

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

Articles 1 to 4 CRPD (Purpose, definitions, principles and general obligations)

September 2025

Articles 1-4 – General obligations

Article 1 - Purpose

The purpose of the present Convention is to promote, protect and ensure the full and equal enjoyment of all human rights and fundamental freedoms by all persons with disabilities, and to promote respect for their inherent dignity.

Persons with disabilities include those who have long-term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairments which in interaction with various barriers may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.

Article 2 - Definitions

For the purposes of the present Convention:

"Communication" includes languages, display of text, Braille, tactile communication, large print, accessible multimedia as well as written, audio, plain-language, human-reader and augmentative and alternative modes, means and formats of communication, including accessible information and communication technology;

"Language" includes spoken and signed languages and other forms of non-spoken languages;

"Discrimination on the basis of disability" means any distinction, exclusion or restriction on the basis of disability which has the purpose or effect of impairing or nullifying the recognition, enjoyment or exercise, on an equal basis with others, of all human rights and fundamental freedoms in the political, economic, social, cultural, civil or any other field. It includes all forms of discrimination, including denial of reasonable accommodation;

"Reasonable accommodation" means necessary and appropriate modification and adjustments not imposing a disproportionate or undue burden, where needed in a particular case, to ensure to persons with disabilities the enjoyment or exercise on an equal basis with others of all human rights and fundamental freedoms;

"Universal design" means the design of products, environments, programmes and services to be usable by all people, to the greatest extent possible, without the need for adaptation or specialized design. "Universal design" shall not exclude assistive devices for particular groups of persons with disabilities where this is needed.

Article 3 - General principles

The principles of the present Convention shall be:

Respect for inherent dignity, individual autonomy including the freedom to make one's own choices, and independence of persons;

Non-discrimination;

Full and effective participation and inclusion in society;

Respect for difference and acceptance of persons with disabilities as part of human diversity and humanity;

Equality of opportunity;

Accessibility;

Equality between men and women;

Respect for the evolving capacities of children with disabilities and respect for the right of children with disabilities to preserve their identities.

Article 4 - General obligations

1. States Parties undertake to ensure and promote the full realization of all human rights and fundamental freedoms for all persons with disabilities without discrimination of any kind on the basis of disability. To this end, States Parties undertake:

a) To adopt all appropriate legislative, administrative and other measures for the implementation of the rights recognized in the present Convention;

- b) To take all appropriate measures, including legislation, to modify or abolish existing laws, regulations, customs and practices that constitute discrimination against persons with disabilities;*
- c) To take into account the protection and promotion of the human rights of persons with disabilities in all policies and programmes;*
- d) To refrain from engaging in any act or practice that is inconsistent with the present Convention and to ensure that public authorities and institutions act in conformity with the present Convention;*
- e) To take all appropriate measures to eliminate discrimination on the basis of disability by any person, organization or private enterprise;*
- f) To undertake or promote research and development of universally designed goods, services, equipment and facilities, as defined in article 2 of the present Convention, which should require the minimum possible adaptation and the least cost to meet the specific needs of a person with disabilities, to promote their availability and use, and to promote universal design in the development of standards and guidelines;*
- g) To undertake or promote research and development of, and to promote the availability and use of new technologies, including information and communications technologies, mobility aids, devices and assistive technologies, suitable for persons with disabilities, giving priority to technologies at an affordable cost;*
- h) To provide accessible information to persons with disabilities about mobility aids, devices and assistive technologies, including new technologies, as well as other forms of assistance, support services and facilities;*
- i) To promote the training of professionals and staff working with persons with disabilities in the rights recognized in the present Convention so as to better provide the assistance and services guaranteed by those rights.*

2. With regard to economic, social and cultural rights, each State Party undertakes to take measures to the maximum of its available resources and, where needed, within the framework of international cooperation, with a view to achieving progressively the full realization of these rights, without prejudice to those obligations contained in the present Convention that are immediately applicable according to international law.

3. In the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the present Convention, and in other decision-making processes concerning issues relating to persons with disabilities, States Parties shall closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

4. Nothing in the present Convention shall affect any provisions which are more conducive to the realization of the rights of persons with disabilities and which may be contained in the law of a State Party or international law in force for that State. There shall be no restriction upon or derogation from any of the human rights and fundamental freedoms recognized or existing in any State Party to the present Convention pursuant to law, conventions, regulation or custom on the pretext that the present Convention does not recognize such rights or freedoms or that it recognizes them to a lesser extent.

5. The provisions of the present Convention shall extend to all parts of federal States without any limitations or exceptions.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

Finland (2025)

Kiribati (2025)

Maldives (2025)

Canada (2025)

Dominican Republic (2025)

European Union (2025)

Palau (2025)

Tuvalu (2025)

Viet Nam (2025)

Belarus (2024)

Belgium (2024)

Benin (2024)

Burkina Faso (2024)

Denmark (2024)

Ghana (2024)

Mauritius (2024)

Netherlands (2024)

Ukraine (2024)

Azerbaijan (2024)

Bahrain (2024)

Costa Rica (2024)

Kazakhstan (2024)

Nicaragua (2024)

Sweden (2024)

Zambia (2024)

Andorra (2023)

Austria (2023)

Germany (2023)

Israel (2023)

Malawi (2023)

Mauritania (2023)

Mongolia (2023)

Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)

Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)
Tunisia (2011)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

5. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) National legislation and policies, including the Law of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on the Provision of Rights of Persons with Disabilities, are not fully harmonized with the Convention and the human rights model of disability, and continue to reflect medical and charity-based approaches;
- (b) The Law of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on the Provision of Persons with Disabilities (LPPRPD) has not been fully implemented, particularly in rural and remote areas;
- (c) Key concepts of the Convention, such as "reasonable accommodation" and "universal design," are not clearly defined in legislation, leading to inconsistent application;
- (d) There is a lack of close consultation and active involvement of independent representative organizations of persons with disabilities, in developing, implementing and monitoring disability-related laws and policies;
- (e) There is no accessible, effective and independent complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities, including those in detention;
- (f) The ratification of the Optional Protocol is still under consideration;
- (g) There is no time-bound plan, clear targets, indicators, or allocated budget at national, provincial, district, and county levels for implementing the strategic national action plan for the rights of persons with disabilities, including outside the capital.

6. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) the Committee recommends that the State Party, with the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations,:

- (a) Conduct a comprehensive review of all disability-related legislation and policies, including the disability determination process, to eliminate medical and charity-based elements, and ensure full alignment with the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Fully implement the LPPRPD, including in rural and remote areas;
- (c) Introduce clear legal definitions of key concepts such as "reasonable accommodation" and "universal design" in all relevant laws and policies, to strengthen their consistent application and enforcement;
- (d) Establish mechanisms to ensure the close consultation and active involvement of diverse persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities as well as persons of short stature through their representative organizations, in all stages of disability-related law and policy design, implementation and monitoring;
- (e) Put in place an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report incidences of discrimination and provide persons with disabilities who have been subjected to discrimination with redress, compensation and rehabilitation and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned;
- (f) Provide a clear timeline for the ratification of the Optional Protocol;
- (g) Develop and fund a time-bound plan for implementing the strategic national action plan for the rights of persons with disabilities at all administrative levels, ensuring resources are allocated nationwide.

Finland (2025)

6. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Significant disparities in the implementation of the Convention across central, regional and local levels and on the Åland Islands;
- (b) The long delay in passing legislation on the right to self-determination of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Budget cuts to social and health services since the fall of 2023 and in the current 2026 budget proposal, disproportionately affecting persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, and the discontinuation of national pensions and allowances to persons living outside the State Party's territory, gravely affecting persons with disabilities from the Åland Islands residing in Sweden;

(d) The lack of a cohesive and legally entrenched mechanism for the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Coordinate the central, regional and local levels of government and the Åland Islands to ensure consistent compliance with the Convention across its territory;

(b) Expeditiously proceed with the reform of legislation on the right to self-determination and ensure that is fully aligned with the Convention;

(c) Ensure that no retrogressive measures are taken, offset retrogressive measures already taken, provide sufficient funding to organizations of persons with disabilities to fully participate in the implementation of the Convention, and ensure that persons with disabilities in the Åland Islands residing in Sweden receive the requisite financial assistance, either by providing it itself or by duly coordinating the responsibilities with the Swedish authorities;

(d) Develop legally entrenched processes of close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including in social welfare counties, in all matters relating to the implementation of the Convention.

Kiribati (2025)

5. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Despite several Constitutional reviews, disability has not been included as a ground for discrimination under section 15 nor as a protected category in section 3;

(b) The recommendations from the 2022 legislative review conducted by the UN Economic and Social Commission Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP) have not been implemented;

(c) The stand-alone Disability Inclusion Act has not been enacted into law;

(d) The updated National Disability Policy and Action Plan (2023–2026), remains under revision, and there is insufficient disability specific budget allocation, monitoring, coordination and collaboration across ministries to ensure a whole of government approach for its implementation;

(e) The State Party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Amend the Constitution to ensure that disability is included as a ground for discrimination and as a protected category;

(b) Implement the recommendations of the 2022 UNESCAP legislative review by progressively adopting, repealing and/or amending domestic legislation and policy frameworks to ensure harmonisation with the Convention;

(c) Enact stand-alone disability inclusion legislation to translate Convention provisions into the legal framework;

(d) Finalise the revision of the National Disability Policy and Action Plan (2023–2026), ensure that each ministry's budget includes a disability specific allocation, and strengthen a whole of government approach for the implementation, including through training and skills building on the Convention across ministries;

(e) Consider expediting the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned that there are insufficient mechanisms and resources across all ministries to ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, such as the Te Toa Matoi, including on outer islands in all decision-making processes affecting them.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen mechanisms and resources to ensure persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, such as Te Toa Matoi are closely consulted and actively involved in decision-making processes affecting them, including in the design, implementation and review of national policies, such as the National Disability Policy & Action Plan (2023–2026), the Disability Inclusion Act and the Kiribati 20-year Vision (KV20) 2016-2036.

Maldives (2025)

5. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of harmonization of national legislation with the Convention, and the prevalence of the medical model of disability in the State party;
- (b) The use in laws and in policies, of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities that emphasize impairments, reflect medical and paternalistic approaches to disability and reinforce stigma relating to persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of a comprehensive national affirmative action policy on disability, as well as the insufficient resourcing, coordination, collaboration and monitoring across ministries, with donor and development partners, with regional partners and civil society organisations to effectively implement the Convention;
- (d) The lack of awareness among policy-makers, judges, prosecutors, teachers and medical, health other professionals working with persons with disabilities about the rights recognized in the Convention;
- (e) The lack of harmonization of different registration systems for persons with disabilities;
- (f) That the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Expedite efforts to review all relevant legislation and policies in order to harmonize them with the provisions of the Convention;
- (b) Amend or repeal legislation that includes derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities and ensure that the national legislation recognizes the human rights model of disability and the evolving concept of disability to ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities in the society;
- (c) Adopt a comprehensive national affirmative action policy on disability, allocate a percentage of each ministry budget to establish a dedicated disability budget allocation, and strengthen and consolidate coordination, collaboration and monitoring across ministries, with donor and development partners, with regional partners and civil society organisations to implement the Convention;
- (d) Build capacity on the human rights model of disability among government officials at all levels, legal professionals, judges, prosecutors and professionals working with persons with disabilities;
- (e) Harmonize the existing registration systems and provide guidance for persons with disabilities on registration;
- (f) Consider ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned that there are insufficient measures and resources to ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including on outer islands in all decision-making processes affecting them across all ministries.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen measures and resources to ensure persons with disabilities through their representative organisations are closely consulted and actively involved in decision-making processes affecting them, including in the design, implementation and review of national legislation and policies.

Canada (2025)

5. The Committee reiterates its concern about the State party's interpretative declaration under article 12 and conditional reservation under article 12(4) [CRPD/C/CAN/CO/1, para 7]. The right to equal recognition before the law is of foundational importance for the exercise of all rights guaranteed by the Convention. Reservations seriously curtailing this right may well be deemed against the object and purpose of the Convention.

6. Recalling its past Concluding Observations (CRPD/C/CAN/CO/1, para. 8), the Committee invites the State party to withdraw its declaration under article 12 and reservation to article 12 (4) of the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Significant disparities in the implementation of the Convention across jurisdictions and branches of government in the State Party, resulting in the highly unequal enjoyment of the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) The rudimentary incorporation of the Convention into domestic law, and its limited normative significance as a mere interpretative tool;

(c) The lack of close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including with Black and other racialised persons with disabilities, First Nations, Inuit and Métis persons with disabilities, non-status, and off-reserve Indigenous persons with disabilities.

8. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State Party take all necessary measures to ensure full implementation of the Convention on the Federal level as well as in all provinces and territories and that:

(a) In close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including Indigenous persons with disabilities and Black and other racialised persons with disabilities, establish legally defined mechanisms ensuring compliance with the Convention by all provinces and territories, and condition fiscal transfers from the Federal level to provinces and territories on their adherence to the Convention;

(b) Require that statutes and regulations in all jurisdictions be interpreted in a manner consistent with the Convention and ensure that the principles and standards of the Convention underpin the implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act and its Action Plan while respecting self-determination, sovereignty, and culture, including for non-status and off-reserve Indigenous persons with disabilities;

(c) Develop legally entrenched mechanisms for the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including with Indigenous persons with disabilities, Black and other racialized persons with disabilities, on the Federal level and in the provinces and territories.

Dominican Republic (2025)

5. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a systematic process for reviewing existing laws, policies, and regulations to ensure their conformity with the Convention, as well as the lack of harmonization in its implementation across all levels of government, leading to inconsistencies and uneven protection and support for persons with disabilities. Additionally, the Committee notes with concern that certain laws and policies continue to use derogatory concepts and terminology, and that even draft reforms to the Social Security Law, the Civil Code, and the Penal Code fail to incorporate inclusive language or align with the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a systematic process for reviewing existing laws, policies, and regulations to ensure their full conformity with the Convention, including the removal of derogatory terminology and provisions that are contrary to its principles and prioritize the harmonization of laws related to the human rights of persons with disabilities and strengthen coordination mechanisms across all levels of government to guarantee consistent implementation, protection, and support nationwide.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in policy- and decision-making processes, resulting in the failure to address their specific requirements and the insufficient financial and structural support available to organizations of persons with disabilities, limiting their ability to effectively participate in public decision-making.

8. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, take effective measures to ensure the full and meaningful participation of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, in policy- and decision-making processes, including by establishing and strengthening mechanisms for systematic consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities at all levels of government and by providing adequate financial and structural support to these organizations to enable their effective involvement in public decision-making.

European Union (2025)

6. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) That implementation of the Convention is hampered by the jurisprudence that the validity of secondary EU law cannot be directly assessed in light of the Convention, and the rights guaranteed by the Convention do not have direct effect in EU law;

(b) That even after the Constructive Dialogue with the EU's delegation, there remains some uncertainty as to whether the European Union accepts the Committee's interpretations of the Convention, including those espoused in its General Comments, as authoritative;

(c) That the European Union has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

(a) Improve implementation of the Convention by ensuring that the Convention has direct effect in its law, and that the validity of secondary EU law can be directly assessed in light of the Convention;

(b) Clarify that it accepts the Committee's interpretations of the Convention, including those espoused in its General Comments, as authoritative;

(c) Consider the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee observes with concern that:

(a) Legislation, policies and practices have not been systematically reviewed in light of the Convention, as recommended in the previous Committee's Concluding Observations, and that draft legislation, such as the Regulation on cross-border protection of adults, does not conform with the rights guaranteed by the Convention;

(b) While the European Union prepared an updated overview of the acts relevant for the implementation of the Convention in 2017, a formal update of the declaration of competences under Article 44 (2) and its list of instruments in the appendix, as recommended by the Committee in its previous Concluding Observations, have not been undertaken.

9. The Committee recalls its previous Concluding Observations and recommendations (CRPD/C/EU/CO/1, para. 9 and 17) and recommends that the European Union:

(a) Conduct a comprehensive review of its legislation, policies and practices to ensure their compatibility with the Convention, and establish mechanisms to ensure that new legislation, policies and practices adhere to the Convention, including by revising its impact assessment guidelines;

(b) Update the declaration of competences under Article 44(2) and its list of instruments in the appendix, and include instruments that may not refer to persons with disabilities, but are nevertheless relevant to their rights;

(c) Engage in technical cooperation with the Committee under article 37 of the Convention and with the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights for Europe, to facilitate its efforts to implement the general obligations under the Convention.

10. The Committee notes with concern that the persistence of the medical model of disability and the lack of harmonization about disability assessments across member states.

11. The Committee recommends that the European Union:

(a) Ensure that the EU and its Member States follow the human rights model of disability and harmonize their disability assessment in all areas EU of competences, including with respect to the recognition of disability status;

(b) Support Member States to ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are closely consulted and actively involved in the design of disability assessments and that multiple assessments do not create an undue burden for the persons involved;

(c) In Cooperation with its Member States, ensure the portability of social security benefits of persons with disabilities among Member States, including by extending the scope of mutual recognition of disability status through the Disability Card.

12. The Committee observes with concern that the specific actions and measures contained in the Strategy for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities 2021-2030 ("Disability Rights Strategy") ended in 2024, and that concrete plans for the next term have yet to be adopted, and that it contains only limited actions to address the situation of autistic persons, persons with cerebral palsy and persons with dementia.

13. The Committee recommends that the European Union establish a process to adopt new specific actions, measures and time frames for the implementation of the Disability Rights Strategy for the period 2025-2030, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, and to extend the new specific actions, measures and time frames to all persons with disabilities, including persons with cerebral palsy, autistic persons and persons with dementia.

14. The Committee is concerned that there are no effective mechanisms ensuring that EU Member States allocate EU funds in full conformity with the principles and rights under the Convention, and that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are not closely consulted and actively involved in the drafting of conditions for the allocation of such funds and of processes monitoring them.

15. The Committee recommends that the European Union require full adherence to the Convention in the allocation of EU funds by its Member States, and establish monitoring mechanisms, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

16. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Various instruments for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities are not representative of persons with disabilities in the European Union and are not fully informed and accessible, are not legally entrenched, and that the organizations' views are not effectively considered;

(b) Children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are not closely involved, and cannot actively participate, in the implementation of the Convention;

(c) The Council of the European Union lacks mechanisms for close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations;

(d) Recent proposals and guidance on funding for activities related to the development, implementation, enforcement and monitoring of European Union legislation and policy might be applied to organizations of persons with disabilities and restrict their ability to engage in advocacy and limit their meaningful consultation and participation in independent monitoring of the Convention.

17. The Committee recommends that the European Union establish new mechanisms for the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and strengthen existing mechanisms in all areas of EU legislation, policy and programming, including in external action and in the Council of the European Union, by, inter alia, entrenching them legally, rendering them broadly representative of persons with disabilities in the European Union, ensuring their accessibility and the full information of all participants, by ensuring that the views of persons with disabilities are in fact heard and seriously considered, and by providing sufficient financial support to organizations of persons with disabilities to protect their independence and to enable them to participate effectively.

Palau (2025)

5. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The delay in the repeal and amendment of legislation that is not in line with the Convention;
- (b) The use, in laws and policies, of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities that emphasize a person's impairments, reflect medical and paternalistic approaches to disability and reinforce stigma against persons with disabilities;
- (c) That the Coordinating Committee of Persons with Disabilities and the Office of Persons with Disabilities are not yet operational.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal or amend all discriminatory legislation, within a clear timeline, in line with the Convention;
- (b) Amend and/or repeal legislation that includes derogatory terminology and concepts against persons with disabilities and ensure they recognize the evolving concept of disability as arising from the interaction between persons with impairments and barriers to the full participation of persons with disabilities in society;
- (c) Ensure the timely operationalisation of the Coordinating Committee of Persons with Disabilities and the Office of Persons with Disabilities.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in the design, implementation and monitoring of disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the diverse groups of organizations of persons with disabilities, including those of women and children with disabilities.

Tuvalu (2025)

5. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Domestic laws contain terminology that devalues persons with disabilities, that there is no disability legislation to translate Convention provisions into the legal framework, and that the recommendations from the legislative review conducted by the UN Economic and Social Commission Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP) have not been implemented;
- (b) The 2023 revisions of the National Policy on Disability are not endorsed, and there is insufficient resourcing, coordination, collaboration and monitoring across ministries, with donor and development partners, with regional partners and civil society organisations to effectively implement the National Policy on Disability 2018, and other sectoral policies and regional strategies, such as the Pacific Strategy on Disability 2016-2025.
- (c) the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Implement the recommendations of the UNESCAP legislative review by progressively adopting, repealing and / or amending domestic legislation and policy frameworks to ensure harmonisation with the Convention, and enact disability legislation to translate Convention provisions into the legal framework;

(b) Finalise and endorse the 2023 revisions of the National Policy on Disability, allocate a small percentage of each ministry budget to establish a dedicated disability budget allocation, and strengthen and consolidate coordination, collaboration and monitoring across ministries, with donor and development partners, with regional partners and civil society organisations to implement the Convention;

(c) Consider ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned that there are insufficient measures and resources to ensure the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, such as the Fusi Alofa Association, including on outer islands in all decision-making processes affecting them across all ministries.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen measures and resources to ensure persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, such as Fusi Alofa Association are closely consulted and actively involved in decision-making processes affecting them, including in the design, implementation and review of national policies, such as the Human Rights National Action Plan 2016-2020, the National Policy for Disability 2018, and the National Strategy for Sustainable Development 2021-2030.

Viet Nam (2025)

5. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) National legislation and policies do not fully incorporate the human rights model of disability and instead continue to reflect a medical and charity-based approach, which perpetuates systemic discrimination against persons with disabilities;

(b) The implementation of the Convention is fragmented, relying on sector-specific legal provisions that lack coherence and do not ensure comprehensive protection of the rights of persons with disabilities across all areas of life;

(c) Key CRPD concepts such as “communication,” “language,” “reasonable accommodation,” and “universal design” are not clearly defined in national legislation, leading to inconsistent application and enforcement;

(d) While the Law on Promulgation of Legal Documents mandates consultation with affected groups, there are no formal mechanisms ensuring the structured and continuous participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development, implementation, and monitoring of disability-related laws and policies;

(e) Monitoring and evaluation of the implementation of the Convention lack transparency, with little public information available on progress and accountability mechanisms;

(f) The Prime Minister’s decision of 2020 on international conferences and seminars has made it impossible for civil society organizations and organizations of persons with disabilities not affiliated with the State’s mass organizations to establish themselves and follow the relevant procedures;

(g) Some organizations of persons with disabilities face repression, imprisonment or expulsion from the country.

6. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct a comprehensive review of all disability-related legislation and policies to eliminate elements of the medical model and ensure full alignment with the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Enact overarching legislation that guarantees the rights of persons with disabilities in a coherent and comprehensive manner, ensuring consistency with the principles and obligations under the Convention, and develop a comprehensive strategy for its implementation;
- (c) Introduce clear legal definitions of key Convention concepts, including "communication," "language," "reasonable accommodation," and "universal design," to strengthen their application in all relevant laws and policies;
- (d) Establish formal and institutionalized mechanisms to ensure that persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, in particular persons with autism, indigenous persons with disabilities, and children with disabilities, along with their representative organizations, are meaningfully consulted and actively involved in the development, implementation, and monitoring of all disability-related legislation and policies;
- (e) Ensure that monitoring and evaluation of the implementation of the Convention includes the participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, that the results are made public in accessible ways and with accessible methods, and that they are included in accountability processes.
- (f) Remove any legal or quasi-legal obstacles to the establishment of organizations of persons with disabilities, regardless of whether or not they are affiliated with the mass organizations of the State;
- (g) Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities, including religious organizations, are treated with respect and dignity, and ensure they are not subjected to imprisonment or expulsion for defending the rights of their community.

7. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without delay.

Belarus (2024)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The Optional Protocol to the Convention not yet being ratified;
- (b) The persistence of the medical approach to disability and the use of the medical model to identify and classify persons with disabilities through the Medical Experts Commission;
- (c) The lack of harmonization of national laws in relation to the general principles of the Convention, such as the provisions related to legal capacity, criminal liability for persons with psychosocial disabilities and/or intellectual disabilities, and children with disabilities;
- (d) Gaps in the implementation of principle of non-discrimination in practice, owing to inadequate provisions in relation to the funding, mechanisms or sanctions, as well as for various disability initiatives and programs including the national action plan 2017-2025 on the implementation of the Convention;
- (e) Use of derogatory language to refer to persons with disabilities as "invalids", which is inconsistent with the Convention, and use of such language in the provisions - Articles 29, 172 and 947 of the Civil Code, Articles 28, 29 and 106 of the Criminal Code, Article 31 in the Child Rights Law and Law on the rights of persons with disabilities and their social integration.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention:

- (a) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without further delay;

- (b) Replace the Medical Expert Commission with multidisciplinary mechanism, representing members from diverse backgrounds and established in accordance with the human rights model of disability;
- (c) Amend the national legislation to harmonize national laws in relation to the general principles of the Convention, such as the provisions for persons with disabilities in regard to their legal capacity, criminal liability particularly for those with psychosocial disabilities, and children with disabilities;
- (d) Abolish all discriminatory provisions against persons with disabilities and derogatory language or use of words in law and practice;
- (e) Undertake measures to provide adequate funding, establishing mechanisms and systems for various ongoing and future disability initiatives, national and municipal policies and programs while ensuring a disability inclusive approach on these efforts.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of support to, existing fear of persecution or the practical barriers in the functioning of organizations of persons with disabilities and their active participation in the development of legislation or policies, decision making, and the monitoring processes, with reference to the report of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights 2024 (A/HRC/55/61), on the situation of human rights in the State party documenting closures of or liquidation of 1,500 non-governmental organizations. The Committee is additionally concerned that the organizations working for the rights of persons with disabilities have ceased to function in the State party.

8. Recalling its General comment No. 7 (2017), the Committee recommends that the State party ensure full liberty for persons with disabilities and their representative organizations to be freely and actively involved in the policy development, implementation and monitoring processes at the national and municipal levels. The Committee further recommends that the State party undertake measures for the investigation of the closure of the organizations of persons with disabilities, ensure their resumption of functioning and provide enabling space for its work as well as other civil society organizations which support the rights of persons with disabilities

Belgium (2024)

6. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The State party's failure to adequately promote and disseminate information in accessible formats on the Convention, on the Committee's General Comments and Guidelines, and on its disabilities policies, as well as on the mandates and competencies of authorities related to the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of any harmonisation between the federal, regional and community governments in relation to definitions of disability and to policies related to disability;
- (c) The prevalence of the medical model of disability in the State party, including within its disability assessment systems and in relation to the eligibility criteria for accessing necessary services and support, and about reports that the federal multidisciplinary assessment does not adequately consider the person's environment or individual requirements;
- (d) That recently adopted legislation, such as the Law of 28 March 2023 introducing different modifications to electoral law, makes it easier for a judge to declare a person with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities incapable to exercise her or his political rights.

7. The Committee reiterates its previous concluding observations (CRPD/C/BEL/CO/1, paras. 6 and 7) and recommends that the State party, in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Promote and disseminate information, including in accessible formats, on the Convention, on the Committee's General Comments and Guidelines, on disabilities policies and on the mandates and competencies of authorities related to the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) Harmonise its legal and policy framework on disability at federal, regional and community levels with the principles of the Convention, by, inter alia, integrating the human rights model of disability into its laws, regulations and policies;

(c) Revise its disability assessment systems by replacing the medical model of disability with the human rights model of disability, and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the support and assistance necessary to promote their rights to live independently and full inclusion in society;

(d) Remove all provisions in the Civil Code and the electoral law that exclude persons with disabilities from having political rights or from exercising them, on an equal basis with others.

8. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Reports that persons with disabilities are not regularly closely consulted and actively involved, through their representative organizations, in the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the Convention;

(b) The participation of organizations that do not meet the requirements of organizations of persons with disabilities, as expounded by the Committee in its General Comment No. 7 (2018), in various advisory councils on different levels of government.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Establish legally entrenched mechanisms, with adequate human, technical and financial resources, to ensure close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, at all stages, including the early stages, of the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the Convention;

(b) Ensure that the organizations participating in the advisory councils on various levels of government meet the requirements defined in the Committee's General Comment No. 7 (2018).

Benin (2024)

5. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Convention has not been fully incorporated into the State party's legal system;

(b) A national mechanism to systematically review existing laws, policies and regulations to determine whether legislative action is needed to ensure that they conform with the obligations under the Convention to promote, protect and fulfil the rights of persons with disabilities, does not exist;

(c) The concept of disability in the Convention and the language of the Convention have yet to be reflected into the State party's domestic laws and policies;

(d) The prevalence of the medical model of disability in the State party, including within its disability assessment systems and in relation to the eligibility criteria for accessing necessary services and support.

6. In keeping with the Sustainable Development Goals (on reducing inequality), Targets 10.2 and 10.3, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the status of the Convention in its legal system and fully incorporate it into domestic law;

(b) Systematically review existing laws, policies and regulations to ascertain the legislative action required to conform with the obligations under the Convention and establish human rights-based action plans with a clear concept of disability that contain measures to promote, protect and fulfil the rights under the Convention;

(c) Take measures to ensure removing derogatory and discriminatory terms used to describe persons with disabilities from its legislation and ensure that the language of the Convention is used throughout the State party's domestic laws and policies and that its meaning, including the concept of "disability", is reflected in letter and spirit;

(d) Ensure that disability assessments take into account barriers faced by persons with disabilities and are established in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee is concerned that the absence of information and a lack of meaningful consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities have prevented them to properly evaluate the National Policy for the Protection and Integration of People with Disabilities (PNPIPH) for 2012-2021, and the next iteration of the PNPIPH.

8. Recalling its General Comment No 7, the Committee recommends that the State party closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development, implementation and monitoring of all laws and policies used to implement the Convention, including all of iterations of the PNPIPH.

Burkina Faso (2024)

6. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of harmonization of all national legislation and policy frameworks with the Convention, including moving from the medical model and paternalistic approach to the human rights model of disability;

(b) The use, in laws and policies, such as the Law no. 23-94/ADP of 19 May 1994 on the public health code, Act no. 005-2018/AN of 19 April 2018 on driving licences in Burkina Faso, or Act No. 025-2018/AN of 31 May 2018 on the Criminal Code, and the law on the protection and promotion of the rights of people with a disability (2010), of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities, which focus on the impairments of individuals, reflect a paternalistic approach to disability and reinforce the stigmatization of persons with disabilities;

(c) That the “disability card” issued to people with a disability to enable them to access specific social protection benefits uses assessment criteria that are not in line with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention;

(d) The lack of implementation of the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Persons with Disabilities covering the period 2012-2021, due to the lack of an operational action plan and insufficient resources, and the limited implementation of the Operational Action Plan (PAO) 2021-2023 adopted in application of the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Persons with Disabilities (SN-3PH) 2021-2025;

(e) The limited awareness among policy makers, judges, prosecutors, teachers and medical, health and other professionals working with people with disabilities about the rights recognized in the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Revise all laws, policies and plans to harmonize them with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention;

(b) Amend and repeal all articles of legislation, policies and regulations that use derogatory language and move away from the prevalence of the medical model of disability to ensure that they are consistent with the human rights model of disability, including Law no. 23-94/ADP of 19 May 1994 on the public health code, Act no. 005-2018/AN of 19 April 2018 laying down rules on the preparation, issue and validity of driving licences, and Act No. 025-2018/AN of 31 May 2018 on the Criminal Code;

(c) Reorient its disability assessment systems by replacing elements of the medical model of disability with principles of the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers for persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion;

(d) Operationalize the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Persons with Disabilities with a clear plan of action, timebound targets and measurable outcomes, and with sufficient and available resources;

(e) With the close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, provide capacity-building programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities and on the obligations of the State party, as contained in the Convention, for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities on the rights of persons with disabilities and the State party's obligations under the Convention, and involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of training for public officials.

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, especially organizations of women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons, and children with disabilities, in the development and implementation of disability-related laws, policies and programmes, such as the recent review of the Personal and Family Code, and by the interference of the local authorities in the functioning of organizations of persons with disabilities resulting from Arrêté 2019-0086 issued in application of the Law 064 on freedom of association 2015, restricting the freedom of organizations of persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes. The State party should ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the diverse groups of organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular those of women and girls with disabilities, children with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons, and persons with disabilities living in rural areas.

Denmark (2024)

7. The Committee is concerned that the Convention is not explicitly incorporated into the laws of Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland. It is equally concerned at the reluctance by the State party's courts to take the Convention fully into account in all judgments relating to the rights of persons with disabilities.

8. Recalling its previous recommendation, the Committee recommends that the State party incorporate the Convention into the laws of Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland, and take measures to further improve the direct application of the Convention by the courts and administrative bodies, including by making the Convention, the Committee's jurisprudence and its general comments integral part of systematic capacity building for all judges.

9. The Committee is concerned that legislation of the Kingdom of Denmark does not systematically include a disability perspective and the human rights model of disability. It is also concerned by the lack of measures to revise and repeal discriminatory or retrogressive legislation on the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly:

(a) The Legal Incapacity and Guardianship, Act No. 1015 of 20 August 2007, not being based on a model of supported decision-making;

(b) The amendment of the Danish Building Regulations, Administrative Order No. 1399 of 12 December 2019, allowing for a reduction in the accessibility requirements of single-family houses.

10. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark conduct a comprehensive review of existing legislation to ensure compliance with the principles, definitions, rights and obligations under the Convention, repeal any legislation, including recent amendments, taking retrogressive measures and refrain from taking any retrogressive measures in the future, including in the current processes devising the policies of the new government.

11. The Committee is concerned that no new national action plan for persons with disabilities has yet been put in place in Denmark, and that the foreseen action plan would only cover the fields of labour market and education. The Committee notes with concern that the Faroe Islands still lack a disability policy action plan, and that the new action plan in Greenland lacks ambition and is vague particularly in terms of implementation. It is further concerned about the lack of awareness about the Convention among national, regional and municipal authorities.

12. The Committee recommends that the Governments of Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland adopt national disability action plans that cover all rights and substantive areas under the Convention, including the fundamental change required by, among others, articles 12, 14, 15, 19, and 24, and establish concrete objectives, measurable targets, adequate budget, and indicators, to evaluate progress in the implementation of the plans. It also recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark strengthen periodic training about the Convention, among the municipal, regional and national authorities.

13. The Committee notes the State party's funding allocations for disability. It is, however, concerned about the uneven allocation of funds for persons with disabilities across municipalities. It also notes with concern that the increase in investments on institutions ("housing facilities") infringes on the rights of persons with disabilities to live independently and being included in the community.

14. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensure an even allocation of funds for the support of persons with disabilities across municipalities, monitor the use of disability funding, and address gaps in funding across disability sectors.

15. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific accessibility measures directed at persons with disabilities to the Consultation Portal in Denmark, allowing them to effectively take part in the consultation process. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of systematic and institutionalized engagement with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the Convention in Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland.

16. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark take steps to develop and implement legally entrenched procedures for close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations across all sectors, in all matters affecting them, and provide adequate accessibility to this end. It also recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark allocate sufficient time to allow organizations of persons with disabilities to conduct internal consultation among their membership across all disability sectors.

Ghana (2024)

6. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Legislation and policies continue to employ derogatory terms to refer to persons with disabilities such as "unsound mind", "idiot, insane imbecile, lunatic and mental derangement;
(b) Progress in the development of the Persons with Disability Bill 2024, intended to, among other things, domesticate the Convention, has been very slow since it began in 2019 and remains incomplete;

(c) The definition of persons with disabilities in Article 42 of the Constitution, Article 59 of the Disability Act 715, and section 27(a), 58(2)(a) of the Criminal Offences Act 1960 respectively, are exclusive and therefore inconsistent with the Convention;

(d) The absence of effective mechanisms for enforcement of legislative and policy measures addressing the rights of persons with disabilities, and therefore to bring positive outcomes to the lives of persons with disabilities;

(e) Has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention;

(f) Has not signed and ratified the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa despite committing to do so during the Global Disability Summit of 2018.

7. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Review and amend the 1992 Constitution of Ghana, Criminal Offences Act 1960 (Act 29), and the Evidence Act 1975 (NRCD 323) to remove derogatory terms and replace these terms with language in line with the Convention;
- (b) Adopt a timeframe to expedite the enactment of the Persons with Disabilities Bill 2024;
- (c) Ensure that all existing and new laws and regulations, comply with the human rights model of disability in accordance with the Convention;
- (d) Ensure adherence to the laws, policies, and commitments to implement the convention and uphold the rights of all persons with disabilities;
- (e) Take necessary steps to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention to expand access to justice for persons with disabilities and
- (f) Fulfil its GDS 2018 Commitment to ratify the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa.

8. The Committee is concerned that women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations have not been involved in the development, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of all laws, policies and programs that affect their rights.

9. The Committee recommends that the State Party closely consult and actively involve women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with intellectual and or psychosocial disabilities and those with albinism through their representative organizations in decision-making and in the development and monitoring of laws, policies and programs that affect them.

Mauritius (2024)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The incomplete harmonization of disability-related national legislation and policies with the human rights model of disability, including in the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2024, and the perpetuation of the medical model for the disability assessment criteria;
- (b) The retention of reservations to articles 9(2)(d), 9(2)(e) and 24(2)(b), and the confusion caused by the retention of reservation to article 11 made upon signature that has no legal effect as it was not confirmed upon ratification;
- (c) The Optional Protocol to the Convention not yet being ratified.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Complete the harmonization of all disability-related national legislation, policies and disability assessment criteria in line with the Convention, adopting a unified concept of disability in all professional and legal areas that reflect the shift from the medical model to the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Withdraw its reservations to articles 9(2)(d) and 9(2)(e) of the Convention and to article 11 made upon signature, in line with its prior commitments, and reconsider withdrawing its reservation to article 24(2)(b) to ensure quality inclusive education for all children with disabilities;
- (c) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without further delay.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of meaningful consultation and involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development of legislation and policies, including for the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2024 and the Action Plan on Disability 2015–2020.

8. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure and facilitate close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, including women, children and youth with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in all public decision-making processes, plans and implementation of legislations and policies, including the Action Plan on Disability 2025-2030.

Netherlands (2024)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not intend to withdraw its interpretative declarations to certain articles of the Convention, which limit the full realization of the rights of persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends the State party take steps to withdraw its interpretative declarations to ensure the full protection and promotion of the rights of persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee notes that the State party has communicated its intention to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention, but has not yet completed the ratification process.

8. The Committee recommends the State party expeditiously finalize the process to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned about the timeline for the ratification and implementation of the Convention in the Caribbean territories of the Netherlands.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite the ratification and full implementation of the Convention in the Caribbean part of the Netherlands, and establish a plan for implementing the Convention with clear targets, timelines, and indicators. Furthermore, the Committee recommends the State party establish a process for the close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities in the Caribbean part of the Netherlands through their representative organizations, as well as an independent monitoring mechanism of the implementation process. The Committee urges the State party to ensure the swift implementation of the Convention in the Caribbean part of the Netherlands, to ensure that persons with disabilities fully enjoy their rights, and base all new legislation on the human rights model of disability.

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive strategy that addresses all articles and principles of the Convention, which results in the Convention not being fully incorporated into domestic law;

(b) The lack of a systematic review process of existing laws, policies and regulations to ascertain their conformity with the obligations under the Convention, or that legislative action is taken to ensure compliance with the Convention, as well as the lack of harmonization in the implementation of the Convention across all levels of government, including national and municipal levels, resulting in inconsistencies as well as highly uneven protection and support for persons with disabilities infringing on their rights under the Convention;

(c) The uneven implementation of the Convention across municipalities, particularly in areas such as the legal obligation to devise an Inclusion Agenda, accessibility of public services, provision of social support, and funding for organizations of persons with disabilities, and the lack of coordination between municipalities, which create barriers for persons with disabilities and can significantly disrupt their lives and hinder their full participation in society, leading to a gap between the legal framework recognizing rights under the Convention and its practical implementation and everyday reality experienced by persons with disabilities;

(d) The judiciary and administrative bodies generally not interpreting domestic law in the light of the Convention, even in areas where the respective interpretive scope would exist.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a comprehensive strategy to mainstream all principles, obligations and rights of the Convention across all levels of government and ensure that all legislation and policies are in line with the human rights model of disability;

(b) Systematically review existing laws, policies and regulations to ascertain the legislative action required to conform with the obligations under the Convention, and establish human rights-based action plans with a clear concept of disability that contain measures to promote, protect and fulfil the rights under the Convention.

(c) Establish national standards and guidelines to ensure effective implementation of the Convention across municipalities, provide adequate resources and training to local authorities and assist municipalities in meeting their obligations under the Convention, especially in relation to the quality of support services and the establishment of an Inclusion Agenda; develop a strategy to ensure clear communication and coordination between municipalities to facilitate the continuity of services and support for persons with disabilities in all areas of life when moving between municipalities;

(d) Ensure that its judicial and administrative bodies consistently and effectively apply the rights enshrined in the Convention in individual cases, be it as bases for claims of action or as guidance for the interpretation of domestic law.

13. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities in policy- and decision-making processes, including women with disabilities, and the resulting failure to address specific requirements and barriers in legislation, policies and programs, including insufficient mechanisms for consultation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities at all levels of government, as well as the barriers that organisations of persons with disabilities face in participating equally in national and European standardisation processes, affecting the development of accessibility standards;

(b) The lack of financial support and insufficient structural funding for organisations of persons with disabilities to enable participation in public decision-making;

14. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop and implement a comprehensive strategy to ensure the participation of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, in all policy and legislative processes, including mechanisms for regular consultation and involvement, adequate resources and support to the organizations to build their capacity for effective participation, including in the Caribbean territory of the Netherlands, and promote the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in all areas and at all levels; prioritise the objective of adopting a clear strategy to create an infrastructure for participation in the National Strategy 2040;

(b) Adopt policies to create the financial preconditions for participation of all persons with disabilities through their representative organisations on all government levels and for all sizes of organisations, including by ensuring long-term and structural support.

Ukraine (2024)

6. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That the State party's terminology still does not align with the Convention, and that the lack of consistency remains, resulting in discriminatory treatment for persons with disabilities;

(b) The classification set forth in the legislation for persons with disabilities, which is obsolete and contrary to the paradigm shift of the Convention;

The prevalence of the medical model of disability in policies addressing persons with disabilities, indicating a lack of professional training for, and understanding of, their rights among public officials and professionals;

(c) That most of the provisions of the National Action Plan for the Implementation of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities for the period until 2020 were not executed, and that the State party did not adopt a monitoring mechanism for its implementation, resulting in the lack of recommendations or sanctions for non-compliance by relevant agencies;

(d) That the State party has not implemented the recommendations from the 2022 Committee's "Session report on the situation of persons with disabilities in Ukraine and in countries where they have fled after 24 February 2022, as a result of the aggression against Ukraine by the Russian Federation”.

7. The Committee reiterates its recommendation from the initial review of Ukraine (CRPD/C/UKR/CO/1, para. 8) to adopt a human rights-based approach to disability in all its laws, policies, and decisions, and it further recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct a comprehensive review of its domestic legal framework on the rights of persons with disabilities to fully align its terminology and content to the Convention;
- (b) Amend its legislation to eliminate the classification of persons with disabilities, and ensure that all its legal framework recognize and guarantee their rights on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Repeal the medical model of disability in all its policies and programs and amend its legal framework accordingly to ensure that it reflects a human rights-based approach to disability;
- (d) Design a monitoring mechanism for the National Action Plan for the Implementation of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities for the period up to 2025 and ensure its continuation beyond 2025;
- (e) Implement the 2022 Committee’s “Session report on the situation of persons with disabilities in Ukraine and in countries where they have fled after 24 February 2022, as a result of the aggression against Ukraine by the Russian Federation”.

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective procedures for the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in public decision-making processes.

9. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party develop effective procedures for the involvement of persons with disabilities in all public decision-making mechanisms.

Azerbaijan (2024)

7. The Committee appreciates the process undertaken by the State party to review legislation and change derogatory terminology in relation to persons with disabilities and its efforts to use digital technologies concerning disability assessments (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, paras. 12 to 17). The Committee observes, however, with concern:

- (a) Constitutional provisions that exempt persons with disabilities from enjoying rights and duties and the lack of harmonization of national legislation and policies with the Convention, including the human rights model of disability (CRPD/C/AZE/2-3, para. 22);
- (b) The remaining, continued use, in laws and policies, of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities that emphasize a person’s impairments, perpetuate medical and paternalistic approaches to disability and reinforce stigma against persons with disabilities;
- (c) The prevalence of the medical, charitable and paternalistic approaches to disability, exemplified in disability assessments on the basis of medical reports, which reduce persons with disabilities to their impairments and health conditions and reports of alleged corruption practices at the district and local levels concerning medical histories to be sent to the electronic referral system;
- (d) The absence of a national plan of action to implement the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Harmonize its Constitution, as well as its legal and policy framework on disability, with the provisions of the Convention, by integrating the human rights model of disability into its laws, regulations and policies;
- (b) Repeal all sections in legislation, policies and regulations that use derogatory concepts and terminology, particularly in relation to persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and ensure the conformity of all legislation, policies and regulations with the human rights model of disability;

(c) Ensure that disability assessments through the Subsystem of Medical and Social Expertise and Rehabilitation (TSERAS) meet Convention standards, in particular that accessible information about TSERAS assessments is available, that assessments identify the requirements, will and preference of persons with disabilities and are focused on eliminating barriers, and that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in monitoring TSERAS and all assessment systems;

(d) Adopt a national action plan and programmes with benchmarks, baselines, indicators and budgetary allocations to ensure the implementation of the Convention;

(e) Strengthen capacity-building programmes for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State party under the Convention, and closely consult and actively involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of training for public officials.

9. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The absence of close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, including women with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development of legislation and policies;

(b) The obstacles faced by organizations of persons with disabilities to securing grants from foreign donors and low national budget allocations for them that has led to the closure of some organizations (A/HRC/WG.6/44/AZE/3, see para. 31);

(c) Restrictions in registry of civil society organizations, including barriers that organizations of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities face in obtaining legal status and registry.

10. Recalling the recommendations of the Report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review (A/HRC/55/15) and its own general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Set up formal mechanisms to ensure close consultations and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, on a regular basis, in public decision-making processes, such as the review of legislation and development of public policies at the national, district and municipal levels;

(b) Remove legal provisions limiting access to international and private funds by civil society organizations, and ensure that the Agency for state support of Non-Governmental Organizations includes organizations of persons with disabilities in its remit and as beneficiaries of international cooperation;

(c) Recognize legal status and registry to organizations of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities regardless the legal capacity of their members and provide them with financial and technical support to undertake advocacy for the implementation of the Convention.

Bahrain (2024)¹

7. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The widespread use of the medical model in national laws, including the definition of disability contained in the Care, Rehabilitation and Employment of Persons with Disabilities Act) No. 74 of 2006, as amended.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

(b) The adoption of provisions based on ableism, especially in the Civil Service Law, articles (11) and (25), as well as in the Civil Code and the Penal Code.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Harmonise the definition of disability in its national laws and policies with the general principles of the Convention and the human rights-based paradigm.

(b) Repeal the provisions adopting the "able and fit" criterion in its national legislation and put in place provisions that ensure non-discrimination and equal opportunities for persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities.

8. The Committee is deeply concerned about the complete absence of participation and consultation of persons with disabilities and their organisations in decision-making processes in all matters relating to their rights and issues, including active participation in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

9. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) and in particular paragraphs 15, 16 and 60, the Committee recommends that the State party immediately

(a) Develop a transparent national mechanism to enable persons with disabilities and their organisations, including organisations of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, children with disabilities and family organisations, to effectively participate in the processes of policy development, enactment, implementation and monitoring of legislation and the design of programmes and services.

(b) Remove all legislative and practical barriers that prevent or restrict the expression of views and opinions of persons with disabilities and their organisations in all matters relating to their rights, issues and public affairs.

(c) Provide support to organisations of persons with disabilities, including organisations of persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities, to strengthen their institutional and technical capacities to participate effectively in all matters related to the rights and issues of persons with disabilities.

Costa Rica (2024)

5. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) El uso de un modelo médico de la discapacidad en muchos ámbitos de la legislación y de la política, y en particular en el proceso de certificación de la discapacidad;

b) Que persistan las dificultades y los largos plazos para la obtención del certificado de discapacidad, debido en particular a la falta de criterios claros y personal capacitado.

6. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

a) Armonice la definición de discapacidad en las leyes y políticas en todos los niveles de gobierno, así como en el proceso de certificación de la discapacidad, con los principios generales y las disposiciones de la Convención, en particular en lo que respecta a la no discriminación y al modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos;

b) Intensifique sus esfuerzos para simplificar y agilizar la obtención del certificado de discapacidad, mediante criterios claros, y que fortalezca los mecanismos de capacitación periódica de los profesionales responsables en materia de derechos humanos, dignidad, autonomía y necesidades de las personas con discapacidad.

7. El Comité observa con preocupación que, pese a la existencia de un mecanismo nacional independiente de supervisión de la implementación de la Convención, la Defensoría de los Habitantes, no se haya nombrado al personal capacitado para cumplir su mandato. Le preocupa también la insuficiente independencia del Foro Consultivo de personas con discapacidad con relación al Consejo Nacional de Personas con Discapacidad (CONAPDIS).

8. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte la resolución de la medida cautelar administrativa para nombrar al personal responsable por la supervisión de la implementación de la Convención, así como la asignación de recursos financieros suficientes para que cumplan su mandato. El Comité también recomienda la adopción de todas las medidas necesarias para garantizar que el Foro Consultivo de personas con discapacidad sea independiente del CONAPDIS para garantizar la estrecha consulta y participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en los organismos del Estado encargados de coordinar el seguimiento de la implementación de la Convención.

Kazakhstan (2024)

7. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The use of the medical model of disability in the Social Code (Sub para-105 and 106), and that the degree of impairment and functional capabilities of persons with disabilities continue to guide disability assessments (CRPD/C/KAZ/RQ/1, see paras. 7 and 8), leading to underrepresentation of children and adults with disabilities in government registries;
- (b) Discriminatory provisions, including derogatory terminology and ableism, in the Civil Code (art. 26), in the the Code on the Health of the People and the Healthcare System (arts. 137, 170 and 175) and in the Criminal Code (art. 16) affecting persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (c) The incomplete mainstreaming of the rights of persons with disabilities in sectoral policies and programmes and limited information about policies to address the situation of persons with disabilities living in rural areas (44.8 percent), migrant, asylum seeking and refugee persons with disabilities and persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic minorities, including Uzbeks, Uighurs, Koreans, Tatars and Azerbaijanis;
- (d) The wide-spread attitudinal barriers faced by persons with disabilities in public institutions by professionals and staff.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Review and amend provisions in the Social Code, the Rules for Conducting Medical and Social Expertise (Order No. 260) and the process of early identification for children with disabilities, with the aim of adopting a concept of disability in line with the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Establish rules and processes for the identification and assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities, based on the requirements, will and preference of persons with disabilities, provide persons with disabilities with accessible information about such assessments, and ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in their monitoring;
- (c) Conduct a comprehensive review of the national laws, including the criminal, civil, and health care codes and their bylaws, with a view to harmonize them with the Convention, and in particular repeal ableist legal provisions and derogatory terminology;
- (d) Ensure that implementation of the national plan of action 2025 includes targeted programmes for persons with disabilities living in rural areas, migrant, asylum seeking and refugee persons with disabilities and persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic minorities, including Uzbeks, Uighurs, Koreans, Tatars and Azerbaijanis, and include an independent monitoring mechanism fulfilling the requirements of article 33 (2) and (3) of the Convention;
- (e) Develop a comprehensive strategy to shift from the medical model to the human rights model of disability, in legislation, public policies and at the institutional level.

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The limited information about legally entrenched mechanisms to closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, notably organizations of women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and organizations of children with disabilities, in public decision-making processes;
- (b) The limited information about close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities in public decision-making in communities, including in villages (auls) and rural settlements (HRI/CORE/KAZ/2019, see paras. 4 and 138);

(c) The lack of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities in national consultations and government forums with civil society.

10. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop legally entrenched, accessible and transparent mechanisms to closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and organizations of children with disabilities, in public decision-making processes, policy development and monitoring, and strengthen the capacity of organizations of persons with disabilities;

(b) Establish legally entrenched mechanisms to guarantee close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities in communities, including settlements and villages;

(c) Ensure systematic participation of persons with disabilities in the Citizens Forum, in mechanisms designed by the Coordinating Council on Social Protection of Persons with Disabilities and by councils for persons with disabilities at the provincial level, including by providing persons with disabilities with accessible information and methods of engagement, including information in Easy Read, establishing adequate time frames for consultation and mechanisms monitoring the results of decision-making.

Nicaragua (2024)

6. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) La falta de medidas para reconocer explícitamente en la Constitución y en otras leyes la discriminación por motivos de discapacidad, incluida la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación;

b) El claro enfoque médico hacia la discapacidad en todas las políticas del Estado parte, ejemplificado porque la certificación de la discapacidad se establece bajo criterios médicos por el Ministerio de salud;

c) La falta de información sobre la frecuencia con la cual sesiona el Gabinete de Personas con Discapacidad, sobre qué leyes se han modificado y en cuantas y cuales políticas públicas vigentes han intervenido;

d) Que continúa en vigor la legislación que restringe indebidamente la libertad de asociación, y que entre el 15 de agosto de 2022 y el 15 de junio de 2023, la Asamblea Nacional y el Ministerio de Gobernación utilizaron las leyes 1040 y 1115 para cancelar la personalidad jurídica de 1.988 organizaciones, ignorándose cuantas de estas son de personas con discapacidad;

e) Las dificultades que existen en el proceso de establecimiento y de obtención de la personalidad jurídica por parte de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad.

7. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que promueva una estrategia transversal y de largo alcance para hacer efectivos todos los derechos consagrados en la Convención, y en particular que:

a) Establezca, a la brevedad posible, los mecanismos necesarios para que en la Constitución se contemple explícitamente la no discriminación por discapacidad y que el resto de las leyes, políticas y programas contengan terminología acorde con la Convención y la denegación de ajustes razonables como discriminación por discapacidad;

b) Asimile el enfoque de derechos humanos de la Convención para que sea reflejado en todas las leyes, políticas y programas que se establezcan en el Estado parte. Que la certificación de la discapacidad sea realizada por un equipo multidisciplinario y no solo por médicos;

c) Establezca un plan anual de reuniones periódicas entre las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad y las instancias de gobierno para analizar conjuntamente la armonización de la legislación, las políticas públicas, la cooperación internacional y todos los programas que en materia de discapacidad se establezcan en el Estado parte;

d) Se abstenga de cancelar el registro y personalidad jurídica a organizaciones de la sociedad civil, especialmente a las de mujeres y de personas con discapacidad y tome acciones para asegurar que ninguna organización de personas con discapacidad sea limitada en su participación, sin importar su filiación política.

e) Asegure que ninguna organización de personas con discapacidad sea limitada en su participación, sin importar su filiación política y que no se agreda a las personas defensoras de los derechos humanos, en específico a las de personas con discapacidad y que tome medidas para promover, agilizar y simplificar la obtención de la personalidad jurídica de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, acercando el trámite a las regiones rurales y remotas.

Sweden (2024)

5. The Committee is concerned about a gradual return to the medical model in many areas of the law, particularly in the social security and disability support systems, that the definition of disability in Section 5(4) of the Discrimination Act 2008 solely focuses on the impairments and does not extend to the societal barriers resulting in disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party harmonize the definition of disability in laws and policies with the human rights model of disability, and revise, in particular, the definition of disability in the Discrimination Act 2008 as the result of the interaction between impairment and socially constructed barriers.

7. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The budget for measures to implement the economic, social and cultural rights guaranteed by the Convention has decreased as a percentage of GDP for an extended period of time;

(b) The Convention has not been fully incorporated into domestic Swedish law and hence does not provide a basis for legal claims in administrative and judicial procedures;

(c) The lack of a systematic review of existing laws, policies and regulations to ascertain the legislative action required to conform with the obligations under the Convention;

(d) The judiciary and administrative bodies do not generally interpret domestic law in light of the Convention, even in areas where the respective interpretive scope would exist.

8. The Committee recommends the State party:

(a) Take measures to achieving progressively the full realization of the economic, social and cultural rights under the Convention, and that no retrogressive measures are taken;

(b) Review the status of the Convention in its legal system, fully incorporate it into domestic law, as recommended in its previous Concluding observations;

(c) Systematically review existing laws, policies and regulations to ascertain the legislative action required to conform with the obligations under the Convention, and establish human rights-based action plans with a clear concept of disability that contain measures to promote, protect and fulfil the rights under the Convention;

(d) Ensure that its judicial and administrative bodies effectively apply the rights enshrined therein in individual cases, be it as bases for claims of action or as guidance for the interpretation of domestic law.

9. The Committee notes that the current disability policy improves the monitoring of municipalities in their efforts to implement the Convention. It is, however, concerned:

(a) About the wide discrepancies in the implementation of the Convention among the regions and the municipalities;

(b) Insufficient monitoring of the implementation of the Convention by the regions and the municipalities on the national level;

(c) Insufficient legal remedies, complaint procedures, and redress mechanisms for persons with disabilities against inadequate implementation of the Convention by the regions and municipalities.

10. The Committee recommends the State party:

(a) Bearing in mind its obligations under article 4 (5) of the Convention, improve coordination among the regions and municipalities in their efforts to implement the Convention and ensure that their measures to implement the rights of persons with disabilities are in accordance with their obligations under the Convention, and provide persons with disabilities and their representative organisations with effective remedies against inadequate implementation on the regional and municipal levels;

(b) Establish a mechanism on the national level to effectively monitor the implementation of the Convention by the regions and municipalities, with binding targets, indicators, and effective measures to remedy discerned insufficiencies;

(c) Establish effective complaint procedures and redress mechanisms against insufficient implementation of the Convention by the regions and municipalities, accessible for individuals and organizations of persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee is concerned about the lack of systematic and institutionalized engagement with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, of women with disabilities, of children with disabilities, and of national minorities with disabilities in all matters affecting them, and of legally entrenched processes to this end.

12. Recalling the Committee's general comment No. 7 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop and implement legally entrenched procedures for close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, women with disabilities, children with disabilities, and national minorities with disabilities in all matters affecting them, set standards governing these procedures, guaranteeing, among others, sufficient time for their responses and providing all relevant documents in accessible formats;

(b) Strengthen the capacity of organizations of persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, women with disabilities, children with disabilities, and national minorities with disabilities to actively participate in all processes designed to implement the Convention, and allocate sufficient funds for such organizations.

Zambia (2024)

5. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The definition of persons with disabilities in the national legislation, and different concepts of disability in various professional and legal areas which result in the lack of recognition of all persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

(b) The prevalence of medical model of disability in the State party, including within its disability assessment system and in relation to the eligibility criteria for accessing necessary services and support measures;

(c) The insufficient implementation of the Persons with Disabilities Act of 2012 due to the delays in the adoption of specific regulations related to inclusive education, health, accessibility and employment;

(d) The use, in laws and policies, of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities that emphasize a person's impairments, reflect medical and paternalistic approaches to disability and reinforce stigma against persons with disabilities;

(e) The lack of awareness of the rights recognized in the Convention among the judiciary and justice sector professionals, policy- and lawmakers, teachers, medical, health and social workers and all other professionals working with persons with disabilities;

(f) The fact that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Review the existing disability-related legislation and policies and align them with the provisions of the Convention and adopt a unified concept of disability in all professional and legal areas that is aligned with the purpose and principles of the Convention and covers all persons with disabilities;

(b) Reorient its disability assessment systems by replacing elements of the medical model of disability with principles of the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion;

(c) Develop all necessary regulations and guidelines for the full implementation of the Persons with disabilities Act of 2012;

(d) Adopt measures to amend and/or repeal legislation that includes derogatory terminology and concepts against persons with disabilities and ensure they recognize the evolving concept of disability as arising from the interaction between persons with impairments and barriers to the full participation of persons with disabilities in society;

(e) Provide awareness raising and capacity-building on the human rights model of disability for government officials, at all levels, legal professionals, judges and prosecutors, and professionals working with persons with disabilities. The State party should involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of training for public officials;

(f) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without further delay.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in the design, implementation and monitoring of disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the diverse groups of organizations of persons with disabilities, including those of women and children with disabilities.

Andorra (2023)

7. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The prevalence of the medical approach in the disability assessment system, and the delay in the adoption of a new set of regulations governing the National Evaluation Commission (CONAVA), which establishes the criteria for assessing disability;

(b) The delay in the adoption of a new law on the rights of persons with disabilities and the absence of a comprehensive strategy and long-term national action plan for the implementation of the Convention;

(c) The limited mainstreaming of the rights of persons with disabilities in legislation and public policies;

(d) The lack of awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities among policymakers, government officials, the parish councils (Comuns), the Parliament (Consell General), legal professionals, judges, teachers, health personnel and other professionals working with persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, the State party:

(a) Expedite the adoption of a new set of regulations governing the National Evaluation Commission (CONAVA) and the criteria for assessing disability, in line with the Convention and the human rights-based model of disability;

(b) Adopt a new law on the rights of persons with disabilities in line with the Convention, as well as a comprehensive strategy and a national action plan to implement the Convention that contains appropriate human, technical and financial resources, benchmarks, measurable indicators, and time frames;

(c) Adopt a twin-track approach by mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities across all legislation and public policies;

(d) Provide systematic capacity-building on the Convention and the human rights model of disability for policymakers, government officials, the Comuns, the Consell General, the judiciary, legal professionals, teachers, health personnel and other professionals working with persons with disabilities and involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of these training modules.

