is also concerned about the low rates of representation and participation of persons with disabilities in elections and their low representation in elected and appointed bodies.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Ensure that electoral procedures, facilities and materials are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, including materials in sign language, Braille and Easy Read and consider introducing accessible electronic voting;
- (b) Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in political life and public decision-making with measurable targets and indicators.

Rwanda (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned about:

Articles 8(3) and 24 (4) of the Organic Law Governing Elections, which deny persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities their rights to vote and to run for elections;

Voting procedures, facilities and materials that are not accessible for all persons with disabilities;

The low rates of representation and participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in political life and public decision-making, including in the parliament, government, mainstream women organizations and the leadership of the National Council of Persons with Disabilities.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Revise its laws, including the Organic Law Governing Elections, to ensure that persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities can enjoy their rights to vote and to run for elections;

Adopt a plan to ensure the accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials, including through the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

Take all appropriate measures, including specific measures, to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities in political life and public decision-making, including in the parliament, government, mainstream women organizations and the leadership of the National Council of Persons with Disabilities.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned that:

Persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities are prevented from exercising their right to vote and to stand for elections, including by legislation;

Election materials and polling stations are rarely accessible;

Persons with disabilities seldom compete for public office.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal all legislative provisions, including in the Municipal Councils Act, which prevent persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities from voting and standing for elections;

Take all necessary measures, including legislative and policy measures, to ensure the accessibility of the voting environment, including by guaranteeing the accessibility of polling stations, as well as the provision of accessible electoral materials and information for all persons with disabilities;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities in civic and political processes.

Senegal (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

The exclusion of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons deprived of their legal capacity from voting and the electoral process in general;

The lack of accessibility of the voting environment and absence of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

The lack of inclusion of persons with disabilities in the electoral process, including the lack of training for election officials to address the requirements of persons with disabilities at the polling centres.

50. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

Repeal all legislation that excludes persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons deprived of their legal capacity from voting and involvement in the electoral process;

Adopt effective measures to ensure accessibility of the voting environment, including the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

Take necessary measures to include persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in the voting and electoral process, and provide appropriate training for election officials on the rights of persons with disabilities, at all stages of the electoral process.

Spain (2019)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

The lack of accessibility of polling stations and voting materials for persons with disabilities in electoral processes;

The critically low level of participation and representation of persons with disabilities in national and regional policy-making bodies.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party take all necessary measures to enable the political and public participation of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others. It further recommends that the State party:

Ensure that electoral procedures, facilities and materials are accessible for all persons with disabilities, including in sign language, Braille and Easy Read;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women, in political life and public decision-making.

Türkiye (2019)

56. The Committee is concerned about:

Legislative provisions that deny persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities the right to vote and stand for election;

Lack of accessibility of polling stations, ballot boxes, and absence of electoral materials and information in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read;

The lack of information on appropriate awareness raising, including training programmes, for election officials to address the requirements of persons with disabilities in electoral and political processes.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Amend the Basic Provisions for Election and Voter Registration, and eliminate the prohibition of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities in exercising their rights to vote and run for office;

Adopt measures to ensure secret ballot and the accessibility of the voting environment, including the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities, paying particular attention to accessibility in rural and remote areas;

Conduct appropriate training for election officials on the rights of persons with disabilities, at all stages of the electoral process to enable their effective participation in electoral and political processes.

Vanuatu (2019)

48. The Committee is concerned that Schedule 4 of the Representation of the Peoples Act (2006) still restricts the right of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities to participate in electoral processes. It is further concerned that the participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life is limited, including working in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government, as well as working as teachers and health professionals.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt legislative and administrative measures, including the amendment of Schedule 4 of the Representation of the Peoples Act (2006), to ensure the right of persons with disabilities, especially persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, to fully participate in the electoral process, including voting through secret ballot on their own or to be assisted by a person of their choices with full respect of their autonomy, rights, will and preferences;

Adopt a strategy to promote the participation and effective representation of persons with disabilities, particularly of women with disabilities, in political and public life and in decision-making positions at national, provincial and community level;

Provide information on electoral processes in accessible formats.

Algeria (2018)

48. The Committee is concerned about legal restrictions, including those in the Electoral Code (art. 5), which discriminatorily and severely limit the right of persons with disabilities to vote, particularly persons who are subject to "interdiction". It is also concerned about the physical and informational barriers, which deter persons with disabilities from election processes and from participating in public and political life.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal all laws which restrict the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial and persons with intellectual disabilities, to ensure that persons with disabilities can exercise their right to participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others. It also recommends that the State party adopt the necessary measures to eliminate all physical and informational barriers that prevent persons with disabilities from participating in electoral processes.

Bulgaria (2018)

61. The Committee notes with concern that the legislation of the State party deprives persons with disabilities under guardianship, in particular persons with intellectual disabilities of their right to vote and stand for elections. It furthermore notes that some polling stations are not accessible and that information and communications related to elections are not fully accessible.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party amend its legislation and bring it into line with provisions of articles 12 and 29 of the Convention enabling all adult persons with disabilities to exercise their right to vote and stand for elections. It also recommends that the State party produce information about elections, in accessible formats, including in Easy Read and allocate financial and technical resources to strengthen physical accessibility to polling stations.

Malta (2018)

41. The Committee is concerned that the State party maintains its reservation to article 29(a) (i) and (iii) of the Convention, according to which the State party reserves the right to continue to apply its current electoral legislation in so far as voting procedures, facilities and materials, as well as assistance in voting procedures are concerned. It is concerned that the rights of persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities are restricted upon examination by a Medical Board and that voting material in Braille is not available to persons with visual impairments. The Committee notes with concern the lack of information on the representation and participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life and that they do not effectively participate in the process of decision-making.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

Withdraw its reservation on article 29(a) (i) and (iii) of the Convention, so that they can exercise the right to vote;

Take the legal and policy measures in order to empower persons with disabilities to effectively participate in political and public life and in the process of decision-making, in particular provide the necessary support for persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities, so that they can participate in decision-making processes on an equal basis with others;

Ensure that all electoral procedures, facilities and materials are accessible for all persons with disabilities, including through audio devices, ensuring the right of persons with disabilities to a secret ballot;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women, in political and public life and decision-making.

Philippines (2018)

50. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information about the participation of persons with disabilities at the local and national level, in conducting public affairs, and that persons with intellectual and persons with psychosocial disabilities face barriers to exercise their right to vote.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal discriminatory provisions that prevent persons with intellectual and persons with psychosocial disabilities from exercising their rights to vote and stand for elections. It also recommends that the State party takes measures to facilitate electronic voting for all persons with disabilities regardless type of impairment.

Poland (2018)

48. The Committee is concerned about:

Article 62(2) of the Polish Constitution, which denies persons deprived of legal capacity the right to vote and participate in a referendum, as well as other legislation such as the Law of Associations which prevents persons deprived of legal capacity to found an association, to be a member of one, and to organise public assemblies;

Amendment of the Election Code in 2018 which limit voting procedures by correspondence and therefore the accessibility of voting procedures for persons with disabilities;

Remaining inaccessible polling stations, including lack of solution for enabling the independent and secret voting by persons with severe hands paresis, and lack of support to vote for deaf persons.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Abolish all provisions which deny persons with psychosocial or intellectual disability and persons deprived of legal capacity their right to vote and all other political rights;

Replace the amendment of 2018 to the Electoral Law and ensure accessibility of voting procedures for all persons with disabilities;

Ensure accessibility of all polling stations and election procedures for all persons with disabilities, including measures to enable the independent and secret voting by person with severe hands paresis, and support for deaf persons to vote.

North Macedonia (2018)

52. The Committee is concerned about:

Elections laws setting “ mental capacity” as a pre-requisite for the right to vote and run for public office, thus denying these rights to persons with intellectual disabilities and/or persons with psychosocial disabilities;

The inaccessibility of the voting centres and their environment, particularly for persons with disabilities residing in institutions, and the absence of electoral materials and information in accessible formats such as Braille, tactile, sign language and Easy Read for persons with disabilities;

The lack of training for election officials to address the requirements of persons with disabilities at the polling centres;

The lack of support to persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities to exercise their right to vote and stand for election.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Review its elections laws with a view to removing the prerequisites that prevent person with intellectual disabilities and/or persons with psychosocial disabilities from exercising their right to vote and run for office;

Adopt measures to ensure the accessibility of the voting centres and their environments, particularly for persons with disabilities residing in institutions, including the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

Conduct appropriate training for election officials on the rights of persons with disabilities, at all stages of the electoral process to enable people with disabilities' effective participation in electoral and political processes;

Provide the necessary support to persons with psychosocial disabilities and/or persons with intellectual disabilities to exercise their right to vote and stand for election.

Haiti (2018)

52. The Committee is concerned about:

The fact that the electoral decree of 2015 (articles 29, 87.2 and 157) restricts the rights of persons with disabilities to participate in political life and to exercise their right to vote or to join political parties as members or elected candidates;

The inaccessibility of polling stations and of all stages of the electoral processes including registration of voters in the electoral register and voting procedures, lack of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, and lack of training of the members of the electoral staff on the rights of persons with disabilities;

The low number of persons with disabilities running for or holding elected public office.

53. The Committee urges the State party to:

Repeal laws and regulations that restrict the rights of persons with disabilities to participate in public and political life, in particular abrogate the electoral decree, articles 29, 87.2 and 157;

Remove all physical and other barriers and provide reasonable accommodation throughout all stages of the electoral processes, including the provisions of information and materials in accessible formats and ensure the adequate training for members of the electoral staff on the rights of persons with disabilities at all stages of the electoral process;

Collect and publish disaggregated data on the number of persons with disabilities who participate in public or political life and implement measures to increase the number of persons with disabilities in public and political life.

Oman (2018)

51. The Committee is concerned that election information and materials are not accessible to persons with disabilities, especially blind and deaf persons and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and polling stations are often not physically accessible, as well as the lack of secrecy in the voting process for persons with disabilities. It is also concerned at the reported low number of persons with disabilities in public office.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure, through legislative and other measures, that persons with disabilities are able to access ballots, election materials and polling stations, including information in accessible formats, such as Braille, sign language and Easy-Read documents for persons who are blind or visually impaired, deaf and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities respectively;

Adopt measures for the provision of voter education and awareness to persons with disabilities, including voter registration and ensure that when voting, persons with disabilities are allowed assistance from a person of their choice;
Take measures to promote the participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, in all areas of public and political life, including in the Majlis al-Dawla (Council of State) and the Majlis al-Shura (Consultative Assembly).

Russian Federation (2018)

58. The Committee is concerned that the State Party does not have a comprehensive and binding legislation guaranteeing the exercise of electoral rights of persons with disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee notes that the decision of the federal Central Electoral Commission of 9 August 2017 in this regard has only the status of 'recommendations'.

59. The Committee urges the State party to adopt a comprehensive legislation or amend the current law on elections in order to ensure the accessibility of elections and the relevant information for voting to all persons with disabilities in line with paragraph 26 of this Concluding Observations.

Seychelles (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The low level of participation of persons with disabilities in public and political life;
- (b) The lack of information in accessible formats on the electoral processes;
- (c) The inaccessibility of registration, polling stations and voting procedures.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party take the necessary measures to ensure the right of all persons with disabilities to participate in political and public life, including electoral matters. It recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt specific steps to increase the participation and effective representation of persons with disabilities, particularly women, in political and public decision-making positions;
- (b) Provide information about electoral processes in accessible formats;
- (c) Remove all physical and other barriers from, and provide reasonable accommodation throughout, the whole electoral process.

Slovenia (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned at:

The denial of the right to vote for persons presumed 'incapable of understanding the meaning, purpose and effect of elections' because of impairment, and the lack of accessible voting materials for persons with intellectual disabilities;

The low political and participation in public life of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure the right to vote for all persons regardless impairment and provide them with supported decision making, including accessible voting materials for all persons with disabilities, irrespective of impairment;

Enable persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, to exercise their political rights, including the right to stand for public office and participate in the conduct of public affairs.

Sudan (2018)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

Elections laws excluding persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities from electoral processes, by establishing "mental capacity" as a pre-requisite for the right to vote and running for public office;

The inaccessibility of the voting environment and the absence of electoral materials and information in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read;
The lack of training for election officials to address the requirements of persons with disabilities at the polling centres;
The lack of support to persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities to exercise their right to vote and stand for election.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Review its elections laws, in line with the Committee's general comment No.1 (2014), with a view to including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities in electoral processes, and removing the prerequisites that prevent persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities from exercising their right to vote and run for office;

Adopt measures to ensure the accessibility of the voting environment, including the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

Conduct appropriate training for election officials on the rights of persons with disabilities, at all stages of the electoral process to enable their effective participation in electoral and political processes;

Provide adequate support to persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities to enable them to exercise their rights to vote and run for public office.

Latvia (2017)

50. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accessibility to electoral processes, facilities and materials for persons with intellectual or physical disabilities, as well as for blind or deaf persons.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee the right to vote independently by ensuring that voting procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible and easy to use for all persons with disabilities.

Luxembourg (2017)

50. The Committee is concerned that the rights of persons with disabilities under guardianship to vote and be elected remain restricted by law. It is also concerned that voting procedures, facilities and materials lack accessibility. The Committee notes with concern the low rates of representation and participation of persons with disabilities in political life and public decision-making.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Take the legal and other measures necessary to enable the political and public participation of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, including the right to vote;

(b) Ensure that electoral procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate and accessible for all persons with disabilities, including in sign language, Braille and Easy Read;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women, in political life and public decision-making.

Montenegro (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned about the growing exclusion of persons with disabilities from public life due to the increasing number of persons with disabilities whose legal capacity is restricted. It notes with concern that:

Persons whose legal capacity is restricted are deprived of the rights to vote and to stand for election;

Several physical and informational barriers remain in the voting process.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the electoral law(s) and the rules of procedure in order to:

Give all persons with disabilities the rights to vote and to stand for election;

Ensure unhindered physical access to voting, secure mechanisms to ensure secrecy of the ballot regardless of the form of disability, and the availability of other electoral materials and information in accessible formats, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Morocco (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

The inaccessibility of the voting environment and the absence of electoral materials and information in accessible formats, such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read, for persons with disabilities;

The lack of training for election officials on addressing the requirements of persons with disabilities at polling centres.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a plan to ensure the accessibility of the voting environment, including through the provision of electoral materials and information in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities, and provide appropriate training for election officials on the rights of persons with disabilities at all stages of the electoral process.

Panama (2017)

56. The Committee is concerned at the small number of persons with disabilities involved in political and public life, especially how few of them hold elected office. The Committee is further concerned about the lack of accessibility at all stages of the electoral process, in particular the accessibility of polling stations and voting materials, for persons with disabilities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to encourage and help persons with disabilities to exercise their political rights, including the right to stand for public office, and that it ensure that there are no legal or practical barriers to the right to vote of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party intensify its efforts to ensure that electoral procedures, facilities and materials are fully accessible to persons with disabilities in urban, rural and indigenous areas alike, including that all polling stations have sufficient accessible ballots, with a view to guaranteeing assisted and secret voting. In addition, it recommends that the State party adopt programmes to encourage persons with disabilities to stand for public office.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

60. The Committee is concerned at the insufficient information on accessibility and reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities at all stages of the electoral cycle aimed at facilitating the exercise of the rights to vote, to vote in private and to be assisted by an assistant of one's own choice. It is also concerned about the low number of persons with disabilities running for or holding elected public office.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, take appropriate measures to secure accessibility for persons with disabilities, regardless of the type of impairment, repeal provisions restricting the right of persons with disabilities to vote, and ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation to guarantee the possibility of and right to universal and secret suffrage.

Armenia (2017)

51. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities do not participate in electoral processes on an equal basis with others, as a result of inaccessible polling stations and the lack of support services and election-related information in accessible formats. It is also concerned about the low rates of participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, in political life and public decision-making.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party take the legal and other measures necessary to enable the political and public participation of all persons with disabilities, including with respect to their right to vote and stand for elections, ensure that voting procedures, facilities and materials are accessible for all persons with disabilities and promote the participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women, in political life and public decision-making.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned at the exclusion of persons with disabilities from public life, especially women with disabilities, as well as at the lack of legislation on effective and transparent measures for providing accessible voting materials and information.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the electoral law(s) and the rules of procedure relevant to the Central Election Commission to ensure equality of participation for persons with disabilities in the electoral process, as well as allowing persons deprived of legal capacity to vote, allowing unhindered physical access to voting, putting in place secure mechanisms to ensure the secrecy of the ballot, and ensuring the availability of other electoral materials and information in accessible formats in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Canada (2017)

51. The Committee observes that the State party and different provinces have developed programmes and strategies to facilitate the right to vote of persons with disabilities. However, it notes that those measures do not specifically include persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party set up measures to facilitate and ensure access to the election process for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, including through easy-read information on electoral campaigns and other accessible multimedia material, including tutorials on how to vote, to support participation in political life by all persons with disabilities.

Cyprus (2017)

57. The Committee is deeply concerned that persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities are not adequately included, supported and trained to exercise their right to vote and stand for election, with some also being legally deprived of those rights. The Committee is furthermore concerned about the absence of data regarding the effective exercise of these rights by persons with disabilities.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party expeditiously take legislative amendments to guarantee to all persons with disabilities the right to vote and to stand for election and to collect reliable and disaggregated data regarding their exercise of those rights.

Honduras (2017)

61. Preocupa al Comité que la declaratoria de interdicción sea impedimento para que una persona con discapacidad pueda ejercer su derecho al voto, así como el bajo número de personas con discapacidad que participan en la vida política y pública, principalmente mujeres, afrohondureños e indígenas. Preocupa también al Comité la falta de accesibilidad de los centros de votación, así como de materiales de voto para las personas con discapacidad.

62. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte las medidas necesarias para garantizar que no se prive del derecho al voto y a la participación en la vida política y pública a ninguna persona por razón de discapacidad o por limitaciones en su capacidad jurídica y que aumente sus esfuerzos para promover a las personas con discapacidad, especialmente con discapacidad intelectual o psicosocial, en los cargos electivos y los cargos públicos. También le recomienda que intensifique sus esfuerzos por garantizar que sus procedimientos, instalaciones y materiales electorales sean plenamente accesibles para las personas con discapacidad tanto en las zonas urbanas como en las rurales. Asimismo, le recomienda que adopte las medidas legislativas necesarias para garantizar que, cuando sea necesario y a petición de ellas, se permita que una persona de su elección les preste asistencia para votar. También le recomienda que todos los colegios electorales cuenten con suficientes papeletas accesibles, para garantizar el voto asistido y secreto.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned about measures that deny the right of persons with sensory impairments, and persons with psychosocial and /or intellectual disabilities to stand as candidates to the Parliament. It is also concerned about the lack of information on accessibility of election materials and facilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal provisions from the Elections Act and other laws that deny the right to exercise civil and political rights based on impairment or restriction of legal capacity; and

Ensure through legislative and other measures, accessibility of election materials and facilities, and that persons with disabilities are allowed assistance from a person of their own choice when voting.

Jordan (2017)

55. The Committee is concerned that, reportedly, election materials are rarely accessible to blind persons or to persons with intellectual disabilities and polling stations are often not physically accessible. It is also concerned at the reported low number of persons with disabilities competing for public office.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Ensure through legislative and other measures that persons with disabilities are able to access ballots, election materials and polling stations and that, when voting, they are allowed to have assistance from a person of their own choice;

Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, especially persons with sensory and intellectual disabilities, in civic and political processes.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned that:

The rights of persons with disabilities under guardianship to vote and be elected remain restricted by law;

Electoral processes, facilities and materials are not accessible; ^[SEP]

The rates of representation and participation of persons with disabilities in ^[SEP]political life and public decision-making are extremely low.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take the legal and other measures, including consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities, necessary to enable the political and public participation of persons with disabilities;

Ensure that voting procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible and easy to use for all persons with disabilities;
Promote the participation of persons with disabilities, including women, in political life and public decision-making.

Bolivia (2016)

65. The Committee notes with concern that persons who have been declared legally unfit cannot exercise their right to vote or to be elected and that they are not registered on the electoral roll.

66. The Committee urges the State party to repeal the provisions that limit the right to vote on grounds of legal capacity and to adopt the necessary legal measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, especially with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, are registered in the electoral roll and may exercise their right to vote and stand as candidates for elected office.

Colombia (2016)

64. The Committee is concerned about the restrictions on the political participation of persons with disabilities, in particular that persons for whom a declaration of judicial interdiction has been issued cannot exercise their right to vote, and that accessibility is not ensured in elections.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures, including the repeal of legislation, in order to:

Ensure the right to vote and participate in political life to all persons with disabilities, including those whose legal capacity is legally restricted owing to interdiction procedures;

Provide for the accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials in urban and rural areas alike;

Ensure the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities in public life, including in the referendum on the Final Agreement for Ending the Conflict and Building a Stable and Long-lasting Peace, and make available promotional and informational materials in accessible formats.

Ethiopia (2016)

63. The Committee is concerned that restriction to the right to vote of “notoriously insane persons” is possible under law. It is further concerned that persons with disabilities are not guaranteed support to exercise their right to vote in law and in practice.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party take all legislative and other measures to guarantee the political rights of persons with disabilities, in particular persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, including by removing any restrictions on the exercise of political rights, in law or in practice.

Guatemala (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned by the fact that some persons with disabilities, especially those deprived of their legal capacity, those living in mental health facilities and those belonging to indigenous communities, are unable to vote and that voting procedures are not accessible. It is also concerned that ballot papers in Braille are not currently available in polling stations where they are needed and that the right to vote by secret ballot is not guaranteed.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party take the necessary measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities are able to exercise their right to vote and to stand for election on an equal basis with others, including through the provision of accessible facilities and means of communication, in both urban and rural areas. The Committee also recommends providing a sufficient number of ballot papers in Braille in all polling stations, in order to guarantee the right to vote by secret ballot.

Italy (2016)

73. The Committee is concerned that persons with intellectual disabilities and/or psychosocial disabilities do not receive adequate support in order to exercise their right to vote, and that article 48 of the Constitution, which restricts the right to vote based on “civil incapacity”, is inconsistent with the Convention. The Committee is concerned about the inability of persons with disabilities to vote wherever they choose due to legal restrictions imposed on them. It is also concerned that the regulation on assistance for persons with disabilities in order to cast their vote is not consistent with the Convention.

74. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal article 48 of the Constitution and provide support and facilitation services to ensure all persons with disabilities can exercise their right to vote, including persons with intellectual disabilities and/or psychosocial disabilities. It also recommends that the State party repeal law No. 62/04, which restricts persons with disabilities to vote at polling stations of their choice. It further recommends that the State party harmonize its regulatory framework on assistance for persons with disabilities to exercise their right to vote in compliance with the Convention.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

53. The Committee is concerned:

That article 70 (3) of the Constitution and articles 85 and 86 of the Civil Code deny the right to exercise civil and political rights, including the right to vote and stand for election, to persons deemed incompetent by reason of “imbecility or insanity” or restricted in the exercise of their legal capacity;

That legislation on voter assistance provisions for persons with disabilities violates the secrecy of voting;

About the lack of information on measures taken to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in civic and political processes.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal article 70 (3) of the Constitution and provisions of the Civil Code and other laws that deny the right to exercise civil and political rights on the basis of disability or restriction of legal capacity;

Ensure, through legislative and other measures, accessibility to ballots, election materials and polling stations and also ensure that, when voting, persons with disabilities are allowed assistance from a person of their own choice;

Take measures to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in civic and political processes.

Uruguay (2016)

61. Preocupa al Comité que la declaratoria de interdicción sea impedimento para que una persona con discapacidad pueda ejercer su derecho al voto así como el bajo número de personas con discapacidad que participan en la vida política y pública, principalmente mujeres. Preocupa también al Comité la falta de accesibilidad de materiales y locales de voto para las personas con discapacidad.

62. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte las medidas necesarias para garantizar que no se prive del derecho al voto y a la participación en la vida política y pública a ninguna persona por razón de un impedimento o por limitaciones en su capacidad jurídica y que aumente sus esfuerzos para promover a las personas con discapacidad en los cargos electivos y el servicio público. También le recomienda que intensifique sus esfuerzos por garantizar que sus procedimientos, el entorno físico, instalaciones y materiales electorales sean plenamente accesibles para las personas con discapacidad.

Chile (2016)

61. Al Comité le preocupa que la declaratoria de interdicción sea impedimento para que una persona con discapacidad pueda ejercer su derecho al voto y a la participación política.

62. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte la revisión del registro electoral para garantizar que no se prive del derecho al voto a ninguna persona por razón de un impedimento o por limitaciones en su capacidad jurídica.

Lithuania (2016)

57. The Committee is concerned that:

The Constitution denies persons with disabilities the right to vote and stand for election if they have been declared legally incapable;

There is lack of reliable statistical information on the number of persons with disabilities who have been removed from the electoral register on grounds of disability;

Current laws on election do not allow autonomous, free and secret participation by all persons with disabilities in the electoral process.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities:

Repeal provisions in the law and the Constitution denying the right of persons with disabilities to vote and stand for election, including by eliminating the possibility of declaring persons with disabilities legally incapable on the ground of disability;

Restore voting rights to all people with disabilities who are excluded from the national voter registry;

Collect reliable and disaggregated statistics and data on the political participation of persons with disabilities as voters and as candidates for election;

Expedite the parliamentary approval of election laws to ensure the legally enforceable right of persons with disabilities to vote and have access to, among others, accessible ballots, election materials and polling stations, and the provision of freely chosen, adequate and necessary assistance in order to facilitate voting by all persons, regardless of impairment.

Portugal (2016)

54. The Committee is extremely concerned that in the State party there are persons with disabilities, and especially those who have been deprived of their legal capacity or who live in psychiatric institutions, who are deprived of exercising their right to vote or are prevented from exercising this right in elections, and that electoral processes, including political campaigns, are not accessible. It is also concerned about the existence of internal regulations that may require a person with disabilities to present a medical document proving his/her capacity to vote, if the person in charge of the polling station believes that he/she demonstrates "notorious mental incapacity".

55. The Committee recommends that the State party, in partnership with organisations of persons with disabilities, take necessary measures so that persons with all types of disabilities, including those who are subjected to guardianship or confined to psychiatric institutions, may exercise their right to vote and to stand as candidates under the same conditions as others, among other things, by providing accessible facilities and means of communication .

Serbia (2016)

59. The Committee is concerned at the exclusion of persons with disabilities from public life, especially women with disabilities and Roma persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends the State party increase efforts to include persons with disabilities in positions of elected representation and public office. It also recommends the State party to ensure that upcoming elections are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, including voting facilities and campaign materials.

Slovakia (2016)

77. The Committee notes with deep concern that all citizens with disabilities are not able to fully exercise their right to vote and stand for election.

78. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal sections 4 (c) and 6 (c) of the Elections Act and provide for an accessible electoral system to enable all persons with disabilities to exercise their right to vote, including by electronic means, and their right to stand for election.

Thailand (2016)

59. The Committee is concerned about restrictions on the right of persons with disabilities to vote and stand for election and the lack of measures to ensure the secrecy of their vote. It is also concerned about the lack of information on accessible formats of voting procedures.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party revise all laws that limit the participation of persons with disabilities in political and public life in order to enable all persons with disabilities to vote and to stand for election, including by restoring legal capacity as required, and to ensure that all stages of an election are made fully accessible, including the political campaigns and their materials and the act of voting, including with respect to the secrecy of voting.

Uganda (2016)

56. The Committee is concerned about the restrictions in the Constitution and the electoral law that prevent persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities from standing for election, thus discriminating against them; it is also concerned about the inaccessibility of the voting environment, the absence of electoral materials in accessible formats and the lack of secrecy in the voting process for persons with disabilities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal discriminatory legal provisions that restrict persons with disabilities from exercising their right to stand for election;

Provide voter education and awareness to persons with disabilities and adopt measures to ensure that the electoral process is accessible to voters with disabilities including voter registration, accessible polling centres and materials and assistance to vote from persons of their choice;

Inform persons with disabilities about their right to vote and provide financial support to organizations of persons with disabilities to conduct the election processes of persons with disabilities in a transparent manner.

Brazil (2015)

52. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities under interdiction are discriminated against in relation to their right to vote. The Committee is also concerned that many polling places are not accessible to persons with disabilities, and that voting information is not provided in all accessible formats.

53. The Committee, recalling its views in communication No. 4/2011 (Zsolt Bujdosó and five others v. Hungary) that legislative restrictions on the right to vote of persons with disabilities whose legal capacity was restricted pursuant to guardianship breached article 29 of the Convention, urges the State party to remove legal restrictions and immediately restore the right to vote for persons deprived of legal capacity through interdiction. The Committee also recommends the State party to increase its efforts to ensure that voting procedures, facilities and materials are fully accessible to persons with disabilities.

European Union (2015)

68. The Committee notes with deep concern that across the European Union persons with disabilities, especially those deprived of their legal capacity or residing in institutions, cannot exercise their right to vote in elections, and participation in elections is not fully accessible.

69. The Committee recommends that the European Union take measures, in cooperation with its Member States and representative organisations of persons with disabilities, to enable all persons with all types of disabilities including those under guardianship, to enjoy their right to vote and stand for elections, including by the provision of accessible communication and facilities.

Gabon (2015)

62. The Committee is concerned that the Electoral Code contains restrictions on the right of persons with disabilities to vote, including those subjected to “interdiction” or any other kind of deprivation of legal capacity. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about physical and informational barriers in the voting process.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal the relevant provisions in the Electoral Code in order to enable all persons with disabilities to vote, restoring legal capacity as required, and to ensure that all stages of elections are made fully accessible, including in political campaigns and their materials, the act of voting and guaranteeing secrecy of voting.

Kenya (2015)

51. The Committee is concerned about the restrictions in the right to vote and stand for elections of persons with disabilities and the lack of measures to ensure the secret vote. It is also concerned about the lack of information on accessible information on voting procedures.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Repeal constitutional provisions that restrict the right of persons with disabilities to be elected as members of Parliament and to vote on equal basis with others; and

Guarantee full accessibility to polling stations throughout the country in election processes and design and develop election-related information on accessible formats for persons with disabilities.

Mauritius (2015)

39. The Committee is concerned that articles 34 (1) and 43 of the Constitution as well as some electoral rules and regulations limit the rights of persons with disabilities to vote and be elected.

40. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal the discriminatory provision contained in articles 34 (1) and 43 of the Constitution as well as related regulations and ensure that all persons with disabilities enjoy their rights to vote and to be elected.

Qatar (2015)

51. The Committee is concerned that legislation on voter assistance provisions for persons with disabilities violates the secrecy of vote.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure, through legislative and other measures, the accessibility of ballots and election materials and polling stations and that when voting, persons with disabilities are allowed assistance from a person of their own choice.

Ukraine (2015)

54. The Committee is concerned that the State party's legislation prevents citizens with disabilities whose legal capacity has been restricted from fully exercising their right to vote. The Committee is also concerned that election materials are not provided in formats accessible to persons with visual impairments and deaf persons.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the relevant laws so that all persons with disabilities can enjoy the right to vote and stand for election regardless of guardianship or other regimes. It also recommends that the State party ensure, through legislative and other measures, the accessibility of ballots and election materials, and of polling stations.

Cook Islands (2015)

51. The Committee is concerned that the Electoral Act both denies the right to vote and stand for election to some groups of persons with disabilities, and fails to systematically protect the right to vote in private at polling stations. It is further concerned that elections are not accessible to persons with disabilities.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal provisions of the Electoral Act 2004 to ensure that all persons with disabilities, irrespective of their disability, can vote in private at polling stations, and stand for election. The Committee further recommends to ensure persons with disabilities access to polling booths, supply tools and instruments such as Braille voting sheets, make the ballot papers available to persons with disabilities with accessible technology, have available sign language interpreters so that persons with disabilities can vote in all elections; independently and secretly and if needed with a support person of their own choice.

Croatia (2015)

45. The Committee is concerned that the electoral process is not yet fully accessible to all persons with disabilities. Furthermore it is concerned about the still low number of persons with disabilities in executive and representative public bodies.

46. The Committee recommends that measures be taken to make the electoral process fully accessible to all persons with disabilities and to facilitate participation of persons with disabilities in representative and executive bodies.

Czech Republic (2015)

56. The Committee is concerned that under the new Civil Code and the election legislation persons with disabilities with restricted legal capacity may be denied the right to vote or to stand for election, or vote at referendums. The Committee is also concerned that election materials are reportedly rarely accessible to blind persons or to persons with intellectual disabilities, that polling stations are often not physically accessible, that ballots may not be accessible to blind persons.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the relevant laws so that all persons with disabilities can enjoy the right to vote and stand for election regardless of guardianship or other regimes. It also recommends that the State party ensure, through legislative and other measures, the accessibility of ballots and election materials, and of polling stations.

Dominican Republic (2015)

54. Preocupa al Comité la poca accesibilidad en centros de votación en el Estado parte, y en la información sobre los procesos electorales dirigida a las personas con discapacidad.

55. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte realizar consultas vinculantes a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en el diseño y desarrollo de los procesos electorales, desde la accesibilidad en la información y comunicación, física y durante el sufragio. También recomienda incluir a las personas con discapacidad dentro de la legislación relativa a los derechos electorales y fomentar la participación política de personas con discapacidad, en todos los niveles de participación, desde las organizaciones civiles y partidos políticos hasta la promoción de candidaturas de elección popular.

Germany (2015)

53. The Committee is concerned about exclusion of persons with disabilities from electoral rights stipulated in Section 13 No. 2 and No. 3 of the Federal Electoral Act (BWG) and equivalent Länder legislation as well as practical barriers preventing persons with disabilities from exercising the right to vote on an equal basis with others.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal all laws and regulations that deprive persons with disabilities of the right to vote, reduce barriers and put in place appropriate support mechanisms.

Mongolia (2015)

45. While noting that the State party recognizes inadequacies in ensuring the full participation persons with disabilities in political and public life, the Committee is concerned about reports that the State party's "Great Khural's Election Law" neither contains specific references to persons with disabilities nor assistive or support measures to accommodate persons with visual, hearing or mobility impairments.

46. The Committee recommends the State party repeal legal provisions which deny or restrict the right to vote based on disability and develop appropriate legal measures to ensure persons with disabilities can fully participate in elections and public life as citizens, voters and/or candidates.

Turkmenistan (2015)

49. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities as candidates in elections. It is further concerned about the exclusion of persons who are under guardianship from the right to vote.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party make sure that all restrictions of the right to vote of persons with disabilities are removed, immediately by restoring the right to vote for persons deprived of legal capacity and by providing full accessibility and information in relation to their right to vote. Similarly, the State party should facilitate assistance for persons with disabilities to be candidates in national as well as local elections.

...

New Zealand (2014)

61. The Committee notes that under the Electoral Act 1992, persons who are blind or vision-impaired may receive the assistance of an official to cast their vote in an election.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party consider the introduction of accessible electronic voting to enable persons with disabilities to cast their votes in a truly secret manner.

Denmark (2014)

60. The Committee is concerned that under the Constitution, the Parliamentary Elections Act and other electoral laws, and the Guardianship Act (section 6), persons under guardianship are not allowed to vote or to stand for election in parliamentary, municipal, regional or European Parliament elections, or referendums. The Committee is also concerned that election materials are reportedly rarely accessible to blind persons or to persons with learning and intellectual disabilities, that polling stations are often not physically accessible, that ballots may not be accessible to blind persons, and that persons under guardianship may not be able to freely choose the kind of voting assistance that they would wish to use.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the relevant laws, including the Parliamentary Elections Act and other laws governing municipal, regional and European Parliament elections, so that all persons with disabilities can enjoy the right to vote and stand for election regardless of guardianship or other regimes. It also recommends that the State party ensure, through legislative and other measures, the accessibility of ballots and election materials, and of polling stations, and that it ensure that freely chosen, adequate and necessary assistance is provided in order to facilitate voting by all persons.

Republic of Korea (2014)

55. The Committee is concerned that many polling booths are not fully accessible to persons with disabilities and that voting information is not provided to persons with disabilities in consideration of the various types of disabilities. It is also concerned about the low level of participation of persons with disabilities in political activities and as candidates in elections due to the barriers that they continue to face in that regard. It is also concerned that persons declared incompetent are denied the right to vote and stand for elections.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party step up its efforts to ensure that voting is fully accessible to all persons, irrespective of disability, and that voting information is provided in all accessible formats. It further recommends that the State party take specific measures to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in elected bodies. It also recommends that the State party repeal provisions denying the right to vote and stand for elections and provide the right to vote and stand for elections regardless of type of disability.

Mexico (2014)

55. The Committee is concerned that persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities are denied the right to vote and that voting procedures, facilities and materials are not accessible.

56. The Committee urges the State party to amend the Federal Code of Electoral Institutions and Procedures to give all persons with disabilities the right to vote. It further recommends that the State party ensure the accessibility of voting procedures, facilities and materials in urban and rural areas alike.

Sweden (2014)

51. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on accessibility and accommodation for persons with disabilities, during all stages of the electoral cycle, facilitating their exercise of the right to vote, and at the low number of persons with disabilities running for or holding public office.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that voter education through mass media is made accessible, that information about elections is provided in accessible formats, that electoral campaigns are made fully accessible, that support at polling stations is made available, that the mechanisms put in place to facilitate voting assistance are developed in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities to suit their needs, and that polling assistants are trained to accommodate voters. It also recommends that the State party ensure that all persons with disabilities who are elected to a public position are provided with all required support, including personal assistants.

Azerbaijan (2014)

44. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the participation of persons with disabilities as candidates in elections and their representation in elected and appointed bodies. The Committee is further concerned about the exclusion of the right to vote of persons with disabilities who are under guardianship.

45. The Committee urges the State party to remove restrictions and immediately restore the right to vote for persons deprived of legal capacity and to continue to improve its efforts to ensure that voting is fully accessible to all persons, irrespective of disability, and that voting information is provided in all accessible formats. It further recommends the State party to take specific measures to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in elected bodies. In this regard, the State party should provide information in its next periodic report on the representation of persons with disabilities in all elected and appointed bodies of the State party.

Costa Rica (2014)

59. The Committee regrets that the State party has denied the right to vote to persons with disabilities declared legally incompetent. It is also concerned about the absence of information concerning persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities who have been removed from the electoral register on grounds of their disability. It is also concerned at the fact that no Costa Rican sign language interpretation was provided for information on the 2014 elections.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately restore the right to vote of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities. It further calls for the right to vote to be recognized to all persons with disabilities, including those who require more extensive assistance, ensuring that procedures, facilities and materials are appropriate, accessible and easy to understand and use. It also recommends that information on elections should be provided in accessible formats, including using Costa Rican sign language.

Australia (2013)

51. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, are automatically excluded from the electoral roll. It is further concerned that persons with disabilities face significant barriers in the voting process.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party enacts legislation restoring the presumption of the capacity of persons with disabilities to vote and exercise choice; and to ensure that all aspects of voting in an election are made accessible to all citizens with a disability.

Austria (2013)

48. The Committee commends the State party for its upholding of article 29 of the Convention by allowing all persons to vote including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities. However, it does appear that many polling booths are not fully accessible to persons with disabilities.

49. The Committee recommends that more work be done to ensure that voting is fully accessible to all persons, irrespective of disability, and that voting information is provided in all accessible formats.

El Salvador (2013)

59. The Committee regrets that the Electoral Code prevents persons with psychosocial or intellectual impairments from exercising their right to run for municipal office. The Committee notes with concern that there are no mechanisms in place to ensure that persons with disabilities can vote in secret and that measures to ensure the accessibility of polling centres are inadequate.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal the provisions limiting the right to vote of persons with disabilities and adopt measures to ensure that such persons can run for public office. The Committee encourages the State party to increase opportunities for the political and social participation of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Paraguay (2013)

69. The Committee notes with concern the continued application in the State party of Act No. 834 on the Electoral Code, which places restrictions on deaf persons' right to vote. It also regrets the lack of information on the number of persons with disabilities who are not allowed to vote. It also regrets that disabled persons' organizations were not consulted on the adoption of a mechanism for secret voting and universal suffrage for persons with visual impairments, and that there are no measures to promote the right of persons with disabilities to stand as candidates for elected office.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal the provisions restricting the right of persons with disabilities of any kind to vote and that, in consultation with disabled persons' organizations, it adopt measures to guarantee the right of universal, secret suffrage.

Argentina (2012)

47. The Committee would like to express its recognition of the fact that the State party has repealed the provisions in its Electoral Code that barred deaf-mute persons who do not know how to communicate in writing and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities who have been interned in public institutions from exercising their right to vote. Nevertheless, the Committee remains concerned by:

The fact that the amendments to the Electoral Code have not included the elimination of the provision whereby persons who have been declared legally incompetent by a court of law are barred from exercising their right to vote;

The lack of appropriate measures for ensuring that institutionalized persons with disabilities have access to the polls and can leave the institutions in question in order to vote.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Review the Electoral Code and introduce the necessary amendments to bring it into line with the standards set forth in the Convention, particularly with respect to legal capacity and the exercise of the right to vote on an equal basis;

Pursue its efforts to ensure that institutionalized persons with disabilities have access to the polls by, for example, devising and implementing a national plan for ensuring that people are able to exercise their right to participation in political life (CRPD/C/ARG/Q/1/Add.1, para. 249) or other alternative solutions.

China (2012)

45. The Committee is concerned with article 26 of the Election Law, which excludes citizens with intellectual and psychosocial impairments from the voting process.

46. The Committee recommends the state party to revise article 26 of the Election Law to ensure that all persons with disabilities have the right to vote on an equal basis with others.

Hong-Kong (2012)

81. The Committee is concerned about the low number of persons with disabilities holding public offices and the inaccessibility of some polling stations for voters with disabilities.

82. The Committee urges Hong Kong, China, to enhance the active participation of persons with disabilities in politics through affirmative action and ensure the accessibility of all voting stations.

Hungary (2012)

45. The Committee is very concerned about the provision in the State party's new Fundamental Law which permits a judge to remove the right to vote from those with "limited mental ability", and that legislation allows for the right to vote of persons with intellectual or psycho-social disabilities to be restricted if the person concerned has been deprived of his or her legal capacity.

46. The Committee recommends that all relevant legislation be reviewed to ensure that all persons with disabilities regardless of their impairment, legal status or place of residence have a right to vote, and that they can participate in political and public life on an equal basis with others.

Peru (2012)

44. The Committee commends the State party for issuing a resolution in October 2011 that nullified previous policies excluding persons with certain psychosocial and intellectual disabilities from the electoral rolls, as well as for updating the National Identity and Civil Status Registry (RENIEC) accordingly. However, the Committee remains concerned at:

The fact that persons with disabilities, who have been judicially interdicted, remain ineligible to vote and that the names of those excluded from the national voter registry have not yet been fully restored;

The lack of information on measures taken in order to inform the persons with disabilities on the above-mentioned developments and prevent such violations from happening in the future;

Numerous cases of persons in institutions who have not been able to exercise their right to vote because they lack identity documents or because of the interdiction to leave the institution, absence of special assistance or the distance from the polling station.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party

Restore voting rights to all people with disabilities who are excluded from the national voter registry, including people with disabilities subject to judicial interdiction;

Reach out to vulnerable individuals and protect people with disabilities from such violations in the future, including through relevant training.

Guarantee the right to vote of people with disabilities in institutions, by ensuring that they are physically permitted to go to assigned polling stations and have the support required to do so, or to permit alternative options.

Spain (2011)

47. The Committee is concerned that the right to vote of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities can be restricted if the person concerned has been deprived of his or her legal capacity, or has been placed in an institution. It is further concerned that the deprivation of this right appears to be the rule and not the exception. It regrets the lack of information on standards of evidence or grounds, and criteria used by judges when depriving persons of their right to vote. It notes with concern the number of persons with disabilities denied their right to vote.