9. The Committee observes the following with concern:

(a) The limited capacity of the National Council for Disability (CONADIS) to carry out its duties as a mechanism for coordinating matters relating to the implementation of the Convention;

(b) The absence of participation of the Andorran Federation of Associations of Persons with Disabilities (FAAD) in the review of the State party under this Committee, and the limited participation and involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design, implementation, and monitoring of disability-related laws and policies.

10. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Reinforce the capacity of the National Council for Disability (CONADIS) and endow it with the human and financial resources it needs in order to effectively fulfil its mandate to coordinate the implementation of the Convention at all levels;

(b) Strengthen measures and mechanisms for the close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including the Andorran Federation of Associations of Persons with Disabilities (FAAD), in public decision-making processes and ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the diverse groups of organizations of persons with disabilities, in the design, implementation, and monitoring of disability-related laws and policies.

Austria (2023)

6. The Committee notes with great concern the scant attention the Länder governments give to the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends the governments of all Länder respect the principle of general international law, codified in article 27 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties, that a party may not invoke the provisions of its internal law as justification for its failure to perform a treaty, specified in article 4(5) of the Convention that “(t)he provisions of the present Convention shall extend to all parts of federal states without any limitations or exceptions”, and act accordingly.

8. The Committee is concerned about a wide variety of different legislative approaches to implement the Convention on the Federal level and on the level of the Länder, including, but not restricted to, widely differing concepts of disability, often based on a medical understanding of disability. The Committee notes, in this respect, particularly measures 1 to 17 of the National Action Plan on Disability 2022-2030.

9. The Committee recalls its Concluding Observations of 2013, paras. 9 and 11, (CRPD/C/AUT/CO/1) to expeditiously amend its laws – on the Federal level as well as on the level of the Länder – to substantively align Federal law and the law of the Länder and to render them compliant with the human rights model of disability.

10. Taking note of the fulfilment reservation (Erfüllungsvorbehalt) issued by the national council upon ratification of the Convention, and the ensuing dependence of judicially enforceable individual rights on domestic transformative legislation, the Committee is concerned about the effective implementation of the Convention and the provision of effective domestic remedies for the purposes of article 2 of the Optional Protocol.

11. The Committee recommends to enact domestic legislation providing judicially enforceable individual rights of all individual rights guaranteed by the Convention, or to rescind its fulfilment reservation.

12. The Committee is concerned that there are no structured processes based on law, neither on the Federal level nor on the level of the Länder, to closely consult with and actively involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the Convention.

13. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) and its Concluding Observations of 2013, para. 11, the Committee recommends that the State party enact legislation, on the Federal level and on the level of the Länder, to institute structured processes to closely consult with and actively involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the development, implementation, and monitoring of legislation and policies to implement the Convention.

14. The Committee is concerned about the lack of established procedures to implement the Recommendations of the Committee adopted in its individual communications procedure.

15. The Committee recommends to establish, on the Federal level and in the Länder, administrative and judicial procedures designed to implement the case-specific recommendations of individual communications, and procedures designed to implement the general recommendations in individual communications that often require legislative or regulatory action.

Germany (2023)

5. The Committee is concerned about the use of a medical model of disability in many areas of the law, at the Federal and Länder levels.

6. Recalling its concluding observations of 2015 (CRPD/C/DEU/CO/1), para. 8(a), the Committee recommends the State party harmonize the definition of disability in laws and policies, at Federal and Länder levels, with the general principles and provisions of the Convention, particularly with respect to non-discrimination and the human rights model of disability.

7. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of recognition, across all government portfolio areas, that disability is a responsibility of all government entities, and the lack of mainstreaming of disability-inclusive measures in all areas of state, society and law;

(b) The lack of a systematic review of existing laws, policies and regulations to ascertain the legislative action required to conform with the obligations under the Convention;

(c) The lack of a general right of associations to take legal action to enforce the rights under the Convention, the rare use of such rights in the areas where the required statutory bases exist, and – in most of these statutory bases – the confinement of remedies available to declaratory judgments;

(d) The lack of systematic and institutionalized engagement with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities, in all matters affecting them, and of processes for close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities;

(e) Insufficient resources of organizations of persons with disabilities to actively participate in the development and the implementation of laws, policies, programs and regulations to implement the Convention, and undue administrative hurdles to access funding;

(f) The highly uneven efforts to implement the Convention across the Länder, and an insufficient human rights perspective in the action plans of many Länder.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop strategies to strengthen commitment across all government portfolio areas to ensure that disability is recognized as a cross-cutting issue in all areas of state and society, and to effectively mainstream disability-related measures in all areas of the law;
- (b) Systematically review the conformity of existing laws, policies and administrative practices with the obligations of the State party under the Convention and establish human rights-based action plans with a clear concept of disability, containing adequate measures to promote, protect and fulfil the rights under the Convention, and with targets and indicators to monitor the implementation of the Convention, as recommended in its concluding observations of 2015 (CRPD/C/DEU/CO/1), para. 8(b);
- (c) Review the statutory bases of the right of associations to take legal action to enforce the rights under the Convention, at the Federal and Länder levels, enact a generally applicable right of associations to take legal action, provide effective remedies beyond merely declaratory judgments, and remove undue burdens such as the risk of prohibitive litigation costs and excessive admissibility requirements;
- (d) Develop and implement institutionalized procedures for close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities,, in all matters affecting them, set the standards governing these procedures, guaranteeing, among others, sufficient time for their responses and providing all relevant documents in accessible formats, in line with general comment No. 7 (2018), para. 54, and as recommended in the concluding observations of 2015 (CRPD/C/DEU/CO/1), para. 10;
- (e) Recalling the general comment No. 7 (2018), paras. 60 and 61, strengthen the capacity of organizations of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to actively participate in all measures designed to implement the Convention and to effectively employ their statutory rights to take legal action, and allocate sufficient funds. Ensure that funding is not solely project-based and may be accessed without undue administrative hurdles;
- (f) Bearing in mind its obligations under article 4(5) of the Convention, improve coordination among the Länder in their efforts to implement the Convention, and ensure that their action plans to implement the rights of persons with disabilities are in accordance with their obligations under the Convention.

9. Taking into consideration that the State party ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention, the Committee is concerned about the highly textual method employed by the State party's courts in their determination of the justiciability of the provisions of the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party, in particular its courts, determine the justiciability of the provisions of the Convention, including rights subject to progressive realization based on article 4 para. 2 of the Convention, closely aligned with the Committee's jurisprudence under the Optional Protocol.

Israel (2023)

7. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The State party's reservation to article 23 (1) (a) of the Convention with regard to the provisions concerning marriage, to the extent that the laws on personal status, which are binding on the various religious communities in Israel, do not conform with these provisions. The reservation to article 23 (1) (a) is incompatible with the object and purpose of the Convention as it undermines the principle of non-discrimination, equality of persons with disabilities before and under the law and the State parties' obligation to prohibit all discrimination on the basis of disability;
- (b) The lack of incorporation of the Convention in the domestic legal order and that the provisions of the Convention can not be invoked before or directly applied by the courts, other tribunals or administrative authorities;

(c)The delay in adopting legislative measures to implement the Convention, including subordinate regulations to fulfil provisions of the Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities Law of 1998;

(d)Discriminatory legislation, policies and practices, including the Welfare Law (Treatment for persons with Intellectual- Developmental Disabilities) of 1969, the Treatment of persons with mental disabilities law of 1991 and gaps in the Social Services for Persons with Disabilities Law;

(e)The absence of legislative and policy measures to address the situation and rights of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities in the occupied Palestinian territory, particularly in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem and Gaza and the State party's continued position that the Convention and other international human rights treaties do not apply beyond its territory;

(f)The lack of disability mainstreaming across public policies and that public policies and programmes in areas such as education, health and housing are based on the medical approach, reinforcing negative stereotypes of persons with disabilities as passive recipients of care, and dependent on rehabilitation and welfare;

(g)That disability assessments based on diagnosis continue to prevent persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities from being recognised in the social security system, accessing individual support to live in the community, education, health, including health insurances, and employment.

8.The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a)Review its reservation to article 23 (1) (a) of the Convention in order to withdraw the reservation in an established time frame;

(b)Incorporate the rights of the Convention in its domestic legal order and strengthen judicial training on the nature and scope of the State party's obligations under the Convention and on the justiciability of the Convention;

(c)Establish a process to identify remaining gaps in subordinate regulations and enact, within a reasonable timeframe, required provisions to give effect to the Convention in all spheres of life, in relation to all persons with disabilities. The State party should adopt a mechanism to expeditiously review draft subordinate legislation and ensure its compatibility with the Convention and the human rights model of disability;

(d)Conduct review of legislation, policies and practices that discriminate against persons with disabilities directly or indirectly and amend or repeal to meet Convention standards;

(e)Adopt measures to give effect to the Convention and to address the situation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities in occupied territories over which it exercises jurisdiction or has effective control and review discriminatory legislation affecting Palestinian persons with disabilities, and facilitate the exercise of their rights, in accordance with applicable international law;

(f)Adopt a comprehensive strategy and action plan for implementing the Convention, setting up a reasonable timeframe, benchmarks, indicators of progress at the national and municipal levels, and accountability mechanisms and ensure that disability is mainstreamed across sectorial policies in line with the Convention. The State party should address eliminating attitudinal and environmental barriers in all areas of life, with a human rights-based approach, and uphold autonomy of all persons with disabilities;

(g)Ensure that disability assessments meet Convention standards, particularly that accessible information about assessments is available, that assessments identify the requirements, will and preference of persons with disabilities, are focused on the elimination of barriers and that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in monitoring assessment systems.

9.The Committee observes with concern:

- (a)The lack of accessible, systematic and structured consultations with persons with disabilities across different sectors of policy-making and that their opinions are not reflected in the decisions adopted;
- (b)The lack of measures to recognise organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities and involve them in decision-making forums;
- (c)That participatory forums to consult with persons with disabilities can be dominated by academics, service providers and families as opposed to organisations constituted of and governed by persons with disabilities;
- (d)Limits in participation and the requirement of assessments of civil society organizations that receive funds from foreign donors.

10. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish criteria for close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations providing for accessible information and methodologies of engagement, including information of discussions at the Knesset, adequate time frames for consultation and accountability mechanisms that ensure due weight and genuine consideration of the opinions of persons with disabilities, including during discussions at the Shapira Committee at the Ministry of Education;
- (b) Take measures to recognise and support organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities and mechanisms to ensure their participation and involvement in decision-making forums;
- (c) Ensure that participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations is upheld and that their opinions are prioritised in all matters concerning them;
- (d) Ensure participation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities and other civil society organizations and strengthen their ability to seek and obtain adequate funding, including from international actors.

Malawi (2023)

7. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That the review of several pieces of legislation and policies, in particular the Disability Act (Cap 33:06) and repeal of the Handicapped Persons Act of 1971 leading to a new piece of comprehensive legislation is yet to be completed, and that changes introduced to the almost enacted bill have been made without consulting or involving persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) That women and girls with disabilities were not explicitly mentioned in the Disability Act of 2012 and that the almost enacted Persons with Disabilities Bill of 2023 continues this omission;
- (c) The delay and lack of priority of disability-related policies and programmes to implement the Convention;
- (d) Discriminatory language and portrayal of persons with disabilities, including derogatory terminology in laws, among public authorities, and in the media.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Complete as expeditiously as possible its review of the Disability Act enacted in 2012 and repeal of the Handicapped Persons Act of 1971 and ensure that the new piece of legislation, and legislation in all areas of law, including family relations, mental health, property and personal security are brought into line with the Convention and the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Ensure involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities throughout the process of enacting the new disability Bill and ensure that proposals made by persons with disabilities are appropriately considered and addressed at all stages of the process;

(c)Ensure that the new legislation being developed to replace the Disability Act of 2012 recognizes the rights of women and girls with disabilities, and incorporates measures to address marginalization and discrimination against them. The State party should address proposals submitted by women with disabilities through their representative organizations in their position paper presented to the Ministry of Justice;

(d)Provide information to organizations of persons with disabilities concerning fund allocation for the Disability Trust fund, ensure appropriate financial resources to it, and set up criteria for distribution of resources encompassing all persons with disabilities regardless of type of impairment. The State party should gather disaggregated information about budget allocations, and ensure periodic and accessible accountability procedures;

(e)Review and amend legislation and public policies with the aim to withdraw derogatory terminology concerning persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism, and ensure that training for public officials includes modules on women and girls with disabilities, gender equality, and persons with disabilities in marginalized situations.

9.The Committee observes with concern:

(a)The lack of periodic consultations with persons with disabilities at the National Advisory and Coordinating Committee on Disability Issues, and the underrepresentation of organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and women with disabilities in consultative processes, particularly in discussion of sectorial strategies and programmes;

(b)That organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities lack financial resources to conduct advocacy and participate in public consultations.

10.Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Adopt a national legislative framework for close consultations with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensuring mechanisms for the participation of organizations of women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and children with disabilities in the implementation, enforcement and funding of programmes aimed at supporting the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b)Support organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, and persons with psychosocial disabilities, including by providing independent and self-managed funding and encourage their access to foreign funding as part of international cooperation and development aid and cover expenses for participation in consultations.

Mauritania (2023)

5.The Committee is concerned:

(a)The lack of harmonization of the national legislation and policy framework with the Convention, including the human rights model of disability;

(b)The use, in laws and policies, of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities, which emphasizes persons' impairments, reflect the medical and paternalistic approaches to disability and reinforces stigma against persons with disabilities;

(c)Despite that fact that the Convention can be directly invoked in courts, there is a lack of awareness among policy makers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, about the rights recognized in the Convention.

6.The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Harmonize its Constitution, as well as its legal and policy framework on disability with the provisions of the Convention, by integrating the human rights model of disability in its laws, regulations and practices;

(b) Repeal all sections in the legislation, policies and regulations that use derogatory terms, and ensure that they conform with the human rights model of disability;

(c) Strengthen capacity-building programmes for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State party under the Convention, and involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of training for public officials;

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in the design and implementation of disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the diverse groups of organizations of persons with disabilities, including those of women and children with disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities.

Mongolia (2023)

5. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) The Constitution of Mongolia does not contain a provision of discrimination on the ground of disability, and that disability-related legislation and policies have not yet been fully brought in line with the Convention;

(b) The medical model of disability is still prevalent in the State party, in its legislation, regulations and practices, which has a negative impact by preventing the inclusion of persons with disabilities in society and limiting their access to appropriate services and support;

(c) The lack of awareness among policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, about the rights recognized in the Convention.

6. The Committee recommend the State Party:

(a) Amend its Constitution in order to include a provision of discrimination on the ground of disability in line with Convention, and harmonize all national legislation and policies with the Convention, recognizing persons with disabilities as rights holders on an equal basis with others, including by ensuring close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in particular women with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities;

(b) Review all national legislation and policies and harmonize them with the Convention, including by transposing into domestic law the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion;

(c) With the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, provide capacity-building programmes for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State party under the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned:

(a) About a lack of appropriate measures to ensure an effective coordination and operation of the National Council for the Protection of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities at all levels, and the General Authority for Development of Persons with Disabilities;

(b) The lack of budget allocation and the insufficient cross sectoral collaboration and measures taken to implement the National program on Rights, Participation and Development for Persons with Disabilities (2018-2022).

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take necessary mechanisms to ensure an effective function, coordination and operation of the National Council for the Protection of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities at all levels, including the national and local branch councils, and the General Authority for Development of Persons with Disabilities, in harmonizing the national legislations with the Convention and to ensure inter-sectoral synergy, promotion of human rights of persons with disabilities and increase the meaningful participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, in particular women with disabilities, in the decision-making;

(b) Adopt the necessary measures to increase budget allocation and ensure an effective cross sectoral collaboration to implement the National program on Rights, participation and development for Persons with Disabilities (2018-2022) and ensure monitoring of its implementation, and extend the National Programme beyond 2022.

9. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in decision-making processes concerning disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure close consultation participation and that meaningful participation consultations are held with the whole range of organizations of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, intersex persons with disabilities, women with disabilities, refugees and migrants with disabilities, autistic persons, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender persons with disabilities and persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support.

Paraguay (2023)

7. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) La ausencia de una estrategia para modificar la terminología y definiciones peyorativas para referirse a personas con discapacidad empleada en el artículo 58 de la Constitución y en distintas normativas e instrumentos de recolección de datos;

b) Que persistan dificultades para que las personas obtengan el certificado de discapacidad, que quienes lo extienden no estén suficientemente capacitados y que los criterios establecidos no sean claros;

c) Las dificultades que existen en el proceso para la obtención de la personalidad jurídica por parte de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad;

d) La necesidad de actualización y cabal aplicación del Plan de Acción Nacional por los Derechos de Personas con Discapacidad;

e) Que el presupuesto asignado a la SENADIS se emplee prioritariamente en las funciones asistenciales, en lugar de equilibrarlo con su papel de incidir en todos los órganos del Estado para lograr la transversalidad.

8.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que promueva una estrategia transversal y de largo alcance para hacer efectivos todos los derechos consagrados en la Convención, y en particular que:

a)Modifique el artículo 58 de la Constitución y el resto de las leyes, políticas y programas para que contengan terminología acorde con la Convención;

b)Revise y actualice los criterios para evaluar la discapacidad, implementando una evaluación holística y multidisciplinaria de las necesidades de protección y apoyo basada en derechos. Además, que capacite al personal que otorga los certificados y que evite la centralización y burocracia en el trámite, acercando este a las regiones rurales y remotas;

c)Tome medidas para agilizar y simplificar la obtención de la personalidad jurídica de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, acercando el trámite a las regiones rurales y remotas;

d)Tome medidas para actualizar el Plan de Acción Nacional por los Derechos de Personas con Discapacidad en todas sus metas, líneas de base e indicadores y establezca las medidas y mecanismos necesarios para vigilar su cabal aplicación; e)Dote a la SENADIS con los recursos suficientes para que cumpla efectivamente con su rol de transversalizar el enfoque de derechos humanos sobre discapacidad en el diseño e implementación de las políticas públicas, por medio del seguimiento, supervisión y prestación de asistencia técnica a los sectores pertinentes, y que las funciones asistenciales sean trasladadas al Ministerio de Desarrollo Social.

9.El Comité reconoce que se ha mejorado la capacidad de convocatoria de las personas con discapacidad y sus organizaciones para participar en las consultas y temas que les conciernen, incluyendo la consulta nacional para la nueva ley de discapacidad. Sin embargo, le preocupa:

a)La insuficiente participación de las personas con discapacidad y de las organizaciones que las representan, en su diversidad, en los organismos gubernamentales para el seguimiento de la aplicación de la Convención;

b)La falta de criterios claros para la elección y evaluación de los integrantes de diversos mecanismos formales de participación y consulta, así como la insuficiente representación de organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en estos espacios;

c)La insuficiente formación acerca de la Convención dirigida a todas las personas responsables de formular políticas y legislación, el poder judicial y los profesionales del sector de la justicia, el personal penitenciario, la policía, el personal de salud, el personal docente, los trabajadores sociales, los trabajadores de los medios de comunicación y demás profesionales que trabajan con las personas con discapacidad.

10.Recordando su observación general núm. 7 (2018), relativa al artículo 4, párrafo 3 y al artículo 33 de la Convención, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a)Garantizar la estrecha consulta y participación activa de las personas con discapacidad y de las organizaciones que las representan en los organismos encargados de dar seguimiento a la implementación de la Convención;

b)Asegurar el establecimiento de criterios claros y con perspectiva de género para la elección y evaluación de los integrantes de los mecanismos formales de participación y consulta sobre la elaboración de políticas y programas, y la participación efectiva de las personas con discapacidad en estos espacios;

c)Reforzar sus esfuerzos para ofrecer programas de capacitación sistemáticos acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y las obligaciones del Estado parte en virtud de la Convención, dirigidos a las personas que ejercen función pública en los tres poderes del Estado y a todos los niveles.

Angola (2023)

5.The Committee is concerned about:

(a)The definition of persons with disabilities in the legislation;

- (b) The lack of mechanism to enforce compliance to the various laws adopted to implement the Convention on the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (c) The limited involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (d) The lack of a clear distinction in domestic law and applicable policy frameworks between the terms of “general obligation to provide accessibility” and “the individual right to reasonable accommodation”.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend the legislation to bring it in line with the human rights model of disability, in particular, the Committee recommends to amend article 83 of the Constitution.
- (b) Designate a specific body to monitor and promote the compliance with laws and adherence to policies put in to place to guarantee the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (c) As a measure to promote meaningful consultation and active involvement in legislative and policy processes to implement the Convention, including the design, production and evaluation of measures, ensure awareness across the whole public sector of the cross cutting nature of disability, take measures to develop meaningful partnerships and consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities and take steps to ensure their appropriate resourcing in order for such partnerships and consultations to be effective in all matters affecting them;
- (d) The revision of relevant domestic law and policy to ensure that the individual right to “reasonable accommodation” under domestic law aligns with the positive duty of the State to provide reasonable accommodation under the Convention, which is a modification or adjustment that is necessary and appropriate where it is required in a particular case to ensure that a person with a disability can enjoy or exercise her or his rights.

Argentina (2023)

7. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) La persistencia del modelo médico en la legislación y las políticas de discapacidad, incluyendo la Ley 22.431 (1981) como ley marco en discapacidad, la Ley 24.901 (1997) sobre prestaciones básicas en habilitación y rehabilitación integral a favor de las personas con discapacidad, y el sistema de certificación de la discapacidad;
- b) La falta de actualización del Plan Nacional de Discapacidad, la falta de información sobre los avances del Gabinete Nacional para la Transversalización de las Políticas en Discapacidad y del Observatorio de la Discapacidad, y sobre el contenido del Anteproyecto de la nueva Ley de Discapacidad;
- c) El poco alcance del Certificado Único de Discapacidad y las barreras existentes para obtenerlo, incluyendo barreras administrativas, el insuficiente número de juntas evaluadoras interdisciplinarias especialmente a nivel provincial y la disparidad en los criterios aplicados para otorgarlo;
- d) Los términos peyorativos en la legislación;
- e) Las brechas de acceso entre los grandes centros urbanos y la ruralidad en la prestación de servicios brindados a las personas con discapacidad.

8. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Armonizar su legislación y políticas públicas de discapacidad a nivel federal, provincial y local con la Convención, incluyendo la aprobación de una nueva ley sobre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad alineada con el modelo de derechos humanos, así como la reforma de la normativa sobre prestaciones básicas en habilitación y rehabilitación integral para las personas con discapacidad y el sistema de certificación de la discapacidad;
- b) Actualizar el Plan Nacional de Discapacidad, garantizar el acceso a la información sobre las acciones del Gabinete Nacional para la Transversalización de las Políticas en Discapacidad y del Observatorio de la Discapacidad, así como sobre el Anteproyecto de la nueva Ley de Discapacidad;

c) Redoblar esfuerzos para promover el acceso al Certificado Único de Discapacidad en todo el país y eliminar los obstáculos que dificultan su obtención, incluyendo la simplificación del procedimiento, el aumento del número de las juntas evaluadoras interdisciplinarias en todas las provincias y su fortalecimiento mediante la capacitación del personal sobre el modelo de derechos humanos de la discapacidad;

d) Eliminar de su normativa las expresiones despectivas o paternalistas, como “demente” o “incapaz”;

e) Adoptar medidas legislativas y presupuestarias para superar las brechas en la prestación de servicios a las personas con discapacidad en todas las jurisdicciones.

9. El Comité reconoce que se ha mejorado la capacidad de convocatoria de las personas con discapacidad y sus organizaciones para participar en las consultas que les conciernen, incluyendo la consulta federal para la nueva ley de discapacidad. Sin embargo, le preocupa:

a) La insuficiente participación de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en su diversidad en las consultas relativas a la legislación y las políticas públicas que les afectan, y que sus aportes no necesariamente se ven reflejados en las políticas;

b) La falta de criterios claros para la elección y evaluación de los integrantes de diversos mecanismos formales de participación y consulta, incluyendo el Comité Asesor de la Agencia Nacional de Discapacidad, el Directorio del Sistema de Prestaciones Básicas de Atención Integral a favor de las Personas con Discapacidad, el Consejo Federal de Discapacidad, y el Observatorio de la Discapacidad, así como la insuficiente representación de organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en estos espacios;

c) La insuficiente formación acerca de la Convención entre las personas responsables de formular políticas y legislación, el poder judicial y los profesionales del sector de la justicia, el personal penitenciario, el personal médico y sanitario, el personal docente, los trabajadores sociales, y demás profesionales que trabajan con las personas con discapacidad.

10. Recordando su observación general núm. 7 (2018), relativa al artículo 4, párrafo 3 y al artículo 33, párrafo 3, de la Convención, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Garantizar la participación activa y efectiva de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en la planificación, ejecución, seguimiento y evaluación de legislación y políticas públicas de discapacidad;

b) Asegurar el establecimiento de criterios claros para la elección y evaluación de los integrantes de los mecanismos formales de participación y consulta, y la participación efectiva de las personas con discapacidad en estos espacios;

c) Fortalecer la Unidad de Capacitación de la Agencia Nacional de Discapacidad y ofrecer programas de capacitación sistemáticos acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y las obligaciones del Estado parte en virtud de la Convención, dirigidos a las personas que ejercen función pública en los tres poderes y todos los niveles.

Georgia \(2023\)

7. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The lack of implementation of the Convention in the occupied territories of Abkhazia, Georgia and Tskhinvali Region/South Ossetia, Georgia, and the risk of persons with disabilities therein to internal displacement and other infringements on their human rights;

(b) The prevalence of the medical approach to disability in the State party's disability assessment system, which persists in the reform process;

(c) That legislation and practices in areas such as mental health, participation in social and political affairs and family matters reinforce negative stereotypes against persons with disabilities, including dependence from third parties and a lack of autonomy, and retain derogatory language;

(d) The absence of a national strategy and action plans on disability at the national and local levels to implement the Convention, and the limited scope of disability rights in the National Human Rights Strategy (2022-2030) and its action plan.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Include internally displaced persons with disabilities from the territories of Abkhazia, Georgia, and the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia, Georgia, in long term-housing initiatives for internally displaced persons and take into consideration the recommendations made in the Human Rights Council's Universal Periodic Review in relation to Georgia in 2021 (A/HRC/47/15), aimed at enhancing cooperation with international partners to ensure unrestricted access of humanitarian and development organizations and international human rights monitoring bodies by the Russian Federation to address the situation of persons with disabilities within these regions;

(b) Complete the process to establish a disability assessment system and ensure: (i) that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in its design; (ii) that multiple assessments do not create an undue burden for applicants; (iii) that policies and programmes shift from care, treatment and protection towards the removal of environmental and attitudinal barriers that prevent equality and inclusion; and (iv) that the disability assessment system ensures that disability entitlements are tailored to the requirements of each individual;

(c) Expedite the review process to bring legislation and public policies, including the Law of Georgia on Medical and Social Expertise and Mental Health Development and the Action Plan, in line with the human rights model of disability as elaborated in the Committee's general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination;

(d) Enact a comprehensive strategy and a national action plan to implement the Convention that contains appropriate human, technical and financial resources, benchmarks and a timeframe, in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities across the territory of the State party.

9. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The lack of provisions to ensure access to national public funds by organizations of persons with disabilities that mainly rely on international cooperation to function and to carry out their advocacy work;

(b) The unsystematic involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in measures to implement the Convention and other matters related to persons with disabilities across state entities and at the municipal level and information about recommendations from organizations of persons with disabilities being overlooked during consultations;

(c) That organizations of service providers prevail in government's consultative mechanisms, in which they regularly hold the majority in respective votes to the detriment of grass-roots organizations of persons with disabilities, organizations of women with disabilities and organizations of children and young persons with disabilities;

(d) The absence of accessible information, disability inclusive methodologies, and human, technical and financial resources for conducting periodic consultations including with organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities.

10. With reference to its General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the right of persons with disabilities to freedom of association, including by making national funds available to all organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities and self-advocate organizations, and guaranteeing their right to seek and access legitimate foreign funding;

(b) Introduce mandatory and regular consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities across all levels and sectors of the administration, based on transparency, mutual respect, meaningful dialogue and a sincere aim to reach collective agreements on procedures that respond to the diversity of organizations led by persons with disabilities, allowing for reasonable and realistic timelines and giving due weight to persons with disabilities' views through the public decision-making process;

- (c) Prioritize involvement and consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in consultative bodies and mechanisms, providing due weight to their opinions, and ensuring participation of organizations of women and girls with disabilities and organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (d) Allot human, technical and financial resources to conduct public consultations with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop accessible methodologies for consultation and information tools, including in Easy Read, provide sufficient time for informed decision-making, and establish capacity building programmes of public officers and persons with disabilities participating in consultative procedures.

Peru (2023)

6. Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

- a) La ausencia de mecanismos específicos para el seguimiento, la supervisión y la aplicación del cumplimiento de la Ley General de Personas con Discapacidad y demás legislación específica sobre discapacidad, incluso en el sector privado;
- b) La escasa asignación presupuestaria, lo que ha convertido en inoperantes las leyes y políticas públicas en materia de discapacidad;
- c) Que el Consejo Nacional para la Integración de las Personas con Discapacidad (CONADIS) no cuente con una estrategia y plan de acción para apoyar y dar seguimiento a la implementación de medidas concretas en cada entidad estatal de acuerdo con las competencias de las instituciones públicas para garantizar los derechos de las personas con discapacidad en todos los ámbitos de su vida;
- d) El escaso avance en la implementación de la Política Nacional Multisectorial de Discapacidad para el Desarrollo al 2030, aprobada en 2021, que muchos sectores no hayan informado al respecto y que las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad no hayan sido consultadas sobre su implementación;
- e) Que el perfil y requisitos del intérprete de lengua de señas peruana aún no hayan sido aprobados por el Ministerio de Educación, lo que sigue retrasando la implementación de la Ley N° 29535 que reconoce la lengua de señas peruana, aprobada en 2010, y su reglamento aprobado en 2017;
- f) Que el modelo médico de discapacidad siga prevaleciendo en el sistema de evaluación de la discapacidad y que la obtención de un certificado de discapacidad y del carnet de discapacidad sea un proceso largo y oneroso, que supone una carga económica desproporcionada para las personas con discapacidad. También hay una falta de atención a los requerimientos de apoyo específicos y a los mecanismos de remisión a servicios necesarios.

7. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que promueva una estrategia transversal y de largo alcance para hacer efectivos todos los derechos consagrados en la Convención, y en particular que:

- a) Cree planes y mecanismos para el monitoreo y control efectivos de la aplicación de la Convención en el Estado parte;
- b) Asigne recursos necesarios y suficientes para garantizar la operatividad de las políticas públicas en cumplimiento de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad;
- c) Dote al CONADIS con los recursos suficientes para que cumpla efectivamente con su rol de transversalizar el enfoque de discapacidad en el diseño e implementación de las políticas públicas, por medio del seguimiento, supervisión y prestación de asistencia técnica a los sectores pertinentes;
- d) Establezca las medidas y mecanismos necesarios para el seguimiento y la presentación de informes sobre los progresos y resultados de la Política Nacional Multisectorial en Discapacidad para el Desarrollo hasta 2030, asegurando la participación de personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan;

e) Inste al Ministerio de Educación a que apruebe el perfil y requisitos para que los intérpretes de lengua de señas peruana puedan titularse de manera urgente, de conformidad con el Reglamento de la Ley N° 29535;

f) Modifique la Norma Técnica de Certificación para simplificar el proceso de obtención de esta, implemente una evaluación holística y multidisciplinaria de las necesidades de apoyo basada en derechos. Además, que garantice una remisión efectiva a los servicios correspondientes, en coordinación con el CONADIS para garantizar que la expedición del carnet de discapacidad sea automática y esté libre de barreras administrativas adicionales.

8. El Comité nota con preocupación que, a pesar de que el artículo 14 de la Ley General de la Persona con Discapacidad obliga a los sectores gubernamentales a realizar consultas con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad antes de la adopción de leyes, políticas y programas, sigue habiendo una ausencia de consulta sistemática. En particular, el Congreso de la República aún no ha alineado su Reglamento Interno e intentó sustituir dicha Ley General en contra de las protestas de las organizaciones. Además, el CONADIS no ha creado su Consejo Consultivo de representantes de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, que reforzaría su participación en la labor de coordinación de las leyes, políticas y programas en todo el gobierno, incluyendo la aplicación de la Convención.

9. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que modifique el Reglamento Interno del Congreso de la República para que las comisiones realicen consultas sobre los proyectos de ley relacionados con las personas con discapacidad, y asegure que todas las entidades públicas garanticen la consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad y su participación en los procesos de toma de decisiones en todos los niveles de gobierno y en todas las áreas de políticas públicas relacionadas con los temas que las conciernen. Asimismo, el CONADIS debe constituir su Consejo Consultivo con representantes elegidos por las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad para garantizar la participación de éstas en sus actividades.

Togo (2023)

5. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The narrow concept of disability used in the State party, particularly article 1 of Act No. 2004-005 which is based on the medical approach to disability;

(b) The delay in the proposed review of Act No. 2004-005 of 23 April 2004 on the social protection of persons with disabilities;

(c) The absence of a comprehensive and long-term action-plan for the implementation of the Convention;

(d) The lack of awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities of policymakers, government officials, legal and other professionals, including judges, teachers, medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt measures to amend and/or repeal legislation that includes derogatory terminology and concepts against persons with disabilities and ensure they recognize the evolving concept of disability as arising from the interaction between persons with impairments and barriers to the full participation of persons with disabilities in society;

(b) Complete as a matter of priority and within a specific time frame the process to review the Act No. 2004-005 of 23 April 2004 on the social protection of persons with disabilities and bring it into line with the provisions of the Convention and the human rights-based approach to disability;

(c) Adopt a comprehensive and long-term disability national action plan for implementing the rights of persons with disabilities in the Convention across all government sectors and levels in order to address attitudinal and environmental barriers that hinder the participation of persons with disabilities in society;

(d) Provide awareness raising and capacity-building on the human rights model of disability for government officials, at all levels, legal professionals, judges and prosecutors, and professionals working with persons with disabilities. The State party should involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of training for public officials.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in the design and implementation of disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the diverse groups of organizations of persons with disabilities, including those of women and children with disabilities.

Tunisia (2023)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of action to align the definition of disability in the domestic legislation with the Convention;
- (b) The absence of a clear mechanism to enforce the recommendations of the Parliamentary Committee for the Affairs of Persons with Disabilities and Vulnerable Categories, in the absence of evidence-based information about any action taken by the Ministry of Social Affairs and other public entities in this regard, including the lack of coordination by the Ministry of Social Affairs with other Ministries;
- (c) The fact that no information has been made available regarding the status of the package of legal amendments submitted to the Ministry of Social Affairs by the subcommittee on legislation to be introduced into relevant laws other than the Act No. 41 of 2016, dated 16 May 2016, which introduced amendments into Act No. 83 of 2005, with respect to person with disabilities and access to employment;
- (d) The lack of information and accurate statistics concerning the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those representing women, girls and boys with disabilities, at the governorate and national levels;
- (e) The lack of adequate measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, including those with sensory and intellectual disabilities, have access to the information about the concluding observations (CRPD/C/TUN/CO/1), including through digital dissemination;
- (f) The lingering obstacles to obtain Disability cards, despite the amendments made to Order No. 1859 of 2006, dated 3 July 2006;
- (g) The limited action taken by the Committee of the Ministry of Social Affairs, the Centre for Research and Social Studies, tasked to draft the necessary amendments to bring the Order No. 3086 of 2005, dated 29 November 2005, fully in line with the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take action to align the definition of disability in domestic law, including in Order No. 3086 of 2005, dated 29 November 2005, with the Convention that reflects human right model of disability;
- (b) Establish a clear mechanism to enforce the recommendations of the Parliamentary Committee for the Affairs of Persons with Disabilities and Vulnerable Categories and ensure that the Ministry of Social Affairs and other public entities take action, without further delay, on the recommendations made by the Committee, including those included in its report of 2016;

(c) Take immediate steps to adopt the package of legal amendments, presented to the Ministry of Social Affairs by the subcommittee on legislation, into the relevant legislation affecting persons with disabilities;

(d) Develop strategies to strengthen commitment across all government portfolio areas to ensure disability is recognised as a crosscutting issue, that meaningful partnerships are developed with organisations of persons with disabilities to ensure close consultation and active participation in legislative and policy processes to implement the Convention, including in design, implementation and evaluation, and that organisations of persons with disabilities are appropriately resourced to build capacity to participate in partnership across government portfolio areas;

Take measures to remove all obstacles in the process of obtaining Disability card by all persons with disabilities and ensure that the work of the Committee tasked with drafting amendments to the Order No. 3086 of 2005, dated 29 November 2005, to bring this into effect finalises its work;

(e) Make information on the implementation of the Convention including concluding observations from the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities available to all persons with disabilities using accessible means of communication including braille, sign language and Easy Read as well as other augmentative means of Communication, including inclusive digital communication.

34. The Committee, in accordance with its General Comment No. 5 (2017) on Living independently and being included in the community recommends the State party to:

(a) Put in place legal and policy measures for the deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities and their effective inclusion in the community in accordance with the guide on deinstitutionalization developed by the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities;

(b) Take appropriate measures to recognize the right of persons with disabilities, irrespective of age, gender and impairment, to choose their place of residence and with whom they want to live and the right to have access to social support including personal assistants and security based on their individual requirements;

(c) Ensure that services aimed at the general population in the community adopt an inclusive approach throughout the State party;

(d) Consult with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations to ensure the inclusiveness of services and to identify the adequate support services to be provided.

Bangladesh (2022)

7. The Committee is concerned that the Rights and Protection of Persons with Disabilities Act of 2013 does not adequately provide protection for persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons affected by leprosy and that the concept of disability used in the State party does not fully adhere to the human rights model of disability.

8. The Committee recommends that the State Party review the Rights and Protection of Persons with Disabilities Act of 2013 to effectively harmonize laws, policies, strategies and action plans with the Convention, including ensuring provisions for women with disabilities.

9. The Committee notes with concern the absence of mechanisms that are meaningful and effective for consultation and participation to ensure that the views, opinions and concerns of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons affected by leprosy, are adequately included at all stages of decision-making processes by public authorities at all levels, including in rural areas.

10. In line with general comment No. 7 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party establish formal mechanisms for the effective participation and meaningful consultation of all persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, including the provision of adequate funding for such organisations, which currently is insufficient.

China (2022)

6. The Committee notes with concern that the disability-related legislation and policies have not yet been fully brought into line with the Convention and the human rights model of disability has not been consistently harmonized across all policy and legislation.

7. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on Article 4.3 and 33.3: Participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party adopt a unified concept of disability in all professional and legal areas that is aligned with the purpose and principles of the Convention and covers all persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities;

8. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of a legal framework concerning the advocacy and work which persons with disabilities through their representative organizations can undertake in relation to the development of legislation and policies to implement the Convention, and in other decision-making processes that affect persons with disabilities;

(b) The reports of reprisals against and continuing pressure on civil society organizations for their advocacy work on the rights of persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee recalls its General Comment No. 7 (2018) and urges the State party to:

(a) Strengthen mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in public decision-making processes by establishing clear procedures for consultations at all levels of authority and decision-making and with the participation of the full range of organizations of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, and adopting measures to safeguard their independence from public authorities and participation in the design, reporting and monitoring of legislation and policies aimed at implementing the Convention and the Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) Recognize the role of civil society organizations as human rights defenders, prohibit any reprisals against individuals and organizations promoting the rights of persons with disabilities and take measures to protect the civic space.

10. The Committee is concerned about the lack of independent assessments of the human rights situation of persons with disabilities in China, especially in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region and the Tibet Autonomous Region.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party commit to an independent assessment of the human rights situation of persons with disabilities in China, especially in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region and the Tibet Autonomous Region, including by invitation to UN Special Procedures and engagement with the OHCHR.

Hong-Kong (2022)

63. With reference to its previous concluding observations (CRPD/C/CHN/CO/1), the Committee is concerned about the lack of a harmonized concept of disability in law and policy, and notes with concern that the eligibility standards in the Disability Allowance Scheme continue to rely solely on the medical model, despite revisions being brought to the policy paper in 2019. Furthermore, the Committee regrets Hong Kong SAR, China's use of language that devalues persons with disabilities, such as "mentally handicapped", "mentally disordered", "mentally incapacitated persons" in various laws and policies.

64. The Committee reiterates its recommendations to Hong Kong SAR, China to align the eligibility standards in the Disability Allowance Scheme with the human rights model, and to adopt a unified concept of disability in all professional and legal areas that is aligned with the purpose and principles of the Convention and covers all persons with disabilities.

The Committee further recommends that Hong Kong SAR, China ensure that the use of all derogatory language in reference to persons with disabilities is eliminated from all legislation, public documents and public discourse.

Macau

80. The Committee notes with concern that the medical model of disability is still prevalent in Macao SAR, China, including within its disability assessment system and in relation to the eligibility criteria for accessing necessary services and support measures, operating on the assessment of capacity of a person to live independently and “assume his or her obligations”.

81. The Committee urges Macao SAR, China to reorient its disability assessment systems by replacing elements of the medical model of disability with principles of the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion.

Indonesia (2022)

6. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The use in laws and policies, of concepts and terminology that devalue and pathologize persons with disabilities and promote inequality and discrimination;
- (b) The lack of an effective coordinating mechanism to ensure the implementation of the Convention and Law No. 8 of 2016 at all levels of government, including the autonomous regions;
- (c) The omission of measures, within the National Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities to address serious violations in, and deinstitutionalisation of social care mental institutions;
- (d) That the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal or amend sections in legislation and policies that use devaluing concepts and terms for persons with disabilities, including Law No. 11 of 2009 concerning social welfare and Law No. 11 of 2020 concerning jobs creation (the Omnibus Law), especially on the terminology of “Penyandang Cacat” (People with defects);
- (b) Create an effective coordinating mechanism to ensure the implementation of the Convention and Law No. 8 of 2016 across national, provincial, city and regency and sub-district levels to ensure the same human rights standards are applied throughout the country;
- (c) Ensure the human rights issues concerning social care mental institutions are included as a priority area within the National Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities;
- (d) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned about the inadequate mechanisms for facilitating the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities in decision-making processes concerning disability-related laws, policies and programmes to implement the Convention;

9. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms at the national, provincial, city and regency and sub-district levels for the effective involvement of the diversity of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, including for monitoring and reporting on the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Japan (2022)

7. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Lack of harmonization of disability-related national legislation and policies with the human rights model of disability as contained in the Convention by pertaining a paternalist approach to persons with disabilities;
- (b) Perpetuation of medical model of disability across legislation, regulation and practice, including the disability qualification and certification system, which, on the basis of impairment and capacity assessment, promotes the exclusion of persons who require more intensive support, persons with intellectual, psychosocial or sensory disabilities from disability allowances and social inclusion schemes;
- (c) Derogatory terminology, such as “mentally incompetent”, “mental derangement”, and “insanity”, as well as discriminatory legal restrictions, such as disqualifying clauses, based on “physical or mental disorder”;
- (d) Inaccurate translation of the Convention into Japanese, particularly, of the terms “inclusion”, “inclusive”, “communication”, “accessibility”, “access”, “particular living arrangement”, “personal assistance”, and “habilitation”;
- (e) Regional and municipal gaps in providing necessary services and assistance to persons with disabilities in the communities, including mobility support, personal assistance and communication support.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Harmonize all disability-related national legislation and policies with the Convention recognizing all persons with disabilities as subjects of human rights on equal basis with others, including through ensuring close consultation with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, in particular, persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Review its legislation and regulations to eliminate elements of medical model of disability, including the disability qualification and certification system, to ensure that all persons with disabilities, regardless impairment, receive the required support in the community for having equal opportunities in society and full social inclusion and participation;
- (c) Abolish derogatory language and legal restrictions, such as disqualifying clauses, based on “physical or mental disorder”, within its national and municipal legislation;
- (d) Ensure that all terms of the Convention are accurately translated into Japanese;
- (e) Take necessary legislative and budgetary measures to eliminate the regional and municipal gaps for providing necessary services and assistance to persons with disabilities in the communities, including mobility support, personal assistance and communication support.

9. The Committee is further concerned about:

- (a) Insufficient involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in consultations concerning legislation and public policies, including those carried out by the National Consultative Council of Persons with Disabilities, and the municipal and inter-municipal committees on accessibility;
- (b) Lack of comprehensive response to the stabbings occurred in 2016 at the Tsukui Yamayuri-en facility, located in Sagamihara, mainly owing to eugenic and ableist mindset in society;
- (c) Limited awareness of the rights recognized in the Convention among the judiciary and justice sector professionals, policy- and lawmakers at the national and municipal levels, as well as teachers, medical, health, building design and social workers, and other professionals in connection with persons with disabilities.

10. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on Article 4.3 and 33.3: Participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure active, meaningful and effective consultations with the diversity of representative organizations of persons with disabilities at national and municipal levels, including through the means of alternative communication, accessibility and reasonable accommodations, in public decision-making processes, paying attention to self-advocates with disabilities and organisations of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, autistic persons, women with disabilities, LGBTIQ+ persons with disabilities, persons living in rural areas, and those requiring more intensive support, including in the implementation and monitoring of and reporting on the Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) Review the Tsukui Yamayuri-en case aiming at combating eugenic and ableist attitudes and legal liability for promotion of such attitudes in society;

(c) With the close involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, provide systematic capacity-building programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State Party under the Convention, for the judiciary and justice sector professionals, policy - and lawmakers, teachers, medical, health and social workers, and all other professionals in connexion with persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee notes that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention. It also notes with concern the State Party's interpretative declaration related to Article 23 paragraph 4 of the Convention.

12. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention, and withdraw its interpretative declaration related to Article 23 paragraph 4 of the Convention.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

6. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Disability-related legislation and policies have not been fully harmonized in line with the Convention, including derogatory terms to refer to persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, including "persons who lost their intellect", "persons who lost their mind", "crazy persons", and the confusion between the terms of "disability" and "amputation";

(b) The medical model of disability is still prevalent in the State party, including within its disability assessment system and in relation to the eligibility criteria for accessing necessary services and support measures;

(c) There is a lack of a twin-track approach in legislation and public policies;

(d) Persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, have limited involvement in consultations concerning legislation and public policies related to them; and that the duties of the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities are not clearly distinguished;

(e) Reports of reprisals against civil society organizations for their advocacy work on the rights of persons with disabilities;

(f) The State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. Recalling its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on Article 4.3 and 33.3: Participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the existing disability-related legislation and policies and align them with the Convention, including through eliminating derogatory language regarding persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that its disability assessment systems are based on the human rights model of disability aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their social inclusion;

- (c) Adopt a twin-track approach by mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities across all national action plans and strategies, and by adopting targeted and monitored measures aimed specifically at supporting and empowering persons with disabilities;
- (d) Implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, in particular of persons with intellectual disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, concerning laws and policies affecting them, and strengthen the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities;
- (e) Recognize the role of civil society organizations as human rights defenders, prohibit any reprisals against individuals and organizations promoting the rights of persons with disabilities and take measures to protect the civic space;
- (f) The Committee encourages the State Party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

New Zealand (2022)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of recognition, across all government portfolio areas, that disability is a whole of government responsibility, the lack of engagement with organisations of persons with disabilities outside the ministry of disability portfolio, and the lack of appropriate resourcing for organisations of persons with disabilities to build capacity to meaningfully engage in legislative and policy processes.
- (b) The underrepresentation of Māori persons with disabilities in legislative and policy processes to implement the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop strategies to strengthen commitment across all government portfolio areas to ensure disability is recognised as a crosscutting issue, that meaningful partnerships are developed with organisations of persons with disabilities to ensure close consultation and active involvement in legislative and policy processes to implement the Convention, including co-design, co-production and co-evaluation, and that organisations of persons with disabilities are appropriately resourced to build capacity to participate in partnership across government portfolio areas.
- (b) Develop legislative and policy frameworks that reflect the Treaty of Waitangi, the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples to ensure that Māori persons with disabilities are closely consulted and actively involved in decision-making processes and that their right to self-determination is recognised.

Republic of Korea (2022)

5. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Disability-related legislation and policies, including the revised definitions of disability in the Act on Welfare of Persons with Disabilities, have not yet been fully brought in line with the Convention, and fails to identify the specific needs of some persons with disabilities, in particular deafblind persons and persons with disabilities with HIV/AIDS;
- (b) The medical model of disability is still prevalent in the State party, including within the disability classification system, despite the recent revision of the disability grading system and the reduction from 6 to 2 grades, which has a negative impact by preventing the inclusion of persons with disabilities in society and limiting their access to appropriate services and support;
- (c) The lack of awareness among policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, about the rights recognized in the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review the existing national disability-related legislation and policies to align them with the provisions of the Convention, and adopt a concept of disability that covers all persons with disabilities, in particular, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, persons who are deafblind and persons with disabilities with HIV/AIDS and ensure that their characteristics and needs are recognized;

(b) Reorient its disability assessment systems by replacing elements of the medical model of disability with principles of the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion;

(c) With the close involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, provide capacity-building programmes for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State party under the Convention;

7. The Committee notes that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned about the lack of participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in decision-making processes concerning disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the whole range of organizations of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, intersex persons with disabilities, women with disabilities, refugees and migrants with disabilities, autistic persons, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and gender diverse persons with disabilities and persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support.

Singapore (2022)

5. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That national legislation and policies do not systematically incorporate the human rights model of disability but largely employ a medical model which engenders systemic discrimination of persons with disabilities on the basis of their impairment;

(b) That the legislation implementing the Convention is confined to intermittent sector-specific legal provisions with scant or no discernible relationship to each other, without any overarching legislation ensuring comprehensive application and some level of coherence in all areas of life;

(c) That national legislation does not contain a formal definition of disability, framed in conformity with art. 1 (2) of the Convention, and that the existing assessment and certification mechanisms are not harmonized across the national disability related legislation;

(d) That persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, autistic persons and children with disabilities, and their representative organisations, are not closely consult with and actively involved in the development and implementation of all legislation and policies to implement the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review all of its existing disability-related legislation and policies, including the Third Enabling Masterplan, remove all vestiges of a medical model of disability from it, and base it throughout on the human rights model of disability;

(b) Enact overarching legislation protecting the rights of persons with disabilities, ensuring the comprehensive, coherent application of the principles and rights guaranteed by the Convention in all areas in life;

(c) Harmonize the legal definition of disability and the assessment and certification mechanisms across the national legal system, to protect the human rights of all persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities, and autistic persons;

(d) Ensure that persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, autistic persons and children with disabilities, and their representative organisations are closely consulted with and actively involved in the development and implementation of all legislation and policies to implement the Convention.

7. The Committee notes that:

(a) The State party maintains its reservation to articles 12 (4) and 29 (a)(iii) of the Convention;

(b) The State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee encourages that the State party:

(a) Withdraw its reservations to articles 12 (4) and 29 (a)(iii) of the Convention;

(b) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

Hungary (2022)

6. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Disability-related legislation and policies have not yet been fully brought into line with the Convention, that there is an inappropriate translation of the terminology of the Convention into Hungarian and derogatory terms, such as “abnormal mental condition” used in the Criminal Code of 2012 and the Criminal Procedure Code of 2017;

(b) Different concepts of disability in various professional and legal areas result in the lack of recognition of all persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with speech impairments;

(c) The medical model of disability is still prevalent in the State party, including within its disability assessment system and in relation to the eligibility criteria for accessing necessary services and support measures, operating on the assessment of capacity of a person to understand and to live independently and “residual health” thresholds, which adversely affect the social inclusion of persons with disabilities;

(d) There is a lack of awareness of the rights recognized in the Convention among the judiciary and justice sector professionals, policy- and lawmakers, teachers, medical, health and social workers and all other professionals working with persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the existing disability-related legislation and policies and align them with the provisions of the Convention, including through ensuring the appropriate translation of the terminology of the Convention into Hungarian and through eliminating all derogatory language regarding persons with disabilities across its legislation;

(b) Adopt a unified concept of disability in all professional and legal areas that is aligned with the purpose and principles of the Convention and covers all persons with disabilities;

(c) Reorient its disability assessment systems by replacing elements of the medical model of disability with principles of the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion;

(d) With the close involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, provide capacity-building programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities and on the obligations of the State party, as contained in the Convention, for the judiciary and justice sector professionals, policy- and lawmakers, teachers, medical, health and social workers and all other professionals working with persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of independence and non-substantive nature of the established consultation bodies, including the National Disability Council, the National Coordinating Body for Deinstitutionalization, the Human Rights Working Group and the Intergovernmental Disability Committee, and the lack of effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in public decision-making;
- (b) The lack of accessibility to informational material in public decision-making processes, limiting the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Reports of reprisals against and continuing pressure on civil society organizations for their advocacy work on the rights of persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) and urges the State party to:

- (a) Strengthen mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in public decision-making processes by adopting measures to safeguard their independence from public authorities and with the participation of the full range of organizations of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, intersex persons, women with disabilities, persons with disabilities living in rural areas, autistic persons, Roma and gender diverse persons with disabilities, those requiring high levels of support and refugees and migrant persons with disabilities;
- (b) Provide organizations of persons with disabilities with accessible information, including information in Easy Read and other accessible formats, and with timetables of the consultation processes concerning any law and policy reforms related to persons with disabilities;
- (c) Recognize the role of civil society organizations as human rights defenders, prohibit any reprisals against individuals and organizations promoting the rights of persons with disabilities and take measures to protect the civic space.

Jamaica (2022)

6. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The use, in laws and policies, of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities, which emphasize persons' impairments, reflect the medical and paternalistic approaches to disability and reinforce stigma against persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) The fact that the definition of persons with disabilities in the Disabilities Act, 2014, the Mental Health Act, 1999 and the National Policy for Persons with Disabilities, 2000, focuses on impairment and therefore is not in line with the Convention;
- (c) The lack of awareness among policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, about the rights recognized in the Convention;
- (d) The fact that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal all sections in the legislation that use derogatory terms, including articles 37 (2) (c) and 40 (2) (f) of the Constitution, section 8 (2) of the Property (Rights of Spouse) Act, and the Mental Health Act, and other provisions, policies and regulations, and ensure that they conform to the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Ensure that concepts of "disability" and "persons with disabilities" in the national legislation are in line with the human rights model and the Convention;
- (c) Strengthen capacity-building programmes for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State party under the Convention. The State party should involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of training for public officials;
- (d) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without further delay.

8. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The inadequate mechanisms for facilitating the involvement of persons with disabilities in decision-making processes concerning disability-related laws, policies and programmes, including in processes related to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) The lack of a system for the collection of data and statistics on persons with disabilities by the Jamaica Council for Persons with Disabilities.

9. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen and implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, in particular of persons with intellectual disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, including for monitoring and reporting on the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals. The State party should ensure that meaningful consultations are held with the whole range of organizations of persons with disabilities and provide them with a timetable for the consultation processes concerning any reforms to be made to laws and policies affecting persons with disabilities;

(b) Establish a more inclusive data collection mechanism, separate from the registration by the Jamaica Council for Persons with Disabilities, to collect statistics and data on persons with disabilities in the State party.

Mexico (2022)

5. The Committee is concerned about insufficient budgetary allocations to measures implementing the Convention on the federal, state and municipal levels.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate sufficient resources to implement the Convention effectively at all levels of government.

7. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a national plan on the implementation of the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party issue a comprehensive national plan on the implementation of the Convention on the federal and state levels that includes the mechanisms required to implement it, with a particular focus on indigenous persons with disabilities.

9. With reference to its previous concluding observations,² the Committee is concerned that the legislation on the state level still contains serious gaps in its protection of the rights of persons with disabilities and contains pejorative language with reference to persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party harmonize its laws, and particularly the laws of the states, with the Convention in order to protect the rights of all persons with disabilities and eliminate pejorative terminology relating to persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee is concerned about the prevalence of a welfare and medical model of disability.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party abandon the welfare and medical model of disability and replace it with the human rights model.

13. The Committee is concerned about a serious decline in the availability of mechanisms for consultations with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations concerning the design and implementation of laws and policies affecting them.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 7 (2018), ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities, including of women and girls with disabilities, are consulted and involved in decision-making processes at all levels of government and in all public policy areas relating to them.

Switzerland (2022)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of harmonization of the legislation and policy framework with the Convention, including the human rights model of disability;

(b) The use of language that devalues persons with disabilities, such as “invalidity” and “helplessness”, in the legislative and policy framework, including in the Federal Constitution, and the invalidity insurance and disability entitlements systems;

(c) The absence of an overall strategy for implementing the Convention in all areas of life.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Harmonize its legal and policy framework on disability with the Convention at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels, by integrating the human rights model of disability in its laws, regulations and practices, including the invalidity insurance and disability entitlements systems;

(b) Eliminate from its legislation and policy framework, at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels, all devaluing language with reference to persons with disabilities, and replace it with terminology that respects the dignity of persons with disabilities;

(c) Adopt a comprehensive disability strategy and action plan for implementing all Convention rights at all levels of government, and strengthen coordination and cooperation among entities at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels.

9. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in decision-making processes concerning laws, policies and programmes, including in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and efforts to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) The lack of financial and other resources available to the diversity of organizations of persons with disabilities to promote the effective participation and inclusion of persons with disabilities in all aspects of society;

(c) The lack of accessibility of information about public policy and decision-making processes, and limited opportunities to participate at all stages of these processes.

10. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen mechanisms at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels to ensure effective support and consultations with diverse organizations of persons with disabilities – including organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, autistic persons, persons with psychosocial disabilities, women with disabilities, children with disabilities and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities – in design, reporting and monitoring with respect to legislation and policies aimed at implementing the Convention and achieving the Sustainable Development Goals;

(b) Ensure that adequate financial and other necessary resources are available for the diversity of organizations of persons with disabilities, and that such organizations have access to independent and self-managed funding to strengthen their capacity to independently promote the effective participation of persons with disabilities and their inclusion in society;

(c) Provide organizations of persons with disabilities with accessible information, including information in Easy Read and sign languages, and ensure an adequate time frame for their participation at all stages of legislative, policy and decision-making processes.

Venezuela (2022)

5. While the Committee takes note of the State party's intention to amend existing laws in accordance with the Convention, it is concerned by the lack of implementing regulations for the 2007 Act on Persons with Disabilities and the fact that the bill on the protection, care and dignified treatment of persons with disabilities is still under discussion.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that any legislative amendments are in conformity with the principles enshrined in the Convention, in line with the human rights-based model of disability and mainstream the rights of persons with disabilities; and that it ensure the active participation of organizations of persons with disabilities at all stages of the related discussions and drafting process, regardless of their political affiliation.

7. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018), recommends that the State party promote the effective and independent participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations for women, children, older persons, indigenous persons and persons of African descent, in decision-making in all processes that concern them.

Djibouti (2021)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

a) The national legislation, particularly the Civil Code, Criminal Code, Family Code, Labour Code, and Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018), which are based on the medical approach to disability, do not sufficiently protect social, economic and cultural rights or fundamental civil and political rights, including the rights to liberty and security of the person, and to equal recognition before the law and, reflect a narrow concept of disability that excludes persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;

b) The need to review and harmonize its Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018) to bring it in conformity with the Convention, particularly articles 7 of on the prevention of disability which is misunderstood as steps to implement the Convention, and articles 10 and 31 on the provision of segregated services for persons with disabilities;

c) The use of derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities in laws and policies, such as "persons with special needs", and the definition of disability based on the medical approach under the Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018), the Labour Code, and Decree No. 2020-306/PRE, which emphasize persons' impairments;

d) The absence of a comprehensive and long-term action-plan for the implementation of the Convention;

e) The lack of transparent and systematic procedures and information on the consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and organizations of women and girls with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Review its legislation and policies to bring them in line with the human rights model of disability in accordance with the Convention, particularly the Civil Code, Criminal Code, Family Code, Labour Code, and Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018);

b) Repeal derogatory terminology and concepts that demeans persons with disabilities from its legislation, particularly Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018), Labour Code, and Decree No. 2020-306/PRE and ensure they recognize the evolving concept of disability as arising from the interaction between persons with impairments and barriers to the full participation of persons with disabilities in society;

- c) Take measures to ensure the effective implementation of the National Disability Strategy (2020–2024) and adopt a comprehensive and long-term disability national action plan for implementing the rights of persons with disabilities in the Convention across all government sectors and levels in order to address attitudinal and environmental barriers that hinder the participation of persons with disabilities in society;
- d) Establish formal and transparent mechanisms to ensure the effective and meaningful participation of and consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including their participation in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, in line with general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

France (2021)

7. The Committee notes with concern:

- a) The interpretative declaration upon ratification to the Convention concerning the interpretation of the term 'consent' in article 15 (1);
- b) The absence of measures to review and harmonise disability-related national, regional and municipal legislation and policies with the Convention, and legislation and public policies based on the medical model and paternalistic approaches to disability, including the definition of disability in the Act on Equal Rights and Opportunities, Participation and Citizenship for Persons with Disabilities, of 11 February 2005 that focuses on incapacity of persons with disabilities and their "normalization", the medical treatment of persons with psychosocial disabilities and autistic persons, and the 'model of medico-social care' for persons with disabilities, which sustains systematic institutionalization of persons on the basis of disability;
- c) The lack of information on the jurisprudence of French courts on the direct application of the rights guaranteed by the Convention;
- d) The absence of a national strategy and public policies for implementing the State party's obligations under the Convention;
- e) The lack of awareness on the rights of persons with disabilities of policymakers, government officials, at the national and municipal levels, legal and other professionals, including judges, teachers, medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recalls the recommendations issued by the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in her report on the visit to France (A/HRC/40/54/Add.1), and recommends that the State party:

9. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) Provisions in the Law of 2005-102 (article 1) and of the Social Action and Family Code (article L.146-1) conflating associations of service providers and managers with organizations of persons with disabilities, resulting in conflict of interests in service provision and obstacles to effectively shift from 'medico-institutional-care' to independent living in the community;
- b) Limited involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in consultations concerning legislation and public policies, including those carried out by the National Consultative Council of Persons with Disabilities, and the municipal and inter-municipal committees on accessibility.

10. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 7 (2018) and recommends that the State party:

- a) Revise provisions of article 1 of the Law of 2005-102 with a view to strengthen and implement transparent mechanisms to closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes at all levels, including in implementing, monitoring and reporting on the Sustainable Development Goals;

b) Ensure meaningful and effective support and consultations with the diversity of organizations of persons with disabilities as outlined in General comment No. 7, paying attention to, organisations of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, autistic persons, women with disabilities, LGBTI persons with disabilities, persons living in rural areas, Roma persons with disabilities and those requiring high levels of support.

Estonia (2021)

7. The Committee notes with concern:

- a) That disability-related legislation and policies have not yet been fully brought into line with the Convention, in particular the negative impact of disability-assessment systems preventing inclusion of children with disabilities in society, and their access to appropriate services and required support;
- b) The derogatory concepts and terminology concerning persons with disabilities, such as “abnormality”, “helpless person”, “mental disorders” in laws and policies, emphasizing on persons’ impairments, reflecting the medical and paternalistic approaches to disability in the State party, and reinforcing stigma against persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities;
- c) Disability-related regulations and policies that approach persons with disabilities primarily as social service recipients, in absence of an overall strategy for implementing the Convention, in all areas of life;
- d) Information indicating lack of coordination between national and local levels of public administration concerning implementation of disability-specific programmes;
- e) The lack of awareness of policymakers, officers and professionals, at the national and municipal levels, including judges, prosecutors, teachers, medical, health and other professionals, working with persons with disabilities, on the rights recognized in the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Review of existing disability-related legislation and policies, including disability-assessment systems, and bring them into line with the human rights model of disability in the Convention. Ensure that policies and programmes mainstream support required by children with disabilities, irrespective of impairment;
- b) Repeal derogatory terminology and concepts from the Social Benefits for Disabled Persons Act, the Equal Treatment Act, and other provisions or regulations, and ensure they conform to the human rights model of disability;
- c) Adopt a comprehensive disability strategy and a national action plan for implementing the rights of persons with disabilities in the Convention, across all government sectors and levels, in order to address attitudinal and environmental barriers that hinder participation of persons with disabilities in society;
- d) Ensure appropriate coordination and cooperation amongst the national and municipal levels, and ensure accessibility and availability of social protection programmes and mainstream community services for persons with disabilities;
- e) Strengthen capacity-building programmes for public policy-makers, municipal officers and professionals, at the national and municipal levels, judges, prosecutors, teachers, medical, health and other professionals, working with persons with disabilities, on the rights of persons with disabilities and obligations of the State party under the Convention. The State party should involve organisations of persons with disabilities, in the design and implementation of training for public officials.

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- a) The lack of effective involvement of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, and persons with autism through their representative organizations, in decision-making process concerning disability-related laws, policies and programmes, including in processes related to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and sustainable development goals;

b) The insufficient financial, and other supports particularly for organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities;

c) The lack of accessibility to information about public decision-making process limiting opportunities of participation to grass roots organizations of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party:

a) Strengthen and implement mechanisms for effective involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in public decision-making processes, including in implementing, monitoring and reporting on the Sustainable Development Goals. The State party should ensure meaningful consultations with the diversity of organizations of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, intersex persons with disabilities, women with disabilities, persons living in rural areas, persons with autism, Roma and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender persons with disabilities, and those requiring higher levels of support.

b) Ensure that adequate financial and other necessary supports are available for organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities. The State party should ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities have access to independent and self-managed funding for strengthening their capacity to independently advocate for their participation in society, and adopt measures to safeguard their independence from public authorities;

c) Provide organizations of persons with disabilities with accessible information, including information in Easy Read, and other accessible formats, and timetable of the consultation process concerning any legislative or policy reforms, related to persons with disabilities.

Albania (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

a) The insufficient efforts to revise existing legislation and to bring it into full compliance with the Convention, in particular with regard to the State party's use and interpretation of the "bio-psycho-social" model in reforming disability assessment systems;

b) The lack of a harmonised concept of disability and the denial of reasonable accommodation in discrimination legislation;

c) The lack of mainstream and disability-specific services provided for persons with disabilities at the local level;

d) The use of derogatory language against persons with disabilities throughout laws, policies and public discourse.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention, to harmonize its legislation and include a human rights model of disability and the denial of reasonable accommodation in discrimination laws, in accordance with the Convention. It also recommends that the State party review existing and draft laws, including the ongoing reform of disability assessments for social protection entitlements established in Law no. 121/2016 on Social Services and in Law no. 15/2019 on Employment Promotion, together with the Council of Ministers' Decision No. 380 (5 June, 2019), in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities to ensure persons with disabilities can access mainstream and disability-specific services at the local level. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that the use of all derogatory language in reference to persons with disabilities is eliminated from all legislation, public documents and discourse.

7. The Committee is concerned by:

- a) The lack of legislation, transparent procedures and information, regarding consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) The fact that, based on Law 93/2014 “On the inclusion and accessibility of persons with disabilities”, the Prime Minister is exclusively in charge of the nomination as well as of the appointment of the members of the National Disability Council and that the level of representation of members of civil society in the Council is below 50 per cent;
- c) The lack of regular and sustainable financial support for organizations of persons with disabilities, particularly at the local level;
- d) The official Albanian translation of the Convention, which makes an erroneous reference to organizations “for” persons with disabilities, which does not adhere to the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and:

- (a) Take all the legal and other necessary measures to adopt formal and transparent mechanisms for the nomination and election of representatives of organizations of persons with disabilities in the National Disability Council, including those representing women and children with disabilities, persons who are deaf or hard of hearing, and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Provide sufficient and regular financial resources and administrative support for the Council and ensure more equal representation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities nationwide, to ensure the quality of the experts and an adequate representation of the interests of persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) Ensure a correct official translation to ensure equal opportunities to organizations of persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without further delay.

Australia (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) The insufficient harmonization of the domestic legal framework with the Convention;
- b) The lack of progress made to review and withdraw the interpretive declarations on articles 12, 17 and 18 of the Convention;
- c) The serious delays in releasing the third plan for implementing the National Disability Strategy 2010–2020;
- d) The weakness of the mechanisms and the limited funding available under the National Disability Strategy and the National Disability Agreement for the full and effective engagement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in policy development, implementation and monitoring of actions relating to the Convention;
- e) The disability assessment that individuals must undergo in order to be eligible to receive services through the National Disability Insurance Scheme, which still relies heavily on the medical model of disability and does not provide older persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities with equal opportunities;
- f) The inaccessibility of the National Disability Insurance Scheme due to complex procedures, limited publically available and accessible information and the lack of services in remote areas;
- g) The unsustainability and inadequacy of resources for continuous, individual and independent advocacy programmes.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Fully harmonize domestic legislation with the Convention by carrying out disability rights impact assessments on legislative changes that may affect the rights of persons with disabilities;
- b) Review and withdraw the interpretative declarations on articles 12, 17 and 18 of the Convention;
- c) Roll out the third plan for implementing the National Disability Strategy;
- d) In close consultation with and with the effective participation of diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, ensure that the National Disability Agreement and the next national disability strategy receive adequate resources, an implementation plan with measurable goals and a robust monitoring mechanism, a formal performance reporting framework and evaluation, governance and accountability requirements, including through the implementation of the recommendations made by the Productivity Commission;
- e) Review disability assessment criteria for support schemes under the National Disability Insurance Scheme and align them with the human rights model of disability, ensuring adequate support for older persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities;
- f) Simplify, clarify and make National Disability Insurance Scheme procedures more transparent, including by making information publically available and accessible, and ensure that the Scheme meets the diverse and intersecting requirements of persons with disabilities in all areas;
- g) Ensure that persons with disabilities are able to access continuous, sustainable and adequately resourced individual and independent advocacy programmes, particularly those not part of the National Disability Insurance Scheme.

7. The Committee is concerned that there are no permanent or effective mechanisms to ensure the active participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, establish formal and permanent mechanisms to ensure the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the Convention, ensuring adequate resources and the provision of the necessary support. It recommends that the State party involve Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in particular in all aspects of the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the Australian Government Plan to Improve Outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander People with Disability.

Ecuador (2019)

7. The Committee observes with concern that the State party's laws, manuals and guidelines have not been harmonized with the human rights model set out in the Convention. It notes, in particular, that the Organic Act on Disabilities retains a conceptual approach that is based on a medical model of disability and that emphasizes the limitation of abilities while disregarding the social dimension of disability. The Committee is also concerned that:

- a) The State party's disability classification system is not in accordance with the principles enshrined in the Convention;
- b) Recent amendments of the Organic Act on the Ombudsman's Office and the Organic Act on Disabilities do away with the Office of the Ombudsman's authority to impose penalties for failures to observe protection measures for persons with disabilities in the public and private sectors.

8. With regard to the institutional framework for public policies and programmes, the Committee is concerned at:

- a) The dissolution in 2016 of the Technical Secretariat for Disabilities, whose areas of authority, programmes and projects have been officially transferred to other ministries and government bodies without providing them with sufficient budgetary allocations for those purposes or a mechanism for monitoring their implementation;
- b) The fact that the targeted objectives and policies established under the National Agenda for the Equality of Persons with Disabilities focus on the provision of assistance rather than on inclusion.

9. In relation to the State party's obligations under article 4 (3), the Committee is concerned at:

- a) The fact that organizations of women, children, adolescents, older adults, indigenous persons, persons of African descent and Montubio persons with disabilities have not participated on an effective, independent basis in decision-making processes concerning all the matters that affect them. The Committee is also concerned at the failure to promote and disseminate information in accessible formats on disability-related legislation and programmes in the State party, the Committee's concluding observations on the State party's initial report or the Committee's general comments;
- b) Reports of continued obstacles to the effective participation in public life of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, particularly in decision-making processes concerning matters that affect them and in monitoring the implementation of the Convention, and reports of acts of intimidation, harassment and victimization of defenders of the human rights of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee reiterates the recommendations made in paragraphs 9 and 11 of its concluding observations on the State party's initial report (CRPD/C/ECU/CO/1) and recommends that the State party ensure that any amendments of its legislation conform to the principles enshrined in the Convention and are in line with the human rights approach to disability and that, in particular, the rights of persons with disabilities are mainstreamed therein. The Committee also recommends that the State party:

- a) Ensure that the criteria used in its disability classification system are in keeping with the Convention and based on the human rights model of disability rather than on the medical model and that they include criteria such as the independence and autonomy of persons within their environment on an equal footing with others;
- b) Ensure the enforcement of protection measures granted to persons with disabilities and the establishment of mechanisms for imposing penalties for the non-observance of such protection measures in the public and private sectors.

11. The Committee also recommends that the State party:

- a) Ensure that the public policies and programmes on disability that have been transferred to different government ministries are fully implemented on the basis of the human rights model of disability and that their implementation is overseen by the National Council for Persons with Disabilities and civil society organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) Make inclusion a pivotal component of public policies on disability and, in particular, of the National Agenda for the Equality of Persons with Disabilities.

12. The Committee, bearing in mind the recommendation that it made in paragraph 13 of its concluding observations on the State party's initial report (CRPD/C/ECU/CO/1) and general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, recommends that the State party:

- a) Promote the effective, independent participation of organizations of women, children, older adults, indigenous persons, persons of African descent and Montubio persons with disabilities in decision-making processes concerning all matters that affect them and promote and widely disseminate the Committee's concluding observations on the State party's initial report and the Committee's general comments in accessible formats;

b) Take effective and timely measures to prevent the intimidation, harassment and victimization of human rights defenders, in particular persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including civil society leaders, journalists, media professionals and defenders of the human rights of persons with disabilities.

El Salvador (2019)

4. The Committee is concerned that several laws, particularly article 367-A of the Criminal Code, and the new Family Code, do not adhere to the Convention, resulting in the exclusion of and discrimination against persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about:

- a) The lack of progress on enacting the law on the inclusion of persons with disabilities, which would repeal the Equalization of Opportunities for Persons with Disability Act;
- b) The lack of measures adopted to align the criteria for the disability certification mechanism with the Convention;
- c) The pejorative terms used in the Equalization of Opportunities for Persons with Disability Act to refer to persons with disabilities.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Review and amend all its laws, particularly the Family Code and the Criminal Code, to eliminate the concept of the “declaration of incapacity” in order to fully recognize and respect all the rights of persons with disabilities;
- b) Expedite the adoption of the law on the inclusion of persons with disabilities, ensuring that it contains the human rights model of disability, and repeal the Equalization of Opportunities for Persons with Disability Act;
- c) Ensure the elimination of pejorative language used to refer to persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities in legislation.

6. The Committee is concerned at the lack of budgetary allocation for the implementation of plans and programmes at the national and municipal levels for the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate and earmark sufficient budget for the implementation of plans and programmes for the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities, in both urban and rural areas.

Greece (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a harmonized human rights-based approach to disability in the legislation of the State party and that the existing legislative framework, including the disability assessment mechanism, still comprises elements associated with the medical model of disability and contains derogatory language in reference to persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of a coherent and long-term strategy for the effective implementation of the Convention.

The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities:

- a) Harmonize its legal and administrative framework on disability, including the disability assessment mechanism, by fully integrating the human rights model of disability in 6. its laws, regulations and practices across all levels of government and territories, in line with the Convention;
- b) Develop a comprehensive, coherent and long-term national strategy and action plan for the implementation of the Convention, with clear timelines, benchmarks and budget allocations;
- c) Eliminate from its legislation derogatory language in reference to persons with disabilities.

India (2019)

6. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) The prevalence of the medical model of disability in legislation, public policies and attitudes concerning persons with disabilities, particularly in the multiple assessments and certification of disability and the requirement for different assessments to access services in the community, and in the misunderstanding of disability, including leprosy, as solely a biological condition requiring prevention and rehabilitation;
- b) Legislation, public policies and practices that discriminate against persons with disabilities, particularly guardianship, institutionalization, psychiatric treatment and segregated community services based on disability, negative perceptions, including that of “normal life” as opposed to the lives of persons with disabilities, and derogatory terminology such as “mentally ill” and divyangjan, the latter of which is still controversial;
- c) The limited coverage of the unique disability identification card, especially in rural areas, and the fact that service providers, such as rail services, do not recognize these cards with a view to facilitating accessible and affordable public services for persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Adopt national and State strategies to promote understanding about the human rights model of disability among policymakers and in society, and the principles of respect for the inherent dignity and difference of persons with disabilities and acceptance of persons with disabilities as part of human diversity and humanity;
- b) Reform the guidelines for assessing and certifying disability to bring them into line with the human rights model of disability, ensuring that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in the reform, that multiple assessments do not create an undue burden for applicants, and that policies and programmes shift from care, treatment and protection towards the removal of environmental and attitudinal barriers, which prevent equality and inclusion;
- c) Complete the review process to bring its legislation, policies and schemes into line with the Convention, including the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act (2016), the Mental Health Care Act (2017), the National Trust for the Welfare of Persons with Autism, Cerebral Palsy, Mental Retardation and Multiple Disabilities Act (1999) and measures governing general services for disability inclusion, and eliminate derogatory terminology and concepts against persons with disabilities from its legislation, policies, government regulations and government websites and from public discourse;
- d) Ensure that community services are available for and inclusive of all persons with disabilities without discrimination, especially in rural areas where the unique disability identification card has yet to be implemented.

8. The Committee is concerned about the absence of comprehensive national and state action plans to implement the Convention and the uneven implementation of legislative measures recognizing the rights of persons with disabilities across all states.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Ensure the prompt review and adoption of an action plan for the implementation of the Convention at the national and state levels, with the meaningful involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, targeting all persons with disabilities, including those living in rural areas, in public policy efforts and ensuring cross-sectoral human and technical resources and budget allocations;
- b) Ensure cooperation with authorities at the state level in order to implement the legislation recognizing the rights of persons with disabilities across all states.

10. The Committee is concerned that the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities is not prioritized in decision-making processes relating to them, and that their opinions are not reflected in the results of such processes.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the Committee’s general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention:

- a) Ensure that those organizations of persons with disabilities defined in paragraphs 10 to 13 of general comment No. 7, including of women with disabilities, are consulted and involved in decision-making processes at all levels of government and in all public policy areas;
- b) Remove barriers to the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including guardianship regimes, and provide appropriate resources for their effective participation, accessible and inclusive information and methodologies of consultation;
- c) Ensure that the opinions of persons with disabilities are given due weight and are reflected in decisions resulting from consultations, and that accountability criteria are adopted concerning public decision-making.

Iraq (2019)

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) The medical model of disability and the charity-based approach to disability remain prevalent in the State party's legislation and policies concerning persons with disabilities, including in article 32 of the Constitution, article 1 of Law No. 38 (2013) and articles 1 (5) and 6 of Act No. 22 (2011);
- b) The method used by the State party to assess disability is based on a medical approach, in line with article 15 (1) (j) of Law No. 38 (2013);
- c) National legislation, including Law No. 38 (2013), has not yet been fully brought into line with the Convention, and derogatory terminology concerning persons with disabilities has not yet been eliminated from all laws and policies, including from paragraph 495 (4) of the Criminal Code (Law No. 111 (1969)).

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Review its legislation, including through the ongoing review of Law No. 38 (2013), and bring it into line with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention;
- b) Ensure that the method used in disability assessments fully incorporates a human rights model of disability and that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in the design of disability assessment methods and in generating the information on which disability assessments are based;
- c) Undertake a comprehensive legislative and policy review with a view to adopting and enforcing laws and policies that prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability, and review the use of terms deemed discriminatory under the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) There are gaps in the implementation of Law No. 38 (2013), as implementing decrees and regulations have not been issued for all provisions of the Law;
- b) Insufficient funds from the national budget have been allocated for the promotion and protection of the rights of persons with disabilities;
- c) Persons with disabilities and their representative organizations are not systematically consulted and actively involved in all decision-making processes affecting them.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- e) Adopt implementation decrees and regulations to ensure that the national legislation protects and promotes the rights of persons with disabilities and sanctions non-compliance;
- f) Substantially increase the human, technical and financial resources allocated for the implementation of the Convention;
- g) Strengthen measures to ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and organizations of women and girls with disabilities, are effectively consulted and meaningfully involved in the design, implementation and evaluation of laws, policies, action plans, timelines and budgets and provide such organizations with continuous and transparent funding.

Kuwait (2019)

4. The Committee notes that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention and other international human rights treaties, including the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention and, bearing in mind the indivisibility of all human rights, encourages the State party to consider acceding to other international human rights treaties, including the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.

6. The Committee is concerned about the State party's:

- a) Reservations to articles 18 (1) (a) and 23 (2) of the Convention;
- b) Interpretative declaration to article 12 (2) of the Convention specifying that the enjoyment of legal capacity should be subject to Kuwaiti law;
- c) Interpretative declarations to articles 19 (a) and 25 (a) of the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Withdraw its reservations to articles 18 (1) (a) and 23 (2) of the Convention;
- b) Withdraw its interpretative declaration to article 12 (2) of the Convention and take legal measures to uphold the right to equal recognition before the law, which implies that all persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities, enjoy legal capacity on an equal basis with others in all aspects of life;
- c) Withdraw its interpretative declarations to articles 19 (a) and 25 (a) of the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) The State party's legislation, including Act No. 8/2010 on the rights of persons with disabilities and Act No. 21/2015 on protection of the rights of the child, the Civil Code, the Code of Civil Procedure and the Penal Code, is based on the medical model of disability and does not recognize persons with disabilities as rights holders;
- b) National laws currently in force, particularly Act No. 8/2010, do not encompass social, economic and cultural rights or fundamental civil and political rights, including the rights to life, liberty and security of the person, to political participation and to equal recognition before the law; do not apply to Bidoon and non-Kuwaitis with disabilities; and reflect a narrow concept of disability that excludes persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and does not take into account the existence of barriers in society;
- c) The State party does not have a national disability strategy that is inclusive of non-Kuwaitis with disabilities;
- d) Court verdicts finding in favour of organizations of persons with disabilities and families of persons with disabilities have not been implemented.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Review its policies and legislation, including Act No. 8/2010 and Act No. 21/2015, the Civil Code, the Code of Civil Procedure and the Penal Code, to ensure a full transition to the human rights model of disability, in compliance with the Convention;
- b) Take the necessary legal measures to ensure that national legislation, particularly Act No. 8/2010, recognizes the evolving concept of disability as arising from the interaction between persons with impairments and barriers to the full participation of persons with disabilities in society and ensure also that national legislation encompasses the rights of all persons with disabilities, including non-Kuwaitis with disabilities;
- c) Take advantage of the 2020–2025 strategy of the Public Authority for Disability Affairs to develop a national strategy on disability and a time-bound action plan based on the human rights model of disability;
- d) Ensure full implementation of the court verdicts finding in favour of organizations of persons with disabilities and families of persons with disabilities.

Myanmar (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) The fact that the Convention has not been sufficiently incorporated into national law;
- b) The fact that the concept of disability in the State party's legislation is incompatible with the Convention as it is based on the medical model of disability;
- c) The derogatory terminology referring to persons with disabilities in legislation, regulations and policy documents, particularly in the "Lunacy" Act, the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Prisoners Act, and the Burma Army Act, such as "criminal lunatic", "lunatics" or "insane";
- d) The lack of concrete and effective measures taken at all policy areas, sectors and levels for implementing the State party's obligations under the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party, with the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- a) Ensure the full incorporation of the Convention into its national legal system to harmonize national laws with the human rights model of disability and bring them fully in line with the Convention;
- b) Align the concept of disability with the human rights model of disability set out in the Convention, and eliminate the term "suffering" and remove it from the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Law of 2015;
- c) Repeal from legislation, regulations and policy documents all derogatory terminology concerning persons with disabilities;
- d) Take concrete and effective measures for the full implementation of the Convention across all policy areas, sectors and levels.

7. The Committee notes with concern the absence of meaningful consultation and effective participation mechanisms to ensure that the views, opinions and concerns of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, persons affected by leprosy, and persons with disabilities from ethnic or religious minorities, are included in all stages of decision-making processes by public authorities at all levels.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party establish formal mechanisms to ensure the effective and meaningful participation of and consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including their participation in the implementation of the Convention, in line with general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party consider ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

Cuba (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party consider initiating the ratification process of the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) The State party has not yet harmonized its legislation with the Convention;
- b) A comprehensive law on the rights of persons with disabilities is absent;
- c) National legislation and assessment of disability is mostly based on the medical model of disability;
- d) Mainstreaming and explicit references to the rights of persons with disabilities in laws, strategies, policies and programs are insufficient.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party adheres to the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention and:

- a) Expedite the review of its national legislation, and ensure the full incorporation of the Convention in the domestic legal order, repeal or amend any laws that contradict the Convention, and harmonize policies and practices with the Convention;
- b) Adopt a national law on the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities;
- c) Ensures that any assessment of disability for purposes of service provision is undertaken;
- d) Strengthen efforts to systematically mainstream and explicitly reference the rights of persons with disabilities in laws, strategies, policies and programs.

9. The Committee is concerned that consultations and active involvement of persons with disabilities in all decision-making processes that affect them, including the implementation of the Convention, is limited to those organizations of persons with disabilities that are formally registered in accordance with Law No. 54 (1985) on Associations and that these registered organizations do not have member organizations of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 on article 4.3 and 33.3 of the Convention (2018) and recommends that the State party adopt measures to effectively and systematically consult and actively involve persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in all matters that affect them. It also recommends that the State party create an enabling environment for the establishment and functioning of organizations of persons with disabilities, by adopting a policy framework favourable to their establishment and sustained operation. The Committee also recommends that the State party guarantee the independence and autonomy of organizations of persons with disabilities from the State, the establishment, implementation of and access to adequate funding mechanisms, including public funding and international cooperation, and the provision of support, including technical assistance, for empowerment and capacity-building.

Niger (2019)

5. The committee is concerned that:

- a) The definition of disability in several legislations and regulations, including regarding prevention and detection of disability, is not in conformity with the Convention, particularly, Act No. 60-36 of 29 July 1960 on the expulsion from school of persons affected by leprosy, article 8 of the electoral code, article 2 of Ordinance No. 93-012, and Articles 42 and 43 of the draft law on Equal Opportunities and the Reintegration of Persons with disabilities (LOSEN);
- b) Terminology referring to persons with disabilities in legislation, regulations and policy documents are derogatory in nature, particularly the phrases such as “deaf and dumb”, “deaf-mute”, “cripple”, “infirm, incapable, foolish” in referring to persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities;
- c) There is a lack of effective consultation mechanisms and active participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities, particularly those representing women and children with disabilities, and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities; and a lack of their inclusion in the Sustainable Development Strategy and Inclusive Growth 2035, the priority action plan PDES 2017-2021 and the national strategy for inclusive finance.

6. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- a) Revise its legislations and regulations to conform with the human rights model of disability of the Convention, particularly article 8 of the electoral code, articles 42 and 43 of the LOSEN, and Act No. 60-36 of 29 July 1960 on the expulsion from school of persons affected by leprosy;
- b) Repeal from its legislations and regulations all derogatory terminology that demean persons with disabilities;

- c) Establish mechanisms for the participation and consultation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including those representing women, youth and children with disabilities, and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, including in the Sustainable Development Strategy and Inclusive Growth 2035, the priority action plan PDES 2017-2021, and the national strategy for inclusive finance; and design mechanisms and information about consultation processes in accessible formats for persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;
- d) Provide adequate and sustainable financial resources and other necessary support to organizations of persons with disabilities.

Norway (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) The fact that the Convention has not been incorporated into the national law and the absence of comprehensive strategy and action plan for the implementation of the Convention with timelines or budgets done in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) The interpretative declarations made to articles 12, 14 and 25 of the Convention;
- c) The fact that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention;
- d) The slow progress in replacing the medical model of disability with the human rights model of disability;
- e) The differences among municipalities in the services offered to persons with disabilities;
- f) The absence of sustainable financial support for organizations of persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Incorporate the Convention into the national law, revise legislation in line with the Convention and develop a comprehensive strategy and action plan with transparent and sustainable financial resources for the implementation of the Convention with clear timelines developed in close, meaningful and fully accessible consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) Consider withdrawing its interpretative declarations to articles 12, 14 and 25 of the Convention;
- c) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention;
- d) Adopt the human rights model of disability in all the regulations relating to the assessment of disability in accordance with the criteria and principles provided in articles 1 to 3 of the Convention;
- e) Take all necessary measures to reduce differences among municipalities in the services offered to persons with disabilities through national regulations, standards and guidelines;
- f) Provide sustainable financial support for organizations of persons with disabilities.

Rwanda (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not brought its domestic legislation into line with the Convention, and that its laws still contain pejorative terms and reflect the medical model of disability, in particular Laws No. 01/2007 on the Protection of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in General, No. 02/2007 on the Protection of Former War Combatants with Disabilities, No. 54/2011 relating to the Rights and the Protection of the Child and No. 27/2001 relating to Rights and Protection of the Child Against Violence. The Committee is also concerned at the slow pace of adoption of a national disability policy, and that the Ministerial Orders of 2009 concerning persons with disabilities remain largely unimplemented.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party's domestic legislation adhere to the Convention, taking measures to fulfil all its obligations under it and ensuring the human-rights based approach to disability. The Committee also recommends that the State party eliminate pejorative terminology relating to the rights of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party adopt without delay the national disability policy in line with the Convention, including consultation and engagement with organizations of persons with disabilities, and take effective measures with clear timelines for its implementation. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective measures to implement the Ministerial Orders of 2009.

7. The Committee is concerned about the absence of mechanisms to ensure that the views, opinions and concerns of persons with disabilities, particularly women, children and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, are included in the formulation of laws and policies, both at the national and local levels.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party establish accessible formal mechanisms to ensure the effective and meaningful participation and consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, particularly women, children and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, including in the formulation, implementation and monitoring of laws and policies. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide sufficient budgetary resources to such organizations to enable their participation.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned at:

a) The fact that the State party's legislation, including its Basic Law of Governance, its Disability Care Act, its Labour Law and its Charter establishing the Authority for the Welfare of People with Disabilities, are based on a charity-based approach to disability that runs counter to the Convention and does not recognize environmental barriers that hinder the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities in society on an equal basis with others;

b) The lack of a coherent and comprehensive disability strategy to implement the human rights model of disability established in the Convention;

c) The lack of systematic consultation of organizations led, directed and governed by persons with disabilities and involvement of persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Take advantage of the formulation of a national human rights strategy (Royal Order No. 13084) to initiate a full transition to a human rights-based model of disability in laws and policies, including in its Basic Law of Governance, its Disability Care Act, its Labour Law and its Charter establishing the Authority for the Welfare of People with Disabilities, with a view to harmonizing them with the general principles and provisions in the Convention;

b) Develop a national disability strategy in order to implement the human rights-based model of disability;

c) Establish a systematic mechanism to recognize organizations led, directed and governed by persons with disabilities and to effectively and meaningfully consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, through their representative organizations in all matters that affect them, such as the development of all laws, policies and programmes, in line with its General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

Senegal (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

a) The lack of measures to review and harmonize all legislation and policies in line with the Convention, particularly the Social Orientation Act 2010-15 and its implementing decrees, and the fact that measures geared towards the "prevention of disabilities" are misunderstood as measures to implement the Convention;

- b) The use of unacceptable terminology in legislation when referring to persons with disabilities, such as “deaf-mute”;
- c) Disability assessment criteria not in line with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention for the issuance of the Equality Cards by the different commissions established by decree 2012-1038;

6. The Committee reminds the State party that the prevention of disability is not a measure of implementation of the Convention and recommends that the State party:

- a) Revise all laws, policies and plans to harmonize them with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention;
- b) Eliminate from legislation derogatory language in reference to persons with disabilities;
- c) Adopt a human right-based approach to disability assessment, and ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are involved in the design of disability assessment criteria for the issuance of Equality Cards.

Spain (2019)

6. The Committee is concerned at non-compliance with the Convention and the human-rights model of disability of several national, regional and municipal legislations and policies, particularly “The Consolidated Text of the General Act on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and their Social Inclusion” of 2013 and “The Personal Autonomy Promotion Act” of 2006. It is concerned that this results in the reliance on medical model classifications that categorise people on the basis of diagnosis and excludes the broad scope provided in the Convention that recognises disabilities in relation to impairment and barriers in the social environment, especially in regards to psychosocial disability. The Committee is also concerned about:

- a) The predominance of a paternalistic approach and the lack of human rights-based provisions within mental health systems, as well as of explicit strategies aimed at ensuring their protection from discrimination and ill-treatment;
- b) The lack of progress to implement the previous recommendations of the Committee to abolish legal provisions that reinforce a negative perception of disability by providing for the late termination of pregnancy based on foetal impairment, as well as legislative initiatives aimed at recognizing the legal status of euthanasia on the ground of disability;
- c) The limited progress to ensure equal and full-range involvement and participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in all matters that concern them, including the elaboration of public policies and laws;

Lack of trainings for professionals in the fields of, inter alia, education, health, and the judiciary to raise awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities and standards enshrined in the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Review and amend all laws, policies and practices relating to the provision of services for persons with disabilities at all levels and across all Autonomous Communities, in accordance with the principles enshrined in the Convention and in line with the human rights model of disability;
- b) Design and implement a policy focusing at ensuring the full respect of the rights of persons with psychosocial disabilities, including by ensuring that human rights-based provisions are applied in mental health systems;
- c) Abolish any distinction by law to the period within which a pregnancy can be terminated based on a potential foetus impairment, as well as withdraw all euthanasia related provisions on the ground of disability, as these contribute to a climate of stigma against disability that can lead to discrimination;
- d) Ensure the continuing involvement and meaningful consultations with various organizations of persons with disabilities, including but not limited to women, children, refugees and asylum-seekers, LGBTI+, persons with psychosocial disabilities or with intellectual, hearing or visual impairments, persons living in rural areas and persons in need of high levels of support, in the designing and amending of new and existing laws, policies and programs to ensure their compliance with the Convention, as defined by The Committee's General Comment No. 7 of 2018;

Continue providing trainings to professionals including judges and law enforcement officials, health care professionals, teachers as well as personnel working with persons with disabilities to raise their awareness of the rights under the Convention.

Türkiye (2019)

5. The Committee is concerned about the prevalence, in practice, of the medical, charitable, and paternalistic approaches to disability, exemplified in disability assessments based on medical reports, which reduce persons with disabilities to their impairments and health condition.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Revise its legislation and policies at the national and provincial levels to harmonize them with the human rights model of disability, upholding the principles of dignity, individual autonomy, and equality of persons with disabilities in all areas of life;

b) Amend current legislation concerning disability assessments, ensuring that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are involved in their design, and that multiple assessments do not create an undue burden for the person involved, reduce the burden on applicants, and promote consistency and transparency with effective safeguards for persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee is concerned that there is no updated and transparent information and recorded progress in the areas covered by the Strategy and National Plan of Action on Accessibility and the 2011-2013 Strategy and Plan on Care Services.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party establish an effective mechanism to monitor the progress made in the fields of accessibility and support, involving persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in such monitoring.

9. The Committee is concerned about the limited information about the progress made to adopt the National Plan of Action and Strategy Paper on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, and about the sustained and formal mechanisms of consultation and involvement of the diversity of organizations of persons with disabilities throughout the decision-making process since 2017.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention and recommends that the State party:

a) Ensure transparent and meaningful consultations with representative organizations of persons with disabilities for the adoption of the National Plan of Action and Strategy Paper on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and its programmes and all legislation-related bills;

b) Support persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities in setting up their representative organizations and include them in consultations concerning the implementation of the Convention;

c) Promote and facilitate the establishment and functioning of organizations of persons with disabilities, guarantee their independence and autonomy from the State, and ensure their access to adequate funding mechanisms, including public funding and international cooperation, and the provision of support for empowerment and capacity-building.

Vanuatu (2019)

6. The Committee is concerned at:

a) The delay in the repeal and amendment of existing legislation that is not in line with the Convention after the Legislative Review by the Ministry of Justice in 2016;

- b) The use of derogatory terminology concerning persons with disabilities in law and practice;
- c) The absence of a specific law to enforce policies and action plans with regards to persons with disabilities and the limited implementation of the National Disabilities Inclusive Development Policy (2018-2025);
- d) The fact that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations have not been effectively involved in the development of laws and policies as well as decision-making processes on matters affecting them.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Repeal or amend all discriminatory legislation, within a clear timeline, adhering to the Convention and ensure that persons with disabilities are consulted and meaningfully engaged in the process;
- b) Eliminate the use of all derogatory terminology regarding persons with disabilities in laws and practice, including in the media;
- c) Enact a Disability Bill, without delay, which includes the human rights approach to disability enshrined in the Convention and an assessment mechanism and adopt measures to effectively implement the National Disabilities Inclusive Development Policy (2018-2025);
- d) Ensure full involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in legislative and policy development and decision-making in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities and persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol without delay.

Algeria (2018)

4. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party consider initiating the ratifying process of the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet harmonized its legislation with the Convention, including Law No. 02-09 of May 2002 and Executive Decree No. 14-204 of 15 July 2014, which are mostly based on the medical model of disability. It is also concerned that the multiple levels of assessments of disability for the purpose of benefits and other services still focus on deficiencies of the person.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Ensure the full incorporation of the Convention in the domestic legal order, repeal or amend any law that contradicts the Convention and discriminates against persons with disabilities, including Law No. 02-09 of May 2002 and harmonize policies and practices with the Convention;
- b) Eliminate the multiple levels of assessments of disability and, in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop an assessment policy and procedure, in line with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities through their representative organizations are not consulted and actively involved in all decision-making processes affecting them, including the implementation of the Convention.

9. The Committee recalls the Committee's General Comment No. 7 on article 4.3 and 33.3 of the Convention (2018) and recommends that the State party adopt measures to effectively and systematically consult and actively involve persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in all matters that affect them. It also recommends that the State party adopt measures to enable the interaction of representative organizations of persons with disabilities with the State party in a safe, collaborative manner.

Bulgaria (2018)

7. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party speed up the ratification process of the Optional Protocol to the Convention, and ensure dissemination of public information concerning this process.

9. The Committee is concerned that the medical and charity approaches to disability still prevail in the State party's legislation, and that definitions of disability and assessment of persons with disabilities in the State party's legislation are not in line with the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party undertake a review of its legislation with the aim to bring it in line with the human rights model of disability. It also recommends that the State party withdraw any derogatory terminology concerning persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, and in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop an assessment policy and procedure, in line with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention.

11. The Committee notes with concern that the Integration of Persons with Disabilities Act is not fully in line with the provisions of the Convention, and that the 2018 amendments to it still maintain rules that had been repealed by the Constitutional Court. It is also concerned that the new Persons with Disabilities Act is yet to be adopted.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the draft bill and withdraw the 2018 amendments to the Integration of Persons with Disabilities Act that contravene the Convention. It also recommends that the State party adopt the new Persons with Disabilities Act ensuring its compliance with the principles and provisions of the Convention, and establish a framework for adoption of sectorial legislation that ensure mainstreaming and inclusion of the rights of persons with disabilities in all areas of life.

13. The Committee is concerned about the lack of dialogue between the Government and organizations of persons with disabilities, and that organizations of persons with disabilities have received insufficient information about the envisaged reform on aspects, such as the certification of disabilities, the assessment of reduced capacity to work, and the right to retirement.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention:

a) Strengthen and implement formal mechanisms for effective and meaningful consultation of persons with disabilities concerning the implementation of the Convention, through their representative organizations, including organizations of women with disabilities, organizations of children with disabilities, and organizations of families of persons with disabilities in their supportive role;

b) Provide continuous funding for organizations of persons with disabilities and transparent criteria and mechanisms for consultation, including information in Easy Read, and other accessible formats for all persons with disabilities;

c) Provide organizations of persons with disabilities with information and timetable of the consultation process concerning the envisaged reforms aimed at changing the certification of disability, capacity to work and the right to retirement, in line with the human rights model of disability.

Malta (2018)

5. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) The three entities of the State party that certify disability continue to use assessments based on a medical approach and that the different assessment criteria for the eligibility of services continue to focus on the degree of impairment of persons and are different for each entity;
- b) The articles of the Convention are not yet all enforceable under national legislation;
- c) The National Disability Strategy, that implements the National Policy for the Rights of Persons with Disability, has not been promulgated and formally launched yet;
- d) The concept of universal design is not explicitly or comprehensively defined in legislation, mainstreamed into regulations or enforced through monitoring mechanisms;
- e) The representative organizations of persons with disabilities are insufficiently included into the debates and work of government-appointed mandate holders and entities and lack funding to support the implementation and monitoring of the rights of persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Revise and amend all laws, policies and practices, including provisions of the Equal Opportunities (Persons with Disability) Act (Cap. 413), the Parking Concessions for Persons with Disability Act (Cap. 560), the Persons with Disability (Employment) Act (Cap. 210) and the Social Security Act (Cap. 318), to bring them into line with the principles and rights enshrined in the Convention;
- b) Ensure a disability assessment method which fully incorporates the human rights model of disability and takes a human rights based approach by inter alia:
 - i. Involving Disabled People's Organisations in the design of disability assessment;
 - ii. Engaging persons with disabilities engaged in generating the information on which disability assessments are made;
 - iii. Eliminating multiple methods of disability assessment and as a result reduce the burden on applicants;
 - iv. Making information on assessment requirements accessible and user-friendly;
 - v. Frequently reviewing assessment methods.
- c) Adopt the necessary legislative measures, including the UN CRPD Bill, to ensure that the articles of the Convention are judiciable;
- d) Accelerate the promulgation and formal launch of the National Disability Strategy, while ensuring the meaningful consultation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations;
- e) Achieve full accessibility through the mainstreaming of the concept of universal design in all relevant national and municipal legislation, policies and regulations, and ensure their implementation through an effective monitoring;
- f) Ensure the inclusion of and provide adequate funding for representative organizations of persons with disabilities to effectively monitor the implementation of the Convention.

Philippines (2018)

6. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) Prevalence of the medical and charity approaches in the State party's legislation and policies concerning persons with disabilities, overemphasizing impairment, medical treatment, and social care, which is in stark contrast with the human rights model of the Convention;
- b) Insufficient human, technical and financial resources allocated for reforming and harmonizing national-level disability laws and institutionalising policy changes to implement the Convention;
- c) Legislation that perpetuates existing stereotypes against persons with disabilities, and inadvertently institutionalize stigmatization and discrimination based on disability;

d) Absence of a comprehensive policy across all sectors and levels for implementing the State party's obligations under the Convention, including removing all barriers for inclusion of persons with disabilities in society.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Establish a process to conduct review of its legislation and bring it into line with the human rights model of disability in the Convention. The State party should recognise all persons with disabilities as right-holders, and reaffirm their inherent dignity and autonomy;

b) Eliminate the multiple levels of assessments of disability and, in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop an assessment policy and procedure, in line with the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention;

c) Ensure appropriate human, technical and financial resources to update its legislative and policy framework;

d) Carry out a participatory process involving representative organizations of persons with disabilities as well as organizations of the public and private sectors, aimed at identifying environmental and attitudinal barriers hindering full and effective participation of persons with disabilities in Philippine society, and adopting measures to overcome such barriers at all levels;

e) Adopt a comprehensive national action plan for the implementation of the obligations in the Convention. The State party should establish a timeframe, specific indicators and benchmarks concerning progress of such a policy, and allocate resources for its implementation in rural areas, municipalities, and provinces.

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information, coupled with effective and meaningful consultations consult and involve representative organizations of persons with disabilities, particularly living in remote and rural areas, in decision-making processes and public affairs concerning the implementation and monitoring the Convention.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention:

a) Adopt measures to promote the establishment of organizations of women with disabilities, organizations of children with disabilities and organisations of persons with intellectual disabilities, and provide them with financial resources to ensure their functioning;

b) Provide persons with disabilities with accessible information and methodologies concerning consultation procedures, including information on Easy Read for organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, and age-appropriate mechanisms for improving participation of children with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

Poland (2018)

5. The Committee is concerned at the:

a) Lack of a comprehensive strategy and action plan for the implementation of the Convention, as well as the lack of mainstreaming of its provisions into national, regional, local and sectoral policies, which still reflects a charity and social protection approach considering persons with disabilities as social care receivers rather than human rights holders;

b) Variety of disability assessment mechanisms, including separate mechanisms for children until 16 years old, as well as the variety of definitions of disability, which are not consistent with the purpose (art. 1) of the Convention, and are all based on a medical-model disability, using derogatory terminology and vague concepts such as "mental retardation", "incapacity to work", "inability to perform social roles" or "dependent or lacking ability to be autonomous";

- c) Lack of awareness of professionals and civil servants on the rights of persons with disabilities and the State Party's obligations under the Convention;
- d) Selective and limited involvement and meaningful consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities in policy making;
- e) Legal provisions promoting prenatal genetic testing as primary prevention of future impairments of a foetus;
- f) Interpretative declaration made to article 12 as well as reservations made to articles 23(1)(a), 23(1)(b) and 25(a) of the Convention and the fact that the State Party has not yet ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) With the wide participation of organisations of persons with disabilities, develop a strategy and action plan for implementation of obligations under the Convention, ensuring the comprehensive paradigm shift from a charity model to the human-rights model of disability across its national, regional, local and sectoral policies, considering persons with disabilities as human rights holders;
- b) Ensure a disability assessment which fully incorporates a human rights model of disability and takes a human rights based approach by inter alia:
 - i. Involving Organisations of persons with disabilities in the design of disability assessment mechanisms;
 - ii. Engaging persons with disabilities in generating the information on which disability assessments are made;
 - iii. Eliminating multiple methods of assessment;
 - iv. Making information on assessments requirements accessible and user-friendly.
- c) Eliminate all negative terminology across all existing and drafted regulations and replace it with a terminology which fully respects the dignity and autonomy of persons with disabilities;
- d) Ensure active and full-scale involvement and meaningful consultations with various organizations of persons with disabilities, including but not limited to women, children, refugees and asylum-seekers, LGBT+ persons, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, with hearing and visual impairments, persons living in rural areas and persons in need of high level of support, in designing of new laws and strategies to ensure that legislation complies with the Convention, as well as in the implementation, monitoring and reporting on the Sustainable Development Goals;
- e) Provide trainings to professionals, including judges and law enforcement officials, health care professionals, teachers as well as personnel working with persons with disabilities to raise their awareness of the rights under the Convention;
- f) Refrain from including information on primary disability prevention in future report, as primary prevention of impairment is not a measure contributing to the implementation of the Convention;
- g) Consider withdrawing its interpretative declaration and its reservations to the Convention and ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

South Africa (2018)

4. The Committee notes with concern that the concept and assessment procedures of disability in some national laws still reflects the medical model of disability, particularly in the South African education system and specifically in the Guidelines on the "Licensing of Residential and/or Day-care Facilities for Persons with Mental Illness and/or Severe and Profound Intellectual Disabilities".

5. The Committee recommends that the State party harmonise and align the concept of disability in all laws and policies to bring them in line with the human rights model of disability in the Convention. In particular it is recommended that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are involved in the design of disability assessment and that multiple assessment is eliminated, which should reduce the burden on applicants, and should promote consistency and transparency in assessment.

6. The Committee is concerned about the absence of meaningful consultation and effective participation mechanisms to ensure that the views, opinions and concerns of persons with disability, particularly youths, are included in policy formulation, including decision-making processes, by public authorities both at the national and local level.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Establish formal mechanisms to ensure effective and meaningful participation and consultation with persons with disabilities, particularly youths, through their representative organisations, including their participation in the implementation of the Convention. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide sufficient budgetary resources to such organizations.

b) Provide regular training to all public officials involved in the consultation process on non-discrimination, dignity and respect as well as the right to reasonable accommodation of persons with disabilities focusing on the human rights based approach to disability.

North Macedonia (2018)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

a) The lack of harmonisation of national legislation, policy and programmes with the Convention and the persistence of the medical model of disability;

b) The use of different disability assessments and definitions in the legal framework of the State Party that are not in line with the human rights based model of disability, i.e. in the Law on Prevention of and Protection from Discrimination (LPPD);

c) The absence of clear plans, timelines or budgets to ensure the progressive implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities in consultation with the organizations of persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends the State party to:

a) Review and ensure conformity with and harmonisation of its legislation and policies with the Convention;

b) Abolish derogatory terms relating to disability and ensure respect for the dignity of all persons with disability;

c) Ensure a disability assessment method which fully incorporates the Human rights based approach to disability and takes the human rights approach by, inter alia:

i. Involving disabled persons' organisations in the design of disability assessment;

ii. Engaging persons with disability in generating the information on which disability assessments are made;

iii. Eliminating multiple disability assessments and as a result reduce the burden on applicants;

iv. Making information on assessment requirements user accessible and user friendly;

v. Frequently reviewing assessment methods.

d) Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities are meaningfully involved in the design, evaluation of laws, policies, action plans, timelines and budgets and that their views be considered prior to adopting decisions related to them.

Haiti (2018)

4. The Committee notes with concern inconsistencies across the State party in the understanding, adoption and application of the human rights based approach to disability and its evolving concept. It is particularly concerned that:

a) Despite the de facto incorporation of the Convention into national legislation upon ratification by the State party, discriminatory legislation on the basis of disability, adopted before and after the ratification of the Convention, is still applicable;

b) The use of offensive and derogatory terminology when referring to persons with disabilities in law and practice remains common and without any sanctions;

c) "Disability prevention policies", included in Chapter III of the Act on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities (2012) are misunderstood as a measure of implementation of the Convention and result in discrimination against persons with disabilities.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Initiate a comprehensive cross-cutting review of its legislation and policies to bring them into line with the Convention and ensure that the legal framework protects persons with disabilities against discrimination on the grounds of disability;

b) Eliminate the use of offensive and pejorative language when referring to persons with disabilities;

c) Eliminate all policies which aim at legitimizing the prevention of disability as a measure of implementation of the Convention;

d) Engage persons with disabilities through their representative organisations and the national human rights institution in the above processes.

6. The Committee is concerned that:

a) The National Council for the Rehabilitation of Persons with Disabilities is no longer operational;

b) The resource allocation of the Office of the Secretary of State for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities is insufficient to carry out its mandate;

c) Persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, through their representative organizations are not actively, sufficiently and meaningfully consulted in the development of laws, public policies, plans of action, and training and awareness-raising activities in all sectors.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Re-establish the National Council for the Rehabilitation of Persons with Disabilities with a clear role, mandate and adequate resources;

b) Allocate sufficient human, technical and financial resources to ensure the Office of the Secretary of State for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities can carry out its mandate;

c) Effectively and meaningfully consult with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development of all laws, policies and programmes that include all person with disabilities regardless of age, sex, faith, race, gender identity or sexual orientation, migrant or other status.

Nepal (2018)

7. The Committee is concerned that the State party tends to adhere to the World Health Organisation (WHO) definition of disability with a focus on conditions arising from inherent personal or medical limitations, thereby overlooking interactions with environmental factors. While the Convention recognizes an evolving concept of disability, the State party appears to be trapped by the concept of 'permanent disability'. The Committee is concerned that the State party still uses a classification of disability that excludes certain groups of persons with disabilities who do not fall in any of these categories such those who are hard of hearing. The Committee is also concerned that persons with disabilities from rural areas and indigenous backgrounds face barriers in accessing disability identity cards.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a human rights model of disability that stresses human dignity of persons with disabilities and conditions arising from interactions with various barriers that may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others. In this regard, the State party should ensure that the classification of disability is human rights based and does not exclude certain groups of persons with disabilities. The State party should take appropriate measures to remove all barriers to ensure that persons with disabilities from rural areas and indigenous backgrounds have access to disability identity cards.

Oman (2018)

5. The Committee notes that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention, as well as other international human rights treaties.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party adopts measures towards ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention and that it consider ratifying or acceding to other international human rights treaties to which it is not yet a party.

7. The Committee is concerned that:

a) National legislation is not fully in line with the human rights based approach to disability in accordance with the Convention and that the medical approach to disability reflects a negative image of persons with disabilities who are presented as individuals unable to fit into the society;

b) Derogatory terminology concerning persons with disabilities has not yet been eliminated from all laws, policies and government discourse;

c) Lack of effective consultations involving persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in engaging in human rights advocacy aimed at a better implementation of the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, adopt all measures necessary to ensure that its legislation, policies and practices are in full compliance with the general principles and specific provisions of the Convention. In particular, the Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Undertake a comprehensive legislative and policy review in order to adopt, ensure and enforce the prohibition of discrimination on the basis of disability and the full transition to the human rights model of disability, including with respect to the new Bill for Persons with Disabilities;

b) Ensure that derogatory terminology is eliminated from all laws, policies and government discourse;

c) Establish formal mechanisms for the ongoing and systematic consultation and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, with sufficient allocation of budgetary resources to promote the meaningful participation of organisations of persons with disabilities in national affairs and all matters that concern them, including with respect to the elaboration of the new Bill for Persons with Disabilities;

d) Promote and support the effective participation of organisations of women, children and youths with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and design mechanisms for the provision of information in accessible formats to persons with intellectual disabilities.

9. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information from non-governmental organizations (NGOs) on the State party's efforts and challenges in implementing the Convention. The Committee is also concerned at reports indicating that NGOs operate within restricted boundaries in the State party.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party continue to consult and expand its dialogue with civil society organizations working in the area of human rights protection in particular with respect to persons with disabilities, in connection with the preparation of its next periodic report. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt concrete measures, including by amending the Civil Associations Act (2000) to create and ensure an enabling environment in which civil society organizations may be established and freely conduct their activities in line with the Convention, in particular representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

Russian Federation (2018)

5. The Committee notes that the State Party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State Party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention in a timely manner.

7. The Committee notes that official translation of the term “person with disabilities” into Russian as “invalidi” does not reflect the human rights model.

8. The Committee recommends that the State Party amend the official translation of the Convention and use terms in a way that would fully reflect the human rights model.

9. The Committee notes that the State party persistently relies on medical care and rehabilitation and that there is still focus on creating specialized services which may lead to segregation. While noting the 2014 Federal Law 419 on the rights of persons with disabilities, the Committee is concerned about insufficient efforts to harmonize legislation on persons with disabilities with the Convention and the lack of mechanisms for the implementation of the existing legislation.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party, in full and effective cooperation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, adopt all necessary measures to ensure full compliance of legislation with the general principles and specific provisions in the Convention and its effective implementation. In particular, the Committee recommends the adoption of measures in matters relating to non-discrimination and to the full transition to a human rights-based approach of disability and that the State party engage in mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities and their access to services within existing systems for their inclusion in the community across all regions of the State party.

11. The Committee notes with concern insufficiently transparent and comprehensive framework for ensuring full and effective consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in adoption, implementation and monitoring of legislation and policies pertaining to the rights of persons with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that the State Party develop transparent and comprehensive framework for ensuring full and effective consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in adoption, implementation and monitoring of legislation and policies pertaining to the rights of persons with disabilities, including through setting up funding framework that would ensure independence of such organisations.

Seychelles (2018)

6. The Committee is seriously concerned about:

a) The delays in the review, repeal and amend existing domestic legislation which is not in line with the Convention, including: the Constitution, Chapter III, which still promotes and defends a medical and welfare model of disability; the Civil Code; and the National Council for Disabled Persons Act (1994);

b) The lack of a specific act or resolution for domestication of the Convention;

c) Derogatory terminology concerning persons with disabilities in legislation and when referring to persons with disabilities;

d) The delays in the revision of the National Policy on Disability and in the finalization of the national plan of action on disability.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Expedite efforts to review all legislation and policies to harmonize them with the Convention;

b) Take the legal measures necessary to explicitly and fully incorporate all provisions of the Convention into its national legislation to ensure their direct application by the courts and administrative decision-making bodies;

c) Promote and defend a human rights model to disability and eliminate the use of all derogatory language in laws and when referring to persons with disabilities;

d) Expedite the revision of the National Policy on Disability, the finalization of the national plan of action on disability, and allocate sufficient resources for its implementation.

8. The Committee is concerned that the State party was unable to sufficiently engage with organizations of persons with disabilities in view of the reporting process. It is also concerned that:

- a) Existing legislation, mainly the National Council for Disabled Persons Act (1994) does not provide for the effective participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) The National Council for the Disabled has limited involvement and participation of persons with disabilities and that there is no permanent forum for persons with disabilities to meaningfully engage and participate in legislative and policy formulation and implementation;
- c) Representative organizations of persons with disabilities receive insufficient support to carry out their work.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Amend the National Council for Disabled Persons Act (1994) to ensure that persons with disabilities through their representative organizations are included at all levels of legislative and policy formulation;
- b) Strengthen the involvement and effective consultation and participation of persons with disabilities in the National Council for the Disabled and adopt measures to establish an appropriate forum for organizations of persons with disabilities to meaningfully engage and participate in decision-making processes;
- c) Offer appropriate support, including financial support and partnerships, to representative organizations of persons with disabilities to carry out their work.

10. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol without further delay.

Slovenia (2018)

4. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) The lack of harmonisation of national legislation, policies, and programmes with the provisions of the Convention, and the persistence of a paternalistic approach related to persons with disabilities underpinned by the medical and charity models of disability;
- b) The variety of disability definitions not in compliance with the human rights model of disability, in particular definitions that are derogatory and, point out the 'unfitness' of persons to participate in regular education, independent life and work, on the basis of their impairment;
- c) Inappropriate translation of the Convention into Slovenian language;
- d) The lack of consultations with organisations of persons with disabilities aimed at ensuring their meaningful involvement in the design and implementation of disability-related legislation and programmes; as well as about the reported undermined autonomy, impartiality and financial sustainability of the Foundation for the Financing of Disability and Humanitarian Organizations;
- e) The lack of awareness, among decision-makers of the executive and legislative branches as well as among professional and administrative staff, about the obligations of the State party under the Convention, in all areas of life.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Conduct a review of its national legislation, policies and programmes and bring them into line with the provisions of the Convention; including the various definitions of disability in legislation and align it with the human rights model of disability;
- b) Review the current official translation of the Convention to Slovenian with a view to ensure the accuracy in all accessible formats;
- c) Ensure the timely, thorough and full consultations with representative organisations of persons with disabilities in all stages of decision-making processes, particularly when designing, implementing and monitoring disability-related legislation, programmes and measures, pursuant to the rights enshrined in the Convention. The State party should ensure the impartiality, as well as autonomy and sustainable funding of the Foundation for the Financing of Disability and Humanitarian Organizations for the promotion and implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities, in line with the Convention;

d) Provide duty-bearers at regional and national levels, including members of the National Assembly and government, judges and court staff, health care professionals, social workers, staff responsible for the provision of mobility aids and other administrative and professional staff with training on the rights of persons with disabilities and the State party's obligations under the Convention. The State party should develop such training, in close cooperation and collaboration with the representative organisations of persons with disabilities.

Sudan (2018)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

- a) The definition of disability in national legislation, in particular in the National Persons with Disabilities Act of 2017, not including psychosocial disability;
- b) The insufficient harmonization of domestic laws with the Convention;
- c) The limited effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting them;
- d) The absence of clear plans, timelines or budgets to ensure the progressive implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Review the National Persons with Disabilities Act of 2017 to include psychosocial disability in the definition of disability;
- b) Establish a calendar for the harmonization of legislation with the Convention;
- c) Ensure that representative organizations of person with disabilities are meaningfully involved in the design, implementation and evaluation of laws, policies and action plans and their views be considered prior to adopting decisions related to them;
- d) Develop, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, plans, timelines and budgets to ensure the implementation of the Convention in the State party.

Latvia (2017)

6. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) There is a deficient-oriented approach to disability assessment, which is based on the medical model and which focuses on incapacity to work;
- b) Children with an intellectual or hearing disability whose impairment is not deemed severe enough by the Medical Disability Commission may not be entitled to receive official disability status and the consequent financial and other State support;
- c) The National Council on Disability Affairs lacks decision-making authority to implement policies on the rights of persons with disabilities and fails to ensure the meaningful participation of its representative organizations;
- d) The concepts of reasonable accommodation and universal design are not explicitly or comprehensively defined in legislation, mainstreamed into municipal regulations or enforced through monitoring mechanisms;
- e) The representative organizations of persons with disabilities are insufficiently funded to support the implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Ensure that disability determination is based on a human rights model of disability, includes an assessment of the needs, will and preferences of the individuals concerned, with particular attention being paid to children with an intellectual and hearing disability, and focuses on the elimination of barriers and the promotion of the full and effective participation of persons with disabilities in society;

- b) Enhance the decision-making capacity of the National Council on Disability Affairs to design, coordinate and evaluate disability-related policies across all sectors and levels of the public administration at the national and local levels, through meaningful cooperation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities;
- c) Assess the effectiveness of the action plan on the implementation of the Convention (2015-2017) after its expiration and establish a new action plan with clear benchmarks and indicators, in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities;
- d) Mainstream the full concepts of reasonable accommodation and universal design in all relevant national and municipal legislation, policies and regulations, and ensure their effective implementation through monitoring;
- e) Provide adequate funding for activities, projects and programmes that are designed and implemented by representative organizations of persons with disabilities for the enhancement of their rights.

Luxembourg (2017)

6. The Committee is concerned that disability continues to be defined in laws, policies and practices using a medical approach. It is also concerned that the different assessment criteria for the eligibility of services continue to focus on the degree of impairment of persons and result in exclusion, particularly of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities. It is further concerned that the national plan of action to implement the Convention comes to an end in 2017 despite the lack of implementation of some of its foreseen measures.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party revise and amend all laws, policies and practices relating to the provision of services in accordance with the principles enshrined in the Convention, and that it establish criteria, for both social protection measures and access to services, in line with the human rights model of disability. It also recommends that the State party expedite the implementation of the national plan of action.

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a permanent coordinating mechanism equipped with sufficient human and financial resources to ensure coherence in the implementation of the Convention. It is also concerned about the lack of systematic consultations with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in the development of policies and decisions that affect them directly.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to increase cooperation and coherence on matters related to disability, that it establish a systematic mechanism to effectively and meaningfully consult with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development of all laws, policies and programmes, and that it ensure that a broad range of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, participate meaningfully in an inclusive and accessible manner in public decision-making processes that affect them.

Montenegro (2017)

6. The Committee is concerned that progress in bringing national legislation into full compliance with the Convention and replacing the current medical model of disability with a human rights-based approach has been largely insufficient. The Committee is also concerned that there are no clear and identifiable budget lines within the public budgets for the implementation of laws, policies and programmes for the implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly for the implementation of the Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a human rights-based approach to disability in all its laws, policies and measures. It also recommends that the State party educate and raise the awareness of its policymakers, professionals and the public in general on the rights of persons with disabilities enshrined in the Convention and its Optional Protocol. It further recommends that the State party:

a) Continue its efforts to regularly review existing and draft legislation in regular and fully accessible consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations and ensure that disability rights impact assessments form an integral part of the legislative process;

b) Allocate identifiable, sufficient, coherent and continuous budget resources to the development and implementation of laws, policies and strategies that are relevant for the implementation of the Convention, including the Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities.

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of regular and sustainable financial support for organizations of persons with disabilities, particularly at the local level. It is also concerned about the lack of a transparent and efficiently structured mechanism for regular consultation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party provide adequate and sustainable financial resources to organizations of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party ensure effective participation of and consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including those representing women with disabilities, children with disabilities, persons with hearing impairments and the deaf, and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities at the national and local levels through transparent frameworks in relation to law and policymaking.

Morocco (2017)

6. The Committee notes with concern that the concept of disability in various national laws, adopted before the ratification of the Convention, is contrary to the human rights model of the Convention. It also notes the prevalence of the medical approach, focusing mainly on the prevention of impairments and on health treatment or attention that is not in line with the recognition of persons with disabilities as human-rights holders.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party harmonize and update the definitions of disability in the various laws and policies and bring them into line with the human rights model of disability set out in the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned that Framework Law 97-13 on the promotion and protection of the rights of persons with disabilities does not specify the time frame for its entry into force and protects only persons with disabilities who hold a valid "disability card". It is also concerned that the law fails to include measures to protect persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities belonging to minority, ethnic and linguistic groups and those who are refugees and asylum seekers.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Revise Framework Law 97-13 to bring it into line with the Convention and adopt specific measures to protect all persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities belonging to national, ethnic, religious and/or linguistic minorities, such as Amazigh, black people, migrants, refugees and asylum seekers, and specify the time frame for its entry into force;

b) Include all persons with disabilities in the process of developing its public policies and plans of action in the area of disability aimed at implementing its obligations under article 4 (1) (c) and eliminate any distinction between persons with disabilities who are holders of disability cards and those who are not.

10. The Committee is concerned about the absence of effective participation and consultation mechanisms aimed at ensuring that opinions, concerns and proposals of organizations of persons with disabilities are adequately included in the process of enacting legislation and in processes of decision-making by public authorities at the national and local levels.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Establish mechanisms to ensure effective and meaningful participation and consultation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations and on a regular basis, and that sufficient budgetary resources be provided to promote their meaningful participation;

b) Promote and support the participation of organizations of women, children and young people with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and design mechanisms for and information about consultation processes in accessible formats for persons with intellectual disabilities.

Panama (2017)

6. The Committee notes with concern that the medical model of disability continues to be applied in the State party and that legislation and public policies and programmes have not been aligned with the human rights model of disability established in the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a plan to amend, repeal, reform and/or adopt laws and policies with a view to recognizing persons with disabilities as fully-fledged rights holders, in keeping with the Convention.

8. The Committee notes that the criteria for classifying disabilities are not standardized or in line with the principles of the Convention, in that they are based on the impairment in question and do not take into account the barriers that persons with disabilities face.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party review its criteria for the classification and certification of disabilities and ensure that they reflect a human-rights-based approach.

10. The Committee is concerned that consultation with persons with disabilities is not a mandatory step prior to the adoption of policies and programmes that affect them.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party implement the coordination mechanism provided for in Act No. 15 of 2016 and ensure ongoing consultation, through the appropriate organizations, with persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, in rural and urban areas and in indigenous regions concerning the adoption of laws and policies and other issues of relevance to them.

12. The Committee is concerned at the limited economic, material and human resources available for the implementation of the National Strategic Plan.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the provision of sufficient economic, material and human resources for the implementation of the National Strategic Plan.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

6. The Committee welcomes the information about the support of the Government of the State party to the Crown Dependencies and Overseas Territories for the extension of the Convention. However, it observes with concern:

a) The insufficient incorporation and uneven implementation of the Convention across all policy areas and levels within all regions, devolved governments and territories under its jurisdiction and/or control;

b) The lack of consistency across the State party in the understanding of, adapting to and applying the human rights model of disability and its evolving concept of disability;

c) The absence of a comprehensive and cross-cutting review of the State party's legislation and policies, including within the devolved governments, in order to harmonize legal content and practice with the Convention;

d) The existing laws, regulations and practices that discriminate against persons with disabilities;

e) The lack of information on policies, programmes and measures that will be put in place by the State party to protect persons with disabilities from being negatively affected when article 50 of the Treaty on European Union is triggered.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Incorporate the Convention into its legislation, recognizing access to domestic remedies for breaches of the Convention, and adopt an appropriate and comprehensive response to the obligations enshrined in the Convention in its policies and programmes across the State party, including all devolved governments;

b) Strengthen its efforts to extend the Convention and support its implementation in the Overseas Territories;

c) Adopt legally binding instruments to implement the concept of disability, in line with article 1 of the Convention, and ensure that new and existing legislation incorporates the human rights model of disability across all policy areas and all levels and regions of all devolved governments and jurisdictions and/or territories under its control;

d) Undertake a comprehensive cross-cutting review of its legislation and policies to bring them into line with article 1 of the Convention, and ensure that the legal framework protects persons with disabilities against discrimination on the grounds of disability. The State party should involve organizations of persons with disabilities and national human rights institutions in this process;

e) Expedite the process to develop a measurable strategic framework and plan of action, with sufficient financial resources, aimed at abolishing laws, regulations, customs and practices that constitute discrimination against persons with disabilities and ensuring the equal protection of persons with disabilities;

f) Prevent any negative consequences for persons with disabilities resulting from the decision to trigger article 50 of the Treaty on European Union, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee is concerned at the lack of State party-led initiatives aimed at assessing and sufficiently addressing the inclusion of and living conditions for persons with disabilities, particularly in Northern Ireland and the territories under its jurisdiction and/or control.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party collect information and adopt a strategic and measurable plan of action for improving the living conditions of all persons with disabilities, including in close cooperation with the authorities in Northern Ireland and the territories under its jurisdiction and/or control.

10. The Committee is concerned about:

a) The challenges facing organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations representing women, children and intersex persons with disabilities, in accessing support and being consulted and actively involved in the implementation of the Convention;

b) The lack of sufficient mechanisms to ensure the effective participation of all organizations of persons with disabilities in decision-making processes concerning policies and legislation in all areas of the Convention, such as the strategy entitled "Fulfilling Potential: making it happen".

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Allocate financial resources to support organizations representing persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, and develop mechanisms to ensure the inclusive, strategic and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including women, children and intersex persons, in the planning and implementation of all legislation and measures that affect the lives of persons with disabilities;

b) Establish mechanisms to secure the full participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of strategic policies aimed at implementing the Convention across the State party, through objective, measurable, financed and monitored strategic action plans.

Armenia (2017)

5. The Committee is concerned about:

a) The insufficient and selective consultation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including the lack of appropriate support and reasonable accommodation, when drafting disability-related legislation, policies, strategies and action plans;

- b) The use of the concepts of prevention and treatment of disability in the revised Constitution (art. 48) and in the newly adopted comprehensive plan for 2017-2021 on social inclusion of persons with disabilities;
- c) The fact that the draft law on the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities and their social inclusion is not in line with the Convention, including the concept of disability, and provides for the prevention and treatment of disability and for legal incapacity;
- d) The fact that the State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention;
- e) The medically based determination of disability, which relies on impairments without considering social barriers and individual requirements for social participation;
- f) The lack of awareness of public servants working with persons with disabilities regarding the rights of those persons;
- g) The lack of concrete, effective and transparent measures taken by the National Commission for Persons with Disabilities to implement the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Take the measures necessary to ensure the full and equal involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the process of decision-making for and drafting of all disability-related legislation, policies, strategies and action plans. The State party should also provide appropriate support and reasonable accommodation to ensure the participation of representatives of all persons with disabilities, including women, children, refugees and asylum seekers, lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender persons, persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities, persons with hearing and visual impairments, persons living with HIV/AIDS, persons living in rural areas and persons in need of a high level of support, in consultation processes;
- b) Review its legislation and plans referring to the prevention and treatment of disability and align them with the human rights-based model of disability;
- c) Review the draft law on the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities and their social inclusion to ensure that it is in line with the Convention and the Committee's general comments;
- d) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention;
- e) Adopt a human rights-based concept of disability and ensure that disability determination focuses on the barriers to the social participation of persons with disabilities and refers to individual requirements, will and preferences;
- f) Provide regular training for public servants working with persons with disabilities, including teachers, law enforcement officers, judges, lawyers and medical staff, on the rights of persons with disabilities;
- g) Enhance the capacity of the National Commission for Persons with Disabilities to ensure intersectoral coordination and implementation of disability-related actions in public policies.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

6. The Committee is concerned about the lack of transparent procedures and legislation regarding the consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of structured financial support and capacity-building for these organizations, particularly at the local level.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt formal and transparent mechanisms for regular consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities, including those representing women and children with disabilities, persons who are deaf or hard of hearing, and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, in all entities and cantons. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide sufficient and regular financial resources to such organizations.

8. The Committee is concerned that there is no human rights-based concept of disability across the entities and cantons of the State party that is in line with the Convention. It is also concerned at the lack of efforts to revise the existing legislation and to bring it into full compliance with the Convention, bearing in mind the provisions of article 4 (5) of the Convention.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a harmonized human rights-based concept of disability in accordance with the Convention. It also recommends that the State party review its existing and draft laws in regular consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Canada (2017)

7. The Committee is concerned about the State party's reservation, which it continues to uphold, to article 12 of the Convention, preserving substitute decision-making practices. The reservation contradicts the object and purpose of the Convention as enshrined in article 1 and prevents the State party from fully implementing and addressing all human rights of persons with disabilities in compliance with the human rights model of disability.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party withdraw its declaration and reservation to article 12 (4) of the Convention and carry out a process to bring into line with the Convention federal, provincial and territorial legislation that allows for the deprivation of legal capacity of persons with disabilities. The Committee encourages the State party, in doing so, to consider the criteria set out in the Committee's general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law.

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- a) That the provisions of the Convention have yet to be appropriately incorporated into legislation and policies across sectors and levels of government;
- b) The uneven application of the Convention and the Committee's jurisprudence by the judiciary and law enforcement officials, including the police;
- c) The lack of legislation and public policies to protect the rights of persons with disabilities who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender or intersex.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Take leadership in convening provinces and territories in order to ensure a pan-Canadian approach to implementation and enact a comprehensive national action plan for implementing the Convention in collaboration with provincial and territorial governments and in consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations. The State party should ensure that such an action plan includes benchmarks and a time frame for its implementation;
- b) Set up a mechanism aimed at ensuring that legislation at the provincial and territorial levels that is to be updated further includes specific measures to implement the obligations of the State party under the Convention;
- c) Strengthen the human, financial and technical resources of the Office for Disability Issues at the federal level and ensure appropriate formal and permanent mechanisms for coordination with provincial and territorial governments;
- d) Raise awareness among and develop capacity-building programmes for the judiciary and law enforcement officials about the Convention as a legally enforceable human rights instrument, the human rights model of disability and its principles, and the jurisprudence of the Committee, including its general comments and its Views on individual communications adopted, and inquiry procedures undertaken, under the Optional Protocol.

11. The Committee takes note of the consultations undertaken with Canadians, including Canadians with disabilities and their organizations, to inform the development of planned federal accessibility, as well as the promotion of organizations of persons with disabilities and their advocacy work at the national and international levels. However, the Committee is concerned about the absence of formal, recorded consultations on comprehensive plans for the implementation of the Convention, and about the absence of information on mechanisms to foster the leadership and participation of organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities and children with disabilities in consultations.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Establish formal and permanent mechanisms for consulting with organizations of persons with disabilities in an effective and result-oriented manner at all levels of administration relating to the comprehensive implementation of the Convention;
- b) Take measures, including specific budget allocations, to strengthen the advocacy roles of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities, children with disabilities, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with neurodegenerative conditions, including Alzheimer's, dementia and multiple sclerosis.

Cyprus (2017)

5. The Committee notes with concern that the State party's national legislation has not fully incorporated a human rights-based approach to disability in line with the Convention, in particular its articles 1 and 3.

6. The Committee urges the State party to adopt and implement a human rights- based approach to disability and to review all laws and policies accordingly in collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention.

7. While noting the existence of a law regulating the obligation of public services to consult with the Confederation of the Disabled People Organization, the Committee remains concerned about the insufficient financial and other resources provided to and inadequate collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities regarding all disability-related issues. The Committee is also concerned by the absence of a representative organization of persons with intellectual disabilities. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that contributions by representative organizations of persons with disabilities into national decision-making processes are not acknowledged appropriately.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party urgently, effectively and substantially increase the support to, collaboration with and impact of all representative organizations of persons with disabilities in capacity-building and in cross-sectoral development, implementation and monitoring of policies, laws and programmes. It also recommends that the State party provide support for the creation of a representative organization of persons with intellectual disabilities.

9. The Committee is concerned about the very weak implementation of the National Disability Action Plan (2013-2015).

10. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, adopt a new National Disability Action Plan and allocate adequate funding to its implementation.

Honduras (2017)

5. El Comité observa con preocupación que se mantengan en la legislación, las políticas y los programas públicos, disposiciones sobre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y terminología peyorativa, que no están armonizadas con el modelo de discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos establecido en la Convención. Asimismo, le preocupa al Comité que el proyecto de ley de reformas a la Ley de Equidad y Desarrollo Integral para las Personas con Discapacidad contiene disposiciones de carácter muy general, y que actualmente dicho proyecto de ley se encuentra en dictamen de la Comisión de Equidad de Género del Congreso Nacional.

6. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte un plan para la revisión, derogación, reforma y/o adopción de legislación y políticas, con el objeto de reconocer a las personas con discapacidad como sujetos plenos de derechos humanos en armonía con la Convención y de eliminar toda terminología peyorativa. Asimismo, recomienda la aprobación definitiva de la actualización de la Ley de Equidad y Desarrollo Integral para las Personas con Discapacidad, tomando en cuenta las observaciones presentadas por la

Oficina del Alto Comisionado de las Naciones Unidas para los Derechos Humanos en Honduras en febrero de 2017.

7. Preocupa al Comité el rango de la Dirección General de Desarrollo para las Personas con Discapacidad, que es tan solo un programa de la Subsecretaría de Estado de Desarrollo e Inclusión Social, más ahora que se fusionó con la Dirección General del Adulto Mayor, que ejecuta el programa Honduras para Todos.

8. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte vele por que la Dirección General de Desarrollo para las Personas con Discapacidad sea una entidad nacional permanente, y le asigne recursos humanos y financieros suficientes y específicos para llevar a cabo su mandato.

9. El Comité observa con preocupación que ni la definición de discapacidad ni los criterios para calificarla no están estandarizados ni en armonía con los principios de la Convención.

10. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que armonice la definición de discapacidad con la Convención y los criterios para su certificación, con el fin de crear un sistema de certificación de la capacidad que refleje un modelo basado en los derechos humanos de las personas con discapacidad.

11. Al Comité le preocupa que las consultas a personas con discapacidad no sean vinculantes en la adopción de políticas y programas que les afectan y que no se garantiza la participación en el Consejo Consultivo creado mediante Decreto Legislativo núm. 160- 2005.

12. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte un mecanismo vinculante de consultas permanentes a personas con discapacidad a través de sus organizaciones, incluyendo a niños y niñas con discapacidad, en la adopción de legislación, políticas y otros asuntos de su pertinencia y que se garanticen las sesiones del Consejo Consultivo.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

6. The Committee notes with concern the general reservation made by the State party upon its accession to the Convention, and the lack of awareness among public authorities and society about the Convention. It is also concerned about the absence of information on whether and when the State party will ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Withdraw its reservation to the Convention;

b) Disseminate the Convention and the Committee's general comments among the Government, ministries, members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, religious and community leaders, so as to create awareness of persons with disabilities' dignity and rights;

c) Carry out dialogue with religious and community leaders about the compatibility between Islamic laws with the Convention; and

d) Take measures aimed at signing and ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee notes with concern that:

a) The State party understands disability as a health condition or 'disorder' which is 'continuous' or 'considerable' (See CRPD/C/IRN/1 para.13), and prioritizes the prevention of impairment, medical treatment, and rehabilitation of persons with disabilities;

b) The legislation and policy measures entail 'charity', 'care' and 'welfare' towards persons with disabilities rather than recognising them as rights-holders; and

c) The legislation contains derogatory language such as the terms 'mentally ill', 'insane' and/or 'retarded'.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Bring its legislation, particularly the Comprehensive Legislation on the Protection of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (2004) into line with the Convention, based on the human rights model of disability and repeal derogatory terminology against persons with disabilities, including in the New Criminal Code;

b) Ensure that the State Welfare Organization (SWO) recognises the evolving concept of disability, as a result of the interaction between any type of impairment and barriers that impede full participation of persons with disabilities in society;

c) Withdraw article 90 of the Sixth Development Plan of Iran that provides for compulsory premarital genetic examination and consultation to prevent the birth of children with disabilities; and

d) Reaffirm the right of all persons with disabilities to found a family, to marry, and to exercise their sexual and reproductive rights.

10. The Committee notes with concern the lack of mechanisms to consult with organizations of persons with disabilities in decision-making processes concerning the implementation of the Convention. It is also concerned about the lack of information about support to the work and advocacy of these organizations.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Ensure meaningful consultation with and participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities in an independent manner, including organizations of women and children with disabilities, in the development and implementation of the Convention and ensuring that they can access financial resources to advocate for human rights; and

b) Ensure that representative organizations of persons with disabilities engage freely with international mechanisms regarding the rights of persons with disabilities, including in the periodic examination of State party reports by the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Development Agenda and Sustainable Development Goals.

Jordan (2017)

5. The Committee notes that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention in a timely manner.

7. The Committee is concerned that, contrary to the Convention, national legislation contains provisions that are discriminatory to persons with disabilities, including articles 127 and 128 of the Civil Code (Law No. 43 of 1976), article 467 of the Criminal Code (Law No. 16 of 1960), articles 12, 206, 211 and 212 of the Personal Status Law (No. 36 of 2010) and articles 2, 4 and 12 of the Nationality Law (No. 6 of 1954). The Committee is also concerned that the draft law on the rights of persons with disabilities does not contain clear criteria for meaningful participation of organizations representing persons with disabilities in the Higher Council for Persons with Disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in a timely manner:

a) Ensure that the provisions of the draft law on the rights of persons with disabilities are harmonized with the Convention, that legal sanctions for non-compliance are provided for and that increased and meaningful participation of organizations representing persons with disabilities is guaranteed in accordance with article 4 (3) of the Convention, prior to adopting it;

b) Repeal all legislative provisions that are discriminatory on the grounds of disability, including articles 127 and 128 of the Civil Code (Law No. 43 of 1976), article 467 of the Criminal Code (Law No. 16 of 1960), articles 12, 206, 211 and 212 of the Personal Status Law (No. 36 of 2010) and articles 2, 4 and 12 of the Nationality Law (No. 6 of 1954); and ensure the consistent application of the concept of persons with disabilities in line with articles 1 and 3 of the Convention as well as make explicit reference to the barriers faced by persons with disabilities;

c) Revise the title and purpose of the card that is issued exclusively to persons with disabilities and ensure that its use is compliant with the Convention.

9. The Committee notes with concern that a new national strategy for persons with disabilities has not yet been adopted to replace the previous strategy that expired in 2015.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Adopt a new national strategy for persons with disabilities and a related action plan and ensure that the financial, technical and human resources necessary for its implementation are allocated to it;
- b) Clarify the mechanisms that are responsible for its implementation and monitoring and ensure the full participation of organizations representing persons with disabilities.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

6. The Committee is concerned that a medical approach to disability still persists and is widespread in the State party, as reflected in its legal framework and the medical assessment of disability, including in the determination of the working capacity of persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that:

- a) Disability policies and strategies and their implementation fall mainly within the remit of the Ministry of Labour, Social Protection and Family and lack operative mechanisms to facilitate coordination among different government sectors and consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) The concepts of reasonable accommodation and universal design are not implemented, partly due to a lack of secondary legislation and monitoring mechanisms;
- c) The State party has not yet ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party intensify its efforts to move towards a human rights-based approach to disability and to ensure that disability determination focuses on the barriers to the social participation of persons with disabilities and refers to individual requirements, will and preferences. It also recommends that the State party:

- a) Ensure effective government mechanisms for intersectoral coordination of disability-related actions in public policies and strategies, both as stand-alone and cross-cutting responsibilities of the State party and for systematic and meaningful consultations with different types of organizations of persons with disabilities throughout its territory;
- b) Provide training on the concepts of reasonable accommodation and universal design to public servants and adopt the legislative, administrative and other measures necessary to ensure their implementation across all sectors;
- c) Ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned about the human rights situation of Roma persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, who are living in extreme poverty and are vulnerable to marginalization as a result of intersecting forms of discrimination. It is also concerned that the insufficient allocation of resources to protect and promote the rights of Roma persons with disabilities places them at a high risk of human trafficking.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party include a disability perspective in the implementation of the Roma plan of action 2016-2020 and its funding. It also recommends that the State party develop and implement programmes addressing poverty and the exclusion of Roma persons with disabilities, particularly focusing on children, to address their human rights situation and eliminate intersecting forms of discrimination.

Bolivia (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned that the Constitution does not recognize persons with disabilities as full holders of all human rights, but rather considers them as in need of protection.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party review its entire legislation, including the Constitution, with a view to adopting laws that recognize persons with disabilities as full holders of all human rights.

7. The Committee is concerned that the criteria used in certifying disability continue to reflect the medical model and take no account of the barriers facing persons with disabilities or of the human rights-based model. It is also concerned that the procedure for obtaining a certificate of disability is complicated and expensive for the majority of persons with disabilities, especially those living in rural areas and indigenous communities, with the result that disability is vastly underreported.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the criteria for certification of disability to reflect the social, human rights-based model of disability, and that it make the procedure accessible, simple and free of charge for all persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee notes with concern the lack of consultation with organizations that represent persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and girls with disabilities and those that represent the interests of children. The Committee is further concerned that there is no established mechanism for such consultations when adopting legislation and policies or taking other decisions relevant to persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that the nine seats for civil society on the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities have not been filled.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt mechanisms for open, broad-based and democratic consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including those representing women and girls with disabilities and those representing the interests of children with disabilities, in connection with the adoption of policies and formulation of laws and when taking other decisions relevant to them. It also urges the State party to finish setting up the National Committee for Persons with Disabilities, so as to encourage the broad, democratic participation of independent organizations of persons with disabilities and other civil society organizations, and to consult organizations of persons with disabilities in accordance with Act No. 223.

Colombia (2016)

4. The Committee is concerned that the State party still has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

5. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee is concerned that the legislation and case law on the institutionalization of persons on the basis of disability, forced sterilization and procedures that restrict legal capacity have not been brought into line with the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a plan for the review and amendment of all legislation that includes the immediate repeal of provisions that restrict the full recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities, including Acts Nos. 1306 (2009) and 1412 (2010), as well as the Civil Code, the Criminal Code and procedural laws.

8. The Committee is concerned that derogatory terminology continues to be used in laws, case law, regulations and official documents to refer to persons with disabilities, particularly those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party remove all derogatory language that undermines the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee is concerned about the lack of processes for the extensive and accessible consultation of organizations of persons with disabilities in adopting policies and other matters affecting them, and about the fact that their views are not reflected in the decisions adopted. It is concerned that the National Disability System does not provide the necessary resources to promote the effective participation of organizations of persons with disabilities and that the accreditation procedures for such participation are complicated and expensive, especially in rural and remote areas. It is also concerned that not all the seats designated for civil society representatives on the National Council for Persons with Disabilities have been filled.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Establish and strengthen mechanisms for extensive and democratic consultation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including those that represent women and children and older persons with disabilities, and indigenous and Afro-Colombian persons with disabilities, when adopting policies and other matters that concern them, take into account the results of such consultations and reflect them in the decisions adopted;

b) Make accreditation procedures accessible, simple and quick for representatives of organizations of persons with disabilities at all levels of the National Disability System;

c) Facilitate the appointment of representatives of organizations of persons with disabilities to the National Council for Persons with Disabilities.

12. The Committee is concerned that the single register for locating and classifying persons with disabilities uses criteria based on the medical model of disability for the purposes of calculating pension and social assistance benefits. It is also concerned that to date only 2.59 per cent of the total population has been registered.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party review the criteria used for the single register for locating and classifying persons with disabilities and that it bring them into line with the human rights model of disability. It also recommends that the State party redouble its efforts to expand the register of persons with disabilities, especially in rural areas and the most remote locations. The Committee also recommends that it take steps to ensure data reliability and to update the data on a regular basis.

Ethiopia (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned that legislation and policies continue to employ derogatory terms to refer to persons with disabilities such as “insane”, “infirm” and “deaf-mute”.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party eliminate the use of all derogatory language to refer to persons with disabilities and ensure that all existing and new laws and regulations, and definitions used therein, comply with the human rights-based model of disability in accordance with the Convention.

7. The Committee is further concerned that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations are not systematically consulted in the development of all policies and laws, training and awareness-raising across all sectors, and that restrictions to foreign donor funding of disability rights hinder the liberty of association of persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure systematic and meaningful consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of all policies and laws, training and awareness-raising across all sectors, including in the implementation of the National Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities 2012-2021, and that the State party ensure the independence of association of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Guatemala (2016)

7. The Committee is concerned by the fact that the State party has not yet ratified the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty.

8. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty.

9. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not established a procedure for certifying degree of disability and that assessments are made on the basis of a medical and charity-based approach.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party define the criteria for assessing the degree of a person’s disability in accordance with the human rights principles enshrined in the Convention and establish appropriate regulation in its legislation and policies. It also recommends that the State party ensure that all persons with disabilities are able to obtain a disability certificate free of charge, so as to facilitate the assessment process in rural and remote areas.

11. The Committee notes that the State party has not yet conducted a cross-cutting review of its legislation with a view to bringing it into line with the Convention and that laws, regulations, customs and practices that constitute serious discrimination against persons with disabilities continue to be implemented.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party conduct a comprehensive, cross-cutting review of its legislation and policies in order to align them with the Convention. In addition, the Committee recommends that the State party expedite the process of approval of Framework Bill No. 5125 on disability, which provides a response in line with the Convention.

13. The Committee notes with concern that persons with disabilities, especially women, children and indigenous peoples, are subject to serious forms of discrimination. The Committee is also concerned by the fact that the National Disability Policy is not being effectively implemented by all of the ministries and public institutions concerned. It is also concerned by the lack of consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities to ensure the allocation of the necessary resources and the introduction of an implementation schedule and monitoring and evaluation mechanisms.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the effective implementation of its National Disability Policy by all ministries and public institutions concerned, allocate the necessary resources and establish an implementation schedule and a monitoring mechanism, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party mainstream disability and allocate the necessary resources to the National Development Plan, K'atun nuestra Guatemala 2032, ensuring that persons with disabilities participate in the urban and rural development councils that are responsible for monitoring its implementation. In addition, the Committee recommends that a national policy be drawn up on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, in accordance with the Convention.

Italy (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned that there are multiple definitions of disability across sectors and regions leading to disparity in access to support and services. Furthermore, disability continues to be defined through a medical perspective, and the revised concept of disability, as proposed by the National Observatory on the Status of Persons with Disabilities, is not aligned to the Convention and lacks binding legislation at both the national and regional levels.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a concept of disability in line with the Convention and ensure legislation is enacted that incorporates the new concept in a homogeneous manner across all levels and regions of government and territories.

7. The Committee is concerned about the lack of consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations and by the fact that the National Observatory on the Status of Persons with Disabilities is not a permanent consultative body. It is also concerned by the failure to prioritize the input of organizations of persons with disabilities by treating all stakeholder views equally and thereby limiting the input of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, in direct decision-making processes.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a permanent consultative body that effectively and meaningfully consults with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development of all laws, policies and programmes, and that it ensure that a broad range of persons with disabilities that reflect the diversity of people's backgrounds, including age, sex, faith, race, sexual orientation, migrant status and impairment groups, meaningfully participate in an inclusive and accessible manner in direct decision-making processes that affect the lives of persons with disabilities at all levels and within all sectors of the State party.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

5. The Committee notes that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention. It also notes that the State party has not ratified other international human rights treaties, including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families and the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention as soon as possible and that it consider ratifying the international human rights treaties to which it is not yet a party, in particular the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families and the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance.

7. The Committee is concerned that:

- a) Legislation on persons with disabilities dates from before the ratification of the Convention, has not been harmonized with the latter and does not reflect the human rights model of disability;
- b) The definition of disability in Federal Act No. 29 of 2006 as amended by Federal Act No. 14 of 2009 is not in accordance with the criteria and principles set out in articles 1 to 3 of the Convention;
- c) Derogatory terminology concerning persons with disabilities has not yet been eliminated from all laws, policies and government discourse;
- d) Insufficient measures have been taken to ensure implementation of the Convention at the local level throughout the State party;
- e) There is a heavy focus on creating specialized solutions that lead to the segregation of persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, adopt all measures necessary to ensure that its legislation, policies and practices are in full compliance with the general principles and specific provisions of the Convention. In particular, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Undertake a comprehensive legislative and policy review in order to adopt, ensure and enforce the prohibition of discrimination on the basis of disability and the full transition to a human rights-based model of disability;
- b) Ensure that the definition of disability in the national legislation is in full conformity with the criteria and principles set out in articles 1 to 3 of the Convention;
- c) Ensure that derogatory terminology is eliminated from all laws, policies and government discourse;
- d) Engage in mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities and their access to services for their full inclusion in the community.

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- a) That it did not receive any alternative reports from civil society in the United Arab Emirates, including from organizations of persons with disabilities;
- b) The lack of consultations involving persons with disabilities and the difficulties faced by independent organizations of persons with disabilities and their families in engaging in human rights advocacy aimed at a better implementation of the Convention;
- c) That foundations and other civil society organizations providing services to persons with disabilities do not fully comply with the principles of the Convention in terms of service provision.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Adopt the measures necessary – including a review of existing laws and their current requirements, the provision of financial and other support, and the establishment of a formal mechanism recognized by law – to ensure that independent organizations of persons with disabilities can register as self-governing associations and can contribute effectively to the implementation of the Convention through law-making and policymaking and through systematic participation and consultation;

b) Ensure that all foundations and civil society organizations engaged in service provision, including organizations of persons with disabilities, comply with the principles and provisions of the Convention by developing guidelines and standards for service provision in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities;

c) Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities have the freedom to engage independently with United Nations human rights mechanisms.

Uruguay (2016)

5. El Comité observa con preocupación que se mantengan en la legislación, las políticas y los programas públicos, disposiciones sobre los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y terminología peyorativa que no están armonizadas con el modelo de discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos establecido en la Convención.

6. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte un plan para la revisión, derogación, reforma y/o adopción de legislación y políticas, incluyendo la Constitución Política del Estado parte, con el objeto de reconocer a las personas con discapacidad como sujetos plenos de derechos humanos en armonía con la Convención.

7. Preocupa al Comité el rango del Programa Nacional de Discapacidad (Pronadis), siendo tan sólo un programa dentro del mandato del Ministerio de Desarrollo Social.

8. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que vele porque el Pronadis sea una entidad nacional permanente con los recursos humanos y financieros suficientes y específicos para llevar a cabo su mandato.

9. El Comité observa con preocupación que no existe un adecuado entendimiento de los conceptos cubiertos por artículos 1 y 2 ni de los principios de la Convención y que existan criterios no estandarizados ni en armonía con los mismos para certificar la discapacidad.

10. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte medidas para revisar la definición legal de discapacidad con el objetivo de armonizarla con los principios y artículos de la Convención y, subsecuentemente, para establecer un sistema de certificación única de la discapacidad que refleje un modelo basado en los derechos humanos de las personas con discapacidad.

11. Al Comité le preocupa que no haya suficientes consultas con personas con discapacidad, a través de sus organizaciones, a la hora de la adopción de políticas y programas que les afectan.

12. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte un mecanismo de consultas permanentes a personas con discapacidad a través de sus organizaciones, incluyendo a niños y niñas con discapacidad, en la adopción de legislación, políticas y otros asuntos de su relevancia.

Chile (2016)

5. Al Comité le preocupa la ausencia de una estrategia para la armonización legislativa relativa a personas con discapacidad, así como la persistencia del modelo médico y el uso de terminología peyorativa tales como “invalides”, “incapaces” y “dementes” en normas vigentes incluido el Código Civil y la Ley núm. 20422 de 2010.

6. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte un plan para armonizar plenamente toda su legislación y políticas, incluyendo la Constitución Política de la República y el Código Civil para hacerlo compatible con la Convención y promover el modelo de derechos humanos de la discapacidad.

7. El Comité observa que los criterios para calificar y certificar la deficiencia no están estandarizados ni en armonía con los principios de la Convención en tanto se basan en la deficiencia sin tomar en cuenta las barreras que enfrentan las personas con discapacidad.

8. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que revise los criterios para la calificación y certificación de la discapacidad y asegurar que reflejen un modelo basado en los derechos humanos de las personas con discapacidad.

9. Al Comité le preocupa que las consultas a personas con discapacidad no sean vinculantes en la adopción de políticas y programas que les afectan.

10. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte un mecanismo vinculante de consulta permanente a personas con discapacidad a través de sus organizaciones, incluyendo a las mujeres, a las niñas y los niños con discapacidad, en la adopción de legislación, políticas y otros asuntos de su relevancia.

Lithuania (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned that the definition and understanding of disability in State party laws and regulations focuses on the individual impairment, thereby neglecting the social and relational dimension of disability, including, in particular, the barriers faced by persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the legal definition of disability in accordance with the criteria and principles provided in articles 1 to 3 of the Convention and that it effectively apply the amended legal definition in all laws and regulations.

7. The Committee is concerned by the frequent use of derogatory language, such as “deaf-mute” and “disorder”, when referring to persons with disabilities in legislation and data collection efforts, which perpetuate negative perceptions about persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party review and harmonize its legislation concerning the definition of persons with disabilities and in the collection of data related to such persons in such a way as to eliminate the use of all derogatory language to refer to persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that all existing and new laws and regulations, and the definitions used therein, comply with the human rights-based model of disability, in accordance with the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned that between 2009 and 2014 there was a decrease in resources allocated for the support of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party regularly evaluate the national budget and its use of the European Union structural and investment funds to ensure that the maximum available resources are being used for the realization of the rights of persons with disabilities in accordance with article 4 (2) of the Convention. The Committee calls on the State party to provide, in its next periodic report, updated information on public spending demonstrating how social protection for persons with disabilities has been increasingly prioritized.

11. The Committee notes with concern that organizations of persons with disabilities are not included in all decision-making processes relating to matters affecting them, in a timely manner and with sufficient support, in accordance with the provisions of article 4 (3) of the Convention.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Develop, adopt and implement a strategy aimed at achieving the full inclusion of organizations of persons with disabilities in all political decision-making processes relating to matters affecting persons with disabilities, from the early stages and across all sectors, including in relation to the implementation and monitoring of the Sustainable Development Goals;

b) Provide sufficient financial support to build the capacity and enable the autonomous participation of those organizations in all decision-making processes.

Portugal (2016)

7. The Committee is concerned by the use of medical assessment of disability and that there are no legally-binding criteria for the eligibility of persons with disabilities in relation to access to various social protection programmes, and instead the National Table of Incapacities caused by Work Accidents and Occupational Diseases is used by analogy.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party review the assessment criteria to determine the degree of disability of the individual to bring them into line with the Convention, and adopts suitable regulations in its legislation and policies. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensures that all persons with disabilities are able to secure their disability certificate, and that access to social protection programmes and aid is available to all persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee notes that the State party has still not carried out a comprehensive cross-cutting review of its legislation in order to harmonise it with the Convention, and that laws, regulations, customs and practises which discriminate against persons with disabilities continue to exist.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party perform a comprehensive cross-cutting review of its legislation and policies, in order to harmonise it with article 1 of the Convention to ensure protection against all kinds of discrimination on grounds of disability and that State Party involve in this process organizations which represent persons with disabilities and human rights independent institutions.

11. The Committee notes that the State party is working on a new disability strategy which will remain in place until 2020. Nevertheless, it is concerned by the failure to implement the I National Strategy on Disability 2011-2013, which was not assigned adequate budget resources for implementation and did not include the participation of organisations of persons with disabilities in its design, monitoring or assessment.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a new strategy on the implementation of the Convention, with the involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities in the design, monitoring and assessment stages, a budget allocation, timeframes for implementation and a dedicated monitoring mechanism. The Committee also recommends that the European Union Structural Funds allocated to the State party until 2020 be used to develop policies which contribute to the implementation of the Convention in the State party.

Serbia (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned that some legislative provisions and bylaws are discriminatory and contravene the provisions of the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party review its legislation, including assessment of disability and support schemes, and harmonize it with the Convention, including the human rights model of disability.

7. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient training of professionals and staff working with persons with disabilities in the rights recognised in the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends the State party promote, in consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities (DPOs), the training of professionals and staff working with persons with disabilities in the rights recognized in the Convention so as to better provide the assistance and services guaranteed by those rights.

Slovakia (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a strategy to promote the rights of persons with disabilities among the Roma people.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a policy, action plan and indicators to implement the rights of persons with disabilities among the Roma people.

7. The Committee is concerned that progress on the national programme for the development of the living conditions of persons with disabilities towards the implementation of the Convention is unclear and too slow.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party develop goals, targets, indicators and a timeline for the above-mentioned programme, and ensure stakeholder involvement in its expected outcomes.

9. The Committee is concerned at the absence of frameworks for meaningful participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations with respect to the development and implementation of legislation and policies concerning persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development and implementation of disability-relevant legislation and policies, paying particular attention to women, girls, boys and the Roma population with disabilities.

11. The Committee is concerned that the medical approach to disability is still used in assessments and provisions addressing persons with disabilities, and is also concerned about the lack of understanding of the rights of persons with disabilities among professionals.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a human rights-based definition of disability in the regulations relating to the assessment of disability. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide policymakers and professionals with training and raise awareness among them on the rights of persons with disabilities, in line with the Convention.

Thailand (2016)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

6. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned about the fact that the new draft Constitution of Thailand ad referendum appears to weaken the overall legal protection of persons with disabilities when compared to the 2007 Constitution and omits specific references to persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen the legal protection of persons with disabilities in its new draft Constitution.

9. The Committee is concerned that national laws are not fully harmonized with the Convention, particularly with respect to the concept of disability in section 4 of the Persons with Disabilities Empowerment Act and the criteria for access to services and funds that rely heavily on a medical assessment.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party take the steps necessary to revise national legislation and policies in accordance with the human rights model of disability, in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee is concerned with the overall limited empowerment of representative organizations of persons with disabilities by the State party, and the obstacles encountered by civil society organizations in obtaining certification and grants for setting up disability service centres as provided for in legislation.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the measures necessary to ensure the active participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities and facilitate their empowerment as service providers.

Uganda (2016)

4. The Committee is concerned about the varying definitions of disability throughout its legislation, that legislation and policies are not in line with the Convention, and the delay in the enactment of the Persons with Disabilities Bill, 2014, as well as of several bills that would advance the rights of persons with disabilities enshrined in the Convention. It also notes with concern that derogatory language against persons with disabilities persists in legislation and policies of the State party, such as the terms “unsound mind” and “lunacy”.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Harmonize definitions of disability in various laws and policies and systematically review all legislation and bring it into line with the Convention;

b) Adopt measures to amend and/or repeal legislation with derogatory terminology against persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee is concerned about the absence of specific mechanisms to ensure a high-level consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities that goes beyond the National Council for Disability. It is also concerned that civil society does not fully participate in processes to enact legislation, and in the discussion and adoption of public policies both at the national and district level, including the involvement of women with disabilities, young people, children with disabilities and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party establish high-level formal mechanisms to conduct consultations with organizations representing persons with disabilities, systematically and on a regular basis, with allocation of budgetary resources, and promote the meaningful participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities, young people, children with disabilities and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

Brazil (2015)

6. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a coherent and comprehensive disability strategy to implement the human rights model of disability established in the Convention and harmonize the State party's legislation, policies and programmes.

7. The Committee recommends the State party to develop a disability strategy to implement the human rights model of disability. The Committee further recommends that, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the State party initiates a systematic review of existing legislation, policies and programmes and where necessary brings them into line with the Convention. This should include a review of any legislation, policies or programmes upon which the rights of persons with disabilities are restricted or denied on the basis of impairment, or where services or benefits to persons with disabilities lead to their segregation or exclusion.

8. The Committee is concerned that the Statute of Persons with Disabilities (Lei Brasileira de Inclusão da Pessoa com Deficiência) does not meet all of the State party's obligations under the Convention.

9. The Committee urges the State party to take immediate steps to bring the Statute of Persons with Disabilities (Lei Brasileira de Inclusão da Pessoa com Deficiência) into full alignment with the Convention before it enters into force, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee is concerned at the lack of mechanisms in place for the participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in decision-making processes relating to the implementation of the Convention.

11. The Committee recommends the adoption of a consultative mechanism for systematic consultations with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, on policies, programmes and legislation relating to the implementation of the Convention. The Committee also recommends the State party to promptly implement the results of all national conferences on the rights of persons with disabilities, including the proposals from the “III National Conference on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities” (CRPD/C/BRA/Q/1/Add.1 para. 11).

European Union (2015)

6. The Committee is concerned that the European Union has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

7. The Committee calls upon the European Union to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned that the European Union failed to conduct a cross-cutting, comprehensive review of its legislation aimed at its harmonization with the Convention, and that a strategy on the implementation of the Convention across all its institutions is missing.

9. The Committee recommends the European Union to conduct a cross-cutting, comprehensive review of its legislation in order to ensure full harmonization with the provisions of the Convention and to actively involve representative organisations of persons with disabilities and independent human rights institutions in this process. It further recommends adopting a strategy on the implementation of the Convention with an allocated budget, timeframe, as well as a monitoring mechanism.

10. The Committee is concerned that the European Disability Strategy 2010-2020 has not had its mid-term assessment due in 2015, and there are no clear benchmarks and guidelines on how these Concluding Observations will be incorporated into the implementation of the second term 2016-2020.

11. The Committee recommends that the European Union implement the mid-term assessment of the European Disability Strategy 2010-2020, and establish clear guidelines on the inclusion of these concluding observations with clear benchmarks and indicators, in close consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

12. The Committee is concerned that the impact assessment guidelines only include one issue relating to the compliance with the Convention.

13. The Committee recommends that the impact assessment guidelines be reviewed and modified in order to include a more comprehensive list of issues to better assess compliance with the Convention.

14. The Committee is concerned at the lack of cross-cutting, overarching framework for the consultation between different authorities in the European Union, and persons with disabilities, including women, girls and boys with disabilities, through their representative organisations.

15. The Committee recommends the European Union to take necessary measures to set up Structured Dialogue with an independent budget line and sufficient funding for coordination between European Union institutions, agencies and bodies, and for meaningful consultation with and participation of persons with disabilities, including women, girls and boys with disabilities, through their representative organisations.

16. The Committee is concerned that the Declaration of Competence has not been updated and does not comprehensively refer to legislation applicable to or affecting persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the European Union regularly update the Declaration of Competence and its list of instruments to include recently adopted instruments and those instruments that have no specific reference to disability but that are relevant to persons with disabilities.

Gabon (2015)

6. The Committee is concerned that the State party has no legal definition of 'reasonable accommodation' and 'universal design'.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party amend national legislation to include definitions of 'reasonable accommodation' and 'universal design' in line with the Convention and to provide guidance and training to both the public and private sectors on these concepts and how they can be applied in practice.

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities within the State party.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party establish permanent mechanisms at the national and local level for participation and consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities in relation to law and policy making, by creating the 'National Committee for the Insertion of Persons with Disabilities' and the 'monitoring and assessment commission on social development' and guaranteeing the participation of organisations of persons with disabilities in its membership. The Committee also recommends that the State party support organizations of persons with disabilities with the sufficient, independent and continuous financial resources so as to provide the State party with information on the needs and views of persons with disabilities to be taken into account in future planning processes.

10. The Committee is concerned that: a) national legislation is not fully harmonised with the Convention and the Convention is not enforceable in domestic courts; b) the State party has not adopted a human rights model of disability in legislation and policies; and c) the State party uses stigmatising terminology to refer to persons with disabilities, notably intellectual and psychosocial disabilities.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) domesticate its national legislation in line with the Convention, including provisions to enforce the Convention in domestic courts,
- b) adopt a human rights model of disability in legislation and policy, and
- c) eliminate stigmatizing terminology.

Kenya (2015)

5. The Committee is concerned about measures to ensure the effective implementation of the Convention and, the delay in the process to amend the Persons with Disabilities Act 2003. It also observes with concern that derogatory terminology against persons with disabilities persists in the Constitution and in other pieces of legislation such as the Local Government Act, the Election Act, the Mental Health Act, and the Marriage Act.

6. The Committee calls upon the State party to:

- a) Complete as a matter of priority and within a specific timeframe the process to review the Persons with Disabilities Act 2003 and bring it into line with the provisions of the Convention and the human rights-based approach to disability;
- b) Ensure adequate processes in the Parliament to enact various bills regarding the rights of persons with disabilities pending approval;
- c) Adopt measures to amend and/or repeal legislation with derogatory terminology against persons with disabilities; and
- d) Raise awareness among members of Parliament with regard to the Convention and convey their involvement in implementing the Committee's concluding observations.

7. The Committee observes with concern the absence of specific legal and policy frameworks for implementing the Convention at county and municipal levels. It is also concerned about the lack of mechanisms to ensure permanent and formal consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities in processes to enact legislation, and in the discussion and adoption of public policies both at the national level and in the county level.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- a) Adopt measures to ensure that county governments and all local authorities allocate budgetary resources and establish action plans to implement the Convention with targets and indicators to monitor their results; and
- b) Establish formal mechanisms and protocols, at the national, county and municipal levels and conduct consultation with organizations representing persons with disabilities, in line with the State party obligations in article 4.3 of the Convention, including the required financial resources; and promote the meaningful participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in both rural and urban areas.

Mauritius (2015)

5. The Committee is concerned that the definitions contained in the Equal Opportunities Act and the Training and Employment of Disabled Persons Act still reflect the medical approach of disability and are therefore incompatible with the concept of disability in the Convention. The Committee is also concerned about the use of derogatory language against persons with disabilities throughout laws, policies and discourse. The Committee is further concerned that achievements obtained through the implementation of the 2007 Action Plan on Disability are unclear and that persons with disabilities have not been consulted in the development of the draft Disability Bill and the Strategy Paper and Action Plan on Disability 2015-2020.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party amend the Equal Opportunities Act and the Training and Employment of Disabled Persons Act to reflect the human rights model of disability and that it eliminate the use of derogatory language throughout its laws, policies and discourse. The Committee also urges the State party to fully associate and regularly, transparently and meaningfully consult with organization of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation and monitoring of laws, policies and action plans, which have an impact on them, especially the draft Disability Bill and the Disability Strategy and Action Plan (DSAP 2015-2020) and to ensure that the DSAP contain clear goals, benchmarks and indicators and that necessary resources are provided for its effective implementation.

7. The Committee notes the commitment by State Party to withdraw its reservations to articles 9 (para.2), 11 and 24 (para. 2) to the Convention (A/HRC/25/8 para. 129.10, 129.11 and 129.12), but is concerned that this process has yet to be engaged. The Committee also regrets that the State party conditions the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention to the withdrawal of these reservations.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party withdraw all its reservations to the Convention and ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention without further delay.

Qatar (2015)

5. The Committee notes that the State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention. It also notes that the State party has not ratified other treaties of the international system of promotion and protection of human rights, including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention as soon as possible and that it consider ratifying the international human rights treaties to which it is not yet a party, in particular the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families.

7. The Committee is concerned that legislation on persons with disabilities was adopted prior to ratification on the Convention and does not reflect the human rights model of disability and that there is a heavy focus on creating specialized solutions which lead to segregation. It is also concerned that subsequent efforts to harmonize legislation on persons with disabilities with the Convention have not advanced to fruition.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, adopt all necessary measures to ensure full compliance of legislation with the general principles and specific provisions in the Convention. In particular, the Committee recommends the adoption of measures in matters relating to non-discrimination and to the full transition to a human rights-based model of disability and that the State party engage in mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities and their access to services within existing systems for their inclusion in the community.

9. The Committee is concerned by the lack of consultation of persons with disabilities and of difficulties for the independent organization of persons with disabilities and their families to engage in human rights advocacy for better implementation of the Convention. It is also concerned about the lack of diversity in the range of organizations with disabilities independent to the State party. The Committee is further concerned by the lack of participation by organizations of persons with disabilities throughout the process of its consideration of the implementation of the Convention and that it did not receive any alternative reports from Qatari civil society, including organizations of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt the necessary measures, including a review of existing laws and their current requirements; the provision of financial and other support; and the establishment of a formal mechanism recognized in the law to ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities can register as associations, participate and be consulted and are enabled to contribute effectively to the implementation of the Convention in relation to law and policy making. Further, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure that all foundations and civil society organizations, including organizations of persons with disabilities, comply with the principles and the provisions of the Convention, through the development of guidelines and standards for service provision. It also recommends that the State party ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities have the freedom to engage with the United Nations' human rights mechanisms.

Ukraine (2015)

5. The Committee notes the State party's query in relation to the terminology to refer to persons with disabilities and is of the opinion that the use of terminology in Ukrainian that refers to persons with disabilities as "invalids" or "persons with limited abilities" is not consistent with the Convention.

6. The Committee calls upon the State party to remove the reference to "invalids" or "persons with limited abilities" from all its legislative and policy documents, including the Ukrainian translation of the Convention and use terminology that is in compliance with the Convention in consultation with the representative organizations of persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee notes with concern that the medical model of approach to disability is still predominant especially in policies addressing the persons with disabilities due to lack of professional training for and understanding of the rights of persons with disabilities among public officials and professionals.

8. The Committee strongly recommends the State party to adopt human rights based approach to disability in all its laws, policies and decisions. It also urges the State party to educate and raise awareness of its policy makers, professionals and public in general on the rights of persons with disabilities based on the Convention and its Optional protocol.

Cook Islands (2015)

The Committee is concerned that the definitions in the Disability Act 2008 and the Cook Islands Welfare Act 1989 (including amendments) are incompatible with the concept of disability in the Convention.

5. The Committee recommends the State party amend the Disability Act 2008 and Cook Islands Welfare Act 1989 to reflect the concept of disability in the Convention and eliminate the use of derogatory language throughout its laws, policies and discourse.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party:

a) Establish a legally recognised formal mechanism with funding to ensure the effective participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the process of drafting, development and implementation of laws and policies concerning all persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, children with disabilities, women with disabilities, and older persons with disabilities;

b) Ensure persons with disabilities and their representative organisations are invited to international meetings and engagements that involve decision-making on issues of disability.

Croatia (2015)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not yet comprehensively reviewed domestic legislation with a view to implementing the human rights model of disability. It notes that there seems to be a lack of understanding of the meaning of reasonable accommodation and universal design in areas such as education, health, employment, built environment. The Committee is concerned that due to the lack of a broad service providers' network, organisation of persons with disabilities (DPOs) have been forced to assume this role at the expense of their advocacy role.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party initiates a comprehensive review of existing legislation and where necessary brings legislation in alignment with the Convention. It recommends that the concepts of reasonable accommodation and universal design are regulated beyond the context of the anti-discrimination act in areas such as education, health, transportation and building. It is recommended that the State party provide funding to enable DPOs to fulfil their role under article 4(3) of the Convention.

Czech Republic (2015)

5. The Committee notes that State party has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

6. The Committee calls upon the State party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, as indicated at the outcome of the second round of the Universal Periodic Review (A/HRC/22/3/Add.1, para.6) and in line with the new National Plan on Promoting Equal Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities 2015-2020.

7. The Committee notes that various definitions of disability and persons with disabilities in State party's legislation (in the Act on Employment and the School Act among others) are based on the medical model of approach to disability and are not in line with the provisions of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

8. The Committee calls upon the State party to amend the definitions of disability and persons with disabilities in its legislation and to make explicit reference to the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in the above-mentioned definitions, in order to harmonize them with the definitions in the Convention.

Dominican Republic (2015)

4. The Committee is concerned that no regulations have yet been passed to implement Act No. 5-13 and that there is no systematic strategy to harmonize national legislation with the Convention, including the removal of derogatory language such as "disabled", "imbecility" and "mental derangement" from the Labour Code and the Civil Code. It is also concerned at the absence of action lines inclusive of persons with disabilities in the 2010–2030 National Development Strategy.

5. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately set in motion a plan to review its legislation, with a view to removing terminology and provisions that are contrary to the Convention and prioritizing the harmonization of laws relating to the human rights of persons with disabilities. It also recommends the inclusion of action lines inclusive of persons with disabilities in its 2010–2030 National Development Strategy.

6. The Committee is concerned that there are no mechanisms for consulting with organizations of persons with disabilities when taking decisions in implementation of the Convention and in all matters affecting these persons.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party establish mechanisms for permanent consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, as legally recognized procedures for the adoption of measures in implementation of this Convention and in all matters affecting them, in particular including them in the decision-making structures of the National Council on Disability (CONADIS).

Germany (2015)

5. The Committee is concerned that the application of the State party's obligations under the Convention in all parts of its territory have led to the uneven development of disability action plans at the Länder level, namely in their content, orientation, and in the consistent adoption of a human rights-based approach aligned to the Convention.

6. The Committee emphasises the State party's obligations under article 4 paragraph 5 and recommends that the State party ensure that Federal, Länder and local authorities are aware of the rights set out in the Convention and of their duty to effectively ensure their implementation.

7. The Committee is concerned that domestic law does not demonstrate a sufficient understanding of the concepts provided in articles 1 and 2 of the Convention, especially its translation into existing legal provisions using a human rights approach.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure:

a) That both the federal government and the Länder revise the legal definition of disability in laws and policies with a view to harmonising it with the general principles and provisions in the Convention, particularly in matters relating to non-discrimination and full transition to a human rights-based model;

b) That federal and all local governments establish overarching human rights-based action plans with a clear concept of disability, setting adequate measures to promote, protect, and fulfil rights, and with targets and indicators to monitor the implementation of the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities are not guaranteed meaningful and effective participation in decision-making related to their lives and that accessible communication is insufficient. It is also concerned about the lack of clarity about the roles and responsibilities regarding the implementation of the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party develop frameworks for the inclusive, comprehensive and transparent participation of organisations representing persons with disabilities (DPOs), including those experiencing intersectional discrimination regarding the adoption of legislation, policies and programmes for the implementation and monitoring of the Convention. It also recommends that the State party provide resources to facilitate the participation of DPOs, especially smaller self-advocacy organisations.

11. The Committee is concerned that both existing and new legal provisions, at the federal and the Länder level, are not always in line with the Convention. It is also concerned that the significance and scope of the rights of persons with disabilities are not sufficiently recognised in legislative processes and that, in practice, legal remedies and recognition of the Convention before the courts are not ensured.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party guarantee that:

a) All relevant existing domestic laws are examined by an independent body of experts and harmonised with the Convention accordingly;

b) All future laws and policies are aligned to the Convention;

c) Existing and future legislation incorporate measures to guarantee that the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention are invocable before the courts with concrete effective remedies.

Mongolia (2015)

6. The Committee is concerned that while the State party adheres to the World Health Organisation (WHO) concept of disability with a focus on conditions arising from inherent personal or medical impairment, it overlooks interactions with environmental factors. While the Convention recognizes an evolving concept of disability, the State party appears to be trapped by the concept of a 'permanent disability'.

7. The Committee is concerned that the State party's legislation and policies on persons with disabilities are not harmonised and do not adequately reflect the inter-dependent aspects of each article with other articles.

8. The Committee recommends the State party to:

(a) Harmonize its national legislation and policies to ensure full compliance with the Convention and the inter-dependent aspects of its provisions, and adopt the human rights model of disability that stress human dignity of persons with disabilities and conditions arising from interactions with various barriers that may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.;

(b) Develop a strategy for implementation with clear structures for policy co-ordination, benchmarks, timelines and appropriate funding: and, ?

Turkmenistan (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned that the definition of disability in the Social Protection Code does not fully comply with the Convention and that the State party follows a medical approach in the disability determination. The Committee is also concerned that the State party has not clarified how the definition of disability is binding upon enterprises, institutions and organisations, especially in the field of employment. The Committee is further concerned about the lack of sufficient information on the legal safeguards and remedies available in case of violation of the rights of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party review and harmonize its legislation with the Convention, including by adopting a social and human rights model of disability. The State party should also ensure the involvement of experts from social, labour and education fields within the assessment panels on disability determination. The State party should further provide clear legal safeguards and remedies, as well as related procedures, in case of violation of the rights of persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information in the replies to the List of Issues regarding the legal grounds applicable when refusing to register a voluntary association in the framework of the Voluntary Association Act of 2014. It is also concerned at the lack of measures taken to ensure that organization of persons with disabilities are systematically involved in the implementation of the Convention.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective steps to ensure that the legislation relevant to voluntary associations is available in accessible formats to persons with disabilities, and that it includes appropriate legal safeguards. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that international organisations, agencies and experts facilitate and support the creation, capacity-building and effective participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including by establishing regular and better-documented mechanisms for convening consultations with them.

New Zealand (2014)

5. The Committee notes that the State party has begun the domestic treaty examination process with a view to acceding to the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party ratify the Optional Protocol as soon as is practicable.

7. The Committee is concerned that, when using the Google search engine on Google's New Zealand website (www.google.co.nz), and on other English-language Google websites, disturbing phrases occur when some phrases relating to autistic persons are typed into the search box. Since the conclusion of the constructive dialogue with New Zealand, Google has removed some, but not all, of the offending phrases. The Committee is further concerned that persons with autism are subject to this type of “hate speech”, which is not generated by humans but rather is the result of an automated search engine process.

8. The Committee recommends that the State Party bring this matter to the attention of Google, which has a registered office in New Zealand, to discuss what can be done to prevent or eliminate this type of “hate speech”.

Denmark (2014)

8. The Committee is concerned that the National Disability Action Plan of 2013 does not cover broadly all of the rights and substantive areas under the Convention, and that it remains relatively general.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party review the National Disability Action Plan to ensure the coverage of all rights and substantive areas under the Convention, and that it establish, in this regard, concrete objectives, measurable targets, adequate budget, and indicators, to evaluate progress in the implementation of the Government’s disability policy.

10. The Committee is concerned about the absence of disability policy action plans in the Faroe Islands and Greenland, and in particular about the lack of support for organizations of persons with disabilities in Greenland to enable them to engage with the Government in implementation of the Convention.

11. The Committee recommends that the Governments of the Faroe Islands and of Greenland adopt dedicated disability policy action plans to effectively implement the Convention. It also recommends that the Government of Greenland support the work of organizations of persons with disabilities to ensure their effective participation in consultations on and implementation of the Convention.

12. The Committee is concerned that the Convention is not explicitly incorporated into the laws of Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland. It is also concerned at the insufficient information about the application of the Convention by the State party’s courts and authorities. The Committee notes with concern that officials of State, regional and municipal authorities are not sufficiently aware of their obligation to promote the implementation of the Convention.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure incorporation of the Convention so that it is applicable as law of Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland. The Committee also recommends that the State party take measures to facilitate direct application of the Convention by the courts and the authorities, and undertake training programmes to facilitate the active application and implementation of the Convention by the officials of State, regional and municipal authorities in all parts of the Kingdom of Denmark, including by providing guidance to the municipalities on the implementation of the respective acts on social services in observance of the Convention’s provisions.

Republic of Korea (2014)

6. The Committee is concerned that the Welfare of Disabled Persons Act refers to the medical model of disability.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party review the Welfare of Disabled Persons Act and harmonize it with the human rights-based approach to disability as espoused in the Convention.

8. The Committee is concerned that the new disability determination and rating system under the Welfare of Disabled Persons Act relies only on medical assessments in providing services and fails to take into account the various needs of persons with disabilities and to encompass all persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that, as a result, this system limits the eligibility of persons with disabilities for welfare services and personal assistance, based on their ratings.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party review the current disability determination and rating system under the Welfare of Disabled Persons Act to ensure that the assessment reflects the characteristics, circumstances and needs of persons with disabilities, and that welfare services and personal assistance be extended to all persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial disabilities, in accordance with their requirements.