48. The Committee recommends that all relevant legislation be reviewed to ensure that all persons with disabilities, regardless of their impairment, legal status or place of residence, have the right to vote and participate in public life on an equal basis with others. The Committee requests the State party to amend article 3 of Organic Act 5/1985, which allows the denial of the right to vote based on individualized decisions taken by a judge. The amendment should ensure that all persons with disabilities have the right to vote.

Furthermore, it is recommended that all persons with disabilities who are elected to a public position are provided with all required support, including personal assistants.

Tunisia (2010)

35. The Committee recommends the urgent adoption of legislative measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, including persons who are currently under guardianship or trusteeship, can exercise their right to vote and participate in public life, on an equal basis with others.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 30 CRPD
(Participation in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport)*

September 2025

Article 30 - Participation in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport

1. States Parties recognize the right of persons with disabilities to take part on an equal basis with others in cultural life, and shall take all appropriate measures to ensure that persons with disabilities:

a) Enjoy access to cultural materials in accessible formats;

b) Enjoy access to television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats;

c) Enjoy access to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas, libraries and tourism services, and, as far as possible, enjoy access to monuments and sites of national cultural importance.

2. States Parties shall take appropriate measures to enable persons with disabilities to have the opportunity to develop and utilize their creative, artistic and intellectual potential, not only for their own benefit, but also for the enrichment of society.

3. States Parties shall take all appropriate steps, in accordance with international law, to ensure that laws protecting intellectual property rights do not constitute an unreasonable or discriminatory barrier to access by persons with disabilities to cultural materials.

4. Persons with disabilities shall be entitled, on an equal basis with others, to recognition and support of their specific cultural and linguistic identity, including sign languages and deaf culture.

5. With a view to enabling persons with disabilities to participate on an equal basis with others in recreational, leisure and sporting activities, States Parties shall take appropriate measures:

a) To encourage and promote the participation, to the fullest extent possible, of persons with disabilities in mainstream sporting activities at all levels;

b) To ensure that persons with disabilities have an opportunity to organize, develop and participate in disability-specific sporting and recreational activities and, to this end, encourage the provision, on an equal basis with others, of appropriate instruction, training and resources;

c) To ensure that persons with disabilities have access to sporting, recreational and tourism venues;

d) To ensure that children with disabilities have equal access with other children to participation in play, recreation and leisure and sporting activities, including those activities in the school system;

(e) To ensure that persons with disabilities have access to services from those involved in the organization of recreational, tourism, leisure and sporting activities.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)

Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)

Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)

Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
El Salvador (2013)

There are no recommendations on Canada (2025), Belgium (2024), Azerbaijan (2024), Poland, Latvia, Canada, Ethiopia, Uruguay, Chile, Mongolia, Australia, Austria, Paraguay, Argentina, China, Hungary, Peru, Spain, Tunisia, Mexico, China, New Zealand and Singapore.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

58. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The limited access of a small group of persons with disabilities living in Pyongyang to cultural, recreational, and sporting activities in the State Party, while the majority of persons with disabilities are excluded.

(b) The lack of a concrete plan to effectively implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

59. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop and implement a strategy with benchmarks, indicators, and adequate resources to guarantee equitable access to cultural, leisure, and sporting opportunities for all persons with disabilities, including those living outside Pyongyang and from socioeconomically disadvantaged background;

(b) Adopt a plan on the effective implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Finland (2025)

58. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The low participation of persons with disabilities in sports and cultural activities;

(b) High costs of adapted sports equipment for persons with disabilities limiting or restricting their participation on an equal basis with others;

(c) The lack of information on the impact of the new cultural policy strategy and the review of the Sports Act on the participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure, and sports activities on the Åland Islands.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop a national action plan to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in sports and cultural life, that includes measures to support athletes and artists with disabilities, and ensure accessible cultural and sports facilities;

(b) Ensure that adapted sports equipment for persons with disabilities is affordable so that persons with disabilities can participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure, and sport on an equal basis with others;

(c) Conduct a study on the impact of the new cultural policy strategy and the review of the Sports Act on the participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure, and sports activities on the Åland Islands, to ensure its alignment with the Convention.

Kiribati (2025)

57. The Committee is concerned:

(a) About the lack of policies, programmes, and accessible facilities to promote access to cultural events, artistic expression, recreational activities, tourism, and sporting opportunities for persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, beyond those targeted to persons with disabilities;

(b) About the limited opportunities and support for the participation of persons with disabilities in arts and sports, including the lack of necessary devices and equipment and the insufficient support to the Kiribati National Olympic Committee (KNOC) to develop inclusive sports, particularly for children with disabilities;

(c) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Allocate resources to implement policies and programmes to promote the participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, tourism, and sporting activities;
- (b) Ensure effective development and participation of persons with disabilities in sport, support those pursuing arts and sport careers through providing devices and equipment, and provide sufficient support to the Kiribati National Olympic Committee (KNOC) to develop sports for persons with disabilities, in particular for children with disabilities;
- (c) Ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled and implement it in the national law.

Maldives (2025)

59. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That recreational, cultural and sports spaces are not accessible to all persons with disabilities across all islands;
- (b) The persistence of segregated sports activities for persons with disabilities;
- (c) At the lack of books in accessible formats such as audiobooks, books in Braille, and Easy Read, among others, and that the few available materials in accessible formats are only available in the national library in Malé;
- (d) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that all public buildings, including cultural, recreation, leisure and sporting facilities provide for accessibility and other accommodations, including assistive devices, to facilitate private and independent enjoyment of the right of persons with disabilities to cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports;
- (b) Promote the training of professionals to ensure that schools on all islands have staff trained in inclusive sports practices, and promote, the participation of children and adolescents with disabilities in sports activities, both recreational and professional;
- (c) Ensure the availability of books in accessible formats such as audiobooks, books in Braille and Easy Read, throughout the State party, in particular on the outer islands;
- (d) Consider ratifying the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled and implement it in the national law.

Dominican Republic (2025)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accessibility of most cultural and historical sites, touristic, recreation, leisure and sport facilities and the shortcomings in increasing the use of such facilities by persons with disabilities, in particular children with disabilities.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, strengthen measures to increase the accessibility of cultural and historical sites, touristic, recreation, leisure and sports facilities and encourage and facilitate their use by persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities.

European Union (2025)

70. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The implementing Directive of the Marrakesh Treaty allows, as does the Marrakesh Treaty, Member States to require non-profit organizations that create accessible formats to pay compensation;
- (b) Cultural performance venues, sites of historical significance tourist, recreational, leisure and sports facilities are often inaccessible;

- (c) Many persons with disabilities live in institutional environments located on the outskirts of cities or in rural areas, reducing their opportunities for participation in cultural life, recreational activities and sports;
- (d) Recognition of the cultural and linguistic identity of deaf persons is insufficient.

71. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Delete Article 3(6) in the EU Directive for the implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty;
- (b) Make accessibility a mandatory condition for EU funding of culture, leisure and sports;
- (c) Support deinstitutionalization processes to ensure better participation of persons with disabilities in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports;
- (d) Include and promote deaf culture as part of the cultural and linguistic landscape of the EU.

Palau (2025)

57. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The lack of measures to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy access to cultural materials in accessible formats, access to television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats and access to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas, libraries and tourism services and sport services;
- (b) The lack of opportunity for persons with disabilities, particularly athletes with disabilities, to participate in the Paralympic Games due to not having membership status;
- (c) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop and implement strategy with benchmarks, indicators and adequate resources to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy access to cultural materials in accessible formats, access to television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats and access to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas, libraries and tourism services and sport services;
- (b) Take proactive measures to expedite the accreditation and athlete classification process to enable Palau's participation in future Paralympic Games;
- (c) Enforce the Persons with Disabilities Act to ensure all public buildings, including cultural, recreation, leisure and sporting facilities provide for accessibility and other accommodations, including assistive devices, to facilitate private and independent enjoyment of their right to cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports;
- (d) Consider ratifying the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled and implement it in the national law.

Tuvalu (2025)

55. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That recreational, cultural and sports spaces are not accessible to people with all types of disabilities across all islands;
- (b) At the lack of support and promotion of programs for the involvement and participation of persons with disabilities in culture and art;
- (c) About the lack of information on the resources allocated to ensure effective participation in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports for persons with disabilities;
- (d) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that all public buildings, including cultural, recreation, leisure and sporting facilities provide for accessibility and other accommodations, including assistive devices, to facilitate private and independent enjoyment of the right of persons with disabilities to cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports;

(b) Allocate resources and programs for the development of accessible recreation, art and leisure spaces in both rural and urban areas for persons with all types of disabilities and make the existing sports and recreation infrastructures accessible to all persons with disabilities;

(c) Ensure effective development and participation of persons with disabilities in sport and encourage those who choose to pursue arts and sport supporting them with all necessary devices and equipment to make meaningful careers in art and sport, and provide sufficient support to the Tuvalu Association of Sports and National Olympic Committee to develop sports for persons with disabilities, in particular for children with disabilities;

(d) Consider ratifying the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled and implement it in the national law.

Viet Nam (2025)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of information and communication on physical accessibility and the lack of physical accessibility itself of cinemas, theatres, libraries, beaches and hotels and recreational and cultural venues;

(b) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities in recreational and cultural places and employment, such as as tourist guides and operators.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Establish a comprehensive programme to ensure information and communication on physical accessibility and implement physical accessibility itself in cinemas, theatres, libraries, beaches and hotels and recreational and cultural venues;

(b) Provide training for persons with disabilities who wish to pursue activities such as acting, singing, tour guiding, cultural management, and more.

Belarus (2024)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of clear action plan and measures to fully and efficiently implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled, since its entry into force for the State party in 2020;

(b) The absence of measures to promote cultural diversity in society;

(c) The lack of access to services of leisure and sports for persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends that in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, the State party:

(a) Adopt national legislation or ensure specific provisions to implement effectively the provisions of Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;

(b) Develop action plans and allocate resources to improve and promote cultural diversity in the society;

(c) Ensure access to general recreational, leisure and sporting venues and activities for persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities on an equal basis with others, and provide them with the necessary assistance and support to achieve this objective.

Benin (2024)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled
- (b) That recreational, cultural and sports spaces are not accessible to persons with all types of disabilities in urban and rural areas;
- (c) The lack of support and promotion of programmes for the involvement and participation of persons with disabilities in culture and art;
- (d) The lack of information on allocated resources to grant effective participation in cultural life recreation leisure and sport of persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite the ratification process of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled and ensure full access to information and cultural materials for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Enforce The Act on the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (art. 59 to 62) to ensure that all public buildings, including cultural, recreation, leisure and sporting facilities, provide for accessibility and other accommodations, including assistive devices, to facilitate private and independent enjoyment of the right of persons with disabilities to cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports;
- (c) Allocate resources and establish programmes for the development of accessible recreation, art and leisure spaces in both rural and urban areas for persons with all types of disabilities and make the existing sports and recreation infrastructure accessible to all persons with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure effective development and participation of persons with disabilities in sport and encourage those who choose to pursue arts and sport, supporting them with all the devices and equipment necessary to have meaningful careers in art and sport.

Burkina Faso (2024)

56. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) Whereas the Burkina Faso Copyright Office and NGOs working in the field of disability are providing technical support to organizations of persons with disabilities authorised by the World Intellectual Property Organization to translate works, the State has not yet recognised organizations of persons with disabilities as entities authorized to reproduce published works in accessible formats;
- (b) The absence of mechanisms and budget allocation to promote inclusion of persons with disabilities in mainstream sports.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Recognize and support persons with disabilities and their organizations authorized by WIPO as entities permitted to reproduce published works in accessible formats;
- (b) Take measures to provide adequate support to sports and cultural associations of persons with disabilities to participate in cultural and recreational life as well as in leisure and mainstream sports on an equal basis with others.

Denmark (2024)

77. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy access to cultural material, television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats, and access to places of cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas and libraries, tourism and sport services.

78. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to cultural material, television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas and libraries, tourism services and sport services;

(b) Improve on its efforts to ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, can effectively exercise their right to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

79. The Committee is concerned that Greenland and the Faroe Islands have not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled of June 27, 2013.

80. The Committee recommends Greenland and the Faroe Islands ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled of June 27, 2013 and implement it.

Ghana (2024)

58. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Copyright Act is not aligned with the Marrakesh Treaty in order to facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or otherwise print-disabled;

(b) Most sports and cultural facilities, museums, cultural and recreational centres, tourist attractions and stadiums, as well as public libraries are inaccessible to persons with disabilities including in rural and remote areas;

(c) Persons with disabilities, particularly persons with albinism face significant cultural barriers and negative stereotypes as they are subjected to discrimination, rejection and social exclusion which prevents them from participating in traditional cultural events and community activities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

(a) To amend the copyright Act to make it consistent with the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible, to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled;

(b) Implement a comprehensive accessibility audit of all sport facilities, cultural facilities, museums, recreational centres, tourist attractions and stadiums, as well as public libraries across the country to identify barriers and prioritize the installation of ramps, accessible seating, and proper signage and, allocate sufficient funding and resources, enhance political commitment, and conduct awareness campaigns to promote inclusion of persons with disabilities including children with disabilities in leisure, cultural activities and sports;

(c) Launch targeted public awareness programmes to challenge cultural stereotypes and discriminatory practices against persons with disabilities, particularly those with albinism and foster inclusive community engagement and participation in traditional cultural events and activities, ensuring all individuals can freely and actively take part without facing social exclusion or prejudice.

Mauritius (2024)

53. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Accessibility requirements are limited to newer sports and recreational facilities and that other sporting, recreational, entertainment, leisure, cultural and tourism venues, activities and services remain largely inaccessible to persons with disabilities, notably persons with physical and visual impairments and reduced mobility, including deaf, blind, deafblind and partially sighted persons;

(b) There is an absence of an action plan to implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Adopt measures and allocate resources to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others in urban and rural areas, including through improved accessibility of existing and future infrastructure;
- (b) Develop a comprehensive action plan to further amend the legislation and enhance accessibility and reasonable accommodation to ensure the effective implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty.

Netherlands (2024)

65. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accessibility of some cultural, recreation, leisure and sport facilities and the shortcomings in increasing the use of such facilities by persons with disabilities, especially persons with disabilities with high support requirements and children with disabilities;

66. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, strengthen measures to encourage and facilitate the use and the accessibility of cultural, recreation, leisure and sport facilities by persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities.

Ukraine (2024)

60. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of a national plan with specific targets and timeline for the implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;

(b) The lack of comprehensive measures to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy access to cultural materials, television programs, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats, as well as access to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas and libraries, tourism and sport service;

(c) The lack of measures to ensure children with disabilities equal access with other children to participation in play, recreation and leisure and sporting activities, including activities in the school system.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Swiftly implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Blind Persons, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;

(b) Expand the scope of its legislation on the right of persons with disabilities, with the aim to include children with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport;

(c) Ensure that persons with disabilities access cultural materials, television programmes museums, libraries, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats and participate in cultural life as playwrights, producers, actors, librarians and other relevant roles;

(d) Prohibit discrimination of children with disabilities and ensure equal access with other children to participation in play, recreation, leisure and sporting activities, including activities in the school system.

Bahrain (2024)¹

60. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a national strategy to make cultural life and the creative arts inclusive for persons with disabilities.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

- (b) Lack of accessibility in theaters, cinemas, museums and tourist places, and lack of availability of information and cultural materials in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, especially sign language and easy reading.
- (c) Failure to promote the cultural and linguistic identity of the deaf community.
- (d) Lack of availability of books, magazines and cultural materials in accessible formats, including Braille, audio formats and easy reading.
- (e) Lack of integration of persons with disabilities in sports clubs and activities, and insufficient support for sports for persons with disabilities.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party

- (a) Develop, in close consultation and with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organizations, a comprehensive national strategy aimed at achieving the full inclusion of persons with disabilities in cultural life
- (b) Provide accessibility, accommodation and accessible formats, including sign translation, simplified reading and audio description in cultural, recreational and tourist venues
- (c) Recognize and promote the cultural and linguistic identity of the deaf community through educational curricula and awareness-raising campaigns, with the active participation of deaf persons and their organizations.
- (d) Ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled, and ensure that persons with disabilities have full access to information sources and cultural materials
- (e) Develop legal and practical measures for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in sports clubs and activities and provide support for sports games

Costa Rica (2024)

51. El Comité nota con preocupación la falta de medidas para que las personas con discapacidad puedan tener acceso a material cultural, programas de televisión, películas, teatro y otras actividades culturales en formatos accesibles, así como los insuficientes esfuerzos en la aplicación efectiva del Tratado de Marrakech para facilitar el acceso a las obras publicadas a las personas ciegas, con discapacidad visual o con otras dificultades para acceder al texto impreso. Le preocupa también la falta de accesibilidad en los centros recreativos para personas con discapacidad, en particular los lugares considerados patrimoniales e históricos, playas, miradores y áreas tropicales.

52. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte adoptar medidas para que las personas con discapacidad puedan tener acceso a material cultural, programas de televisión, películas, teatro y otras actividades culturales en formatos accesibles, así como adoptar medidas para lograr la aplicación efectiva del Tratado de Marrakech para facilitar el acceso a las obras publicadas a las personas ciegas, con discapacidad visual o con otras dificultades para acceder al texto impreso, mediante consultas estrechas y la participación activa de las personas con discapacidad a través de las organizaciones que las representan. El Comité recomienda también elaborar un manual de accesibilidad que garantice el acceso físico a los lugares donde se realizan las actividades recreativas, incluidos los considerados patrimoniales e históricos, playas, miradores y áreas tropicales, y se asignen recursos humanos y financieros para la promoción de la cultura, deporte y actividades recreativas para personas con discapacidad y para la construcción de pasarelas accesibles en las playas y miradores.

Kazakhstan (2024)

63. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

64. The Committee encourages the State party to expedite the ratification and implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Nicaragua (2024)

62. Preocupa al Comité la falta de accesibilidad al medio físico y a la información y las comunicaciones para personas con discapacidad en los centros recreativos, culturales y deportivos, así como el poco financiamiento para la promoción de la cultura y actividades recreativas, por lo que se limita con ello el disfrute de este derecho.

63. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte normas de accesibilidad al medio físico, a la información y las comunicaciones para garantizar el acceso a las actividades recreativas a todas las personas con discapacidad, incluidos los niños y las niñas con discapacidad, y que asigne recursos humanos y financieros para la promoción de la cultura, deporte y actividades recreativas, también para personas con discapacidad.

Sweden (2024)

65. The Committee is concerned about the barriers to access to recreational, leisure and sport activities for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and children with disabilities.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

(a) Strengthen mechanisms to ensure that sporting, recreational, cultural and leisure activities are accessible for persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to personal assistance at no cost to practise sport and attend cultural and social activities.

Zambia (2024)

59. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That Section 48 of the Persons with Disabilities Act No 6 (2012) which provides that Persons with Disabilities shall enjoy the right to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport has not been enforced;

(b) That recreational, cultural and sports spaces are not accessible to persons with all types of disabilities in urban and rural areas;

(c) At the lack of support and promotion of programs for the involvement and participation of persons with disabilities in culture and art;

(d) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Enforce the Persons with Disabilities Act to ensure all public buildings, including cultural, recreation, leisure and sporting facilities provide for accessibility and other accommodations, including assistive devices, to facilitate private and independent enjoyment of their right to cultural life, recreation, leisure and sports;

(b) Allocate resources and programs for the development of accessible recreation, art and leisure spaces in both rural and urban areas for persons with all types of disabilities and make the existing sports and recreation infrastructures accessible to all persons with disabilities;

(c) Allocate adequate resources to the Paralympic Committee to ensure effective development and participation of persons with disabilities in sport and encourage those who choose to pursue arts and sport supporting them with all necessary devices and equipment to make meaningful careers in art and sport;

(d) Ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled and implement it in the national law.

Andorra (2023)

61. The Committee notes the Integra and Integra Plus programmes for the inclusion of children with disabilities in leisure time activities and initiatives to promote inclusive tourism. However, it is concerned about the following:

- (a) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (b) The insufficient access for persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, to inclusive sporting, leisure, tourism and cultural activities and services.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (b) Strengthen mechanisms to assess accessibility barriers and ensure that sporting, recreational, cultural and tourism venues are accessible for all persons with disabilities, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

Austria (2023)

67. The Committee is concerned about the lack of inclusivity and accessibility of mainstream cultural, recreational, tourism and sporting venues and activities for persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities and children with disabilities;

68. The Committee recommends that the State party render mainstream cultural, recreational, tourism and sporting venues and activities accessible and inclusive for persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities and children with disabilities, by, inter alia, training the respective personnel, adjusting the infrastructure, providing information in accessible formats, and providing an adequate budget.

Germany (2023)

67. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of accessibility in public libraries, museums, and touristic areas and monuments;
- (b) Barriers persons with disabilities encounter to benefit from the personal assistance services to exercise the right to sport and entertainment;
- (c) The absence of policies and programs to promote the cultural and linguistic identity of deaf persons ;
- (d) The lack of inclusivity and accessibility in some faculties of creative arts;
- (e) The lack of measures to promote cultural diversity in the society, in particular with respect to the contribution of the refugees with disabilities to diversity.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen mechanisms to ensure that sporting, recreational, cultural and tourism venues are accessible for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure persons with disabilities have access to personal assistance at no cost to practice sport and attend cultural and social activities;
- (c) Promote the cultural and linguistic identity of deaf persons , with close participation of their representative organizations, in educational curriculum, media and social events;
- (d) In close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, promote inclusion and accessibility to all creative arts studies;
- (e) Promote cultural diversity in society and the contribution of the refugees with disabilities to diversity.

Israel (2023)

61. The Committee is concerned about the slow progress in accessibility to religious sites, including synagogues, holy places, including Christian, Jewish and Muslim premises and religious events and barriers to access parks, places for cultural performances, and sport centres and events.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, takes steps to provide access to all religious sites and events, cultural, leisure, tourism and sporting facilities and services in the public and private sector, and monitor progress.

63. The Committee is concerned that the regulation that relates to playground accessibility for children with disabilities does not cover all existing playgrounds.

64. Recalling its General comment No. 2 on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party expand the scope of the regulations to cover all existing and new playgrounds for children with disabilities.

Malawi (2023)

61. The Committee is concerned that Section 19 of the Disability Act of 2012, which recognizes the right of persons with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport is not enforced. It also notes that sports and recreation infrastructure as well as places of cultural performances or services are not accessible to persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of measures to enable persons with disabilities to develop and utilize their creative, artistic and intellectual potential.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures including legislation and policy to improve accessibility by all persons with disabilities to sport and leisure infrastructures including theatres, museums, cinemas, libraries and tourism sights as well as providing cultural and leisure information materials in accessible formats to all persons with disabilities;

(b) Encourage and promote the participation, to the fullest extent possible, of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others in mainstream sporting activities at all levels;

(c) Collaborate with persons with disabilities to create incentives to utilize their creative, artistic and intellectual potential for their own benefit as well as that of the society.

Mauritania (2023)

51. The Committee is concerned about the lack of sufficient access for persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, to inclusive sporting, leisure and cultural activities and services. It is also concerned that State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others, as well as to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Mongolia (2023)

59. The Committee is concerned about a lack of measures to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy access to cultural materials in accessible formats, access to television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats and access to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas, libraries and tourism services and sport services.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop measures to ensure that persons with disabilities enjoy access to cultural materials in accessible formats, access to television programmes, films, theatre and other cultural activities, in accessible formats and access to places for cultural performances or services, such as theatres, museums, cinemas, libraries and tourism services and sport services;
- (b) Adopt appropriate measures to ensure the effective implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled through close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (c) Increase its efforts to ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, enjoy their right to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

Paraguay (2023)

53. Al Comité le preocupa la falta de accesibilidad física, a la información y comunicación para personas con discapacidad en los centros recreativos, así como el poco financiamiento para la promoción de la cultura, y actividades recreativas limitando con ello el disfrute de este derecho.

54. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte normas de accesibilidad física, a la información y comunicación para garantizar el acceso a las actividades recreativas a todas las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo a los niños y niñas con discapacidad, y que asigne recursos humanos y financieros para la promoción de la cultura, deporte y actividades recreativas, incluyendo para personas con discapacidad.

Angola (2023)

51. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of accessibility of all museums, cultural and recreational centres, tourist attractions and stadiums, including provision in public libraries of information in accessible formats for persons who are blind or visually impaired, including the lack of sufficient funding to enable persons with disabilities participate actively in sports and recreational activities, including in rural and remote areas;

(b) That the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take concrete measures to eliminate all barriers militating against the participation of persons with disabilities in cultural life, recreational and sports activities and encourage their participation on an equal basis with others, including expediting action on the establishment of the national disability sports centre,

(b) Ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Argentina (2023)

57. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) La limitada accesibilidad en lugares turísticos, espacios culturales, deportivos y recreativos, y la poca aplicación de ajustes razonables en estos entornos, en particular para personas con discapacidad visual;

b) Los obstáculos que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad para acceder a los programas de televisión, las actividades culturales y las publicaciones electrónicas;

c) Los programas como el de Colonia Rodante que segregan a las personas con discapacidad;

d) El poco apoyo para artistas con discapacidad.

58. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Redoblar sus esfuerzos para garantizar la accesibilidad física, a la información y comunicación en los lugares turísticos, espacios culturales, deportivos y recreativos, incluyendo mayor presupuesto, campañas de concientización sobre las barreras que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad y capacitaciones sobre accesibilidad y ajustes razonables a las entidades que brindan estos servicios;
- b) Facilitar el acceso a programas de televisión y actividades culturales en formatos accesibles, y reforzar las medidas de aplicación del Tratado de Marrakech para Facilitar el Acceso a las Obras Publicadas a las Personas Ciegas, con Discapacidad Visual o con Otras Dificultades para Acceder al Texto Impreso, con el fin de aumentar la disponibilidad de obras publicadas accesibles;
- c) Eliminar los programas que segregan a personas con discapacidad en aras de promover su participación en actividades recreativas, culturales o deportivas;
- d) Implementar programas de apoyo económico, incluyendo becas para artistas con discapacidad.

Georgia (2023)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The State party not yet having ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (b) Persons with disabilities facing barriers to access tourism venues, including cultural monuments, taking part in cultural life and participating in sporting events, and the absence of measures for persons with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport, in the long-term human rights strategy (2022-2030).

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (b) Strengthen mechanisms to ensure sporting, recreational, cultural and tourism venues are accessible for persons with disabilities, particularly outside of the capital Tbilisi, assess accessibility barriers, and closely consult organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of mechanisms to remedy accessibility barriers;
- (c) Include the right of persons with disabilities to participate on an equal basis with others in recreational, leisure and sporting activities, in the long-term human rights strategy (2022-2030) and its subsequent strategies, policies and programmes.

Peru (2023)

60. Al Comité le preocupa la falta de accesibilidad física, a la información y comunicación en los centros recreativos para personas con discapacidad, así como el poco financiamiento para la promoción de la cultura, y actividades recreativas limitando con ello el disfrute de este derecho.

61. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que elabore un manual de estándares de accesibilidad física, a la información y comunicación que garantice el acceso a las actividades recreativas a todas las personas con discapacidad, que abarque todas las deficiencias y que asigne recursos humanos y financieros para la promoción de la cultura, deporte y actividades recreativas para personas con discapacidad.

Togo (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned about the lack of sufficient access for persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, to inclusive sporting, leisure and cultural activities and services. It is also concerned that State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others, as well as to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Tunisia (2023)

53. The Committee is concerned that the implementation of Part No. 8 of the Policy Law No. 38 of 2005 on Free Access to Public, Cultural, Sports and Entertainment Spaces has not been effective and it is little known among persons with disabilities and their representative organisations. It is also concerned that the Ministry of Culture does not meaningfully involve persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in its awareness raising programmes on the importance of organizing cultural activities for persons with disabilities. It is particularly concerned that they are neither involved in the design, planning, implementation and follow up of the organized programmes, when many of them are not even aware of these programmes, nor in the assessment of accessibility to monuments, theatres, and other recreational and leisure places.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure effective implementation and awareness raising of Part No. 8 of the Policy Law No. 38 of 2005 on Free Access to Public, Cultural, Sports and Entertainment Spaces to ensure facilitation and free access by all persons with disabilities to these places;
- (b) Adopt measures to ensure that information on cultural activities, cultural materials and contents are accessible to persons with disabilities, including through the use of Information and Communications Technologies (ICTs);
- (c) Take measures to ensure close consultation and active participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in its awareness raising programmes on the importance of organizing cultural activities for persons with disabilities, and in particular, ensure they are involved in the design, planning, implementation and follow up of the organized programmes;
- (d) Carry out regular assessment of accessibility to monuments, theatres, and other recreational and leisure places with active participation and in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations;
- (e) Support artistic, cultural and sports productions developed by persons with disabilities and disseminate them to the public.

Bangladesh (2022)

57. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The lack of accessibility of all museums, cultural and recreational centres, tourist attractions and stadiums, including provision in public libraries of information in accessible formats for persons who are blind or visually impaired, including the lack of sufficient budgetary allocations to enable persons with disabilities participate actively in sports and recreational activities, including in rural and remote areas.
- (b) The State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or otherwise printed disabled;

58. The Committee recommends that the State party take concrete measures to eliminate all barriers militating against the participation of persons with disabilities in cultural life, recreational and sports activities and encourage their participation on an equal basis with others, including expediting action on the establishment of the national disability sports centre, as well as to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled as soon as possible.

Indonesia (2022)

62. The Committee is concerned at the limited efforts undertaken to provide accessibility and infrastructure that guarantee persons with disabilities equal enjoyment of sites of cultural value, including in cultural buildings, theatres and tourist sites.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure that persons with disabilities can participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

Japan (2022)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Limited accessibility at tourist locations and entertainment facilities;
- (b) Barriers to access television programs, cultural activities, and electronic publications;
- (c) Restrictions on participation in sporting events, in particular, as regards persons who are deaf, hard of hearing or deafblind.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enhance efforts to ensure accessibility at tourist locations and entertainment facilities, including those of a small scale;
- (b) Secure the access to television programs and cultural activities in accessible formats, and strengthen measures to implement the Marrakesh Treaty to increase the availability of accessible published works;
- (c) Ensure the access to sport activities for all persons with disabilities, including the provision of reasonable accommodation.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

56. The Committee notes:

- (a) That the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (b) With concern the low participation of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities belonging to ethnic groups, in cultural life, and recreational and sports activities.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take all appropriate measures to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (b) Eliminate social and environmental barriers hindering the participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women and children with disabilities belonging to ethnic groups, in cultural life, and recreational and sports activities, and encourage their participation on an equal basis with others.

Republic of Korea (2022)

61. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific measures put in place to effectively implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print-Disabled and the insufficient measures taken to promote the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt appropriate measures to ensure the effective implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty through close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party increase its efforts to ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, enjoy their right to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

Hungary (2022)

58. The Committee is concerned about the remaining barriers to access to recreational, leisure and sporting venues and activities for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities and children with disabilities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to general recreational, leisure and sporting venues and activities for persons with disabilities, with a particular emphasis on persons with intellectual disabilities and children with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, and provide them with the necessary assistance and support to achieve this objective.

Jamaica (2022)

54. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That despite the adoption of the Copyright Amendment Act in 2015 to facilitate access to published work for persons with disabilities who are blind or visually impaired, the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty and has not adopted national legislation;

(b) At the limited access for deaf persons to arts and cultural events, as sign language interpretation service is not generally provided in most cultural places;

(c) That cultural centres, theatres and library services which provide access to the Internet by persons with disabilities, including computers with speech software for persons with visual impairments, are sometimes inaccessible and far away from the community, and that the availability of audio materials is very limited.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others, as well as to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Switzerland (2022)

57. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient measures to implement the Marrakesh Treaty and to recognize the specific cultural and linguistic identity of deaf persons.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen measures to implement the Marrakesh Treaty and to increase the availability of accessible published works;

(b) Recognize the specific cultural and linguistic identity of deaf persons, including sign languages and deaf culture.

Venezuela (2022)

50. The Committee takes note of the process of updating the electoral register to identify more voters with disabilities, but remains concerned about their limited participation in the reform and the fact that persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, are underrepresented in electoral processes and selection procedures for decision-making bodies.

51. The Committee recommends that persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities and persons with intensive support needs, should be consulted through their representative organizations about potential electoral policy and law reforms to guarantee that they are able to vote, be elected to public office and participate in decision-making bodies.

Djibouti (2021)

53. The Committee is concerned about the lack of sufficient access for persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, to inclusive sporting, leisure and cultural activities and services. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party adopts measures to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others, as well as to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

France (2021)

60. The Committee is concerned about lack of information on measures to implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled, and about access to mainstream sporting, recreational and tourism venues for persons with disabilities, the lack of play, recreation and leisure and sporting activities for children with disabilities. It also notes with concern the lack of support to the organizational structure for Deaf sports and the lack of recognition of Deaf Olympic.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take appropriate measures to ensure the effective implementation at the national level of the relevant European Union legislation enacted following the ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled;

Set up specific budgets to promote the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others;

Take measures to encourage the Deaf Olympic and give effect to the recommendations issued by the Defender of Rights, in 2008.

Estonia (2021)

58. The Committee is concerned about the lack of access for persons with disabilities to cultural materials, places for cultural performances and services. It is also concerned about the lack of access for persons with intellectual disabilities to recreational, leisure and sporting activities, in which they are impeded from participating on an equal basis with others.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to places for cultural performances, ensure the provision by museums of information in sign language and provide cultural materials in accessible formats. The State party should promote inclusive recreational, leisure and sporting activities for both adults and children with disabilities.

Albania (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, particularly children, face barriers to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party itemize a budget to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Australia (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific measures put in place to effectively implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print-Disabled and the insufficient measures taken to promote the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate measures to ensure the effective implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty through close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party increase its efforts to ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, enjoy their right to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

Ecuador (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned at a lack of accessibility for persons with disabilities in all sport, recreational and cultural facilities and at the lack of participation by children with disabilities in sports and cultural events. It is also concerned at the insufficient nature of the steps taken to implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee physical and communication access for persons with disabilities at sports, cultural and recreational facilities by putting in place the necessary accessibility measures in both urban and rural areas; that it provide more training for the public employees working in such facilities; and that sign language guides and information in accessible formats, such as Braille and other modes and means of communication, be used to foster the participation of children with disabilities in sport and cultural events. It also recommends that the State party take targeted action to implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

El Salvador (2019)

56. The Committee is concerned that accessible tourist viewing points, as well as the development of accessibility for sporting events in general, have focused on physical accessibility.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure that all tourist viewing points and sports events open to the public use accessible communication modes, means and formats and that persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, have full access to sports, cultural and other leisure centres, in both urban and rural areas. It also recommends that the State party collect disaggregated data on the number of persons with disabilities who participate in mainstream sports and recreation programmes, particularly those living in rural and remote areas.

Greece (2019)

44. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities face barriers in their participation in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others due to, inter alia, the limited access to cultural materials and activities in accessible formats, cultural performances and services, sporting activities, monuments and sites of national cultural importance.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party take all steps necessary to provide and promote inclusive and accessible facilities for recreational, leisure and sporting activities, guaranteeing equal access and ensuring the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities. It encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ensure the effective implementation at the national level of the relevant European Union legislation enacted following the ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

India (2019)

62. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures to ensure access to mainstream recreation, cultural activities, leisure and sports by persons with disabilities, and the insufficient measures to further promote the implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party monitor the accessibility of leisure and sports sites, recognize cultural identities and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities in cultural performances and cultural exchanges. It also recommends that the State party adopt policies to incentivize publishers to make reading material available in accessible formats, and promote the cross-border exchange of resources in accordance with the Marrakesh Treaty.

Iraq (2019)

55. The Committee notes that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

56. The Committee encourages the State party to expedite review of the draft bill to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty.

57. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities face barriers in participating in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party itemize a budget to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others, including measures that provide assistance as needed.

Kuwait (2019)

58. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled. It is also concerned about the lack of information about measures taken to:

Promote deaf culture and the linguistic identity of persons who are deaf;

Ensure access to all cultural, recreational, tourism-related and sporting events and services for children and adults with disabilities;

Ensure equal access to and the full inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities in all mainstream sporting activities and facilities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty. It also recommends that the State party:

In close consultation with and with the active participation of organizations of deaf persons, promote deaf culture and the linguistic identity of persons who are deaf;

Ensure the accessibility of cultural, recreational, tourism-related and sporting events and services in the public and private sectors, beyond those specifically dedicated to persons with disabilities, to children and adults with disabilities;

Ensure equal access to and the full inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities in all mainstream sporting activities and facilities.

Myanmar (2019)

57. The Committee is concerned that:

The participation of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, in cultural life, recreational and sports activities remains low;

The State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Eliminate social and environmental barriers hindering the participation of persons with disabilities, in particular children with disabilities, in cultural life, recreational and sports activities and encourage their participation on an equal basis with others;

Take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Cuba (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned that

Access to sports and leisure facilities, which hinders the effective participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities is lacking;

The State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Implements measures that promote the participation of persons with disabilities in sports at all levels, including in national and international sport competitions, take steps to support and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities, including children, in sports and cultural activities based on the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention, and adopt accessibility plans with regard to historical, heritage and tourist sites and cultural and leisure facilities;

Take all necessary measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty.

Niger (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned about:

The lack of accessibility of sporting, recreation and cultural centres, for persons with disabilities, and the lack of financial resources for persons with disabilities to engage in such activities;

The fact that the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled is not yet ratified.

50. The Committee recommends that the State Party adopt measures to ensure that all sports, recreational and cultural facilities are accessible to persons with disabilities, including persons with physical disabilities, blind and visually impaired persons, and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, and provide budgetary allocations to ensure that they participate actively in such activities; and ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty.

Norway (2019)

47. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, children in particular, face barriers to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party take all necessary steps to secure and promote inclusive and accessible facilities for recreational, leisure and sporting activities, including UNESCO World Heritage sites, providing equal access and ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly children. It also encourages the State party to promptly ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Rwanda (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not signed or ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled. It is also concerned by the lack of efforts to increase accessible spaces of recreation and leisure, both in rural and urban areas, and limited opportunities for persons with disabilities, including children, to participate in sports and cultural activities.

56. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to sign, ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty. It also recommends that the State party take concrete measures to increase accessible and inclusive spaces of recreation and leisure, and support and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities, including children, in sports and cultural activities.

Saudi Arabia

53. The Committee is concerned at the limited participation of women and girls with disabilities in physical education at school, in national tournaments and in sports leagues.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party support and encourage the participation of women and girls with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities in and outside of school.

Senegal (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or otherwise printed disabled.

52. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Spain (2019)

56. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or otherwise printed disabled.

57. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all necessary measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Türkiye (2019)

58. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or otherwise printed disabled.

59. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

60. The Committee is concerned about the limited information about participation of persons with disabilities in mainstream sporting activities and sports facilities.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to promote the participation, to the fullest extent possible, of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others in mainstream sporting activities at all levels.

Vanuatu (2019)

50. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or otherwise printed disabled.

51. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Algeria (2018)

50. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled. It is also concerned about insufficient measures to provide access to tourist sites, museums, art galleries, cultural centres, public parks and other public cultural facilities for all persons with disabilities and to encourage the participation of children with disabilities in recreational, leisure and sporting activities.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, to ensure the accessibility of tourist sites, museums, art galleries, cultural centres, public parks and other public spaces for all persons with disabilities and to encourage the participation of young persons with disabilities in recreational, sport, and cultural activities on an equal basis with others.

Bulgaria (2018)

63. The Committee is concerned that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

64. The Committee encourages the State party to promptly ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

65. The Committee is concerned about the State party's insufficient efforts to support access to and participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities

66. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to support and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities, including children, in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities.

Malta (2018)

43. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities face barriers to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others and that their participation in most cases still depends on assistance by a relative or caregiver. It also notes that the State party is awaiting the ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled by the European Union.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party itemize a budget to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others, including measures that provide assistance as needed. It encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to prepare the implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty upon its ratification in order to allow access to materials to persons with visual impairments, or otherwise print disabled.

Philippines (2018)

52. The Committee is concerned that the State Party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

53. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

54. The Committee is concerned about the policy of granting national funding only for the Paralympics, and Special Olympics to participate in competitions abroad, excluding persons with disabilities enrolled in other sports. It is also concerned about the lack of measures to promote inclusion of persons with disabilities in cultural and recreational activities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Allocate public funds for equal access and practice of sports by all persons with disabilities;

Adopt measures to ensure all persons with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport;

Adopt a strategy and allocate resources at the national and local levels to develop inclusive facilities, programmes and activities for persons with disabilities, in areas such as theatre, dance, music, in partnership and close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

South Africa (2018)

48. The Committee is concerned about the delay in revising the Copyright Act (1978) and ratifying the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite action to complete the process of the revision of the Copyright Act (1978) and the ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty.

North Macedonia (2018)

54. The Committee is concerned about the State party's insufficient efforts to support access to and participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities. The Committee regrets that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to support and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities, including children, in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities. It also encourages the State party to promptly ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Haiti (2018)

54. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities face barriers to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party itemize a budget to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Nepal (2018)

43. The Committee is concerned about how the National Sports Policy, 2010, which was adopted to develop and expand para-sports in order to encourage persons with disabilities to participate in sports of their interest, has been effective in ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities under article 30, particularly those with visual, speech and hearing impairment. The Committee also notes that while the State party has signed the Marrakesh Treaty, it is yet to ratify it.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party take appropriate action and measures to ensure that persons with disabilities can participate in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting programs. The Committee also encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Oman (2018)

53. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled. It is also concerned about insufficient measures to develop deaf culture as well as measures adopted to provide accessibility to tourist sites, museums, art galleries, cultural centres, public parks and other public cultural facilities for all persons with disabilities, including the participation of children in recreational, leisure and sporting activities.

54. The Committee recommends that the State Party take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as well as adopt measures for the development of deaf culture and to ensure the accessibility of tourist sites, museums, art galleries, cultural centres, public parks and other public spaces for all persons with disabilities, including the participation of children with disabilities in recreational, sport and cultural activities.

Russian Federation (2018)

60. The Committee is concerned that there is a lack of transparent information on the implementation of laws mentioned in paragraph 191 of the Replies to the List of Issues, with special regards to procedures for assisting persons with disabilities to exercise their cultural rights and that there is no information about the implementation of the Federal Act No. 34 with regard to mandatory audio description and captioning of movies. The Committee is also concerned that apart from persons with physical disabilities, persons with sensory or other types of disabilities do not seem to be covered by the services for tourists, including accommodation. The Committee furthermore notes with concern that there are no mandatory standards of accessibility for tourist services.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party improve the access to culture to all persons with disabilities, including persons with sensory disabilities, by establishing transparent procedures and the evaluation mechanisms, as well as binding standards for the tourist and cultural infrastructures and services in the Russian Federation in line with the General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Seychelles (2018)

51. The Committee notes the brilliant performance of athletes with disabilities at the regional and international levels and the excellent performance of artists with disabilities. However, the Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of inclusive leisure, recreation and sports activities;
- (b) The fact that the State party has not yet acceded to the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled;
- (c) The absence of systematic policies and practices for the promotion of accessibility in the tourism sector.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote inclusive leisure, recreation and sports activities;
- (b) Accede to the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled as soon as possible;
- (c) Ensure that tourism policies and practices are accessible to and inclusive of persons with disabilities, and disseminate the World Tourism Organization Recommendations on Accessible Tourism to all travel agencies and tourism agencies.

Slovenia (2018)

51. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

52. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled as soon as possible.