10. The Committee encourages the State party to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention.

Belgium (2014)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not brought its domestic legislation into line with the Convention, and notes that there are no specific regulations with provisions that apply to persons with disabilities. The Committee also notes the absence of a national plan or strategy focusing exclusively on persons with disabilities. Moreover, little attention is paid to the participation of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, in policymaking processes.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party proceed to bring its domestic legislation into line with all its obligations under the Convention, adopt and implement a plan for persons with disabilities, and ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and disabled persons' organizations in these processes.

7. The Committee is concerned that the implementation of regulations often reflects a medical model of disability.

8. The Committee urges the State party to adopt a human rights-based approach to disability in line with the Convention, in consultation with disabled persons' organizations.

9. The Committee notes that persons with disabilities are represented by the National Higher Council for Persons with Disabilities at the federal level. However, it regrets the absence of advisory councils in the Flemish Region and in the French- and German-speaking Communities.

10. The Committee urges the State party to establish, and allocate adequate resources to, advisory councils in all regions. These advisory councils should be closely involved in the development, implementation and monitoring of legislation and policies.

Ecuador (2014)

8. The Committee is concerned that, although the Organic Act on Disabilities was published after the State party's ratification of the Convention, it retains a definition and understanding of disability that are based on a medical approach. This definition of persons with disabilities emphasizes their limited abilities and neglects the social and relational dimension of disability.

9. The Committee recommends that a comprehensive review of the Organic Act on Disabilities be carried out with a view to harmonizing it with the general principles and specific provisions in the Convention, particularly in matters relating to nondiscrimination and full transition to a human rights-based model.

10. The Committee expresses its concern that the State party's legislative framework has not been the subject of a comprehensive review, with the aim of bringing laws on education, transport, urban development, prevention of violence, health, family relationships, work, culture and sport into line with the rights contained in the Convention.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a multilateral commission, comprising independent organizations of persons with disabilities and the different government departments, to carry out a systematic review of the legislative framework relating to education, transport, urban development, prevention of violence, health, family relationships, work, culture and sport in order to bring it into line with the Convention.

12. The Committee notes with concern the fact that organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations representing women and children with disabilities, did not participate, through submission of independent contributions, in the Committee's consideration of the State party's initial report. It also notes with concern the absence of mechanisms in the State party for the independent participation of organizations of persons with disabilities outside the governmental structure.

13. The Committee calls on the State party to adopt measures promoting the effective participation of organizations representing women with disabilities, children with disabilities, persons from indigenous nations and peoples, and Afro-Ecuadorian and Montubio people in decision-making processes in matters relating to disability. It urges the State party to guarantee the independence and autonomy of organizations of persons with disabilities in their participation in, and contributions to, the adoption of legislation, policies and programmes for the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

Mexico (2014)

5. The Committee is concerned that the civil legislation of some federal entities still contains pejorative language in reference to persons with disabilities.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party redouble its efforts to harmonize its laws with the Convention, so that all the federal states eliminate pejorative terminology relating to the rights of persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee is concerned that disabled persons' organizations have only limited involvement in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party establish regular mechanisms for convening consultations with disabled persons' organizations, thereby ensuring that their opinions are properly taken into consideration.

Sweden (2014)

5. The Committee is concerned that the system of indicators established by the State party to monitor the implementation of the Convention is based only on those areas that strictly relate to the disability policy and does not cover broadly all of the rights areas under the Convention, and that there is a lack of indicators. It is further concerned that this reporting system is voluntary based at the municipal level, even though the State Party had not made a reservation in this respect when ratifying the Convention.

6. The Committee recommends that the State party review the indicators system to ensure its coverage of all areas of the Convention, and design measures to encourage municipalities to monitor its implementation.

7. The Committee is concerned that the Convention has not been integrated into Swedish law and is therefore left to the interpretation of authorities and courts. The Convention articles cannot serve as guidelines in court rulings, as they are not explicitly included in the texts of the national law. There is a serious gap between the policies followed by the State party and those followed by the municipalities with respect to the implementation of the Convention. That concern also has been raised in the official communications between the State party and the Committee with regard to individual communication No. 3/2011, H.M. v Sweden.

8. The Committee urges the State party to ensure that the Convention is properly incorporated into Swedish legislation in order for it to be applicable as Swedish law.

Azerbaijan (2014)

8. The Committee notes that the State party has a draft law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, which reportedly seeks to incorporate the provisions of the Convention. However, the Committee is concerned that the State party's legislation and policies still refer to the medical model of disability. The Committee is also concerned that the State party's harmonization efforts only deal with this specific draft law and not the whole of the state's legislative legal order. The Committee is further concerned that there is a need for legislative harmonization and the revision of the nomenclature which the State party uses to refer to persons with disabilities in order to prevent derogatory language.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party should review and harmonise its legislation, as well as ensure that the new draft law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities strictly comply with the provisions of the Convention by adopting the human rights based model to disability. In the conduct of the review and harmonisation of legislation, the State party should ensure the full participation of persons with disabilities and disabled peoples' organisations. The State party should further revise its legislation and policies with a view to removing all disparaging and degrading references to persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee is concerned that despite the use of sign language in the State party, it is still not officially recognised.

11. The State party should take effective steps to recognise sign language as one of the official languages of the State party.

Costa Rica (2014)

5. The Committee is concerned that the State party continues to use inappropriate and pejorative terminology when referring to persons with disabilities in various pieces of legislation, employing terms such as "inválidos" (invalids), "incapaces" (incapacitated), "minusválidos" (handicapped), "insanos" (insane) and "enfermos desvalidos" (infirm persons who are destitute or helpless). It notes with concern that the disability assessment criteria used for purposes of medical or social assistance are limited to the medical model of disability.

6. The Committee calls on the State party to eliminate the use of pejorative terms when referring to persons with disabilities. In addition, it urges the State party to ensure that the disability assessment criteria used by the various services are standardized, in line with the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not systematically harmonized its legislation since ratifying the Convention, that the only reference to the rights of persons with disabilities is to be found in Act No. 7600 on Equal Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities, which dates from 1996, and that the Act does not include the general principles and obligations contained in the Convention.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party systematically revise its domestic law, including the Constitution, in order to bring it into line with the general principles and obligations contained in the Convention. The revision should cover civil, family, criminal, labour and education law.

9. The Committee expresses its concern that the State party has not established permanent mechanisms for consulting organizations of persons with disabilities, in accordance with article 4, paragraph 3, of the Convention, when adopting plans, policies and legislation to give effect to the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party establish permanent consultation mechanisms with organizations of persons with disabilities, in accordance with article 4, paragraph 3, of the Convention, respecting their autonomy and taking into account the diversity of persons with disabilities, including children and women with disabilities, and the country's indigenous population.

Australia (2013)

8. The Committee is concerned that despite the adoption of the National Disability Strategy, the State party has not to the full extent enacted legislation that corresponds to the contents of the Convention. It is further concerned about the existence of interpretative declarations to articles 12, 17 and 18 of the Convention.

9. The Committee recommends the State party to incorporate all rights under the Convention into domestic law and to review the interpretative declarations on art.12, 17 and 18 in order to withdraw them.

10. The Committee regrets that there is a lack of mechanism for consultation and engagement between Government and persons with disabilities and their organisations in all matters of Convention policy development and legislative reform.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party, in partnership with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, including children with disabilities, establish engagement mechanisms for ensuring meaningful participation in the development and implementation of legislation and policies to implement the Convention.

12. The Committee is concerned that not all the organisations of persons with disabilities, including those of people with psychosocial disabilities and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, are provided with adequate resources for their operations.

13. The Committee recommends the State party to take initiatives to increase the resources available for independent organisations of persons with disabilities, including organisations representing children with disabilities.

Austria (2013)

6. The Committee is concerned that the German translation of the Convention does not accurately represent the meaning of the Convention and may cause decisions incompatible with the Convention. For example, the word "integration" is used instead of the word "inclusion". The translation of "independent living" does not accurately reflect the meaning of this term and may in fact lead to people being denied the chance to live in the community. During the constructive dialogue the Austrian delegation intimated the possibility of revisiting the German translation of the Convention.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party revise the German translation of the Convention in line with the Convention. The Committee further recommends that the State party ensures that persons with disabilities and disabled persons organisations be involved in the process of revision.

8. The Committee noted that there are differing concepts of disability across the State Party's laws and policies. The Committee is concerned that the State Party misunderstands the difference between defining disability and identifying groups of persons who can benefit from different kinds of services. The Committee is concerned that some of these definitions constitute a medical model of disability.

9. The Committee recommends that the relevant laws be amended to include the concept of disability in accordance with the Convention.

10. The Committee notes that Austria has a federal system of government and is concerned that this has led to an undue fragmentation of policy, especially as the Länder (regions) are the providers of social services. This fragmentation can be seen in the development of the National Disability Action Plan, in the development of which the Länder's participation was intermittent and uneven. Fragmentation is also apparent in the different definitions of disability, different accessibility standards, and different protections against discrimination across the various Länder. The Committee notes that article 4(5) of the Convention makes it clear that the administrative difficulties of a federal structure do not allow a state to avoid its obligations under the Convention.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that federal and regional governments consider an overarching legislative framework and policy on disability in Austria in conformity with the Convention. It is recommended that this policy should include frameworks for real and genuine participation by persons with disabilities through their representative organisations with respect to the development and implementation of legislation and policies concerning persons with disabilities in accordance with article 4 paragraph 3 of the Convention.

El Salvador (2013)

5. The Committee is concerned about the general reservation made by the State party upon ratifying the Convention, according to which implementation of the Convention is contingent on its compatibility with the Constitution.

6. The Committee urges the State party to expedite the process of withdrawing its general reservation to the Convention. It also recommends that the State party should incorporate a definition of disability in accordance with the criteria and principles in articles 1 to 3 of the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a national strategy, also covering rural areas, for the implementation of the rights-based disability model set out in the Convention. The Committee is also concerned that the State party's legal framework on disability is not fully in line with the Convention and that, among other facts:

(a) The Equal Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities Act has not been aligned with the provisions of the Convention and does not provide for all the human rights elements covered in the Convention;

(b) The State party has not conducted a thorough review of its legal framework in order to identify the areas that still need to be harmonized, especially in the Civil Code, the Code of Civil Procedure, the Criminal Code, the Employment Act and the Special Act on a Violence-Free Life for Women.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party conduct a full review of its legal framework to align it with the Convention.

9. The Committee notes with concern the absence of provisions recognizing discrimination on the grounds of disability and the fact that the Equal Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities Act focuses on a social welfare approach rather than the human rights model set out in the Convention.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party recognize discrimination on the grounds of disability in its legislation and ensure that the review of the Equal Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities Act brings it into compliance with the human rights approach of the Convention.

11. The Committee is concerned that the organizations of persons with disabilities are not consulted in the design of laws and policies and that the law includes demeaning terminology regarding persons with psychosocial, intellectual or motor impairments.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt new legislation specifically defining the obligations contained in the Convention and that the process include the broad participation of organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee recommends that the State party revise its legislation with a view to removing any discriminatory terminology against persons with disabilities.

Paraguay (2013)

7. The Committee is concerned at the State party's use of derogatory terminology and definitions of persons with disabilities in various pieces of legislation and data-gathering instruments, including in the initial report and the replies to the list of issues. The use of such terms is a reminder of the prevalence of the charity and medical models of disability.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party modify the terminology it uses to refer to persons with disabilities and bring its legislation into line with the content of the Convention, in accordance with its obligations. It also recommends that the State party promote human rights-based plans and programmes on disability in line with the fundamental principles of the Convention.

9. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not established mechanisms for consultation with disabled persons' organizations, when adopting legislation and policies on persons with disabilities or in decision-making forums such as the National Commission on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CONADIS).

10. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a mechanism for ongoing consultation with disabled persons' organizations, in accordance with article 4, paragraph 3, of the Convention, taking into account the range of disabilities represented, in accordance with article 1 of the Convention, and including children with disabilities, women with disabilities and Paraguay's indigenous population.

11. The Committee notes that one of the strategic objectives of the National Human Rights Plan concerns persons with disabilities. Yet the actions outlined are of a general nature and do not contain specific measures to promote the rights of persons with disabilities.

12. The Committee urges the State party to include persons with disabilities as a cross-cutting component of the National Human Rights Plan and to ensure that its strategies and actions are directed towards guaranteeing the full enjoyment of Convention rights in conditions of equality and eliminating all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

Argentina (2012)

5. The Committee notes with concern that, despite the steps taken to align the domestic legal system with the Convention, the former continues to exhibit major inconsistencies with the principles and requirements of the Convention, especially as regards equal recognition of persons with disabilities before the law. It also notes with concern that, because not all of the State party's provincial legislation is aligned with the Convention, disparities arise in the approach taken at the local level to the rights of persons with disabilities and to the effective exercise of those rights.

6. The Committee urges the State party to take the necessary steps to bring all its federal, provincial and local legislation into line with the Convention and to ensure the effective participation of organizations representing persons with disabilities in this process in accordance with article 4, paragraph 3, of the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned at the absence of a coherent, overall strategy for the implementation of the human rights model established in the Convention that provides for affirmative action measures to achieve de facto and de jure equality for persons with disabilities and for giving full effect, at all levels, to the principles and requirements set out in the Convention.

8. The Committee urges the State party to pursue a broad and comprehensive strategy to realize all the rights set out in the Convention, taking due account of the human rights model of disability. The Committee also recommends that the State party take effective steps to ensure that persons with disabilities – including children and women with disabilities – are actively involved in planning, implementing, monitoring and evaluating this strategy.

9. The Committee acknowledges the progress represented by the introduction of the Single Disability Certificate. However, it notes with concern that the certificate has not yet been rolled out nationwide and that there are disparities in the criteria used for its issuance. The Committee is also concerned that some provinces are not yet in compliance with Act No. 24.901 on basic services for persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee urges the State party to take steps to guarantee the effective implementation of the Single Disability Certificate throughout the country and to standardize the criteria used by the National Rehabilitation Service and the provincial evaluation boards for its issuance. It also urges the State party to ensure that all provinces are in compliance with Act. No. 24.901.

China (2012)

9. The Committee takes note of the prevalence of the medical model of disability in both the definition of disability as well as the enduring terminology and language of the discourse on the status of persons with disabilities. Therefore, the Committee is concerned about the lack of a coherent and comprehensive disability strategy to implement the human rights model of disability that the CRPD establishes to achieve the de facto equality of persons with disabilities and implement the rights enshrined in the CRPD at all levels. The committee is concerned that DPOs outside of the China Disabled Persons' Federation are not included in the implementation of this CRPD.

10. The Committee urges the introduction of a comprehensive and inclusive national plan of action, which includes full participation of all representatives of persons with disabilities in China, to introduce the human rights model of disability into Chinese disability policy

Hong-Kong

53. The Committee regrets the out-dated eligibility standard in the Disability Allowance Scheme and lack of unity in the various definitions of disability that have been adopted in different pieces of legislation and by Government bureaux and departments.

54. The Committee encourages Hong Kong, China, to revise the inappropriate eligibility standard and to adopt definition of persons with disabilities that adequately reflects article 1 and the human rights model of the CRPD.

Hungary (2012)

10. The Committee notes with concern that definitions of disability and persons with disabilities in the State party's legislation focus on the impairments of an individual rather than on the barriers he/she faces. The Committee expresses its concern that such definitions fail to encompass all persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial disabilities.

11. The Committee notes with appreciation that Act XXVI of 1998 on the Rights and Equal Opportunities of Persons with Disabilities was drafted to promote the rights of persons with disabilities in the State party. The Committee expresses, however, concern over that the Act has not been reviewed since the adoption by the State party of the Convention, with a view to aligning it with the provisions of the Convention.

12. The Committee recommends the State party to use the upcoming review of Act XXVI of 1998 on the Rights and Equal Opportunities of Persons with Disabilities to: ensure that it is in full compliance with the Convention and reflects the human rights-based approach to disability as embodied in the Convention; and to incorporate an inclusive definition of disability and persons with disabilities that is firmly rooted in the human rights based approach to disability and encompasses all persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial disabilities.

13. The Committee regrets the insufficient participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the review and design of disability-related legislation and policies, as well as in other policy and decision-making processes, in line with their obligation under 4(3) in the CRPD. The Committee furthermore regrets the fact that representative organisations of persons with disabilities from Hungary did not participate in the constructive dialogue with the Committee.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective measures to consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities, including children and women with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the planning, executing, and monitoring of public decision-making processes at all levels and in particular in the matters affecting them, giving them reasonable and realistic timelines in providing their views, and providing them with adequate funding in order to enable them to fulfil their role under article 4, paragraph 3, of the CRPD.

Peru (2012)

6. The Committee is concerned at the absence of a coherent and comprehensive strategy to implement the social model that the Convention establishes, including affirmative actions, to achieve the de facto equality of persons with disabilities and the full realization of the rights enshrined in the Convention, at all levels, including in rural areas. The Committee is further concerned that the State party's legislative framework for disability is not yet in full conformity with the Convention, inter alia:

- (a) Law 27050 on Persons with Disability provides a definition of disability based on a medical, rather than a social perspective and does not include references to the core principles contained in articles 2 and 3 of the Convention;
- (b) Absence of reference to denial of reasonable accommodation and discrimination by association as forms of disability-based discrimination;
- (c) Existence of discriminatory requirements to acquire Peruvian nationality that prohibits persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities to do so.

7. The Committee recommends that State party bring forward a far reaching strategy to implement all the rights enshrined in the Convention and speed up the review of its legislative framework to bring it in full conformity with all provisions of the Convention, including its core principles, and in particular:

- (a) Amend Law 27050 to include a comprehensive definition of a person with disability;
- (b) Define denial of reasonable accommodation and discrimination by association as forms of disability-based discrimination;
- (c) Amend the Act for Foreigners in order to eliminate the requirements that discriminate against persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

8. While recognizing positive developments, such as the creation of a Permanent Multi-Sectoral Commission and the establishment of the CONADIS (National Council for the Integration of Persons with Disability), the Committee regrets the lack of meaningful participation of persons with disabilities, in particular the involvement of children and women with disabilities, and their representative organizations in the design of the legislation, as well as in other policy and decision-making processes.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party take specific measures to ensure active participation of persons with disabilities, including children and women with disabilities, in planning, executing, and monitoring of public decision-making processes at all levels and in particular in the matters affecting them.

10. While taking note with appreciation of the adoption of a number of provisions, such as the public budget acts which authorize local and regional governments to allocate 0.5 per cent of their budgets to the improvement or provision of accessibility features, the Committee is concerned at the lack of information regarding compliance of municipalities with those regulatory provisions.

11. The Committee urges the State party to implement the provisions of the Convention in all its territory and to regularly assess compliance and impact of policies and programmes aimed at further equalizing opportunities for persons with disabilities, including at regional and local levels.

Spain (2011)

11. The Committee takes note of the adoption of Act 26/2011, which introduces the concept of persons with disabilities as defined in the Convention and expands the protection of such persons. However, it is concerned that not all persons with disabilities are covered by the law.

12. The Committee urges the State party to ensure that all persons with disabilities enjoy protection against discrimination and have access to equal opportunities irrespective of their level of disability.

13. The Committee welcomes Act 49/2007 of 26 December 2007, which establishes the Permanent Specialized Office to deal with offences and sanctions in the areas of equal opportunities, non-discrimination and universal accessibility by persons with disabilities. However, it is concerned by the slow development and lack of promotion of this arbitration system at the regional government level, by the lack of information on the number of sanctions submitted and resolved, and by the failure of the State party to report on actions undertaken to implement this law. The Committee is concerned about the overall effectiveness of the system.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party raise awareness among persons with disabilities about the system of arbitration, increase the level of free legal aid, and ensure the regulation of offences and sanctions at the regional government level.

15. The Committee regrets the lack of information on the meaningful participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations at the regional level in designing and evaluating the implementation of legislation, policy and decision-making processes, and on the participation of children with disabilities at all levels.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party take specific measures to ensure the active participation of persons with disabilities in public decision-making processes at the regional level, and to include children with disabilities at all levels.

17. The Committee takes note of Act 2/2010 of 3 March 2010 on sexual and reproductive health, which decriminalizes voluntary termination of pregnancy, allows pregnancy to be terminated up to 14 weeks and includes two specific cases in which the time limits for abortion are extended if the foetus has a disability: until 22 weeks of gestation, provided there is "a risk of serious anomalies in the foetus", and beyond week 22 when, inter alia, "an extremely serious and incurable illness is detected in the foetus". The Committee also notes the explanations provided by the State party for maintaining this distinction.

18. The committee recommends that the State party abolish the distinction made in Act 2/2010 in the period allowed under law within which a pregnancy can be terminated based solely on disability.

Tunisia (2011)

8. The Committee notes Order No. 3086 of 29 November 2005, defining disability and setting forth the proof required to obtain a disability card, and the State party's endeavour to shift from a medical approach to a social approach. However, it is concerned at the risk of exclusion of persons who should be protected by the Convention, in particular persons with psychosocial disabilities ("mental illness") or intellectual disabilities, or others who are unable to obtain a disability card, either due to disability or by association with a disability.

9. The Committee invites the State party to review and reformulate the definition of disability based on the Convention.

10. In accordance with article 4, paragraph 3, of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party encourage and support the creation, capacity-building and effective participation of representative organizations or groups of persons with disabilities, and parents of persons with disabilities at the local and national levels in the conception, design, reform and implementation of policies and programmes. In particular, the Committee urges the State party to ensure that persons with disabilities are consulted and actively involved, including as members of the Constitutional Council, in the drafting of the new Constitution.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to further facilitate the full participation of women, men, girls and boys with disabilities and their families in society.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 5 CRPD
(Equality and non-discrimination)*

September 2025

Article 5 - Equality and non-discrimination

1. States Parties recognize that all persons are equal before and under the law and are entitled without any discrimination to the equal protection and equal benefit of the law.
2. States Parties shall prohibit all discrimination on the basis of disability and guarantee to persons with disabilities equal and effective legal protection against discrimination on all grounds.
3. In order to promote equality and eliminate discrimination, States Parties shall take all appropriate steps to ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided.
4. Specific measures which are necessary to accelerate or achieve de facto equality of persons with disabilities shall not be considered discrimination under the terms of the present Convention.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of) (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Turkiye (2019)

Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Northern Macedonia (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2016)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2016)
Canada (2016)
Cyprus (2016)
Honduras (2016)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2016)
Jordan (2016)
Republic of Moldova (2016)
Bolivia (Plurinational State of) (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)

Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
Belgium (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
New Zealand (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)

Hungary (2012)

Peru (2012)

Spain (2011)

Tunisia (2011)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

7. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) The Constitution does not explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability or guarantee equality for persons with disabilities, including protection from multiple and intersectional discrimination, and domestic law does not recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (b) The absence of a comprehensive anti-discrimination law covering both public and private sectors; the persistence of stigma and negative societal attitudes, rooted in cultural ideals of physical strength and productivity, which result in the exclusion, concealment, and institutionalization of persons with disabilities; and the State party's two-tiered approach whereby veterans with physical impairments receive differentiated treatment while others, particularly in rural areas, are excluded from services, although veterans with physical impairments also face barriers to accessing services;
- (c) The lack of clarity and effectiveness of the national system for addressing complaints and petitions from persons with disabilities or their organizations, including in cases of denial of reasonable accommodation, and the absence of mechanisms to address multiple and intersectional discrimination.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State Party, in close consultation with and involvement of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Amend the Constitution to explicitly guarantee equality and non-discrimination on the basis of disability, and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in its legislation;
- (b) Adopt a comprehensive anti-discrimination law applicable to all sectors, prohibit direct and indirect discrimination on the basis of disability, ensure denial of reasonable accommodation is explicitly recognized as a prohibited form of discrimination, ensure equal access to services, and benefits for all persons with disabilities, whether or not they are veterans with disabilities, address disparities between urban and rural environments, and combat stigma and harmful stereotypes through awareness campaigns, inclusive education, and training of officials;
- (c) Strengthen and clarify the national complaints and petitions system to ensure accessible, effective, and timely remedies for all persons with disabilities, including in cases of denied reasonable accommodation and multiple or intersectional discrimination.

Finland (2025)

8. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) The 2023 amendments to the Non-Discrimination Act do ensure accessibility in practice, do not provide for remedies that de facto render goods and services accessible, and may weaken the position of children with disabilities in education by removing the obligation to draw up site-specific equality plans in early childhood education and care;
- (b) The recommendations from the National Non-Discrimination and Equality Tribunal on compensation to victims of discrimination are not legally binding;
- (c) Proposed amendments to Section 2 of the Discrimination Services Act may exclude many persons with disabilities from services that are required under the Convention.
- (d) The Government's proposal of 2025 to amend the Disability Services Act that is currently under preparation and has not yet been submitted to parliament, seeking to distinguish between requirements for assistance and support "normally associated with the stage of life in question" would, in its current form, discriminate on the basis of age, and would be incompatible with article 1 of the Convention;
- (e) The lack of a comprehensive strategy for the promotion and use of Easy Read;
- (f) The lack of information on the invocation of the Convention by Finnish courts and information received that direct references to it are rare and usually of pro forma nature;

(g) The findings of a scientific study showing that persons with disabilities experience continued discrimination.

9. The Committee recommends the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Taking into consideration the insufficient accessibility requirements in the Building Code, broaden the scope of the Non-Discrimination Act to include discrimination in access to goods and services, ensure that redress for victims of discrimination includes de facto access to goods and services, and consider re-introducing the obligation to draw up site-specific equality plans in early childhood education and care;

(b) Consider conferring jurisdiction to the National Non-Discrimination and Equality Tribunal to render binding decisions on compensation for victims of discrimination under the Non-Discrimination Act;

(c) Ensure that Section 2 of the Disability Services Act guarantees access to all disability entitlements of the Convention;

(d) Refrain from introducing the “life stages” criteria in the Disability Services Act;

(e) Develop a nationwide programme to promote and use Easy Read and ensure its implementation in the public and private sector;

(f) Analyse the use of the Convention in the judicial application of domestic legislation and ensure that courts give the Convention the full effect permitted under domestic law;

(g) Update the 2019 fundamental rights barometer of the Ministry of Justice to provide reliable information on the exercise of the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention.

Kiribati (2025)

9. The Committee is concerned about the prevalence of inequality and discrimination experienced by all persons with disabilities throughout Kiribati, the lack of anti-discrimination protections and redress and that the denial of reasonable accommodation is not understood as discrimination and proscribed in law.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations develop and adopt an anti-discrimination framework that encompasses prohibition of all forms of disability-based discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation and intersectional discrimination and provides persons with disabilities who are victims of discrimination with legal remedies, redress and support.

Maldives (2025)

9. The Committee notes with appreciation that the State party's Constitution and the Disability Act prohibit discrimination against persons with disabilities. However, it is concerned about the limited scope of application and the limited enforcement of the existing provisions.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations expedite the ongoing review of the Disability Act and ensure that the anti-discrimination framework encompasses prohibition of all forms of disability-based discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation and intersectional discrimination and provides persons with disabilities who are victims of discrimination with legal remedies, redress and support. It also recommends that the State party adopt policy measures in order to ensure its implementation in practice.

Canada (2025)

9. The Committee notes with concern the persistent discrimination against persons with disabilities, in particular, that Indigenous persons with disabilities experience greater socioeconomic marginalization including higher rates of unemployment, mental health-related detentions and forced treatment, and inadequate access to healthcare; persistent ableism against 2SLGBTQI+ persons with disabilities, particularly in healthcare; high rates of discrimination against Black and racialized persons with disabilities; discrimination and stigma against persons with dementia, Multiple Chemical Sensitivities and Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder; exclusion of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, particularly from public spaces, recreational activities, and cultural events; and persistent discriminatory attitudes towards people with Down Syndrome;

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No.6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Conduct a comprehensive and intersectional study on disability discrimination cases across all jurisdictions and branches of government, identifying trends and root causes, and develop a plan to address them, with clear timelines, targets, and indicators of progress;

(b) Develop intersectional, comprehensive, and cross-sectoral strategies and statistics to implement the right to equality and non-discrimination, for persons with disabilities, including Indigenous persons with disabilities, 2SLGBTQI+ persons with disabilities, Black and racialized persons with disabilities, persons with dementia, Multiple Chemical Sensitivities and Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Disorder, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons with Down Syndrome on the Federal level and in the provinces and territories, and in all branches of government, and remedy the effects of colonialism within Indigenous communities.

Dominican Republic (2025)

9. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Persistent discrimination against persons with disabilities, especially women, children and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, and the lack of accessible complaint and redress mechanisms for victims of discrimination on the basis of disability;

(b) The disparities in policy enforcement and practices across different regions and institutions across the State party, which lead to highly inconsistent protection and support for persons with disabilities;

(c) The lack of consideration of intersectionality in policies and laws, in particular the absence of measures to address the requirements and experiences of and the multiple and intersecting barriers faced by persons with disabilities, who may experience discrimination on multiple grounds.

10. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish accessible and effective mechanisms, including judicial and administrative complaint procedures, to combat discrimination on the basis of disability, and ensure that victims receive redress and that perpetrators are punished;

(b) Develop and implement clear guidelines and procedures to ensure the consistent application and enforcement of anti-discrimination policies and practices across all the State party's territory and all the concerned institutions;

(c) Specifically address issues of intersectionality in the national strategy for the implementation of the Convention.

European Union (2025)

18. The Committee remains concerned about:

- (a) The European Commission's announcement to withdraw the proposal for a Council Directive on implementing the principle of equal treatment between persons irrespective of disability, religion or belief, age or sexual orientation (Equal Treatment Directive);
- (b) The confinement of anti-discrimination legislation for persons with disabilities to employment and vocational training;
- (c) The very limited explicit recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of disability and other grounds.

19. The Committee recalls its previous concluding observations and recommendations (para. 19) and its general comment No.6 (2018) and recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Undertake sustained efforts to generate the necessary political support to pass the Equal Treatment Directive;
- (b) Ensure that legal protection against discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation, includes all areas of all European Union competences and all modalities of European Union action;
- (c) Improve explicit legal protection of persons with disabilities against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, in all areas of life, including discrimination based on the intersection between disability and age, gender, sex, LGBTIQ+ status, religion or belief, ethnicity, migration situation, national origin, and economic situation.

Palau (2025)

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of legislation to prohibit disability-based discrimination, including by recognizing the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (b) Intersectional discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, including discriminatory cultural practices;
- (c) The absence of an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report incidences of discrimination.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend article IV of the Constitution and other relevant legislation to include disability as a prohibited ground of discrimination and ensure that the Disabled Person's Anti-Discrimination Act encompasses all forms of disability-based discrimination and recognizes the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (b) Recognize multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, or any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, and ensure effective investigation of reports of such discrimination;
- (c) Put in place an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report incidences of discrimination, and provide persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination with redress, compensation, and rehabilitation and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned.

Tuvalu (2025)

9. The Committee is concerned about the prevalence of inequality and discrimination experienced by all persons with disabilities throughout Tuvalu, and the lack of anti-discrimination protections and redress.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations develop and adopt an anti-discrimination framework that encompasses prohibition of all forms of disability-based discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation and intersectional discrimination and provides persons with disabilities who are victims of discrimination with legal remedies, redress and support.

Viet Nam (2025)

9. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) While the legal framework prohibits discrimination against persons with disabilities, enforcement remains inconsistent, limiting the effectiveness of protections against discrimination;
- (b) Penalties for discriminatory actions against persons with disabilities are insufficient to serve as an effective deterrent;
- (c) Discrimination persists against minority populations such as indigenous persons with disabilities, persons who acquired a disability after the war, and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, as well as persons with autism;

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the enforcement of non-discrimination laws by ensuring effective mechanisms for reporting, investigation, and redress of discrimination cases;
- (b) Increase penalties for acts of discrimination against persons with disabilities to provide a stronger deterrent and ensure effective remedies for victims;
- (c) Modify legislation to explicitly include actions to eliminate discrimination and empower persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, in particular persons with autism, indigenous persons with disabilities, and persons who acquired disabilities after the war, applying measures of access to restorative justice.

Belarus (2024)

9. With reference to the State party's adopted definition of discrimination on the basis of disability and the provisions on prohibition of discrimination in the Law on the rights of persons with disabilities and their social integration 2022, the Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a national mechanism to observe and investigate the discriminatory individual or/and institutional practices and to receive complaints from the victims of discrimination encountered on the basis of disability;
- (b) The absence of measures to identify the cases in relation to the denial of reasonable accommodation and necessary procedures for its implementation.

10. Recalling its General comment No.6 on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

- (a) Establish a national mechanism to monitor and investigate all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities and adopt effective and equitable remedies;
- (b) Expedite inclusion of measures in national legislation and implement the recognition of denial of reasonable accommodation in all areas of life, in the public and private sector, as a form of discrimination and develop measures to combat it in every area.

Belgium (2024)

10. The Committee acknowledges that at the federal level, there is recognition of the requirement to include intersecting and multiple forms of discrimination in legislation. However, it is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information on the recognition of intersectional discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as race, age, sex, ethnicity, sexual orientation or gender;
- (b) Procedural barriers to the implementation of the anti-discrimination laws due to the high complexity of answering the questions as to whether different types of protection against discrimination are a federal matter or a regional matter.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Enhance protection against discrimination, multiple and intersectional discrimination by revising and implementing legislation that addresses these forms of discrimination at the federal level and in the regions;
- (b) Create reporting centres and conduct surveys to collect the necessary data for the documentation of discrimination, particularly intersectional discrimination;
- (c) Establish a single point of contact, for federal, regional, community and municipal matters, for victims of discrimination and multiple and intersectoral discrimination to file complaints.

Benin (2024)

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That national legislation does not recognize multiple and intersectional discrimination nor the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (b) That the State party has neither developed regulations or mechanisms to give effect to the duty to provide reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities nor set out procedures for persons with disabilities to challenge the absence of reasonable accommodation;
- (c) The absence of an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report disability and intersectional discrimination and seek redress.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review and amend national legislation to recognize disability discrimination and multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability and other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity and any other status, and to adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination;
- (b) Develop regulations and mechanisms in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations and establish mechanisms, policies and practices to ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation, and establish effective and easily accessible remedies in cases where reasonable accommodation has not been provided;
- (c) Put in place an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report allegations of discrimination and provide persons with disabilities who have been subjected to discrimination with redress and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned.

Burkina Faso (2024)

10. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The insufficient measures taken to ensure that anti-discrimination laws recognize discrimination on the basis of disability, notably the 1991 Constitution;
- (b) De facto discrimination against persons with disabilities living in rural areas, mainly due to insufficient access to services in the community, and intersectional discrimination of among others, internally displaced persons with disabilities, and persons with disabilities in the Fulani groups;
- (c) That denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No.6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review anti-discrimination legislation so that it recognizes multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination that are based on disability and other grounds such as age, sex, race, ethnic origin, gender identity or any other factors, and take appropriate measures to end these forms of discrimination and to ensure that persons with disabilities who are subjected to discrimination obtain redress and compensation;

(b) Adopt legislative and policy measures at the national and municipal levels aimed at addressing the situation of persons with disabilities living in rural areas, including timebound targets and indicators of progress;

(c) Ensure that the concept of reasonable accommodation is defined in legislation and enforced in accordance with Article 2 of the Convention, in particular that denial of reasonable accommodation is expressly considered in domestic law as a form of disability discrimination, and to ensure that allegations of disability discrimination are properly investigated;

(d) With the close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, provide capacity-building programmes on anti-discrimination and the concept of reasonable accommodation to legal professionals, in particular members of the judiciary and persons with disabilities themselves.

Denmark (2024)

17. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) The Act No. 688 of 2018 on the prohibition of discrimination on the grounds of disability explicitly states that it does not impose any obligation to provide reasonable accommodation or accessibility, and its revision in 2020 introduced a duty of reasonable accommodation only in daycare and primary schools;

(b) No steps have been taken to introduce general, cross-cutting legislation against disability discrimination that extends protection beyond the labour market in the Faroe Islands;

(c) The Greenland's Inatsisartut Act on Equality and Anti-Discrimination does not contain a right to reasonable accommodation and mandatory rules on accessibility.

18. The Committee recalls its general comment No.6 (2018), targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and its previous recommendation , and recommends that:

(a) The Government of Denmark amend the Act No. 688 of 2018 on the prohibition of discrimination on the grounds of disability to recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination, introduce an obligation of reasonable accommodation and ensure accessibility in all aspects of life, in compliance with the Convention;

(b) The Government of the Faroe Islands adopt new comprehensive cross-sectoral anti-discrimination legislation on disability that extends protection beyond the labour market and specifically provides for reasonable accommodation;

(c) The Government of Greenland amend the Inatsisartut Act on Equality and Anti-Discrimination to guarantee an explicit individual right to reasonable accommodation and the right to accessibility.

19. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures taken to revise current legislation on insurance to repeal discriminatory provisions concerning premiums and health, life, travel and home contents insurance coverage for persons with disabilities, and to ensure equal access to disability-related entitlements, including compensation to cover additional costs of disability regardless of age or eligibility for the national pension scheme.

20. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark take measures, including legislation, to ensure that the right of persons with disabilities to have access to insurance, including insurance by private providers, on an equal basis and at the same cost as other citizens is guaranteed.

21. The Committee is concerned about the lack of funding and resources of the Board of Equal treatment, which results in a significant increase of the processing time for settling complaints about discrimination on the grounds of disability.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party take appropriate measures to ensure that the Board of Equal Treatment has sufficient resources to greatly reduce case-processing time and to ensure effective enforcement of the rights of persons with disabilities.

Ghana (2024)

10. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) National legislation, including the Constitution, does not explicitly recognize the principles of equality and non-discrimination of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and persons with albinism continue to be reported;
- (c) Denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognised in law as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability;
- (d) Effective complaint mechanisms or remedies for disability-based discrimination and that multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination are neither recognized nor enforced in law and in practice.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Align its legislation with the Convention and amend all relevant national legislation to explicitly recognize disability as a prohibited ground for discrimination and sanction discrimination based on disability, and modify any policies that discriminate against persons with disabilities;
- (b) Provide legal protection against multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and persons with albinism;
- (c) Take measures to ensure that all contradictory laws are reviewed to guarantee prohibition of discrimination on basis of disability in all aspects of life including legally recognizing denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination;
- (d) Provide legal protection against disability-based discrimination, multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination faced by persons with disabilities and establish accessible reporting mechanism and effective legal remedies.

Mauritius (2024)

9. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) While noting that the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2024 prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability, articles 3 and 16(3) of the Constitution still lack specific reference that would provide further constitutional protection to persons with disabilities, including against multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (b) The law lacks explicit recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (c) Complaints mechanisms, such as the Equal Opportunities Commission, remain largely inaccessible and ineffective for persons with disabilities to report and seek redress for incidents of discrimination.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend articles 3 and 16(3) of the Constitution to expressly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability, including multiple and intersectional discrimination, in order to provide greater constitutional protection to persons with disabilities;
- (b) Take legislative and policy measures to recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination against persons with disabilities in all areas of life, and adopt procedures and standards on its implementation;
- (c) Ensure that complaints mechanisms are accessible for persons with disabilities to file complaints and that they provide effective remedies when persons with disabilities face discrimination.

Netherlands (2024)

15. The Committee notes with concern that studies and data indicate that persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, continue to face stigmatization and discrimination in various forms despite existing legal provisions. The Committee is also concerned about:

- (a) The exemption of education from anti-discrimination legislation;
- (b) The disparities in policy enforcement and practices across different regions and institutions that lead to highly inconsistent protection and support for persons with disabilities infringing on their rights under the Convention;
- (c) The lack of consideration of intersectionality in policies and laws, namely the absence of measures to address requirements, experiences and multiple and intersecting barriers of persons with disabilities who may experience discrimination on multiple grounds;
- (d) The limited complaint procedures, legal remedies, and redress mechanisms for persons with disabilities experiencing discrimination;
- (e) The absence of data on disability, gender or age, namely in the courts' data collection system, which makes it impossible to monitor the intersectionality of discrimination.

16. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend the Equal Treatment of Disabled and Chronically Ill People Act and explicitly include the right to inclusive education;
- (b) Develop and implement clear guidelines and procedures to ensure the consistent application and enforcement of anti-discrimination policies and practices across all regions and institutions;
- (c) Specifically address issues of intersectionality in the National Strategy 2040 for the implementation of the Convention;
- (d) Ensure the effectiveness of complaint procedures and redress mechanisms and their accessibility for persons with disabilities and their representative organisations;
- (e) Systematically collect disaggregated data on disability, race, gender, age, ethnicity and other status, in order to take adequate measures against and focus on intersectionality of discrimination in all areas of life.

Ukraine (2024)

10. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the State party's legislation, including the Law of Ukraine on the principles of prevention and combating discrimination (No. 5207-VI), does not contain a cross-cutting obligation not to discriminate against persons with disabilities and does not ensure criminal liability for discrimination;
- (b) About prevailing obstacles to take discrimination-related cases to court;
- (c) That the denial of reasonable accommodation is not effectively recognized as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability in all areas of life;
- (d) That the legal framework of the State party does not protect persons with disabilities from multiple and intersectional discrimination, nor it provides mechanisms to prevent, report, investigate and sanction these cases.

11. The Committee recalls its previous recommendations (CRPD/C/UKR/CO/1, para. 10) and recommend that the State party:

- (a) Amend its legislation, including the Law of Ukraine on the principles of prevention and combating discrimination (No. 5207-VI), to include provisions setting forth the cross-cutting obligation of all authorities to not to discriminate against persons with disabilities, and criminal sanctions for lack of compliance thereof;
- (b) Foster the use of available legal remedies by persons with disabilities facing the discrimination;
- (c) Explicitly include in its legislation the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination, and ensure criminal liability for it;

(d) Establish accessible mechanisms to prevent and protect persons with disabilities from multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, as well as mechanisms to investigate and sanction these cases.

Azerbaijan (2024)

11. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The new law "On the Rights of Persons with Disabilities" lacks an explicit prohibition of discrimination on the basis of disability across all sectors and areas of life, including by recognizing the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of prohibited discrimination;
- (b) The legal and policy frameworks do not contain measures to address multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by older persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities living in rural areas, persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities, internally displaced persons, refugee, asylum seekers and persons in refugee-like situations with disabilities, and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer persons with disabilities in the State party;
- (c) Information and access to remedies and redress in cases of discrimination is limited, including among persons with disabilities in residential institutions.

12. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee reiterates its previous Concluding observations and recommendations (CRPD/C/AZE/CO/1, para. 13), and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation that explicitly prohibits disability-based and other discrimination against persons with disabilities, including direct and indirect discrimination, in public and private spheres, and that it covers areas including education, employment, goods and services;
- (b) Recognize the obligation to provide persons with disabilities with reasonable accommodation in all areas of life and in public and private sectors and the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (c) Address intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities, older persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities living in rural areas, internally displaced persons, refugee, asylum seekers, and those in refugee-like situations with disabilities, and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer persons with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure appropriate and effective legal remedies and sanctions in relation to intersectional discrimination in civil, administrative and criminal proceedings.

Bahrain (2024)¹

10. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The complete absence of a definition of discrimination on the basis of disability in the State party's national legislation.
- (b) The absence of a complaints and verification mechanism for cases of direct and indirect discrimination on the basis of disability
- (c) The absence of a definition of reasonable accommodation and the failure to recognise its denial as a form of discrimination
- (d) Persons with disabilities with non-Bahraini parents are denied access to the measures and services provided for in Law 74 of 2006 (on the care, rehabilitation and employment of persons with disabilities) and other legislation.

11. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Include in national legislation a clear definition of discrimination on the basis of disability in line with the general principles of the Convention.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

- (b) Establish an easily accessible national mechanism to seek redress for cases of direct and indirect discrimination on the basis of disability.
- (c) Include in national legislation provisions that recognise the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination and establish measures to combat it.

Costa Rica (2024)

9. Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

- a) La persistente discriminación hacia las personas con discapacidad, especialmente mujeres, niños y niñas, y personas con discapacidad psicosocial e intelectual, y la inexistencia de mecanismos accesibles de denuncia y reparación para las víctimas de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad;
- b) La demora para la aprobación del Proyecto de Ley Expediente N. 20174 “Ley Marco para Prevenir y Sancionar todas las Formas de Discriminación, Racismo e Intolerancia”, así como la ausencia del criterio de discapacidad en la definición de discriminación y de referencias sobre las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación.

10. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Establecer mecanismos accesibles y eficaces, incluyendo procedimientos judiciales y administrativos, para combatir la discriminación por motivos de discapacidad, y garantizar que las víctimas reciban reparación y los perpetradores sean castigados.
- b) Acelerar la aprobación y adopción del Proyecto de Ley Expediente N. 20174 “Ley Marco para Prevenir y Sancionar todas las Formas de Discriminación, Racismo e Intolerancia”, con la incorporación del criterio de discapacidad en la definición de discriminación, así como de las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación.

Kazakhstan (2024)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That national legislation lacks provisions defining discrimination on the basis of disability, and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, gender, place of living, residence status and socio-economic situation;
- (b) That the provision of reasonable accommodation (CRPD/C/KAZ/1, para. 80) is limited to physical accessibility and that denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination;
- (c) The limited mandate of the Commissioner for Human Rights in the Republic of Kazakhstan and the Commissioner for the Rights of Socially Vulnerable Categories of the Population to protect persons with disabilities from all forms of discrimination and prevent such discrimination.

12. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation that protects persons with disabilities from direct, indirect, multiple and intersectional discrimination and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in all areas of life;
- (b) Include a definition of reasonable accommodation consistent with article 2 of the Convention;
- (c) Provide for effective remedies, including judicial and administrative complaint mechanisms, for persons with disabilities in cases of discrimination, and ensure just satisfaction to the injured parties;
- (d) Provide the Commissioner for Human Rights in the Republic of Kazakhstan with a broad mandate and independence to consider and address discrimination and other human rights violations against persons with disabilities, and the human, technical and financial resources necessary to perform its functions across the State party;
- (e) Ensure that the mandate of the Commissioner for the Rights of Socially Vulnerable Categories of the Population include prevention and combating discrimination on the basis of disability in all areas of life and at the national and local levels.

Nicaragua (2024)

8. Al Comité le preocupa:

- a) La falta de información sobre los resultados de las “medidas específicas” (CRPD/C/NIC/3, párrafo 29) tomadas por el Estado parte para eliminar todas las formas de discriminación basada en la discapacidad, incluida la discriminación por género, interseccional, múltiple y la discriminación por asociación;
- b) La falta de claridad sobre si existe en el Estado parte un sistema establecido para recibir quejas y denuncias relacionadas con la discriminación hacia personas con discapacidad, así como el número de quejas recibidas y qué acciones se han tomado al respecto, incluyendo medidas de justicia restaurativa, investigación y en su caso sanciones correspondientes para aquellos responsables de la discriminación.

9. En consonancia con su observación general núm. 6 (2018), sobre la igualdad y la no discriminación, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Promulgar, cuanto antes, una legislación contra toda forma de discriminación, incorporando las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación, incluyendo la discriminación a las personas indígenas con discapacidad, el concepto de ajustes razonables en los distintos ámbitos y que reconozca la denegación de ajustes razonables como discriminación por motivos de discapacidad;
- b) Establecer procedimientos que sean accesibles y eficaces, incluyendo procedimientos judiciales, administrativos y de presentación de quejas, para las víctimas de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad, y garantizar que se les proporcione una reparación y se investigue y, de ser el caso, sancione a los autores.

Sweden (2024)

13. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the Discrimination Act 2008 does not contain any explicit provisions on intersectional and multiple forms of discrimination;
- (b) That the State party's legislation, including the Discrimination Act 2008, does not define the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination throughout the legal system, but that reasonable accommodation is confined to a few selected areas, and that the concept of inadequate accessibility used by the State party is too narrow;
- (c) At the lack of data about hate crime against persons with disabilities, and that hate speech against persons with disabilities is not prohibited under the specific hate crime legislation;
- (d) That police activities cannot be challenged under the Discrimination Act 2008, in particular the introduction of new “visitation zones” that have a higher risk for persons with disabilities to be stopped, searched and interrogated without probable cause;
- (e) That not all persons who are blind or partially sighted are eligible for support services under the Act on Support and Service for Persons with Certain Functional Impairments (LSS), or other support schemes, and need to bear additional cost for support, inhibiting them from participation in political and public life, cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport;
- (f) At the lack of implementation of the recommendations issued in its communication No. 45/2018 (Richard Sahlin v. Sweden).

14. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review the Discrimination Act 2008 to provide for explicit protection from multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including discrimination based on the intersection between disability and other status, such as age, sex, gender, race, indigeneity, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex status, ethnicity, migration status, or national origin;
- (b) Amend the Discrimination Act 2008, as well as other relevant legislation and policies to rescind the restrictions on the prohibition of inadequate accessibility with respect to persons inquiring for work, housing and private persons, and include an express guarantee of reasonable accommodation consistent with article 2 of the Convention, applicable in all areas of the law;

(c) Amend the national legislation on hate crimes and include provisions on hate crimes against persons with disabilities, and ensure the collection and analysis of data on hate crimes specifically against persons with disabilities;

(d) Ensure that all discriminatory actions by the police force can effectively be challenged in a court of law;

(e) Extend of provision of support to all persons with disabilities who are blind or partially sighted, under the national legislation, including the Act on Support and Service for Persons with Certain Functional Impairments (LSS), in order to improve their participation in political and public life, cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport;

(f) Extend its policy to adhere to recommendations issued in the procedure under Article 2 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention, as practiced with respect to interim measures in communications in asylum cases, to all recommendations issued under this procedure, implement the recommendations issued in Communication No. 45/2018 (Richard Sahlin v. Sweden), and ensure adherence to recommendations under this procedure in the future.

Zambia (2024)

9. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That despite a comprehensive review undertaken by the Zambia's Law Development Commission of the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code to remove derogatory and discriminatory terminology used to describe persons with disabilities, the proposed amendments have not been put into effect;

(b) That Constitution in its Bill of rights does not recognise disability-based discrimination and intersectional discrimination, and it does not recognize denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;

(c) That despite the recognition by the Persons with Disabilities Act of 2012 the denial of reasonable accommodation as a prohibited ground of discrimination, the State party has not developed guidance or mechanisms to give effect to the duty to provide reasonable accommodations to persons with disabilities, nor set out procedures for persons with disabilities to challenge the lack of provision of reasonable accommodations;

(d) Persons who are deaf are still discriminated against under the Traffic Act with regard to obtaining motor vehicle driving licenses;

(e) The absence of an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report incidences of discrimination.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to ensure that the proposals made in the comprehensive review of the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code by Zambia's Law Development Commission that included the removal of derogative and discriminatory words used to describe persons with disabilities are legislated and put into effect;

(b) Review and amend the Bill of Rights of the Constitution and other existing anti-discrimination legislation to recognize multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, or any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination; and ensure that it explicitly recognizes that the denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination on the basis of disability, and ensure effective investigation of reports of such discrimination;

(c) Develop regulations and guidelines in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations and establish mechanisms, policies, and practices to ensure the provision of reasonable accommodations as specified under sections 2 and 6 of the Persons with Disabilities Act and establish effective and easily accessible remedies in cases where reasonable accommodations have not been provided;

- (d) Review the Roads and Road traffic Act to allow issuance of motor vehicle driving licenses to persons who are deaf;
- (e) Put in place an accessible and effective complaints mechanism for persons with disabilities to report incidences of discrimination, and provide persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination with redress, compensation, and rehabilitation and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned.

Andorra (2023)

11. The Committee is concerned about the following:

- (a) The lack of a normative framework prohibiting intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities and insufficient measures to address intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, children with disabilities, and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) That only one complaint of disability-based discrimination has been received by the Ombudsman (Raonador del Ciutadà) between October 2017, when its mandate was expanded by Act No. 26/2017, and December 2021, date of reception of the Replies to List of Issues by the State party;
- (c) The absence of statistics on disability-related cases before the judiciary;
- (d) The limited guidance and provision of reasonable accommodation in a broad range of areas.

12. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Incorporate the concept of intersectional discrimination into domestic legislation, including the Act No. 13/2019 on Equal Treatment and Non-Discrimination, and reinforce strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability, in particular, against women and girls with disabilities, children with disabilities, and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Strengthen its efforts to raise awareness of non-discrimination among persons with disabilities themselves and their families, and guarantee accessible complaint mechanisms, including judicial and administrative procedures, for victims of disability-based discrimination, provide them with redress, and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned;
- (c) Collect disaggregated data by sex, age, type of barrier encountered and sector in which the discrimination occurred, as well as on remedies and redress available, and sanctions applied in the framework of the judiciary;
- (d) Adopt guidelines and training for State and non-State actors on their obligations to provide reasonable accommodation in a broad range of areas, including health, education, employment and access to services in the community.

Austria (2023)

16. The Committee recognizes the progress made by the State party in developing anti-discrimination laws at the Federal and regional levels. However, it notes that with some exceptions, such as suits in the employment sector and suits against harassment and against large companies, the only remedy available to victims of discrimination based on disability is financial compensation. It further notes several reports that, despite strict legal requirements, the mandatory conciliation procedure in civil suits based on the Federal Disability Equality Act is, in fact, often not fully accessible.

17. The Committee recommends the State party further strengthen its Federal Disability Equality Act by extending the scope of available remedies to injunctive and remedial relief in all areas, render the conciliation procedure under the Act in fact fully accessible, and improve the financial support of organizations of persons with disabilities who have standing in such procedures.

Germany (2023)

11. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Legal protection against discrimination and of the specific rights under the Convention does not, with few exceptions, encompass private providers of goods and services;
- (b) The State party's laws do not define the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination throughout the legal system, but are confined to some specific areas, and that the understanding of the requirements to implement reasonable accommodations could be improved;
- (c) The State party's laws, including the laws of the Länder, do not generally and explicitly address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;
- (d) The relief of burden of proof in the General Law on Equality (AGG) does not unequivocally encompass the parties' obligations to prove the existence of a disadvantage.

12. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Fulfil its pledges in the Coalition Agreement and extend the legal protection against discrimination and of the specific rights under the Convention to all private entities who provide goods and services to the public, and establish effective remedies to enforce the respective obligations;
- (b) Amend its laws, at the Federal and Länder levels, so as to include an explicit recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in all areas of the law, and to include a legal definition of reasonable accommodation consistent with the meaning provided in article 2 of the Convention;
- (c) Adopt legal and other measures necessary to provide for explicit protection from multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including discrimination based on the intersection between disability and other status, such as age, sex, gender, race, indigeneity, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex status, ethnicity, migration status, and national origin;
- (d) Amend its laws on the relief of burden of proof, in particular para. 22 of the General Law on Equality (AGG), to explicitly include the parties' obligations to prove the existence of a disadvantage as a part of that relief.

Israel (2023)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Gaps in legislation to address discrimination on the basis of disability, including its intersection with other grounds, in all areas of life;
- (b) That the Commission for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities is prevented from filing lawsuits against government authorities in its own name in all areas of life.

12. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive anti-discrimination law that protects persons with disabilities from direct, indirect, multiple and intersectional discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation by State and non-State actors in all areas of public life. The State party should strengthen accountability mechanisms with respect to State and non-State actors;
- (b) Strengthen its efforts to ensure the improvement of the Commission for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities' enforcement powers;
- (c) Provide different forms of reparations, including non-pecuniary reparations and strengthen the human, technical and financial resources of the Commission for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities to undertake its mandate concerning all persons with disabilities, including the most marginalized, and with respect to all fields of life.

Malawi (2023)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of legislative and executive measures to give effect to the guarantees of equality and the prohibition of discrimination for persons with disabilities contained in the Constitution, particularly against women and girls with disabilities and persons with albinism, and the insufficient enforcement mechanisms, including to ensure reasonable accommodation;
- (b) The decline in and current low number of cases dealing with disability discrimination by the Malawi Human Rights Commission, and the lack of information about remedies and redress in cases of discrimination;
- (c) The absence of information about measures to prevent discrimination on the basis of disability and its intersection with other grounds, and about measures to make operative section 20 of the Constitution that guarantees the protection of children with disabilities from discrimination.

12. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enact specific and comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation to enforce constitutional provisions on non-discrimination, prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability and its intersection with other grounds (such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity or any other status), and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination. The State party should set up a framework for the provision of remedies and sanctions in relation to discrimination, including the granting of compensation and non-pecuniary remedies;
- (b) Adopt measures to inform and raise awareness of the right of persons with disabilities to equality and non-discrimination under the Convention, and of the ability to seek redress. The State party should develop information about complaint mechanisms in Easy Read and other accessible formats and provide free legal aid for persons with disabilities seeking judicial and administrative remedies;
- (c) Establish research programmes to identify inequalities, discriminatory practices and patterns of disadvantage affecting persons with disabilities, including intersectional discrimination, and adopt, in consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, a strategy to prevent and tackle intersectional discrimination, including discrimination against children with disabilities in all areas covered in the Convention.

Mauritania (2023)

9. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a comprehensive definition of discrimination against persons with disabilities, encompassing multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;
- (b) The lack of recognition of denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive definition of discrimination on grounds of disability, including multiple and intersectional disability encompassing age, race, gender, ethnicity, religion, language, sexual orientation, nationality and migration status, or any other status, and ensure that persons with disabilities are comprehensively protected from discrimination;
- (b) Adopt legal provisions to recognize denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in all areas of life and include an express definition of reasonable accommodation consistent with article 2 of the Convention.

Mongolia (2023)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the State party has not yet taken measures to enact a specific comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation on disability and to mainstream into policy and legislation a legal definition of discrimination against persons with disabilities that would allow for the provision of appropriate and effective legal remedies and sanctions in civil, administrative and criminal proceedings;

(b) That the denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination against persons with disabilities in all areas of life;

(c) There is a lack of recognition of multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities in law and policy, particularly on the ground of disability, age, gender, ethnicity, religion, language, nationality and migration status.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive anti-discrimination law, to ensure equal and effective legal protection against direct and indirect discrimination on the basis of disabilities, including, harassment, abuse, denial of reasonable accommodation, and multiple and intersectional discrimination., to recognize multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation, or any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination;

(b) In close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, include the provision of reasonable accommodation in all relevant laws and policies and adopt procedures and standards on implementation, including the duty to negotiate accommodations and applicant(s) requesting such accommodations, and access to action and remedy.

Paraguay (2023)

11. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) Que siga sin aprobarse un proyecto de ley contra toda forma de discriminación que contenga transversalmente la obligación de no discriminar a las personas con discapacidad, enfoque de género y de edad, con mecanismos para la presentación de quejas por motivo de discriminación y establezca sanciones a quienes discriminen, acorde con el eje 6.3 del Plan de Acción Nacional por los Derechos de Personas con Discapacidad;

b) Que persista la discriminación hacia personas con discapacidad, y no existan mecanismos accesibles de denuncia y reparación para las víctimas de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad.

12. En consonancia con sus anteriores observaciones finales (CRPD/C/PRY/CO/1, párrafo 14) y con su observación general núm. 6 (2018), sobre la igualdad y la no discriminación, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Aprobar, cuanto antes, la ley contra toda forma de discriminación que incorpore las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación, incluyendo la discriminación a las personas indígenas con discapacidad, el concepto de ajustes razonables en los distintos ámbitos, y que reconozca la denegación de ajustes razonables como discriminación por motivos de discapacidad;

b) Establecer procedimientos que sean accesibles y eficaces, incluyendo procedimientos judiciales, administrativos y de presentación de quejas, para las víctimas de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad, y garantizar que se les proporcione una reparación y se sancione a los autores.

Angola (2023)

7. The Committee observes with concern that:

(a) Despite the explicit prohibition of discrimination against persons with disabilities by the Constitution, the anti-discrimination legislation excludes certain categories;

(b) The definition of persons with disabilities in disability-related legislation is not in line with that of the CRPD, as it is based on the medical model instead of the human rights model;

(c)There is a lack of accessible complaint mechanisms for persons with disabilities whose rights have been violated.

8.The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and recommends that the State party:

(a)Review the existing anti-discrimination legislation, as well as relevant sections of the Constitution, and take appropriate measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities are protected from discrimination, such as children, women, persons affected by leprosy and persons with albinism;

(b)Ensure that the definition of persons with disabilities in domestic law is brought in line with the CRPD;

(c)Establish an accessible complaint mechanism for persons with disabilities whose rights have been violated, as well as appropriate means of redress and appropriate sanctions for the perpetrators.

Argentina (2023)

11.Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

a)La Ley 23.592 contra actos discriminatorios (1988) no reconoce las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación ni la denegación de ajustes razonables como una forma de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad;

b)El aumento de la discriminación, destacando la discapacidad como uno de los primeros motivos discriminación, conforme al Mapa Nacional de la Discriminación;

c)La falta de un Plan Nacional contra la Discriminación con perspectiva de discapacidad que aborde la situación de las personas con discapacidad que experimentan múltiples e interseccionales formas de discriminación, incluyendo las personas indígenas con discapacidad;

d)La falta de mecanismos accesibles de denuncia y reparación para las víctimas de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad.

12.El Comité, en consonancia con su observación general núm. 6 (2018), sobre la igualdad y la no discriminación, recomienda al Estado parte:

a)Promulgar una nueva legislación contra la discriminación que incorpore las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación, incluyendo la discriminación a las personas indígenas, el concepto de ajustes razonables en los distintos ámbitos, y que reconozca la denegación de ajustes razonables como discriminación por motivos de discapacidad;

b)Incrementar acciones para prevenir y eliminar las barreras que causan discriminación en perjuicio de las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo la provisión individual de ajustes razonables en todos los ámbitos de la vida, tanto en la esfera privada como en la pública;

c)Aprobar el Plan Nacional contra la Discriminación y asegurar que incluya la situación específica de las personas con discapacidad que enfrentan múltiples e interseccionales formas de discriminación; incluyendo niños y niñas con discapacidad, mujeres con discapacidad, personas LGBTQI+ con discapacidad, las personas indígenas con discapacidad, las personas con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, las personas sordociegas, las personas migrantes con discapacidad, incluyendo a quienes viven en zonas rurales;

d)Establecer mecanismos accesibles y eficaces, incluyendo procedimientos judiciales y administrativos, para las víctimas de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad, y garantizar que se les proporcione una reparación y se sancione a los autores.

Georgia (2023)

11.The Committee is concerned about:

(a)The lack of legislative and executive measures to give effect to the guarantees of equality and the prohibition of discrimination of persons with disabilities contained in the Law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, and about insufficient enforcement mechanisms, including coordination of enforcement;

(b)The absence of provisions in the Law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities accounting for the specific requirements of older persons with disabilities, and about information that older persons with disabilities had to choose between social benefits for older persons or for persons with disabilities during the COVID-19 pandemic;

(c)De facto discrimination of persons with disabilities living in rural areas, mainly due to insufficient access to services in the community, and about intersectional discrimination affecting LGBTQI persons with disabilities, including the absence of a normative framework recognising intersectional discrimination;

(d)The limited often ad-hoc provision of reasonable accommodation in a broad range of areas, including in health, education, employment and access to services in the community.

12.The Committee, taking note of its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, recommends that the State party:

(a)Include the right to equality and protection against discrimination of persons with disabilities in all legislative and executive measures and establish enforcement mechanisms for all legislation protecting persons with disabilities against unequal treatment and discrimination, and endow these mechanisms with sufficient financial resources and personnel;

(b)Amend the law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities to account for the specific requirements of older persons with disabilities therein;

(c)Institute legislative and policy measures at the national and municipal levels aimed at addressing the situation of persons with disabilities living in rural areas, including timebound targets and indicators of progress, and measures to combat discrimination against LGBTQI persons with disabilities;

(d)Adopt guidelines and training, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, for State and non-State actors on their obligations to provide reasonable accommodation, and particularly on the application of the concept of “a disproportionate or undue burden” as contained in article 2 of the Convention.

Peru (2023)

10.Al Comité le preocupa:

a)Que pese a la existencia de leyes que prohíben todas las formas de discriminación, esta persiste en todos los ámbitos de la vida de las personas con discapacidad, particularmente en la denegación de ajustes razonables en el sector público y privado;

b)La falta de información, incluidos datos desglosados, sobre la situación de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, personas indígenas y afrodescendientes con discapacidad, y sobre el impacto de la legislación y las políticas públicas en sus derechos bajo la Convención.

11.Recordando su observación general núm. 6 (2018) sobre la igualdad y la no discriminación, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

a)Establezca un marco global de lucha contra la discriminación de las personas con discapacidad que abarque a los agentes estatales y no estatales, asimismo que otorgue protección contra la discriminación directa e indirecta, la denegación de ajustes razonables, el acoso y la discriminación interseccional. Además, que proporcione recursos jurídicos efectivos y reparación por todas las formas de discriminación, incluidas sanciones e indemnizaciones y facilite procedimientos claros y la asignación de recursos financieros suficientes para la realización de ajustes razonables. Adicionalmente, que encomiende a la Autoridad Nacional de Protección del Consumidor, el Instituto Nacional de Defensa de la Competencia y de la Protección de la Propiedad Intelectual (INDECOPI), que inicie procedimientos de oficio para monitorear situaciones de discriminación por motivos de discapacidad en el sector privado; b)Garantice que los sistemas de recopilación de datos y las evaluaciones de impacto de la legislación y las políticas incluyan indicadores y datos desglosados sobre la situación de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad y personas indígenas y afrodescendientes con discapacidad.

Togo (2023)

9. The Committee observes with concern the absence of an anti-discrimination framework which prohibits discrimination based on disability including direct and indirect discrimination, the denial of reasonable accommodation, harassment and vilification, and multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

(a) Incorporate the definition of reasonable accommodation into domestic legislation and apply it in accordance with article 2 of the Convention and, in particular, ensure that it explicitly recognizes that the denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination on the basis of disability, and ensure effective investigation of reports of such discrimination;

(b) Review and amend the existing anti-discrimination legislation to recognize multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, or any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination;

(c) Strengthen its efforts to raise awareness of non-discrimination among legal professionals, in particular members of the judiciary, and among persons with disabilities themselves, inter alia, through training programmes on the concept of reasonable accommodation;

(d) Adopt measures to provide persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination with redress, compensation, and rehabilitation and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned.

Tunisia (2023)

7. The Committee is concerned that discrimination against persons with disabilities still persists particularly in the areas of education and employment. It is further concerned that the State party maintains segregated programmes for persons with disabilities, which are discriminatory. It is also concerned that no specific actions have been taken to ensure that denial of reasonable accommodation is fully recognised as discrimination, in line with the Convention.

8. The Committee, recalling its General Comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination as well as SDG Goal 10 to reduce inequality within and among countries, recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the anti-discrimination legislations on persons with disabilities and ensure that they are complied with in all situations;

(b) Develop inclusive program in replacement of segregationist policies by meaningfully involving persons with disabilities in the design, implementation and monitoring of all programmes that affect them and ensure that they are included in all development programmes on equal basis with others;

(c) Include the denial of reasonable accommodation in anti-discrimination legislations, as a form of discrimination on the ground of disability, and ensure that this is complied with in all settings;

(d) Provide an accessible mechanism for reporting discrimination cases against persons with disabilities as well as means for appropriate redress.

Bangladesh (2022)

11. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The lack of legislative and policy measures in the Constitution and laws of the State party that explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability in line with the Convention, particularly against persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and multiple intersecting forms of discrimination;

(b) Insufficient steps taken to repeal all legislation and policies that are discriminatory in nature, particularly the policy for implementation of living standard development programs for

Vedas and backward people of 2013 and section 21 of the Mental Health Act of 2018 on the guardianship of a person with mental illness;

(c) The delay in the adoption of the Anti-discrimination Act which would recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

(a) Review and amend the Constitution and the Rights and Protection of Persons with Disabilities Act of 2013 to prohibit disability-based discrimination in line with the Convention, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of gender, age, ethnicity, religion, caste, profession, nature and type of disability;

(b) Repeal all laws and policies that are discriminatory to persons with disabilities, including persons affected by leprosy and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

(c) Adopt without delay the Anti-discrimination Act (2015) and ensure that it prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability in all areas of life, provides appropriate protection against disability-based discrimination, including multiple and intersectional discrimination and considers the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination.

China (2022)

12. The Committee observes with concern that:

(a) The State party has not yet taken measures to enact specific and comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation and to mainstream into policy and legislation a legal definition of discrimination against persons with disabilities that would allow for provision of appropriate and effective legal remedies and sanctions in civil, administrative and criminal proceedings;

(b) There is a lack of recognition of multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities in law and policy, particularly on gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities;

(c) The denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination against persons with disabilities is restricted to laws and regulations in sectors such as Education, Employment and Transportation, and is not accompanied by guidance on implementation and effective legal remedies.

13. The Committee, in line with its General Comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive anti-discrimination law, to ensure equal and effective legal protection against all discrimination on the basis of disability, including indirect discrimination, harassment, denial of reasonable accommodation, multiple and intersectional discrimination;

(b) Include provision of reasonable accommodation in all relevant laws and policies and adopt procedures and standards on implementation, including the duty to negotiate accommodations with the applicant(s), and access to action and remedy.

Indonesia (2022)

10. The Committee observes with concern the lack of harmonisation of the Convention equality provisions across national, provincial, city and regency and sub-district levels, in particular protection from direct, indirect, multiple and intersectional discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation by State and non-State actors in all areas of public life, and the lack of a right of action and access to a remedy.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party adopt measures to harmonise legislation at the national, provincial, city and regency and sub-district levels to ensure comprehensive and uniform protection for all persons with disabilities from all forms of discrimination and to ensure a right of action and access to a remedy.

Japan (2022)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The Act for Eliminating Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities does not include multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, and is concerned about the limited scope of the definition of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination on the ground of disability in all areas of life;
- (c) There is no accessible complaint and redress mechanisms for victims of disability-based discrimination.

14. The Committee, in line with its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review the Act for Eliminating Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities to prohibit disability-based discrimination, in accordance with the Convention, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability, sex, age, ethnicity, religion, gender identity, sexual orientation and any other status, and the denial of reasonable accommodation;
- (b) Adopt the necessary measures to ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided to all persons with disabilities in all areas of life, including in the private and public spheres;
- (c) Establish accessible and effective mechanisms, including judicial and administrative procedures, for victims of disability-based discrimination, and provide them with comprehensive redress, and sanctions against the perpetrator.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

8. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Legislation does not explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability (including against persons affected by leprosy), in all areas of life, including health and education;
- (b) The definition of discrimination does not include multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;
- (c) The denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination on the ground of disability;
- (d) The lack of effective redress in cases of discrimination on the basis of disability and multiple and intersectional discrimination.

9. The Committee, in line with its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review legislation to explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability (including against persons affected by leprosy), including the Law No.73 on Hygiene, Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, the Law No.62 on Education, and the Law No.77 on Gender Equality;
- (b) Prohibit multiple and intersectional discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation and any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (c) Recognize within anti-discrimination law the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination within all areas of life;
- (d) Ensure access by persons with disabilities to effective legal remedies and redress, including compensation in cases of disability-based discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation.

New Zealand (2022)

7. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of an explicit provision within the Human Rights Act of 1993 to recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;

(b) Multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including for Māori and Pasifika persons with disabilities;

(c) The high number of complaints received by the Human Rights Commission on the ground of disability and the significant length of time for the resolution of complaint cases submitted to the New Zealand Human Rights Commission and the Human Rights Review Tribunal.

8. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Human Rights Act of 1993 to include an explicit recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination and include a legislative definition of reasonable accommodation consistent with the meaning provided in article 2 of the Convention;

(b) Adopt the legal and other measures necessary to provide for explicit protection from multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including discrimination based on the intersection between disability and other identities and life status, such as age, sex, gender, race, indigenous status, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex status, ethnicity, migratory status and national origin;

(c) Provide the New Zealand Human Rights Commission and the Human Rights Review Tribunal with the necessary financial and human resources for timely resolution of discrimination complaints.

Republic of Korea (2022)

11. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) That the Act on the Prohibition of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities, Remedy against Infringement of their Rights, Etc., does not recognize multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, in particular women with disabilities, migrants with disabilities, LGBTI persons with disabilities and HIV infected persons with disabilities;

(b) The fact that the amended article 15 of the Act on Welfare of Persons with Disabilities excludes persons with psychosocial disabilities from the universal welfare service delivery system;

(c) The lack of recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability in all areas of life;

(d) The burden of litigation costs, including attorney fees, which limits access to justice of persons with disabilities.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the existing anti-discrimination legislation, in particular the Act on the Prohibition of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities, Remedy against Infringement of their Rights, Etc., and enact a comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation, to recognize multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation, or any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination;

(b) Review Article 15 of the Act on Welfare of Persons with Disabilities in line with the Convention, to include persons with psychosocial disabilities in the universal welfare service delivery system;

(c) Exempt persons with disabilities who lose a case about the rights of persons with disabilities from being burdened with the opposing party's attorney's fees and ensure accessible and fair reimbursement schemes in order to prevent any additional costs or administrative burdens for persons with disabilities;

(d) Recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as discrimination on the grounds of disability and ensure effective investigation of reports of such discrimination.

Singapore (2022)

9. The Committee is concerned about the absence of:

- (a) A comprehensive definition of discrimination against persons with disabilities, encompassing multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;
- (b) The recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive definition of discrimination on the ground of disability, including multiple and intersectional disability encompassing age, race, gender, ethnicity, religion, language, sexual orientation, nationality and migration status, or any other status, and ensure that persons with disabilities are comprehensively protected from discrimination;
- (b) Adopt legal provisions and create a practice recognizing the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in all areas of life, and include an express definition of reasonable accommodation consistent with article 2 of the Convention.

Hungary (2022)

10. The Committee observes with concern the lack of:

- (a) Recognition of multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities, in the anti-discrimination legislation of the State Party;
- (b) Recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability in all areas of life;
- (c) Investigation of reports of disability-based discrimination, effective remedies for victims of disability-based discrimination, and prosecution and enforcement of punishment for perpetrators.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Recognize multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination in its anti-discrimination legislation, including all forms of gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities;
- (b) Recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as discrimination under Act CXXV of 2003 on equal treatment and the promotion of equal opportunities and ensure its effective enforcement across all sectors and all areas of life;
- (c) Provide for mechanisms of effective remedy to victims of discrimination on the grounds of disability and ensure effective investigation of reports of such discrimination.

Jamaica (2022)

10. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The fact that despite the explicit prohibition of discrimination against persons with disabilities by the Disabilities Act, 2014, the anti-discrimination legislation excludes persons with psychosocial disabilities from political participation;
- (b) The delay in the enactment of the Disabilities Act, 2014, which only has taken effect in February 2022, as well as the delay in the operationalization of the Disabilities Rights Tribunal and the Jamaica Council for Persons with Disabilities;
- (c) That despite the fact that the National Housing Trust reserves 5 per cent of all housing developments for persons with disabilities and provides a special loan option within its benefits programme which gives assistance to contributors with disabilities wishing to purchase homes, many persons with disabilities are excluded from these programmes due to the prohibitive costs of mortgages, and loan interest, as well as stereotypes and stigmatization of persons with disabilities by landlords.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review the existing anti-discrimination legislation, in particular section 36 of the Disabilities Act, 2014, as well as relevant sections of the Constitution, to ensure that persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial disabilities, are comprehensively protected from discrimination;
- (b) Accelerate the operationalization of the Disabilities Rights Tribunal and the Jamaica Council for Persons with Disabilities and ensure the availability of sustainable and appropriate human and financial resources to carry out their mandates;
- (c) Establish mechanisms, including social protection measures, to ensure full implementation of 5 per cent housing quotas and that housing is available to all regardless of economic status.

Mexico (2022)

15. The Committee is concerned that the federal government and some states and municipalities have not adopted laws prohibiting discrimination of persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities and other persons facing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination; that many laws in force do not recognize a denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination; and that reparation and compensation are not available as remedies against discrimination in all areas of the Convention.

16. The Committee, in line with its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and taking into account targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt laws in all States that explicitly prohibit multiple and intersectional discrimination of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Recognize a denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination within all areas of life;
- (c) Provide, inter alia, effective legal remedies and redress against discrimination in all areas of the Convention, including compensation in cases of disability-based discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation, taking account of the gender dimension of discrimination against women with disabilities.

Switzerland (2022)

11. The Committee notes with concern that provisions on equality across the federal, cantonal and municipal levels are not harmonized with each other or with the Convention, in particular regarding protection from direct, indirect, multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation by State and non-State actors in all areas of public life, and the lack of a right of action and access to a remedy.

12. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018), the Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to harmonize legislation at the federal, cantonal, and municipal levels to ensure comprehensive, uniform protection for all persons with disabilities, to ensure that all the elements of the Convention's standard of non-discrimination are included, and to ensure a right of action and access to a remedy.

Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of) (2022)

8. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There is no law or mechanism for identifying and punishing acts of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including persons with sequelae of leprosy, persons of African descent and women, that provides for preventive measures, monitoring, sanctions and full redress, including non-repetition;
- (b) The obligation to provide reasonable accommodation is not mainstreamed in the State party's legislation, accommodations of this sort are infrequent and the denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a law on the prevention and elimination of discrimination, based on general comment No. 6 (2018) and the commitments made at the Global Disability Summit 2022, that expressly refers to disability-based discrimination and that mainstreams recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination, particularly against women, children, indigenous persons and persons of African descent with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons living with leprosy, in all spheres of life;
- (b) Put in place a specific, independent mechanism for receiving, investigating and following up on complaints of discrimination while also providing for the imposition of sanctions in both the public and private spheres and for measures that will afford full redress; establish a system for compiling data disaggregated by age, sex, ethnic origin and basis of the complaint; and disseminate the results of the follow-up conducted;
- (c) Incorporate an explicit provision into its domestic legislation under which the denial of reasonable accommodation is defined as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability.

Djibouti (2021)

7. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the definition of discrimination under Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018) does not consider explicitly the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination and lacks provisions to address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities;
- (b) The absence of information on the availability of legal remedies, complaint procedures, and redress mechanisms for persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination.

8. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018) to explicitly recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination and to prohibit multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt measures to provide persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination with redress, compensation, and rehabilitation and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned.

France (2021)

11. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That the current definition of discrimination does not include multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the basis of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as the grounds of age, sex, ethnicity, sexual orientation and gender identity;
- (b) That the denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognised as a form of discrimination on the ground of disability in all areas of life, except in the areas of work and employment, and in education with regards examinations.

12. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Prohibit multiple and intersectional discrimination on the grounds of disability and its intersection with other grounds, such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation, or any other status, and adopt strategies to eliminate multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (b) Recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination within all areas of life within anti-discrimination law.

Estonia (2021)

11. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That anti-discrimination law recognises discrimination on the basis of disability only in relation to vocational training and work, and that it has not made provision about multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities;

(b) The insufficient financial and human resources of the Gender Equality and Equal Treatment Commissioner to implement its mandate concerning persons with disabilities;

(c) The absence of measures to prevent and address discrimination on the basis of disability in all areas of life;

(d) The limited awareness about the right of persons with disabilities to request reasonable accommodation and that denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognised as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability.

12. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Accelerate the amendment of the Equal Treatment Act, ensuring that it recognises discrimination on the basis of disability across all areas of life, and sectors, and multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including all forms of gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities;

(b) Ensure sustainable and appropriate human and financial resources for the Gender Equality and Equal Treatment Commissioner to carry out its mandate;

(c) Adopt mechanisms to allow persons with disabilities exposed to discrimination access redress, including compensation, and rehabilitation, and ensure that perpetrators are sanctioned;

(d) Adopt a definition of reasonable accommodation in line with the Convention and recognize it across all sectors and areas of life, and recognise in legislation the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability.

Albania (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a clear prohibition of discrimination on the grounds of disability as well as sanctions and remedies available in cases of discrimination, including denial of reasonable accommodation, especially in the Law on Protection from Discrimination and the Law on Inclusion and Accessibility for Persons with Disabilities;

(b) The amendment made to Law 93/2014 which establishes different legal entitlements for persons with disabilities;

(c) The lack of a strategy to promote the rights of Roma persons with disabilities and the lack of information on their situations, particularly women and girls, with a focus on all aspects of their lives, mainly their rights to education, health care and employment.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review its legislation to incorporate a clear prohibition of disability-based discrimination that explicitly includes all forms of discrimination on grounds of disability including multiple and intersecting discrimination, and the denial of reasonable accommodation;

(b) Develop and apply harmonized and transparent criteria, fair assessment procedures and equal entitlements for persons with disabilities regardless of where they live in the State party;

(c) Adopt a national programme with effective incentives to improve the situation of Roma persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls, with a focus on, inter alia, their rights to education, health care and employment, on an equal basis with others.

Australia (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned that there is no effective legislative framework to protect persons with disabilities from systemic, intersectional and multiple forms of discrimination, especially at the Commonwealth level, that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities are particularly disadvantaged and are often not consulted on matters that affect them, and that the complaints mechanisms under existing law, especially the Disability Discrimination Act 1992, are inaccessible to persons with disabilities.

10. In line with its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee reiterates its previous recommendation (CRPD/C/AUS/CO/1, para. 15) that the State party strengthen anti-discrimination laws, particularly the Disability Discrimination Act 1992, to:

(a) Address and prohibit systemic, intersectional and multiple forms of discrimination, recognizing discrimination on a single or on multiple and/or intersectional characteristics and allowing for systematic complaints, representative and group actions and sanctions for addressing lack of access and discriminatory behaviour;

(b) Support persons with disabilities in making their own decisions, taking action and filing complaints, especially persons with high support requirements and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

Ecuador (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Ecuadorian law does not incorporate an explicit, cross-cutting definition or prohibition of discrimination on the basis of disability, particularly with regard to women, children, indigenous persons, persons of African descent, Montubio persons, migrants and refugees with disabilities, in all areas of life;

(b) There is no law or mechanism for the identification and punishment of acts of discrimination against persons with disabilities that provides for preventive measures, monitoring, sanctions and full redress, including non-repetition;

(c) The definition of reasonable accommodation is not mainstreamed in the State party's laws, accommodations of this sort are infrequent and the denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that its laws, policies and strategies for eliminating discrimination include an explicit definition and prohibition of disability-based discrimination and that they incorporate, on a cross-cutting basis, a recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination, particularly in the case of women, children, indigenous persons, persons of African descent, Montubio persons, asylum seekers, migrants and refugees with disabilities, in all areas of life;

(b) Adopt a law on the prevention and elimination of discrimination that expressly refers to disability-based discrimination; put in place a specific, independent mechanism for receiving, investigating and following up on complaints of discrimination while also providing for the imposition of sanctions in both the public and private spheres and for measures that will afford full redress; establish a system for compiling data disaggregated by age, sex, ethnic origin and basis of the complaint; and disseminate the results of its follow-up actions;

(c) Incorporate an explicit provision in its national legislation under which the denial of reasonable accommodation is defined as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability (CRPD/C/ECU/CO/1, para. 15).

El Salvador (2019)

8. The Committee is concerned that there is lack of recognition and prohibition of multiple and intersectional discrimination, especially against women, indigenous persons and persons of African descent with disabilities. It is also concerned that legislation, such as the Law on Equality, Fairness, and the Elimination of Discrimination against Women and the Special Comprehensive Law for a Violence-free Life for Women, does not include or consider the perspective of women and girls with disabilities, especially those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities. It is concerned about the lack of progress in recognizing denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination under the law.

9. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party adopt effective legal and policy measures, including the prohibition of all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, particularly on the grounds of disability, sex, age, ethnicity and gender identity. It also recommends that denial of reasonable accommodation be recognized as a form of disability-based discrimination under the law.

10. The Committee is concerned that governmental entities such as the General Inspectorate of Public Security and the Human Rights Unit of the National Civil Police are responsible for receiving complaints of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party designate an independent and impartial mechanism to receive complaints of discrimination against persons with disabilities, and maintain a system for collecting disaggregated data, including by age, sex, and reason for complaint.

Greece (2019)

7. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive legislative framework guaranteeing equal treatment and protection from discrimination, including the provision of specific measures and individualized support, and protection from the denial of reasonable accommodation, particularly in such key sectors as education, social protection and the provision of goods and services;

(b) The lack of effective implementation of the existing standards on equality and non-discrimination, including provision of specific measures and individualized support, particularly in the areas of education for children with disabilities and protection of refugees, asylum seekers and migrants with disabilities;

(c) The delay in the adoption of secondary legislation based on Law No. 4488/2017 (art. 74) extending protection against discrimination on the grounds of disability in the fields of education and the provision of goods and services.

8. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take legislative measures to ensure protection against discrimination on the grounds of disability, including to provide for specific measures, individualized support and protection from the denial of reasonable accommodation in all areas of life, in line with the Convention;

(b) Improve the implementation of standards on specific measures and individualized support in the public and private sectors, particularly in schools and in relation to refugees, asylum seekers and migrants with disabilities;

(c) Adopt the secondary legislation required under article 74 of Law No. 4488/2017 to guarantee equal treatment and prohibit discrimination of persons with disabilities in the areas of education and the provision of goods and services;

(d) Take into account article 5 of the Convention in the implementation of targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

India (2019)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of an explicit prohibition of disability-based discrimination in the Constitution, and the exception to the anti-discrimination clause in section 3 (3) of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act, which allows discrimination against persons with disabilities under certain circumstances;

(b) Multiple and intersecting discrimination and discrimination by association in legislation and in practice against persons affected by leprosy and their family members, particularly women, who experience isolation, seclusion in “leprosy colonies” or at home, rejection from school, dismissal from jobs, and barriers to autonomy;

(c) The absence of measures to combat multiple and intersecting discrimination against, inter alia, persons with disabilities in scheduled castes and scheduled tribes, including Dalits and

Adivasi, older persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities living with HIV/AIDS, indigenous persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities who belong to ethnic, linguistic and religious minorities, and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities;

(d) The lack of effective redress in cases of discrimination on the basis of disability and multiple and intersecting discrimination, including gender-based discrimination against women with disabilities.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the Committee's general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and taking account of targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Amend the Constitution to explicitly prohibit disability-based discrimination and repeal section 3 (3) of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act, ensuring that its legislation recognizes direct and indirect disability-based discrimination and multiple and intersecting discrimination as faced by persons with disabilities;

(b) Repeal all discriminatory legislation against persons affected by leprosy in all areas, including provisions in the Hindu marriage rules and the family court rules and provisions restricting their freedom of movement or preventing them from participating in public life, and be guided by the principles and guidelines for the elimination of discrimination against persons affected by leprosy and their family members (A/HRC/15/30, annex) in order to address the situation of persons affected by leprosy and their family members;

(c) Assess the situation of and adopt anti-discrimination legislation and public policies to tackle multiple and intersecting discrimination, with the aim of achieving inclusive equality for persons with disabilities facing such discrimination;

(d) Ensure access by persons with disabilities to effective legal remedies and redress, including compensation in cases of disability-based discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation, taking account of the gender dimension of discrimination against women with disabilities.

Iraq (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Discrimination against persons with disabilities remains widespread, especially against persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and women with disabilities, and that limited progress has been made in combating multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination on the basis of, among other grounds, age, gender, ethnicity and geographical location, especially rural areas;

(b) National legislation does not recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen mechanisms for persons with disabilities exposed to discrimination to obtain redress, including compensation, and rehabilitation and for perpetrators to be sanctioned, ensure that such mechanisms are accessible to persons with disabilities and raise awareness among persons with disabilities, public officials and service providers on the available legal remedies;

(b) Explicitly include denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability in Law No. 38 (2013) and take all measures necessary to ensure the provision of individualized supports and the implementation of specific measures to ensure equality.

Kuwait (2019)

10. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Constitution and Act No. 8/2010 do not explicitly recognize the right to equality, do not explicitly prohibit discrimination on the grounds of disability, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, and do not view the denial of reasonable accommodations as constituting discrimination;

(b) Act No. 8/2010 does not apply to non-Kuwaiti nationals unless they are children of a Kuwaiti woman married to a non-Kuwaiti man;

(c) There are no effective legal remedies for persons with disabilities to claim their rights;

(d) Derogatory language towards persons with disabilities is used in legislation.

11. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and recommends that the State party:

(a) Review its legislation, including the Constitution and Act No. 8/2010, to ensure that it prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, and to ensure also that its legislation recognizes and sanctions the denial of reasonable accommodations as constituting discrimination on the basis of disability;

(b) Ensure that equality and non-discrimination provisions apply to all persons with disabilities within its territory, including non-Kuwaiti nationals and stateless persons (Bidoon), and review its legislation, including Act No. 8/2010 and the Nationality Act accordingly;

(c) Ensure the availability of effective legal remedies for persons with disabilities to claim their rights, including in cases of disability-based discrimination;

(d) Remove any derogatory language against persons with disabilities from all legislation, including the Civil Code, the Penal Code and the Code of Civil Procedure.

Myanmar (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about the lack of:

(a) Legal provisions in the Constitution and laws of the State party that explicitly prohibit disability-based discrimination in line with the Convention, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation;

(b) A comprehensive anti-discrimination policy that provides appropriate protection from disability-based discrimination in all areas of life, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation;

(c) Accessible complaints and redress mechanisms for victims of disability-based discrimination.

12. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take the necessary legal measures, including reviewing the Constitution and laws to prohibit disability-based discrimination in line with the Convention, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability, sex, age, ethnicity, religion, gender identity, sexual orientation, and any other status, and the denial of reasonable accommodation, in all areas of life;

(b) Adopt and implement a comprehensive anti-discrimination policy to provide appropriate protection against disability-based discrimination, including multiple and intersectional discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation;

(c) Establish accessible and effective mechanisms, including judicial and administrative procedures, for victims of disability-based discrimination, and provide them with comprehensive redress, including compensation, rehabilitation and sanctions against the perpetrator.

Cuba (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of measures prohibiting and sanctioning all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including denial of reasonable accommodation;

(b) Derogatory terms that stigmatize persons with disabilities in the legislation, including the Civil, Administrative, Labour and Economic Procedure Act, the Children and Youth Code, the Family Code (1975), the Public Health Act (1983) and the National Plan of Action for persons with disabilities (2006-2010).

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Institute measures to prohibit all forms of discrimination on grounds of disability, including the denial of reasonable accommodation, as well as sanction violations;
- (b) Repeal all legislation that still contains derogatory terms and stigmatizes persons with disabilities.

13. The Committee notes that there is no impartial and independent mechanism to receive complaints from persons with disabilities that is accessible to persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities in rural areas. It is also concerned that there are insufficient measures to expedite the complaint processes, including absence of trained personnel to assist in the process of filing complaints, nor any mechanisms of redress in cases of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to achieve de facto equality of persons with disabilities and institute expeditious and independent judicial and administrative remedies to guarantee reparation in cases of discrimination.

Niger (2019)

7. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Discrimination against persons with disabilities, including in employment and education, particularly against women and children with disabilities, and migrants and refugees with disabilities, and those living in rural areas;
- (b) The absence of recognition in the legislation of denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (c) The lack of legislation to protect persons with disabilities, especially women, children, migrants and refugees with disabilities, and those living in rural areas, against multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination; and the absence of information about legal remedies, and compensation for persons with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party include in national law the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination; adopt relevant laws including the draft Law on Equal Opportunities and the Reintegration of Persons with Disabilities, and ensure that those laws are in line with the CRPD and explicitly protect persons with disabilities against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, provide redress for persons with disabilities who are victims of discrimination, and sanction the perpetrators.

Norway (2019)

7. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There is an absence of effective legislation and mechanisms addressing multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities, especially against persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic minorities;
- (b) There is poor access to legal aid in discrimination cases;
- (c) The Anti-Discrimination Tribunal has limited powers to impose restitution and compensation;
- (d) Persons with disabilities with Sami background and children with disabilities from families with an immigrant background have poor access to public services because of communication problems, cultural differences and poor knowledge of the welfare system;
- (e) There is no specific research on the living conditions for persons with disabilities belonging to national minorities, including Roma and Tater/Romani.

8. The Committee, in line with its General Comment no. 6 (2018), recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt the necessary legal and other measures to provide for explicit protection against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the basis of age, disability, national origin, sex, gender, ethnicity and migratory status, and for effective sanctions against perpetrators;

(b) Take effective measures to provide legal aid in all discrimination cases and increase the Equality and Anti-Discrimination Ombud's resources to enable it to assist persons with disabilities with filing complaints to the Anti-Discrimination Tribunal, including cases of and intersectional forms of discrimination;

(c) Amend the Anti-discrimination Act to expand the range of remedies available to complainants in disability discrimination cases before the Anti-Discrimination Tribunal;

(d) Undertake awareness-raising campaigns and training to inform indigenous persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities from ethnic minorities, and immigrants with disabilities about their rights and how to access them;

(e) Conduct a study on the living conditions of persons with disabilities belonging to minorities, such as the Roma and Tater/Romani, to design and adopt appropriate legislative, administrative and practical steps to address inequality and discrimination.

Rwanda (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of recognition in the national legislation of denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;

(b) Insufficient laws and policies to combat multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities, especially women and children with disabilities;

(c) The lack of accessible mechanisms for reporting cases of discrimination on the grounds of disability, and the lack of redress mechanisms and statistics on cases of disability-based discrimination.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate measures to prevent and address all forms of disability-based discrimination. It recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish in law the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;

(b) Adopt a legislative framework to combat the multiple and intersectional discrimination experienced, particularly by women and children with disabilities, together with a coordinated strategy for its implementation;

(c) Take formal measures to ensure that mechanisms for reporting acts of discrimination on grounds of disability, as well as redress mechanisms are made available and accessible, and provide in its next periodic report, statistics on cases of disability based discrimination.

Senegal (2019)

7. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The definition of discrimination does not include the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability based discrimination and that persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, persons with disabilities in rural areas, and persons with albinism, are not adequately provided with individualized accommodations;

(b) There is widespread multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities, and that legal remedies, complaint mechanisms and sanctions against perpetrators are lacking;

(c) There is no available information on the legal remedies and measures of redress and compensation for persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination or statistics on the number of investigations of cases of discrimination on grounds of disability conducted, sanctions imposed and/or remedies provided to victims, particularly women and girls with disabilities.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take the necessary legal and other measures to recognise the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination and to promote awareness about the concept of individualized support and accommodations among the general public;
- (b) Adopt measures to combat the widespread multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities, especially women, girls and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, persons with albinism, and persons with disabilities in rural areas, and adopt measures for the provision of legal remedies, complaint mechanisms and sanctions against perpetrators, including redress and compensation mechanism for victims;
- (c) Take the necessary steps to increase the availability of information, including statistics, on the number of investigations of cases of discrimination on the basis of disability conducted, sanctions imposed and/or remedies provided.

Spain (2019)

8. The Committee is concerned about the lack of explicit recognition and prohibition of multiple and intersectional discrimination on the grounds of disability, sex, age, ethnicity, gender identity and sexual orientation and any other status in all areas of life. The Committee regrets that a number of mental health conditions are not considered as disabilities under Spanish Law. It is further concerned about the lack of recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in all areas of life.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party refer to its general comment No. 6 (2018) on the right to equality and non-discrimination and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to revise legislation to adhere to the Convention and to explicitly recognize and prohibit multiple and intersectional discrimination on the grounds of disability, sex, age, ethnicity, gender identity and sexual orientation and any other status in all areas of life within its anti-discrimination legislation, policies and strategies, including the Equality Act. Furthermore, the Committee reminds the State party that all persons with mental health conditions are considered as persons with psychosocial disabilities and fall under the scope of the Convention. Finally, it recommends that the State party recognise the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination and ensure effective mechanisms of legal redress and reparation.

Turkiye (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Discriminatory legislation and practices against persons with disabilities, such as the denial of legal capacity on the basis of impairment, unjustifiable provisions restricting the appointment of persons with disabilities as judges, prosecutors, governors or diplomats, and the legal prohibition of disability-based discrimination, which does not encompass indirect discrimination;
- (b) Article 122 of the Turkish Penal Code No. 5237, according to which the criminal offense of disability-based discrimination requires the proof of hatred motivation;
- (c) The absence of effective (recorded) sanctions in legislation in cases of denial of reasonable accommodation and the lack of information available about effective redress, including compensation and reparation in cases of disability-based discrimination;
- (d) The absence of information about the situation and measures taken to address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, against persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic groups, such as Roma persons with disabilities or persons with disabilities of Kurdish origin.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Revise its legal framework to repeal discriminatory provisions against persons with disabilities, as well as its anti-discrimination legislation and harmonize it with the Convention, particularly apply the concept of reasonable accommodation in all areas of life, and establish appropriate sanctions in case of non-compliance with reasonable accommodation required by persons with disabilities, including those with intellectual disabilities;

(b) Eliminate the requirement of hatred motivation in the prosecution of cases of discrimination on the basis of disability;

(c) Monitor the number of discrimination claims on the basis of disability as a proportion of the total number of claims of discrimination, disaggregated by sex, age, geographical location, barriers identified and the number and percentage of judgments that led to compensation or sanctions, ensure legal safeguards and remedies, as well as related procedures and provide data on applied sanctions and fines, in cases of denial of reasonable accommodation;

(d) Adopt an antidiscrimination policy and concrete measures to achieve inclusive equality by all persons with disabilities, including those belonging to minority groups.

Vanuatu (2019)

10. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The lack of legislation prohibiting discrimination on the basis of disability, including the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;

(b) Intersectional discrimination faced by persons with disabilities and the lack of data on the number of victims of such discrimination;

(c) The lack of mechanisms to provide remedy to persons with disabilities who are victims of discrimination.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend article 5 of the Constitution and other relevant legislation to include disability as a prohibited ground of discrimination and ensure that the anti-discrimination framework under the National Disabilities Inclusive Development Policy (2018-2025) encompasses all forms of discrimination on the basis of disability, including the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;

(b) Address and explicitly prohibit intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities and collect data on multiple and intersectional discrimination disaggregated by sex, age, type of impairment and place of residence;

(c) Establish a mechanism to monitor complaints of disability-based discrimination and provide legal remedy and support to persons with disabilities who are victims of discrimination.

Algeria (2018)

10. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) National legislation, including the Constitution, which does not explicitly recognize the principles of equality and non-discrimination of persons with disabilities;

(b) The fact that the law does not explicitly identify the denial of reasonable accommodation as discrimination on the grounds of disability, and that reasonable accommodation is not well understood nor widely applied by employers and service providers, resulting in persons with disabilities being unable to enjoy their rights on an equal basis with others and;

(c) Derogatory terms that stigmatize persons with disabilities in the legislation, including the Civil Code and the Family Code;

(d) Discriminatory policies, notably the fact that persons with disabilities must produce a certificate of exoneration from liability before travelling on the national airline.

11. The Committee recalls its General Comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and recommends that the State party:

(a) Align its legislation with the Convention and amend all relevant national legislation to prohibit and sanction discrimination based on disability and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination;

(b) Repeal all legislation which still contains derogatory terms and stigmatizes persons with disabilities;

(c) Modify any policies that discriminate against persons with disabilities.

12. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There is no specific legislation protecting against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;

(b) There have been no complaints brought in relation to article 295 bis 1 of the Criminal Code dealing with discrimination on grounds of disability, which may indicate that complaints procedures are not well known to the victims

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Introduce legislation and policy measures to ensure that persons with disabilities effectively enjoy their right to equality and non-discrimination in line with General Comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and its concept of inclusive equality;

(b) Raise awareness among public and private actors, in particular lawyers, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, civil servants, employers, educational and health professionals and persons with disabilities themselves, of the right to equality and non-discrimination, including multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, the provision of reasonable accommodation and provide the relevant training;

(c) Raise awareness among persons with disabilities, public officials and service providers on available legal remedies and increase efforts to foster environments that enable persons with disabilities to claim their rights.

Bulgaria (2018)

15. The Committee notes with concern that under the current legislation, denial of reasonable accommodation is not explicitly recognized as an act of prohibited discrimination in all areas. It is also concerned about the lack of enforceability of the decisions issued by the Equality and Human Rights Commission on equality and non-discrimination, and about the insufficient implementation of provisions of legislation on multiple and intersectional discrimination as an aggravated form of discrimination. It is further concerned about barriers faced by persons with disabilities to access remedies in cases of discrimination.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's General comment No. 6 (2018) on Equality and non-discrimination:

(a) Amend its legislation and explicitly prohibit denial of reasonable accommodation as an act of disability-based discrimination in all spheres of life;

(b) Repeal provisions that discriminate persons with disabilities in legislation;

(c) Enhance the enforceability of decisions on disability-based discrimination, including decisions of multiple and intersectional discrimination, which persons with disabilities may face;

(d) Ensure that persons with disabilities, including persons under guardianship can access remedies available in cases of disability-based discrimination, and strengthen the capacity of the Equality Body to exercise its mandate concerning procedures for protection of persons with disabilities against discrimination.

Malta (2018)

7. The Committee notes with concern that the Equal Opportunities (Persons with Disability) Act refers to multiple discrimination, but does not, however, protect persons with disabilities from intersectional discrimination in its article 3A (1). It is also concerned that the institutions responsible for the monitoring of disability-based discrimination, including the Commission for the Rights of Persons with Disability, lack the human and CRPD/C/MLT/CO/1 3 financial resources to address complaints relating to discrimination in a timely manner and that legal aid is not provided to victims. While noting an increase in the number of complaints, the Committee remains concerned that the limited number of complaints by persons with disabilities, as reported by the State party, may indicate that such persons are not aware of the complaint procedures in place and of their rights, and that they may lack the necessary support to seek redress.

8. With reference to its general comment No. 5 (2017) on living independently and being included in the community and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, while reviewing its legislation to bring it into line with the Convention:

- (a) Amend article 3A (4) of the Equal Opportunity (Persons with Disability) Act to protect persons with disabilities against intersectional discrimination;
- (b) Ensure the provision of adequate human, technical and financial resources to the Commission for the Rights of Persons with Disability, so that it can address disability-based discrimination complaints in a timely and cost-effective manner;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities are provided with accessible information on the mechanisms and procedures for lodging complaints and seeking remedies.

Northern Macedonia (2018)

7. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Article 9 of the Constitution of the State Party does not mention disability as a ground of discrimination;
- (b) There is no penalties in national laws, both for public and private institutions or individuals who discriminate against persons based on their disability and the lack of effective legal remedies against discrimination;
- (c) Training on non-discrimination and reasonable accommodation are not regularly imparted to public and private actors.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Revise all legislation to incorporate all forms of discrimination on grounds of disability, including multiple and intersecting discrimination;
- (b) Establish measures to provide redress, including compensation, for persons who have faced discrimination on the basis of disability, and sanction perpetrators;
- (c) Regularly train public and private actors on non-discrimination and reasonable accommodation of persons with disabilities, focusing on the human rights-based approach to disability instead of the traditional medical and charity approach.

9. The Committee is concerned that although the State Party instituted a National Coordinative Body for Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities (NCOPDs) to serve as a bridge between government and organisations of persons with disabilities, its mandate and structures are not in line with the Convention.

10. The Committee urges the State Party to strengthen the effectiveness of the National Coordinative Body for Equal Rights of Persons with disabilities and ensure that its mandate and structures are in line with CRPD provisions.

11. The Committee is concerned that the National Strategy on Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities 2010-2018 was not fully implemented, particularly in the field of support services that are necessary to ensure independent living of persons with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that the new National Strategy on Equal Rights of Persons with Disabilities provide adequate resources for its implementation, particularly regarding the support services for independent living of persons with disabilities.

Philippines (2018)

10. The Committee observes with concern that:

- (a) Provisions in the Magna Carta of Persons with Disabilities of 1992 (RA 7277) and its subsequent amendments in 2007 and 2016 only address disability based discrimination in employment, transportation, and use of public accommodations and services;
- (b) The absence of information and measures to address multiple and intersectional discrimination against Indigenous peoples and Muslim persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of recognition of reasonable accommodation in several areas of life and the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;

(d) The lack of remedies and complaint procedures available in cases of discrimination on the basis of disability, and the absence of information about redress provided, including compensation.

11. The Committee, in line with its General comment No. 6 (2018) equality and non-discrimination, recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognize in its general legislation disability as a ground for discrimination in all areas of life;

(b) Adopt a comprehensive strategy to prevent all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities to prevent intersectional and multiple forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities on the grounds of sex, age, origin, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation and gender identity, impairment, migrant, asylum seeking or refugee status, and social status;

(c) Establish accessible and effective redress mechanisms, including judicial and administrative procedures, and ensure access to justice, on an equal basis with others, for victims of discrimination based on disability. The State party should provide persons with disabilities with accessible information about complaint procedures, and free legal aid to courts;

(d) Recognise in its legislation the concept of reasonable accommodation in line with article 5 (3) and the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;

(e) Take into account article 5 of the Convention in implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in particular multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of gender, age, disability, and leprosy through anti-discrimination legislation and policies to help address stigma against persons with disabilities.

Poland (2018)

7. The Committee is concerned at the absence of:

(a) A clear definition of reasonable accommodation and obligation to provide it to all persons with disabilities in all spheres of life, including the absence of recognition of denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;

(b) Recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination in the anti-discrimination legislation, and prohibition of discrimination against all persons with disabilities on grounds such as sex, age, ethnicity, sexual orientation and gender identity in all areas of life;

(c) Effective mechanisms to prevent and protect persons with disabilities against discrimination and violation of their right to equal treatment;

(d) Awareness of the State and public actors as well of persons with disabilities themselves about the right of persons with disabilities to equality and non-discrimination, including to accessible legal information and legal counselling.

8. Recalling its general comment No. 6 (2017) on Equality and Non-Discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Enact legislation that define and recognize reasonable accommodation across all areas of life, and that sanctions its denial as a form of disability-based discrimination;

(b) Explicitly recognize and prohibit multiple and intersectional discrimination on the grounds of disability, sex, age, ethnicity, gender identity and sexual orientation and any other status in all areas of life within its anti-discrimination legislation, policies and strategies, including the Equality Act;

(c) Establish judicial and quasi-judicial mechanisms to ensure prevention and protection of persons with disabilities against discrimination, including comprehensive redress;

(d) Take effective measures to provide continuous training and awareness-raising for civil servants and non-state actors, including persons with disabilities themselves about the rights of persons with disabilities to equality and non-discrimination, including to accessible legal information and free legal counselling.

South Africa (2018)

8. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Understanding of the concept of reasonable accommodation is limited among public authorities and the society at large and is therefore not adequately applied to persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities as well as persons with albinism;
- (b) Discrimination remains widespread especially against persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism, including persons with disabilities in rural areas;
- (c) The lack of specific legislation protecting persons with disabilities against multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (d) The slow pace in promulgating Chapter 5 of the Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act (PEPUDA), which imposes obligations on all members of society to promote equality, including the private sector;
- (e) The absence of information on the legal remedies and measures of redress and compensation for persons with disabilities subjected to discrimination and statistics on the number of investigations conducted, sanctions imposed and/or remedies provided to victims, particularly women and girls with disabilities.

9. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Take concrete measures to promote awareness about the concept of reasonable accommodation among the general public and the private sector and ensure its application at all levels of government;
- (b) Adopt effective legislation and policies that will explicitly provide protection against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;
- (c) Establish effective mechanisms for persons with disabilities exposed to discrimination, to obtain redress, including compensation, rehabilitation and sanction perpetrators;
- (d) Set up an integrated system to collect data on complaints submitted by persons with disabilities disaggregated by sex, age and disability type across all sectors, including information in accessible formats about the legal remedies and measures of redress and compensation provided for persons with disabilities who have faced disability-based discrimination.

Haiti (2018)

8. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of legislation prohibiting discrimination on grounds of disability, including inter alia the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination and the express recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (b) The lack of legal remedies available to persons with disabilities who have been victims of discrimination on grounds of disability, and the absence of redress and compensation measures;
- (c) The absence of a specific independent mechanism to deal with disability discrimination complaints and the lack of information on the number of complaints investigated and monitored regarding disability-based discrimination.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Explicitly include disability as a grounds in national legislation prohibiting discrimination, incorporate the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on grounds of disability, and recognize intersectional and multiple forms of discrimination based on, inter alia, sex, gender, age, disability, national origin, ethnicity and immigration status, and effective redress and compensation measures;
- (b) Ensure victims of discrimination on grounds of disability can seek redress, remedies and compensation;

(c)Set up an independent mechanism or strengthen the national human rights institution to investigate, evaluate and monitor disability discrimination complaints and collect and update data in this regard.

Nepal (2018)

9.While noting that the Constitution prohibits discrimination of persons with disabilities, the Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities still face multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on other grounds such as caste, and ethnicity, in particular women and girls with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, autistic persons, persons from ethnic, Dalit, Madhesi and Muslim communities.

10.The Committee recommends that the State party implement existing anti-discrimination legislation, policies and programmes in order to prevent multiple and intersectional discrimination targeting disadvantaged groups including, autistic persons, ethnic, Dalit, Madhesi and Muslim communities. The Committee also recommends that the State party establish accessible and effective mechanisms for victims of discrimination to seek redress and commensurate compensation.

Oman (2018)

11.The Committee is concerned that:

(a)Discrimination based on disability and denial of reasonable accommodation are not explicitly prohibited in the Basic Law of the State nor in the Law for the Care and Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons Act of 2008;

(b)The concept of reasonable accommodation is not comprehensively defined in national legislation nor is it well understood by employers and service providers, resulting in failure to ensure the enjoyment of rights by persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others;

(c)There is a lack of specific legislation concerning protection against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination.

12.The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Amend its legislation to explicitly refer to discrimination in Article 17 of the Basic Law of the State, the Law for the Care and Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons of 2008, and in all relevant national legislation to prohibit and sanction discrimination based on disability;

(b)Recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as prohibited ground of discrimination against persons with disabilities in all areas and, adopt measures, including compensation and redress, for persons with disabilities who have faced discrimination on the basis of disability, including migrant workers;

(c)Raise awareness and provide training, in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, on the concept of reasonable accommodation and non-discrimination to public and private actors, in particular lawyers, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, civil servants, employers, educational and health professionals and persons with disabilities;

(d)Adopt measures in national legislation to protect persons with disabilities, against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, particularly women and girls with disabilities and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and provide effective sanctions against perpetrators.

Russian Federation (2018)

13. The Committee notes with concern that under the current legislation denial of reasonable accommodation is not explicitly recognized as an act of prohibited discrimination in all areas. It is further concerned about the low amount of fines prescribed for in Code of Administrative Offences in articles 5.62, 5.42, 9.13, 9.14 and 11.24 which may not secure efficiently adequate protection of rights of persons with disabilities on an equal basis.

14. The Committee recommends that the State Party amend its legislation and explicitly prohibit denial of reasonable accommodation as prohibited ground of discrimination in all spheres of life in line with article 5 of the Convention. It further recommends that the State Party amend its Code of Administrative Offences with the view to increase the amount of fines prescribed for in articles 5.62, 5.42, 9.13, 9.14 and 11.24 of the Code. It also recommends the State party to be guided by the Convention in the implementation of target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Seychelles (2018)

6. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of public policies and measures focusing on and prioritizing equality, and the protection of persons with disabilities against all forms of discrimination, and the lack of recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (b) The lack of capacity, coordination and measurable impact of focal points designed for combating discrimination, and the absence of effective affirmative actions in this regard;
- (c) Multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including Roma, Sinti and persons with disabilities of other ethnic groups, and the lack of information about discrimination against LGBTI persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enact legislation that explicitly recognises and sanctions the denial of reasonable accommodation, across all areas of life, as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (b) Strengthen the capacity and role of the focal points designed for combating discrimination, including discrimination against persons with disabilities, and provide them with adequate resources and capacity to effectively respond to cases of disability-based discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation and multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (c) Explicitly incorporate in its anti-discrimination legislation, policies and strategies, the recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of sex, gender, age, disability, migrant, asylum seeking, refugee, ethnic background, sexual orientation and any other status. The Committee also recommends that the State party provides for judicial and quasi-judicial remedies in cases of discrimination from public and/or private actors, disseminate information among persons with disabilities about such remedies, provide redress and adequate compensation, and establish sanctions for perpetrators;
- (d) Take into account article 5 of the Convention in implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Slovenia (2018)

6. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of public policies and measures focusing on and prioritizing equality, and the protection of persons with disabilities against all forms of discrimination, and the lack of recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (b) The lack of capacity, coordination and measurable impact of focal points designed for combating discrimination, and the absence of effective affirmative actions in this regard;
- (c) Multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, including Roma, Sinti and persons with disabilities of other ethnic groups, and the lack of information about discrimination against LGBTI persons with disabilities.

7. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enact legislation that explicitly recognises and sanctions the denial of reasonable accommodation, across all areas of life, as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (b) Strengthen the capacity and role of the focal points designed for combating discrimination, including discrimination against persons with disabilities, and provide them with adequate resources and capacity to effectively respond to cases of disability-based discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation and multiple and intersectional discrimination;

(c) Explicitly incorporate in its anti-discrimination legislation, policies and strategies, the recognition of multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of sex, gender, age, disability, migrant, asylum seeking, refugee, ethnic background, sexual orientation and any other status. The Committee also recommends that the State party provides for judicial and quasi-judicial remedies in cases of discrimination from public and/or private actors, disseminate information among persons with disabilities about such remedies, provide redress and adequate compensation, and establish sanctions for perpetrators;

(d) Take into account article 5 of the Convention in implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Sudan (2018)

7. The Committee is concerned that the Interim Constitution of 2005 and the National Persons with Disabilities Act of 2017 do not explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability and that denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a prohibited ground of discrimination.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party review article 3 of the National Persons with Disabilities Act of 2017 to explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability and to ensure that deniable reasonable accommodation is recognized as a form of disability-based discrimination. It further recommends that the State party include these provisions in the forthcoming draft Constitution, as to provide the highest legal protection against disability-based discrimination and multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination faced by persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee is concerned about the absence of penalties in national laws, both for public and private institutions or individuals who discriminate against persons based on their disability and the lack of effective legal remedies against discrimination.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to strengthen the effectiveness of the National Commission on Human Rights and the Prosecutor's office to provide redress, including compensation, for persons who have faced discrimination on the basis of disability, and sanction perpetrators.

11. The Committee is concerned that training on non-discrimination and reasonable accommodation are not regularly imparted to public and private actors.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party regularly train public and private actors on non-discrimination and reasonable accommodation of persons with disabilities, focusing on the human rights-based approach to disability instead of the traditional medical and charity approach.

Latvia (2017)

8. The Committee is concerned that the Law on Disability is narrow in its scope and purpose, lacks an explicit prohibition of discrimination on the basis of all types of disability, and does not recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination. The Committee regrets the absence of effective complaint mechanisms for disability-based discrimination and the lack of disaggregated data collected on cases of disability-based discrimination and their resolution.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review its legislation to incorporate a definition of discrimination that explicitly addresses all forms of discrimination on the basis of disability, including intellectual and psychosocial disability, across all sectors and areas of life and that recognizes the denial of reasonable accommodation, and multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;

(b) Establish an effective mechanism to monitor all aspects of compliance with anti-discrimination legislation, including by providing accessible methods for persons with disabilities to seek legal remedies and by ensuring sanctions for the perpetrators of discrimination;

(c) Reinforce the provision of training developed in consultation with, and that involve the participation of, disabled persons' organizations on the non-discrimination of persons with disabilities and the duties concerning the provision of reasonable accommodation to public and private actors, in particular members of the legal profession and the judiciary, law enforcement officers, civil servants, employers, the State Labour Inspectorate, educational and health professionals, and persons with disabilities themselves;

(d) Collect and analyse disaggregated data on cases of disability-based discrimination and publish information on their resolution, including details on the sanctions for perpetrators and remedies for victims;

(e) Take into account article 5 of the Convention, while implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Luxembourg (2017)

10. The Committee is concerned that national legislation lacks a definition of reasonable accommodation in fields other than employment and education. It is also concerned that, apart from the education field, the law does not include an explicit recognition that the denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes disability-based discrimination. The Committee is concerned that other fields, such as employment and accessibility to information and communications technology, lack the enforceable legal provisions to sanction the denial of reasonable accommodation or, alternatively, the enforcement of legal provisions depends on the goodwill of officials and available resources.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite the adoption of a definition of reasonable accommodation aligned with the Convention and enact legislation that explicitly recognizes and sanctions the denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination across all areas of life, including within the public and private sectors. It also recommends that the State party set up appropriate monitoring mechanisms to ensure compliance with legislative and other policy measures relating to the denial of reasonable accommodation, including an effective complaint mechanism and appropriate remedies in the event of non-compliance.

12. The Committee notes with concern that the institutions responsible for the monitoring of discrimination, including the Consultative Council of Human Rights and the Centre for Equal Treatment, lack the requisite legal jurisdiction to deal with complaints relating to discrimination, particularly multiple discrimination or discrimination in the private sector, or the power to remedy complaints. It is also concerned by the insufficient resources to carry out their mandates, including effective sanctions and remedies. It is further concerned by the absence of cases of discrimination on grounds of disability, which could be partly explained by the lack of awareness by persons with disabilities of existing mechanisms to defend their rights.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account article 5 of the Convention while implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and that it:

(a) Enact appropriate legislation and policies providing the relevant entities with the requisite legal powers to enable them to effectively monitor discrimination, including multiple and intersectional discrimination, and in the private sector;

(b) Ensure sufficient human and financial resources and the necessary powers so that they can remedy complaints of disability-based discrimination in a timely and cost-effective manner;

(c) Ensure persons with disabilities have information on lodging complaints and seeking remedies;

(d) Establish an accurate system of data collection with regard to the number of complaints received and dealt with by the institutions tasked with monitoring discrimination.

Montenegro (2017)

10. The Committee notes with concern that certain anti-discrimination provisions on disability are themselves discriminatory as they apply to discrimination based only on certain types of impairments. It is concerned about:

- (a) The very small number of complaints based on discrimination, which may point to insufficient knowledge among the population, particularly persons with disabilities, about the rights under the Convention and the available measures to complain about discrimination, as well as a lack of trust in the justice system;
- (b) The lack of effective equal protection of persons with disabilities who may be subjected to intersectional discrimination, such as persons with disabilities who are members of different ethnic groups, including Roma, Ashkali and Egyptians, and refugees, asylum seekers and internally displaced persons;
- (c) The continued use of assessments of disability to access certain human rights and of different definitions of disability, including with derogatory terminology;
- (d) The fact that the Prohibition of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities Act does not define reasonable accommodation in accordance with the Convention.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party make the necessary legislative amendments to ensure that all persons with disabilities are equally and fully protected against all forms of discrimination, including intersectional discrimination, in accordance with the Convention. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take awareness-raising measures to encourage persons with disabilities to report discrimination and ensure their access to accessible information on their rights under the Convention and on available measures to submit complaints;
- (b) Train relevant professionals, particularly law enforcement personnel and members of the judiciary, on the Convention and on how to adequately handle complaints of discrimination based on disability;
- (c) Strengthen its efforts to prevent and remedy intersectional discrimination experienced by persons with disabilities who belong to a minority group, particularly children, and ensure that they have equal access to all rights under the Convention;
- (d) Ensure that any assessment procedures are in line with the Convention and do not lead to discriminatory treatment, abolish the use of different definitions for disability and derogatory terminology and apply a human-rights based approach to disability instead;
- (e) Adopt and apply the concept of reasonable accommodation with effective sanctions in order to ensure that the denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination on the ground of disability.

Morocco (2017)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of recognition in the national legislation of denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (b) The lack of specific legislation concerning protection against multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (c) The absence of information on the legal remedies and measures of redress and compensation provided for persons with disabilities who have faced disability-based discrimination.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish in national law the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination;
- (b) Provide for, in national law, explicit protection against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination on the basis of sex, gender, age, disability, national origin, ethnicity and migratory status, and for effective sanctions against perpetrators;

(c) Establish measures, including to provide compensation and redress, for persons with disabilities who have faced discrimination on the basis of disability, and impose sanctions on perpetrators.

Panama (2017)

14. The Committee is concerned that, although Act No. 42 of 1999 recognizes discrimination on the basis of disability, it does not include the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination against persons with disabilities. It is also concerned at the lack of policies to combat multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities, especially women, indigenous persons and persons of African descent.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that its legislation recognizes the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability in all spheres of activity and provides for appropriate penalties for such discrimination. It further recommends that the State party ensure that its legislation covers multiple and intersectional discrimination.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

12. The Committee is concerned about perceptions in society that stigmatize persons with disabilities as living a life of less value than that of others and about the termination of pregnancy at any stage on the basis of fetal impairment.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party amend its abortion law accordingly. Women's rights to reproductive and sexual autonomy should be respected without legalizing selective abortion on the ground of fetal deficiency.

14. The Committee is concerned that the State party's anti-discrimination legislation does not provide comprehensive and appropriate protection, particularly against multiple and intersectional discrimination, including in access to housing. It is also concerned about the low level of redress in rulings adopted by the judiciary when adjudicating cases of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with Goal 10 and targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals, explicitly incorporate in its national legislation protection from multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of gender, age, race, disability, migrant, refugee and/or other status, and provide appropriate compensation and redress for victims, and sanctions proportional with the severity of the violation.

16. The Committee is concerned that the duty to make reasonable adjustments to the common parts of residential properties in the Equality Act 2010 is not yet in force, and that persons with disabilities living in Northern Ireland are not adequately protected against direct and indirect disability-based discrimination and against discrimination by association.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Bring its anti-discrimination legislation into accordance with the Convention and speed up the process to bring into force all legislative provisions in the Equality Act 2010, including those concerning reasonable accommodation in the housing sector;

(b) Take the necessary measures through the appropriate authorities, once the Northern Ireland government is in place, to ensure that the Northern Ireland Executive reform on disability rights law reflects the recommendations made by the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland in its 2012 Strengthening Protection for Disabled People report to protect persons with disabilities in Northern Ireland from direct and indirect disability-based discrimination and discrimination through association.