Sudan (2018)

61. The Committee is concerned about the State party's insufficient efforts to support access and participation of persons with disabilities in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities. The Committee is concerned that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to support and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities, including children, in cultural, recreational, leisure and sporting activities. It also recommends that the State party promptly ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Luxembourg (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities face barriers to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party itemize a budget to promote and protect the right of persons with disabilities to participate in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport on an equal basis with others. It encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Montenegro (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled. The Committee is also concerned that sports centres do not sufficiently promote inclusive regular sports programmes.

55. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible. It recommends that the State party allocate the necessary resources to increase access to inclusive sports to persons with disabilities of all ages.

Morocco (2017)

56. The Committee notes that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite action to complete the process for the ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty.

Panama (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned at the lack of effective implementation of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled. Furthermore, it is concerned by the lack of State efforts at all levels to support access for persons with disabilities, especially children, to accessible sports activities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to support and encourage the participation of persons with disabilities, including children, in sports. It also recommends that the State party adopt accessibility plans with regard to historical, heritage and tourist sites and cultural and leisure facilities. Lastly, it recommends that the State party promptly take all necessary measures to implement the Marrakesh Treaty.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

62. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled. It is also concerned about the low level of accessibility to sports stadiums with individual seating for persons with disabilities and their families, friends and personal assistants, and to national heritage sites, including those appointed as United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) heritage sites.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Take all necessary steps to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled as soon as possible;

Adopt a concrete plan of action, with resources and measurable objectives, to implement legislation, regulation and standardization to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to inclusive participation in all sports facilities and heritage sites, including UNESCO heritage sites.

Armenia (2017)

53. The Committee is concerned about the limited access and participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, especially those living in rural areas, with respect to sports and cultural activities and events. The Committee is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party take appropriate measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to and actively participate in cultural and sports activities and have equal access to facilities and services, such as libraries, sports and other cultural events and facilities. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty without delay.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments and persons with print disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that despite the fact that there is an adopted strategy for the period 2016-2021 for promoting the accessibility of educational, cultural and sports facilities, no significant progress can be identified so far.

55. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible. It also recommends that, in line with paragraph 15 of general comment No. 2 (2014), more attention be paid to educational, cultural and sport facilities in terms of coordination based on the suggested action plan.

Cyprus (2017)

59. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party take all steps necessary to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

Honduras (2017)

63. El Comité toma nota con beneplácito de la ratificación del Tratado de Marrakech para Facilitar el Acceso a las Obras Publicadas a las Personas Ciegas, con Discapacidad Visual o con Otras Dificultades para Acceder al Texto Impreso. Sin embargo le preocupa la falta de accesibilidad a sitios históricos, culturales, patrimoniales y turísticos para las personas con discapacidad en el Estado parte.

64. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte planes de accesibilidad, con indicadores y plazos concretos, en sitios de valor histórico y patrimonial, sitios turísticos e instalaciones donde se desarrollan actividades culturales y recreativas. Asimismo, el Comité alienta al Estado parte a fortalecer el acceso a la información y a la lectura para personas ciegas y con baja visión promoviendo la colaboración con editoriales, bibliotecas, centros de documentación, centros educativos y universidades, entre otros.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

56. The Committee notes that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

57. The Committee encourages the State party to take all necessary steps to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Jordan (2017)

57. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled, which provides for access to published material by blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons who have other difficulties in accessing printed materials.

58. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned about the limited access that persons with disabilities have to cultural activities and sport facilities and that athletes with disabilities are not supported on an equal basis with other athletes. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party take appropriate measures to ensure that persons with disabilities participate in cultural activities and sport, and that athletes with disabilities receive support on an equal basis with other athletes. It encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Bolivia (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned at:

The scant support provided to sportsmen and women with disabilities, especially elite sportsmen and women, and their lack of opportunities to participate in international competitions;

The lack of accessibility to historic, cultural, heritage and tourist sites;

The fact that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Allocate the necessary material and human resources to promote sports among persons with disabilities at the educational, recreational and elite levels;

Adopt accessibility plans, including indicators and specific time frames, at sites of historical and heritage value, tourist attractions and facilities that host cultural and recreational activities;

Ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Colombia (2016)

66. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

67. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Guatemala (2016)

69. The Committee notes the ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled and the efforts to promote the creation of a national network of entities that are authorized to produce published material in accessible formats.

70. However, the Committee is concerned that Decree No. 33-98 on copyright and related rights has not yet been brought into line with the Marrakesh Treaty and that a national network of entities that are authorized to produce published material in accessible formats has not been created.

71. The Committee encourages the State party to expedite the harmonization of Decree No. 33-98 on copyright and related rights with the Marrakesh Treaty and the creation of a national network of entities that are authorized to produce published material in accessible formats. It further encourages the State party to improve access to information and reading for persons who are blind or visually impaired and to promote collaboration with publishing houses, libraries, documentation centres, schools and universities, among others.

Italy (2016)

75. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled.

76. The Committee recommends that the State party streamline all efforts for the prompt ratification of the Marrakesh Treaty.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures taken to include persons with disabilities, especially children, in recreational, sport and cultural activities, which remain mostly segregated.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party set up a comprehensive strategy for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in recreational, sport and cultural activities and in society at large.

Lithuania (2016)

59. The Committee is concerned at reports stating that public cultural spaces such as the World Heritage sites of the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) largely remain inaccessible to persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of State party documentation on how European Union structural funds contribute to the removal of barriers to accessibility.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, take the steps necessary to secure and promote inclusive and accessible facilities for recreational, leisure and sporting activities, including UNESCO World Heritage sites, providing equal access to and participation for persons with disabilities, as set out in targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Portugal (2016)

56. The Committee is concerned that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled, which provides access to printed works for persons who are blind or partially sighted or experience other difficulties to access such publications.

57. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify the World Intellectual Property Organization Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Serbia (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired or Otherwise Print Disabled, which provides for access to published material by blind persons and persons with visual impairments or print disabilities.

62. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Slovakia (2016)

79. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

80. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

81. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accessibility of libraries for all persons with disabilities, including those with intellectual disabilities.

82. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that public libraries increase their accessibility and stock of easy-to-read, digital, audio and Braille publications.

Thailand (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

62. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Uganda (2016)

58. The Committee notes that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party take all steps necessary to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Brazil (2015)

54. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which would enable persons who are blind, visually impaired or otherwise print disabled to access published works. It is also concerned that tourist areas and facilities are not fully accessible to persons with disabilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Marrakesh Treaty. It further recommends to take appropriate measures to ensure that libraries are accessible to all persons with disabilities, including persons with cognitive or psycho-social impairments and those who are deaf-blind. It further recommends to step up its efforts to make tourism in Brazil fully accessible.

European Union (2015)

70. The Committee is concerned that the European Union has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or print disabilities in accessing printed materials.

71. The Committee encourages the European Union to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Gabon (2015)

64. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or print disabilities in having access to printed materials.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Kenya (2015)

53. The Committee notes that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

54. The Committee encourages the State party to take all necessary steps to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Mauritius (2015)

41. The Committee regrets that the State party has not yet acceded to the Marrakesh Treaty. It is also concerned with the lack of policies regarding accessibility in tourism and travel sector.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party

Accede to the Marrakesh treaty as soon as possible;

Ensure accessibility of libraries, audiovisual materials and broadcast services to persons with disabilities;

Ensure that tourism policies and practices are accessible to and inclusive of persons with disabilities, and disseminate the World Tourism Organization Recommendations on Accessible Tourism for all among travel agents and tourism agencies.

Qatar (2015)

53. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons with print disabilities in having access to printed materials.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Ukraine (2015)

56. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

57. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Cook Islands (2015)

53. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not acceded the Marrakesh treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, and that libraries do not have books available in Braille, easy to read formats and available digital resources. It is further concerned that there are no policies in place in the tourism and travel sector to facilitate tourist travel by persons with disabilities

54. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Accede the Marrakesh treaty as soon as possible;

Ensure libraries have books available in Braille, easy to read formats and accessible digital resources;

Ensure that tourism policies and practices are inclusive of persons with disabilities, and disseminate the World Tourism Organization (UNWTO) Recommendations on Accessible Tourism for All among travel agents and tourism agencies.

Croatia (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned about the low participation of persons with disabilities in cultural life. It is further concerned that Croatia has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

48. The Committee recommends the State party to take appropriate steps to ensure accessibility of mainstream cultural facilities and to take appropriate measures, e.g. disability art festivals, to enable persons with disabilities to have the opportunity to develop and utilize their creative, artistic and intellectual potential. It is recommended that the State Party ratifies the Marrakesh Treaty.

Czech Republic (2015)

58. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons who have other difficulties in accessing printed materials.

59. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Dominican Republic (2015)

56. Al Comité le preocupa que el Estado parte aún no haya ratificado el Tratado de Marrakech para Facilitar el Acceso a las Obras Publicadas a las Personas Ciegas, con Discapacidad Visual o con Otras Dificultades para Acceder al Texto impreso. Asimismo, le preocupa la poca accesibilidad de los sitios turísticos, monumentos históricos y patrimoniales, museos y otras instalaciones para el desarrollo de actividades artísticas y culturales.

57. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

Ratificar el Tratado de Marrakech; e

Implementar un plan para hacer accesibles los sitios turísticos, monumentos históricos e instalaciones, donde se desarrollan actividades artísticas y culturales y fomentar la participación de personas con discapacidad en las mismas.

Germany (2015)

55. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet acceded to the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

56. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures including ratifying to and implementing the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible in order to facilitate access to published material for blind persons, persons with visual impairments and persons with other difficulties in accessing published works.

Turkmenistan (2015)

51. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

52. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures in order to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

New Zealand (2014)

63. The Committee notes that only about 10 per cent of television programmes are captioned and only about one to two hours of television programmes each day are audio-described.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party take further measures to increase the captioning and audio description of television programmes.

65. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the World Intellectual Property Organization Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons who have other difficulties in accessing printed materials.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate steps to speedily ratify the Marrakesh Treaty.

Denmark (2014)

62. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons who have other difficulties in accessing printed materials.

63. The Committee encourages the State party to take all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Republic of Korea (2014)

57. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons with other difficulties in having access to printed materials.

58. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Belgium (2014)

40. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, adopted in 2013 by the World Intellectual Property Organization, which facilitates access to published material for blind persons, persons with visual impairments and persons with other difficulties in accessing published works.

41. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Ecuador (2014)

46. The Committee is concerned that facilities for sports and cultural development at the national level may not have undergone the necessary adaptation for access and use by persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that school and sports centres do not promote inclusive sports programmes for persons with disabilities, especially for the very young. The Committee further expresses its concern that theatres, cinemas and other recreational and cultural facilities do not have the necessary infrastructure and qualified staff for the inclusion of persons with disabilities.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party launch a national plan for accessible sport and update its cultural and recreational policy so that its main facilities are accessible to persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the plans and instruments used for overseeing theatres, cinemas and other recreational facilities take account of their accessibility to persons with disabilities, and that sanctions be imposed when such facilities do not have conditions suited to all users.

48. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which would enable persons who are blind, visually impaired or otherwise print disabled to have access to published works.

49. The Committee encourages the State party to take all the necessary steps to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Mexico (2014)

57. The Committee notes that the State party has yet to ratify the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled.

58. The Committee encourages the State party to take all necessary steps to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Sweden (2014)

53. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not signed or ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which allows access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons with other difficulties in having access to printed materials.

54. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to sign, ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

Azerbaijan (2014)

46. The Committee is concerned about the fact that the State party has not signed or ratified the World Intellectual Property Organization Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled which allows the access to published material to blind persons, persons with visual impairments or persons with other difficulties in having access to printed materials.

47. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt all appropriate measures to sign, ratify and implement the Marrakesh treaty as earliest as possible.

Costa Rica (2014)

61. The Committee is concerned about the fact that the State party has still not ratified the Marrakesh Treaty to Facilitate Access to Published Works for Persons Who Are Blind, Visually Impaired, or Otherwise Print Disabled, which would enable persons who are blind, visually impaired or otherwise print disabled to access published works.

62. The Committee urges the State party to take the appropriate steps to ratify and implement the Marrakesh Treaty as soon as possible.

El Salvador (2013)

61. The Committee is concerned at the lack of measures regarding access to and participation in cultural activities, such as the theatre and museums, and at the meagre progress in private-sector promotion of participation in cultural life by persons with disabilities, including children and adolescents.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party continue to devise policies and measures to ensure participation in cultural life, recreational activities, relaxation and sports by persons with disabilities, including the conclusion of public-private agreements with civil society organizations and businesses to establish accessible recreational and cultural spaces.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 31 CRPD
(Statistics and data collection)*

September 2025

Article 31 - Statistics and data collection

1. States Parties undertake to collect appropriate information, including statistical and research data, to enable them to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the present Convention. The process of collecting and maintaining this information shall:

- a) Comply with legally established safeguards, including legislation on data protection, to ensure confidentiality and respect for the privacy of persons with disabilities;*
- b) Comply with internationally accepted norms to protect human rights and fundamental freedoms and ethical principles in the collection and use of statistics.*

2. The information collected in accordance with this article shall be disaggregated, as appropriate, and used to help assess the implementation of States Parties' obligations under the present Convention and to identify and address the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in exercising their rights.

3. States Parties shall assume responsibility for the dissemination of these statistics and ensure their accessibility to persons with disabilities and others.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)

Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)

Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)

Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)

Spain (2011)

Tunisia (2010)

Please note there are no recommendations in the Concluding Observations on art. 31 on Czech Republic.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

60. The Committee welcomes the use of the Washington Group short set of questions on disability in population censuses to create a database on persons with disabilities. However, the Committee is concerned about the lack of publication of reliable, disaggregated data on persons with disabilities, including by type of impairment, age, gender, geographic location, and socioeconomic status.

61. The Committee recommends that the State Party use the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, with data disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migrant, refugee or asylum-seeking situation. The Committee also recommends the State Party to strengthen institutional data collection and analysis capacity and develop and publish comprehensive, disaggregated, and rights-based disability data in line with international standards, and ensure the involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in all stages of data collection and analysis.

Finland (2025)

60. The Committee notes with concern the serious shortcomings in the collection and publication of data on the exercise of the rights under the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party develop comprehensive national disability data collections and statistics, including on the Åland Islands, to frame policies on the implementation of the Convention and monitor its compliance.

Kiribati (2025)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient skills in implementation of the Washington Group Short Set of Questions and the lack of disability awareness among statisticians and enumerators;
- (b) The limited collection and coordination of disability-related data across ministries, and the insufficient analysis of data contained in the Kiribati Disability Monograph 2025 in order to inform resource allocation and policy measures across ministries.

60. Recalling Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18 to significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable disaggregated data, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

- (a) Train and build capacity of the National Statistics Officers and enumerators on implementation of the Washington Group questions, on disability awareness and the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Analyse the data contained in the disability monograph in order to inform resource allocation and policy measures across all ministries, including measures within the National Disability Policy and Action Plan.

Maldives (2025)

61. The Committee notes with appreciation that the State party incorporated the Washington Group short set of questions in its last Census. However, it is concerned:

- (a) About the coordination and consistency of disaggregated data and statistics on the situation of children and adults with disabilities in the State party, including on the outer islands to assist with policy development and review;
- (b) The dissemination and accessibility of data and statistics on children and adults with disabilities across Ministries, to development partners and to persons with disabilities and their representative organisations.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in its efforts to achieve Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18 to significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location, and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, and in particular:

(a) Closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in its efforts to increase the collection of data and statistics on disability;

(b) Ensure that data collection measures, censuses and surveys are disability inclusive and continue to incorporate the Washington Group short set of questions, and provide training and capacity building to statistical officers;

(c) Develop an accessible disability monograph from all data sources and statistics for dissemination across ministries, for development partners and for persons with disability and their representative organisations, and ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and accessible digital formats, including for persons with disabilities in outer islands.

Canada (2025)

60. The Committee notes that the State Party implements the short set of questions of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics, as well as its active participation in high-level data collection on the status of the National Dementia Strategy through the WHO Global Dementia Observatory. However, it remains concerned that:

(a) The State party's existing surveys, including those feeding the Indicators for the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, are not based on the human rights model of the Convention and do not mainstream disability, hindering the gathering of comprehensive and intersectional information on persons with disabilities, and that the Canadian Survey on Disability does not gather information about children with disabilities under 15 years of age, even when the Canadian Health Survey for Children and Youth collects disability information for those 1 to 14 years of age;

(b) The insufficient participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design and monitoring of data collection for the effective implementation of the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Conduct a review of its statistics and data collection tools at federal, provincial, and territorial levels, in order to mainstream disability and intersectionality in information gathering systems, including in the Disaggregated Data Action Plan;

(b) Develop and improve the design and monitoring of data collection on compliance with the Convention at the Federal, provincial, and territorial levels.

Dominican Republic (2025)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Statistical information on persons with disabilities being scarce and dispersed among different State institutions, without unified criteria for its collection and analysis;

(b) The lack of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities, including in relation to sex, age, socioeconomic level, education, race, among others.

58. Recalling the Washington Group short set of questions on functioning the Committee recommends that the State party establish an integrated system for the collection of data on persons with disabilities, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities and with their active participation in the design, implementation and evaluation of that system, and its use to populate indicators, involving all government ministries and entities that collect data, including statistical data. Such a system should collect data disaggregated by factors such as age, sex, type of impairment, type of support required, sexual orientation and gender identity, socioeconomic status, ethnicity and migrant or refugee situation.

European Union (2025)

72. The Committee welcomes the establishment of the Disability Database by Eurostat, but notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of disaggregated data by type of disability, which prevents identification of support measures and comparative data analysis;
- (b) The omission of persons with disabilities living in institutions in data collection;
- (c) The lack of data disaggregated by LGBTIQ+ identity, gender, race, ethnicity, standard of living, and age.

73. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Further expand the use of the Washington Group Short Set of questions and disaggregate its data by type of disability in key areas of life, and include barriers and possible support measures;
- (b) Include persons with disabilities in institutions in its data collection, as envisaged in pilot studies set to begin in 2027;
- (c) Disaggregate data collection on persons with disabilities by LGBTIQ+ identity, gender, race, ethnicity, standard of living and age.

Palau (2025)

59. The Committee appreciates that the Washington Group short set of questions on disability was used in the 2015 and 2020 population censuses to create a database on persons with disabilities. However, it is concerned about the unclear use of this collected database and its contribution to improving the quality of services provided for persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen the use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions and improve disability data collection systems, with data disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migratory status, disability, geographic location, and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, and pay close attention to the links between article 31 and target 17.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and in particular:

- (a) Reform its system of data collection and collect data on the situation of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age and gender, particularly about persons with disabilities from marginalised communities, across all sectors including health, education, employment, political participation, access to justice, social protection, violence, migration and internal displacement;
- (b) Take steps to collect data on categories of persons with disabilities who are excluded such as persons who are deafblind in all future census, including housing survey and ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and electronic formats, including for persons with disabilities in rural and remote areas.

Tuvalu (2025)

57. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) About the coordination and consistency of disaggregated data and statistics on the situation of children and adults with disabilities in the State party, including on the outer islands to assist with policy development and review;
- (b) The dissemination and accessibility of data and statistics on children and adults with disabilities across Ministries, to development partners and to persons with disabilities and their representative organisations.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in its efforts to achieve Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18 to significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location, and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, and in particular:

- (a) Closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in its efforts to increase the collection of data and statistics on disability;
- (b) Ensure that data collection measures, censuses and surveys are disability inclusive and incorporate the Washington Group short set of questions, and provide training and capacity building to statistical officers;
- (c) Develop an accessible disability monograph from all data sources and statistics for dissemination across ministries, for development partners and for persons with disability and their representative organisations, and ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and electronic formats, including for persons with disabilities in outer islands.

Viet Nam (2025)

61. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a disaggregated data-collection system and unified indicators across the State party concerning the human rights of persons with disabilities, and identifying barriers in their exercise of those rights;
- (b) The fact that the results of the first National Study on Persons with Disabilities prepared in 2016 have not been widely disseminated and have not been updated, and laws, policies and programmes have not been adapted or reformed in accordance with the results of that study.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Utilize the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, with data disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migrant, refugee or asylum-seeking status (CRPD/AZE/CO/2-3; CRPD/C/MRT/CO/1; CRPD/PRY/CO/2-3);
- (b) Widely disseminate the results of the survey among decision makers, the population in general and among organizations of persons with disabilities in accessible ways and means, and that it be updated to date;

Belarus (2024)

61. The committee is concerned about:

- (a) The existing disaggregated data about persons with disabilities in particular within the minority groups, employment, social protection and education is not reliable, and the discord in data in the published reports due to lack of accurate and credible data collection system;
- (b) The disability related questions were not included in 2019 national census;
- (c) The inaccuracies in several thematic statistical assessments regarding the disability features because of the widespread use of the medical model in identifying persons with disabilities;
- (d) Insufficiency of measures in-place to ensure and secure the confidentiality of the personal data of persons with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish reliable and transparent disability national data collection system and use disaggregated data effectively, in the disability planning process;
- (b) Incorporate the Washington Group set of questions in the public census and the thematic assessments in particular in health, family, education and employment sectors;
- (c) Use holistic standards based on the human rights model in identifying persons with disabilities;
- (d) Develop effective legal and practical measures to ensure confidentiality for the personal data of and information about persons with disabilities and their families.

Belgium (2024)

62. The Committee is concerned that the data available in the State party is exceedingly limited, difficult to compare, partially due to varying definitions of disability, and dispersed among different policy areas; that it is therefore difficult to identify developments in state, economy and society, and establish links between different databases; and that the lack of properly interpretable quantitative data renders it difficult, if not impossible, to develop the policies and actions required to implement the Convention.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party define the term “disability” in their data collection to achieve comparability for contextual interpretation. It further recommends that the State party use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on disability and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, and that it establish a system for centralised recording of both federal and regional data in order to be able to devise policies on the implementation of the Convention based on all available data.

Benin (2024)

61. The Committee is concerned:

(a) By the limited disaggregated data relating to persons with disabilities, on the challenges encountered in accessing education, health, recreation, leisure and sports facilities and services at all levels, including employment opportunities, and linkages between the incidence of disability and the risk of poverty and hardship;

(b) By the absence of data on persons with specific disabilities, such as persons who are deafblind, and by the fact that the statistical information disseminated among persons with disabilities is not in an accessible formats.

62. Taking into account Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18 ,the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in its efforts to increase the collection of data and statistics on disability;

(b) Develop nationally consistent data-collection measures and public reporting of disaggregated data across the full range of obligations contained in the Convention and adequately train census enumerators and other officials in the use of the Washington Group short set of questions on functioning;

(c) Take steps to collect data on all persons with disabilities, including persons who are deafblind, in all future censuses and housing surveys and ensure that such data are available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and electronic formats, including for persons with disabilities in rural and remote areas.

Burkina Faso (2024)

58. The Committee notes with concern the gaps in the collection of disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, as well as:

(a) The lack of systematic and comprehensive research on the living conditions of persons with disabilities and the obstacles they face in the exercise of their rights;

(b) The lack of a disaggregated data-collection system and unified indicators across the State party concerning the human rights of persons with disabilities, and identifying barriers in their exercise;

(c) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities in designing data collection systems in the area of disability;

(d) The insufficient information on the extent to which disability-related indicators are effectively applied in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, with disaggregated data. The Committee also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen its system for collecting data on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment status and place of residence, in all areas of life, ensuring the confidentiality and privacy of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying obstacles the enjoyment of their rights;
- (c) Support independent research, both quantitative and qualitative, with the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, to enhance disability-related policies and ensure participatory planning and implementation of data collection;
- (d) Ensure involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in designing, planning, implementing, analyzing and disseminating data collection and research related to persons with disabilities.

Denmark (2024)

81. While noting the efforts to collect statistical data on persons with disabilities in the Kingdom of Denmark, including through the Survey of Health, Impairment and Living Conditions, the Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Despite data collection through the SHILD surveys and the contributions to the development of indicators for living conditions by organisations of persons with disabilities and the Danish Institute for Human Rights, there are still insufficient systematic disaggregated data-collection and unified indicators concerning the rights of persons with disabilities, and a lack of participation of persons with disabilities in designing data collection systems;
- (b) The Living Conditions and Labour Market Surveys lack permanent funding, and that the SHILD surveys did not receive funding in 2024.

82. The Committee recommends that Denmark:

- (a) Use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, with data disaggregated by race, age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migrant situation (CRPD/AZE/CO/2-3; CRPD/C/MRT/CO/1; CRPD/PRY/CO/2-3), and closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design of data collection and statistics.
- (b) Provide the Living Conditions Survey, the Labour Market Survey and the SHILD surveys with sufficient permanent funding.

83. The Committee is concerned at the very scarce statistical data on persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, the barriers they encounter, and their living conditions in Greenland and the Faroe Islands.

84. The Committee recommends that Greenland and the Faroe Islands, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, systematically develop data collection and statistical and research systems on persons with disabilities, the barriers they encounter, and their living conditions, that can form as a basis to formulate and implement policies that give effect to the Convention.

Ghana (2024)

60. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of systematic collection and disaggregated statistics on persons with disabilities by the Ministries, Departments, and agencies to help in the correct development of public policies;
- (b) The fact that the data collected through the National Census of 2021 through The Washington Group set of questions was not inclusive as it left out account of persons with albinism, persons with psychosocial disabilities, autistic persons and children with disabilities below the age of five;
- (c) There is lack of accurate and disaggregated data on persons with disabilities as required by the Data Protection Act, 2012 (Act 843).

61. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) In close consultation and with the active involvement of person with disabilities, review data collection processes at the Ministries, Departments, and agencies to make them disability inclusive and connect them with the Central Data and statistics agent in order to increase the availability of inclusive data and ensure that the data collected is disseminated to the general population and to organizations of persons with disabilities and serves as a basis for policies and programs to ensure that they are inclusive of all persons with disabilities;
- (b) Review the Data collection methodology at the national level to include all persons with disabilities, and ensure that data is disaggregated by gender, age, type of impairment, demographic distribution and other necessary attributes.
- (c) Review the Data Protection Act, to include questions on persons with disabilities disaggregated by gender, age, type of disability and other necessary attributes.

Mauritius (2024)

55. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There is a lack of clarity on the different information management systems the State party has used over the years to collect data on persons with disabilities, including those that are no longer operational, and there is insufficient disaggregated data available about persons with disabilities across sectors;
- (b) There is insufficient consultation and involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the designing, collection and analysis of data, including for the 2022 Housing and Population Census.

56. Recalling the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the National Empowerment Authority's centralized register of persons with disabilities to facilitate systematic data collection, analysis and dissemination, disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, place of residence and other criteria, including about women and girls with disabilities, persons with disabilities who may be affected during an emergency situation, persons with disabilities who are involuntarily and voluntarily being deprived of liberty in mental healthcare centres and persons with disabilities who are employed;
- (b) Utilize this information to concretely and effectively inform the development of laws, policies, plans, programmes and services;
- (c) Ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in designing, planning, implementing, analysing and disseminating data collection and research related to persons with disabilities.

Netherlands (2024)

67. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The shortcomings in the collection and publication of data on the situation of persons with disabilities across the entire state party including the Caribbean Netherlands and across all areas of life, including health, education, employment and the justice system;
- (b) The lack of disaggregated data, including in relation to the situation of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities, asylum seekers, refugees and stateless persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, persons with disabilities under temporary protection, children with disabilities (in particular concerning education), women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in institutions.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, with data disaggregated by age, sex, gender, race, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migrant, refugee or asylum-seeking situation, and:

- (a) Develop a comprehensive national disability data framework to ensure appropriate, nationally consistent measures for the collection, interpretation and public reporting of disaggregated data on the full range of obligations under the Convention, across the entire state party, including the Caribbean Netherlands, and that in its collection of disaggregated data, the State party fully respect its privacy legislation.
- (b) Ensure appropriate disaggregated data collection including with respect to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities, ethnic and racialized minorities, refugees and stateless persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, persons with disabilities under temporary protection, children with disabilities, women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in institutions.

Ukraine (2024)

762. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive disaggregated data-collection system and unified indicators across the State Party concerning the human rights of persons with disabilities, and to identify barriers in their exercise, as well as the lack of involvement of persons with disabilities in designing data collection systems in the area of disability;
- (b) The lack of information related to the armed conflict, including persons that acquired a conflict-related disability, persons with disabilities that have died in the same context, persons with disabilities that are internally displaced, refugees and asylum seekers, including those living outside formal camps or resettlement areas and those in refugee-like situations;
- (c) The delay in the process of introducing the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, with data disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migrant, refugee or asylum-seeking status including by using The Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on functioning;
- (b) Implement the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development;
- (c) Develop statistics related to persons with disabilities in conflict-affected areas, disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban or rural location and migrant, refugee or asylum-seeking situation.

Azerbaijan (2024)

65. The Committee is concerned that the State party's census does not include persons with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional discrimination.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on disability and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, promote inclusivity and improve disability data collection systems, disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnicity, urban and rural areas, migrant, refugee, asylum-seeking situation.

Bahrain (2024)¹

62. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The inaccuracy of the figures showing the number of persons with disabilities, which indicate that the number of persons with disabilities amounted to 10,712 in 2016, representing 1 per cent of the total population, as these figures reflect a gap between the State party's official data and global estimates of the proportion of disability in societies; (b) The lack of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities and the status of their rights in specific areas such as education, employment and social services.

(b) The lack of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities indicating their number and the status of their rights in specific areas such as education, employment and social services.

(c) Persons with disabilities are not included in the qualitative surveys conducted by the Central Information Agency.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt an inclusive definition of disability based on a human rights model and use reliable statistical tools such as the Washington Group of Questions to produce realistic figures and data on persons with disabilities.

(b) Establish a database containing information and disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in the areas of education, employment, health, social protection, political participation and others.

(c) The inclusion of questionnaires in qualitative surveys conducted by various executive bodies to ensure that they include persons with disabilities.

Costa Rica (2024)

53. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) La falta de información sobre las medidas adoptadas para garantizar la participación plena y efectiva de las organizaciones que representan a las personas con discapacidad en todo el proceso (diseño, planificación, implementación, análisis y difusión) de recopilación de datos e investigación;

b) Que, en el marco del Censo de Población del 2020, se hayan realizado consultas solamente a 150 personas con discapacidad con el fin de brindar opinión sobre la propuesta para la medición de discapacidad, obtenida del Grupo de Washington de Estadísticas sobre Discapacidad.

54. Recordando el cuestionario breve sobre discapacidad del Grupo de Washington y el marcador de políticas sobre la inclusión y el empoderamiento de las personas con discapacidad del Comité de Asistencia para el Desarrollo de la Organización de Cooperación y Desarrollo Económicos, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Establecer la unificación de un sistema integrado de recopilación de datos sobre las personas con discapacidad en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en el diseño, desarrollo y evaluación, que involucre a todos los Ministerios del país y a las entidades generadoras de datos o estadísticas, desglosados por factores como la edad, el sexo, el tipo de deficiencia, el tipo de apoyo necesario, la orientación sexual y la identidad de género, la situación socioeconómica, el origen étnico y el lugar de residencia, incluyendo las instituciones residenciales;

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

b) Reforzar los esfuerzos para desarrollar una amplia aplicación de indicadores para el procesamiento de datos sobre personas con discapacidad con base en el cuestionario breve sobre discapacidad del Grupo de Washington y el marcador de políticas sobre la inclusión y el empoderamiento de las personas con discapacidad del Comité de Asistencia para el Desarrollo de la Organización de Cooperación y Desarrollo Económicos.

Kazakhstan (2024)

65. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The underrepresentation of persons with disabilities in national statistics due to the use of the medical model of disability;

(b) Limited information on persons with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional discrimination, including women and girls with disabilities, older persons with disabilities, children with disabilities, migrants with disabilities, including stateless persons, refugees and asylum-seekers with disabilities, and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer persons with disabilities.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party use the Washington Group on Disability Statistics short set of questions on disability and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, and:

(a) Adopt the human rights model of disability in the public censuses and in thematic assessments of the situation of persons with disabilities;

(b) Collect disaggregated data and conduct research on the situation of persons with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional discrimination in order to inform policy development.

Nicaragua (2024)

64. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) Las actuales deficiencias en los datos estadísticos, fiables y desagregados, sobre la situación de las personas con discapacidad;

b) Que el programa “Todos con Voz”, dependiente del Ministerio de Salud, sea la principal fuente de información en el Estado parte sobre personas con discapacidad y no exista un involucramiento activo por parte de otros Ministerios para recopilar información sobre la situación de las personas con discapacidad que atienden ejerciendo sus funciones y se desconoce si la información se difunde de manera regular entre la sociedad en general y organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en particular.

65. Recordando el cuestionario breve sobre discapacidad del Grupo de Washington y el marcador de políticas sobre la inclusión y el empoderamiento de las personas con discapacidad del Comité de Asistencia para el Desarrollo de la Organización de Cooperación y Desarrollo Económicos, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte desarrollar un sistema de recopilación de datos sobre las personas con discapacidad con la participación activa y efectiva de organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en el diseño, desarrollo y evaluación, que involucre a todos los Ministerios del país, desglosados por factores como la edad, el sexo, el tipo de deficiencia, el tipo de apoyo necesario, la orientación sexual y la identidad de género, la situación socioeconómica, el origen étnico y el lugar de residencia, incluyendo las instituciones residenciales.

Sweden (2024)

67. The Committee notes that Statistics Sweden carries out surveys on living conditions on an annual basis. However, it is concerned:

(a) At the shortcomings in the collection and publication of data on the situation of persons with disabilities across all areas of life, including living conditions, health, education, employment, social protection and the justice system;

(b) At the lack of disaggregated data, including in relation to persons with disabilities facing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, such as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities, national minority persons with disabilities, migrant persons with disabilities, including refugees, asylum-seekers, and persons with disabilities under temporary protection, and children with disabilities, women and girls with disabilities, as well as persons with disabilities in institutions;

(c) The lack of involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the development of indicators for the monitoring of implementation of the disability related policies and programmes.

68. Recalling the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development Policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultations and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensure appropriate, nationally consistent measures for the collection, implementation and public reporting of disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities, in particularly persons with disabilities facing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, including lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities, national minority persons with disabilities, migrant persons with disabilities, such as refugees, asylum-seekers, and persons with disabilities under temporary protection, children with disabilities, women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in institutions.

Zambia (2024)

61. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That persons with disabilities were neither involved nor consulted in the 2022 National Census;

(b) At the limited disaggregated data related to persons with disabilities including challenges encountered in accessing education, health, recreation, leisure and sports facilities and services at all levels including employment opportunities and linkages between incidence of disability and the risk of poverty and actual hardship;

(c) At the absence of data on some categories of persons with disabilities such as the deafblind, and that the dissemination of statistical information among persons with disabilities is not in accessible format.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in its efforts to achieve Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18 to significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location, and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, and in particular:

(a) Actively and meaningfully consult and collaborate with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in its efforts to increase the collection of data and statistics on disability;

(b) Develop nationally consistent data collection measures and public reporting of disaggregated data across the full range of obligations contained in the Convention and adequately train census enumerators and other officials in the use of the Washington short set of questions;

(c) Take steps to collect data on categories of persons with disabilities who are excluded such as persons who are deafblind in all future census, including housing survey and ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and electronic formats, including for persons with disabilities in rural and remote areas.

Andorra (2023)

63. The Committee expresses concern about the lack of:

- (a) Disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, as it is only produced on the number of persons with disabilities and the number of aids provided;
- (b) Awareness and use of international guidelines and protocols on data collection regarding disability, in particular, the Washington Group on Disability Statistics and its short set of questions on disability;
- (c) Participation of persons with disabilities in designing data collection systems in the area of disability.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen its system for collecting data on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by a range of factors, such as age, sex, type of impairment, sexual orientation, gender identity, race, ethnicity, nationality, migration status, and place of residence, in all areas of life, ensuring confidentiality and respect for the privacy of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that the data generated by the Department of Statistics can be disaggregated by disability and include the short set of questions on disability of the Washington Group on Disability in future population censuses and in periodic household surveys;
- (c) Guarantee the close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, throughout the planning, design and implementation of the data-collection processes.

Austria (2023)

69. The Committee notes with concern;

- (a) The serious shortcomings in the collection and publication of data on the situation of persons with disabilities across all areas of life, including in health, education, employment and the justice system;
- (b) The lack of disaggregated data, including in relation to the situation of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex, refugee and stateless persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, persons with disabilities under temporary protection, children with disabilities (especially concerning education), women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in institutions.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive national disability data framework to ensure appropriate, nationally consistent measures for the collection, interpretation and public reporting of disaggregated data on the full range of obligations under the Convention, especially with regard to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex, refugee and stateless persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, persons with disabilities under temporary protection, children with disabilities, women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities in institutions.

Germany (2023)

69. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The effectiveness of the microcensus method used in disability statistics and the extent to which this method reflects the number of refugees with disabilities in the country;
- (b) The medical model reflections on the disability statistics, in particular adopted criteria to classify and distinguish between severe, moderate and mild disability.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure public and thematic censuses are inclusive and disability sensitive by using appropriate data collection methods such as the Washington Group on Disabilities Statistics questions, and incorporate questions to obtain specific data about refugees with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt human rights-based standards to identify and classify the different types of disability.

Israel (2023)

65. The Committee expresses concern about the limited information about persons with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional discrimination, including women and girls with disabilities, children with disabilities, migrant, refugee and asylum seekers with disabilities, persons with disabilities in Haredi communities, persons with disabilities in Arab communities, Palestinians with disabilities including Palestinian refugees with disabilities, persons with disabilities in Bedouin or herder communities, and LGBTIQ persons with disabilities.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party collect disaggregated data and conduct research about the situation of persons with disabilities experiencing multiple and intersectional discrimination to inform policy development including the adoption of anti-discrimination measures, including positive measures.

Malawi (2023)

63. The Committee is concerned that many persons with disabilities including their representative organizations as well as government officials at local government level are not aware of the population of persons with disabilities in their respective districts making planning very uncertain. It is also concerned that persons with disabilities were not meaningfully involved in the training of the enumerators in the last census whose outcome on the population of persons with disabilities was contested by them.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Make available disability accurate data and statistical information, disaggregated by sex, age, education and training, employment status and any other factors necessary for planning to persons with disabilities through their representative organizations and to all officials at local government levels as well as other stakeholders;
- (b) Ensure participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in all disability data collection processes including in the planning, training of enumerators and assessment of data collection tools.

Mauritania (2023)

53. The Committee notes with concern gaps in the collection of disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention. It also notes with concern the lack of systematic and comprehensive research about the living conditions of persons with disabilities and the barriers that they face in exercising their rights.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party use the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen its system for collecting data on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence, in all areas of life, ensuring confidentiality and respect for the privacy of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation;
- (c) Support independent research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform disability-related policies and measures aimed at ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities, and ensure the active involvement of and close consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, throughout the planning, design and implementation of the data-collection processes.

Mongolia (2023)

61. The Committee is concerned about the lack of consistent measures at the national level for the collection and public reporting of disaggregated data on the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in exercising their rights.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party use the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities and further recommends that the State party:

(a) Expediently develop a system and procedures for collecting data on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence. The system and procedures should ensure confidentiality and respect the privacy of persons with disabilities;

(b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation. The State party should build the capacity of municipal authorities to conduct periodic research on barriers to the inclusion of persons with disabilities;

(c) Support independent and participatory research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform the disability-related policies and measures taken for ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities.

Paraguay (2023)

55. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) Las actuales deficiencias en los datos estadísticos, confiables y desagregados sobre la situación de las personas con discapacidad;

b) El estancamiento en la aplicación de los indicadores para el procesamiento de datos contemplados en el Plan de Acción Nacional para los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad en el eje/área 2;

c) La falta de información sobre la implementación de los indicadores de derechos humanos elaborados por el Ministerio de Salud Pública y Bienestar Social en el 2013 con apoyo de ACNUDH en particular sobre las desagregaciones comprometidas sobre las personas con discapacidad;

d) Que en el último censo de 2022 se hayan eliminado las preguntas sobre personas con discapacidad psicosocial e intelectual, refiriéndose únicamente a las personas con discapacidad auditiva, visual y física.

56. Utilizando el cuestionario breve sobre discapacidad del Grupo de Washington y el marcador de políticas sobre la inclusión y el empoderamiento de las personas con discapacidad del Comité de Asistencia para el Desarrollo de la Organización de Cooperación y Desarrollo Económicos, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Recopilar de forma exhaustiva datos y estadísticas sobre personas con discapacidad, desglosados por factores como la edad, el sexo, el tipo de deficiencia, el tipo de apoyo necesario, la orientación sexual y la identidad de género, la situación socioeconómica, el origen étnico y el lugar de residencia, incluyendo las instituciones residenciales y los hospitales psiquiátricos;

b) Desarrollar de inmediato la aplicación de indicadores para el procesamiento de datos sobre personas con discapacidad contemplados en el Plan de Acción Nacional para los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad en el eje/área 2;

c) Implementar los indicadores de derechos humanos elaborados por el Ministerio de Salud Pública y Bienestar Social en el 2013 con apoyo de ACNUDH en particular sobre las desagregaciones comprometidas sobre las personas con discapacidad a la brevedad posible;

d) Llevar a cabo, lo antes posible, una encuesta complementaria al censo del 2022 sobre personas con discapacidad, desglosada por edad, sexo, el tipo de discapacidad, el tipo de apoyo necesario, la orientación sexual y la identidad de género, la situación socioeconómica, el origen étnico y el lugar de residencia.

Angola (2023)

53. While noting some efforts undertaken by the State party in collecting data, through the National Statistics Institute, on persons with disabilities, the Committee notes with concern:

(a) The gaps in collecting disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention;

(b) The lack of systematic and comprehensive research about the living conditions of persons with disabilities and the need to identify the barriers faced by them in exercising their rights.

54. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities and recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a system and procedures for collecting data on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, gender identity, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence ensuring the confidentiality and respect for their privacy;

(b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their effective enjoyment, support independent and participatory research to inform measures affecting their rights and consider capacity-building measures to permit municipal authorities to periodically collect data on their status, consistent with their right to privacy.

Argentina (2023)

59. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) La falta de datos completos y desglosados sobre las personas con discapacidad en todos los ámbitos de la vida, en particular de las personas con discapacidad que viven en instituciones residenciales y en hospitales psiquiátricos;

b) Las dificultades de las personas con discapacidad para participar de la plataforma digital del Censo Nacional de Población, Hogares y Vivienda de 2022, y su limitado alcance, la ausencia de información sobre su acceso a educación, empleo y vivienda y sobre las personas con discapacidad que experimentan formas de discriminación interseccional.

60. Recordando el cuestionario breve sobre discapacidad del Grupo de Washington y el marcador de políticas sobre la inclusión y el empoderamiento de las personas con discapacidad del Comité de Asistencia para el Desarrollo de la Organización de Cooperación y Desarrollo Económicos, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Desarrollar un sistema de recopilación de datos sobre las personas con discapacidad en todos los ámbitos de la vida, desglosados por una serie de factores, como la edad, el sexo, el tipo de deficiencia, el tipo de apoyo necesario, la orientación sexual y la identidad de género, la situación socioeconómica, el origen étnico y el lugar de residencia, incluyendo las instituciones residenciales y los hospitales psiquiátricos;

b) Garantizar la accesibilidad en los estudios estadísticos y que las personas con discapacidad puedan de manera autónoma participar de los mismos, incluyendo las modalidades presencial y digital;

c) Contar con la participación activa y efectiva de organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en el diseño, desarrollo y evaluación de la Encuesta Nacional sobre las Personas con Discapacidad a realizarse en el 2024 según lo reportado por el Estado parte.

Georgia (2023)

61. The Committee expresses concern about the lack of:

(a) Disaggregated data on persons with disabilities, existing data neither reflecting the actual number of persons with disabilities nor the barriers they face in exercising their rights. It notes with particular concern the absence of data on older persons with disabilities;

(b) Awareness and use of international guidelines and protocols on data collection regarding disability, particularly the "Washington Group on Disability Statistics" and its "Short Set of questions on Disability".

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a mechanism to ensure continuous data collection about persons with disabilities and the barriers they face in exercising their rights, in order to devise and implement policies regarding the implementation of the Convention;

(b) Adopt internationally established norms and safeguards, including legislation on data protection, to ensure confidentiality, ethical principles of data use and respect for the privacy of persons with disabilities;

(c) Ensure the data generated by Geostat can be disaggregated by disability and include the short Set of questions on Disability by the Washington Group on disability in future population censuses as well as in periodic household surveys.

Peru (2023)

62. Al Comité le preocupan las deficiencias en los datos y estadísticas sobre la situación de las personas con discapacidad a nivel estatal, regional y municipal. Desde 2012, cuando se realizó la Primera Encuesta Nacional Especializada sobre Discapacidad (ENEDIS), no se ha llevado a cabo ninguna otra encuesta especializada para investigar las necesidades específicas de las personas con discapacidad, estos datos son necesarios para informar de manera efectiva la formulación e implementación de políticas para cumplir con la Convención.

63. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que recopile de forma exhaustiva datos y estadísticas desglosados a nivel estatal, regional y municipal utilizando el breve conjunto de preguntas sobre discapacidad del Grupo de Washington y que asegure que el Instituto Nacional de Estadística e Informática (INEI) lleve a cabo la Segunda Encuesta Nacional sobre Discapacidad con el fin de investigar información específica sobre las personas con discapacidad que no está considerada en las estrategias periódicas de recopilación de información, para informar mejor las políticas y la aplicación de la Convención.

Togo (2023)

59. The Committee welcomes the inclusion of the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the related methodology in the data collection guide for its fifth population and housing census in 2022. However, it is concerned about the inadequate quantitative and qualitative information, including disaggregated statistics and data provided in the State party's initial report, due to lack of training of census enumerators and other officials who work with data and statistics. It is also concerned that disability is not featured in the Biometric Identification Registration process and that disability issues are not included in the monitoring indicators for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals and that the dissemination of statistical information among persons with disabilities is not in accessible format.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in its efforts to achieve Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18 to significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location, and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, and in particular:

- (a) Actively and meaningfully consult and collaborate with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in its efforts to increase the collection of data and statistics on disability and to adequately train census enumerators and other officials in the use of the Washington short set of questions;
- (b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation;
- (c) Ensure that disability is included in the Biometric Identification Registration process;
- (d) Support independent and participatory research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform the disability-related policies and measures taken for ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (e) Ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and electronic formats, including for persons with disabilities in rural and remote areas.

Tunisia (2023)

55. The Committee is concerned that up to date accurate and disaggregated data on persons with disabilities is not available. Both the Ministry of Social Affairs and the National Statistics Office database have not been updated over a long time. It is further concerned that although the 2014 National Census used the Washington group of questions, it is clear that its results did not reflect the actual situation on the ground given the low figures it produced and this may have been attributed to inadequate training of the enumerators.

56. The Committee, recalling SDG's goal 17.18 on, enhance capacity building support to developing countries, including for LDCs and SIDS, to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a national system for the systematic collection of updated statistical and research data indicators, disaggregated by age, sex, type of impairment, and other relevant factors, which reflects the situation of persons with disabilities for the purpose of formulating and implementing policies to give effect to the Convention;
- (b) Facilitate and ensure the full and meaningful participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the development, measurement and monitoring of data collection and research, as well as in the training of census enumerators.

Bangladesh (2022)

59. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accurate, comprehensive, quality, timely and reliable data on persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, minorities, migrants, refugees and older persons with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons affected by leprosy, in all areas of the State party, and the non-inclusion of disability concerns in the monitoring indicators for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals as well as the absence of information on statistical data and its dissemination in accessible formats to persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take necessary measures to meaningfully consult with and include representative organisations of persons with disabilities, including those belonging to minorities, in the forthcoming national census and the Disability Detection Survey conducted by the Ministry of Social Welfare, and to design a system for the collection of up-to-date disaggregated data on persons with disabilities, including considering the use of the Washington Group short set of questions;

(b) Pay special attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals to increase significantly the availability of high-quality and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts;

(c) Adopt measures for analysing such data in order to enable the State party to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention and ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy Read and electronic formats, including for persons with disabilities in rural and remote areas.

China (2022)

58. The Committee notes with concern the lack of statistical data provided on persons with disabilities, including on their living conditions, assistance and services received in the State Party, disaggregated by province or region and ethnicity, and about the use of such data and statistics for the development and implementation of policies designed to comply with the Convention.

59. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and recommends that the State party develop data collection systems on the situation of persons with disabilities with the data disaggregated by a range of factors, such as age, sex, sexual orientation and gender identity, place of residence, socioeconomic status and ethnicity. These systems should cover all areas of life and should include information on violence against persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party promote participatory research projects in cooperation with persons with disabilities on matters concerning them.

Indonesia (2022)

64. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Serious shortcomings of data and statistics on the situation of persons with disabilities at the national, provincial, city and regency and sub-district levels, including the lack of disaggregated data and uniform methodology and interpretation;

(b) The lack of disaggregated data, including in relation to the situation of women and girls with disabilities, children with disabilities and indigenous persons with disabilities;

(c) The lack of comprehensive quantitative and qualitative research about the situation of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities and indigenous persons with disabilities.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the data collection system to comprehensively collect disaggregated data on persons with disabilities at the national, provincial, city and regency and sub-district levels, using uniform methodology and interpretation, including the Washington Group Short Set of Questions for the national census;

(b) Broaden data collection on persons with disabilities to include disaggregated fields, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation and indigenous status;

(c) Develop a comprehensive research program to facilitate quantitative and qualitative research on the situation of persons with disabilities and promote the use of disability inclusive research methodologies;

(d) Ensure all data collection systems and procedures respect the confidentiality and privacy of persons with disabilities.

Japan (2022)

65. The Committee notes with concern the:

- (a) Lack of comprehensive disaggregated database on persons with disabilities, covering all areas of life;
- (b) Overlook of persons with disabilities in residential institutions and psychiatric hospitals in surveys conducted.

66. Recalling the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party develop data collection system and data base on persons with disabilities at all areas of life and disaggregated by a range of factors, such as age, sex, type of impairment, type of support they require, sexual orientation and gender identity, socioeconomic status, ethnicity, place of residence, including residential institutions and psychiatric hospitals.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

58. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Absence of the systematic disaggregated collection of quality and reliable data on the situation of persons with disabilities in all areas of life, mainly due to the lack of disability-related questions in the national census;
- (b) Limitations in the design, data collection and quality control of the 4th National Population and Housing Census in 2015, which reported 2.77 per cent of disability prevalence of the overall population;
- (c) Lack of an accessible and consistent database on the situation of persons with disabilities and barriers to issue disability identification cards.

59. Recalling the Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18, and the Washington Group short set of questions on disability, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Collect, analyse and disseminate quality, timely and reliable data, disaggregated by disability, sex, age, ethnicity, religion, geographical location, and socioeconomic status, on the fulfilment of the rights of persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, in collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Improve the use of the Washington Group short set of questions on disability when collecting information about the situation of persons with disabilities, by taking into consideration the local context, training for the interpretation of data and the barriers to the exercise of the rights of persons with disabilities, including the next National Population and Housing Census;
- (c) Introduce the Disability Management Information System to consolidate the various sector-specific disability records, make it accessible, support the rollout of a nationwide disability identification process, and increase efforts to issue disability ID cards for all persons with disabilities.

New Zealand (2022)

57. The Committee notes with concern the serious shortcomings of data and statistics on the situation of persons with disabilities across all life domains, including in health, education, employment, justice, and the lack of disaggregated data, including in relation to the situation of Māori, Pasifika, LGBTIQ+, children and women and girls with disabilities;

58. The Committee recommends that the State party in conjunction with Statistics New Zealand, develop a national disability data framework to ensure appropriate, nationally consistent measures for the collection and public reporting of disaggregated data on the full range of obligations contained in the Convention, especially with regard to Māori, Pasifika, LGBTIQ+, children and women and girls with disabilities.

Republic of Korea (2022)

63. The Committee is concerned about the lack of consistent measures at the national level for the collection and public reporting of disaggregated data on the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in exercising their rights.

64. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities and recommends that the State party:

(a) Expediently develop a system and procedures for collecting data on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence. The system and procedures should ensure confidentiality and respect the privacy of persons with disabilities;

(b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation. The State party should build the capacity of municipal authorities to conduct periodic research on barriers to the inclusion of persons with disabilities;

(c) Support independent and participatory research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform the disability-related policies and measures taken for ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities.

Singapore (2022)

57. While noting some efforts undertaken by the State party in collecting data, such as the National census of 2020 which included the Washington Group short set of questions on disability, the Committee notes with concern:

(a) Serious gaps in collecting disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, in particular in the areas of work, employment, education, and persons with disabilities deprived of their liberty;

(b) The lack of systematic and comprehensive research about the living conditions of persons with disabilities and to identify the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in exercising their rights.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party reinforce the use of the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities in all its data collecting programmes, taking into consideration the local context, and providing training for the interpretation of data, and:

(a) Strengthen its system for collecting data on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence, in all areas of life. The system and procedures should ensure confidentiality and respect the privacy of persons with disabilities;

(b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation;

(c) Support independent research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform disability-related policies and measures taken for ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities, and ensure active involvement of and close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in the planning, design and at all stages of the data collection processes.

Hungary (2022)

60. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of disaggregated data and information on persons with disabilities, including on their living conditions and the assistance and services they receive in the State Party;
- (b) The fragmented data systems on persons with disabilities, maintained by different authorities and providing different figures, particularly on persons placed under substitute decision-making regimes.

61. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Collect data on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age, sex, health status, race, ethnicity, income, migration and/or asylum-seeking or refugee status, level of education, employment situation, place of residence and services received, as well as on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society, including data related to deinstitutionalization, legal capacity status and victims of violence, abuse and ill-treatment;
- (b) Establish a unified statistics and data collection system on persons with disabilities.

Jamaica (2022)

56. While noting some efforts undertaken by the State party in collecting data, such as the Annual Jamaica Survey on living conditions, and the 2022 Population and Housing Census, which will include data and statistics on persons with disabilities, the Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The remaining gaps in collecting disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, mainly due to the lack of disability-related questions in the national census;
- (b) The lack of systematic and comprehensive research about the living conditions of persons with disabilities and the need to identify the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in exercising their rights.

57. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a system and procedures for collecting data on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence. The system and procedures should ensure confidentiality and respect the privacy of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation. The State party should build the capacity of municipal authorities to conduct periodic research on barriers to the inclusion of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Support independent and participatory research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform the disability-related policies and measures taken for ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities.

Mexico (2022)

66. The Committee is concerned about serious shortcomings of data and statistics on the situation of persons with disabilities at the state and municipal level, and about the use of such data and statistics for the development and implementation of policies designed to comply with the Convention.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party comprehensively collect disaggregated data and statistics on all levels of government, using the Washington Group short set of questions on disability.

Switzerland (2022)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That there is no comprehensive disability data framework across all levels of government to collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities in all areas of life;

(b) The lack of collection of disaggregated data in the context of international cooperation.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a comprehensive disability data framework at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels for the collection, analysis and dissemination of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all areas of life;

(b) Promote independent and inclusive research, in partnership with persons with disabilities, to provide an evidence base to inform disability-related policies and programmes;

(c) Collect disaggregated data on disability in all humanitarian and development programmes.

Venezuela (2022)

54. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There are no reliable statistics available to the public, or persons with disabilities in particular, on the social programmes designed to support persons with disabilities, or their implementation and follow-up;

(b) No information is available on the assessment process for persons with disabilities for the purpose of issuing disability certificates;

(c) No information is available on employers' compliance with their obligation to submit biannual reports to the National Council for Persons with Disabilities and the National Institute of Statistics on the number of employees with disabilities.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party, based on the short set of questions of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics:

(a) Incorporate, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, a human rights perspective into the information contained in the registers used to collect data and statistics on disability, and widely disseminate information on the services to which they have access, including how many such services exist, and on the implementation of relevant policies and programmes;

(b) Ensure that the decision to issue disability certificates is made by an interdisciplinary group of professionals and not based solely on a diagnostic approach;

(c) Ensure that employers circulate reports on the number of employees with disabilities in order to improve public policy in that area.

Djibouti (2021)

55. The Committee notes with concern the absence of systematic, collection of quality, timely and reliable data on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by disability, sex, age, geographical location, socioeconomic status and employment status, as well as data on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in gaining access to their rights under the Convention. The Committee is also concerned about the insufficient information on the extent to which disability-related indicators are effectively applied in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party collect, analyse and disseminate quality, timely and reliable data, disaggregated by disability, sex, age, geographical location, socioeconomic status and employment status, on the fulfilment of the rights of persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, in collaboration with representatives organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in its efforts to achieve Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular target 17.18. The Committee also recommends that the State party analyse those data in order to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention.

France (2021)

62. The Committee notes with concern the lack of systematic and disaggregated data collection about the situation of persons with disabilities in all areas of life, mainly due to the lack of disability-related questions in the national census.

63. The Committee recalls the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities, and recommends that the State party develop data collection systems on persons with disabilities disaggregated by a range of factors, such as age, sex, sexual orientation and gender identity, place of residence, socioeconomic status, ethnicity. These systems should cover all areas of life, and should include information on violence against persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party promote participatory research projects in cooperation with persons with disabilities on matters concerning them.

Estonia (2021)

60. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The remaining gaps in collecting disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, not only education and employment;
- (b) The lack of systematic and comprehensive research about the living conditions of persons with disabilities and the need to identify the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in exercising their rights.

61. The Committee recalls the Washington Group short set of questions on disability and the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a system and procedures for collecting data on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, race, ethnicity, income, migration status, level of education, employment situation and place of residence. The system and procedures should ensure confidentiality and respect the privacy of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Allocate funds to undertake periodic research on the rights of persons with disabilities with the aim of identifying barriers to their implementation. The State party should build the capacity of municipal authorities to conduct periodic research on barriers to the inclusion of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Support independent and participatory research, both quantitative and qualitative, to inform the disability-related policies and measures taken for ensuring the rights of persons with disabilities.

Albania (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned that data collection about persons with disabilities in the State party is based on the medical approach, is fragmented, and is not effectively disseminated among persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that the State party is not systematically collecting and analysing disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities in close consultation with representative organisations with a view to designing adequate public policies.

52. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish systematic data collection and reporting procedures under the Institute of Statistics in line with the Convention;
- (b) Increase the use of the methodology of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics, in particular for the 2020 national census, to collect, analyse and disseminate data on its population disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, disability, socioeconomic status, employment, barriers encountered and place of residence, and data on cases of discrimination or violence against persons with disabilities;
- (c) Develop evidence-based public policies to respond to the situation of persons with disabilities, in collaboration with their representative organizations.

Australia (2019)

57. The Committee is concerned about the lack of nationally consistent measures for the collection and public reporting of disaggregated data on the full range of obligations contained in the Convention.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party, in conjunction with the Office of the National Data Commissioner, develop a national disability data framework to ensure appropriate, nationally consistent measures for the collection and public reporting of disaggregated data on the full range of obligations contained in the Convention, especially with regard to women, children and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities.

Ecuador (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not make provision for mainstreaming the human rights of persons with disabilities and that persons with disabilities do not effectively participate through their representative organizations in the compilation of relevant records, such as those contained in the National Disabilities Register.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party incorporate a human rights perspective into the information contained in the National Disabilities Register so that, in coordination with persons with disabilities and their organizations, the effective exercise of their rights is recognized; that it mainstream those rights in public policy and in policy follow-up and evaluation; and that it incorporate information on the participation of persons with disabilities in all areas of social life, such as education, paid work, recreation and political affairs. It also recommends that the State party disseminate the information contained in the National Disabilities Register widely once it has been reformed.

El Salvador (2019)

58. The Committee is concerned that organizations of persons with disabilities were not included when preparing the sustainable development report for the high-level political forum on sustainable development and that the report did not take into account indicators relevant to persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that the first national survey of persons with disabilities using the Washington Group's short set of questions on disability lacked data disaggregated by barriers within society, human rights violations, gender-based violence, living conditions and other intersectional dimensions to better understand the situation of persons with disabilities.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party involve organizations of persons with disabilities in its progress report on the Sustainable Development Goals. It also recommends that the State party, based on the results of the first national survey, widely disseminate the results, and establish, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, a database to gather information from the population census and other statistics in order to better understand the situation of persons with disabilities, with the purpose of adequate public policy design.

Greece (2019)

46. The Committee is concerned that data collection on persons with disabilities in the State party, such as the 2019 health survey and the national register of beneficiaries of social and welfare allowances, is based mainly on the medical model of disability and is fragmented, unsystematic, incomplete and not entirely adequate in order to understand the situation of persons with disabilities with a view to developing effective public policies. The Committee is also concerned that the State party has not adopted the methodology of the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability.

47. Taking into consideration target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive data collection and reporting system in line with the Convention. The Committee also recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, as well as on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society, relying on the methodology of the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability.

India (2019)

he available official statistics are based on the medical model of disability, and that questions concerning persons with disabilities limit the possibility of self-identification.

65. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party rely on the methodology of the Washington Group short set of questions on disability statistics to collect, analyse and disseminate data on its population of persons with disabilities, in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by gender, age, ethnicity, disability, socioeconomic status, employment, barriers encountered and place of residence, and data on cases of discrimination or violence against persons with disabilities, ensuring both disability-specific and disability-inclusive or mainstream data collection.

Iraq (2019)

59. The Committee is concerned about the absence of systematic, disaggregated data on persons with disabilities across all sectors of the State party, including persons with disabilities who have been subjected to violence and persons with disabilities who are internally displaced, migrants, refugees, stateless and/or belong to minority groups. The Committee is also concerned about the insufficient information on the extent to which disability-related indicators are effectively applied in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take into consideration the short set of questions of the United Nations Children's Fund/Washington Group on Disability Statistics module on child functioning in preparing the next national census, planned for 2020, and in the national survey on disability;

(b) Apply disability-related indicators in monitoring the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals, especially target 17.18;

(c) Increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by socioeconomic status, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant to its national context, and strengthen the capacity and resources of the Central Statistical Organization of the Ministry of Planning (in its implementation of art. 15 (9) of Law No. 38 (2013)) and the Kurdistan Region Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs for the collection, management, analysis and dissemination of statistics and data concerning persons with disabilities.

Kuwait (2019)

60. The Committee is concerned about a serious lack of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaitis and Bidoon with disabilities.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data, disaggregated by gender, age, ethnicity, nationality, disability, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, on the fulfilment of the rights of all persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaitis and Bidoon with disabilities, in all areas of the Convention;

(b) Take into consideration the short set of questions of the United Nations Children's Fund/Washington Group on Disability Statistics module on child functioning in preparing the national census, household surveys, disability-specific surveys and other demographic surveys, as relevant.

Myanmar (2019)

60. The Committee recommends that the State party collect, analyse, and disseminate quality, timely and reliable data, disaggregated by disability, sex, age, ethnicity, nationality, religion, geographical location, socioeconomic status and employment status, on the fulfilment of the rights of persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention, in collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in its efforts to achieve Sustainable Development Goal 17, in particular target 17.18, and take into consideration the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability when collecting information about the situation of persons with disabilities and the barriers to the exercise of their rights.

Cuba (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned about the lack of comparable disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all sectors of the State party.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically encourage the collection, analysis and dissemination of comparable disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all sectors, taking into consideration the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability. The Committee further recommends that the State party consider the linkages between article 31 of the Convention and Goal 17 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Niger (2019)

51. The Committee is concerned about the limited data and analysis on the situation of persons with disabilities, and the lack of their meaningful consultation and participation, through their representative organizations, in the elaboration of the questionnaire for the next general population census.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party collaborate with representative organisations of persons with disabilities to strengthen data collection and analysis on the situation of persons with disabilities; and consider using the Washington Group's short set of disability questions in data collection, and adhere to article 31 of the Convention in implementing Sustainable Development Goal 17 (target 17.18) to increase the availability of high-quality and reliable disaggregated data.

Norway (2019)

49. The Committee is concerned at the lack of consistent statistics on persons with disabilities and the lack of human rights indicators in the available data, which makes it difficult for the State party to develop appropriate policies. The Committee is also concerned about the limited extent to which disability-related indicators are effectively applied in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

50. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Rely on the methodology of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics to collect, analyse and disseminate data on its population disaggregated by sex, age, ethnic origin, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment, barriers encountered and place of residence, and data on cases of discrimination or violence against persons with disabilities;

(b) Develop evidence-based policies to respond to the situation of persons with disabilities, in consultation with their representative organizations.

Rwanda (2019)

57. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not systematically collect disaggregated statistical data on persons with disabilities.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party pay close attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, type of impairment, geographic location, as well as data on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society and other characteristics relevant in its national context. It recommends that the State party use the collected and analysed data with a view to developing the appropriate policies to improve the implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party consider the use of the short set of questions issued by the Washington Group on Disability Statistics for its census and household surveys.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned at the limited availability of unified data on the enjoyment of persons with disabilities of the rights granted under the Convention, which represents an obstacle for the development of adequate policies, the establishment of baselines and the evaluation of the impact of measures taken to promote the rights of persons with disabilities by the State party.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data, disaggregated by gender, age, region, religion, ethnicity, nationality and type of disability, on the enjoyment of persons with disabilities of their rights in all areas covered by the Convention. It moreover recommends that the State party use the concepts provided for in the Convention for the assessment of the current state, as well as of progress made towards the implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities.

Senegal (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned about the inadequate quantitative and qualitative information, including appropriately disaggregated statistical and research data provided in the report of the State party, and is further concerned about the non-inclusion of disability concerns in the monitoring indicators for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals and that dissemination of statistical information to persons with disabilities is not in accessible formats.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party actively and meaningfully consult and collaborate with persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in its efforts to increase data and statistics on disability. It recommends that the State party adopt measures towards utilising the Washington Group set of disability questions in data collection and pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17 (target 17.18) to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts. It further recommends that such data be analysed in order to enable the State party to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention.

Spain (2019)

58. The Committee is concerned at the lack of progress to ensure the availability of disaggregated data and statistics on persons with disabilities, with a view to adequately informing public policies. It is also concerned at the lack of disaggregated data and statistics as well on the barriers within the society for persons with disabilities, and on human rights violations in the mental health services, including gender-based violence, forced treatment, involuntary commitment, mechanical restraints, and other forms of coercion.

59. Bearing in mind target 17.8 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop systematic data collection and reporting procedures on persons with disabilities in line with the Convention and the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability;
- (b) Collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on the condition of persons with disabilities as well as on barriers that they face in society;
- (c) Establish a mandatory register for any forced treatment, including involuntary commitment, mechanical restraints, forced medication and electroconvulsive therapy occurred in mental health care services;
- (d) Ensure the involvement of organizations of person with disabilities in the development of data collection methodologies and analysis.

Türkiye (2019)

62. The Committee is concerned that the National Disability Database does not cover all persons with disabilities, for example persons with disabilities in institutions. It is also concerned about the lack of regular data about the situation of persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, geographic location, and other criteria, identifying the barriers facing persons with disabilities in exercising their rights. It is further concerned that civil society organizations, including organizations of persons with disabilities cannot participate in processes concerning statistics and data collection.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Reinforce the use of the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability when collecting information about the situation of persons with disabilities and the barriers to the exercise of their rights, and develop and regularly update a centralized database, in which data is disaggregated by age, sex, ethnicity, geographical location, and including residential settings, and impairment type.
- (b) Adopt measures to ensure the active involvement of and close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in the planning and design stages of data collection processes.

Vanuatu (2019)

52. The Committee is concerned at the lack of full participation of persons with disabilities in the process of data collection for the 2009 census. It is further concerned at the lack of systematic collection of disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities, which makes it difficult for the State party to develop appropriate public policies.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop systematic statistical and data collection procedures for the next census, disaggregated by sex, age, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in the national context, in accordance with the human rights-based model of disability focusing on barriers experienced by persons with disabilities in order to design appropriate public policies;

(b) Ensure the full and meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organization in the development, implementation and monitoring of data collection.

Algeria (2018)

52. The Committee is concerned about the absence of systematic data collection on persons with disabilities disaggregated by disability, sex and age across all sectors, including those subjected to violence. It also regrets the long delays in the implementation of the national disability survey foreseen since 2011.

53. Bearing in mind the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt measures to increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable disaggregated data, ensuring the active participation and close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the planning and design stages of data collection activities;

(b) Expedite the implementation of the national survey on disability taking into consideration the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability;

(c) Design and implement policies based on participatory research in line with General Comment No. 7 (2018) to give effect to the Convention.

Bulgaria (2018)

67. The Committee is concerned about the lack of disaggregated data collected on persons with disabilities, and its dissemination in the State party. It is also concerned about the lack of involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in this process, which makes it difficult for the State party to develop appropriate targeted policies.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by Goal 17, especially Target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals in its efforts to establish systematic data collection and reporting procedures under the National Statistical Institute in line with the Convention, and:

(a) Take into consideration Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability to collect, information about the situation of persons with disabilities and barriers to the exercise of their rights;

(b) Adopt measures to increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable disaggregated data, ensuring the active participation and close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the planning and design stages of data collection activities;

(c) Develop evidence-based policies to respond to the situation of persons with disabilities, in close and meaningful consultation with their representative organizations.

Malta (2018)

45. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a disaggregated data-collection system and unified indicators across the State party concerning the human rights of persons with disabilities. It also notes the lack of information on the accessibility of statistics by persons with disabilities.

46. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a unified data collection system that is in line with the Convention and takes into account the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability;

(b) Ensure the access of all statistical data to persons with disabilities in accessible formats.

Philippines (2018)

56. The Committee is concerned that the home assessment survey conducted from March 2009 to March 2010. NHTS-PR lacks of disaggregated data on women, children, persons with disabilities, people living in poverty, indigenous peoples, among others disaggregated by type of impairment, gender, age, geographical location, and other appropriate variables.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Work in consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to establish a system for the collection of up-to-date, appropriate, disaggregated data, in line with the proposal by the Washington Group on Disability Statistics;

(b) Strengthen the capacity and resources of the National Council for Disability Affairs and the Philippine Statistics Authority concerning collection, management, analysis and dissemination of statistics and data concerning persons with disabilities;

(c) Collect data on its population with disabilities disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, as well as data on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society and their level of poverty;

(d) Pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17, target 17.18 to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable disability data disaggregated by income, gender, age, ethnicity, migratory status, geographic locations and other characteristics relevant in national contexts.

Poland (2018)

50. The Committee is concerned about the lack of:

(a) Data on persons with disabilities, including at local level;

(b) National database on persons with disabilities and therefore absence of information to implement the Convention.

51. Bearing in mind target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party develop systematic data collection and reporting procedures, that are in line with the Convention and take into account the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability; collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data in line with art. 31 of the Convention; it further recommends to ensure involvement of organisations of person with disabilities in data collection, including in the development of the methodologies of data collection and in the data analysis process.

South Africa (2018)

50. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accurate and comprehensive data on persons with disabilities in all sectors of the State party, and is further concerned about the non-inclusion of disability concerns in the monitoring indicators for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals as well as the absence of information on statistical data and its dissemination to persons with disabilities in all accessible formats.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Meaningfully consult with persons with disabilities and their representative organisations to create a system for the collection of up-to-date disaggregated appropriate data on persons with disabilities;

(b) Pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals to increase significantly the availability of high-quality and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts;

(c) Analyse such data in order to enable the State party to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention and ensure that such data is available in Braille, sign language, Easy-Read and electronic formats.

North Macedonia (2018)

56. The Committee is concerned at the lack of consistent and comparable statistics on persons with disabilities and the lack of human rights indicators in the available data. The Committee is also concerned about the extent to which disability-related indicators are effectively applied in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party apply disability-related indicators in the monitoring of the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals, especially target 17.18, and significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status (including asylum-seeking and refugee status), disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in its national context.

Haiti (2018)

56. The Committee is concerned at the lack of systematic collection of disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities in all areas, which makes it difficult for the State party to develop appropriate policies.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party fully include disability in the monitoring indicators for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals and pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17, target 17.18 to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in its national context. It also recommends that the State party continue to develop tools in order to use all of the questions proposed by the Washington Group on disability statistics in its next census and household surveys.

Nepal (2018)

45. The Committee is concerned that the latest census carried in 2011 through the Central Bureau of Statistics did not collect disaggregated data on disabilities and accordingly inadequately reflects the situation of disability in the State party.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17, target 17.18 to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts and to analyse the data to provide tailored services for persons with disabilities. In this regard, the Committee recommends that the State party utilises the Washington Group Set of Questions in future censuses in order to capture comprehensively data on disability.

Oman (2018)

55. While noting positive steps in regard to data collection on persons with disabilities, including the introduction of a new methodology based on recommendations of the Washington Group for Disability Statistics, the Committee is concerned about the inadequate qualitative information, including appropriately disaggregated statistical and research data provided in the report of the State party.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party actively and closely collaborate with persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, and adopt measures towards utilising the Washington Group short set of disability questions in data collection and pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17 (target 17.18) to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts. It further recommends that such data be analysed in order to enable the State party to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention.

Russian Federation (2018)

62. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the quality and accessibility of services provided to persons with various forms of disability following the establishment of the federal Registry of Persons with Disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on the comprehensive and transparent strategy for disaggregated data collection.

63. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party improve the Registry of Persons with Disabilities in line with the Convention and by respecting the right to privacy as well as to collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on the characteristics of its population with disabilities, including sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socio-economic status, employment, place of residence, as well as on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society. The Committee also recommends that the State party rely on the methodology of Washington Group on Disability Statistics.

Seychelles (2018)

53. The Committee notes with concern that the approximate number of persons with disabilities identified in the 2010 census is much lower than the global World Health Organization estimate of 15 per cent of the population. It is also concerned at the lack of updated comprehensive and reliable statistical data and information about the situation of persons with disabilities, which is not disaggregated by sex or age, resulting in difficulties for the development of appropriate public policies.

54. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish systematic data - collection and reporting procedures under the National Institute of Statistics;
- (b) Systematically collect data on disability in accordance with the Convention, such as by including the short set of questions on disability designed by the Washington Group on Disability Statistics;
- (c) Develop evidence-based policies to respond to the situation of persons with disabilities, in collaboration with their representative organizations.

Slovenia (2018)

53. The Committee is concerned about the lack of systemic and disaggregated data on persons with disabilities and their social condition, including barriers that they face in society.

54. Bearing in mind target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop systematic data collection and reporting procedures, through the Disability Information System of the State Commission and representative organisations of persons with disabilities, that are in line with the Convention and take into account the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability;
- (b) Collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on its population with disabilities, including data disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, as well as data on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society and their level of poverty.

Sudan (2018)

63. The Committee is concerned about the lack of comparable disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all sectors of the State party.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party include the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability in the upcoming census, include disability matters in the monitoring indicators for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals and pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17, target 17.18 to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data, disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in its national context.

Latvia (2017)

52. The Committee is concerned about the lack of disaggregated data collected on persons with disabilities, its dissemination in the State party and the lack of involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in this process.

53. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party develop systematic data collection and reporting procedures, through the disability information system of the State Medical Commission and representative organizations of persons with disabilities, that are in accordance with the Convention, taking into account the Washington Group Short Set of Questions on Disability, and that it collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on its population with disabilities, including data disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment status and place of residence, as well as data on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society.

Luxembourg (2017)

54. The Committee is concerned that data collection on the situation of the rights of persons with disabilities in the State party is fragmented and not disaggregated by gender or age, which makes it difficult for the State party to develop appropriate policies.

55. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish systematic data collection and reporting procedures under the National Institute of Statistics in line with the Convention;

(b) Rely on the methodology of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics to collect, analyse and disseminate data on its population disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment, barriers encountered and place of residence, including persons with disabilities who have been placed in institutions abroad with funding by the State party, and data on cases of discrimination or violence against persons with disabilities;

(c) Develop evidence-based policies to respond to the situation of persons with disabilities, in collaboration with their representative organizations.

Montenegro (2017)

56. The Committee notes with concern that the State party does not sufficiently systematically collect disaggregated data on persons with disabilities across all sectors and that data collection is scattered among various institutions.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a unified and comprehensive system to collect, analyse and disseminate data on the situation of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment, place of residence, as well as on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society. The Committee also recommends that the State rely on the methodology and questions of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics.

Morocco (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned about the extent to which disability-related indicators are effectively monitored in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party fully apply the disability-related indicators for monitoring the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals, and pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Goals, with a view to increasing significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status (including asylum-seeking and refugee status), disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in its national context. It further recommends that the State party use the full set of questions issued by the Washington Group on Disability Statistics for its census and household surveys.

Panama (2017)

60. The Committee is concerned about the lack of comparable disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all sectors of the State party.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically encourage the collection, analysis and dissemination of comparable disaggregated data on persons with disabilities in all sectors and that it be guided by the work of the Washington Group on Disability Statistics. The Committee further recommends that the State party consider the linkages between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

64. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a unified data-collection system and indicators across the State party concerning the situation of persons with disabilities. It notes the limited collection of disaggregated data in surveys and censuses on the general population.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with Sustainable Development Goal 17, significantly increase the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by, among others, income, sex, age, gender, race, ethnic origin, migratory, asylum-seeking and refugee status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, including in all general population surveys and censuses. It also recommends that the State party use the sets of questions and tools developed by the Washington Group on Disability Statistics for the collection of comparable disability statistics.

Armenia (2017)

55. The Committee notes with concern the lack of disaggregated statistical data on the situation of persons with disabilities in the State party, which hinders the effective implementation of the Convention.

56. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party develop systematic data collection and reporting procedures that are in line with the Convention, and collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on the characteristics of its population with disabilities, including sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, and on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

56. The Committee is concerned that data collection on persons with disabilities in the State party is based on the medical approach and that it is fragmented and lacks effective dissemination. The Committee is also concerned that the State party is not collecting and analysing proper and disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities.

57. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party develop systematic data-collection and reporting procedures which are in line with the Convention and that it collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on the characteristics of its population with disabilities, including sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, as well as on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society. The Committee also recommends that the State party make sure that the use of all derogatory language in reference to persons with disabilities is eliminated.

Canada (2017)

53. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not have up-to-date quantitative and qualitative data on the situation of persons with disabilities and the enjoyment of their human rights.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically facilitate the collection, compilation and updating of data and statistics on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age, sex, type of disability, barriers encountered, ethnicity and geographic location, including data on their type of housing or institution and on cases of discrimination or violence against them. The Committee recommends that the State party consult with organizations of persons with disabilities in this process.

Cyprus (2017)

61. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a unified data-collection system allowing for an assessment of the extent to which all persons with disabilities are exercising all of their rights under the Convention.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate adequate funding and, in close collaboration with organizations representing persons with disabilities, and in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention, establish a unified data-collection system in order to collect quality, sufficient, timely and reliable disaggregated data regarding persons with disabilities and their access to the rights under the Convention.

Honduras (2017)

65. Preocupa al Comité la ausencia de datos e información desglosados y comparables sobre las personas con discapacidad en el Estado parte en todos los sectores, así como la falta de indicadores de derechos humanos en los datos disponibles. Preocupa también al Comité la ausencia de temas de género, infancia, violencia y el tipo de deficiencia en los datos estadísticos.

66. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que facilite sistemáticamente la recopilación, el análisis y la difusión de datos desglosados comparables sobre las personas con discapacidad en todos los sectores. También recomienda que, en cooperación con las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan, desarrolle un sistema de indicadores basado en los derechos humanos. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 31 de la Convención y la meta 17.18 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned about the lack of systems to collect data on the situation of persons with disabilities, including the barriers that they face to exercise their rights, and disaggregated by age, sex, gender, ethnic, linguistic background, migrant, asylum seeking and refugee status.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party work in consultation and when appropriate in cooperation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to create a system for the collection of up-to-date disaggregated appropriate data, in line with the proposal by the Washington Group on Disability Statistics.

Jordan (2017)

59. The Committee notes the absence of systematic collection of up-to-date information, including appropriately disaggregated statistical and research data that would facilitate formulation and implementation of policies to give effect to the Convention.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party collaborate closely with persons with disabilities, organizations representing them and the Washington Group on Disability Statistics to develop a centralized and regularly updated database, with data disaggregated by gender, age, ethnicity, rural/urban population and impairment type so as to enable the formulation and implementation of policies to give effect to the Convention, with due respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, ethics, legal safeguards, data protection, confidentiality and privacy.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

56. The Committee is concerned that data collection on persons with disabilities in the State party is based on a medical approach and is fragmented, and that information is not disseminated.

57. In view of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party develop systematic data collection and reporting procedures, through the National Bureau of Statistics that are in line with the Convention, and that it collect, analyse and disseminate disaggregated data on its population with disabilities, including data disaggregated by sex, age, ethnicity, type of impairment, socioeconomic status, employment and place of residence, as well as data on the barriers that persons with disabilities face in society.

Bolivia (2016)

69. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not have up-to-date quantitative and qualitative data on the situation of persons with disabilities and the enjoyment of their human rights.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party take a rights-based approach to the compilation and updating of data and statistics on persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age, sex, type of disability, barriers encountered, ethnicity and geographic location, including data on their type of housing or institution, and cases of discrimination or violence against them. The Committee also recommends that the State party consult with organizations of persons with disabilities in this process. It further recommends that the State party be guided by article 31 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

68. The Committee is concerned about the lack of updated information and statistics on the number of persons with disabilities in the State party, as well as on the status of their human rights enjoyment throughout the territory.

69. The Committee recommends that the State party collect and update data and statistics on persons with disabilities using a rights-based model. The data should be disaggregated by age, sex, type of disability, existing barriers, ethnicity and geographical location and include the type of residence or institution and cases of discrimination or violence against those persons. These processes should be undertaken in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities. In addition, the Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 31 of the Convention in pursuing target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

65. The Committee is concerned about the absence of systematic data collection on persons with disabilities disaggregated by disability, sex and age across all sectors, including those subjected to violence.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals to increase significantly the availability of timely and reliable data, including through consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

Guatemala (2016)

72. The Committee is concerned about the lack of consistent and comparable statistics on persons with disabilities and the lack of human rights indicators in the data that are available.

73. The Committee recommends that the State party, in cooperation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, use a human rights-based system of indicators and a comprehensive comparable data collection system, with data disaggregated, at least, by gender, age, ethnic group, rural/urban population and type of disability. In addition, it recommends rapidly finalizing the second National Survey on Disabilities and mainstreaming disability in the twelfth Population Census and seventh Housing Census. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 31 of the Convention in its implementation of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

77. The Committee is concerned at the availability and quality of data collection in surveys and censuses on the general population that is disaggregated by disability, sex and age.

78. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 31 of the Convention in implementing target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by, among others, income, sex, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts, including in all surveys and censuses.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

57. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the State party does not systematically collect disaggregated statistical data on persons with disabilities in all areas, including in respect of violence and access to justice;
- (b) About the lack of data collected on migrant workers with disabilities and on migrant workers who have acquired a disability.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically facilitate the collection, analysis and dissemination of disaggregated statistical data in all areas of the demographics of persons with disabilities, including migrant workers with disabilities, in order to enable it to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 31 of the Convention in the implementation of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

63. Preocupa al Comité la ausencia de datos e información desglosados y comparables sobre las personas con discapacidad en el Estado parte en todos los sectores, así como la falta de indicadores de derechos humanos en los datos disponibles. Preocupa también al Comité la ausencia de temas de género, infancia y violencia en los datos estadísticos.

64. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que fortalezca la recopilación sistemática, el análisis y la difusión de datos desglosados comparables sobre las personas con discapacidad en todos los sectores. También recomienda que, en cooperación con las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan, desarrolle un sistema de indicadores basado en los derechos humanos. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que se guíe por el artículo 31 de la Convención en la implementación de la meta 17.18 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible para aumentar de forma significativa la disponibilidad de datos oportunos, fiables y de alta calidad desglosados por grupos de ingresos, género, edad, origen étnico, condición migratoria, discapacidad, ubicación geográfica y otras características pertinentes en los contextos nacionales.

Chile (2016)

63. El Comité observa que la última encuesta sobre personas con discapacidad implementada en el Estado parte (ENDISC-II) en 2015, no haya incluido a personas con discapacidad institucionalizadas, privadas de libertad, en situación de calle, o indígenas. Además, nota la ausencia de registros sobre casos por discriminación o por violencia contra personas con discapacidad.

64. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte la recopilación y actualización de datos y estadísticas acerca de personas con discapacidad sobre la base del modelo de derechos humanos, desglosados por edad, sexo, tipo de deficiencia, pertenencia étnica y localización geográfica, que incluyan datos sobre tipo de residencia o institucionalización, casos por discriminación o por violencia en contra de estas personas; en el desarrollo de estos procesos recomienda la consulta con organizaciones de personas con discapacidad. Además, recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 31 de la Convención y el objetivo 17 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, en particular la meta 17.18.

Lithuania (2016)

63. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There is a lack of disaggregated and reliable statistical data regarding persons with disabilities across all sectors;
- (b) The statistical data relating to persons with disabilities collected by the State party fail to take into account the diversity of persons with disabilities, thereby rendering it impossible to evaluate the impact of each policy on persons with disabilities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age, disability, residence, geographic area and types of support received, in relation to all sectors, taking note of target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Portugal (2016)

58. The Committee is concerned about the lack of standard and comparable statistics regarding persons with disabilities in the State party, as well as the lack of human rights indicators in available data.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party, in partnership with persons with disabilities and their representative organisations, establish a system of human rights-based indicators and a comparable and comprehensive system to collect data disaggregated by sex, age, rural/urban residency and type of disability. The Committee also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and SDG 17, target 17.18 to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts.

Serbia (2016)

63. The Committee welcomes that a comprehensive database on local services will be set up, however; the Committee is concerned that little information has been provided on how the database will contribute to the quality of services provided for persons with disabilities. The Committee is further concerned that the State party is not collecting and analysing data on the situation of persons with disabilities that provides sufficient information to implement the Convention.

64. The Committee urges the State party to ensure that the database on services for persons with disabilities will refer to the quality and availability of social services provided for persons with disabilities and a speedy implementation of statistics in accordance with the Sustainable Development Goals. The Committee recommends the State party update and collect data and statistics on persons with disabilities disaggregated by age, sex, type of impairment, ethnicity and geographic position, including the type of residential or institutional setting, cases filed for discrimination and/or for violence against these persons, and using a human rights-based approach. While developing these processes, it recommends the State Party meaningfully involve with organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee recommends the State party pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 17, target 17.18

Slovakia (2016)

83. The Committee is concerned about the absence of systematic data collection disaggregated by disability, sex and age across all sectors. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned at the lack of coordinated research about the lives of persons with disabilities and their families.

84. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by, inter alia, sex, age and disability, and coordinate research to obtain a full understanding of the lives of persons with disabilities, the barriers they face and the solutions required to enable their full participation in society.

Thailand (2016)

63. The Committee is concerned that the State party is not collecting data necessary to enable it to implement the Convention.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party review its data collection and analysis and bring them into line with the Convention. It also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated by income, gender, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts.

Uganda (2016)

60. The Committee is concerned about the lack of systems to collect information on the situation of persons with disabilities, including refugees.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Systematically facilitate the collection, analysis and dissemination of
- (b) disaggregated data about persons with disabilities and the barriers they face;
- (c) Pay attention to the links between article 31 of the Convention and target 17.18 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Brazil (2015)

56. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not systematically collect disaggregated data across all sectors according to sex, age, disability, indigenous peoples and geographic location.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically facilitate the collection, analysis and dissemination of disaggregated data across all sectors including health, education, employment, political participation, access to justice, social protection, and violence by disability and according to other categories listed above, and amend the census questions, in close cooperation with organisations of persons with disabilities, to accurately reflect the population.