Armenia (2016)

7. The Committee is concerned about discrimination against persons with disabilities. It also notes with concern that:

(a) Multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination are not prohibited;

- (b) The concept of reasonable accommodation and the denial of such accommodation as a form of discrimination are not included in anti-discrimination laws;
- (c) There is a lack of publicly available information on cases of disability discrimination and their outcomes.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Expedite the adoption of the draft law on anti-discrimination and ensure that it encompasses a definition of disability-based discrimination in the public and private sectors, including multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, particularly gender-based discrimination, and set up mechanisms to impose sanctions for contravening the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Include the concept of reasonable accommodation in anti-discrimination legislation and recognize the denial of such accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (c) Make available information about cases of disability-based discrimination and legal remedies, including on the sanctions imposed on perpetrators and redress for victims, in accessible formats.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2016)

10. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The anti-discrimination legislation not being systematically applied and implemented, and the lack of a clear definition of disability-based discrimination with effective and applicable sanctions in relation to article 2 of the Law on Prohibition of Discrimination in particular;
- (b) Different legal entitlements for persons with disabilities whose impairment is not a consequence of the war, in comparison with those for civilian victims of war and for war veterans with disabilities;
- (c) The ongoing practice of different assessments of the same disability based on the cause and/or origin of the disability;
- (d) The lack of provisions on reasonable accommodation, with sanctions;
- (e) The insufficient information on combating multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and on the usage of notions such as “temporary specific measures” or “special needs” which are not clearly regulated, especially in education and in cases regarding ethnic minorities.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review its legislation to incorporate a definition of disability-based discrimination that clearly includes all forms of discrimination on grounds of disability, including multiple and intersecting discrimination, and allocate financial resources for its effective implementation;
- (b) Develop and apply harmonized criteria, assessment procedures and entitlements for assessing the degree of impairment for all persons with disabilities regardless of the cause of the impairment;
- (c) Adopt and apply the concept of reasonable accommodation, with effective sanctions, in order to ensure that denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination on the ground of disability;
- (d) Introduce effective and appropriate remedies, as well as progressive sanctions for the public and private sectors.

Canada (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The persisting gaps in the exercise and enjoyment of rights by persons with disabilities, such as the rights to education, work and employment and an adequate standard of living, due to, among other things, a lack of affordable housing and access to water and sanitation;
- (b) The intersecting nature of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, indigenous persons with disabilities and migrant persons with disabilities, who face heightened risks of gender-based violence, poverty, marginalization and barriers in access to mental health-care services;

(c) The absence of measures to ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided in all areas of the Convention beyond work and employment.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt cross-sectoral strategies with a view to combating inequality and discrimination faced by persons with disabilities through, inter alia, affirmative action measures that include clear targets and the collection of data on progress achieved disaggregated by age, sex and indigenous background;

(b) Take into account article 5 of the Convention while implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals;

(c) Set up criteria aimed at addressing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination through legislation and public policies, including through affirmative action programmes for women and girls with disabilities, indigenous persons with disabilities and migrant persons with disabilities, and provide effective remedies in cases of such discrimination;

(d) Develop regulations and further guidelines for proactive implementation of the duty to accommodate, including provisions to increase awareness among public and private actors about the duties of and available tools for reasonable accommodation;

(e) Ensure that services for indigenous persons with disabilities in First Nation communities are equitable and appropriate, including health services aimed at preventing suicide among indigenous young persons with disabilities.

Cyprus (2016)

11. The Committee is concerned that national legislation lacks a definition of discrimination that recognizes that denial of reasonable accommodation is a form of disability-based discrimination in all areas of life.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement immediately a definition of discrimination fully aligned with the Convention, explicitly recognizing the denial of reasonable accommodation across all areas of life, including within the public and private sectors as disability-based discrimination.

13. The Committee is concerned about the absence of effective legislation and mechanisms addressing multiple and intersectional discrimination, including against persons with disabilities of ethnic minorities. It is furthermore concerned at the lack of disaggregated data on cases of multiple and intersectional discrimination.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party enact appropriate and enforceable legislation, policies and programmes preventing multiple and intersectional disability-related discrimination, including effective sanctions and remedies, and that it collect and disseminate disaggregated data on such cases. It also recommends that the State party take into account the Sustainable Development Goals, especially target 10.2 and 10.3, while implementing article 5 of the Convention.

15. The Committee is deeply concerned about the precarious situation of refugees and asylum-seeking persons with disabilities in the State party and also notes with concern that the refugee status determination procedures are not accessible. While noting the indication of the State party delegation that refugees with disabilities are entitled to the same disability support schemes and benefits – including wheelchairs, care and information – as Cypriot citizens with disabilities, the Committee notes with concern that equal access to these support schemes and benefits is not available for all refugees and asylum seekers. The Committee furthermore notes with concern that, in the Refugees Law, refugees with disabilities are referred to as “persons with special needs”, a subcategory of “vulnerable persons”, which constitutes an approach that may hamper the application of a human rights- based approach.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the accessibility of all refugee status determination procedures;

(b) Ensure an adequate standard of living, including access to disability support schemes and allowances in law and in practice for all non-nationals with disabilities residing in the State party on an equal basis with Cypriot citizens;

- (c) Incorporate disability, and a human-rights-based approach to disability, in the Refugees Law and all other relevant refugee and asylum legislation, policies and programmes;
- (d) Ratify the 1954 Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons and the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness and endorse the 2016 Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action.

Honduras (2016)

13. Al Comité le preocupa que la legislación del Estado parte no reconozca la discriminación múltiple e interseccional y no incluya la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación contra las personas con discapacidad (especialmente con discapacidad intelectual y psicosocial, niños y niñas, afrohondureños, mujeres e indígenas), en otros ámbitos además del empleo. Preocupa al Comité que si bien el artículo 321 del Código Penal sanciona la discriminación por razón de discapacidad, no existen mecanismos accesibles para denunciar los casos de discriminación de personas con discapacidad, ni mecanismos de reparación, ni estadísticas de discriminación.

14. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que reconozca en su legislación la discriminación múltiple e interseccional y la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación basada en la discapacidad en todos los ámbitos de participación y que la sancione. Asimismo, le recomienda que incluya mecanismos expeditos para denunciar la discriminación en su legislación antidiscriminación. También le recomienda que adopte medidas que garanticen mecanismos accesibles para denunciar actos de discriminación por parte de las personas con discapacidad y sus mecanismos de reparación.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2016)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a definition of disability-based discrimination, including denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of it;
- (b) Multiple and intersectional discrimination against persons with disabilities in particular persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and discrimination against persons perceived to have a disability, including on the grounds of gender identity and sexual orientation, being forced to undergo medical treatment;
- (c) The lack of information about measures to protect the rights of persons with disabilities belonging to ethnic, linguistic and religious minorities on equal basis with others; and
- (d) The difference in measures taken by the State Welfare Organization and the Foundation of Martyr and Veterans Affairs (FMVA) concerning persons with disabilities and veterans of war.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Introduce in its legislation disability as a ground of discrimination and prohibit direct and indirect discrimination on the basis of disability, intersectional and multiple discrimination, including discrimination by association;
- (b) Define in its legislation the concept of reasonable accommodation, in line with article 2 of the Convention, and the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination;
- (c) Withdraw legislation that restricts rights of persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and tackle discrimination against persons perceived to have a disability due to their gender identity and sexual orientation, by prohibiting forced medical treatment and providing appropriate remedies and redress;
- (d) Adopt public policies to ensure access by persons with disabilities to all rights enshrined in the Convention, in particular members of the religious, linguistic and ethnic minorities;
- (e) Ensure that all persons with disabilities and veterans of war, irrespective of impairment, receive equal protection concerning their rights under the Convention; and
- (f) Take into account article 5 of the Convention while implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the SDGs.

Jordan (2016)

11. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Under the current legislation, denial of reasonable accommodation is not explicitly recognized as an act of prohibited discrimination in all areas;
- (b) The concept of reasonable accommodation is not well understood by employers and service providers, resulting in failure to ensure the enjoyment of rights by persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend its legislation to explicitly prohibit denial of reasonable accommodation as discrimination against persons with disabilities in all areas and ensure sanctions for non-compliance;
- (b) Raise awareness about the duty to provide reasonable accommodation, among, inter alia, employers and service providers.

13. The Committee is concerned about the lack of coordination and efficient monitoring in cases of disability-based discrimination, including the absence of a mechanism tasked with documenting and verifying cases where reasonable accommodation was denied.

11. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Under the current legislation, denial of reasonable accommodation is not explicitly recognized as an act of prohibited discrimination in all areas;
- (b) The concept of reasonable accommodation is not well understood by employers and service providers, resulting in failure to ensure the enjoyment of rights by persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend its legislation to explicitly prohibit denial of reasonable accommodation as discrimination against persons with disabilities in all areas and ensure sanctions for non-compliance;
- (b) Raise awareness about the duty to provide reasonable accommodation, among, inter alia, employers and service providers.

13. The Committee is concerned about the lack of coordination and efficient monitoring in cases of disability-based discrimination, including the absence of a mechanism tasked with documenting and verifying cases where reasonable accommodation was denied.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish the Equal Opportunities Committee, as provided for under the new draft law on the rights of persons with disabilities, to receive complaints on disability-based discrimination, including denial of reasonable accommodation in both the public and private sectors, to enforce sanctions on perpetrators of discrimination and to provide persons exposed to discrimination with remedies;
- (b) Strengthen the National Human Rights Commission and the Higher Council for Disabilities and ensure clear rules regarding complaints filed with these bodies and the Equal Opportunities Committee;
- (c) Build the capacity of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations to encourage their engagement in available legal redress mechanisms.

Republic of Moldova (2016)

10. The Committee is concerned about discrimination against persons with disabilities and by:

- (a) The ineffective implementation of legislation and procedures that address discrimination against persons with disabilities, including the lack of a mechanism to monitor remedies and sanctions for the denial of reasonable accommodation;
- (b) The lack of recognition of multiple and intersecting discrimination in anti-discrimination laws;
- (c) The lack of publicly available information on cases of disability discrimination and their respective outcomes.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen anti-discriminatory legislation and procedures to effectively address disability-based discrimination in the public and private sectors, including legislation and procedures with respect to the recognition of multiple and intersecting discrimination and the right to appeal the denial of reasonable accommodation and other forms of disability- based discrimination, and mechanisms to impose sanctions for contravening the rights of persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party publish information about cases of disability discrimination and their outcomes in accessible formats.

Bolivia (Plurinational State of) (2016)

11. The Committee is concerned about the ineffectiveness of legal remedies, as reflected in the low number of complaints of discrimination on the basis of disability.

12. The Committee recommends the creation and consolidation of a system for the submission of complaints of discrimination on the basis of disability that is effective, simple and accessible, and that provides redress for persons with disabilities who claim to have suffered discrimination, in all departments and in all languages, including Bolivian sign language.

13. The Committee is concerned that denial of reasonable adjustments is not recognized as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability; it is also concerned at the scant efforts made to recognize and eliminate multiple and intersectional discrimination.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party recognize denial of reasonable adjustments as a form of disability-based discrimination and take measures to prevent and eliminate multiple and intersectional discrimination. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 5 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

14. The committee is concerned about discrimination against persons with disabilities, mainly against women and girls. It is also concerned that the denial of reasonable accommodation is not acknowledged as a form of discrimination, and that reasonable accommodation is rarely provided. It is concerned that multiple and intersectional discrimination is not recognized and that the State party has not taken steps to combat it; that few complaints have been filed for denial of reasonable accommodation; and that the complaints filed are not clearly disaggregated by type of disability.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish, within anti-discrimination legislation, the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in all areas of participation;

(b) Establish penalties under the law and remedies for those affected and recognize the multiple and intersectional dimensions of discrimination;

(c) Register the complaints filed for discrimination, disaggregated by sex, ethnicity, age and type of disability, among others;

(d) The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 5 of the Convention in pursuing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

9. The Committee is concerned that the concept of reasonable accommodation enforced in domestic law is only related to employment and not to other areas covered by the Convention. It also notes with concern that the denial of reasonable accommodation is not recognized as a form of discrimination in all areas, including the denial of reasonable accommodation in detention and in education.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a comprehensive definition of reasonable accommodation in the law that applies to all rights. It also recommends that the State party recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation in all areas as amounting to discrimination, as prescribed by article 5, and provide training to the public and private sectors on this obligation.

11. The Committee is concerned that there are no effective complaint mechanisms or remedies for disability-based discrimination and that multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination are neither recognized nor sanctioned in law and in practice.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party provide legal protection against disability-based discrimination, multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination faced by persons with disabilities and establish effective legal remedies. It also recommends the provision of training and awareness-raising for public officers, the judiciary and organizations of persons with disabilities on how to bring complaints and access justice. It further recommends that the State party take into account article 5 of the Convention while implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Guatemala (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, especially persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, women, children and indigenous peoples, are regularly subjected to multiple forms of discrimination and that their human rights are limited or restricted by the law. It is also concerned that the legislation of the State party does not recognize multiple, intersectional discrimination or the denial of reasonable accommodation as aggravated forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party review all of its legislation and policies on equality and non-discrimination with a view to ensuring the full enjoyment by persons with disabilities of all human rights on an equal basis with others and that it recognize multiple, intersectional discrimination and the denial of reasonable accommodation as aggravated forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities in its legislation and policies.

17. The Committee is concerned by the limited number of complaints, records and decisions concerning cases of discrimination on the basis of disability and by the failure to inform persons with disabilities of the legal remedies available to combat discrimination.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate resources to the Office of the Human Rights Advocate to ensure that cases of discrimination against persons with disabilities are recorded and ruled upon, as well as to distribute information widely in an accessible form to all persons with disabilities regarding the legal remedies available to combat discrimination, particularly in institutions that provide care for persons with disabilities, in rural areas and remote communities. The Committee also encourages the State party to conduct campaigns to fight discrimination against persons with disabilities, targeting the legal profession, including officials of the judiciary and lawyers. Lastly, the Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 5 of the Convention in its implementation of targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

9. The Committee is concerned that national legislation lacks a definition of reasonable accommodation and does not include an explicit recognition that the denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes disability-based discrimination.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately adopt a definition of reasonable accommodation aligned with the Convention and enact legislation that explicitly recognizes the denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination across all areas of life, including within public and private sectors.

11. The Committee is concerned about the absence of legislation and mechanisms with a mandate that addresses multiple discrimination, including effective sanctions and remedies.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party enact appropriate legislation and policies designating enforcement mechanisms to address multiple and intersectional discrimination, including effective sanctions and remedies, and that it provide training to all departments and ensure persons with disabilities have information on lodging complaints and seeking remedies. It also recommends that the State party take into account article 5 of the Convention while implementing targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

11. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the national legislation makes no reference to the denial of reasonable accommodation and discrimination by association as forms of disability-based discrimination;

(b) That training opportunities developed in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities on the concept of reasonable accommodation and non-discrimination of persons with disabilities are not available to public and private actors and, in particular that such opportunities are not available to members of the legal profession and the judiciary, law enforcement officers, civil servants, employers, educational and health professionals, and persons with disabilities themselves;

(c) About the lack of specific legislation concerning protection against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Explicitly define in national law that denial of reasonable accommodation and discrimination by association are forms of disability-based discrimination;

(b) Provide training opportunities developed in consultation with and with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities on the concept of reasonable accommodation and non-discrimination of persons with disabilities to public and private actors, in particular members of the legal profession and the judiciary, law enforcement officers, civil servants, employers, educational and health professionals, and persons with disabilities themselves;

(c) Incorporate into national law a provision explicitly guaranteeing protection against multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including discrimination on the basis of gender, age, disability and migrant status, and ensure that such a provision is accompanied by greater sanctions for perpetrators and higher levels of compensation and redress for victims;

(d) Be guided by article 5 of the Convention in the implementation of targets 10.2 and 10.3 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

13. Al Comité le preocupa que la legislación del Estado parte no incluya la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación contra las personas con discapacidad en otros ámbitos además del empleo. También le preocupa la ausencia de políticas que combatan la discriminación múltiple e interseccional. Preocupa al Comité que no existan mecanismos accesibles para denunciar los casos de discriminación por motivo de discapacidad, ni mecanismos de reparación.

14. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que reconozca en su legislación la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación por motivo de discapacidad en todos los ámbitos de participación y que la sancione. Asimismo le recomienda que incluya las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación en su legislación antidiscriminación. También le recomienda que adopte medidas que garanticen métodos accesibles para la denuncia de actos de discriminación por motivo de discapacidad, así como mecanismos de reparación.

Chile (2016)

11. Al Comité le preocupa que la definición de ajuste razonable no se adapte al artículo 2 de la Convención y que la legislación del Estado parte no incluya la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación contra las personas con discapacidad en otros ámbitos además del empleo. También le preocupa la ausencia de políticas que combatan la discriminación múltiple e interseccional.

12. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que revise la definición de ajuste razonable y reconozca en su legislación la denegación de ajustes razonables como forma de discriminación basada en la discapacidad en todas las esferas de la vida. Asimismo le recomienda que incluya las formas múltiples e interseccionales en su legislación contra la discriminación, proporcione remedios adecuados e imponga sanciones en caso de violación.

Lithuania (2016)

13. The Committee is deeply concerned that the State party does not consistently apply the concept of reasonable accommodation in relation to the principle of non-discrimination.

14. With reference to target 10.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take all the legislative, juridical and administrative measures necessary to:

(a) Promote, ensure and monitor the provision of reasonable accommodation for persons with disabilities across all public and private sectors;

(b) Recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability.

Portugal (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned that State party's legislation does not include an obligation to provide reasonable accommodations to persons with disabilities in the exercise of all their rights.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party explicitly sets out in its legislation the obligation to provide reasonable accommodations to persons with disabilities in all areas covered by the Convention.

15. The Committee is concerned about the lack of efficiency of legal remedies provided to persons with disabilities in the framework of responsibilities granted to the National Institute for Rehabilitation to assess non-compliance with disability policies, since claims and complaints lodged by persons with disabilities often remain unresolved and/or without sanction.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party review its legislation and policies in order to provide efficient legal remedies to persons with disabilities in cases of discrimination.

Serbia (2016)

9. The Committee is concerned that anti-discrimination legislation is not systematically applied, that legislation lacks clear definition of disability-based discrimination and does not address all forms of discrimination. It is further concerned that neither the concept of reasonable accommodation nor recognition that the denial of such accommodation is a form of discrimination are explicitly included in anti-discrimination laws. The Committee also expresses its concern that little information has been provided on sanctions available for contravening the rights of persons with disabilities.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party review its legislative framework to incorporate a definition of disability-based discrimination that explicitly deals with all forms of discrimination, incorporate the concept of reasonable accommodation and ensure that the relevant laws and regulations define the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on grounds of disability. The Committee also recommends that the State party introduce effective and proportional remedies, including dissuasive penalties.

Slovakia (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned that legislation that prohibits disability-based discrimination has not been extended beyond the employment sector.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party enact disability-based anti-discrimination legislation in all sectors, and provide training and guidance for the public and private sectors.

15. The Committee is concerned that reasonable accommodation has been misinterpreted as a temporary special measure and that there is a lack of an explicit definition of reasonable accommodation in legislation. The Committee is concerned that the denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination is not recognized in law.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party amend section 2a (1) of the Anti-Discrimination Act to include denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination; and to introduce specific provisions in relation to sanctions for non-compliance.

17. The Committee is concerned that the law does not recognize multiple and intersectional discrimination, especially against women and girls with disabilities and members of ethnic minorities with disabilities, especially Roma people.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party amend section 2a (1) of the Anti-Discrimination Act to include intersectional and multiple discrimination as a form of discrimination, and definitions of the term, and adopt legal remedies and sanctions to reflect the aggravated nature of violations arising from multiple and intersectional discrimination.

19. The Committee is concerned about the lack of awareness of the public and private sectors about multiple discrimination and the obligation to provide reasonable accommodation.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party provide the public and private sectors with mandatory training on multiple discrimination and legal obligations to provide reasonable accommodation in all sectors.

Thailand (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned that national laws, including the Persons with Disabilities Empowerment Act and the Gender Equality Act permit discrimination in specific cases; that denial of reasonable accommodation is not considered discrimination; and that the Sub-Committee on Elimination of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities does not have the authority and resources necessary to appropriately address complaints of discrimination on grounds of disability by persons seeking remedies.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party amend legislation to prohibit discrimination against persons with disabilities without exceptions, and to include a definition of reasonable accommodation, in conformity with the Convention; and take all the measures necessary, including upgrading the Sub-Committee on Elimination of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities to a Committee, to ensure that it can effectively and independently address cases of discrimination on the grounds of disability, including intersectional and multiple discrimination.

Uganda (2016)

8. The Committee is concerned about persisting discrimination against persons with disabilities, including in particular persons with albinism, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and on other grounds, such as gender identity and sexual orientation. It is also concerned about insufficient legal remedies to protect them against such discrimination. It is further concerned about the non-recognition of reasonable accommodation in the legislation of the State party and that the work of the Equal Opportunities Commission has not been made known widely among persons with disabilities.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Provide for legal protection against disability-based discrimination and multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination faced by persons with disabilities;
- (b) Incorporate the concept of reasonable accommodation in its legislation as defined in article 2 of the Convention and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination based on disability;
- (c) Make the work of the Equal Opportunities Commission widely known among persons with disabilities.

Brazil (2015)

12. The Committee is concerned at the lack of measures to address discrimination against indigenous and Afro-descendant persons with disabilities. In particular, it is concerned about the isolation of indigenous communities that place persons with disabilities in extreme exclusion conditions.

13. The Committee recommends the State party to implement legislation, inter-sectorial policies and programmes to address the multiple forms of discrimination against indigenous and Afro-descendant persons with disabilities, in particular, to prevent persons with disabilities living in isolated indigenous communities or remote areas from being excluded.

European Union (2015)

18. The Committee is concerned that Directives 2000/43, 2004/113 and 2006/54 failed to explicitly prohibit discrimination based on disability and prescribe for duty to provide reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities in the areas of social protection, health care, (re)habilitation, education and provision of goods and services, such as housing, transport and insurance.

19. The Committee recommends that the European Union adopt its proposed horizontal Equal Treatment Directive extending protection from discrimination to persons with disabilities, including by the provision of reasonable accommodation, to all areas of competence. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the European Union ensure discrimination in all aspects based on disability is prohibited, including multiple and intersectional discrimination.

EU Institutions compliance with the Convention (as public administrations)

78. The Committee is concerned that not all employees or delegates of the EU who are persons with disabilities, or have family members with disabilities, receive the reasonable accommodation they need to enjoy their rights from the labour and related relationships equally.

79. The Committee recommends that the European Union take necessary measures to ensure that all employees of the European Union who are persons with disabilities, or have family members with disabilities, receive the reasonable accommodation they need to enjoy their rights from the labour and related relationships on an equal basis with others.

Gabon (2015)

12. The Committee is concerned about the absence of:

- (a) An explicit prohibition of disability-based discrimination and the lack of legal remedies and sanctions to uphold the right to non-discrimination by persons with disabilities;
- (b) A dedicated mechanism to deal with cases of discrimination;
- (c) Appropriate labour laws and measures to end discrimination in the workplace;

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enact disability anti-discrimination law and establish legal remedies and sanctions to uphold the prohibition of disability-based discrimination in a cross-cutting way to all rights and areas of life;
- (b) Include in legislation the recognition that the denial of reasonable accommodation is a form of discrimination on the basis of disability;
- (c) Establish a dedicated mechanism to deal with cases of discrimination and foster the use of available legal remedies by persons with disabilities facing discrimination and inequality;
- (d) Reform labour laws and adopt measures to end discrimination in the workplace.

Kenya (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned that mediation and conciliation prevail on claims by persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the absence of information on the definition of reasonable accommodation and that the denial of such accommodation is not considered a form of discrimination.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enforce measures to ensure that cases of discrimination against persons with disabilities are invocable before courts and victims receive appropriate redress; and
- (b) Define in its legislation the principle of reasonable accommodation in all areas in line with article 2 of the Convention and ensure legal recognition of the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

Mauritius (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned that the legislation of the State party, in particular the Equal Opportunities Act still reflect the medical approach of disability. The Committee is also concerned that the concept of reasonable accommodation has yet to be defined and included in the legislation of the State party.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that all its legislation is aligned with the Convention and define the concept of reasonable accommodation in line with article 2 of the Convention and recognizes the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of disability-based discrimination, as well as intersectional discrimination and discrimination by association.

Qatar (2015)

11. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a definition of reasonable accommodation in law and that the denial of such accommodation is not considered a form of discrimination. It is also concerned about the lack of specific legislation on equality and non-discrimination including protection against multiple and intersectional discrimination.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party incorporate an explicit prohibition of disability-based discrimination in its national legislation. It also recommends that the State party incorporate the definition of reasonable accommodation in national law, and apply it in accordance with the Convention in particular through explicit recognition that denial of reasonable accommodation is disability-based discrimination. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide training on the concept of reasonable accommodation and non-discrimination of persons with disabilities to public and private actors, in particular members of the legal profession, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, and persons with disabilities themselves. Further, the Committee recommends the explicit incorporation in national law of protection against multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of gender, age, disability, migrant status, among other grounds, accompanied by higher sanctions for perpetrators and higher compensation and redress for victims.

Ukraine (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned that only few cases related to discrimination on the basis of disability have been considered by courts and no criminal proceedings have been initiated under article 161 of the Criminal Code. The Committee is also concerned that the principle of reasonable accommodation is not consistently implemented and the failure to provide it does not carry any sanctions. The Committee is further concerned that multiple and inter-sectoral discriminations are not properly addressed in the State party's laws and policies.

10. The Committee calls upon the State party to strengthen legislation to extend the application of the principle of reasonable accommodation to all areas of life and make the failure to provide it punishable by law. The State party is urged to take all necessary measures, including training of the judiciary and capacity- building of persons with disabilities and their organizations, to foster the use of available legal remedies by persons with disabilities facing the discrimination and inequality. It further recommends that the State party establish mechanisms in its legislation and include measures in its policies to prevent and protect from multiple and inter-sectoral forms of discrimination.

Cook Islands (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned that the Disability Act does not provide for reasonable accommodation nor prohibits its denial as disability-based discrimination. Furthermore the Committee is concerned that State party does not legally provide for provision of reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities in enjoyment of their different fundamental rights. Neither does it provide a definition nor guidance on what constitutes disproportionate and undue burden. The Committee is further concerned that there is a lack of provision with regard to other forms of discrimination, including intersectional discrimination, for example, the Employment Relations Act 2012 does not recognize discrimination across more than one protected group. The Committee also notes that several laws continue to permit disability based discrimination.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Disability Act to ensure the denial of reasonable accommodation is recognised in law as a form of disability-based discrimination and that it applies explicitly to all rights including fundamental rights;

(b) Amend laws on discrimination, including the Employment Regulations Act 2012, to introduce additional legal and policy measures using a human rights framework to address multiple or intersectional grounds for discrimination, discrimination by association, and discrimination against persons perceived to have a disability;

(c) Repeal discriminatory laws and provisions that deny rights and exclude participation and inclusion on the ground of disability, including the Entry, Residence and Departure Act, the Electoral Act, and laws permitting substituted decision-making, involuntary detention and forced treatment.

Croatia (2015)

7. The Committee is concerned that for the entitlement to social services and benefits, distinction is made between different causes of impairments, such as war or accidents. It is further concerned that exclusion and segregation in education, work or residential living is not regarded as a form of discrimination.

8. The Committee recommends that disability based services and benefits are made available to all persons with disabilities irrespective of the cause of their impairment. It further recommends that the State party takes legislative and policy measures to clarify that disability based exclusion and segregation in education, employment and other fields of social life, is a form of discrimination.

Czech Republic (2015)

9. The Committee notes with concern that under the Anti- discrimination Act duty to provide reasonable accommodation is limited to employment and related labor relations.

10. The Committee calls upon the State party to amend its legislation and extend the prohibition of denial of reasonable accommodation to other areas besides employment and labor relations, in line with provisions of article 5 of the Convention.

11. The Committee is concerned at admitted absence of case law relating to judicial protection from disability-based discrimination.

12. The Committee calls upon the State party to take all necessary measures, including training of the judiciary, strengthening of independent human rights bodies and capacity-building of persons with disabilities and their organizations, to foster the use of available legal remedies by persons with disabilities facing the discrimination and inequality.

Dominican Republic (2015)

8. Although the Criminal Code establishes the offence of discrimination based on disability, the Committee notes with concern that the definition does not cover multiple or intersectional discrimination, to which persons with disabilities are often subject, and that there is no record of sentences handed down for discrimination against persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that denial of reasonable accommodation is not included as a form of discrimination on grounds of disability.

9. The Committee recommends that the State party include multiple and intersectional discrimination in the definition of the offence of discrimination on grounds of disability. It also recommends that it adopt measures, including training, to enable persons with disabilities effectively to pursue the available legal remedies. In addition, it recommends that the State party recognize in law the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination in the exercise of all rights recognized in the Convention.

Germany (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Current legislation does not contain a definition of reasonable accommodation and that the denial of such accommodation is not considered a form of discrimination;
- (b) The understanding of how reasonable accommodation can be implemented is still largely underdeveloped relating to administration, jurisdiction and social services provision;
- (c) There is no fixed schedule for implementing legal requirements at either the federal or Länder level.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop protection against discrimination for persons with disabilities, including intersectional discrimination, as a comprehensive, cross-cutting right in domestic legislation, including at Länder level, and collect relevant data on case law;
- (b) Take steps to ensure that reasonable accommodation provisions are enshrined in law as an immediately enforceable right in all areas of law and policy, with an explicit definition in the law in line with Article 2 of the Convention, and that the denial of reasonable accommodation is recognised and punishable as a form of discrimination.
- (c) Undertake systematic training on reasonable accommodation at federal, Länder and local levels across all sectors and with the private sector.

Mongolia (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned about the fragmentation within the State party's disability-relevant anti-discrimination legislation and the lack of coordination, including with organisations of persons with disabilities and ministries, to ensure the effective implementation of coherent domestic laws as part of a strategy to implement the Convention. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned about the lack of legal recognition of denial of reasonable accommodation as a prohibited ground of discrimination in the State party.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party address discrimination on the grounds of disability as a cross-cutting issue in its legislation followed by the concrete incorporation of the concept of non-discrimination into all legislation concerning persons with disabilities. The State party is further recommended to adopt legislation securing denial of reasonable accommodation as an act of discrimination on the grounds of disability across all legislation. The State party is also recommended to establish an effective monitoring mechanism to deal with all aspects of compliance with this legislation. This should include the possibility for persons with disabilities to seek redress and commensurate compensation on discrimination based on disability. The Committee also recommends the State party to initiate the necessary training for and of public and private actors, including, among others, juridical persons, civil servants and representatives organisations of persons with disabilities on discrimination based on disability and the duty and possibilities to provide reasonable accommodation to persons with disabilities.

Turkmenistan (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned that the legislation of the State party lacks a definition of disability-based discrimination, which explicitly addresses all forms of discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination. It is also concerned about the lack of information and data regarding the implementation of measures taken to eliminate discrimination against persons with disabilities, including legal remedies and measures.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party review its legislation to incorporate a definition of disability-based discrimination, which explicitly addresses all forms of discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the effective implementation of existing measures to eliminate discrimination against persons with disabilities, with clear targets based on comparable disaggregated data, and consider adopting further affirmative action measures and remedies to ensure equal and effective inclusion and protection of persons with disabilities.

Belgium (2014)

11. The Committee takes note of the anti-discrimination law which recognizes the concept of reasonable accommodation. It remains concerned about the situation of foreign persons with disabilities living in Belgium who experience situations of discrimination, and about cases of discrimination by association with a person or child with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party review the remedies provided for by this law to ensure that complainants are able to seek injunctions and can receive damages once their claims for discrimination have been proven in court. It urges the State party to strengthen protection against discrimination, including discrimination by association, through the introduction of positive discrimination measures and awareness-raising and training of public officials at all levels.

Denmark (2014)

14. The Committee notes the establishment of the Government's anti-discrimination unit which has a mandate to monitor and prevent discrimination against persons with disabilities; however, it is concerned that the State party lacks comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation that would provide protection from discrimination on the basis of disability beyond the labour market. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of legal remedies for persons with disabilities whose rights under the Convention have been violated, and the absence of available information thereon.

15. The Committee urges the Governments of Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland to adopt new comprehensive cross-sectoral anti-discrimination legislation that extends protection to beyond the labour market and affirms the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided in all spheres of society, without any exemption; that it ensure effective legal remedies to persons with disabilities, including the possibility of submitting complaints related to discrimination on the basis of disability to the Board of Equal Treatment; and that it promote better awareness of the Convention among rights-holders.

16. The Committee is concerned at the lack of disaggregated data on cases of multiple and intersectional discrimination, and at the inadequate measures for dealing with cases of intersectional discrimination – for example, disability combined with gender or ethnicity – which require more development.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party collect and disseminate disaggregated data on cases of multiple and intersectional discrimination, and that it adopt effective and specific measures to prevent multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including permitting complaints of discrimination on more than one ground, establishing higher levels of compensation for victims, and imposing higher penalties for perpetrators.

Ecuador (2014)

14. The Committee is concerned that Ecuadorian legislation does not contain a definition of reasonable accommodation and that the denial of such accommodation is not considered a form of discrimination. The Committee is also concerned at the absence of institutional mechanisms to sanction discriminatory acts against persons with disabilities and identify and sanction intersecting forms of discrimination and the lack of measures to ensure the non-repetition of such acts.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party include in its domestic legislation the express requirement to make reasonable accommodation where necessary in a particular case and establish that the denial of such accommodation constitutes a form of discrimination on grounds of disability. The Committee recommends the establishment of independent bodies that are competent to deal with complaints and cases filed by persons with disabilities to combat discriminatory acts. Such bodies should have sufficient powers to carry out investigations and impose sanctions on public or private bodies that commit acts of discrimination, including forms of intersectional discrimination.

Mexico (2014)

9. The Committee is concerned at discrimination against persons with disabilities, which is compounded by other factors of social exclusion, such as age, gender, ethnicity and rural isolation. It is also concerned that, in some states, action is still pending on the adoption of laws prohibiting discrimination on grounds of disability and recognizing the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination based on disability.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party establish specific budget lines to meet its targets in respect of equality, as well as specific actions to combat cases of intersectional discrimination based on disability, age, gender, indigenous background and rural isolation, among other factors of exclusion. The Committee also encourages the State party to step up its efforts, by developing strategies for dissemination, awareness-raising and dialogue with local authorities, to ensure that all the states issue laws prohibiting discrimination based on disability and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

11. The Committee is concerned at the low number of complaints and rulings regarding cases of discrimination on grounds of disability, the lack of regulations under the Federal Act on the Prevention and Elimination of Discrimination and the dearth of information on its dissemination in accessible formats, including in different indigenous languages.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate resources to have the Federal Act on the Prevention and Elimination of Discrimination translated into all indigenous languages in accessible formats (including Braille, sign language, easy-read and electronic formats). The Committee encourages the State party to conduct campaigns to fight discrimination against persons with disabilities, targeting the legal profession, including officials of the judiciary and lawyers.

New Zealand (2014)

9. The Committee notes that, in 2012, the New Zealand Court of Appeal affirmed that the policy of not paying some family carers to provide disability support services to adult disabled family members constituted unjustifiable discrimination on the basis of family status. The Committee is concerned that the Public Health and Disability Amendment Act 2013 reversed this court decision by denying carers' pay to some family members. The Committee is also concerned that these provisions also prevent some family members who are carers from making complaints of unlawful discrimination with respect to the Government's family care policy. The Committee notes that the independent monitoring mechanism has recommended reconsideration of this matter.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party reconsider this matter to ensure that all family members who are carers are paid on the same basis as other carers are, and recommends that family members who are carers be entitled to make complaints of unlawful discrimination in respect of the State party's family care policy.

11. The Committee is concerned that the Human Rights Act 1993 does not contain a separate definition of reasonable accommodation. The Committee appreciates that one can infer the concept from provisions of the Act. However, the Committee is concerned about its opaqueness and lack of clarity.

12. The Committee recommends that, in order to clarify the meaning of reasonable accommodation, the State Party give consideration to amending the Human Rights Act 1993 to include a definition of reasonable accommodation, in conformity with the definition of reasonable accommodation in article 2 of the Convention.

13. The Committee notes that a failure to understand the principle of reasonable accommodation is at the centre of many complaints that come to the New Zealand Human Rights Commission. The Committee notes that work has commenced on establishing guidelines on the application of the principle of reasonable accommodation, especially in the area of employment.

14. The Committee recommends that these guidelines be promptly completed in line with provisions of the Convention, and distributed.

Republic of Korea (2014)

11. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective implementation of the 2008 Anti-discrimination against and Remedies for Persons with Disabilities Act. It is particularly concerned that the majority of complaints seeking remedies have not been resolved. The Committee notes that the courts need to exercise the injunctive powers conferred upon them.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party increase the human resources and independence of the National Human Rights Commission of Korea. It also recommends that the cost of lawsuits be waived or reduced for victims of disability discrimination in order to ensure access to remedies through the courts, and that the requirements be lowered for the issuance by the Minister of Justice of a remedial order (set out in article 43 of the Anti-Discrimination against and Remedies for Persons with Disabilities Act). The Committee also encourages the State party to raise awareness among judges on the need to implement effectively the Anti-Discrimination against and Remedies of Persons with Disabilities Act and to exercise the injunctive powers conferred upon them.

Azerbaijan (2014)

12. The Committee is concerned that legislation on equality and non-discrimination in the State party lacks an express prohibition of disability-based discrimination, which presents challenges with regard to compliance with the law by the general public.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party should include in the new draft law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities an express prohibition of disability based discrimination and multiple forms of discrimination experienced by persons with disabilities. The Committee also urges the State party to incorporate the concept of reasonable accommodation into its new draft Law on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and to ensure that this piece of legislation and all other relevant laws clearly affirm the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the grounds of disability.

14. The Committee is concerned at the lack of statistical information on the number of persons with disabilities belonging to national minorities, especially the Lezghin and the Talysh populations, which, according to the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (E/C.12/AZE/CO/3), continue to be the victims of widespread discrimination, particularly in employment, housing, health and education.

15. The Committee recommends the introduction of policies targeted at eliminating discrimination among persons with disabilities pertaining to national minorities, especially the Lezghin and the Talysh populations that recognize that persons with disabilities often suffer from multiple forms of discrimination.

Costa Rica (2014)

11. The Committee regrets that anti-discrimination legislation does not recognize discrimination on the basis of disability and denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination. It is also concerned about the limited progress made in combating multiple discrimination on the basis of, among other grounds, age, gender, ethnicity and residence in a rural area.

12. The Committee urges the State party to take the legislative and administrative measures necessary to prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability, and to explicitly include denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on the basis of disability. The State party should strengthen institutions and mechanisms to protect the rights of persons with disabilities by means of inter-agency coordination and specific measures to combat multiple discrimination.

Sweden (2014)

9. The Committee is concerned that the new bill on discrimination, which classifies the denial of reasonable accommodation as discrimination, exempts organizations employing fewer than 10 employees. It is also concerned that the concept of denial of reasonable accommodation is not considered to be of general application throughout the legal framework of the State party and that authorities from the different levels of government are not bound by this legal obligation.

10. The Committee urges the State party to review the proposed draft bill with a view to ensuring its full harmonization with the provisions of article 5 of the Convention, and to take all appropriate steps to ensure that reasonable accommodation is provided in all spheres of society, in both public and professional contexts, without any exemption, based on the principle of equal opportunities for all. It also urges the State party to adopt a legal definition of reasonable accommodation and incorporate it into all relevant statute laws so that it can be applicable in all areas of government, including judicial and administrative areas.

11. The Committee is concerned that the systems for dealing with cases of intersectional discrimination, for example disability combined with gender or ethnicity, require more development.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party examine the appropriateness of the current structure used to deal with situations of intersectional discrimination.

Australia (2013)

14. The Committee is concerned that the scope of protected rights and grounds of discrimination in the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 is narrower than under the Convention and does not provide the same level of legal protection to all persons with disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends the State party to strengthen anti-discrimination laws to address intersectional discrimination and to guarantee the protection from discrimination on the grounds of disability to explicitly cover all persons with disabilities including children, indigenous people, women and girls, hearing impaired, deaf, and people with psychosocial disabilities.

Austria (2013)

12. The Committee recognises the progress made in Austria in developing anti-discrimination laws at the federal and regional levels, however it notes that with one exception, the only remedy available is financial compensation. The exception is in employment matters, where further training programs and improvements of conditions in employment may be mandated. It appears that systems for dealing with matters of multiple discrimination, where disability is combined with gender or ethnicity, require more development.

13. The Committee recommends that the discrimination laws be strengthened by broadening the available remedies to include other remedies that require a change of behaviour in people who discriminate against persons with disabilities, such as injunctive powers. The Committee recommends that the State party examine the appropriateness of the current structures used to deal with situations of multiple discrimination.

14. While the Committee recognises women's right to reproductive autonomy, the Committee notes that under Austrian law it is legal for a foetus to be aborted up to the onset of birth if serious damage to the health of the foetus can be expected. The Committee is concerned that there appears to be a link between this provision and the fact that according to OECD statistics, births of children with Down's syndrome in Austria fell by 60% between 1995 and 2006. The Committee notes that discussions on this matter are underway.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party abolish any distinction in the period allowed under law within which a pregnancy can be terminated based solely on disability.

El Salvador (2013)

13. The Committee is concerned about the absence of measures prohibiting and punishing all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities and the fact that the law does not recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt legislation prohibiting all forms of discrimination on the grounds of disability, setting out penalties in cases of discrimination and defining the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

15. The Committee notes that there are no affirmative action measures to speed up the de facto equality of persons with disabilities nor any mechanisms for reparation if they suffer discrimination.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to achieve real equality for persons with disabilities and that it establish fast-track legal and administrative remedies to obtain reparation in cases of discrimination.

Paraguay (2013)

13. The Committee acknowledges the measures taken by the State party to promote the human rights of persons with disabilities and prohibit discrimination against them; it is nevertheless concerned at the lack of any specific provision to prevent, eliminate and penalize discrimination against persons with disabilities, and that there is no provision that explicitly defines the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

14. The Committee urges the State party to take the necessary legislative and administrative measures to eliminate discrimination on grounds of disability and adopt legislation prohibiting discrimination; such measures should explicitly refer to the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on grounds of disability.

15. The Committee takes note of the adoption of the Plan on Equality and Non-Discrimination in the Civil Service; it is nevertheless concerned that the Plan does not explicitly cover persons with disabilities and that efforts to ensure its implementation in respect of persons with disabilities are inadequate.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to guarantee the material equality of persons with disabilities in the civil service and promote, alongside the Plan on Equality and Non-Discrimination, a broad policy of equality and non-discrimination in all areas, based on the tenets and principles of the Convention.

Argentina (2012)

11. The Committee notes with concern that neither the concept of reasonable accommodation nor recognition that the denial of such accommodation is a form of discrimination are explicitly included in anti-discrimination laws or in the laws on, among other things, employment, health and education. It also wishes to express its concern at the lack of simplified judicial and administrative remedies that would allow persons with disabilities to report cases of discrimination on grounds of disability. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on measures and actions designed to address the specific situations of persons with disabilities who belong to indigenous peoples and of deaf-blind persons.

12. The Committee urges the State party to incorporate the concept of reasonable accommodation into its anti-discrimination legislation and to ensure that the relevant laws and regulations define the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination on grounds of disability. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to simplify existing judicial and administrative remedies in order to enable persons with disabilities to report acts of discrimination to which they have been subjected. The Committee also recommends that the State party devote special attention to the development of policies and programmes for persons with disabilities who belong to indigenous peoples and for deaf-blind persons with a view to putting an end to the many forms of discrimination to which these persons may be subjected.

China (2012)

11. While commending the legal prohibition of disability-based discrimination in the state party, the Committee is concerned about the lack of a comprehensive definition of discrimination against persons with disabilities. The Committee also worries about the contradictions between many local law regulations and the national law with regard to the prohibition of discrimination. The Committee is concerned that the state party does not consistently apply the concept of reasonable accommodation in relation to the principle of non-discrimination

12. The Committee explicitly encourages the state party to provide a legal definition of discrimination against persons with disabilities and include in such a definition also the prohibition of indirect discrimination. The Committee suggests to include a definition of reasonable accommodation in Chinese law which reflects the CRPD definition covering necessary and appropriate modification and adjustment applicable in a particular case beyond general accessibility. Furthermore, the State party should ensure that the law explicitly recognises the refusal of reasonable accommodation constitutes disability based discrimination.

Hong-Kong

55. The Committee is concerned about the rather passive role adopted by the Equal Opportunities Commission which is responsible for monitoring and executing the Disability Discrimination Ordinance.

56. The Committee recommends that the Equal Opportunities Commission review its role and assume a more proactive part, especially when handling complaint cases.

Macao

88. The Committee is concerned about the existence of de facto inequality in Macao, China,

89. The Committee recommends that the state party continue its efforts to ensure equality for persons with disabilities, so as to ensure the implementation of the spirit of the CRPD.

Hungary (2012)

15. The Committee notes with concern that the State party's legislation, including Act XXVI of 1998 on the Rights and Equal Opportunities of Persons with Disabilities and Act CXXV of 2003 on Equal Treatment and Promotion of Equal Opportunities, fails to state that denial of reasonable accommodation constitutes discrimination.

16. The Committee calls upon the State party to take steps to ensure that its legislation explicitly prescribes that failure to provide reasonable accommodation constitutes a prohibited act of discrimination.

17. The Committee notes with concern that the Act on the protection of the life of the fetus makes "abortive treatment possible for a wider circle than in general for the fetuses deemed to have health damage or some disability" (CRPD/C/HUN/1), thus discriminating on the basis of disability.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party abolish the distinction made in the Act on the protection of the life of the fetus in the period allowed under law within which a pregnancy can be terminated, based solely on disability.

Peru (2012)

12. The Committee is concerned that, albeit the existence of a large number of different ethnic groups in Peru, indigenous and minority persons with disabilities are not considered as being at high risk of suffering multiple discrimination and that no data on their number and situation exists. In this connection, the Committee expresses its concern at the situation of indigenous and minority persons with disabilities, in particular women and children with disabilities that live in rural areas, as well as persons with disabilities of African descent.

13. The Committee urges the State party to improve its data gathering in order to have clear statistics on indigenous and minority persons with disabilities. The Committee recommends that the State party place emphasis on the development of policies and programmes on indigenous and minority persons with disabilities, in particular women and children with disabilities that live in rural areas, as well as persons of African descent, in order to address the multiple forms of discrimination that these persons may suffer.

Spain (2011)

19. The Committee welcomes the regulatory amendments introduced under Act 26/2011 that would abolish the need to have a disability certificate to bring a discrimination claim before a judicial body. However, it regrets the lack of information on cases of discrimination, and it is concerned that persons with disabilities will still be marginalized. The Committee is further concerned by the lack of information on reasonable accommodation. It is also concerned that, in practice, disability affects parents' guardianship or custody of their children and that legal protection against discrimination on the grounds of disability is not enforceable in cases of discrimination due to perceived disability or association with a person with a disability.

20. The Committee urges the State party to expand the protection of discrimination on the grounds of disability to explicitly cover multiple disability, perceived disability and association with a person with a disability, and to ensure the protection from denial of reasonable accommodation, as a form of discrimination, regardless of the level of disability. Moreover, guidance, awareness-raising and training should be given to ensure a better comprehension by all stakeholders, including persons with disabilities, of the concept of reasonable accommodation and prevention of discrimination.

Tunisia (2011)

12. The Committee takes note of Law No. 2005-83 on the advancement and protection of persons with disabilities. However it regrets the lack of clarity on the application of the concept of reasonable accommodation.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party incorporate the definition of reasonable accommodation in national law, and apply it in accordance with article 2 of the Convention, in particular by ensuring that the law explicitly recognizes the denial of reasonable accommodation as disability-based discrimination. The Committee invites the State party to make greater efforts to raise awareness on non-discrimination among members of the legal profession, particularly the judiciary, and persons with disabilities themselves, including through training programmes on the concept of reasonable accommodation. The Committee recommends that the State party act with urgency to include an explicit prohibition of disability-based discrimination in an anti-discrimination law, as well as ensure that disability-based discrimination is prohibited in all laws, particularly those governing elections, labour, education, and health, among others.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 6 CRPD
(Women with disabilities)*

September 2025

Article 6 – Women with disabilities

1. States Parties recognize that women and girls with disabilities are subject to multiple discrimination, and in this regard, shall take measures to ensure the full and equal enjoyment by them of all human rights and fundamental freedoms.
2. States Parties shall take all appropriate measures to ensure the full development, advancement and empowerment of women, for the purpose of guaranteeing them the exercise and enjoyment of the human rights and fundamental freedoms set out in the present Convention.

Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)

Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)

Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Uganda (2016)

Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)
Tunisia (2011)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

9. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Sexual and reproductive health services that are not fully accessible, inclusive, or rights-based for women and girls with disabilities, especially in rural and underserved areas, with insufficient mental health support and information, and no gender-responsive budgeting or tracking of resources benefiting women with disabilities;
- (b) Significant barriers for women and girls with disabilities to inclusive education, employment, social welfare, and leadership opportunities, compounded by underrepresentation in decision-making and lack of disaggregated data on participation;
- (c) Women and girls with disabilities are subjected to violence, including gender-based and sexual violence, coerced marriage, abduction, trafficking, and rape, and there is a lack of adequate investigation, legal prohibition, protective measures, as well as information on measures taken to prevent such violations.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Provide inclusive, rights-based sexual and reproductive healthcare, including mental health support, ensuring availability in rural and underserved areas, and establish gender-responsive budgeting and expenditure-tracking systems with data disaggregated by gender and disability;
- (b) Ensure equal access for women and girls with disabilities to inclusive education, employment, and social welfare, promote their participation in leadership and decision-making roles through targeted measures and outreach, and collect and publish disaggregated participation data;
- (c) Prohibit, prevent, and eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls with disabilities, including gender-based and sexual violence, coerced marriage, abduction, trafficking, and rape; ensure that all cases are promptly and impartially investigated, that perpetrators are prosecuted and punished, and that victims receive protection and redress.

Finland (2025)

10. The Committee is concerned that the Government Equality Program 2024-2027 and other gender policies, including those on gender-based violence:

- (a) Do not mainstream disability, lack an intersectional approach, nor they address the requirements of Roma, Sámi and immigrant women and girls with disabilities only in passing;
- (b) Do not contain effective mechanisms for their implementation, monitoring and accountability.

11. The Committee recommends the State party:

- (a) Mainstream disability and follow an intersectional approach in all legislation and policies on gender equality, gender-based violence and disability, and ensure that they encompass intersectional forms of discrimination faced by Roma, Sámi and immigrant women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) Develop mechanisms for the implementation, monitoring and accountability of policies on women with disabilities;

Kiribati (2025)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The insufficient inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in the design and implementation of gender programs and policies, such as the National Policy on Gender Equality and Women's Development 2019-2022, in all consultation and decision-making processes affecting women, and in the programs and activities of the Ministry of Women, Youth, Sport and Social Affairs;
- (b) The lack of support and resourcing for women and girl with disabilities to be able to participate and engage through their representative organizations in consultations, programs and activities, including through the provision of reasonable accommodation and accessible processes and events.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop strategies and protocols for the inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in the design and implementation of gender programmes and policies, in all consultation and decision-making processes affecting women, and in the programs and activities of the Ministry of Women, Youth, Sport and Social Affairs;

(b) Work in partnership with and provide sufficient resources to women and girls with disabilities through their representative organisations to facilitate participation in consultations, programs and activities, including through the provision of reasonable accommodation and accessible processes and events.

Maldives (2025)

11. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the lack of strategies, policies and programmes, as well as adequate information, including disaggregated data, on the situation of women with disabilities;

(b) At the lack of inclusion of a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies, and of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, which leads to the further marginalization and exclusion from protection of women and girls with disabilities;

(c) That the existing patriarchal norms and attitudinal barriers prevent women and girls with disabilities from participation in public life and access to education, employment, social protection and health, in particular sexual and reproductive health services.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop and adopt strategies, policies and programmes, in particular in the fields of education, employment, health and social protection, that promote their autonomy and full participation in society, and adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women with disabilities in all spheres of life, in particular in all public decision-making processes;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in all gender legislation and policies, in particular the Gender Equality Act (2016) and Gender Equality Action Plan, mainstream a gender perspective in disability legislation, policies and programmes, in close consultation and active involvement of women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations, in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;

(c) Develop and implement awareness-raising campaigns and educational programmes throughout society, including at the family level, with regard to women with disabilities to promote respect for their rights and dignity, combat stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices and ensure their access to social services and health, in particular sexual and reproductive health services and strengthen redress mechanisms to ensure that it is disability inclusive and accessible for women with disabilities.

Canada (2025)

11. The Committee notes with concern that women with disabilities:

(a) Experience disproportionate rates of poverty, barriers to accessible housing, homelessness, and lack of access to financial resources, particularly First Nations, Inuit and Métis women with disabilities, and off-reserve and non-status Indigenous women with disabilities;

(b) Are insufficiently represented in political, advocacy, and leadership positions in public life, private enterprises, and medium and small businesses.

12. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Mainstream gender and disability into all poverty and homelessness laws, policies, and strategies, including the Poverty Reduction Act and the National Housing Strategy, and ensure that they address the requirements of women with disabilities, including women with disabilities and intersecting identities;

(b) Take concrete action to achieve the participation and representation of women with disabilities in decision-making positions in all areas of political and public life, private enterprises, and medium and small businesses, on an equal basis with others.

Dominican Republic (2025)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of laws, policies, programmes and measures to protect the rights of women and girls with disabilities, in particular in cases of gender-based violence, such as the Strategic Plan for a life free from violence for women (2020) that do not have specific provisions for women with disabilities;

(b) The lack of measures to ensure that women and girls with disabilities have autonomous access to protection mechanisms, including temporary shelters and therapies to aid recovery from violence, abuse and exploitation, throughout the territory of the State party;

(c) Women and girls with disabilities not being represented on the Peer Council for Equality and Equal Opportunities.

12. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party, in close consultation with women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Establish or amend laws, policies, programmes and other measures to protect the rights of women and girls with disabilities, with a particular focus on preventing gender-based violence against them;

(b) Ensure that services for women and girls with disabilities who are victims of gender-based violence, including support centres and emergency shelters, are accessible throughout the State party and that the necessary support is provided;

(c) Implement measures to ensure the representation of women and girls with disabilities on all platforms where women's issues are discussed, in particular within the Peer Council for Equality and Equal Opportunities.

European Union (2025)

20. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) EU legislation and policies on gender equality and disability insufficiently protect the rights of women with disabilities, in particular that the EU Gender Equality Strategy for 2020-2025 and the 2021-2030 Strategy on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities lack a focus on the rights of women with disabilities;

(b) The implementation of the Gender Action Plan GAP III at the level of Member States and in EU external action do not systematically consider experiences of multiple and intersectional discrimination;

(c) The views of women and girls with disabilities have not been consistently incorporated in policy development, even when they are consulted;

(d) There is a gap in disaggregated data on the participation of women with disabilities in decision-making positions across the political, economic and social spheres and there is a lack of data collection on inclusion and intersectionality in EU external action.

21. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Mainstream disability and gender across all legislation and policy frameworks and programmes, and expand the scope of the Gender Equality Strategy to include the rights of women with disabilities to work and employment, and the rights of women and girls with disabilities to political participation, an adequate standard of living, health and education;
- (b) Strengthen cooperation between the European Institute for Gender Equality and Member States' national programmes for the advancement of women and girls to effectively address multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, and ensure that all international cooperation is disability- and gender-responsive and that it protects women and girls with disabilities in institutions, belonging to ethnic minorities, and in situation of migration;
- (c) Ensure close consultation and active involvement of women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations in the preparation and implementation of the EU policies and programmes;
- (d) Improve disaggregated data collection on the participation of women and girls with disabilities in the political, economic and social spheres and on inclusion and intersectionality in EU external action in partner countries, and closely consult and actively involve their representative organizations, in the EU and in partner countries, in the development of data collection systems that identify their diverse lived experiences.

Palau (2025)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of adequate information, including disaggregated data, about the situation of women and girls with disabilities, in particular on women with disabilities in economic activity as well as in their representation in decision making at all levels;
- (b) The lack of inclusion of disability perspective in gender related legislation and policies, such as the Family Protection Act (FPA), as well as the lack of a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies, which leads to further marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) That the national legislative framework does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;
- (d) The lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in employment, in public and political life and in decision-making.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct a study on the situation of women and girls with disabilities in the State party to collect gender-disaggregated data and identify the specific situation and needs of women with disabilities in order to develop and adopt strategies, policies and programmes, especially in the fields of education, employment, health and social protection, that promote their autonomy and full participation in society and adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes;
- (b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation, and mainstream a gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, while ensuring consultation with and the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;
- (c) Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;
- (d) Develop and adopt strategies, policies and programmes, as well as awareness-raising campaigns and educational programmes throughout society that promote the autonomy and full participation in society and adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes.

Tuvalu (2025)

11. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in the design and implementation of gender programs and policies, such as the National Gender Equity Policy 2024, the work of the Gender Affairs Division (GAD) and in UN Women partner programs, such as Advancing Gender Justice In the Pacific and the Pacific Partnership to End Violence Against Women and Girls.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that the issues and recommendations pertaining to women and girls with disabilities in the 2018 Tuvalu Study on People with Disability are included in gender policies, programs, the work of the Gender Affairs Division and in partner programs designed for women;

(b) Work in partnership with, and provide sufficient resources to organizations of persons with disabilities, including Fusi Alofa Association to closely consult and actively involve women and girls with disabilities, including those on outer islands in the design, implementation and review of gender policies and programs, including the National Gender Equity Policy 2024, the work of the Gender Affairs Division and in partner programs designed for women and girls.

Viet Nam (2025)

11. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Despite legal frameworks on gender equality, women and girls with disabilities continue to experience multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination in areas such as employment, healthcare, education, and family life;

(b) There is insufficient gender-disaggregated data on the participation of women with disabilities in political, economic, and social decision-making processes, particularly in leadership, employment, and access to public services;

(c) Cultural norms on gender and disabilities discourage discussions on sexual and reproductive health and rights, especially for single women, deterring them from seeking information;

(d) Opportunities for the economic empowerment of women with disabilities remain limited, particularly in terms of entrepreneurship, vocational training, and employment opportunities.

12. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Take targeted measures to address the unique barriers faced by women and girls with disabilities in accessing education, employment, independent living, and other services, ensuring their full participation in all aspects of life on an equal basis with others;

(b) Improve data collection on women and girls with disabilities, with a focus on their participation in leadership, employment, and access to public services, ensuring that gender-disaggregated data feeds into policy and programme development;

(c) Guarantee, through public policies, the promotion of the sexual and reproductive health and rights of women and girls with disabilities, married or not, enabling them to exercise these rights without impediments due to cultural norms;

(d) Develop programmes and policies to support the economic empowerment of women with disabilities, including through entrepreneurship, vocational training, and employment opportunities that are inclusive and accessible.

Belarus (2024)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of mainstreaming of the rights of women with disabilities in the existing national policy and the Action Plan on Gender Equality;
- (b) The lack of representation of women with disabilities in the National Council on Gender Policy;
- (c) The lack of effective legal provisions and practical measures to protect women with disabilities from multiple discrimination and violence.

12. Recalling the Committee's general comment No. 6 on equality and non-discrimination (2018), and the concluding observations adopted by the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women in 2016 (CEDAW/C/BLR/CO/8), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review the current national policies, strategies and action plans on gender equality in close consultation with, and with active involvement of the organizations of women with disabilities to ensure full inclusion of their rights;
- (b) Ensure effective representation of women with disabilities in National Council on Gender Policy;
- (c) Amend the current national legislation, in particular the Civil Code, Criminal Code, Marriage and Family Code, and harmonize them with the Convention and the relevant human rights treaties for the protection of women with disabilities from violence, forced abortion and "forced abandonment" of their children, and ensure equality for women with disabilities on all spheres of life.

Belgium (2024)

12. The Committee notes with concern, that:

- (a) The consideration of women and girls with disabilities and their rights under the Convention in strategies, public policies and plans on disability and gender equality measures is scarce and selective, on the federal level as well as in the regions;
- (b) There is limited information on statistics on the barriers encountered by women and girls with disabilities in the exercise of their rights under the Convention, rendering it impossible to reliably understand the current situation of women and girls with disabilities in state, society and economy and its causes.

13. Recalling its General Comment No. 3 (2016) and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities under the Convention in all public policies, action plans and strategies on all levels of government, including in those concerning persons the rights of persons with disabilities and the rights of women;
- (b) Establish mechanisms to collect and compile statistics on the barriers women and girls with disabilities encounter in the exercise of their rights under the Convention, disaggregated by impairment, race, age, region and other relevant criteria.

Benin (2024)

11. The Committee notes with concern that the gender equality legislation and policies, including Act No. 2021-13 of 20 December 2021 amending and supplementing Act No. 2002-07 of 24 August 2004 on the Personal and Family Code of the Republic of Benin, and Act No. 2011-26 of 9 January 2012 on the prevention and punishment of violence against women and girls, lack measures to address the situation of women and girls with disabilities. The Committee also notes with concern that disability, gender and inclusion focal points have yet to be appointed in all ministries.