European Union (2015)

72. The Committee is concerned at the lack of consistent and comparable data on persons with disabilities in the European Union and the lack of human rights indicators.

73. The Committee recommends that the European Union develop a human rights-based indicators system in cooperation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, as well as a comparable comprehensive data collection system, with data disaggregated by gender, age, rural/urban population and impairment type.

Gabon (2015)

66. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not systematically collect disaggregated data across all sectors according to sex, age, disability, indigenous peoples (such as Pygmies) and geographic location. In particular, the Committee is concerned at the low estimated numbers of persons with disabilities, especially in rural areas.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically facilitate the collection, analysis and dissemination of disaggregated data across all sectors including health, education, employment, political participation, access to justice, social protection, and violence by disability and according to other categories listed above, and amend the census questions, in close cooperation with organisations of persons with disabilities, to accurately reflect the population.

Kenya (2015)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of systems to collect information on the situation of persons with disabilities, including the barriers that they face to exercise their rights.

56. The Committee recommends that the State systematically facilitate the collection, analysis and dissemination of disaggregated data according to sex, age, disability, indigenous communities, refugee or migrant status, geographical location, across all sectors including health, education, employment, political participation, access to justice, social protection, violence, etc by disability and according to other categories listed above, and amend the census questions, in close cooperation with organisations of persons with disabilities, to accurately reflect the population.

Mauritius (2015)

43. The Committee is concerned that the State party's disability figures are well below the WHO estimates, which might indicate some challenges in the collection of data, especially as regard the ambiguous terminology currently used in the State party on communication-related disabilities. The Committee also regrets that data on all areas covered by the Convention are not available.

44. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen the 2012 data collection on persons with disabilities in order to collect data disaggregated by gender, age, rural/urban population and impairment type on all areas covered by the Convention in order to develop coherent policies and monitor the enjoyment of human rights by persons with disabilities.

Qatar \(2015\)

55. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not systematically collect disaggregated statistical data on persons with disabilities. It is also concerned by the lack of data collected on migrant workers with disabilities and who have acquired a disability.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically facilitate the collection, analysis and dissemination of disaggregated statistical data across all sectors on the demographics of persons with disabilities in order to enable it to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the Convention.

Ukraine \(2015\)

58. The Committee notes with concern the lack of statistical information about the situation of persons with disabilities in the State party, particularly by impairment group, and the absence of data disaggregated by disability across all sectors which impede effective policy formulation.

59. The Committee recommends the State party to reform its system of data collection and collect data on the situation of persons with disabilities, disaggregated by age and gender, particularly persons with disabilities from marginalised communities, across all sectors including health, education, employment, political participation, access to justice, social protection, violence, migration and internal displacement.

Cook Islands \(2015\)

55. The Committee is concerned that the current census does not record the numbers of persons with disabilities born in the Cook Islands who relocate internationally to access health and education services because of their lack of provision on the islands.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Update the census questionnaire to provide a representative picture of persons with disabilities across the islands, including those who relocate;

(b) Develop a centralised and regularly updated database, with data disaggregated by gender, age, ethnicity, rural/urban population and impairment type.

57. The Committee is concerned at the lack of data and statistics on children with disabilities across the State party.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party collect disaggregated data across all sectors concerning children including monitoring abuse and violence in all care settings for children with disabilities.

Croatia \(2015\)

49. The Committee is concerned that the system of data collection does not enable the State party to gather information needed to plan and strategize for the fulfilment of its duties under the Convention. e.g. because data on violence against women and girls with disabilities is lacking.

50. The Committee recommends the State party to systematically review and reform the data collection system as it pertains to women and men with disabilities and to actively involve and closely consult with persons with disabilities and their representative organisations.

Dominican Republic \(2015\)

58. Al Comité le preocupa la escasez de datos e información desagregada sobre las personas con discapacidad, en particular, la ausencia de cifras que indiquen nivel de alfabetización o número de personas con discapacidad que cuentan con seguro familiar de salud; le preocupa también la inconsistencia en la cifra registrada de personas con discapacidad por el Censo de Población de 2010 y la encuesta de hogares ENHOGAR de 2013.

59. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

(a) Sistematizar la recolección de datos e información desagregada acerca de las personas con discapacidad; y

(b) Unificar criterios y metodología para la recolección de datos estadísticos acerca de las personas con discapacidad.

Germany (2015)

57. The Committee is concerned that indicators used for the collection of data regarding persons with disabilities do not follow a human rights-based approach and that they fail to demonstrate the removal of barriers.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect data disaggregated by sex, age, and disability across all sectors and develop human rights indicators to provide information on the implementation of the Convention and the removal of barriers.

Mongolia (2015)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of data and statistics on the number and situation of persons with disabilities in the State Party.

48. The Committee recommends the State Party to collect data and statistics using the disability rights based model, disaggregated by sex, age and disability, about persons with disabilities, in particular, to collect this information on persons with disabilities that are currently in institutional settings, persons with disabilities under social protection of the Persons with Disabilities, Law on Social insurance and Law on Social welfare respectively.

Turkmenistan (2015)

53. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information provided about the involvement of persons with disabilities in consultations on reforming the statistical system, particularly to ensure disaggregated data on persons with disabilities.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen its efforts to create a database and systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, with special regards to women and children with disabilities in particular, age and disability as well as region; and develop gender- and age-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention, taking into consideration the shift from the medical- to the human rights-based approach to disability.

New Zealand (2014)

67. The Committee notes that Statistics New Zealand conducted a disabilities survey in 2013.

68. The Committee recommends that Statistics New Zealand produce a report from the Disability Survey 2013 comparing the human rights outcomes of disabled women and men with those of non-disabled women and men, and where possible, make data tables available from the Disability Survey 2013 so that data users are able to compare the human rights outcomes of disabled men and women with those of non-disabled men and women.

69. The Committee is concerned that government departments, crown entities and local authorities do not always collect and publish disaggregated data on people with disabilities in their annual reports.

70. The Committee recommends that government departments, crown entities and local authorities should collect and publish disaggregated data on people with disabilities in their annual reports.

Denmark (2014)

64. While noting the efforts to collect statistical data on persons with disabilities in Denmark, including IT-based data collection on assistance and benefits to persons with disabilities in Greenland, and general data collection in the Faroe Islands, the Committee regrets the low level of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by gender, age, disability and region; enhance capacity-building in this regard; and develop gender- and age-sensitive indicators, paying due regard to the need to move from a medical-based to a human rights-based approach to disability.

Republic of Korea (2014)

59. The Committee is concerned that the statistical data relating to persons with disabilities collected by the State party fail to take into account the diversity of persons with disabilities, thereby rendering it impossible to evaluate the impact of each policy on persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that statistical data is not being produced and shared in all accessible formats.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age, disability, place of residence, geographic area and types of benefits received, and that the statistics be freely accessible by all persons with disabilities through the provision of the information in accessible formats.

Belgium (2014)

42. The Committee regrets the lack of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities. It recalls that such information is indispensable to: understanding the situations of specific groups of persons with disabilities in the State party who may be subject to varying degrees of vulnerability; developing laws, policies and programmes adapted to their situations; and assessing the implementation of the Convention.

43. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data disaggregated by gender, age and disability; enhance capacity-building in that regard; and develop gender-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to implementation of the various provisions of the Convention.

44. The Committee is concerned that there is insufficient data on matters affecting girls, boys and women with disabilities.

45. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data on girls, boys and women with disabilities.

Ecuador (2014)

50. The Committee is concerned that there is still no unified data-collection system in Ecuador allowing for an assessment of the extent to which all persons with disabilities are exercising their rights.

51. The Committee recommends the establishment of a system that will resolve any discrepancies between the various institutions that manage data on disabilities which are currently fragmented, as well as a monitoring system with clear indicators for gauging how much progress has been made in complying with the various rights under the Convention.

52. The Committee is concerned that the national system for classifying disabilities does not include disaggregated data on indigenous children, Afro-Ecuadorian children and Montubio people. The situation of these sectors of the population may be aggravated by multiple discrimination and it is necessary to have reliable information to meet their specific requirements.

53. The Committee recommends that specific surveys be conducted and that the national population census include information on the number of persons with disabilities, especially Montubio or Afro-Ecuadorian women and children living in rural areas, in order to devise programmes on access to rights especially tailored to their situation.

Mexico (2014)

59. The Committee notes that the State party has set up a specialized technical committee for information on disability. However, it is concerned that there are no up-to-date statistics on the situation of persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the effective participation of disabled persons' organizations in the specialized technical committee for information on disability. The Committee enjoins the State party to urgently establish a system for the compilation, analysis and publication of statistical data on persons with disabilities – disaggregated by urban and rural place of residence, state and indigenous community – taking into account the situation of all marginalized groups and the Committee's recommendations contained in paragraphs 14 and 34 and the concerns expressed in paragraphs 43 and 47 above.

Sweden (2014)

55. The Committee regrets the low level of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities. It recalls that such information is indispensable to: understanding the situations of specific groups of persons with disabilities in the State party who may be subject to varying degrees of vulnerability; developing laws, policies and programmes adapted to their situations; and assessing the implementation of the Convention.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by gender, age and disability; enhance capacity-building in that regard; and develop gender-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention.

57. The Committee is concerned that data is scarce on matters affecting girls, boys and women with disabilities, including those belonging to indigenous groups

58. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data on girls, boys and women with disabilities, including those belonging to indigenous groups.

Azerbaijan (2014)

49. While noting that the State party is in the process of developing a database on issues affecting persons with disabilities and its efforts to collect data, the Committee is concerned at the lack of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite the creation of a database and systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability as well as region; enhance capacity-building in this regard; and develop gender- and age-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention, taking into consideration the changes from the medical to the human rights-based approach to disability.

Costa Rica (2014)

63. The Committee is concerned that the concept of disability used in the last population census, in 2011, is the medical model, and that the census results have not been made available. It is also concerned at the lack of consistency in collecting data on the situation of persons with disabilities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party gather disaggregated data on persons with disabilities that is consistent with the human rights model, and that it consult disabled persons' organizations regarding the criteria used in gathering that data. It also recommends that the State party systematize the gathering, analysis and publication of statistical data taking account of specific sectors of persons with disabilities.

Australia (2013)

53. The Committee regrets the low level of disaggregated data collected and publically reported on persons with disabilities. It further regrets that there is little data about the specific situation of women and girls with disability, in particular indigenous women and girls with disabilities.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party develops nationally consistent measures for data collection and public reporting of disaggregated data across the full range of obligations contained in the Convention, and that all data be disaggregated by age, gender, type of disability, place of residence and cultural background. It further recommends that the State party commissions and funds a comprehensive assessment of the situation of girls and women with disability, in order to establish a baseline of disaggregated data against which future progress towards the Convention can be measured.

55. The Committee regrets that the situation of children with disabilities is not reflected in the data on the protection of children. It further regrets the paucity of information on children with disabilities, in particular data on indigenous children, alternative care for children with disabilities and children with disabilities living in remote or rural areas.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data, disaggregated by gender, age and disability, on the status of children including any form of abuse and violence against children. It further recommends that the State party commissions and funds a comprehensive assessment of the situation of children with disabilities, in order to establish a baseline of disaggregated data against which future progress is made towards the implementation of the Convention.

Austria (2013)

50. While noting the launch of a new reporting forum on women's issues, the Committee is concerned at reports that data are rarely collected on matters affecting women with disabilities.

51. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data on women and girls with disabilities and enhance capacity-building in this regard; that it develop gender-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and that it report on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention.

El Salvador (2013)

63. The Committee, while concerned that official statistics do not reflect the situation of persons with disabilities, takes note of the conclusion of agreements to conduct a survey of such persons.

64. The Committee urges the State party to incorporate in its next census the collection of data on the status of the rights of persons with disabilities, including children, in rural and urban areas.

Paraguay (2013)

71. The Committee notes that there is no disaggregated data on the situation of persons with disabilities in the State party. It takes note of the preliminary results of the latest population census in the State party; it is nevertheless concerned that there is no information on the methods used to collect data on persons with disabilities and in particular on the criteria used in developing the census instruments.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party gather disaggregated data on persons with disabilities that is consistent with the human rights model, and that it consult disabled persons' organizations regarding the criteria used in gathering that data.

73. The Committee notes the introduction of a disability certificate giving access to rights and disability benefits; it is nevertheless concerned at the fact that the certificate is issued on the basis of physical deficiencies alone, and not in accordance with the human rights model used in the Convention.

74. The Committee recommends that the State party review and modify the assessment criteria used in issuing the disability certificate, in line with the principles of the Convention, and establish a simple, no-fee procedure for obtaining it.

Argentina (2012)

49. The Committee would like to express its recognition of the State party for the work it has begun in order to conduct the second national disability survey and to underscore the importance of compiling up-to-date data which will provide an accurate picture of the situation of specific groups of persons with disabilities who may be subject to multiple forms of exclusion, particularly women, children, institutionalized persons, those who have been deprived of legal capacity and those belonging to indigenous peoples.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize its collection, analysis and dissemination of statistics and data, taking into consideration the situation of specific groups of persons with disabilities who may be subject to multiple forms of exclusion. The Committee urges the State party to step up its capacity-building measures in this area and to develop indicators that will reflect issues of multiple discrimination and intersectionality as they relate to persons with disabilities, taking into consideration the changeover from a medical to a human rights model of disability.

China (2012)

47. The Committee takes note that disaggregated appropriate information, including statistical and research data which enables the state party to formulate and implement policies to give effect to the CRPD is often not available due to laws and regulations on guarding state's secrets as revised in 2010.

48. The Committee recommends to review the secrecy laws and appropriately revise them so that information on issues and problems regarding the implementation of the CRPD – e.g. the number of sterilized women with disabilities or the number of involuntary commitments to institutions- can be publicly discussed. The Committee reminds the state party that this information should be accessible to persons with disabilities.

Hungary (2012)

47. The Committee regrets the low level of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities. It notes that the State party has included information on disability in its two last censuses. It regrets, however, that the preliminary data from the 2011 census, released in April 2012, did not include any indication on disability related statistics.

48. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information regarding Roma children with disabilities. It is further concerned by the understanding of the State party of the way in which confidentiality and privacy towards children with disabilities should be considered.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party systematise the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability; enhance capacity-building in this regard; and develop gender- and age-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention, taking into consideration the changes from the medical to the human rights based approach to disability.

50. The committee recommends the State party to develop appropriate data collection to understand the nature and characteristics of Roma persons with disabilities in general and children in particular.

Peru (2012)

46. The Committee regrets the low level of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities. The Committee recalls that such information is indispensable to: understanding the situations of specific groups of persons with disabilities in the State party who may be subject to varying degrees of exclusion, especially indigenous people, women and children with disabilities and persons who live in rural areas; developing laws, policies and programmes adapted to their situations; and assessing the implementation of the Convention.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability; enhance capacity-building in this regard; and develop gender-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention, taking into consideration the changes from the medical to the social model.

Spain (2011)

49. The Committee regrets the low level of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities. The Committee recalls that such information is indispensable to: understanding the situations of specific groups of persons with disabilities in the State party who may be subject to varying degrees of vulnerability; developing laws, policies and programmes adapted to their situations; and assessing the implementation of the Convention.

50. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability; enhance capacity-building in this regard; and develop gender-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention.

51. The Committee regrets that the situation of children with disabilities is not reflected in the data on the protection of children.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability, on abuse and violence against children.

Tunisia (2010)

36. The Committee welcomes the plans to develop a database to store all available data on persons with disabilities (CRPD/C/TUN/1, para. 7), but regrets the low level of visibility of women with disabilities. The Committee recalls that such information is indispensable to understanding the situation of women with disabilities in the State party, and to assessing the implementation of the Convention.

37. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the collection, analysis and dissemination of data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability, enhance capacity-building in this regard, and develop gender-sensitive indicators to support legislative developments, policymaking and institutional strengthening for monitoring and reporting on progress made with regard to the implementation of the various provisions of the Convention.

38. The Committee regrets the invisibility of children with disabilities in data related to protection of children.

39. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically collect, analyse and disseminate data, disaggregated by sex, age and disability, on abuse and violence against children.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 32 CRPD
(International cooperation)*

September 2025

Article 32 - International cooperation

1. States Parties recognize the importance of international cooperation and its promotion, in support of national efforts for the realization of the purpose and objectives of the present Convention, and will undertake appropriate and effective measures in this regard, between and among States and, as appropriate, in partnership with relevant international and regional organizations and civil society, in particular organizations of persons with disabilities. Such measures could include, inter alia:

- a) Ensuring that international cooperation, including international development programmes, is inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities;
- b) Facilitating and supporting capacity-building, including through the exchange and sharing of information, experiences, training programmes and best practices;
- c) Facilitating cooperation in research and access to scientific and technical knowledge;
- d) Providing, as appropriate, technical and economic assistance, including by facilitating access to and sharing of accessible and assistive technologies, and through the transfer of technologies.

2. The provisions of this article are without prejudice to the obligations of each State Party to fulfil its obligations under the present Convention.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
South Africa (2018)

North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)

Kenya (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
El Salvador (2013)
Tunisia (2010)

Please note there are no recommendations on China, Singapore, Saudi Arabia, Poland, Armenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Republic of Moldova, Mauritius, Ukraine, Czech Republic, Denmark, Ecuador, Mexico, Republic of Korea, Costa Rica, Australia, Austria, Paraguay, Argentina, China, Hungary, Peru, Spain and Mexico.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

62. The Committee is concerned about the limited extent of international cooperation strategies and programmes as well as the lack of information provided by the State Party on the participation therein of persons with disabilities, including organisations of women and girls with disabilities, and on budget allocations made for such participation, including in relation to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

63. The Committee recommends that the State Party adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels. The Committee also recommends the State Party to take measures to strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Jakarta Declaration on the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities, 2023-2032 and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

Finland (2025)

62. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Significant reductions in the budget for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in international and development cooperation;
- (b) The withdrawal of the State party from the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on their Destruction.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure active involvement and close participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation and development, including by allotting sufficient financial means to this end;
- (b) Continue to abide by the provisions on victim assistance of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on their Destruction.

Kiribati (2025)

61. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Insufficient focus in donor investment and partnerships to advance the implementation of policies and programmes that address specific critical gaps for children and adults with disabilities, such as the provision of assistive devices and wheelchairs and the associated maintenance and repair capability, the development of sign language interpreter services and sign language training, and technical assistance for developing accessibility standards and an anti-discrimination framework.
- (b) The lack of bilateral and multilateral cooperation agreements and programmes that benefit persons with disabilities, such as international worker schemes and climate refugee agreements.

62. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Strengthen efforts to work with donors to ensure investment and partnerships focus on specific critical gaps for persons with disabilities and that all donor investment includes disability-specific indicators and disability-inclusive design and delivery;
- (b) Establish bilateral and multilateral agreements that benefit persons with disabilities, including in relation to international worker schemes and climate refugee agreements;
- (c) Strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Jakarta Declaration on the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities, 2023–2032, the 2016 Pacific Framework for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

Maldives (2025)

63. The Committee is concerned about the lack of long-term efforts and strategies to seek out and engage cooperation partners to ensure the rights of persons with disabilities, low priority given to the planning, programming and financing of programmes and activities relating to the promotion and protection of the rights of persons with disabilities within the framework of international cooperation. It is also concerned at the insufficient consultation and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as partners in development cooperation, in the design and implementation of international agreements and programmes.

64. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations work with donors to ensure investment and partnerships focus on specific critical gaps for persons with disabilities and that all donor investment includes disability specific indicators and disability inclusive design and delivery. It also recommends that the State party take measures to strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Jakarta Declaration on the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities, 2023–2032 and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

Canada (2025)

62. The Committee commends the State Party on devoting between 6-10% of its international development assistance to projects whose main focus is the rights of persons with disabilities, and on the use the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development’s Development Assistance Committee (OECD-DAC) disability policy marker to monitor inclusivity in development assistance. However, it remains concerned that despite assurances that the State Party’s arms exports and control regime policies are compliant with international and humanitarian law, the exemption of certain export permits of items, parts, and components shipped to the United States to integrate into larger weapons systems, which are then exported to other countries, may facilitate the violation of the rights of persons with disabilities and jeopardizes their access to humanitarian assistance.

63. Recognizing the Report of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights of 9 January 2025 on the impact of arms transfers on human rights (A/HRC/58/41), the Committee recommends that the State Party:

(a) Ensure that all its arms exports and control regime policies are compliant with the State Party’s obligations under the Arms Trade Treaty, International Humanitarian Law, the Convention, and other international human rights instruments, and incorporate into its domestic legislation mandatory human rights due diligence legislation for all arms exports;
(b) Conduct a comprehensive analysis of its current policy on exports of arms, items, parts, and components to identify and cease any Canadian military exports used to facilitate or commit – through the export of items to other countries, including to the United States of America, for their integration into larger weapons systems, indirect exports, or re-exports – grave human rights violations against persons with disabilities;

(c) Implement the 2024 recommendation of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women on transparency and accountability on arms exports [CEDAW/C/CAN/CO/10 para. 13(d) and 14(c)].

64. The Committee notes with concern that the State party does not closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design, approval and tracking of development and humanitarian projects in international cooperation.

65. The Committee recommends that the State Party develop mechanisms to ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in all its humanitarian, reconstruction, development and post-conflict projects with international, regional, and local partners.

Dominican Republic (2025)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The general lack of the systematic and active involvement of and close consultation with persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the State party's international cooperation activities;
- (b) The lack of information or data on measures taken to include the disability perspective in the design of international cooperation projects or to establish a monitoring and accountability framework to assess the impact of international cooperation programmes, projects and policies, including programmes to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and monitoring of the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels, and:

- (a) Ensure that international cooperation, including international development cooperation, is inclusive, accessible and participatory for persons with disabilities and is fully in line with the human rights approach to disability and efforts to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals;
- (b) Recalling the disability policy marker of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development, mainstream the disability perspective in the design of international cooperation projects and establish a monitoring and accountability framework to assess the impact of international cooperation programmes, projects and policies.

European Union (2025)

74. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive Disability Action Plan in EU external action, leading to incoherence in external policies and programmes relating to persons with disabilities established with EU funds, and uneven implementation of existing external policies relating to the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) That despite substantial progress, the focus on disability inclusion in the European Commission's Official Development Assistance projects is still limited;
- (c) The lack of a legally entrenched framework for close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations in EU external action, and a lack of such consultation and involvement in country-level consultations;
- (c) Complex procedures for application to funding for organizations of persons with disabilities in EU external action;
- (d) That despite capacity building measures by the European Union, its institutions still command limited institutional capacity to design and implement disability-inclusive international cooperation programmes.

75. The Committee recalls its previous Concluding Observations and Recommendations (para. 75), and recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Develop and implement a comprehensive disability action plan and improve coordination of existing policies in EU external action to implement the Convention in all international assistance programmes, and within the negotiations of the UN conference on Financial for Development;
- (b) Continue increasing Official Development Assistance programmes on disability inclusion, in alignment with the OECD DAC Disability Marker, and ensure that the next

Multiannual Financial Framework for EU external action is compatible with the Convention, promotes disability inclusion and has an intersectional approach;

(c) Enact a legally entrenched mechanism for close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in EU external action, and ensure such consultation and involvement particularly at country-level consultations, including consultations on climate change, green transition and individual projects, in the design and implementation of international cooperation agreements and programmes, and specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals;

(d) Ensure that all European Union funding, policies and programmes related to international cooperation and sustainable development, including all Team Europe and Global Gateway initiatives, adhere to the principles of accessibility and participation of persons with disabilities;

(e) Continue and strengthen systematic training for EU staff and partners implementing EU-funded programmes and develop practical guidance on disability-inclusive programming.

Palau (2025)

61. The Committee notes with concern the lack of the active and meaningful participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation agreements and activities.

62. Recalling the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the Committee recommends that the State party adopt specific measures to ensure the meaningful consultation and effective participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, throughout the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation phases, and mainstream disability rights into the national implementation the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the monitoring thereof. The Committee also recommend that the State party strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Jakarta Declaration on the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities, 2023–2032 and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

Tuvalu (2025)

59. The Committee is concerned about insufficient donor investment and partnerships to progress implementation of policies and programs for persons with disabilities, and that focus on addressing specific critical gaps for children and adults with disabilities, such as the provision of assistive devices and wheelchairs and an associated repair capability, the development of sign language and provision of sign language interpreters, technical assistance for developing accessibility standards and for the development of an anti-discrimination framework.

60. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations work with donors to ensure investment and partnerships focus on specific critical gaps for persons with disabilities and that all donor investment includes disability specific indicators and disability inclusive design and delivery. It also recommends that the State party take measures to strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Jakarta Declaration on the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities, 2023–2032 the 2016 Pacific Framework for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

61. The Committee is concerned about persons with disabilities not being able to benefit from bilateral cooperation agreements and programs, such as international worker schemes, study abroad programs and climate refugee agreements due to the migrant health requirements of partner countries that deny migration of persons with disabilities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in its negotiations on bilateral cooperation agreements and programs, ensure that migration health requirements do not prevent persons with disabilities in Tuvalu from benefiting from these programs.

Viet Nam (2025)

63. The Committee is concerned about the lack of clarity on how persons with disabilities are involved in deciding how international cooperation for disability support programmes will be distributed;

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels;

(b) Take measures to strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Jakarta Declaration on the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities (2023–2032) and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

(c) Introduce the policy marker on the inclusion and empowerment of persons with disabilities of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development as a tool to ensure the disability approach is included in all international cooperation measures.

Belarus (2024)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The ambiguity in the measures used to prioritize the themes in the international cooperation programs and disregard to making these programs disability inclusive;

(b) The lack of consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in identifying the priorities in the international cooperation programs and excluding them from the implementation and the monitoring processes.

64. The committee recommends that in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, the State party:

(a) Develop comprehensive measures to ensure that the international cooperation programs are inclusive for all, in particular for persons with disabilities;

(b) Effectively engage persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including women with disabilities in the design, implementation and monitoring processes of the international cooperation programs.

Belgium (2024)

64. The Committee is concerned about the narrowly confined inclusion of a disability perspective in the State party’s presidency of the European Union in 2024, and the overly restrictive participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the development and evaluation of international cooperation strategies and programmes.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the establishment of international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically with respect to the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals. It also recommends that the State party take the measures necessary to implement the European Consensus on Development to further advance the rights of persons with disabilities.

Benin (2024)

63. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of long-term strategies to seek and engage cooperation partners to ensure the rights of persons with disabilities, as raised through human rights mechanisms, including the Human Rights Council Universal Periodic Review;
- (b) The low priority accorded to planning, programming and funding of programmes and activities relating to promoting and protecting the rights of persons with disabilities in international cooperation;
- (c) The insufficient consultation and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as development cooperation partners, in the design and implementation of international agreements and programmes.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion, close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations in particular organizations of women with disabilities, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It also recommends that the State party adopt the measures necessary to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, adopted in 2018 by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights.

Burkina Faso (2024)

60. The Committee notes with concern that organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, are not sufficiently consulted and included as partners in development cooperation in the design and implementation of international cooperation agreements, strategies and programmes.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, particularly organizations of women with disabilities, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels;
- (b) Ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa.

Denmark (2024)

85. The Committee recognizes that Denmark started reporting on the Disability Inclusion Marker from the Development Assistance Committee of the OECD in its international co-operation activities. It remains, however, concerned that the reported share of development assistance that includes persons with disabilities remains low and is not sufficiently supported by evidence. It is also concerned about only partial inclusion of disability in its international cooperation framework and about insufficient close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development of international cooperation strategies and programmes.

86. The Committee recommends that Denmark ensure that its development assistance adequately include persons with disabilities, that it adopt concrete measures to implement the European Consensus on Development to further advance the rights of persons with disabilities, and ensure close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design of international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ghana (2024)

62. The Committee is concerned at the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It also notes with concern that organizations of persons with disabilities are neither fully and independently consulted nor involved in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals, and they are not consulted in anything related to international cooperation.

63. The Committee recommends that the State Party mainstream disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development Goals, and that those processes be undertaken in close consultation and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, and in anything related to international cooperation programs.

Mauritius (2024)

57. The Committee is concerned about the lack of meaningful participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, at all stages of the development, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international agreements and multilateral cooperation programmes, including memoranda of understanding with various States and implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels. It also recommends that the State party adopt the measures necessary to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, adopted in 2018 by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights.

Netherlands (2024)

69. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a systematic and coordinated strategy to implement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in the international cooperation activities of the State party, with the full involvement of persons with disabilities, including with regard to the European Consensus on Development;

(b) The general lack of systemic and active involvement of and close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, in its international cooperation activities.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels, and:

(a) Develop a systematic and coordinated strategy to implement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in its international cooperation activities, including with regards to the European Consensus on Development;

(b) Establish measures to ensure the active involvement and close consultation of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design, development, monitoring and evaluation of strategies and programmes on international cooperation.

Ukraine (2024)

64. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Development, post conflict and recovery projects, including those in partnership with international, regional and local organizations, have not mainstreamed disability nor consulted with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations;

(b) The lack of close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the supervision of the implementation and monitoring of the Sustainable Development Goals;

(c) Recovery and postwar projects prioritize economic recovery and do not address inequalities exacerbated in the context of conflict and the reduction of social expenditure to realize the rights of persons with disabilities.

65. The Committee recalls the recommendations issued by the Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights (A/HRC/56/61) calling upon governments to move away from an economy driven by the search for maximizing profits to a human rights economy, this is, from the focus on the increase of levels of production and consumption, to the production of more socially useful and ecologically sustainable goods and services, which is also encompassed by the maxim of “build back better, leave no one behind ”. It recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a harmonized policy on disability-inclusive development and mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its international cooperation policies and programmes, especially those related to recovery and post-conflict;

(b) Develop mechanisms so that persons with disabilities through their representative organizations can participate in the supervision of the implementation and monitoring of the Sustainable Development Goals;

(c) Implement reconstruction, development and recovery projects under a human rights economy, which does not increase inequalities and leads to the reduction of social expenditure to realize the rights of persons with disabilities;

(d) Ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including organizations of women with disabilities in all stages of the peace continuum, including conflict prevention, resolution, reconciliation, reconstruction, peacebuilding and in measures to address the root causes of conflict, and in all efforts to maintain and promote peace and security, as well as mechanisms to prevent and redress human rights violations and abuses.

Azerbaijan (2024)

67. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities in developing international cooperation strategies and programmes;

(b) The limited inclusion of disability in international cooperation agreements.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Introduce mechanisms to ensure close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of activities of international cooperation agreements, the process towards the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) Mainstream disability, including the rights of women and children with disabilities, in international cooperation programmes.

Bahrain (2024)¹

64. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The rights and issues of persons with disabilities are not included in international cooperation agreements in the areas of development.
- (b) The lack of involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations in setting priorities for them in international cooperation programs in which the State party is a partner;
- (c) The lack of indicators showing the achievement of the SDGs in the Disability Strategy 2012-2016 and its implementation plan.
- (c) The lack of indicators showing the extent to which the Sustainable Development Goals are achieved in the Disability Strategy 2012-2016 and its Implementation Plan 2023-2027.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that international cooperation agreements and programs are inclusive and responsive to the rights and issues of persons with disabilities
- (b) Closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities and their organizations, including children, women, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, in the prioritization of international cooperation programmes and projects
- (c) Develop indicators that allow stakeholders, persons with disabilities and their organizations to monitor and evaluate the implementation of international cooperation programs and measure the extent to which they achieve the SDGs.

Costa Rica (2024)

55. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) Que no se asegure la estrecha consulta y la participación activa de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan en el diseño, implementación, supervisión y evaluación de los programas y proyectos formulados en la cooperación internacional;
- b) La insuficiente difusión de la información relacionada a las convocatorias y a los resultados de la cooperación internacional, en particular de proyectos que abordan a las personas con discapacidad auspiciados por PNUD, OFDA, USAID, CEPREDENAC, y UNICEF;
- c) La falta de información o datos sobre las medidas adoptadas para garantizar la inclusión la perspectiva de discapacidad en el diseño de proyectos de cooperación internacional, así como para establecer un marco de seguimiento y rendición de cuentas para evaluar los efectos de los programas, proyectos y políticas de cooperación internacional, incluidos los programas destinados a lograr los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible.

56. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Velar por la estrecha consulta y la participación activa de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan en el diseño, formulación, seguimiento y evaluación de las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional;
- b) Garantizar que la cooperación internacional, incluida la cooperación internacional para el desarrollo, sea inclusiva, accesible y participativa para las personas con discapacidad y esté plenamente en línea con el enfoque de derechos humanos de la discapacidad y la promoción del cumplimiento de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible;
- c) Transversalizar la perspectiva de discapacidad en el diseño de proyectos de cooperación internacional y establecer un marco de seguimiento y rendición de cuentas para evaluar los efectos de los programas, proyectos y políticas de cooperación internacional.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

Kazakhstan (2024)

67. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information on measures to employ disability plans and programmes in the implementation of the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda and sustainable development goals;
- (b) The limited engagement of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations in all phases of the international cooperation programs, in particular in the identification of the national priorities related to their rights.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Develop a national strategy with clear indicators to track the use of disability programs in the implementation of the SDGs;
- (b) Adopt international cooperation programs to promote the rights of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, and implement and monitor them.

Nicaragua (2024)

66. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) Que la cooperación internacional se emplea en materia de discapacidad solamente con enfoque médico y no incluye programas de inclusión social como los aspectos educativos, laborales y de desarrollo;
- b) La limitada consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional.

67. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Transversalizar el modelo de derechos humanos de la discapacidad en el diseño de proyectos de cooperación internacional, y usar esa financiación para programas que abonan a la inclusión social de las personas con discapacidad desde un enfoque de derechos humanos;
- b) Velar por que se celebren consultas estrechas y efectivas con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, en el diseño, formulación, seguimiento y evaluación de las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional.

Sweden (2024)

69. The Committee acknowledges the high overall budget of the State party for international development. However, it is concerned:

- (a) About budgetary limitations adopted in November 2022 for international development which have had a negative impact on disability-specific projects in developing countries;
- (b) That disability-related measures are not included in the humanitarian aid strategy provided through the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA).

70. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure the allocation of sufficient financial resources for international development of disability-specific measures and guarantee that inclusion is a precondition for the approval of projects funded as part of international cooperation programmes;
- (b) Ensure that disability-related measures are included in all humanitarian aid strategies, including in those provided by Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA).

Zambia (2024)

63. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of efforts and long-term strategies to seek and engage cooperating partners to ensure the rights of persons with disabilities, raised through human rights mechanisms, including the Universal Periodic Review (UPR);

(b) Low priority accorded to planning, programming, and funding of programmes and activities relating to promoting and protecting the rights of persons with disabilities in international cooperation;

(c) The insufficient consultation and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as development cooperation partners, in the design and implementation of international agreements and programmes.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It also recommends that the State party adopt measures necessary to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, adopted in 2018 by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights.

Andorra (2023)

65. While noting that Andorra is part of the Ibero-American Programme on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and that the Master Plan for development cooperation in international projects gives special attention to persons with disabilities, the Committee is concerned about the following:

(a) That mainstreaming of disability in international cooperation projects and the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development is not fully applied;

(b) The insufficient consultation with and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as development cooperation partners in the design and implementation of international cooperation programmes.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities into the design, implementation and monitoring of its international cooperation programmes, and into the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development at all levels, in close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

Austria (2023)

71. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a systematic and coordinated strategy to implement the 2030 Agenda in its international cooperation activities, with the full involvement of persons with disabilities, especially concerning the NAP 2022-2030, and the lack of systematic involvement of and consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities in the Austrian Development Cooperation (OEZA);

(b) The lack of indicators to assess the progress in the attainment of the Sustainable Development Goals, particularly SDG4 (inclusive education of persons with disabilities) and SDG11 (accessibility of cities and settlements).

72. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Enact and implement a legal and administrative framework ensuring close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation programs and projects, including those of the OEZA;

(b) Develop and implement, in close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, indicators to assess the progress in the attainment of the Sustainable Development Goals, particularly SDG4 (inclusive education of persons with disabilities) and SDG11 (accessibility of cities and settlements).

Germany (2023)

71. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of inclusion of funded projects in the developing countries and limited budgets to fund disability-specific projects;
- (b) The lack of effective consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in identifying the national priorities and the themes which will be funded in their respective countries;
- (c) The lack of accurate indicators to ensure that international funds are used in line with the Convention, its purpose and general principles, and the SDGs.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure inclusion is a pre-condition to approve funded projects in international cooperation programs;
- (b) Consult with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations to the national priorities and the themes to be supported and engage them in all phases of the funded projects;
- (c) Develop indicators to ensure that the funded projects' goals and activities are in conformity with the Convention and the SDGs.

Israel (2023)

67. The Committee welcomes the information provided by the State party about the promotion of disability mainstreaming in international cooperation programmes. It is, however, concerned about the lack of a comprehensive disability inclusive international development strategy to progress the rights of persons with disabilities, and the lack of impact assessments of existing initiatives, including capacity building and supply of devices.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive disability inclusive international development strategy;
- (b) Establish a monitoring and accountability framework to assess the impact of international cooperation programmes, projects and policies on persons with disabilities;

Malawi (2023)

65. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the international cooperation discussions, including in projects in which their issues are addressed;
- (b) The lack of measures to involve persons with disabilities in the national and international processes to implement the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Provide opportunity and facilitate persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to participate in international cooperation discussions particularly in projects which affect them;
- (b) Ensure the mainstreaming of disability, gender-and-age-sensitive programmes and projects in international cooperation programmes;
- (c) Establish a monitoring and accountability framework to assess the impact on persons with disabilities of international cooperation programmes, projects and policies, including programmes aimed at implementing the 2030 Development Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals, such as the follow-up and review process;
- (d) Ensure that persons with disabilities meaningfully participate in the discussions, planning and implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals at local and national levels.

Mauritania (2023)

55. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient consultation with and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as development cooperation partners, in the design and implementation of international agreements and programmes.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It also recommends that the State party adopt measures necessary to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, adopted in 2018 by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights.

Mongolia (2023)

63. The Committee is concerned about the lack of appropriate mechanism to ensure that the international development projects are disability-inclusive and based on the human rights model to disability and guarantees the close consultation and meaningful involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations at all stages of development, implementation, and monitoring and evaluation of those projects. It is also concerned at the lack of a mechanism to financially support organizations of persons with disabilities through development cooperation, to enable them to participate in international conferences and trainings on issues related to the human rights of persons with disabilities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure that the international development projects are disability-inclusive and based on human rights model to disability and guarantees the effective participation of organizations of persons with disabilities at all stages of development, implementation, and monitoring and evaluation of those projects. It also recommends that the State party take measures to financially support organizations of persons with disabilities through development cooperation so they can participate in international conferences and trainings on issues related to the human rights of persons with disabilities.

Paraguay (2023)

57. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) La limitada consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional;
- b) La falta de información sobre la implementación de políticas públicas en el Marco de Cooperación para el Desarrollo que se realizó en el período 2015 a 2019 y sobre la participación de personas con discapacidad en su elaboración.

58. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Velar por que se celebren consultas estrechas y efectivas con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, en el diseño, formulación, seguimiento y evaluación de las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional;
- b) Implementar las políticas públicas desarrolladas en el marco de la Cooperación para el Desarrollo efectuada en el período 2015-2019.

Angola (2023)

55. The Committee notes with concern that the organizations of persons with disabilities are not always consulted in the scope of international multilateral cooperation programmes.

56. The Committee recommends that organizations of persons with disabilities be meaningfully consulted and involved at all stages of the development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Argentina (2023)

61. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) El poco alcance de la asistencia técnica de la Agencia Nacional de Discapacidad a otros organismos estatales para transversalizar la perspectiva de discapacidad en el diseño de proyectos de cooperación internacional, en particular, los vinculados con la Agenda 2030;
- b) La limitada consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional.

62. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Incrementar la asistencia técnica a los organismos estatales para transversalizar la perspectiva de discapacidad en el diseño de proyectos de cooperación internacional, especialmente, aquellos priorizados por la Agenda 2030, y aprobar directrices para asegurar que los programas de cooperación estén armonizados con la Convención;
- b) Velar por que se celebren consultas estrechas y efectivas a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, en el diseño, formulación, seguimiento y evaluación de las estrategias y programas de cooperación internacional;
- c) Adoptar medidas para implementar el Programa de Acción para el Decenio de las Américas por los Derechos y la Dignidad de las Personas con Discapacidad 2016-2026.

Georgia (2023)

63. The Committee notes with concern the absence of information about the inclusion of a disability perspective and human rights in international cooperation programmes, including in projects financed by the European Union Development assistance for Georgia and in programmes related to the 2030 Development Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals. It is also concerned about the lack of information about consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities in the establishment of programmes and priorities for international cooperation.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation and monitoring of its international cooperation programmes, including projects financed by the European Union, and in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and Sustainable Development Goals at all levels, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Peru (2023)

64. Preocupa al Comité que los indicadores planteados por el Centro Nacional de Planeamiento Estratégico para el seguimiento de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible no visibilizan la situación del país desde un enfoque de discapacidad, lo que dificulta la participación de las personas con discapacidad y sus organizaciones para coadyuvar esfuerzos con la cooperación internacional y el Estado.

65. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que, en colaboración con las instituciones responsables del seguimiento de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, elabore e implemente un plan que identifique los componentes de la discapacidad en amplia consulta con las personas y organizaciones de personas con discapacidad.

Togo (2023)

61. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient consultation with and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as development cooperation partners, in the design and implementation of international agreements and programmes, and that there is no disability perspective in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It also recommends that the State party adopt measures necessary to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, adopted in 2018 by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights.

Tunisia (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned about credible report alleging that persons with disabilities through their representative organisations were neither consulted during the negotiation nor during the implementation of the partnership cooperation agreement signed between Tunisia and Italy for the implementation of the Convention. It is further concerned that this project has recently been rolled out without the involvement of persons with disabilities.

58. The Committee recommends to the State party to take immediate steps to ensure the following:

(a) Meaningful involvement of, and in close consultation, persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in all the stages of implementation and monitoring of the partnership cooperation agreements, on the implementation of the Convention, such as the one signed between the governments of Tunisia and Italy that included the development of the national strategy on disability;

(b) Mainstreaming of disability in programmes and projects developed in international cooperation efforts especially those that have disability components;

(c) Establishing a monitoring and accountability framework with appropriate disability budget lines in general programmes and projects to implement and monitor the 2030 development agenda and its impact or effectiveness on persons with disabilities.

Bangladesh (2022)

61. The Committee notes with concern the lack of active and meaningful participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation agreements and activities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure the meaningful consultation and effective participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, through the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation, as well as to mainstream disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Indonesia (2022)

66. The Committee notes with concern the inconsistent consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities, on international multilateral cooperation programmes.

67. The Committee recommends that organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities, be closely consulted and actively involved at all stages of the development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Japan (2022)

67. While noting the Japan International Cooperation Agency Thematic Guidelines on Disability and Development (2015), the Committee is concerned that mainstreaming of disability in international cooperation projects is not fully applied, and related strategies and programmes are not developed in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities under the human rights model to disability.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development at all levels, in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Strengthen its cooperation for the implementation of the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities 2013-2022 and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

Lao People’s Democratic Republic (2022)

60. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The absence of information on the measures taken to mainstream disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development;
- (b) That the State party does not sufficiently consult with and involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation activities.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that policies and programmes for implementing the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development are disability-inclusive;
- (b) Guarantee the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation programmes, including the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, the implementation of the Asian and Pacific Decade of Persons with Disabilities 2013-2022, and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

New Zealand (2022)

59. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not systematically involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation activities.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure the effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation programmes, including the efforts aimed at the achievement of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific, and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) Enabling Masterplan 2025.

Republic of Korea (2022)

65. The Committee notes with concern the lack of appropriate mechanisms to measure the impact of development cooperation efforts on persons with disabilities and the lack of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women with disabilities, as development cooperation partners.

66. The Committee recommends that organizations of persons with disabilities be effectively consulted and involved at all stages of the development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects, including the Incheon strategy as the regional framework addressing the implementation of the Convention.

Hungary (2022)

62. The Committee notes with concern the lack of:

- (a) Harmonization of international investment programmes, particularly of the European structural and investment funds, with the purpose and provisions of the Convention;

(b) Involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the consultation, preparation, development and implementation of investment programmes that concern persons with disabilities.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Harmonize and align the use of international investment programmes, particularly European structural and investment funds, with the purpose and provisions of the Convention;

(b) Establish a mechanism to involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities to ensure that they are effectively consulted and involved at all stages of development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Jamaica (2022)

58. The Committee notes with concern that the organizations of persons with disabilities are not always consulted in the scope of international multilateral cooperation programmes.

59. The Committee recommends that organizations of persons with disabilities be effectively consulted and involved at all stages of the development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Switzerland (2022)

61. The Committee notes with concern that strategies and programmes on international cooperation do not recognize the cross-cutting nature of disability, and are not developed in close consultation with and with active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 7 (2018).

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt guidelines to ensure that all international cooperation programmes are disability-inclusive and harmonized with the Convention, and do not result in the segregation of persons with disabilities;

(b) Take measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are closely consulted and actively involved in the design, development, monitoring and evaluation of strategies and programmes on international cooperation;

(c) Consistently apply the disability marker developed by the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development in all humanitarian and development projects and ensure training in its application.

Venezuela (2022)

56. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities do not always participate, through their representative organizations, in the design and implementation of international cooperation projects to ensure that such projects include a disability perspective.

57. The Committee encourages the State party, based on the commitments made at the Global Disability Summit 2022, to:

(a) Carry out timely follow-up and inform this Committee and persons with disabilities themselves, through their representative organizations, about the plans and programmes relevant to them, such as inclusive development of communities and transport and the 2016 National Strategic Plan for an Inclusive Society;

(b) Incorporate, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, a disability perspective into national plans for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals and into international cooperation programmes.

Djibouti (2021)

57. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient consultation with and inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of international agreements and programmes, and that there is no disability perspective sufficiently mainstreamed into the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It also recommends that the State party adopt measures necessary to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, adopted in 2018 by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights.

France (2021)

64. The Committee notes with concern that social inclusion of persons with disabilities, and their deinstitutionalization has yet to be included among priorities in international investment programmes, including those of the European structural funds and the European Investment Fund. It is also concerned about the lack of systematic involvement and consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities in the scope of international multilateral cooperation programmes.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party include the rights of persons with disabilities, including to living independently and being included in the community, as a cross-cutting conditionality in all its programmes and strategies of international cooperation. The State party should ensure full and effective participation and inclusion of and consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international programmes and projects.

Estonia (2021)

62. The Committee notes with concern:

The lack of harmonization of the international investment programmes, including those for the European structural funds and the European Investment Fund, with the provisions of the Convention;

That the opinions and views of organizations of persons with disabilities have not been considered in the scope of international multilateral cooperation programmes.

63. The Committee recommends that international investment programmes, including those for the European structural funds and the European Investment Fund, be harmonized with the Convention and that organizations of persons with disabilities be effectively consulted and involved at all stages of the development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Australia (2019)

59. The Committee is concerned about the absence of appropriate mechanisms to measure the impact of development cooperation efforts on persons with disabilities and the lack of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities as development cooperation partners.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to ensure the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed in the framework of international cooperation efforts, including efforts such as the Development for All 2015–2020 strategy, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 7;

Adopt a development policy in line with the Convention and incorporate the policy's principles and values into all of the State party's development cooperation policies and programmes, ensuring that the policy has measurable and tangible targets and indicators, and ensure that international cooperation efforts reach persons with disabilities both by targeting them and by mainstreaming their concerns;

Mainstream disability rights and requirements in the national implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and in monitoring progress in implementation.

Ecuador (2019)

57. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities do not participate through their representative organizations in the design and implementation of international cooperation projects.

58. The Committee encourages the State party to provide detailed information, both to the Committee and to persons with disabilities themselves through their representative organizations on how the disability perspective is being incorporated into national plans for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals of the 2030 Agenda. It recommends that the State party increase the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in all international cooperation programmes.

El Salvador (2019)

60. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information reflecting the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in international cooperation programmes, including the lack of information on the impact and results of the implementation of such programmes. It also notes the low budget earmarked from the total international economic assistance budget for the transformation of educational centres to ensure inclusive education.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party increase the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in inclusive projects in all areas of international cooperation programmes. It also recommends that the State party expedite the implementation of the Mesoamerica Project for the development of inclusive education systems in the Mesoamerican region, and of the Italian Agency for Development Cooperation project for the promotion of inclusive education, ensuring that they adhere to the Convention throughout their progress, and that the State party includes information on their outcomes in the next periodic report.

India (2019)

66. The Committee is concerned at the absence of appropriate mechanisms to measure the impact of development cooperation efforts on persons with disabilities, and the lack of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities as development cooperation partners.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed as part of international cooperation efforts;

Mainstream disability rights and requirements into the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals.

Iraq (2019)

61. The Committee is concerned about the absence of information on the measures taken to mainstream disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It is also concerned about the lack of information on the consultation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development and implementation of international cooperation projects.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that policies and programmes for implementing the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, including the Sustainable Development Goals, are disability-inclusive and are undertaken in consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations.

Kuwait (2019)

62. The Committee is concerned about the lack of:

International cooperation programmes and policies accessible to persons with disabilities;
Mechanisms for the consultation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of international cooperation agreements, projects and programmes.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in all international cooperation efforts, including those supported by the Kuwait Fund for Arab Economic Development;

Establish mechanisms to ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, participate effectively and are fully included and consulted in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation programmes, including in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, the National Development Plan (2015–2020) and the 2035 Vision development plan.

Myanmar (2019)

61. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not sufficiently involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation activities.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure the effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation programmes, including the efforts aimed at the achievement of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific, and ASEAN Enabling Masterplan 2025 “Mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities”.

Cuba (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned by the paucity of information on whether the State party has mainstreamed a disability perspective in its sustainable development objectives and development projects carried out through international cooperation.

54. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels and that these processes be carried out in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

Niger (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned about the lack of meaningful participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in development programs financed through international cooperation; and that a disability perspective is not sufficiently mainstreamed in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

54. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

Adhere to the rights enshrined in the Convention in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations are fully consulted and participate effectively in the design and implementation of international cooperation programmes.

Consider ratifying the African Disability Protocol recently adopted by the African Union.

Norway (2019)

51. The Committee notes that the State party introduced the disability marker in 2018 in its international cooperation activities. However, it is concerned at the lack of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities as development cooperation partners.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure full and effective participation, inclusion and consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed in international cooperation efforts in line with the Committee's General Comment No. 7 (2018).

Rwanda (2019)

59. The Committee is concerned about the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights, as enshrined in the Convention, in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and about the insufficient consultation and participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of international cooperation projects and programmes.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and ensure that all international cooperation efforts are fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, from the design of programmes and policies to implementation, monitoring and evaluation, and that, together with international development actors, it systematically and meaningfully consults organizations of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party consider ratifying the African Disability Protocol recently adopted by the African Union.

Senegal (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient consultation and inclusion of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of international cooperation agreements and programmes and that a disability perspective is not sufficiently mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures towards the effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development;

Take necessary measures towards the ratification of the African Disability Protocol recently adopted by the African Union.

Spain (2019)

60. The Committee is concerned about the little prioritization and sparse mainstreaming of the rights of persons with disabilities in the implementation of measures for international cooperation, including with regard to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and related Goals. It is also concerned that disability-related terminology in international cooperation projects is not always in line with the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the rights of persons with disabilities, enshrined within the Convention, including disability-related terminology, are mainstreamed into all actions aimed at implementing measures of international cooperation, including with regard to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and related Goals. It also recommends that the State party ensure that, in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention, representative organizations of persons with disabilities are consulted and involved at every level of development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Türkiye (2019)

64. The Committee observes with concern:

The absence of information on guidelines for disability inclusion throughout the State party's technical cooperation and assistance programmes;

The lack of information about access by civil society organizations, including organizations of persons with disabilities, to international funding for implementing the rights of persons with disabilities;

The lack of information about measures to adhere to the Convention in efforts to implement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt policy frameworks and guidelines on international cooperation, recognizing disability as an integral part in international development policies, and allocate adequate resources;

Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities can receive or seek funding and other resources from national and international sources;

Actively involve and closely consult with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, on public budgeting processes, the monitoring of the Sustainable Development Goals at the national level, international decision-making and international cooperation.

Vanuatu (2019)

54. The committee is concerned at:

The lack of a systematic approach to incorporate the Convention into international cooperation programs and funds;

The insufficient consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities and their limited participation and inclusion in international development projects, including in decisions around the use of international funds which could impact the rights of persons with disabilities;

The lack of a concrete plan to ensure the linkage between measures taken for persons with disabilities and the Sustainable Development Goals.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt a development policy in line with the Convention that incorporates its principles and values into all the State party's development cooperation policies and programs;

Ensure the meaningful consultation and participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programs and projects developed in international cooperation efforts;

Mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Algeria (2018)

54. The Committee is concerned at the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It is also concerned that organizations of persons with disabilities are neither fully and independently consulted nor involved in the implementation of the Convention.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals, and that those processes be undertaken in close cooperation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee encourages the State Party to consider ratifying the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and People's Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa, to allow for regional monitoring of the rights of persons with disabilities.

Bulgaria (2018)

69. The Committee notes with concern that the State party does not sufficiently involve the representative organisations of persons with disabilities when engaging with international non-governmental organisations, and other State parties in the field of international cooperation.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party involve representative organisations of persons with disabilities in international cooperation programmes, and adopt mechanisms to ensure mainstreaming of the human rights model of disability, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, into all efforts aimed at the achievement of the 2030 Development Agenda and development goals.

Malta (2018)

47. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in its foreign and international cooperation policy and that related information is not fully disclosed to organizations of persons with disabilities in the State party. The Committee is particularly concerned about the reported insufficient involvement of the Maltese representative body of organizations of persons with disabilities in the field of international cooperation.

48. The Committee calls on the State party to involve the Maltese representative body of organizations of persons with disabilities in international cooperation, in particular to disclose policies and information.

Philippines (2018)

58. The Committee is concerned about

The lack of a systematic and institutionalized approach to incorporating the Convention into its disability-inclusive development cooperation initiatives, including programmes for the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and extent to which the State party's collaboration with international bodies;

The extent to which persons with disabilities have been included in developing, implementing and monitoring disability inclusive projects.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party review international projects undertaken by the State party in partnership with global aid agencies to ensure full compliance with the principles of the Convention, in particular to ensure the meaningful and empowered inclusion of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in designing, implementing and monitoring disability inclusive development projects and also in achieving Sustainable Development Goals, especially Goal 1 on poverty reduction.

South Africa (2018)

52. The Committee notes with concern that representative organisations of persons with disabilities are not consulted or included in the design and implementation of international cooperation agreements and programmes and that a disability perspective is not sufficiently mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations in international cooperation agreements and programmes, specifically in the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

North Macedonia (2018)

58. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective consultations, participation of and inclusion of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in international cooperation programmes.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in international cooperation programmes.

Haiti (2018)

58. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a coherent strategy in collaboration with local representative organizations of persons with disabilities to empower persons with disabilities to effectively enjoy their fundamental rights as enshrined in the Convention. It is also concerned that most projects in the context of international cooperation are primarily focused in and around the capital city. It notes with concern the lack of systematic and effective consultation, participation and inclusion of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations in international cooperation programmes.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt a development policy in line with the Convention into all of the development cooperation policies and programmes of the State party;

Mainstream disability by engaging the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

Adopt measures to ensure meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed in international cooperation efforts.

Nepal (2018)

47. The Committee is concerned that the State party's collaboration with international bodies to improve the capacity of the State party to implement the Convention does not adequately include the participation of persons with disabilities. The Committee is further concerned about the extent to which new technologies and good practices promptly reach persons with disabilities and representative organizations of persons with disabilities and also the extent to which persons with disabilities have been included in consultations or partnerships to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals.

48. The Committee recommends that the State party review international projects undertaken by the State party in partnership with global aid agencies to ensure full compliance with the principles of the Convention, and ensure the meaningful and empowered inclusion of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in designing, implementing and monitoring disability inclusive development projects and also in achieving Sustainable Development Goals.

Oman (2018)

57. The Committee is concerned about the non-inclusion of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in international cooperation programmes, and that a disability perspective is not sufficiently mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that disability rights, as enshrined in the Convention, are mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals, and that persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, participate effectively, and are fully included and consulted in international co-operation programmes.

Russian Federation (2018)

64. The Committee is concerned about the reported insufficient involvement of the Russian representative organisations of persons with disabilities in the field of international cooperation.

65. The Committee calls on the State party to involve the Russian representative organisations of persons with disabilities in international cooperation as well as to ensure the inclusion of a disability rights-based perspective apart from health- and prevention related initiatives, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, into all efforts aimed at the achievement of Sustainable Development Goals by 2030.

Seychelles (2018)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a systematic and institutionalized approach to incorporating the Convention into its development cooperation initiatives, including programmes for the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and in the context of small island developing States. It is also concerned about the absence of evaluation mechanisms to measure the impact of development cooperation on persons with disabilities and the lack of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities as development cooperation partners.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a development policy in line with the Convention that incorporates its principles and values into all the development cooperation policies and programmes of the State party;

(b) Mainstream disability in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals;

(c) Adopt measures to ensure the effective participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed in international cooperation efforts and in the context of small island developing States.

Slovenia (2018)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of scope on the rights, enshrined within the Convention, in international support programmes concerning persons with disabilities, including in relation to the use of the European Union funds. It is further concerned about the barriers for the national umbrella organisation of persons with disabilities to be recognised as a legal entity, which restricts its access to international cooperation. It is also concerned about the insufficient incorporation of human rights-based approach to disability in the efforts to implement the Sustainable Development Goals.

56. The Committee calls upon the State party to involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities in international cooperation, to ensure that any funding, invested into services for persons with disabilities, complies with State party's obligations under the Convention and as a member of the European Union. It also recommends that the State party includes a disability rights-based perspective into all efforts aimed at achieving the Sustainable Development Goals. It further recommends that the State party facilitate the acquisition of the legal entity to the national umbrella organisation for enabling its participation international cooperation.

Sudan (2018)

65. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective consultations, participation of and inclusion of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in international cooperation programmes.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure effective participation, inclusion and consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in international cooperation programmes.

Latvia (2017)

54. The Committee notes with concern the limited capacity of the mechanisms to coordinate and monitor the implementation of the Convention, namely the Ministry of Welfare and Office of the Ombudsman, respectively, including the lack of systemized participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in these mechanisms.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party considerably strengthen the role and capacities of both the Ministry of Welfare and the Office of the Ombudsman as the focal points designated, respectively, as coordinating and monitoring mechanisms for the implementation of the Convention, while ensuring the provision of adequate funding and the full participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the coordination and monitoring processes.

Luxembourg (2017)

56. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a systematic and institutionalized approach to incorporating the Convention into its development cooperation initiatives, including programmes for the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It is also concerned about the absence of evaluation mechanisms to measure the impact of development cooperation on persons with disabilities and the lack of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities as development cooperation partners.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt a development policy in line with the Convention that incorporates its principles and values into all the State party's development cooperation policies and programmes;

Mainstream disability in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals;

Adopt measures to ensure meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed in international cooperation efforts.

Montenegro (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not sufficiently involve the Montenegrin representative organizations of persons with disabilities when engaging with international non-governmental organizations and other States parties in the field of international cooperation.

59. The Committee calls on the State party to involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities in international cooperation and to ensure the inclusion of a disability rights-based perspective, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, into all efforts aimed at achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

Morocco (2017)

60. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective consultation with and participation and inclusion of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the context of international cooperation programmes.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure effective participation and inclusion of and consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the context of international cooperation programmes.

Panama (2017)

62. The Committee is concerned by the paucity of information on whether the State party has mainstreamed a disability perspective in its work towards the Sustainable Development Goals and development projects carried out through international cooperation.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals at all levels and that these processes be carried out in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

66. The Committee is concerned that the State party is not yet systematically mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities across all its international cooperation and development programmes.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities in the countries where it works:

Expedite the process to update the Disability Framework of the Department for International Development, including by adopting measurable targets and specific commitments to advance the rights of persons with disabilities in the countries where it works;

Put in place the necessary measures to ensure that all relevant departments of the State party that allocate overseas development assistance funds systemically monitor and include persons with disabilities in their international development and cooperation;

Carry out a consultation process involving organizations of persons with disabilities on all policies and programmes aimed at implementing the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals, nationally and internationally.

Canada (2017)

55. The Committee observes that the State party provides substantive international support to projects and programmes related to disability rights. However, it notes the absence of information about the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities as partners on international cooperation projects.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Adopt measures to ensure meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and projects developed in international cooperation efforts;

Ensure the adoption of a disability-rights perspective in all efforts aimed at implementing the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals.

Cyprus (2017)

63. The Committee is concerned about the scarce mainstreaming of the rights of persons with disabilities in the implementation of measures of international cooperation, including with regard to the Sustainable Development Goals, and about the insufficient collaboration with organizations representing persons with disabilities in that regard.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the Convention is mainstreamed into all actions to implement measures of international cooperation, including with regard to the Sustainable Development Goals, and that, in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention, representative organizations of persons with disabilities are consulted and involved at every level of development and implementation of international cooperation plans, programmes and projects.

Honduras (2017)

67. Preocupa al Comité que los principios y valores de la Convención no estén sistemáticamente incorporados en todas las políticas y programas de cooperación internacional del Estado parte. También le preocupa la falta de incorporación transversal de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en la aplicación y seguimiento nacional de la Agenda 2030 para el Desarrollo Sostenible.

68. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que, en estrecha colaboración con las organizaciones de las personas con discapacidad, asegure que la prevista Política Pública de Cooperación Internacional para el Desarrollo de Honduras este armonizada con la Convención y que introduzca de forma transversal los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en la aplicación y seguimiento nacional de la Agenda 2030 para el Desarrollo Sostenible, en cooperación estrecha y con la participación de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

60. The Committee observes that the State party has volunteered to the review of the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals. However, it notes with concern the absence of information on how the rights of persons with disabilities are fully included.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that implementation of the SDGs is inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities and as regards the national reporting to the High Level Political Forum.

Jordan (2017)

61. The Committee notes that a disability perspective is not sufficiently mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party collaborate closely with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Bolivia (2016)

71. The Committee is concerned that the rights of persons with disabilities recognized in the Convention are not covered in national plans on the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals at the national level, and that these processes are undertaken in close collaboration with, and with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Colombia (2016)

70. The Committee is concerned by the fact that the rights of persons with disabilities enshrined in the Convention are absent from the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, including in local development plans.

71. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in its implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development at all levels and that these processes be carried out in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Ethiopia (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned at the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It notes with concern that organizations of persons with disabilities are neither fully and independently consulted nor involved in the implementation of the Convention.

68. The Committee recommends that disability rights be mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals, and that those processes be undertaken in close cooperation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Guatemala (2016)

74. The Committee notes with concern that the limited funding sourced from international cooperation is frequently used to finance institutions where children and adults with disabilities are permanently segregated and that many such institutions are sustained by the growing trend towards voluntarism in Guatemala.

75. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that funding sourced from international cooperation is used in accordance with the Convention and substantially reinforce the mainstreaming of disability in the National Development Plan, K'atun nuestra Guatemala 2032.

Italy (2016)

79. The Committee is concerned about the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights as enshrined in the Convention in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

80. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that disability rights, as enshrined in the Convention, are mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals, and that those processes be undertaken in close cooperation and involvement with organizations of persons with disabilities.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

59. The Committee is concerned that the rights of persons with disabilities are not systematically considered in international development and assistance efforts made by the State party.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that all international cooperation efforts are fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, from the design of programmes and policies to monitoring and evaluation, and that, together with international development actors, it systematically consults organizations of persons with disabilities.

Uruguay (2016)

65. Preocupa al Comité que los principios y valores de la Convención no estén sistemáticamente incorporados en todas las políticas y programas de cooperación

internacional del Estado parte. También le preocupa la falta de incorporación transversal de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en la aplicación y seguimiento nacional de la Agenda 2030 para el Desarrollo Sostenible.

66. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que en estrecha colaboración con las organizaciones de las personas con discapacidad, adopte una política de cooperación internacional armonizada con la Convención, y que introduzca de forma transversal los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en la aplicación y seguimiento nacional de la Agenda 2030, consultando a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad.

Chile (2016)

65. Preocupa al Comité la ausencia de los derechos de personas con discapacidad reconocidos por la Convención, en la implementación y monitoreo nacionales de la Agenda 2030 para el Desarrollo Sostenible.

66. El Comité recomienda que los derechos de las personas con discapacidad sean transversalizados en la implementación y monitoreo de la Agenda 2030 y los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible a nivel nacional, y que tales procesos se desarrollen en colaboración e involucrando estrechamente a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad.

Lithuania (2016)

65. The Committee is concerned that disability rights have not been mainstreamed in the national, regional and global implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, including in designing international development assistance.

66. The Committee recommends that the rights of persons with disabilities be mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals, and that all related processes, including those for defining international development assistance priorities, are undertaken in close cooperation with and with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Portugal (2016)

60. The Committee notes the inclusion of disability in the Portuguese Strategic Vision for Cooperation 2014-2020, which sets out State party cooperation with Portuguese-speaking countries in Africa and with Timor-Leste; however, it is concerned about the failure to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in implementation and national monitoring in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development Goals, and the lack of a systematic and institutionalised approach to incorporate the principles and values of the Convention into all its international cooperation policies and programmes.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party, in partnership with organisations of persons with disabilities, adopt a development policy in line with the Convention which includes its principles and values in all international cooperation policies and programmes, and mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in implementing and national monitoring in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development Goals. in close cooperation and with the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Serbia (2016)

65. The Committee is concerned about the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights as enshrined in the Convention in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda.

66. The Committee recommends disability rights, as laid down in the Convention, are mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals, and these processes are undertaken in close cooperation and involvement with organisations of persons with disabilities with a transparent decision-making process and budget.

Slovakia (2016)

85. The Committee is concerned about the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights as enshrined in the Convention in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

86. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that disability rights, as enshrined in the Convention, are mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals, and these processes are undertaken in close cooperation and involvement with organizations of persons with disabilities

Thailand (2016)

65. The Committee is concerned by the lack of information on disability-specific measures envisaged to implement Agenda 2030 for Sustainable Development and the goals of the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific. It is also concerned that much of the State party’s South-South cooperation regarding persons with disabilities is oriented around health, in detriment of a holistic approach to disability.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party integrate a disability rights- based perspective in all international cooperation and development efforts, in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

Uganda (2016)

62. The Committee is concerned about the lack of mainstreaming of disability rights, as enshrined in the Convention, in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Furthermore, the Committee observes that organizations of persons with disabilities have not been consulted in the design of international cooperation projects and programmes.

63. The Committee recommends that disability rights, as enshrined in the Convention, be mainstreamed in the national implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals, and these processes are undertaken in close cooperation and involvement with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Brazil (2015)

58. The Committee encourages the State party to integrate a disability rights-based perspective, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, in all efforts aimed at achieving the post-2015 Development Agenda, including ensuring participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in monitoring its implementation.

European Union (2015)

74. The Committee notes with concern the lack of a systematic and institutionalized approach to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities across all European Union international cooperation policies and programmes. The Committee also notes the lack of coordination and coherence amongst the European Union institutions, as well as the lack of disability focal points. It is also concerned that European Union international development funding is utilized to create or renovate institutional settings for the placement of persons with disabilities, segregated special education schools and sheltered workshops, contrary to the principles and provisions of the Convention.

75. The Committee recommends that the European Union adopt a harmonised policy on disability-inclusive development and establish a systematic approach to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities in all European Union international cooperation policies and programmes, to appoint disability focal points in related institutions, and take the lead in the implementation of disability-inclusive 'Sustainable Development Goals'. The Committee further recommends that the European Union identify and put in place mechanisms to disaggregate data on disability to monitor the rights of persons with disabilities in European Union development programmes. The Committee recommends that the European Union interrupt any international development funding that is being used to perpetuate the segregation of persons with disabilities, and reallocate such funding towards projects and initiatives that aim at compliance with the Convention.

Gabon (2015)

68. The Committee is concerned that international development efforts are not inclusive of persons with disabilities.

69. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the implementation of the post-2015 development framework is fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, from the design of programs and policies, to monitoring and evaluation and that organisations of persons with disabilities are systematically consulted by the State party and international development actors.

Kenya (2015)

57. The Committee observes that organizations of persons with disabilities have not been consulted in the design of international cooperation projects and programmes.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of projects supported by international cooperation, in order to ensure that they have an impact on progress towards the implementation of the Convention as well as the 2030 Sustainable Development Goal framework.

Qatar (2015)

57. The Committee is concerned that the rights of persons with disabilities are not systematically considered in international development and assistance efforts by the State party.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that all international cooperation is fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, from the design of programs and policies, to monitoring and evaluation, and that organizations of persons with disabilities are systematically consulted by the State party and international development actors.

Cook Islands (2015)

59. The Committee is concerned that the new National Disability Inclusive Development Policy does not have a timeline for implementation, nor are persons with disabilities through their representative organisations nominated as key stakeholders in the monitoring process of this policy.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party introduce a timeline for implementation of the National Disability Inclusive Development Policy and the involvement of persons with disabilities in the development and monitoring of the policy.

Croatia (2015)

51. The Committee calls for the integration of a disability rights-based perspective, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, into all efforts aimed at the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals, and into the post-2015 Development Agenda.

Dominican Republic (2015)

60. Al Comité le preocupa que el Estado parte no cuente con resultados de la cooperación internacional canalizada para la implementación de la Convención. También le preocupa la falta de información sobre la inclusión de la perspectiva de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en los planes, programas y acciones para el cumplimiento de los Objetivos de Desarrollo del Milenio.

61. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte monitorear con la participación de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, los proyectos que cuentan con el apoyo de la cooperación internacional, para asegurar que tengan un impacto en el avance del cumplimiento de la Convención. También le recomienda incluir la perspectiva de las personas con discapacidad en la implementación de las Metas de Desarrollo del Milenio y las Metas de Desarrollo Sustentable que serán promovidas en la agenda de desarrollo post 2015 de las Naciones Unidas.

Germany (2015)

59. The Committee is concerned about the lack of attention to the rights of persons with disabilities in the State party's policies and programmes relating to international cooperation and development, in particular related to the Millennium Development Goals.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party establish:

A disability rights-based approach to international development commitments, including the post-2015 development framework;

A monitoring and accountability framework with appropriate disability budgeting lines for targeting persons with disabilities in policies and programmes which will implement and monitor the post-2015 Agenda;

A comprehensive and integrated data base on the mainstreaming of persons with disabilities in general programmes and projects of development assistance and introduce criteria by which progress of the realization of rights can be systematically analyzed and assessed. It also recommends that all development assistance be made inclusive of person with disabilities, including in terms of data collection.

Mongolia (2015)

49. The Committee is concerned that the State party's collaboration with international bodies to improve the capacity of the State party to implement the Convention does not adequately include the participation of persons with disabilities. In particular, the Committee is concerned about reports that some of the outcomes of such international co-operation have had the effect of implementing measures that are not in full compliance with the Convention, including prioritising institutional care instead of community-based care, or providing segregated education rather than inclusive education as the principal means for addressing the needs of persons with disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the inclusion of the perspective of persons with disabilities in the implementation of the Millennium Development Goals at the national level.

50. The Committee recommends that further efforts are made to consider whether international projects undertaken by the State party are in full compliance with the principles of the Convention and ensure the meaningful and empowered participation and inclusion of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in designing, implementing and monitoring disability inclusive development projects. The Committee recommends to the State party to consider the perspective of the rights of persons with disabilities in the implementation of the Millennium Development Goals, and in the Sustainable Development Goals that will be promoted by the Post-2015 United Nations Agenda on Social Development. The State party can ask for technical assistance from United Nations agencies to continue the implementation of the Convention and these recommendations.

Turkmenistan (2015)

55. The Committee is concerned that the State party still lacks full engagement with international non-governmental organisations in order to benefit from their expertise in the human rights monitoring, reporting and analysis, policy development and implementation and all related capacity development in international cooperation.

56. The Committee recommends that the State party continue to strengthen broad cooperation with international organisations to fully benefit from their technical assistance for the country as well as closer partnerships with organizations of persons with disabilities, and to promote their more active participation in international cooperation projects. It also calls on the State party to ensure the integration of a disability rights-based perspective, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, into all efforts aimed at the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals and into the post-2015 Development Agenda.

New Zealand (2014)

71. The Committee is concerned that the withdrawal of funding to the Pacific Disability Forum is having a negative effect on persons with disabilities in the region.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party's foreign aid programme should continue a focus on disability-inclusive development. The Committee also recommends that the State party reinstate its provision of financial and other resources to the Pacific region.

Belgium (2014)

46. The Committee regrets the lack of attention given to the rights of persons with disabilities in the policy and programmes related to the Millennium Development Goals, despite the call by the United Nations General Assembly for the collection of data and information on the situation of persons with disabilities in the context of development and the realization of the Millennium Development Goals.

47. The Committee recommends that the State party integrate a disability rights-based perspective in the post-2015 development framework.

Sweden (2014)

59. The Committee commends the State on its adoption of both the mainstreaming and twin-track approaches to disability-inclusive international development work.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party share its good practice with Member States, United Nations bodies and other relevant stakeholders. In addition, the Committee calls for the integration of a disability rights-based perspective in the post-2015 development framework.

Azerbaijan (2014)

51. The Committee encourages the State party to ensure that all international cooperation carried out on its territory, or in partnership with it, is fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, and promotes their active participation in international cooperation projects.

52. The committee calls for the integration of a disability rights based perspective, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, into all efforts aimed at the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and into the Post – 2015 Development Agenda.

El Salvador (2013)

65. The Committee regrets that the State party has not mandated the participation of civil society in international cooperation programmes, especially those relating to disability, which is a key to promoting an inclusive society.

66. The Committee calls on the State party to create the conditions for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of projects financed by international aid, and to base its international cooperation programmes on the human rights model contained in the Convention.

Tunisia (2010)

40. The Committee encourages the State party to ensure that all international cooperation carried out on its territory, or in partnership with it, is fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, and promotes their active participation in international cooperation projects.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 33 CRPD
(National implementation and monitoring)*

September 2025

Article 33 - National implementation and monitoring

- 1. States Parties, in accordance with their system of organization, shall designate one or more focal points within government for matters relating to the implementation of the present Convention, and shall give due consideration to the establishment or designation of a coordination mechanism within government to facilitate related action in different sectors and at different levels.*
- 2. States Parties shall, in accordance with their legal and administrative systems, maintain, strengthen, designate or establish within the State Party, a framework, including one or more independent mechanisms, as appropriate, to promote, protect and monitor implementation of the present Convention. When designating or establishing such a mechanism, States Parties shall take into account the principles relating to the status and functioning of national institutions for protection and promotion of human rights.*
- 3. Civil society, in particular persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, shall be involved and participate fully in the monitoring process.*

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)

Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)

Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)
Tunisia (2010)

Please note there are no recommendations in the Concluding Observations on art. 33 on Norway, New Zealand, Azerbaijan (2014) and Spain.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

64. The Committee is concerned that the Korean Federation for the Protection of Persons with Disabilities does not operate as an autonomous institution in line with the Paris Principles. The Committee notes with deep concern the absence of formal mechanisms to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

65. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State Party establish an independent monitoring mechanism in accordance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), ensuring the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations. Noting the mandate of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in supporting the establishment and strengthening of national human rights institutions, the Committee encourages the State Party to seek the support and advice of OHCHR in the process.

Finland (2025)

64. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the Advisory Board for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (VANE) has reduced some of its activities, including processes of the disabled people's councils of municipalities and welfare service counties, limiting participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development and implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The reduction of funding for organizations of persons with disabilities, hampering their fundamental role of monitoring the implementation of the Convention;
- (c) The State Party's remarks at the Constructive Dialogue that organizations of persons with disabilities could operate autonomously with private fundings.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are closely consulted and actively involved in the activities of the Advisory Board for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (VANE) and other coordination mechanisms;
- (b) Provide support to organizations of persons with disabilities to allow them to get involved and participate fully in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, by, inter alia, providing the requisite funding and rendering the processes and information accessible;
- (c) Develop and implement a plan for the continued public and private funding of organizations of persons with disabilities and disability rights defenders that allows them to fulfil their role under the Convention autonomously.

Kiribati (2025)

63. The Committee is concerned that there is no national human rights institution in line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) in the State party.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a national human rights institution with a broad mandate on the protection of human rights and with adequate human, technical and financial resources, in full compliance with the Paris Principles.

65. The Committee is concerned that the State Party has not designated or established an independent monitoring mechanism to promote, protect and monitor implementation of the Convention with a budget and designated functions that involves the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee and designate or establish an independent monitoring mechanism in compliance with the Paris Principles, equipped with sufficient resources and authority to monitor the implementation of the Convention.

Maldives (2025)

65. The Committee notes with concern that the Human Rights Commission of Maldives, is accredited with B status by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI) due to the lack of plurality, diversity, adequate funding and independence.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party address the concerns raised by the Sub-Committee on Accreditation of the GANHRI, strengthen the Human Rights Commission of Maldives to be able to effectively and independently discharge its mandate in compliance with the Paris Principles and the supremacy of human rights, and seek the advice and support of the OHCHR in the process.

67. The Committee is concerned that the Disability Council, as the coordinating body for the implementation of the Convention across all ministries, lacks adequate resources to implement its mandate and visibility across State bodies.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party provide sufficient human, financial and technical resources to the Disability Council to enable it carry out its mandate for ensuring that rights of persons with disabilities are mainstreamed across all policies and programmes.

Canada (2025)

66. The Committee welcomes the appointment of the Canadian Human Rights Commission (CHRC) as the independent body responsible for monitoring the Government's implementation of the Convention pursuant to article 33 (2) and (3) and commends the CHRC for its important contributions in this capacity. It also notes the designation of the Office for Disability Issues as the federal focal point on disability, as provided for by article 33 (1). It is nevertheless concerned about:

(a) The lack of a permanent and specialized intergovernmental mechanism to coordinate the effective implementation of the Convention in the State party across jurisdictions, and the lack of clarity of how existing mechanisms, such as the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Forum of Deputy Ministers Responsible for Social Services and the National Mechanism for Implementation, Reporting, and Follow-up on human rights, mainstream disability;

(b) The designated funding of the CHRC to carry out its mandate as an independent mechanism to promote, protect and monitor the implementation of the Convention came to an end in March 2024, confining CHRC's monitoring activities to a few selected rights under the Convention, and information provided by the State Party during the constructive dialogue that further funding is contingent upon a request by the CHRC;

(c) The lack of information on the performance of the federal focal point on disability.

67. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

(a) Establish an intergovernmental mechanism to coordinate the effective implementation of the Convention on the Federal level and in the provinces and territories, publicly report on progress, and ensure that existing mechanisms of intergovernmental cooperation mainstream disability;

(b) Provide continuing funding of the CHRC, sufficient for the promotion, protection, and monitoring of the implementation of all rights under the Convention, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations;

(c) Ensure effective functioning of the federal focal point in all areas of government.

Dominican Republic (2025)

61. The Committee notes with concern that the State party does not have a designated independent monitoring mechanism for the implementation of the Convention and that currently those functions are partially carried out by the Defensor del Pueblo, which does not have the independence and authority required by the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) and has therefore not been accredited by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions.

62. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State party, with the active involvement of and in close consultation with persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Establish an independent monitoring framework, in accordance with article 33 (2) of the Convention and ensure that it can undertake transparent and independent monitoring;

(b) Strengthen the Defensor del Pueblo to efficiently and independently discharge its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles, encourage it to apply for accreditation with the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions and seek the technical advice of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on the process of establishing and accrediting of its national human rights institution.

European Union (2025)

76. The Committee notes with concern that some European Union institutions, including the Council of the European Union, have yet to appoint disability focal points and coordination mechanisms to implement the Convention.

77. The Committee recalls its previous concluding observations and recommendations (para. 77) and recommends that the European Union appoint disability focal points throughout all its institutions, bodies and agencies, including in the Council of the European Union, improve coordination within the Council in its efforts to implement the Convention, establish an inter-institutional mechanism for coordination, and ensure public availability of information about disability focal points.

78. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That the Independent Monitoring Framework is not compliant with the Paris Principles, lacking, among others, a specific legal basis, a specific and broad mandate, and earmarked funding, and that organizations of persons with disabilities lack timely access to information to effectively participate in the work of the monitoring mechanism;

(b) The lack of mechanisms to enforce the European Ombudsman's recommendations on the rights of persons with disabilities.

79. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

(a) Enact a legislative basis for an independent monitoring mechanism, compliant with the Paris Principles, limit the European Parliament to an advisory role, provide the mechanism with a comprehensive mandate that includes the review of all existing and proposed legislation and policy and that covers all the rights under the Convention, establish procedures for other EU entities to take note of the mechanism's findings, provide earmarked funding, and clarify the legal status of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring mechanism, their access to information and their modes of participation;

(b) Establish a mechanism for the implementation of the European Ombudsman's recommendations.

Palau (2025)

63. The Committee is concerned that there is no national human rights institution in line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) in the State party.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee and establish a national human rights institution with a broad mandate on the protection of human rights and with adequate human, technical and financial resources, in full compliance with the Paris Principles.

65. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not designated an independent monitoring mechanism for the follow-up and evaluation of the implementation of the Convention with a budget and designated functions that involves the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

66. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State party establish an independent monitoring mechanism with a budget and designated functions for monitoring of the implementation of the Convention that involves the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

67. The Committee notes with concern that in the State party, there is no mechanism to ensure full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process of the implementation of the Convention.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party take legal measures to establish mechanism to ensure full participation of persons with diverse disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process of the implementation of the Convention.

Tuvalu (2025)

63. The Committee notes with concern that despite the National Human Rights Institution Act 2017, there is no national human rights institution in the State party accredited with the Global Alliance of National Human Rights institutions (GANHRI), and the Office of the Chief Ombudsman is lacking human and financial resources to effectively monitor human rights in Tuvalu.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen the Office of the Chief Ombudsman to act as a national human rights institution in compliance with the Paris Principles and seek accreditation by GANHRI.

65. The Committee is concerned that despite the establishment of the Tuvalu National Disability Coordinating Committee (TNDCC) as the coordinating body for the implementation of the Convention across all ministries, the TNDCC lacks adequate resources to implement its mandate.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party provide sufficient human, financial and technical resources to the Tuvalu National Disability Coordination Committee to enable it carry out its mandate for ensuring that rights of persons with disabilities are mainstreamed across all policies and programmes.

Viet Nam (2025)

65. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There is insufficient clarity regarding the participation and support for the involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the National Committee on Disability, the national body responsible for coordinating, implementing, and monitoring the Convention;

(b) The State party has not designated an independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention, as required by Article 33, paragraph 2.

66. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations are convened and receive the necessary support for their participation in the National Committee on Disability and monitoring the Convention.

(b) Establish an independent monitoring mechanism in accordance with the principles relating to the Status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), ensuring the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations.

Belarus (2024)

65. The Committee is concerned that there is no independent mechanism to monitor implementation of the Convention in the State party.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent mechanism for monitoring the Convention, in accordance with article 33 of the Convention and the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), and that it allocate material and human resources in sufficient quality and quantity for the mechanism to carry out its functions, involving organizations of persons with disabilities in the pursuit of its mandate.

Belgium (2024)

66. The Committee notes with concern that the Inter-Federal Centre for Equal Opportunities (Unia), in its role as an independent body monitoring the implementation of the Convention, does not have the independence and authority required by the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) and has therefore not been accredited with A-status by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI). It further notes with concern that, since the establishment of a new monitoring body in the Flemish region, Unia no longer has a mandate in matters of competence of the Flemish region.

67. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018), the Committee reiterates its previous recommendations (para. 49) that the State Party take the necessary measures to ensure the Unia's compliance with the Paris Principles, and recommends to apply for accreditation with A-Status of all bodies monitoring the implementation of the Convention with the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI); it further recommends to adapt the organizational framework of monitoring bodies of the Convention, if necessary, to be afforded A-Status. In addition, it recommends that the State party establish clear procedures for the involvement and full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in all bodies monitoring the Convention. Also, the Committee recommends that Unia and the Flemish Human Rights Institute (VRMI) build a constructive partnership for the purpose of monitoring the Convention.

Benin (2024)

65. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of formal recognition of the role of the Human Rights Commission of Benin in monitoring the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) That persons with disabilities have not been adequately involved in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Designate the Human Rights Commission of Benin as the national monitoring mechanism for the implementation of the Convention, in line with article 33 (2) and provide it with appropriate funding and resources to perform this function;
- (b) Ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, and their representative organizations in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, including by providing the necessary funding;
- (c) ensure that it can undertake transparent and independent monitoring and receive A status accreditation by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions Subcommittee on Accreditation.

Burkina Faso (2024)

62. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the multisectoral National Council for the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (COMUD/Handicap), which was set up by decree no. 2012-406/PRES/PM/MASSN/MEF/MS of 15 May 2012 to monitor the implementation of the CRPD in Burkina Faso, does not comply with the Principles Relating To The Status Of National Institutions For The Promotion And Protection Of Human Rights (the Paris Principles) in that it falls short of independence, a clear budget and functions;
- (b) The absence of mechanisms for the participation of persons with disabilities and organizations of persons with disabilities in independent monitoring of the rights enshrined in the Convention.

63. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee , the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take steps to align the multisectoral National Council for the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (COMUD/Handicap) with the Principles Relating To The Status Of National Institutions For The Promotion And Protection Of Human Rights (the Paris Principles);
- (b) Strengthen the CNDH to efficiently and independently discharge its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles and encourage the CNDH to request for accreditation with the GANHRI. The State should seek the technical advice of OHCHR in the process of establishment and accreditation of its National Human Rights Institution;
- (c) Establish formal mechanisms for the participation of persons with disabilities and organizations of persons with disabilities, including those that represent women and girls with disabilities, older persons with disabilities, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas, in monitoring the Convention.

Denmark (2024)

87. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited extent to which a coordination mechanism has been implemented in the Faroe Islands and in Greenland;
- (b) The uncertainties about the fulfilment of the Paris Principles and the involvement and full participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations of the new monitoring mechanism on the Faroe Islands starting operation on January 1, 2025;
- (c) The lack of a monitoring mechanism fulfilling the requirements of the Paris Principles in which persons with disabilities through their representative organizations can fully participate in Greenland.

88. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee , the Committee recommends that:

- (a) The Faroe Islands and Greenland establish focal points that effectively coordinate the implementation of the Convention within their respective governments;
- (b) The Faroe Islands apply with the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI) to accredit their newly created monitoring mechanism with A-status;
- (c) Greenland establish a mechanism monitoring the implementation of the Convention that fulfils the Paris Principles Relating to the National Human Rights Institutions and apply with the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI) to accredit their newly created monitoring mechanism with A-status.

Ghana (2024)

64. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The National Council for Persons with Disability which is the designated focal point for the implementation of the Convention is under-resourced and not decentralized making it difficult for it to carry out this mandate;

(b) The Commission on Human Rights and Administrative Justice (CHRAJ) which has been monitoring the state of human rights across the country to ensure the State compliance with its treaty obligations is under resourced.

65. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

(a) Provide adequate resources and strengthen the capacity of the National Council on Persons with Disabilities as the focal point to implement the Convention;

(b) Designate an independent monitoring framework that meets the requirements of the Paris Principles and provide it with the necessary budgetary and human, technical and budgetary resources to carry out its work of promoting and monitoring the implementation of the Convention and ensure the active participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations.

Mauritius (2024)

59. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There is delay in the establishment of the National Empowerment Authority as the designated focal point and coordinating body for the implementation of the Convention in the State party, meant to replace the National Council for the Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons, the Training and Employment of Disabled Persons Board and the Loïs Lagesse Trust Fund;

(b) The Independent Monitoring Mechanism envisioned under the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2024 lacks the independence to monitor the implementation of the Convention, as it is chaired by the Ministry of Social Integration, Social Security and National Solidarity and includes as members the National Empowerment Authority and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Regional Integration and International Trade;

(c) The lack of a clear strategy and sustainable funding for the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in all aspects of the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

60. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Expedite the establishment of the National Empowerment Authority; ensure its effective coordination and operation, managed by a sufficient number of staff equipped with relevant expertise; enable organizations of persons with disabilities to directly nominate representatives, including women with disabilities, to serve on the Board of the Authority; and ensure that these representatives have an equal voice as any other member of the Board;

(b) Reconsider the composition of its Independent Monitoring Mechanism in conformity with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles), and ensure that it is properly resourced and designated to undertake transparent and independent monitoring;

(c) Ensure sustainable and adequate funding for the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

Netherlands (2024)

71. The Committee acknowledges that the State party has an 'A' status accredited National human rights institute that is compliant with the Paris Principles. However, the Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of a systematic method of coordination amongst the various focal points that the State party has established to implement the Convention;

(b) The lack of mechanisms to ensure the involvement of representative organisations of people with disabilities from the Caribbean Netherlands in monitoring the Convention.

72. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State party, with the active involvement and close consultation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including women and children with disabilities:

- (a) Establish a systematic method of coordination among the various focal points designed to implement the Convention;
- (b) Develop mechanisms to ensure full and effective involvement and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the Caribbean Netherlands in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Ukraine (2024)

66. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of effective coordination of all relevant Ministries to ensure the implementation of the Convention, its monitoring and evaluation, as well as the lack of active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations for the same end;
- (b) The absence of an independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention and the lack of indicators aligned with the Convention.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Improve coordination for the implementation of the Convention across sectors and levels of government, and develop indicators aligned with the Convention to properly promote, implement and monitor its implementation with active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) Establish an independent monitoring framework, in accordance with article 33 (2) of the Convention, including the Ukrainian Parliament Commissioner for Human Rights among its mechanisms in its role of National Human Rights Institution compliant with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) and allocate sufficient human, technical and financial resources to perform its functions, including in the conflict affected areas;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations participate in monitoring processes, including on the situation of persons with disabilities in conflict-affected areas.

Azerbaijan (2024)

69. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of sectorial focal points for the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The absence of independent monitoring of the implementation of the Convention compliant with the Paris Principles;
- (c) The absence of mechanisms to ensure involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in monitoring the Convention.

70. Recalling its Guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, included in the annex of its Rules of procedure, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Designate focal points within government, including across all branches and levels of government, with authority to implement the Convention;
- (b) Designate an independent monitoring framework for the Convention, including the participation of the Commissioner for Human Rights (Ombudsman) of the Republic of Azerbaijan, in line with the Paris Principles to ensure it can undertake transparent and independent monitoring and receive A status accreditation by the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA);
- (c) Ensure participation of all persons with disabilities including those in rural areas and the diversity of their representative organizations in monitoring the Convention.

Bahrain (2024)¹

66. The Committee is deeply concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a national coordination mechanism to follow up on the implementation of the Convention and provide technical support to the executive authorities.
- (b) The absence of an independent national mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention at the national level.
- (c) The lack of support provided to the national human rights institution to enable it to monitor the implementation of human rights covenants and conventions, including the Convention, at the national level.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party should:

- (a) Establish a national coordinating mechanism to support the implementation of the Convention at the national level, ensuring the effective involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations.
- (b) Establish an independent national mechanism with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organizations to monitor the implementation of the Convention
- (c) Strengthen the national human rights institution to upgrade its status to (a) and enable it to play its role in accordance with the Paris Principles in monitoring the implementation of the Convention at the national level in close consultation and with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organizations

Costa Rica (2024)

57. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) La falta de medidas para fortalecer a la Defensoría de los Habitantes de la República para cumplir su rol como Mecanismo Nacional de Seguimiento de la Convención, dotándolo de recursos humanos capacitados y de los recursos financieros necesarios;
- b) El debilitamiento del CONAPDIS por insuficiente asignación presupuestaria, y por el proyecto de la ampliación de sus funciones al existir la intención de que el Instituto de Desarrollo Humano e Inclusión Social pase a formar parte de la CONAPDIS;
- c) La falta de información sobre los avances del rediseño del Manual del Macroproceso de Defensa y sobre la existencia de un proceso abreviado y accesible para que las personas con discapacidad puedan presentar sus quejas ante la Defensoría de los Habitantes de la República.

58. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Fortalecer a la Defensoría de los Habitantes de la República para el seguimiento de la Convención, con personal capacitado, recursos financieros e infraestructura accesible y de diseño universal para que pueda ejercer eficazmente su mandato, y garantizar la plena participación de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan en el proceso de supervisión y monitoreo;
- b) La adopción de medidas y mecanismos para fortalecer la arquitectura y gestión institucional del CONAPDIS a través de la implementación y evaluación de instrumentos de planificación como el Plan Estratégico Institucional (PEI 2023-2027), la Política Nacional de Discapacidad (PONADIS 2024-2030) y su plan de acción, instrumentos alineados al marco normativo internacional y nacional en materia de derechos humanos de las personas con discapacidad, la perspectiva de igualdad de género, el análisis interseccional y el enfoque territorial;
- c) Velar por que se difunda ampliamente el avance de la aplicación del Manual del Macroproceso de Defensa implementado por la Defensoría de los Habitantes de la República en la tramitación de denuncias.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

Kazakhstan (2024)

69. The Committee welcomes the establishment of the Coordination Council on the social protection of persons with disabilities at the Ministry of Labour and Social Protection of Population of the Republic of Kazakhstan, which includes representatives from all state bodies and civil society organizations. The Committee is, however, concerned that:

- (a) The lack of inclusive budgeting indicators to determine the significance of disability rights in the national agenda;
- (b) The Commissioner for Human Rights lacks independence to monitor the implementation of the Convention;
- (c) The lack of effective participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring processes of the Convention.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Allocate national and local budgets with indicators to promote the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) Ensure the functional, budgetary and operational independency of the Commissioner for Human Rights, in line with the Paris Principles, strengthen its capacity to undertake transparent and independent monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, and apply for review by the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA) with the aim of being accredited with A status. The Committee also recommends to take into account its Guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, included in the annex of its Rules of procedure.
- (c) Ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in monitoring the Convention, including all types of impairments.

Nicaragua (2024)

14. El Comité toma nota de las campañas de sensibilización y promoción de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad, así como de la capacitación proporcionada a funcionarios públicos. Sin embargo, le preocupa que en la percepción pública de la discapacidad siga prevaleciendo un modelo asistencialista y médico, y que mujeres, niñas y niños con discapacidad sigan enfrentando violencia.

15. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte una estrategia nacional permanente a fin de promover un modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos, con enfoque de género y edad entre los medios de comunicación, los funcionarios públicos, profesionales del sector de la salud y de la justicia, la policía, el público en general y las familias de las personas con discapacidad, con la participación efectiva de las personas con discapacidad en su formulación, aplicación, y evaluación periódica.

Sweden (2024)

71. The Committee notes with appreciation the establishment of the Swedish Institute for Human Rights in January 2022 as a monitoring mechanism and its application for membership in the Global Alliance for National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI). However, the Committee is concerned that the Institute deems the probability to be afforded “A”-status “good, but not certain”, and lists concerns about the financing, appointment, remuneration and dismissal criteria for board members.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the National Human Rights Institute is provided with adequate financial, human and technical resources and a legislative and regulatory framework in full compliance with the Principles Relating to the Status of National Institutions for the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights (the Paris Principles).

73. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient involvement and participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process by the National Human Rights Institute.

74. The Committee recommends that the National Human Rights Institute establish procedures and protocols for the involvement and full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in its monitoring processes.

Zambia (2024)

65. The Committee notes with appreciation that the Human Rights Commission of Zambia (HRCZ) has been reviewed in 2018 and re-accredited with an “A” Status by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI). However, it notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a formal recognition of the national human rights institution to monitor the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The insufficient human, technical and financial resources provided to focal points to enable them to fulfil their responsibilities, as well as lack of coordination between the focal points and the Zambia Agency for Persons with Disabilities;
- (c) That persons with disabilities have not been adequately involved through their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement the recommendations of the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA) for the National Human Rights Commission of Zambia to ensure that it functions effectively and independently and discharges its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles. The Committee further recommends that the State party designate the Human Rights Commission of Zambia as the National monitoring mechanism for the implementation of the Convention. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the full involvement and participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, and their representative organizations in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, including by providing the necessary funding;
- (b) Build the capacity of focal points and equip them with sufficient powers and increased human, technical and financial resources to fulfil their responsibilities under article 33 of the Convention, as well as enhance the coordination between focal points and the Zambia Agency for Persons with Disabilities;
- (c) Take measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, are meaningfully involved in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention through their representative organizations.

Andorra (2023)

67. The Committee notes with concern the following:

- (a) There is no monitoring mechanism that meets the requirements of the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles);
- (b) The State party indicates that the monitoring mechanism to supervise the implementation of the Convention is the Andorran Federation of Associations of Persons with Disabilities (FAAD);
- (c) Persons with disabilities have not been adequately involved through their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

68. The Committee, taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish a national human rights institution that meets the requirements of the Paris Principles, and ensures that it has sufficient human, technical and financial resources to fulfil its mandate, including monitoring the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) Raise awareness about the different roles of the Andorran Federation of Associations of Persons with Disabilities (FAAD) and an independent monitoring mechanism in line with the Convention;

(c) Ensure that persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, and their representative organizations are meaningfully involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Austria (2023)

73. The Committee notes that the Austrian Ombudsman Board (AOB) was reaccredited with A-status by GANHRI, but the Committee would draw attention to the appraisal by the Sub-Committee on Accreditation that the selection and appointment process laid down in Federal Constitutional Law is not sufficiently broad and transparent and that it issued several recommendations.

74. The Committee recommends the State party address the recommendations issued by the Sub-Committee on Accreditation of GANHRI and strengthen the AOB accordingly.

Germany (2023)

73. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The insufficient human, technical and financial resources of focal points to fulfil their responsibilities and the limited involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation of the Convention;

(b) The lack of mechanisms to monitor the implementation of the Convention at the Länder level.

74. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Build the capacity of and equip focal points with sufficient powers and increased human, technical and financial resources to fulfil their responsibilities under article 33 of the Convention, and ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention;

(b) Enact legislation establishing permanent independent monitoring mechanisms at the Länder level, in full compliance with the Paris Principles, and allocate human, technical and secure financial resources to support their mandates.

Israel (2023)

69. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Commission for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities lacks authority to ensure mainstreaming of the human rights of persons with disabilities across all government portfolios;

(b) The Commission for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities lacks independence to monitor the implementation of the Convention and does not meet the Principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles);

(c) The diversity of organisations of persons with disabilities in monitoring the Convention is limited.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the authority and competencies of the Commission for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities to ensure disability is mainstreamed across all government programmes;

(b) Establish an independent monitoring framework under article 33 (2) of the Convention that complies with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), and take into account the Committee's rules of procedure (see CRPD/1/Rev.1, annex) relating to the role and engagement of independent monitoring frameworks;

(c) Ensure full participation of the diversity of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process. The State party should provide inclusive and accessible methodologies, and human, financial and technical resources for periodic monitoring.

Malawi (2023)

67. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited information about the capacity and coordination mechanisms of the disability focal points at the community level and that the National Advisory and Coordinating Committee on Disability through which persons with disabilities are expected to participate in the monitoring and implementation of the Convention is not operational;
- (b) Information indicating challenges for the Malawi Human Rights Commission to operate freely and about the limited funding and the serious understaffing of this entity, which undermine its independent monitoring role of human rights, including in the realm of disability rights;
- (c) The absence of measures to ensure participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in monitoring the rights recognized in the Convention.

68. The Committee, recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure the continuing functioning of the National Advisory and Coordinating Committee on Disability, appoint disability focal points at the community level and ensure appropriate training and coordination mechanisms to strengthen their role in implementing the Convention;
- (b) Strengthen the Malawi Human Rights Commission to perform its independent monitoring role under article 33 (2), including by allocating appropriate funding, ensuring its ability to freely determine its priorities and activities, filling up the over 50 percent vacant positions, and that it operates in accordance with the Principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles);
- (c) Ensure the provision of appropriate resources for persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including support through independent and self-managed funding, to enable them to meaningfully take part in the independent monitoring of the Convention and to work directly with the Human Rights Commission as the designated independent monitoring mechanism.

Mauritania (2023)

57. The Committee notes with concern about the lack of progress made towards the implementation of recommendations of the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA) made in 2020 during the re-accreditation of the National Human Rights Commission of Mauritania (CNDH), to further strengthen its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party implement the recommendations of the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA) to continue strengthening its efforts to address all human rights violations, to ensure that its website is accessible to all, to advocate for an appropriate level of funding, to ensure the appropriate gender balance in its composition and to engage with the civil society, in order to ensure that the National Human Rights Commission of Mauritania (CNDH) functions effectively and independently and discharges its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles.

59. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not designated an independent monitoring mechanism for the follow-up and evaluation of the implementation of the Convention with a budget and designated functions that involves the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party take action, bearing in mind the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), to establish an independent monitoring mechanism with a budget and designated functions for monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

Mongolia (2023)

65. The Committee notes with concern about the lack of progress made towards the implementation of recommendations of the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA) made in 2021 during the re-accreditation of the National Human Rights Commission of Mongolia (NHRCM), to ensure the formalization of a clear, transparent and participatory selection and appointment process.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party implement the recommendations of the GANHRI to continue advocating for the formalization of a clear, transparent and participatory selection and appointment processes and enhance diversity and pluralism, in the composition of its Council, in order to ensure that the National Human Rights Commission of Mongolia (NHRCM) functions effectively and independently and discharges its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles.

67. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not designated an independent monitoring mechanism for the follow-up and evaluation of the implementation of the Convention with a budget and designated functions that involves the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party take action, bearing in mind the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), to establish an independent monitoring mechanism with a budget and designated functions for monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

69. The Committee is concerned that despite the establishment of the National Council for Ensuring the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, with Sub-councils at ministries and Branch-councils in the capital city districts and provinces, there is a lack of focal points in different ministries to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party clearly designate one or more focal points within the Government with the sufficient authority, human resources and budget allocations to carry out their mandate for ensuring that rights of persons with disabilities are mainstreamed across all policies and programme.

Paraguay (2023)

59. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) La falta de formalización y aplicación de un proceso de selección y nombramiento claro, transparente y participativo del Defensor del Pueblo, la carencia de financiación adecuada para llevar a cabo su mandato, así como de un mandato explícito para alentar la ratificación de los instrumentos regionales e internacionales de derechos humanos o la adhesión a ellos y cooperar eficazmente con los sistemas regionales e internacionales de derechos humanos;

b) La falta de un mecanismo de monitoreo independiente que cumpla con los Principios de París, incumpliendo con la Resolución Ministerial N.º1655/15 del Estado parte;

c) La falta de avances en el fortalecimiento de capacidades técnicas de los puntos focales para el seguimiento de la implementación de la Convención.

60. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte tenga en cuenta sus directrices sobre los marcos independientes de supervisión y su participación en la labor del Comité y que:

a) Fortalezca la figura del Defensor del Pueblo para que pueda cumplir su mandato de manera eficaz e independiente de conformidad con los Principios de París y siguiendo las recomendaciones del Sub-Comité de Acreditación de GANHRI, y que solicite el apoyo y el asesoramiento del ACNUDH en el proceso;

b) Establezca un mecanismo de monitoreo independiente, dentro de la Defensoría del Pueblo, en cumplimiento de la Resolución Ministerial N.º 1655/15, con los recursos humanos y financieros necesarios para que pueda ejercer eficazmente su mandato y garantizar la estrecha participación de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan en el proceso de supervisión y monitoreo;

c) Acelere el fortalecimiento de las capacidades técnicas de los puntos focales para el seguimiento de la Convención.

Angola (2023)

57. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) While noting the establishment of the Office of the Ombudsman as an institution, the institution does not meet the requirements of the Principles Relating to the Status of National Human Rights Institutions (Paris Principles);
- (b) Persons with disabilities through their representative organisations have not been adequately involved in the implementation and monitoring of the CRPD.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Consider making necessary adjustments to ensure that the office of the Ombudsman meet the requirements of the Paris Principles, or establishing a separate independent National Human Rights Institution meeting those requirements;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, including women and girls with disabilities are meaningfully involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Argentina (2023)

63. Al Comité le preocupa la falta de un mecanismo de monitoreo independiente que cumpla con los Principios de París, y la falta de designación formal del titular de la Defensoría del Pueblo de la Nación Argentina.

64. Teniendo en cuenta sus directrices sobre los marcos independientes de supervisión y su participación en la labor del Comité, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Establecer un mecanismo independiente de seguimiento en cumplimiento de los Principios de París, con los recursos humanos y financieros necesarios para que pueda ejercer eficazmente su mandato y garantizar la plena participación de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan en el proceso de supervisión;
- b) Acelerar la designación del titular de la Defensoría del Pueblo mediante un proceso de selección y nominación claro, transparente y participativo, considerando las recomendaciones emitidas en 2017 por el comité subsidiario de la Alianza Global de Instituciones Nacionales de Derechos Humanos.

Georgia (2023)

65. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The limited human, technical and financial resources of the Inter-Agency Coordination Committee for the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) That permanent participation of organizations of persons with disabilities at the independent monitoring mechanism has yet to be developed;
- (c) The lack of implementation of the recommendations issued by the Public Defender's of Georgia concerning the rights of persons with disabilities.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the human, technical and financial resources of the Inter-Agency Coordination Committee, build the capacity of focal points to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities across all sectors and levels of government, and strengthen their mandates with respect to the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) Increase resources for the development of the monitoring mandate of the Public Defender of Georgia, to provide for accessible information and methodologies in its work and to ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including during situations of risk and emergencies and in the recovery period;

(c) Take into account the Committee's guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee and strengthen the mandate and the role of the Public Defender's Office by enforcing its recommendations and facilitating unrestricted access to information in its monitoring obligations.

Peru (2023)

66. Al Comité le preocupa que:

a) El CONADIS, en su papel de órgano de coordinación gubernamental y punto focal de la discapacidad, no está operando plenamente, ya que no se ha nombrado un nuevo presidente desde que expiró el nombramiento del último en octubre de 2022, no se ha establecido el Consejo Asesor, ni se han elegido representantes de las organizaciones de la sociedad civil;

b) En algunos gobiernos regionales y locales, la Oficina de Atención a las Personas con Discapacidad (OMAPED/OREDIS) no está operativa a pesar de existir una obligación expresa en la ley, y la mayoría de los gobiernos regionales y locales no utilizan el 0,5% de su presupuesto asignado para su funcionamiento;

c) Pese a la designación de un Mecanismo independiente para promover, proteger y supervisar la aplicación de la Convención, dentro de la Defensoría del Pueblo de Perú, no se han incrementado sus recursos para llevar a cabo sus funciones y actividades en lo que respecta a la promoción, la protección y el seguimiento de los derechos consagrados en la Convención.

67. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte tenga en cuenta sus directrices sobre los marcos independientes de supervisión y su participación en la labor del Comité y que:

a) Fortalezca el CONADIS, mediante un mayor presupuesto para que pueda coordinar y apoyar eficazmente la aplicación de la Convención y que finalice a la brevedad el procedimiento de elección del presidente, la conformación del Consejo Consultivo y la elección de los representantes de las organizaciones de la sociedad civil;

b) Asegure que los gobiernos regionales y locales cumplan con la implementación de las OREDIS y OMAPED en sus respectivas jurisdicciones y las doten de los recursos adecuados para su labor y cree mecanismos, incluyendo el apoyo técnico, para asegurar que los gobiernos regionales y municipales utilicen el presupuesto asignado para su trabajo;

c) Refuerce los recursos humanos, técnicos y financieros asignados a la Defensoría del Pueblo de Perú y su mecanismo de monitoreo independiente para que pueda cumplir su mandato relativo al seguimiento de la aplicación de la Convención de forma eficaz e independiente, en coordinación con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad.

Togo (2023)

63. The Committee notes with appreciation that the Commission Nationale des Droits de l'Homme (CNDH) has been reviewed in 2019 and accredited with an "A" Status by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI). However, the Committee is concerned at the limited effectiveness of the National Commission to monitor the implementation of the Convention, including the lack of participation of representatives of persons with disabilities in the monitoring process coordination of this Commission with representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party implement the recommendations of the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation (SCA) and strengthen the National Human Rights Commission to ensure that it functions effectively and independently and discharges its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the full involvement and participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, and their representative organizations in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, including by providing the necessary funding.

Tunisia (2023)

59. The Committee is concerned that there is still no clearly designated focal point for the implementation of the Convention in the State party. It is also concerned that the National Human Rights Commission which is expected to follow up on the implementation and monitoring of the Convention is not an independent mechanism. It is further concerned that no clear strategies have been put in place for the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, as required by the Convention.

60. The Committee recommends the State party to:

- (a) Clearly designate one or more focal points within the government with sufficient authority, human resource and budget allocation to carry out their mandate for ensuring that disability is mainstreamed across all policies and programmes;
- (b) Establish without further delay the National Human Rights Commission and provide it with a strong mandate to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities and adopt measures to promote, protect and monitor implementation of the Convention, taking into account the principles relating to the status and function of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (Paris Principles), by paying particular attention to its independence, autonomy, appropriate budget and human resource allocations;
- (c) Adopt measures to fully involve civil society, in particular persons with disabilities, and their representative organizations, including those of particular women and girls with disabilities to ensure a gender perspective, in the monitoring and implementation process and the preparation of reports in compliance with the State party's obligations under ratified international human rights treaties.

Bangladesh (2022)

63. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient clarity on the focal points on disabilities and their mandate and the lack of an identifiable substantive independent monitoring framework to promote, protect and monitor implementation of the Convention that meets the standards of the Paris Principles, along with sufficient budgetary and human resources to enable it fulfil its mandate and the limited involvement and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring process of the Convention.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party clarify the focal points within government and define their roles, as well as identify an independent monitoring framework that meets the mandate of the Paris Principles and that is provided with the necessary budgetary and human resources to carry out its work of promoting and monitoring implementation of the convention and ensure the active participation of civil society organisations, particularly representative organisations of persons with disabilities, in the promotion and monitoring of the convention, with sufficient budgetary allocations to carry out their work.

China (2022)

60. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of information provided on the effectiveness of the Disabled Persons' Work Committee of the State Council in mainstreaming the Convention across all sectors and levels of government;
- (b) The absence of an independent mechanism appointed to monitor the implementation of the Convention;
- (c) The absence of effective involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex) and:

- (a) Recalling the commitment made in their Universal Periodic Review (2018), establish an independent mechanism for monitoring human rights in compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles), with an associated time frame and including a specific mechanism for monitoring the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Strengthen the State Council Working Committee on Disability, responsible for coordinating the implementation of the Convention; build the capacity of focal points to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities across all sectors and levels of government; and strengthen their mandates with respect to implementing the Convention;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the whole range of their representative organizations, including those operating independently of the China Disabled Persons' Federation, are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Hong-Kong (2022)

77. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The absence of an independent mechanism appointed to monitor the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The absence of effective involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

78. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong SAR, China take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex) and:

- (a) Establish an independent mechanism for monitoring human rights with a broad mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the whole range of their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Macao

88. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The absence of an independent mechanism appointed to monitor the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The absence of effective involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

89. The Committee recommends that Macao SAR, China take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex) and:

- (a) Establish an independent mechanism for monitoring human rights with a broad mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the whole range of their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Indonesia (2022)

68. The Committee notes that the National Commission for Disability lacks independence as required under Law No. 8 of 2016 as it is situated under the Ministry of Social Affairs, and that the State Party has not established an independent monitoring mechanism for Convention implementation.

69. The Committee recommends that the State party provides the National Commission for Disability with structural and financial independence and designate an independent monitoring mechanism, which includes the National Commission on Human Rights of Indonesia (Komnas HAM) and effective involvement and participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations.

Japan (2022)

69. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There is no national human rights institution in line with the Paris Principles at the State Party;

(b) The Commission on Policy for Persons with Disabilities, established as the monitoring mechanism of the Convention, is in Cabinet Office, has a limited scope and insufficient representation of the diversity of disabilities and gender balance among its membership.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee and establish a national human rights institution with a broad mandate on the protection of human rights and adequate human, technical and financial resources, in full compliance with the Paris Principles, and, within its framework, strengthen the formal capacity of the Commission on Policy for Persons with Disabilities, and guarantee independence, the representation of diversity of disabilities and gender balance among its membership for monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

62. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The absence of an independent framework for protecting, promoting and monitoring the implementation of the Convention, and of a national human rights institution in line with Paris Principles;

(b) The potential overlap between the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities under the Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare, and the National Committee on Human Rights under the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, concerning the implementation and monitoring of the Convention;

(c) The limited participation of all persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex) and:

(a) Establish a national human rights institution with a broad mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles, including its full independence and by providing it with an explicit mandate and sufficient human, technical and financial resources to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) Clarify the distribution of duties on implementation, monitoring, and reporting on the Convention between the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities, and the National Committee on Human Rights;

(c) Strengthen the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those that represent women and children, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas, in the implementation and monitoring processes of the Convention.

New Zealand (2022)

59. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Information that the State Party is not responding to or incorporating the recommendations from reports of the Independent Monitoring Mechanism (IMM);

(b) The lack of resources, including financial support available to support the Disabled People's Organisations Coalition to fulfil its mandate as one partner of the IMM, including to engage broadly with the disability community, to participate in Convention implementation activities and fora with government agencies and other stakeholders and to effectively communicate with persons with disabilities, including translation into Māori as an official language.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee(CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex) and:

(a) Strengthen its accountability processes and its partnership with the IMM to track and publicly report on the outcomes and implementation of recommendations of IMM reports;
(b) Allocate adequate resources, including financial support to the Disabled People's Organisations Coalition to enable it to effectively fulfil its mandate as one partner of the IMM.

Singapore (2022)

61. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not appointed an independent monitoring mechanism and does not have a national human rights institution accredited with the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI). It is equally concerned that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are not sufficiently involved in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a national human rights institution and designate an independent monitoring framework, including one or more independent mechanisms, that fulfils the Paris Principles relating to the Status of National Institutions, adopted by the General Assembly resolution 48/134 of 4 March 1994 (A/RES/48/134) and is accredited with A-status by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI);
(b) Ensure that civil society, in particular persons with disabilities and a broad range of their representative organizations, including organizations of persons with disabilities with sharply critical views of government policies on persons with disabilities, are involved and participate fully in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Hungary (2022)

64. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The narrow scope of actions of the current coordination mechanism for implementation of the Convention, which is mainly limited to social affairs, and the lack of capacity of the Intergovernmental Disability Committee that is designated to coordinate Governmental activities and promote the provisions of the Convention across all sectors of the Government and all areas of life in the State party;
(b) The lack of independence and capacity of the National Disability Council as the designated mechanism for monitoring implementation of the Convention;
(c) The absence of effective involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the governmental mechanism for coordinating implementation of the Convention and build the capacity of focal points to mainstream disability rights across different sectors and levels of the administration, including in the justice system, and all areas of life, and strengthen their mandates and attributions with respect to implementing the Convention;
(b) Revise its mechanism for monitoring implementation of the Convention to guarantee its full independence, in compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), ensure equal participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including advocacy organizations, and provide the mechanism with appropriate budgetary allocations to support their participation;

(c) Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities, including advocacy organizations, are effectively involved in the monitoring process of the implementation of the Convention, with reference to the Committee's general comment No. 7 (2018).

Jamaica (2022)

60. While noting the information provided by the State party delegation that the Jamaica Council for Persons with Disabilities is acting as a focal point for the national implementation of the Convention, the Committee notes with concern that the State party has not yet appointed an independent monitoring mechanism, as it does not have a national human rights institution. It is also concerned that persons with disabilities through their representative organizations are not involved in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a national human rights institution and designate an independent monitoring framework, including one or more independent mechanisms, that, among other responsibilities, can submit alternative reports to the Committee;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the whole range of their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mexico (2022)

68. The Committee is concerned about the undue complexity and the existence of many lacunae in the focal points and coordination mechanisms and their mutual interaction.

69. The Committee recommends that the State party comprehensively review the current system of focal points and coordination mechanisms at all levels of government, and establish a transparent system with sufficient funding, defined competences and mutual interaction.

70. With reference to paragraph 61 of its previous concluding observations, the Committee notes that despite the establishment of an independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention in Mexico, its structure, functions and activities have not been sufficiently defined with regard to the promotion, protection and monitoring of the rights enshrined in the Convention at the federal and state levels. It is further concerned about insufficient participation of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, and their representative organization in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

71. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the National Human Rights Commission and the 32 state human rights entities, as the independent monitoring mechanism for the Convention, define the mechanism's structure, goals, indicators and resources. The Committee further recommends the State party strengthen the National Commission so that it may fulfil its mandate effectively and independently, and that persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, and their representative organizations are involved and participate fully in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

Cooperation and technical assistance

72. Under article 37 of the Convention, the Committee can provide technical guidance to the State party on any queries addressed to the experts through the secretariat. The State party can also seek technical assistance from United Nations specialized agencies with headquarters in the country or the region.

Switzerland (2022)

63. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the current coordination mechanism within the Government lacks the capacity to mainstream the Convention into all sectors and levels of government, particularly at the cantonal level, and that only four cantons have disability focal points;
- (b) The limited scope of the planned national human rights institution;
- (c) The lack of information about formal mechanisms to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in monitoring of implementation of the Convention.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the government mechanism for coordinating and monitoring the implementation of the Convention at the federal and cantonal levels, designate disability focal points in all cantons to implement the Convention, and build the capacity to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities into all sectors and levels of government;
- (b) Ensure that the national human rights institution is independent and has a broad mandate on the protection of human rights and adequate human, technical and financial resources, in conformity with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles);
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are effectively involved and participate fully in monitoring of implementation of the Convention.

Venezuela (2022)

58. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Despite it having been reported in 2017 that, pursuant to the Memorandum of Understanding signed in September 2019 with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, there were plans to create a national mechanism for follow-up to international human rights recommendations, no such mechanism has been established;
- (b) The State party has not established an independent monitoring mechanism for following up on and assessing the application and implementation of the Convention.

59. The Committee recommends that the State party establish an independent mechanism to monitor and assess international human rights recommendations and legally designate government focal points to mainstream disability rights in the implementation of the Convention, providing them with an adequate budget and sufficient resources; and include the Ombudsman's Office in the independent monitoring mechanism, in line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), with the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Djibouti (2021)

59. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of independence of the National Human Rights Commission and its lack of sufficient resources to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention;
- (b) The insufficient human, technical and financial resources allocated to the National Agency for Persons with Disabilities, which prevents it from fulfilling its mandate effectively as a coordination mechanism to facilitate actions across all sectors and levels of government;

(c) The limited participation of all persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

60. Recalling general comment No. 7 and the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt legal measures to ensure that the National Human Rights Commission fully complies with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), including by ensuring its full independence and by providing it with sufficient human, technical and financial resources to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities, and apply to the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions (GANHRI) for accreditation;

(b) Strengthen the capacity of the National Agency for Persons with Disabilities, including by allocating sufficient human, technical and financial resources so that it can fulfil its mandate effectively;

(c) Take the measures necessary to strengthen consultation with and the effective and meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those that represent women and children, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas and in refugee camps, in the implementation and monitoring processes.

France (2021)

66. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of systematic capacity building programmes among public officials concerning the implementation of the Convention, including in the Overseas territorial collectivities;

(b) The lack of information about participation of persons with disabilities in the composition of the independent monitoring mechanisms, and about mechanisms to foster involvement of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in the independent monitoring mechanism responsible for monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the capacity of disability focal points in all areas of the Convention, notably the Secretary General of the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Disabilities and senior official in charge of disability and inclusion within each ministry, and in the Overseas territorial collectivities, aimed at ensuring they rely on the provisions of the Convention for all matters relating to persons with disabilities;

(b) Strengthen the human, technical and financial resources allocated to the Defender of Rights to accomplish its mandate concerning monitoring of the Convention;

(c) Take measures to increase diversity and participation and appoint persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities as members of the independent monitoring mechanisms;

(d) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the diversity of their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Estonia (2021)

64. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That the current coordination mechanism within the government lacks the capacity to mainstream the Convention across all sectors and levels of government, not only the area of social affairs;

(b) The lack of information about the accessibility of the premises and about the work done by the Office of the Chancellor of Justice as the independent mechanism appointed to monitor the implementation of the Convention;

(c) The lack of information about formal mechanisms to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in monitoring the Convention, including by monitoring the situation of persons with disabilities still in institutions and during the COVID-19 pandemic.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the government mechanism for coordinating the implementation of the Convention, build the capacity of focal points to mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities across all sectors and levels of government and strengthen their mandates with respect to implementing the Convention;

(b) Ensure continuity in the allocation of funds for the functioning of the Office of the Chancellor of Justice, which has been appointed the independent mechanism for monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including by earmarking resources for the development of accessible information about its work and methodologies;

(c) Ensure that persons with disabilities and the whole range of their representative organizations are effectively involved in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Albania (2019)

53. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information about efforts to consider identifying a coordination mechanism, as outlined in article 33 (1) of the Convention. The Committee is concerned that the mechanism designated by the State party under article 33 (2) is not in line with the Convention. It is also concerned about the unequal representation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring process.

54. Taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex) and its General Comment no. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure that its national implementation and monitoring framework has a stable institutional basis that allows it to operate properly over time and that it is appropriately funded and resourced. It also recommends that the State party:

(a) Consider the appointment of a coordination mechanism under article 33 (1) of the Convention;

(b) Ensure that when designating or establishing an independent monitoring framework and mechanisms, it into account the Principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), that it provide adequate funding for its functioning;

(c) Ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process.

Australia (2019)

61. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of sufficient resources allocated to effectively implement the National Disability Strategy;

(b) The existing legal framework limiting the scope and power of the Australian Human Rights Commission to perform the task of effectively and independently monitoring the implementation of the Convention;

(c) The lack of an effective monitoring mechanism under the National Disability Strategy, which is an overarching policy framework;

(d) The lack of a formal mechanism and sustainable funding for the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in all aspects of the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

62. The Committee reiterates its previous recommendation on national implementation and monitoring (CRPD/C/AUS/CO/1, para. 58) and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that sufficient resources are available for the effective implementation of the National Disability Strategy;
- (b) Revise existing laws or enact new laws, including a national comprehensive human rights law, to expand and strengthen the scope and power of the Australian Human Rights Commission to perform the task of independently monitoring the implementation of the Convention, in line with article 33 (2) of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 7;
- (c) Establish a formal monitoring mechanism under the National Disability Strategy that includes the Office of Disability Strategy, as recommended by the Senate Standing Committee on Community Affairs in 2017, ensuring effective coordination between the federal and state levels;
- (d) Establish a formal mechanism and ensure sustainable and adequate funding for the meaningful engagement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

Ecuador (2019)

59. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not designated an independent monitoring mechanism for the follow-up and evaluation of the implementation of the Convention with a budget and designated functions that involves the effective and independent participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party take urgent action, bearing in mind the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), to establish an independent mechanism with a budget and designated functions for monitoring the implementation of the Convention. The Committee recommends that the Ombudsman's Office be involved in the independent monitoring mechanism, in line with the Paris Principles, and that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations participate in it effectively and independently.

El Salvador (2019)

62. The Committee is concerned that the Office for the Defence of Human Rights, designated as the entity to evaluate the implementation of the Convention, lacks the independence, in practice, and the resources and mechanisms, for the systematic involvement of persons with disabilities and their organizations that would allow it to adequately carry out its functions.

63. Taking into account the Committee's 2016 guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party allocate specific resources, including budget and personnel, for the Office to carry out monitoring of the implementation of the Convention and ensure the involvement both of persons with disabilities and of their organizations so as to guarantee compliance with article 33 of the Convention.

Greece (2019)

48. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information on the effective operation of the national implementation and monitoring framework established under article 33 of the Convention;
- (b) The insufficient level of involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process;
- (c) The absence of transparent and adequate financial support for organizations of persons with disabilities, including the lack of support for their participation ahead of the State party's review, such as submitting alternative reports.

49. In line with the Convention and the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen its national monitoring and implementation framework, ensure its effective operation and interoperability between the competent structures involved, on the basis of transparent procedures and with the full participation of organizations of persons with disabilities. It encourages the State party to appoint the Greek National Commission for Human Rights as part of the independent monitoring framework under article 33 of the Convention. In light of its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the provision of appropriate resources for organizations of persons with disabilities, including support through independent and self-managed funding, to take part in the independent monitoring frameworks tasked with monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

India (2019)

68. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of executive power of the Central Advisory Board on Disability and the equivalent state bodies for coordination across different departments and sectors to ensure the effective implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The absence of an independent framework for protecting, promoting and monitoring the implementation of the Convention, despite the appointment of the Chief Commissioner for Persons with Disabilities and the state commissioners for persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of information about mechanisms for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the independent monitoring of the Convention.

69. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take measures to strengthen the Central Advisory Board and the equivalent state bodies beyond an advisory role and ensure the coordination of focal points on disability, at all levels in the State party and in all sectors, for the effective implementation of the Convention;
- (b) Ensure that the national and state human rights commissions are part of the independent monitoring framework under article 33 (2) of the Convention, providing technical, human and financial support to accomplish their mandates. The State party should take account of the Committee's guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex) when designing the independent monitoring framework;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, effectively participate in monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

Iraq (2019)

63. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There is insufficient information about the representation of persons with disabilities in the Commission on the Care of Persons with Disabilities and Special Needs, which was set up under article 4 of Law No. 38 (2013) and is intended to fulfil the functions of an independent national coordination mechanism in line with article 33 (1) of the Convention;
- (b) The High Commission for Human Rights does not fully comply with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles);
- (c) That there is a lack of information on specific mechanisms for the participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

64. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure the representation of persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, in the Commission on the Care of Persons with Disabilities and Special Needs and its board of directors;
- (b) Take all measures necessary to ensure that the High Commission for Human Rights can effectively and independently discharge its mandate as an independent mechanism tasked with monitoring the implementation of the Convention, in line with its article 33 (2) and in accordance with the Paris Principles and taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex);
- (c) Facilitate the effective and meaningful participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the entire process of monitoring the implementation of the Convention, in accordance with the provisions of article 33 (2) of the Convention, including by providing adequate funding.

Kuwait (2019)

64. The Committee is concerned about the absence of an independent mechanism for monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent monitoring mechanism that is in full compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles), that is independent from the executive branch, in particular the Council of Ministers, and that has sufficient and appropriate resources for its operation. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that monitoring activities are carried out in close consultation with and with the active participation of organizations of persons with disabilities.

Myanmar (2019)

63. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited independence of the Myanmar National Human Rights Commission and its lack of an explicit mandate and sufficient resources to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention;
- (b) The insufficient human, technical and financial resources allocated to the National Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, which prevents it from fulfilling its mandate effectively;
- (c) The limited participation of all persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

64. Recalling general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex) , the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the Myanmar National Human Rights Commission fully complies with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) , including by ensuring its full independence and by providing it with an explicit mandate and sufficient human, technical and financial resources to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Strengthen the capacity of the National Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, including by allocating sufficient human, technical and financial resources so that it can fulfil its mandate effectively;
- (c) Take the measures necessary to strengthen consultation with and the effective and meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those that represent women and children, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas, in the implementation and monitoring processes.

Cuba (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned about the lack of an independent mechanism to monitor implementation of the Convention in the State party in compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles).

56. The Committee recommends that the State party establish an independent mechanism for monitoring the Convention, in accordance with article 33 of the Convention and the Paris Principles, and that it allocate the human, technical and financial resources in sufficient quality and quantity for the mechanism to carry out its functions, involving organizations of persons with disabilities in the pursuit of its mandate.

Niger (2019)

55. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited effectiveness of the Monitoring Committee to monitor the implementation of the Convention and the lack of focal points with sufficient mandate and financial resources to implement the Convention;
- (b) The lack of an independent mechanism that takes into account the Paris Principles to monitor the implementation of the Convention with sufficient budgetary allocation;
- (c) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the monitoring process of the Convention.

56. The Committee recommends that the State Party designate focal points, establish an independent mechanism taking into account the Paris Principles with sufficient budgetary allocation to monitor the implementation of the Convention; and ensure participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations in the monitoring process.

Rwanda (2019)

61. The Committee notes with concern that the National Commission for Human Rights does not have sufficient human, technical and financial resources, which prevents it from effectively performing its mandate. The Committee is also concerned about the limited participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the national implementation and monitoring process as a whole.

62. Taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party allocate human, technical and financial resources in sufficient quality and quantity to the National Commission for Human Rights to enable it to effectively perform its mandate. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities, especially women with disabilities, and their representative organizations, in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, including by providing the necessary funding.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

57. The Committee is concerned that the State party's National Human Rights Commission does not function in line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights.

58. Taking into account the Committee's guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party review the Charter regulating the functioning of the National Human Rights Commission to bring it in line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

Senegal (2019)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited effectiveness of the focal points within government relating to the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) The lack of clarity on the designation of the entities that compose the independent mechanism for the monitoring and implementation of the Convention in line with Article 33 (2) of the Convention;
- (c) The lack of measures for the meaningful consultation and effective participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in adopting policies and other matters affecting them.

58. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Strengthen and build the capacity of focal points within government to implement the Convention;
- (b) Take into account the guidelines of the Committee on independent monitoring frameworks and guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex) and the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), and designate an adequate framework to monitor and implement the Convention;
- (c) Adopt necessary measures and strengthen meaningful and effective consultation and participation of persons with disabilities and through organisations of persons with disabilities, including those that represent women and children and older persons with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas, when adopting policies, and on other matters that concern them.

Spain (2019)

62. The Committee is concerned about the lack of support, including financial support, for ensuring the independent monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

63. Taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen the capacity of the Committee of Representatives of Persons with Disabilities (CERMI) and its role of independent monitoring mechanism for the implementation of the Convention, and provide CERMI with adequate resources and funding for its functioning.

Türkiye (2019)

64. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The absence of information on guidelines for disability inclusion throughout the State party's technical cooperation and assistance programmes;
- (b) The lack of information about access by civil society organizations, including organizations of persons with disabilities, to international funding for implementing the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of information about measures to adhere to the Convention in efforts to implement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt policy frameworks and guidelines on international cooperation, recognizing disability as an integral part in international development policies, and allocate adequate resources;
- (b) Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities can receive or seek funding and other resources from national and international sources;

(c) Actively involve and closely consult with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, on public budgeting processes, the monitoring of the Sustainable Development Goals at the national level, international decision-making and international cooperation.

Vanuatu (2019)

56. The Committee is concerned that no independent monitoring mechanism has yet been established, as required under article 33 (2) of the Convention and that persons with disabilities through their organisations are not fully and meaningfully involved in the monitoring process. It is also concerned that provincial disability committees that monitor implementation of national strategies and framework of the Convention as focal points at the provincial level, have not been established in Penama, Sanma, Torba.

57. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Designate or establish an independent monitoring mechanism in conformity with the Paris Principles and the Committee's guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (see CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex);
- (b) Ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the process of monitoring the implementation of the Convention;
- (c) Establish provincial disability committees in all provinces, without delay, to strengthen implementation and monitoring of national strategies and action plans of the Convention.

Algeria (2018)

56. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Contrary to Prime Ministerial Instruction No. 368 of 21 December 2013, on the mainstreaming of disability in sectoral programmes, focal points for disability issues have not been appointed in all ministries;
- (b) The centrally appointed focal point, the Ministry of National Solidarity, the Family and the Status of Women, lacks the capacity to effectively carry out its role;
- (c) The National Council for Human Rights does not fully comply with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles);
- (d) Pending the revision of the National Council for Persons with Disabilities, there are no specific mechanisms for the participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring of the Convention.

57. The Committee, recalling the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, Annex), recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite the implementation of Prime Ministerial Instruction No. 368, of 21 December 2013, and designate focal points in all ministries to mainstream disability issues across all policies and programmes;
- (b) Take all necessary measures to ensure that the National Council for Human Rights can effectively and independently discharge its mandate in full compliance with the Paris Principles;
- (c) Facilitate the effective and meaningful participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the entire process of monitoring the implementation of the Convention, including in a revised National Council for Persons with Disabilities, consistent with the Convention;
- (d) Ensure that the monitoring frameworks are independent from advisory bodies or the focal points appointed under article 33 (1) of the Convention.

Bulgaria

71. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not yet designated an independent monitoring mechanism in line with provisions of article 33 (2) and 33 (3) of the Convention.

72. Taking into account the Guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and the participation in the work of the Committee (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party designates an independent monitoring mechanism that fully complies with the Paris Principles, such as Office of Ombudsman and the Commission for the Protection against Discrimination. It furthermore calls upon the State party to ensure participation of persons with disabilities in such independent monitoring mechanism, in line with provisions of article 33 (2) of the Convention, including by providing adequate funding for their full and effective participation in the monitoring process.

Malta (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned about the lack of independence and transparency of the Commission for the Rights of Persons with Disability designated under article 33.2 of the Convention, in as much as the appointment of its members under the Equal Opportunities (Persons with Disability) Act (Cap. 413) is undertaken by the executive branch.

50. Taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party repeal and/or amend articles 21A(1) and 24(1) of the Equal Opportunities (Persons with Disability) Act (Cap. 413) to ensure sufficient representation and engagement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, accountability and transparency. It further calls on the State party to review the draft of the Human Rights And Equality Commission Bill to ensure that the planned Maltese National Human Rights Institute adheres to the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

Philippines (2018)

60. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information about a coordination mechanism, and the designation of focal points across all branches of government on disability matters, which collaborate with the National Council for Disability Affairs on implementing the Convention;
- (b) The lack of specific mechanisms within the Commission on Human Rights of the Philippines to engage and ensure participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations in monitoring the Convention at the national and local levels.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the competencies and resources of the National Council for Disability Affairs concerning the implementation of the Convention, and ensure that all branches and levels of government designate disability focal points with budget allocations to carry out programmes under the Convention;
- (b) Ensure that public authorities implementing the Convention ensure the respect of the human rights model of disability, avoid labelling of children with disabilities and ensure the protection of their rights under the Convention;
- (c) Ensure the appointment of an independent monitoring framework in line with the Paris Principles and sufficient funding to the Commission on Human Rights for the Philippines to undertake its mandate to monitor the Convention, and to enable organizations of persons with disabilities to participate throughout the monitoring and implementation of the Convention, in line with article 33 (3) of the Convention, and taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (see CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex).

Poland (2018)

52. The Committee is concerned about the lack of:

- (a) Capacity of the focal points that focuses predominantly on the social protection issues currently designated for matters relating to the implementation of the Convention and its coordination within Government;
- (b) Legal basis and decrease in funding for the Human Rights Defender, designated as independent authority to promote, protect and monitor the implementation of the provisions of the Convention;
- (c) Meaningful involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring on the implementation of the Convention.

53. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Designate a cross-sectorial authority to coordinate and lead the mainstreaming and implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities across all sectors at all levels in all areas of life;
- (b) Strengthen the capacity of the Commissioner for Human Rights as independent authority to promote, protect and monitor the implementation of the Convention, in providing it with adequate legal bases and allocating it sufficient resources and funding to be able to effectively and independently discharge its mandate;
- (c) Ensure the comprehensive and effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring tasks under the Convention and provide them with the funding necessary for this purpose.

South Africa (2018)

54. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information about the specific focal points and mechanisms at the regional and local levels to implement the Convention;
- (b) The absence of an independent monitoring entity to exercise the powers of an independent mechanism for the protection, promotion and monitoring of the Convention in accordance with the provisions of article 33, paragraph 2, of the Convention and in line with the Paris Principles;
- (c) The lack of processes for the meaningful consultation of organisations of persons with disabilities in adopting policies and other matters affecting them, and that their views are often not adequately reflected in the decisions adopted;
- (d) The lack of provision of the necessary resources by the Department of Social Development to promote the effective participation of organisations of persons with disabilities and the cumbersome and expensive accreditation procedures, especially in rural and remote areas.

55. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Establish a mechanism and a system of focal points, including adopting measures to strengthen the efficiency of the focal points at the national, regional and local levels to implement the Convention;
- (b) Expedite the designation of the South African Human Rights Commission as the Independent Monitoring Mechanism and allocate sufficient financial resources to enable it fully execute its mandate;
- (c) Establish and strengthen mechanisms for meaningful and effective consultation and participation of organisations of persons with disabilities, including those that represent women and children and older persons with disabilities, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities in rural areas, when adopting policies, and on other matters that concern them, and ensure that accreditation procedures are accessible and simplified at all levels of the National Disability Rights Machinery.

North Macedonia (2018)

60. The Committee is concerned about the lack of resources available for the effective and comprehensive monitoring conducted by the independent monitoring framework established in accordance with article 33 (2) of the Convention, which limits the support provided to organizations of persons with disabilities to participate in the monitoring process.

61. The Committee recommends that the State party provide sufficient funding for monitoring frameworks and organizations of persons with disabilities to enable them to monitor the implementation of the Convention across the State party, taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex).

Haiti (2018)

60. The Committee is concerned by the insufficient clarity and scope of the mandates of the Office of the Protection of Citizens. It regrets that no independent monitoring mechanism as required under article 33 (2) has been designated yet. It is further concerned about the absence of mechanisms to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations in monitoring processes.

61. Recalling its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take the measures necessary to designate focal points in all areas of Government to integrate disability in all programmes and policies;
- (b) Expedite the designation of an independent mechanism for monitoring the implementation of the Convention, and ensure its independence;
- (c) Ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and organizations of civil society in the process of monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Nepal (2018)

49. The Committee is concerned about the lack of resources and the lack of effective and comprehensive inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities in order to facilitate their participation in the monitoring processes regarding the implementation of the Convention in accordance with article 33 (3).

50. The Committee recommends that the State party provide adequate funding for both established monitoring frameworks and organizations of persons with disabilities to enable them to monitor the implementation of the Convention across the State party, in accordance with article 33 (3) and taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex).

Oman (2018)

59. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a comprehensive national action plan on disability and the lack of information regarding measures taken by the National Monitoring Committee to Promote Implementation of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities with respect to implementation of the Convention by the relevant government departments. The Committee is also concerned that the National Human Rights Commission, which is responsible for monitoring the protection of human rights in the State party, is accredited with B status, essentially due to its limited independence and lack of a clear mandate, as well as the low number of complaints received by the Commission.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish and implement as a matter of priority a comprehensive policy on persons with disabilities that encompasses all areas covered by the Convention and develop a strategy with the elements for its application, which is supported by sufficient human, technical and financial resources;
- (b) Ensure that the National Monitoring Committee is provided with a clear mandate and sufficient authority to coordinate all activities related to the implementation of the Convention at cross-sectoral, national, regional and local levels, and is provided with the necessary human, technical and financial resources for its effective operation;

(c) Take immediate steps to bring the National Human Rights Commission into full compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), allocate sufficient resources for its operation and ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, as well as raise awareness about the Commission, including its complaint mechanism, in the society at large, in particular among persons with disabilities.

Russian Federation (2018)

66. The Committee is concerned about the lack of an explicitly identified coordination mechanism as outlined in article 33 (1). It also notes with concern insufficient involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in monitoring the implementation of the Convention. It further notes insufficient and ineffective monitoring at the level of regions of the State party.

67. Taking into account the Guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and the participation in the work of the Committee (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Appoint focal point(s) to improve harmonized implementation of the Convention in the State party with special regard to competencies at the regional level;

(b) Ensure the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities, through the representative organizations in the monitoring process, including by providing the necessary funding.

Seychelles (2018)

57. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The State party has not yet designated the focal point and/or a coordinating mechanism for the implementation of the Convention and that the role of the National Council for Disabled Persons is mostly relegated to advocacy;

(b) The National Human Rights Commission set up in 2012 and the Office of the Ombudsman do not comply with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles);

(c) The independent monitoring mechanism has not been designated or established;

(d) Persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are not fully involved in processes relating to monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Designate one or more focal points for the implementation of legislation and policies which are in conformity with the provisions of the Convention;

(b) Adopt measures, including providing sufficient resources, to ensure that the mandate of the National Human Rights Commission is separate from, but complements, that of the Office of the Ombudsman and that the national human rights institution complies with the Paris Principles;

(c) Designate an independent monitoring mechanism in conformity with the Paris Principles and the Committee ' s guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (see CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex);

(d) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations participate fully in the framework monitoring the implementation of the Convention, as required by article 33 (3).

Slovenia (2018)

57. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of capacity of the appointed focal point, namely the Ministry of Labour, for the coordination of the implementation of the Convention across different sectors and at different levels;
- (b) The lack of independence, capacity and resources of the Council of Slovenia for Persons with Disabilities designated as the independent monitoring framework of the implementation of the Convention;
- (c) The lack of meaningful involvement of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Reinforce the role and capacity of the appointed focal points for the coordination of the implementation of the Convention across different sectors and at different levels;
- (b) Set up an independent monitoring mechanism that adheres to the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) and provide it with adequate funding, bearing in mind the Guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, see Annex);
- (c) Ensure the full involvement of the organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring tasks under the Convention and provide it with the funding necessary for this purpose.

Sudan (2018)

67. The Committee is concerned about the lack of resources available for the effective comprehensive monitoring conducted by the independent monitoring framework established in accordance with article 33 (2) of the Convention, which limits the support provided to organizations of persons with disabilities to participate in the monitoring process.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party provide sufficient funding for monitoring frameworks and organizations of persons with disabilities to enable them to monitor the implementation of the Convention across the State party, taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex).

Latvia (2017)

54. The Committee notes with concern the limited capacity of the mechanisms to coordinate and monitor the implementation of the Convention, namely the Ministry of Welfare and Office of the Ombudsman, respectively, including the lack of systemized participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in these mechanisms.

55. The Committee recommends that the State party considerably strengthen the role and capacities of both the Ministry of Welfare and the Office of the Ombudsman as the focal points designated, respectively, as coordinating and monitoring mechanisms for the implementation of the Convention, while ensuring the provision of adequate funding and the full participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the coordination and monitoring processes.

Luxembourg (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned by the insufficient clarity and scope of the mandates, resources and authority of the entities designated under article 33 (2), and that discrimination occurring in the private sector is not covered. It is further concerned about the absence of mechanisms to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in monitoring processes.

59. Taking into account its draft guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, the Committee recommends that the State party take the measures necessary to ensure that the independent monitoring mechanism complies fully with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), i.e., that it includes no government representatives, that it has an adequate budget for its functioning and that it operates in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the independent monitoring mechanism has the mandate to cover cases of discrimination in the public and private sectors to extend its protection.

Montenegro (2017)

60. The Committee is concerned about the lack of an explicitly identified coordination mechanism, as outlined in article 33 (1) of the Convention. It notes with concern that the Ombudsman is not carrying out the duties of an independent mechanism, as outlined in article 33 (2).

61. Taking into account the Committee's 2016 guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, it recommends that the State party:

- (a) Appoint a governmental body to be the focal point for the implementation of the Convention, and consider the appointment of a coordination mechanism under article 33 (1) of the Convention;
- (b) Establish a national independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention and ensure its compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles);
- (c) Ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process, including by providing the necessary funding.

Morocco (2017)

62. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information about the specific role of the interministerial commission responsible for implementing the Convention, including with respect to the relevant specific mechanisms and focal points at the regional and local levels;
- (b) The delay in the parliament regarding the process to adopt the draft bill on the National Human Rights Council, which recognizes the competence of the Council to exercise the powers of an independent mechanism for the protection, promotion and monitoring of the Convention.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Specify the roles of the interministerial commission responsible for supporting the implementation of the Convention and those of the relevant focal points and, in particular, adopt measures to strengthen the efficiency of the commission and the focal points;
- (b) Establish a mechanism and a system of focal points at the regional and local levels to implement the Convention;
- (c) Expedite in the parliament the adoption of the draft bill on the National Human Rights Council, which recognizes the competence of the Council to exercise the powers of an independent mechanism for the protection, promotion and monitoring of the Convention, in accordance with the provisions in article 33 of the Convention, and allocate to the Council sufficient budgetary allocation and human resources;
- (d) Ensure permanent participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the monitoring process of the Convention, including by providing necessary funding.

Panama (2017)

64. The Committee is concerned that there is no independent mechanism to monitor implementation of the Convention in the State party.

65. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent mechanism for monitoring the Convention, in accordance with article 33 of the Convention and the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), and that it allocate material and human resources in sufficient quality and quantity for the mechanism to carry out its functions, involving organizations of persons with disabilities in the pursuit of its mandate.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

68. The Committee notes with concern the lack of comprehensive mechanisms and sufficient resources, which limit the Office for Disability Issues in its mandate to coordinate the implementation of the Convention across the State party, as provided in article 33 (1) of the Convention.

69. The Committee recommends that the State party set up an appropriate coordinating structure of focal points with sufficient funding to strengthen the implementation of the Convention under all devolved governments and territories under its jurisdiction and/or control.

70. The Committee is concerned about the lack of resources available for the effective and comprehensive monitoring conducted by the independent monitoring framework established in accordance with article 33 (2) of the Convention, which limits the support provided to organizations of persons with disabilities to participate in the monitoring process.

71. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure in all its entities the independence of, and provide sufficient funding for, both established monitoring frameworks and organizations of persons with disabilities to enable them to monitor the implementation of the Convention across the State party, taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (see CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex).

Armenia (2017)

57. The Committee is concerned about the lack of resources allocated to the national monitoring mechanism and the insufficient participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring process.

58. Taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex) and the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), the Committee recommends that the State party provide adequate funding for the functioning of the independent monitoring mechanism and ensure the full participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring process.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned that there is no explicitly identified coordination mechanism as outlined in article 33 (1) of the Convention. In addition, the national human rights institution does not act as an independent mechanism as outlined in article 33 (2).

59. Taking into account the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee, of 2016, the Committee recommends that the State party nominate focal points on the implementation of the Convention at all levels of government and set up an independent monitoring framework tasked with monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Canada (2017)

57. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not designated an independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention as required under article 33

(2). It is further concerned about the absence of mechanisms to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in monitoring processes.

58. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Set up an independent monitoring mechanism that adheres to the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles). It strongly encourages the State party to formally appoint the Canadian Human Rights Commission as the independent monitoring mechanism under article 33 of the Convention, bearing in mind the guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD/C/1/Rev.1, annex);

(b) Provide adequate funding for the functioning of an independent monitoring mechanism and the full involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in its monitoring tasks under the Convention.

Cyprus (2017)

65. The Committee is concerned that the monitoring mechanism is insufficiently resourced to perform its duties.

66. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate urgently additional funding to the mechanism in order to strengthen monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

Honduras (2017)

69. Preocupa al Comité que la Dirección General de Desarrollo para las Personas con Discapacidad no constituye un mecanismo de supervisión independiente, conforme a los principios relativos al estatuto de las instituciones nacionales de promoción y protección de los derechos humanos (Principios de París). Le preocupa además la insuficiencia en los recursos de dicha Comisión y su insuficiente rango jerárquico para llevar a cabo su mandato.

70. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte medidas para asegurar que el mecanismo que designe para promover, proteger y supervisar la aplicación de la Convención se ajuste plenamente a los Principios de París, y que sea un órgano independiente, con el rango jerárquico y los recursos suficientes para desempeñar sus funciones y que garantice la plena participación de las personas con discapacidad y de sus organizaciones representativas en dicho mecanismo.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

62. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effectiveness of existing coordination mechanism among public offices in all sectors, and national, provincial and municipal levels, concerning the implementation of the Convention. It is also concerned about the absence of an independent monitoring mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention and the lack of participation of civil society in the monitoring process.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Appoint a governmental body to be the focal point for the implementation of the Convention, and consider the establishment of a coordination mechanism under article 33 (1); and

(b) Establish a national mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention, with the participation of an institution in compliance with the Paris Principles, in line with article 33 (2) of the Convention, and ensure full participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the monitoring process in line with article 33 (3) of the Convention.

Jordan (2017)

63. The Committee notes with concern the lack of an independent national coordination mechanism in line with article 33 (2) of the Convention.

64. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention, in line with article 33 (2) thereof and in accordance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), allocate sufficient resources for its operation and ensure the participation of persons with disabilities.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

58. The Committee is concerned that the mechanism designated by the State party under article 33 (2) is not in line with the Convention. It also has concerns about the unequal representation in the monitoring process of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring process.

59. Taking into account its guidelines on independent monitoring frameworks and their participation in the work of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent monitoring mechanism in accordance with the Principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), that it provide adequate funding for its functioning and that organizations of persons with disabilities fully participate in the monitoring process.

Bolivia (2016)

73. The Committee is concerned that the budget allocated to the Ombudsman's Office, as the body responsible for the independent monitoring of the implementation of the Convention, is unpredictable and insufficient.

74. The Committee urges the State party to allocate sufficient resources for the Ombudsman's Office to effectively carry out its mandate in terms of monitoring of the Convention, and to ensure that its independence is not undermined in this process.

75. The Committee is concerned at the fact that organizations of persons with disabilities are not taken into account or involved in the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities or in the performance of the functions of the Ombudsman.

76. The Committee recommends that the State party engage organizations of persons with disabilities in the national processes initiated by the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities and in the performance of the independent monitoring functions of the Ombudsman's Office.

Colombia (2016)

72. The Committee is concerned at the State party's failure to comply with its obligation under Statutory Act No. 1618 to designate an independent mechanism for monitoring the implementation of the Convention. It is also concerned that the Ombudsman's Office has assigned the defence of the rights of persons with disabilities to the Office of the Specialized Ombudsman for Health, Social Security and Disability, thereby reinforcing the medical model of disability.

73. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent mechanism for monitoring the Convention, in accordance with article 33 of the Convention and the Paris Principles, and that it acquire the material and human resources sufficient in quality and quantity to carry out its functions and involve organizations of persons with disabilities in fulfilling its mandate. It also encourages the State party to protect and promote the human rights of persons with disabilities.

Ethiopia (2016)

69. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not designated focal points in all branches of Government in order to mainstream disability issues across all policies and programmes. It notes with concern that the Ethiopian Human Rights Commission does not comply with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (the Paris Principles). It is concerned at the absence of specific mechanisms for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring of the Convention.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party designate focal points in all branches of Government to mainstream disability issues across all policies and programmes. It also recommends that the State party take all necessary measures to ensure the full compliance of the Ethiopian Human Rights Commission with the Paris Principles. It further recommends that the State party ensure the full participation of organizations of persons with disabilities and civil society in the entire process of monitoring the implementation of the Convention, in particular through systematic consultation with the Human Rights Commission and the Ethiopian Institution of the Ombudsman.

Guatemala (2016)

76. The Committee notes that the State party is working to strengthen the focal point designated to monitor implementation of the Convention; however, it is concerned that this focal point does not have sufficient material resources and qualified human resources to perform its role. It is also concerned that no independent monitoring mechanism has yet been designated, as required under article 33 (2) of the Convention. Lastly, it is concerned by the inadequate participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the national implementation and monitoring process as a whole.

77. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite the adoption of legal reforms to strengthen the focal point and the institutions responsible for implementation of the Convention and allocate technical, material and financial resources to enable them to perform their role. It also recommends that the State party accelerate the process of designating an independent monitoring mechanism which satisfies the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles) and ensure that the mechanism has sufficient resources. Lastly, it recommends providing the necessary independent financial and material resources to increase the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, in accordance with article 33 (3) of the Convention. It further recommends that the State party ensure that full consultations are held with all organizations of persons with disabilities, regardless of membership of the National Council for Persons with Disabilities.

Italy (2016)

81. The Committee is concerned at the lack of an independent and inclusive monitoring mechanism in line with article 33 (2) of the Convention.

82. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately establish and implement an independent monitoring mechanism that adheres to the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), and that it provide adequate funding for its functioning and the full involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in its work.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

61. The Committee is concerned:

(a) About the absence of high-level mechanisms to coordinate policy on the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) That, in spite of the voluntary commitment made by the State party in the context of the universal periodic review in 2008 (see A/HRC/WG.6/15/ARE/1 and Corr.1, para. 10), the State party has not yet established a national human rights institution.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Consider establishing a high-level focal point authority at the ministerial level to coordinate matters relating to the implementation of the Convention across all sectors and between different levels of government;

(b) Establish without further delay a monitoring mechanism compliant with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles) and ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities participate in its work.

Uruguay (2016)

67. Preocupa al Comité que la Comisión Nacional Honoraria de la Discapacidad desempeña al mismo tiempo la función del mecanismo de supervisión independiente y del mecanismo de implementación de la Convención.

68. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte medidas para designar un mecanismo de supervisión que se ajuste plenamente a los Principios de París.

Chile (2016)

67. El Comité observa que el Estado parte no ha designado al mecanismo independiente de supervisión del cumplimiento de esta Convención, y que no se ha definido el rol de la sociedad civil, particularmente de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, en la aplicación y la supervisión de dicho cumplimiento.

68. El Comité solicita al Estado parte que designe el mecanismo independiente que cumpla con los principios relativos al estatuto de las instituciones nacionales de promoción y protección de los derechos humanos (Principios de París), para la supervisión del cumplimiento de la Convención. Asimismo, le recomienda que involucre de manera importante a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, tanto en la implementación como en el monitoreo del cumplimiento de la Convención.

Lithuania (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Ministry of Social Security and Labour, which is in charge of coordinating implementation of the Convention, lacks the legal mandate, authority and human and financial resources to influence other ministries and State institutions and to coordinate effective implementation the Convention, and that there is no strong focal point within each ministry responsible for implementing the Convention;

(b) The Office of Equal Opportunities Ombudsperson and the Council for the Affairs of the Disabled, which have been appointed to function as the State party's independent monitoring mechanisms, are not in full compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), notably because the Council falls under the mandate of the Ministry of Social Security and Labour;

(c) There is lack of consultation and involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Immediately take the steps necessary to empower and enable the Ministry of Social Security and Labour to coordinate the implementation of the Convention, and establish strong and efficient focal points within each ministry and State institution responsible for implementing the Convention;

- (b) Remove the Council for the Affairs of the Disabled from the independent monitoring framework and, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, expedite the establishment of an independent monitoring mechanism that is in compliance with the Paris Principles and that has the required expertise and access to sufficient resources in accordance with article 33 (2) of the Convention;
- (c) Adopt legislation to guarantee the full participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation, coordination and monitoring of the Convention.

Portugal (2016)

62. The Committee notes that the State party recently established the independent monitoring mechanism to promote, protect and monitor implementation of the Convention; however, it is concerned that the mechanism does not fully comply with the Paris Principles, and by the lack of funding allocated to it.

63. The Committee recommends that the State party adopts measures to ensure that the independent monitoring mechanism is in full compliance with the Paris Principles, in that no government representative should form part of it, ensure it has an adequate budget allocation to perform its duties, and that it work in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Serbia (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned there is no coordination mechanism as outlined in art.33 para. 1. In addition the National Human Rights Institution does not act as an independent mechanism as outlined in art. 33 para. 2. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of information on the composition of the Council for Monitoring the implementation of UN Human Rights Mechanism Recommendations established in 2014 and the Council of the Government, and how and to what extent Civil Society takes part in them.

68. The Committee recommends the State party to ensure that independent organizations of persons with disabilities (DPOs) are systematically involved in the process of monitoring the Convention, and provide them with efficient budgetary support for this purpose.

Slovakia (2016)

87. The Committee notes with concern: (a) the limited capacity of the focal points and coordination mechanism; and (b) the absence of involvement and participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

88. The Committee recommends that the State party build up the capacity of focal points and coordination mechanisms to perform their duties in accordance with article 33 (1) of the Convention and provide support for the mandatory participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

Thailand (2016)

67. The Committee is concerned that the Department for the Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities lacks sufficient capacity and resources to fulfil its mandate. It is also concerned about the criteria for the appointment of "disability experts", as well as the lack of a clear role for representative organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee is further concerned that the status of the National Human Rights Commission of Thailand was downgraded to "B".

68. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the Department for the Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities closely consults with organizations representing persons with disabilities nationwide to standardize the selection of "disability experts", to ensure the quality of the experts and an adequate representation of the interests of persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party develop a national action plan that incorporates a formal system of monitoring to ensure the implementation of the Persons with Disabilities Empowerment Act and other laws and policies relating to persons with disabilities. The State party is further encouraged to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention. It calls on the State party to ensure that the National Human Rights Commission of Thailand fulfils the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

Uganda (2016)

64. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a strategy on the National Council for Disability to coordinate public policies in all areas covered by the Convention and that focal points have not been designated in all branches of government. It is also concerned about the insufficient resources given to the Uganda Human Rights Commission to fulfil its obligations as an independent monitoring body. It is further concerned at the absence of specific mechanisms for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities and civil society in the entire process of monitoring the Convention, as set out in its article 33 (3).

65. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Expedite the process of appointing focal points within ministries and other government bodies, with sufficient funding, to enhance implementation of the provisions of the Convention and ensure accountability of government departments to mainstream rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) Strengthen the capacity of the Uganda Human Rights Commission with sufficient budgetary allocation and human resources to fulfil its mandate effectively and ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process, including by providing the necessary funding.

Brazil (2015)

59. The Committee is concerned that the National Council for the Protection of the Rights of People with Disabilities (CONADE) does not constitute an independent monitoring mechanism in accordance with the Paris Principles.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party establish an independent mechanism in line with the Paris Principles with the necessary resources to promote, protect and monitor implementation of the Convention, ensuring full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations herein.

European Union (2015)

76. The Committee notes with concern that the European Union Framework for implementation and monitoring of the Convention is not fully in line with the Paris principles, nor is adequately resourced. Moreover, the European Commission is designated as both the focal point (art. 33.1) and part of the monitoring framework (art. 33.2).

77. The Committee recommends that the European Union take measures to decouple the European Commission's roles - by its removal from the independent monitoring framework - to ensure full compliance with the Paris principles, and that the latter has adequate resources to perform its functions. It further recommends that the European Union consider the establishment of an inter-institutional coordination mechanism and designation of focal points in each EU institution, agency and body.

Gabon (2015)

71. The Committee is concerned about the specific role and mandate of the National Committee on Insertion of Persons with Disabilities (foreseen in Decree n°52/PR/MSNASBE, 04/02/2002) in relation to article 33(1) and that it has not been created. In addition, the Committee is concerned at the lack of an independent monitoring mechanism, including measures to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations.

72. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately designate bodies under article 33(1) and 33 (2). The latter adhering to the Paris Principles, as well as that it guarantee the meaningful participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in all processes of the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

Kenya (2015)

59. The Committee is concerned about the lack of clarity in the designation of a focal point or focal points for the implementation of the Convention within the government and a coordination mechanism. It is also concerned that the Kenya National Commission on Human Rights does not form part of the national mechanism for monitoring the Convention, and that the current mechanism does not comply with the Paris Principles. It is further concerned at the absence of specific mechanisms for the participation of civil society organizations in the entire process of monitoring the Convention, as set out in article 33, paragraph 3, of the Convention.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure explicit appointment of the governmental body which is the focal point for the implementation of the Convention, and consider the appointment of a coordination mechanism under Article 33 (1) and elaborate concretely on its prerogatives. It also recommends that the State party establish a national mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention, with the participation of the Kenya National Commission on Human Rights as institution in compliance with the Paris Principles, in line with article 33.2 of the Convention, and ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process, including by providing the necessary funding.

Mauritius (2015)

45. The Committee is concerned that while a coordination of the implementation of the Convention is addressed, no adequate monitoring mechanism involving persons with disabilities and their representative organizations has been established so far.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent monitoring mechanism in conformity with the Paris Principles, ensuring that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations fully participate in the designation of the mechanism and monitoring the implementation of the Convention as required by article 33 (3).

Qatar (2015)

59. The Committee is concerned at the absence of high-level mechanisms to coordinate policy on the rights of persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about the independence of the National Human Rights Commission, the insufficiency of resources to carry out its tasks in relation to the Convention, and the low level of engagement with organizations of persons with disabilities.

60. The Committee recommends that the State party consider establishing a high-level framework authority at the ministerial level to coordinate matters relating to the implementation of the Convention across all sectors and between different levels of government. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide the appropriate human and financial resources to the National Human Rights Commission and to ensure its continued adherence to the Paris Principles relating to the Status of National Institutions (see General Assembly resolution 48/134, annex). It also recommends that the State party ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities participate with this authority.

Ukraine (2015)

60. The Committee notes with concern the lack of independent mechanism for monitoring the implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that consultations of the civil society organizations working on the rights of persons with disabilities are not systematic and often formalistic.

61. The Committee recommends the State party to establish an independent body that should be entrusted with the mandate of the independent national monitoring mechanism in line with article 33, paragraph 2, of the Convention and in accordance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), with allocation of adequate financial and human resources. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities and other civil society organizations working on the rights of persons with disabilities are de-jure involved on all legislative, financial and policy decisions that can have an impact on persons with disabilities.

Cook Islands (2015)

61. The Committee is concerned at the absence of an independent monitoring framework and the lack of civil society involvement.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent monitoring framework aligned to the Paris Principles, with an allocated budget and ensure the participation of persons with disabilities as required by article 33(3).

Croatia (2015)

52. The Committee is concerned that the independent monitoring body, the ombudswoman for persons with disabilities, is not designated as such by law and that it has no outreach possibilities to rural areas. It is further concerned that DPOs and other civil society organisations are not sufficiently supported by the government to participate in national implementation and monitoring.

53. The Committee recommends the State party to ensure existence of an independent monitoring body in accordance with the Paris Principles by adopting appropriate legislation on the ombudsperson of persons with disabilities. It is further recommended to provide DPOs and other civil society organizations with adequate resources for full and effective participation in the national implementation and monitoring process.

Czech Republic (2015)

60. The Committee notes with concern the lack of independent national monitoring mechanism in line with article 33, paragraph 2, of the Convention.

61. The Committee recommends the State party that the Office of Ombudsperson should be entrusted with the mandate of the independent national monitoring mechanism in line with article 33, paragraph 2, of the Convention and in accordance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Paris Principles), with allocation of adequate financial and human resources.

Dominican Republic (2015)

62. El Comité observa que el Estado parte no ha designado al mecanismo independiente de seguimiento; también le preocupa el poco nivel de participación de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en los procesos de implementación y seguimiento de esta Convención.

63. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

(a) Designar en el más corto plazo el mecanismo independiente de supervisión de la Convención, en concordancia con el párrafo 33.2 y los Principios de París, y asigne los recursos necesarios para su funcionamiento; e

(b) Involucrar a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, tanto en los procesos de implementación de la Convención en concordancia con el artículo 33.1, como en el mecanismo designado según el párrafo 33.2 de la Convención.

Germany (2015)

61. The Committee is concerned that some focal points at the Länder level have not been formally designated as per the Convention requirements of article 33 (1) and that the State party does not provide the adequate resources on a permanent basis to support the independent monitoring mechanism's work according to article 33 (2).

62. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Consolidate the institutional structures in accordance with Article 33 (1) and formally implement the designation of focal points and their counterparts in the different areas of application of the Convention in all Länder;

(b) Reinforce the necessary resources and conditions for focal point independent activity, including the legal status of all Länder "Commissioners for Matters Relating to Disabled Persons";

(c) Strengthen the capacities of the independent monitoring mechanism according to art. 33 (2) ensure availability of resources for more comprehensive and effective monitoring at the Länder and municipal levels.

Mongolia (2015)

51. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient human, technical and financial resources allocated to foster a coherent national-level disability law and institutionalising policy changes for implementation of the Convention.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party specifically designate one or more national monitoring mechanisms in conformity with the Paris Principles to monitor implementation of the Convention. In doing so, the State party should ensure that this mechanism(s) is provided with adequate human, technical and financial resources. Furthermore, it is strongly recommended that specific measures be undertaken for ensuring the full participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in monitoring the implementation of the Convention.

Turkmenistan (2015)

57. The Committee is concerned at the low attention paid to the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the establishment and functioning of an independent monitoring mechanism. It is also concerned that the State party has not yet identified a focal point in line with article 33.1 of the Convention.

58. The Committee calls on the State party to expedite the establishment of an independent monitoring mechanism, with the active involvement of persons with disabilities and a focal point responsible for disability issues in accordance with the Convention and other international standards.

Denmark (2014)

66. While noting the operation of the State party's Interministerial Committee, the Committee is concerned that it seeks inputs from representative organizations of persons with disabilities in Denmark only occasionally, and that there is an absence of coordination with the representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the Faroe Islands and Greenland. The Committee is also concerned at the absence of coordination and of independent monitoring mechanisms in the Faroe Islands.

67. The Committee recommends that the State party enable civil society and, in particular, representative organizations of persons with disabilities, to fully and regularly participate in monitoring of the implementation of the Convention. The State party should also take the necessary measures for the establishment or designation of a coordination mechanism, and of an independent monitoring mechanism, in the Faroe Islands. The Committee also recommends that the Government of the Faroe Islands establish a human rights institution for the promotion and protection of human rights, in accordance with the Paris Principles.

Republic of Korea (2014)

61. The Committee takes notes that the Bureau of Policy for Persons with Disabilities is in charge of the overall implementation of the Convention, the Policy Coordination Committee for Persons with Disabilities formulates, coordinates and monitors the implementation of basic policy on persons with disabilities, and the National Human Rights Commission of Korea provides advice or comments to the Policy Coordination Committee for Persons with Disabilities on the implementation of the Convention. However, the Committee is concerned that the Policy Coordination Committee for Persons with Disabilities is not functioning properly, and that the National Human Rights Commission of Korea lacks sufficient human and financial resources to monitor effectively the implementation of the Convention.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the Policy Coordination Committee for Persons with Disabilities carries out its role of effective development and implementation of policies related to persons with disabilities, and provide the National Human Rights Commission of Korea with sufficient human and financial resources to monitor effectively the implementation of the Convention. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt legal provisions to ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring of the implementation of the Convention.

Belgium (2014)

48. The Committee is concerned that the Interfederal Centre for Equal Opportunities, which is responsible for monitoring the implementation of the Convention, appears to lack the independence required by the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

49. The Committee recommends that the State party complete the process to ensure the Centre's compliance with the Paris Principles.

Ecuador (2014)

54. The Committee is concerned that the Ombudsman's Office does not form part of the national mechanism for monitoring the Convention, which is made up of the Council for Citizen Participation and Social Control and the Centre for Citizen Monitoring of Respect for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Ecuador. The Committee is also concerned at the absence of specific mechanisms for the participation of civil society organizations in the entire process of monitoring the Convention, as set out in article 33, paragraph 3, of the Convention.

55. The Committee reminds the State party that the national monitoring mechanism must be independent and carry out specific tasks related to promotion, protection and monitoring the implementation of the Convention. In this context, the Committee urges the State party to adopt the necessary legal measures to clearly establish the independent mechanism under the Convention in line with the Paris Principles, strengthen its capacities with the necessary budget and resources to fulfil its mandate effectively and ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the monitoring process.

Mexico (2014)

61. The Committee notes that despite the establishment of an independent mechanism to monitor the implementation of the Convention in Mexico, its structure, functions and activities have not been defined with regard to the promotion, protection and monitoring of the rights enshrined in the Convention at the federal and state levels.

62. The Committee urges the State party to ensure that the National Human Rights Commission and the 32 state human rights entities, as the independent monitoring mechanism for the Convention, define the mechanism's structure, goals, indicators and resources. Moreover, the State party should strengthen the National Commission so that it may fulfil its mandate effectively and independently.

Sweden (2014)

61. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet introduced an independent mechanism based on the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights (Paris Principles) to monitor the implementation of the Convention. The Committee is further concerned that coordination responsibility lies with the Ministry of Health and Social Affairs instead of the ministry responsible for human rights and discrimination.

62. The Committee recommends that the State party establish an independent monitoring mechanism to fulfil effectively the obligation enshrined in the Convention in accordance with the Paris Principles.

Costa Rica (2014)

65. Al Comité le preocupa que el Estado parte no haya designado puntos focales relacionados con la aplicación de la Convención y la ausencia de consulta con organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en esta materia. Preocupa al Comité que no se haya establecido el mecanismo independiente de seguimiento que cumpla con los Principios de París, así como la escasa participación de la Defensoría de los Habitantes en esta función.

66. El Comité llama al Estado parte a establecer o designar los puntos focales encargados de la implementación de la Convención en consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad y en caso de que decida establecer mecanismos de coordinación para dicho fin. El Comité urge al Estado parte que designe un mecanismo independiente de monitoreo, que cumpla con los Principios de París y que fortalezca sus capacidades con presupuesto y recursos adecuados para garantizar efectivamente su mandato.

Australia (2013)

57. The Committee is concerned that Australia lacks a participatory and responsive structure for the implementation and monitoring of the Convention in line with Article 33.

58. The committee recommends the State party to immediately set up a monitoring system that would be fully in line with the provisions of art.33 of the Convention.

Austria (2013)

52. The Committee observes the creation of the "Independent Monitoring Committee for the Implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities" as Austria's article 33(2) independent monitoring mechanism. However, the Committee is concerned that the monitoring committee does not have its own budget and it appears to lack the independence required by the Principles relating to the status and functioning of national institutions for protection and promotion of human rights (Paris Principles).

53. The Committee recommends that the full independence of the independent monitoring committee be guaranteed in accordance with the Paris principles. The Committee further recommends that the Länder create their own independent monitoring mechanisms to further coordinate disability policies and practices throughout Austria.

54. The Committee recommends that the Independent Monitoring Body be allocated a transparent budget and be given the power to administer that budget autonomously.

El Salvador (2013)

67. The Committee is concerned that the National Council for Persons with Disabilities still does not meet the requirements of the Convention regarding implementation mechanisms.

68. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a system for the implementation of the Convention fully in line with the provisions of article 33 of the Convention.

69. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not set up a framework to oversee the implementation of the Convention.

70. The Committee recommends that the State party officially designate mechanisms to monitor the implementation of the Convention in the country, involving both civil society and an institution fulfilling the Paris Principles regarding independent human rights institutions.

Paraguay (2013)

75. The Committee notes the creation of the Secretariat for the Human Rights of Persons with Disabilities (SENADIS), whose mandate is to coordinate policy on the rights of persons with disabilities in consultation with the National Commission on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CONADIS). It is nevertheless concerned that SENADIS has been given the task of implementation and independent monitoring even though it does not comply with the Paris Principles.

76. The Committee recommends that the State party set up an independent mechanism in compliance with the Paris Principles, with the necessary resources to monitor implementation of the Convention; that mechanism should be in permanent consultation with disabled persons' organizations at the national level.

77. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information in the State party on progress made with implementation of articles 17 (protecting the integrity of the person), 20 (personal mobility), 22 (respect for privacy) and 23 (respect for home and family).

78. The Committee asks the State party to include in its next periodic report exhaustive information on measures taken to guarantee those rights and to protect them and ensure their implementation.

Argentina (2012)

51. The Committee notes with concern that the National Advisory Commission on the Integration of Persons with Disabilities (CONADIS) is not of a sufficiently high institutional rank to effectively carry out its duties as a mechanism for facilitating and coordinating matters relating to the implementation of the Convention at all levels and in all sectors of government. The Committee also notes with concern that the National Disability Observatory, which is tasked with overseeing the implementation of the Convention, is a subsidiary body of CONADIS, in violation of article 33, paragraph 2, of the Convention and the Paris Principles.

52. The Committee recommends that the State party raise the institutional rank of CONADIS and endow it with the human and financial resources it needs in order to effectively fulfil its mandate to coordinate the implementation of the Convention at all levels and in all sectors of government. The Committee urges the State party to designate an independent national oversight mechanism that is in full compliance with the Paris Principles and to provide guarantees, as a matter of priority, for the full participation of persons with disabilities and the organizations that represent them in the oversight process.

China (2012)

49. The Committee is concerned at the overall absence of independent bodies and DPOs systematically involved in the implementation process of the CRP. Considering that the China Disabled Persons' Federation remains the sole official representative of persons with disabilities in the state party, the Committee is concerned about the participation of civil society. In addition the Committee wonders which body or organization in China is designated the independent national monitoring mechanism as required by art. 33 (2) CRPD.

50. The Committee strongly recommends that the state party revise article 8 of the Law on the Protection of Disabled Persons, thus allowing non-governmental organizations other than the China Disabled Persons' Federation to represent the interests of disabled people in the state party and be involved in the monitoring process. It further recommends the establishment of an independent national monitoring mechanism in line with Art 33 (2) CRPD and in accordance with the Paris Principles.

Hong-Kong (2012)

83. The Committee is worried by the low rank of the focal point, the Commissioner for Rehabilitation and the lack of an independent monitoring mechanism according to article 33 (2).

84. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong, China, strengthen the authority of the Commissioner for Rehabilitation and set up an independent monitoring mechanism that involves the active participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Hungary (2012)

51. In spite of the efforts the State party has taken to put in place a monitoring mechanism for implementation of the Convention, the Committee is concerned that the National Disability Council, which has been designated to function as an independent monitoring mechanism, is not in compliance with the Principles relating to the Status of National Institutions (The Paris Principles) and, hence, not in line with article 33(2) of the Convention.

52. The Committee calls upon the State party to set up an independent monitoring mechanism in accordance with the Paris Principles and article 33(2) of the Convention, and to ensure the full participation of civil society, especially organizations of persons with disabilities, in the monitoring process and framework.

Peru (2012)

48. The Committee is concerned at the lack of clarity as to the functions and division of responsibilities of Multi-Sectoral Permanent Commission and CONADIS, as well as the fact that they are not compliant with the Paris Principles.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party specifically designate a national monitoring mechanism that is in conformity with the Paris Principles, and ensure, as a matter of priority, the full participation in the monitoring process of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Tunisia (2010)

41. The Committee takes note of the existence of specialized institutions mandated to protect the rights of persons with disabilities, namely the Higher Council for the Social Advancement and Protection of Persons with Disabilities and the Higher Committee for Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms. However, it is concerned by the low participation of persons with disabilities in, and the independence of, these institutions.

42. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that disabled persons' organizations are able to participate in the Higher Council for the Social Advancement and Protection of Persons with Disabilities, and thus play a central role in monitoring the implementation of the Convention;
- (b) Ensure that the Higher Committee for Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms complies with the Principles relating to the Status of National Institutions (see General Assembly resolution 48/134, annex), and establish a dedicated unit on disabilities.