12. The Committee recommends that in keeping with its General Comment No. 3 on women and girls, SDGs 5.1 and 5.c, and with the close consultation and active involvement of women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations, the State party:

- (a) Ensure, as soon as possible, that all gender equality legislation and policies incorporate disability and that targets, timeframes and mechanisms for independent monitoring are established;
- (b) Establish disability and gender inclusion focal points in all government ministries and provide them with human, technical and financial resources to enable their work in mainstreaming the rights of women and girls with disabilities in their work;
- (c) Establish binding targets, deadlines and indicators to measure progress in advancing the situation of women and girls with disabilities.

Burkina Faso (2024)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient protection of women with disabilities against gender-based violence, access to justice, education, health, access to basic social services beyond health care comprehensively covering the extra costs that arise from a disability, and economic empowerment of women and girls with disabilities in laws and policies, including laws and policies relating to persons with disabilities which do not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) The insufficient participation of women with disabilities and their representative organizations in decision-making processes in public and political life;
- (c) The insufficiency of disaggregated information and data collection on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, in order to design adequate policy responses.

13. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Undertake an intersectional analysis of the implementation of the Convention with regard to women and girls with disabilities in all policy areas, including education, employment, health and justice, and mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in all legislation and strategies;
- (b) Engage with organizations of women and girls with disabilities and ensure their close consultation and active involvement in all public decision-making processes, and in the development of all policies concerning gender equality and gender-based violence against women and girls, including domestic violence, forced marriages and human trafficking;
- (c) Ensure systematic data collection and periodic studies on the situation of women and girls with disabilities and adopt benchmarks and indicators on progress towards inclusive equality for women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life.

Denmark (2024)

23. The Committee is concerned that the Act on Gender Equality has not been amended to specifically include women and girls with disabilities since the initial report of the State party. It is also concerned about the lack of disaggregated information and data collection on intersectional and multiple forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities.

24. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and its previous recommendation , recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark ensure that the perspective of gender and disability is included in its laws and policies, and in their implementation and evaluation. It also recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark ensure systematic data collection and periodic studies on the situation of women and girls with disabilities.

Ghana (2024)

12. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The Persons with Disabilities Act 715 lack a specific provisions relating to women and girls with disabilities;

- (b) The absence of disaggregated data on women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) Women and girls with disabilities have limited access to equality inclusive education, health and equal employment opportunities, and that social protection programs fail to reach women and girls with disabilities and their families.

13. Recalling General Comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Align its legislation with the Convention and amend all relevant national legislation to address issues faced by women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) Implement measures in close consultation and with the active involvement of women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and with albinism, to collect data in all sectors, including health, education, employment, political participation, access to justice, social protection, violence, migration and internal displacement;
- (c) Ensure that public policies on education, labour and health are disability and gender responsive and include measures for access to information and communications. The Committee also recommends the provision of training for all professionals to give services to women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women and girls with albinism.

Mauritius (2024)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies, and the absence of explicit reference to intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities in the national legislative framework, including in relation to access to health, education and political and public life;
- (b) The lack of representation of women with disabilities on the National Women's Council and the National Women's Entrepreneur Council, among other bodies.

12. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in all gender legislation and strategies based on the human rights model of disability, mainstream a gender perspective in disability policies and programmes and recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure the inclusion and active involvement of women and girls with disabilities in the National Women's Council and the National Women's Entrepreneur Council.

Netherlands (2024)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of laws and policies on gender equality in relation to the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The absence of policies, programs, and measures to protect the rights of women and girls with disabilities, particularly in cases of domestic and sexual violence;
- (c) The absence of government plans to take action aimed at the advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities and the omission to place the position of women and girls with disabilities on the national agenda;
- (d) The lack of explicit inclusion of women with disabilities in policies about gender equality or disability even though they are more likely to fall victim to violence, including sexual violence, than other women and men with disabilities, and the lack of awareness of the intersection of gender and disability at the level of policy makers.

18. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party, in close consultation with women and girls with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Enact specific laws and policies that guarantee gender equality in relation to the rights of persons with disabilities, in order to provide a foundation for women with disabilities to enjoy equal rights across all aspects of society.

(b) Establish policies, programs, and other measures to protect the rights of women and girls with disabilities, with a particular focus on preventing domestic and sexual violence against them.

(c) Ensure that the rights of women with disability are taken into account in all relevant legislative and policy frameworks and placed prominently on government plans and agendas;

(d) Develop policies and programs on gender equality and disability that explicitly address the requirements of women with disabilities, and improve the awareness of the intersection of gender and disabilities at the level of policy makers.

Ukraine (2024)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of support of the State party for women and children with disabilities in conflict-affected areas, including women with and without disabilities who are in charge of the care and education of children with disabilities;

(b) The prevalence of discrimination against women, particularly women with disabilities that are internally displaced or seeking international protection, in charge of supporting persons with disabilities and/or that have acquired a disability during the conflict, in accessing social entitlements, housing, humanitarian aid, and other entitlements.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Implement urgent measures so that mothers and children with disabilities receive State support to protect their rights, including for the care and education of children with disabilities;

(b) Ensure the implementation of the 2022 recommendations from CEDAW (CEDAW/C/UKR/CO/9) on the adoption of comprehensive policies and programs to protect the rights of women and girls with disabilities, in particular those facing intersecting forms of discrimination.

Azerbaijan (2024)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Gender-based violence and access to services, education and economic empowerment for women and girls with disabilities are neither sufficiently addressed in the laws and policies relating to equality such as the National Activity Plan on the Enhancement of the Efficiency of Human Rights nor in the laws and policies relating to persons with disabilities such as the new law "On the Rights of Persons with Disabilities";

(b) Laws and policies relating to gender equality, such as the National Action Plan on the Prevention and Combating Domestic Violence in Azerbaijan for 2019-2023, the Law N-150-IIIQ on Gender Equality passed in 2006 and the Law on the Prevention of Domestic Violence passed in 2010, have not sufficiently addressed issues affecting women and girls with disabilities;

14. Recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into disability policies and programmes and into gender equality legislation and policies, in particular the National Activity Plan on the Enhancement of the Efficiency of Human Rights, the Law "On the Rights of Persons with Disabilities" and policies to combat gender-based violence, while ensuring consultation with and the active involvement of women and girls with disabilities in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;

(b) Strengthen gender-responsive budget allocations for the design, implementation and evaluation of programmes and measures to empower and ensure the inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life, combat gender-based stereotypes and promote their involvement and equal participation in all public decision-making processes.

Bahrain (2024)¹

12. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of information and disaggregated data on women with disabilities showing their vulnerability to abuse and violence.

(b) The lack of measures in national policies and legislation, including the Law on Protection from Domestic Violence, to ensure that women with disabilities are protected from all forms of violence and have access to complaint and protection mechanisms.

(c) Women with disabilities in residential institutions and day-care centres are deprived of their fundamental freedoms and rights, including their right to independent living, education and employment.

(d) The lack of participation of women with disabilities in decision-making processes and their lack of representation in national councils and institutions, including institutions concerned with women's and family issues and rights.

13. Recalling the recommendation of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/BHR/CO/4, para. 27), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Provide disaggregated information on the situation of women with disabilities in the areas of prevention and protection from violence, access to sexual and reproductive health and equal access to employment opportunities.

(b) Include effective measures in national policies and legislation to ensure that women with disabilities are protected from all forms of violence and have access to complaint mechanisms.

(c) Review Law No. 17 of 2015 on Protection from Domestic Violence and include provisions to ensure that girls and women with disabilities are fully protected from violence and have access to protection and rehabilitation programmes for victims of violence.

(d) Include women with disabilities in decision-making processes in all matters related to their rights and issues, and represent them in national bodies and councils, including those specific to women.

Costa Rica (2024)

11. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) Las insuficientes medidas legales y políticas para promover y proteger los derechos de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, de manera explícita, particularmente en la Política Nacional para la Igualdad efectiva entre Mujeres y Hombres 2018-2030 (PIEG);

b) Que los programas de formación y capacitación política del Instituto Nacional de las Mujeres (INAMU) no prioricen a las mujeres con discapacidad;

c) La inexistencia de un protocolo para la protección de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad contra la explotación, la violencia y el abuso, derivado de la violencia de género;

d) La falta de medidas para asegurar el acceso, de manera autónoma, de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad a los mecanismos de protección, incluyendo albergues temporales y terapias de recuperación en casos de violencia, abuso y explotación en todo el territorio del Estado parte;

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

e) La baja representatividad de las mujeres con discapacidad en el Instituto Nacional de las Mujeres (INAMU) y la falta de programas de empoderamiento para las mujeres con discapacidad en el empleo, la vida pública y política, la toma de decisiones y el poder judicial;
f) La falta de datos sobre violencia contra mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, debido a la inexistencia de información desagregada del sistema de recolección de datos estadísticos.

12. Recordando su observación general núm. 3 (2016), sobre las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, así como las metas 5.1, 5.2 y 5.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Incrementar esfuerzos para incorporar la perspectiva de discapacidad en las leyes y políticas de igualdad de género, de manera explícita, e incorporar una perspectiva de género en las leyes y políticas de discapacidad, en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, en particular las organizaciones de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, así como agregar la perspectiva de género y de discapacidad en la estrategia nacional para la inclusión financiera;
- b) Incrementar las medidas de apoyo para que las mujeres con discapacidad se incluyan en la vida política y pública del Estado e incluirlas como grupo objetivo en los programas de capacitación y formación del Instituto Nacional de las Mujeres (INAMU);
- c) Acelerar la elaboración e implementación del protocolo para la protección de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad contra la explotación, la violencia y el abuso;
- d) Garantizar que los servicios, incluidos centros de apoyo y refugios de emergencia, para mujeres y niñas con discapacidad que son víctimas de violencia de género sean accesibles en todo el territorio del Estado parte y que se brinde el apoyo necesario;
- e) Adopte medidas destinadas a lograr el empoderamiento de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad y garantizar que estén representadas en la vida política en funciones decisorias, entre otros en el Instituto Nacional para las Mujeres y otros órganos gubernamentales, así como en el Parlamento y el poder judicial;
- f) Reforzar la labor de recopilación de datos exhaustivos y desglosados sobre violencia contra mujeres y niñas con discapacidad.

Kazakhstan (2024)

13. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of measures relating to women and girls with disabilities in legislation and public policies for the promotion of gender equality and womens' rights, including in the legislation to combat domestic violence and the Concept of Family and Gender Policy until 2030;
- (b) The absence of information about the situation of women and girls with disabilities facing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and the lack of legal provisions expressly protecting them from discrimination on the basis of gender and its intersection with other grounds for discrimination.

14. Recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct a comprehensive review of legislation and public policies to mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in all gender equality legislation and to incorporate a gender perspective and intersectionality into public policies, including gender equality and disability policies and programmes;
- (b) Collect information about the situation of women and girls with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional discrimination, recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, including against women and girls with disabilities and take measures to prevent and protect women and girls with disabilities from multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination.

Nicaragua (2024)

10. A pesar de que el Estado parte ha sido reconocido por Organismos Internacionales por el avance en la reducción de la desigualdad de género, que cuenten con el Ministerio de la Mujer y con la “Ley Integral contra la Violencia hacia la Mujer” (Ley 779), el Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) Las pocas medidas transversales que promuevan y protejan los derechos de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad;
- b) La ausencia de legislación que reconozca la discriminación indirecta por razón de sexo y género, así como de medidas para prevenir y eliminar la discriminación múltiple y la violencia en contra de mujeres con discapacidad, en particular, aquélla que experimentan las mujeres con discapacidad intelectual, psicosocial o múltiple, las mujeres indígenas con discapacidad y las que viven en áreas rurales;
- c) La falta de información detallada sobre las políticas y programas destinados a promover la igualdad entre hombres y mujeres, así como la incertidumbre mencionada en el párrafo 37 del 3er informe sobre la participación de las mujeres con discapacidad en dichos programas específicos.
- d) La falta de información sobre la coordinación entre el Ministerio de Asuntos de la Mujer y el Ministerio de Asuntos de la Familia, la Juventud y la Infancia en relación con el tema de la discapacidad;
- e) Que no se cuenta con datos de cuántas mujeres y niñas con discapacidad son beneficiarias de los programas sociales como el “Programa Usura Cero”, los bonos productivos, el “Programa Nicaragua – Fuerza Bendita”, los programas de viviendas y los programas de salud de atención integral a las mujeres.

11. Recordando su observación general núm. 3 (2016), sobre las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, así como las metas 5.1, 5.2 y 5.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Transversalizar el enfoque de derechos humanos sobre la discapacidad en sus leyes y políticas de igualdad de género, e incorporar una perspectiva de género en las leyes y políticas de discapacidad, con la participación efectiva de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan;
- b) Establecer políticas claras contra la discriminación de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, y mecanismos para la presentación de quejas, su seguimiento, investigación y, en su caso, sanción y restauración;
- c) Fortalecer las medidas que promuevan el empoderamiento de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, su inclusión en el ámbito educativo, laboral y de salud;
- d) Transversalizar las políticas de los Ministerios para que contemplen a las personas con discapacidad con enfoque de género y edad;
- e) Crear registros desagregados que identifiquen el número de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad beneficiadas por los distintos programas sociales.

Sweden (2024)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive intersectional approach to ensure that issues pertaining to women and girls with disabilities, including migrant and national minority women and girls with disabilities, are mainstreamed into both gender and disability legislation and policies;
- (b) The lack of disaggregated data about the situation of women and girls with disabilities, and on the impact of legislation and public policies on their rights under the Convention.

16. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016), reiterates its previous recommendation and the recommendations by the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women, and recommends that the State party, at the national, regional and municipal levels:

- (a) Strengthen measures and policy mechanisms to ensure that the rights of women and girls with disabilities, including migrant and national minority women and girls with disabilities, are comprehensively mainstreamed into all gender equality and disability-related legislation and policies;

(b) Ensure that data collection systems and impact assessment of legislation and policies include indicators and disaggregated data on women and girls with disabilities.

Zambia (2024)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of adequate information, including disaggregated data, about the situation of women and girls with disabilities, in particular on women with disabilities in economic activity as well as in their representation in decision making at all levels;

(b) That a large number of women and girls with disabilities are reported to live in poverty due to limited education, employment and economic opportunities and social exclusion;

(c) That programmes aimed at the advancement of women, including Girls Education and Women's Empowerment Programme and livelihoods projects do not specifically target girls and women with disabilities;

(d) That women with disabilities are victims of widespread stigma and discrimination with regard to access to health and particularly reproductive health services.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Conduct a study on the situation of women and girls with disabilities in the State party to identify the specific situation and needs of women with disabilities in order to develop and adopt strategies, policies and programmes, especially in the fields of education, employment, health and social protection, that promote their autonomy and full participation in society and adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes;

(b) Put in place measures, including affirmative actions to ensure that women with disabilities have full access to education opportunities, empowerment programmes and social services for enhancement of their participation in development on equal basis with others, and that they are represented in economic activities and in leadership positions at local and national levels;

(c) Ensure that Girls Education and Women's Empowerment Programme and livelihoods projects include women and girls with disabilities;

(d) Develop and implement awareness-raising campaigns and educational programmes throughout society, including at the family level, with regard to women with disabilities and in a manner that promotes respect for their rights and dignity, combats stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices and promotes awareness of their capacities and contributions, and ensure their access to social services including access to health and particularly reproductive health services.

Andorra (2023)

13. The Committee notes that Act No. 6/2022 on the effective application of the right to equal treatment and opportunities and non-discrimination between women and men includes disability as a ground of discrimination. However, it observes with concern:

(a) The limited disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, as well as the lack of a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies;

(b) That women and girls with disabilities are not protected sufficiently from multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, and the lack of data collection mechanisms aimed at identifying these areas of discrimination;

(c) The lack of empowerment programmes for women and girls with disabilities in employment, in public and political life, and in decision-making.

14. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into gender legislation and policies and a gender perspective into disability legislation and policies;
- (b) Strengthen strategies to combat multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, and promote research on the situation of women and girls with disabilities, including their concerns in the collection of data on persons with disabilities, and on women in general;
- (c) Implement measures, in consultation with representative organizations of women with disabilities, to empower women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life, as well as ensure their involvement in all public decision-making processes.

Austria (2023)

18. The Committee notes with the concern:

- (a) The lack of participation of women and girls with disabilities and their representative organizations in the development and implementation of measures relating to the implementation of the Convention, including in higher education, employment, and public affairs.
- (b) The insufficient measures to establish effective violence prevention and protection mechanisms accessible for all women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities in institutions;
- (c) The lack of disaggregated data about the situation of women and girls with disabilities on the Federal and Länder levels.
- (d) The lack of a disability perspective in gender equality laws;
- (e) The lack of mechanisms and procedures to address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women with disabilities.

19. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and the Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence (Istanbul Convention), recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt effective and specific measures to prevent multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities.
- (b) Ensure women and girls with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities in institutions, have effective access to prevention and protection mechanisms against gender-based violence, including helplines, shelters, sexual education programs, crisis management plans, and health counselling.
- (c) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender equality and disability-related legislation and policies.

Germany (2023)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive intersectional approach to ensure that issues pertaining to women and girls with disabilities, including migrant women and girls with disabilities, are mainstreamed in both gender and disability legislation and policies;
- (b) The lack of sufficient long-term funding of representative organizations of women and girls with disabilities to advance and promote their human rights.

14. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and recommends that the State party, at the Federal and Länder levels:

- (a) Strengthen measures and policy mechanisms to ensure that the issues pertaining to women and girls with disabilities, including migrant women and girls with disabilities, are comprehensively addressed within gender and disability legislation and policies;

(b) Develop measures, including sufficient long-term financial resourcing, to support organizations of women and girls with disabilities to advance their human rights.

Israel (2023)

13. The Committee notes with concern that women and girls with disabilities experience multiple and intersectional discrimination on the basis of, sex, age, LGBTIQ status, place of residence, migrant, refugee status or ethnic origin. It is particularly concerned about:

(a) The absence of measures concerning women and girls with disabilities in disability specific laws and policies and in legislation to promote gender equality in areas such as work, and sexual and reproductive health and rights;

(b) The insufficient disaggregated information and data collection about women and girls with disabilities, including women living in occupied territories and in relation to areas such as participation in public and political life, access to land ownership, and parental rights.

14. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;

(b) Establish a consultation process with women and girls with disabilities and their representative organizations aimed at identifying gaps and mainstreaming the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation and a gender perspective into disability policies and programmes, including in the Disability Law of 1998, the Welfare Services for Persons with Disabilities Law of 2022 and their subordinate legislation;

(c) Conduct gender and disability impact assessments of any proposed policy, legislation, regulation, budget, investment or other government action to introduce measures towards the advancement of gender equality and the rights of women and girls with disabilities, including those still living in institutions;

(d) Ensure systematic data collection and periodic studies on the situation of women and girls with disabilities including in occupied territories, with the aim to adopt comprehensive measures to empower women, promote their rights and guarantee their inclusion in society.

Malawi (2023)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Gender-based violence, access to justice and economic empowerment for women and girls with disabilities have been insufficiently addressed in the laws and policies relating to persons with disabilities;

(b) Laws and policies relating to women and girls, such as the 2013 Gender Equality Act, the 2011 Deceased Estates (Wills, Inheritance, and Protection) Act, and the 2014 – 2020 National Plan of Action to Combat Gender-Based Violence have not sufficiently addressed issues affecting women and girls with disabilities;

(c) The low budget allocation for mainstreaming disability in public policies of the Ministry of Gender, Children, Disability, and Social Welfare.

14. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into disability policies and programmes and into gender equality legislation and policies, in particular the new Persons with Disabilities Bill 2023, the 2013 Gender Equity Act, the 2011 Deceased Estates (Wills, Inheritance, and Protection) Act, and policies to combat gender-based violence, while ensuring consultation with and the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;

(b)Strengthen budget allocations for the design, implementation and evaluation of programmes and measures to empower and ensure inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life, combat gender-based stereotypes, and promote their involvement and equal participation in all public decision-making processes.

Mauritania (2023)

11.The Committee notes with concern:

(a)The insufficient participation of women with disabilities and their representative organizations and groups in decision-making processes in public and political life, in particular in the National Observatory on the Rights of Women and Girls (established by Decree No. 2020/140), and beyond disability-specific consultative bodies and mechanisms;

(b)The failure in the national legislative framework to explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, and the absence of data gathered and research conducted on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities with a view to designing adequate policy responses.

12.The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a)Engage with organizations and groups of women and girls with disabilities and secure their direct participation in all processes of public decision-making, particularly their representation in the National Observatory on the Rights of Women and Girls, and in the development of all policies regarding gender equality and gender-based violence against women and girls, including domestic violence, forced marriages and trafficking;

(b)Conduct an intersectional analysis of implementation of the Convention with respect to women and girls with disabilities across all policy areas, including education, employment, health and justice and recognize in the national legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;

(c)Adopt benchmarks and indicators about the progress in achieving inclusive equality for women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life.

Mongolia (2023)

13.The Committee notes with concern:

(a)The lack of the inclusion of a gender perspective in the disability-related legislation and policies, as well as the lack of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, which leads to further discrimination, marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities;

(b)The lack of gender-sensitive budgeting based on the human rights model of disability for planning and implementing activities related to persons with disabilities;

(c)That the national legislative framework does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, as well as the absence of data and research carried out on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities with a view to designing adequate policy responses;

(d)That women with disabilities are not represented in the National Gender Committee, as well as overall lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in employment, in public and political life, in decision-making and in the judiciary.

14.The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a)Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation, in particular the Law on Gender Equality, and mainstream a gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, while ensuring close consultation with and the active involvement of women and girls with disabilities through their representative organizations, in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;

- (b)Take measures to ensure that any programs and activities related to general disability issues are planned and budgeted based on the gender equality perspective;
- (c)Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies based on the data and results of the research, that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;
- (d)Adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes. The State party should implement measures to ensure that women with disabilities are represented in political life in decision-making roles, including in the State Great Khural, the National Gender Committee, government bodies and the judiciary.

Paraguay (2023)

13.A pesar de los esfuerzos realizados por el Estado parte con la promulgación de leyes en la materia, el Comité observa con preocupación:

- a)Las pocas medidas transversales que promuevan y protejan los derechos de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad;
- b)La falta de empoderamiento de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, de información sobre el diseño, consulta e implementación de políticas y planes para la igualdad de oportunidades, así como la falta de una perspectiva de género en las políticas públicas y en la estrategia nacional para la inclusión financiera;
- c)La falta de información sobre la existencia de legislación o políticas adoptadas para acelerar la igualdad de facto de mujeres con discapacidad en su participación política y pública;
- d)La falta de medidas para prevenir y eliminar la discriminación múltiple y la violencia en contra de mujeres con discapacidad, en particular, aquella que experimentan las mujeres con discapacidad intelectual, psicosocial o múltiple, las mujeres indígenas con discapacidad y aquellas que habitan en áreas rurales;
- e)La falta de información sobre los resultados del Observatorio de Género, especialmente en mujeres y niñas con discapacidad.

14.Recordando sus anteriores observaciones finales (CRPD/C/PRY/CO/1, párrafo 18), su observación general núm. 3 (2016), sobre las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, así como las metas 5.1, 5.2 y 5.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a)Transversalizar la perspectiva de discapacidad en sus leyes y políticas de igualdad de género, e incorporar una perspectiva de género en las leyes y políticas de discapacidad, con la participación efectiva de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad;
- b)Fortalecer las medidas que promuevan el empoderamiento de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, y agregar la perspectiva de género y de discapacidad en todas las políticas públicas, especialmente en la estrategia nacional para la inclusión financiera;
- c)Incrementar el apoyo para que las mujeres con discapacidad se incluyan en la vida política y pública del Estado parte;
- d)Establecer políticas claras contra la discriminación de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad y mecanismos para la presentación de quejas, su seguimiento, sanción y restauración;
- e)Ampliar el alcance del Observatorio de Género, para conocer los datos de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, especialmente mujeres indígenas con discapacidad y las que habitan en zonas rurales y remotas.

Angola (2023)

9.The Committee notes with concern:

- (a)The lack of adequate information, including disaggregated data, about the situation of women and girls with disabilities;
- (b)The lack of inclusion of a gender perspective in disability related legislation and policy, and the lack of inclusion of a disability perspective in gender related legislation and policy, which leads to the further marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities from protection;

(c) That domestic law does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, the lack of adequate policy responses to address such discrimination, including the lack of data-driven research carried out on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced them;

(d) The limited access to justice for women with disabilities due to the lack of accessibility and procedural accommodations, including due to the lack of sign language interpretation and captioning, as well as the lack of information provided in accessible formats by the relevant authorities;

(e) The lack of programmes designed to promote the empowerment of women with disabilities in public and political life as well as in decision-making, particularly those living in rural areas.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends the State party to:

(a) Ensure that data collection systems and impact assessments of laws and policies include indicators and disaggregated data on women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation and, mainstream gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, and ensure the consultation and effective participation of organization of women and girls with disabilities, including those in rural areas, in the design and implementation of gender and disability related policies and programmes;

(c) Recognize in multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities in domestic law, and adopt specific strategies to address intersectional forms of discrimination against them;

(d) Ensure that all women with disabilities, including those living in rural areas, women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and women with albinism, have access to justice and to accessible information on how to vindicate their rights;

(e) Adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes and their representation in political life and in decision-making, including in the executive branch and the judiciary.

Argentina (2023)

13. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) Las pocas medidas que transversalicen la igualdad de género en la legislación y las políticas relacionadas con la discapacidad, y para promover los derechos de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad en la legislación y las políticas de igualdad de género;

b) La falta de empoderamiento de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, y de información sobre el monitoreo del Programa Equiparar dirigido a promover el acceso de mujeres y personas LGBTQI+ con discapacidad a sus derechos y a una vida libre de violencia de género;

c) El insuficiente apoyo para las organizaciones de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad;

d) La falta de aprobación del Proyecto de Ley Cuidar en Igualdad presentado en 2022.

14. Recordando su observación general núm. 3 (2016), sobre las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, así como las metas 5.1, 5.2 y 5.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) Incrementar esfuerzos para transversalizar la perspectiva de discapacidad en sus leyes y políticas de igualdad de género, e incorporar una perspectiva de género en las leyes y políticas de discapacidad, con la participación activa y efectiva de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad;

b) Fortalecer el Programa Equiparar, incluyendo medidas que promuevan el empoderamiento de las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad, su inclusión en el ámbito educativo, laboral, salud y en la prevención y el abordaje de la violencia basada en género, con su participación efectiva en los procesos de toma de decisiones, así como garantizar un mecanismo efectivo de monitoreo del Programa;

c) Incrementar el apoyo para las organizaciones de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad;

d) Aprobar el Proyecto de Ley Cuidar en Igualdad y adoptar un sistema nacional integral de apoyo y cuidados, conforme a la Convención.

Georgia (2023)

7. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The lack of implementation of the Convention in the occupied territories of Abkhazia, Georgia and Tskhinvali Region/South Ossetia, Georgia, and the risk of persons with disabilities therein to internal displacement and other infringements on their human rights;

(b) The prevalence of the medical approach to disability in the State party's disability assessment system, which persists in the reform process;

(c) That legislation and practices in areas such as mental health, participation in social and political affairs and family matters reinforce negative stereotypes against persons with disabilities, including dependence from third parties and a lack of autonomy, and retain derogatory language;

(d) The absence of a national strategy and action plans on disability at the national and local levels to implement the Convention, and the limited scope of disability rights in the National Human Rights Strategy (2022-2030) and its action plan.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Include internally displaced persons with disabilities from the territories of Abkhazia, Georgia, and the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia, Georgia, in long term-housing initiatives for internally displaced persons and take into consideration the recommendations made in the Human Rights Council's Universal Periodic Review in relation to Georgia in 2021 (A/HRC/47/15), aimed at enhancing cooperation with international partners to ensure unrestricted access of humanitarian and development organizations and international human rights monitoring bodies by the Russian Federation to address the situation of persons with disabilities within these regions;

(b) Complete the process to establish a disability assessment system and ensure: (i) that organizations of persons with disabilities are involved in its design; (ii) that multiple assessments do not create an undue burden for applicants; (iii) that policies and programmes shift from care, treatment and protection towards the removal of environmental and attitudinal barriers that prevent equality and inclusion; and (iv) that the disability assessment system ensures that disability entitlements are tailored to the requirements of each individual;

(c) Expedite the review process to bring legislation and public policies, including the Law of Georgia on Medical and Social Expertise and Mental Health Development and the Action Plan, in line with the human rights model of disability as elaborated in the Committee's general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination;

(d) Enact a comprehensive strategy and a national action plan to implement the Convention that contains appropriate human, technical and financial resources, benchmarks and a timeframe, in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities across the territory of the State party.

9. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The lack of provisions to ensure access to national public funds by organizations of persons with disabilities that mainly rely on international cooperation to function and to carry out their advocacy work;

(b) The unsystematic involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in measures to implement the Convention and other matters related to persons with disabilities across state entities and at the municipal level and information about recommendations from organizations of persons with disabilities being overlooked during consultations;

(c) That organizations of service providers prevail in government's consultative mechanisms, in which they regularly hold the majority in respective votes to the detriment of grass-roots organizations of persons with disabilities, organizations of women with disabilities and organizations of children and young persons with disabilities;

(d) The absence of accessible information, disability inclusive methodologies, and human, technical and financial resources for conducting periodic consultations including with organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities.

10. With reference to its General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the right of persons with disabilities to freedom of association, including by making national funds available to all organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities and self-advocate organizations, and guaranteeing their right to seek and access legitimate foreign funding;

(b) Introduce mandatory and regular consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities across all levels and sectors of the administration, based on transparency, mutual respect, meaningful dialogue and a sincere aim to reach collective agreements on procedures that respond to the diversity of organizations led by persons with disabilities, allowing for reasonable and realistic timelines and giving due weight to persons with disabilities' views through the public decision-making process;

(c) Prioritize involvement and consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in consultative bodies and mechanisms, providing due weight to their opinions, and ensuring participation of organizations of women and girls with disabilities and organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities;

(d) Allot human, technical and financial resources to conduct public consultations with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop accessible methodologies for consultation and information tools, including in Easy Read, provide sufficient time for informed decision-making, and establish capacity building programmes of public officers and persons with disabilities participating in consultative procedures.

Peru (2023)

12. Al Comité le preocupa:

a) La falta de información sobre el impacto de la Política Nacional de Igualdad de Género en las niñas y mujeres con discapacidad;

b) Que en la Ficha de Valoración del Riesgo en el que se identifican las situaciones de violencia que sufren las mujeres por parte de sus parejas, no se reflejen las situaciones de violencia específicas que enfrentan las mujeres con discapacidad perpetradas por sus familiares, tutores y cuidadores;

c) Que la Ley N° 30364, Ley para Prevenir, Sancionar y Erradicar la Violencia contra las Mujeres y los Integrantes del Grupo Familiar, no incorpore el enfoque de discapacidad en sus disposiciones, no especifique expresamente la necesidad de adaptar ciertos espacios, como los refugios, para las víctimas de violencia de género e implementar ajustes razonables cuando sean necesarios.

13. El Comité recuerda su observación general núm. 3 (2016) sobre las mujeres y las niñas con discapacidad y el Objetivo de Desarrollo Sostenible 5, y recomienda al Estado parte que:

a) Garantice que todas las acciones llevadas a cabo para implementar la Política Nacional de Igualdad de Género y para promover la igualdad de género incluyan una perspectiva de discapacidad e incluyan indicadores y datos desglosados sobre la situación de las niñas y las mujeres con discapacidad;

b) Reforme la Ficha de Valoración de Riesgo y que se incorpore la identificación de las situaciones de violencia que sufren las niñas y mujeres con discapacidad por parte de familiares, tutores y cuidadores;

c)Garantice que todos los servicios de apoyo a las sobrevivientes de violencia sean accesibles e incluyan a las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, incluso mediante la modificación de la Ley N° 30364, Ley para Prevenir, Sancionar y Erradicar la Violencia contra las Mujeres y sus Familiares, para incorporar una perspectiva de discapacidad.

Togo (2023)

11.The Committee notes with concern:

(a)The lack of inclusion of disability perspective in gender related legislation and policies, such as the national policy on equity and gender equality, the strategy against violence and the Individual and Family Code, as well as the lack of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, which leads to further marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities, in public and political life, decision-making, employment, education, vocational training, healthcare, including sexual and reproductive health;

(b)That the national legislative framework does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;

(c)The lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in employment, in public and political life, in decision-making and in the judiciary.

12.The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a)Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation, and mainstream a gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, in particular the 2011 National Gender Equity and Equality Policy and the 2018 – 2028 National Strategy, while ensuring consultation with and the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;

(b)Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;

(c)Conduct a study on the situation of women and girls with disabilities in the State party to identify the specific situation and needs of women with disabilities in order to develop and adopt strategies, policies and programmes, especially in the fields of education, employment, health and social protection, that promote their autonomy and full participation in society and adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes;

(d)Develop and implement awareness-raising campaigns and educational programmes throughout society, including at the family level, with regard to women with disabilities and in a manner that promotes respect for their rights and dignity, combats stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices and promotes awareness of their capacities and contributions.

Tunisia (2023)

9.The Committee is concerned that

(a)Law No. 58 of 11 August 2017 on the elimination of violence against women does not include specific provisions for procedural accommodation, and the lack of adequate training for professional in contact with women and girls with disabilities, which hinder the access of women with disabilities to justice and protection measures, as well as the lack of access to health, education and training.

(b)The Committee is further concerned about the very limited statistics available on cases of violence against women and girls with disabilities which significantly limit any follow up on these cases.

(c) It is also concerned that women and girls with disabilities are not represented in the Council of Peers for Equality and Equal Opportunity between Men and Women. It is further concerned that the representation of women with disabilities in economic initiatives and their participation in political life and public administration is scarce, at best.

10. The Committee, in line with its General Comment No. 3 (2016) on Women with disabilities, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Put in place specific regulations and mechanisms that include procedural accommodations to enable women with disabilities to report abuse and facilitate their access to justice;
- (b) Organise training programmes for agents responsible for receiving, listening to and accompany women and girls with disabilities who are victims of violence so that they have the capacity to address the problems faced by them and provide adequate care to the victims, including impartial investigations and prosecution and proportionate sanctions and redress;
- (c) Gather statistical information on cases of violence against women and girls with disabilities and organize the information to enable their monitoring and follow-up;
- (d) Put in place measures to include representation of women and girls with disabilities on all platforms where issues of women are discussed, in particular in the Council of Peers for Equality and Equal Opportunity between Men and Women;
- (e) Ensure the participation of women with disabilities in economic initiatives and in political life and public administration.

Bangladesh (2022)

13. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The persistent multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, by sex, age, ethnic, linguistic or religious background;
- (b) That the Rights and Protection of Persons with Disabilities Act of 2013 and the National Women Advancement Policy of 2011 have not been reviewed to include the rights of women and girls with disabilities belonging to marginalized and minority groups, and to develop inclusive programmes to protect their rights;
- (c) That laws and policies have not been reviewed to mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities, including by eliminating family and social customs that are discriminatory against women with disabilities, especially women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women affected by leprosy;
- (d) Significant barriers that hinder the full and effective participation of representative organisations of women with disabilities in all decision-making processes, in all aspects of life.

14. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement necessary measures to address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, especially against women with disabilities belonging to religious and ethnic minorities, women affected by leprosy, women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and refugees with disabilities; and collect data disaggregated by sex, age, ethnic, linguistic and religious background;
- (b) Revise the Rights and Protection of Persons with Disabilities Act of 2013 to include the rights of women with disabilities belonging to marginalized groups, and also review the National Women Advancement Policy of 2011 to address the rights of women with disabilities belonging to minorities and develop inclusive programmes to protect their rights;
- (c) Revise all laws and policies, to mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities, including by eliminating family and social customs that are discriminatory against women with disabilities, especially against women with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and women affected by leprosy;

(d) Take steps to eliminate all barriers that hinder the full and effective participation of representative organisations of women with disabilities in all decision-making processes, including by allocating sufficient resources for their participation.

China (2022)

14. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient participation of women with disabilities and their representative organizations in decision-making processes in public and political life, including beyond disability-specific consultative bodies and mechanisms.

15. The Committee, recalling its General Comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Engage with organizations of women and girls with disabilities and secure their direct participation in all processes of public decision-making in a safe environment, particularly relating to the development of policies regarding gender equality and gender-based violence against women and girls, including domestic violence, forced marriage and trafficking;

(b) Allocate specific funds for organizations of women with disabilities to enable their full and effective participation in the process of drafting, developing and implementing laws and policies and in the monitoring framework, including in monitoring and reporting on the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals.

16. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has not integrated gender sensitivity in the data collection and analysis processes, resulting in the absence of disaggregated recent data, particularly regarding gender-based violence against women and girls with disabilities; women and girls with disability and their access to reproductive health-care; women and girls with disabilities living in rural areas; and women with disabilities belonging to ethnic minorities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party combat multiple and intersectional discrimination through systematically collecting and analysing data on the situation of women with disabilities in all areas relevant to them, and in consultation with organizations of women with disabilities with a view to guiding policy planning for the implementation of article 6 and the Agenda 2030 for Sustainable Development, as well as other international frameworks.

Indonesia (2022)

12. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Legislation that discriminates against women with disabilities, including Law No. 1 of 1974 concerning marriage and the Lampung province regulation No. 17 of 2014 Article 6 clause (3) and (7) on exclusive breastfeeding;

(b) The lack of the inclusion of a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies, as well as the lack of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, which leads to further exclusion, inequality and discrimination of women and girls with disabilities;

(c) The lack of a specific intersectional analysis for women and girls with disabilities, including those from Indigenous, ethnic and religious minorities and rural areas and remote islands, across all policy areas, including education, family, employment, justice and health.

13. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal or amend legislation that discriminates against women with disabilities, including Law No. 1 of 1974 concerning marriage and the Lampung province regulation No. 17 of 2014 Article 6 clause (3) and (7) on exclusive breastfeeding;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender-related legislation and policies, and mainstream a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies, in close consultation with and the active involvement of women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Include an intersectional analysis for women and girls with disabilities including those from Indigenous, ethnic and religious minorities and rural areas and remote islands, across all policy areas, including education, family, employment, justice and health.

Japan (2022)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Lack of sufficient measures to promote gender equality in disability-related legislation and policies, such as the Fourth Basic Programme for Persons with Disabilities, and to promote the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality legislation and policies, including the Fifth Basic Plan for Gender Equality;

(b) Lack of specific measures to empower women and girls with disabilities.

16. The Committee recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt effective and specific measures to ensure equality and prevent multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities in its gender equality policies, and mainstream a gender perspective into its disability-related legislation and policies;

(b) Take measures to empower women and girls with disabilities, ensuring that all their human rights and fundamental freedoms are equally protected, and including their effective participation in the design and implementation of these measures.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

10. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of protection in legislation from intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, particularly, under the Law No.8 on the Development and Protection of Women and the Law No.77 on Gender Equality, and absence of a two-pronged approach to gender mainstreaming;

(b) Multiple and intersectional discrimination and stigmatization against women and girls with disabilities, especially those belonging to ethnic and religious groups, women victims of unexploded ordnance, and women affected by leprosy;

(c) Insufficient empowerment and involvement of women and girls with disabilities and their representative organizations in consultations related to legislation and policies on gender equality.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party take note of the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in its implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 5, and that it, in particular:

(a) Adopt effective and specific measures to mainstream the human rights model to disability in its gender equality policies, and mainstream a gender perspective into its disability-related legislation and policies;

(b) Implement measures to prevent multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, in particular, those belonging to ethnic and religious groups, women victims of unexploded ordnance, and women affected by leprosy, in all aspects of life, in both urban and rural areas;

(c) Take steps to empower women and girls with disabilities and support their representative organizations, including the Women with Disabilities Association, and ensure their effective participation in the design and implementation of legislation and policies on gender equality.

New Zealand (2022)

9. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive intersectional approach to ensure that issues for women and girls with disabilities, including for Māori, Pasifika and migrant women and girls with disabilities are mainstreamed in both gender and disability legislative and policy areas;
- (b) The lack of a representative organisation of women and girls with disabilities to advance and promote their human rights.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen measures and policy mechanisms, including within the Gender Impact Statement and the Disability Perspective Statement to ensure that the issues for women and girls with disabilities, including for Māori, Pasifika and migrant women and girls with disabilities are comprehensively addressed within gender and disability legislative and policy areas;
- (b) Develop strategies and measures, including financial resourcing, to support women and girls with disabilities to develop their own representative organisation.

Republic of Korea (2022)

13. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of the inclusion of a gender perspective in the disability-related legislation and policies, as well as the lack of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, which leads to further discrimination, marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of gender-sensitive budgeting based on the human rights model of disability for planning and implementing activities related to persons with disabilities;
- (c) That the national legislative framework does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, as well as the absence of data and research carried out on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities with a view to designing adequate policy responses;
- (d) The lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in employment, in public and political life, in decision-making and in the judiciary.

14. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation, and mainstream a gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, in particular the Third Gender Equality Master Plan (2023 – 2028) and disability agenda, while ensuring consultation with and the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;
- (b) Take measures to ensure that any programs and activities related to general disability issues are planned and budgeted based on the gender equality perspective;
- (c) Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;
- (d) Adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes. The State party should implement measures to ensure that women with disabilities are represented in political life in decision-making roles, including in government bodies and the judiciary.

Singapore (2022)

11. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of specific indicators and mechanisms to measure and monitor the outcomes of public policies aimed at achieving inclusive equality for women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The lack of a gender perspective in disability-related legislation and policies, as well as the lack of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, reinforcing discrimination, marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities belonging to ethnic and linguistic minorities, migrant women and girls with disabilities, and women and girls affected by leprosy;

(c) That the national legislative framework does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, as well as the absence of data and research carried out on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities with a view to designing adequate policy responses;

(d) The lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in public and political life, in decision-making processes in public and private entities, including those in the judiciary.

12. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt benchmarks and indicators about the progress in the achievement of inclusive equality for women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in all gender equality legislation, policies and programmes, particularly in the Women's Charter 1961 and its amendments, and the Administration of Muslim Law, and ensure close consultation with and the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities and their representative organisations in the design and implementation of all gender- and disability-related legislation, policies and programmes;

(c) Include an intersectional analysis of the implementation of this Convention with respect to women and girls with disabilities across all policy areas, including education, employment, health and justice;

(d) Adopt legislation and take all adequate additional measures aimed at achieving empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life, particularly in political life and in public decision-making processes, including in government bodies and in the judiciary.

Hungary \(2022\)

12. The Committee notes with concern the reported gender inequality in the State Party, adversely affecting women with disabilities, including limited work opportunities for them in an open and inclusive labour market.

13. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) and recommends that the State party ensure that the protection of the rights of women and girls with disabilities is included in the national strategy on gender equality and that it adopts targeted measures to implement the recommendations directed at European Union Member States in the European Union Gender Equality Strategy 2020–2025.

Jamaica \(2022\)

12. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of information, including disaggregated data, about the situation of women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The lack of the inclusion of a gender perspective in the disability-related legislation and policies, as well as the lack of a disability perspective in gender-related legislation and policies, which leads to further discrimination, marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities;

(c) That the national legislative framework does not explicitly address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, as well as the absence of data and research carried out on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities with a view to designing adequate policy responses;

(d) The limited access to justice for women with disabilities due to a lack of accessibility and procedural accommodations, lack of sign language interpretation and captioning, and lack of accessible formats in information provided by the Bureau of Gender Affairs;

(e) The lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in public and political life, in decision-making and in the judiciary, particularly for those living in rural area.

13. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that data collection systems and impact assessments of legislation and policies include indicators and disaggregated data on women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation, and mainstream a gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, while ensuring consultation with and the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, particularly those in rural areas, in the design and implementation of gender- and disability-related policies and programmes;

(c) Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopt specific legislation and strategies that reflect a gender perspective and intersectionality;

(d) Ensure that all women with disabilities, including women living in rural areas, women with intellectual disabilities and women with psychosocial disabilities, have access to justice, and accessible information on how to claim their rights;

(e) Adopt measures aimed at achieving the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, as well as their involvement in all public decision-making processes. The State party should implement measures to ensure that women with disabilities are represented in political life in decision-making roles, including in government bodies and the judiciary.

Mexico (2022)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific measures to empower women and girls with disabilities, in particular indigenous women and girls with disabilities, and to ensure that all human rights and fundamental freedoms of women and girls with disabilities are fully and equally protected by the State party.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party take note of the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in its implementation of efforts aimed at achieving Sustainable Development Goal 5, and that it take measures to empower women and girls with disabilities, in particular indigenous women and girls with disabilities. In addition, the Committee, with reference to recommendations made in paragraph 14 (a) of its previous concluding observations, recommends that the State party put into effect the legislation and all of the programmes and actions targeting women and girls with disabilities, including support measures, to prevent multiple and intersecting discrimination against women and girls with disabilities in all aspects of life, in both urban and rural areas, and to ensure their effective participation in the design and implementation of these measures.

19. The Committee is concerned that legislation on the federal and state levels does not provide protection from intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities in rural areas, including indigenous women and girls with disabilities, and by migrant and refugee persons with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement laws at the federal and state levels preventing multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, and mainstream a gender and age perspective into its disability-related legislation and policies.

21. The Committee notes with concern the lack of information, including disaggregated data, about the situation of women and girls with disabilities, and about the impact of legislation and public policies on their rights under the Convention.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that data-collection systems and impact assessments of legislation and policies include indicators and disaggregated data on the situation of women and girls with disabilities.

Switzerland (2022)

13. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of measures taken to promote gender equality in disability-related legislation and policies and to promote the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality legislation and policies;

(b) The lack of effective consultations with and involvement of women and girls with disabilities in legislation and policies on gender equality and international cooperation.

14. Recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender equality- and disability-related legislation and policies, including the 2030 Gender Equality Strategy and its action plan, and into international cooperation and humanitarian initiatives aimed at promoting gender equality;

(b) Ensure close consultation and active involvement of women and girls with disabilities in order to comprehensively include their rights in the national action plan for implementation of the Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence (Istanbul Convention);

(c) Promote the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design, implementation and monitoring of all gender equality strategies and programmes on international cooperation, including in the review of the 2017 Strategy on Gender Equality and Women's Rights;

(d) In close cooperation with the Federal Office for the Equality of Persons with Disabilities and the Federal Office for Gender Equality, establish and adequately resource a federal mandate to ensure implementation of the rights of women and girls with disabilities.

Venezuela (2022)

10. It is of concern to the Committee that:

(a) In both urban and rural areas, women and girls with disabilities do not benefit from special protection against discrimination, gender-based violence and the harmful effects of the economic situation in the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela;

(b) Shelters for women and girls who are survivors of violence are not physically accessible, do not use accessible modes of information and communication and do not have sufficient trained personnel for women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Teenage pregnancy rates remain high and that there is still no information on how many of these pregnancies are among women with disabilities.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party, with reference to general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and taking into account targets 10.2, 10.3, 16 and 16.b of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Adopt public policies aimed at preventing and eliminating discrimination against girls and women with disabilities that include a gender perspective and a focus on sexual and reproductive health training as a means of preventing sexual violence and human trafficking;

(b) Develop strategies to ensure the accessibility of the physical environment, information and communications and the availability of trained staff to support victims with disabilities, and provide reasonable accommodation in accordance with the human rights model used in the Convention;

(c) Take measures to prevent high rates of teenage pregnancy and gather information to determine how many of these pregnancies are among teenage girls with disabilities;

(d) Ensure that institutions such as the Ministry of People's Power for Women and Gender Equality, the National Institute for Women and the Women's Development Bank, as well as prosecutors' offices and courts specializing in women's rights, have departments specializing in women and girls with disabilities.

Djibouti (2021)

9. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of the inclusion of disability perspective in gender related legislation and policies, which leads to further marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities, particularly women with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, women and girls with disabilities living in rural areas and in refugee camps, and older women with disabilities, in public and political life, employment, education, vocational training, health-care, including sexual and reproductive health;

(b) The lack of a national action plan to eliminate discrimination against women with disabilities and the discriminatory laws against women and girls with disabilities by which women may enter into marriage only with the consent of a guardian and exceptions that allows for child marriage;

(c) The lack of empowerment programmes for women with disabilities in public and political life, particularly those living in rural areas.

10. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender legislation and policies and to mainstream gender perspective in disability policies and programmes, while ensuring the consultation and effective participation of organizations of women and girls with disabilities, particularly those in rural areas and in refugee camps, in the design and implementation of gender and disability related policies and programmes;

(b) Adopt legislative measures to repeal discriminatory provisions under the Family Code against women and girls with disabilities regarding marriage and family and to protect them from forced and early marriage;

(c) Adopt measures for the empowerment of women and girls with disabilities in all sphere of life, particularly in public and political life, employment, education, vocational training, health care, including sexual and reproductive health, while addressing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination.

France (2021)

13. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of information, including disaggregated data, about the situation of women and girls with disabilities, and the impact of legislation and public policies on their rights under the Convention;

(b) Insufficient measures to promote gender equality in disability-related legislation and policies, and the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality legislation and policies, and lack of effective consultations and involvement in initiatives such as the "Generation Equality Forum" in 2021.

14. The Committee recalling its General comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that data collection systems and impact assessments of legislation and policies include indicators and disaggregated data about women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender equality and disability-related legislation and policies and promote effective participation of women and girls with disabilities through their representative organisations in fulfilling the commitments made during the "Generation Equality Forum".

Estonia (2021)

13. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The insufficient information about specific measures concerning women and girls with disabilities, in anti-discrimination, gender equality and disability-related legislation and policies;

(b) Insufficient information about measures to facilitate that women with disabilities benefit from policies for reconciling work and family life, and to ensure their development, advancement and empowerment in all areas of life.

14. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen its efforts, with the meaningful participation of women and girls with disabilities and their representatives, to mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into all gender-specific, and disability related legislation and policies;

(b) Ensure the reconciliation of the work, private and family life of women with disabilities through regulatory measures, ensuring that flexible working arrangements are available and the right to seek reasonable accommodation is recognised;

(c) Adopt measures aimed at empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, ensuring their involvement in all public decision-making processes. The State party should implement measures to ensure the representation of women with disabilities in political life at the decision-making level including in appointed governmental bodies, and ensure their participation throughout procedures at the office of the Gender Equality and Equal Treatment Commissioner.

Albania (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive gender equality policy and strategy which addresses the multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The lack of reliable information on the level of implementation of and results achieved by the National Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities (2016–2020), particularly in the area of women and girls with disabilities;

(c) The lack of adequate and concrete measures taken to implement the recommendations of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/ALB/CO/4, para. 39), insofar as they pertain to women and girls with disabilities.

14. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that laws and policies adhere to the Convention, provide for the full protection of the rights of women and girls with disabilities, and incorporate a disability perspective into all gender-equality policies and programmes, including employment-related policies and measures and adopt an effective strategy for their implementation;

(b) Ensure the full implementation of the National Action Plan for Persons with Disabilities (2016–2020) and take all necessary, appropriate and transparent measures with a concrete timeline to prevent and eliminating multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination that women and girls with disabilities face, especially in access to justice, education, health and employment;

(c) Implement the recommendations of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/ALB/CO/4, para. 39).

Australia (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The low percentage of women and girls with disabilities, particularly of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander backgrounds, that have access to services under the National Disability Insurance Scheme;

(b) The limited opportunities for women and girls with disabilities to participate in the development of policies regarding the rights of women and gender equality.

12. In line with its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and, in particular, that it:

(a) Facilitate access to services under the National Disability Insurance Scheme for women and girls with disabilities, particularly those of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander background;

(b) Adequately support organizations and networks of women and girls with disabilities, particularly those representing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women and girls with disabilities, to engage in all initiatives to promote gender equality and ensure their effective participation in the development of policies for gender equality and the advancement of women and girls.

Ecuador (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned at the fact that public policies on disability and on gender equality do not provide for measures to prevent and combat multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against girls and women with disabilities and that girls and women with disabilities are not participating on an effective, independent basis in the design, implementation and follow-up of public policies.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, bearing in mind the Committee's general comment No. 6 (2018) on equality and non-discrimination and targets 10.2, 10.3, 16 and 16.b of the Sustainable Development Goals, adopt public policies that incorporate a gender perspective and focus on the prevention and elimination of discrimination against girls and women. It also recommends that the State party promote the independent, effective participation of girls and women with disabilities in the design, implementation and follow-up of public policies.

El Salvador (2019)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Gender equality policies and specific programmes for women which are not inclusive of women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The low rate of participation of organizations of women with disabilities in all matters affecting them, particularly crimes related to gender-based violence.

13. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt effective measures to ensure that women and girls with disabilities are included in gender equality policies and programmes, and ensure that public and private service providers working for or with women with disabilities mainstream a gender and disability perspective in their work;

(b) Ensure that organizations of women and girls with disabilities are closely consulted in the formulation of policies and programmes at the urban and rural levels, including those relating to addressing gender-based violence.

Greece (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive gender equality policy and strategy and of specific legislation containing concrete measures and timelines to address multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, including Roma women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The lack of information about the implementation of the National Action Plan on Gender Equality 2016–2020 and the results achieved in relation to women and girls with disabilities, and about measures taken to promote the participation of women with disabilities in all decision-making processes.

10. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt an effective policy and strategy containing the necessary mechanisms to ensure the full protection of women and girls with disabilities against discrimination and to ensure the enjoyment of their rights, in line with the Convention;

(b) Incorporate a disability perspective into all gender-equality policies and programmes, in all areas of life, and promote the effective participation of women with disabilities in all decision-making processes;

(c) Take effective measures to prevent and combat multiple and intersectional discrimination and gender-based violence against women and girls with disabilities, including Roma women and girls with disabilities.

India (2019)

14. The Committee is concerned about multiple and intersecting discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, and:

(a) The disability stereotypes and stigmas and lack of awareness about multiple and intersecting discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and those living in rural areas, and the lack of inclusion of women with disabilities in general and disability-inclusive policies;

(b) The lack of gender-responsive policies and budgeting, and the absence of disaggregated information by gender concerning equal enjoyment of and access to all rights and services, in all areas of life, by women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Barriers to the participation and involvement of women with disabilities in policymaking processes.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and taking account of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Strengthen measures to address multiple and intersecting discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Adopt national and state action plans for promoting equality and the inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life, ensure that the national policy for women mainstreams disability, and ensure the effectiveness of campaigns to raise awareness and reduce stigmatization and gender and disability stereotypes, involving women with disabilities through their representative organizations in such awareness-raising programmes in line with general comment No. 7;

(c) Establish gender-responsive policies and budget allocations at the national and state levels to address the rights of all women and girls with disabilities, irrespective of impairment, rural or urban location, ethnic identity and social or economic background, and collect data disaggregated by gender, age and ethnic, linguistic or religious background to better inform policy and the provision of services;

(d) Ensure the full and effective participation of women with disabilities in decision and policymaking at all levels, including in relation to policies adopted by the Ministry of Women and Child Development, the National Commission for Women and state women commissions.

Iraq (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of mainstreaming of a gender perspective in disability-specific policies and the lack of mainstreaming of a disability perspective in gender-specific legislation and policies, such as the National Strategy for the Advancement of Women in Iraq (2014–2018), the National Strategy to Combat Violence against Women (2013), the National Action Plan for Implementation of the United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 (2000) on Women, Peace and Security (2014–2018) and the National Strategy to Develop the Situation of Women in the Kurdistan Region (2013–2019);

(b) The insufficient implementation of measures to combat multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, particularly against women with disabilities living in rural areas, women with disabilities who are internally displaced, refugees or migrants, and women with disabilities belonging to ethnic, religious or linguistic minorities, including in the Kurdistan Region;

(c) The limited information on policies and strategies to ensure the development, advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities in the political, social and economic spheres.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take effective measures, with the active involvement of organizations of women and girls with disabilities, to mainstream a disability perspective into all gender-specific policies and legislation, including the draft bill on protection against domestic violence, and to mainstream a gender perspective in all disability-specific policies and legislation;

(b) Step up efforts and take effective measures to combat multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Develop and adopt affirmative measures aimed at the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, including by ensuring their representation in high-level committees for the enhancement of the status of Iraqi women and rural women of the department for the empowerment of women in the General Secretariat of the Council of Ministers and by strengthening the efforts of the Commission for the Care of Persons with Disabilities and Special Needs to provide professional capacity-building to women with disabilities.

Kuwait (2019)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of provisions specifically on the rights of women and girls with disabilities in laws, including in Act No. 8/2010, policies and programmes;

(b) Barriers, fostered by misconceptions about disability, hindering the enjoyment of the rights of women and girls with disabilities in all areas of life, in particular in education, marriage and relationships, on an equal basis with others;

(c) The absence of data on the participation of women with disabilities in the labour market;

(d) The absence of measures taken for the advancement, empowerment and development of women and girls with disabilities and for the promotion of their participation in public and political life.

13. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into its legislation, including Act No. 8/2010, policies and programmes such as the welfare programme, the housing fund and the National Development Plan (2015–2020);

(b) Take measures to remove all barriers so that women and girls with disabilities can enjoy their rights to inclusive education, health care and employment, as well as their rights in all matters relating to marriage and relationships, on an equal basis with others, including by taking awareness-raising measures to combat stereotypes, prejudices and misconceptions;

(c) Ensure the collection of disaggregated data on women with disabilities in all areas under the Convention;

(d) Adopt measures for the advancement, empowerment and development of women and girls with disabilities and promote their participation in public and political life, including by setting and implementing quotas.

Myanmar (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities persists, especially against women with disabilities belonging to ethnic or religious minorities, in all spheres of life;

(b) The rights of women and girls with disabilities are not systematically mainstreamed in specific policies on gender equality or disability.

14. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement effective legislation and policy measures, including specific measures, to address exclusion of and multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, in particular against those belonging to ethnic or religious minorities, in all spheres of life;

(b) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality and disability policies.

Cuba (2019)

15. The Committee notes that the State party has adopted strategies and plans to promote equality of women with disabilities in the areas of employment, education, sports and culture. It is concerned, however, that:

(a) The laws and policies on equality of women do not recognize multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The absence of any specific organizations of women with disabilities, so that women with disabilities, particularly women of African descent, are automatically excluded in decision-making processes that affect them;

(c) Women and girls with disabilities, particularly women with disabilities living in rural areas, women of African descent and women with intellectual disabilities or psychosocial disabilities, face obstacles in accessing services, particularly access to health services.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognize in its legislation multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and adopts special legislation and strategies with gender and intersectional perspectives;

(b) Continue promoting an inclusive environment to facilitate participation by women with disabilities and their representative organizations, including women with disabilities of African descent, in decision-making processes that affect them;

(c) Ensure that all women with disabilities, including women in rural areas, women of African descent and person with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, have access to health services, including reproductive and sexual health rights.

Niger (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Discriminatory laws against women and girls with disabilities, especially regarding marriage and family matters; forced and early marriages; and the lack of a national action plan to combat discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, particularly those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;

(b) The multiple forms of discrimination, marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities, particularly in public and political life, employment, career development programmes, education, vocational training, and health care including sexual and reproductive health;

(c) The absence of measures to mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in public life, as well as in gender equality, education and employment policies and strategies;

(d) The lack of sufficient awareness-raising campaigns and education programmes, particularly at the family level, to combat stereotypes and prejudices, against women and girls with disabilities, and foster respect for their rights.

10. In line with article 6 of the Convention, General comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Revise the Quota Act and adopt legislative measures to ensure equality and non-discrimination for women and girls with disabilities, including regarding marriage and family matters, and protect them from forced and early marriage;
- (b) Eliminate multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, and promote their access to inclusive education, health care, including sexual and reproductive health, and their participation in public life, and decision-making processes;
- (c) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in the National Gender Policy (2008), the National Social Development Policy, and all disability related legislation and policies; conduct awareness-raising campaigns and education programmes regarding their rights and eliminate stereotypes, prejudices, and misconceptions about them.

Norway (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) There are multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination faced by women with disabilities and the absence of measures to prevent and combat different forms of discrimination;
- (b) Compared to men with disabilities, women with disabilities are less likely to be in full-time employment;
- (c) Gender perspective is not included in disability studies and the rights of women and girls with disabilities are missing from gender equality and disability agendas.

10. In line with its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in the view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to address multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and, in particular:

- (a) Implement effective legal, policy and practical measures to address multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (b) Take specific measures to promote full-time employment opportunities in the public and private sectors for women with disabilities, including by improving their access to education, skills development and life-long learning with the active involvement of employers;
- (c) Mainstream the gender perspective in disability studies and the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality and disability agendas.

Rwanda (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of reliable disaggregated data to better understand the human rights situation of women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) The insufficient application of a disability perspective in general gender equality policies and programmes, as well as the limited application of a gender equality perspective in disability policies and programmes;
- (c) The inadequacy of policies and programmes for the advancement, development and empowerment of girls and women with disabilities.

12. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, in particular organizations of women and girls with disabilities:

- (a) Systematically collect disaggregated data on women with disabilities and develop specific indicators to assess intersectional discrimination, ensuring close cooperation between the Gender Monitoring Office and organizations of women with disabilities with a view to inform and develop adequate public policies;

- (b) Mainstream a disability perspective in general gender equality policies and programmes, as well as a gender equality perspective in disability policies and programmes;
- (c) Develop and implement specific policies with the necessary human and financial resources for the advancement, development and empowerment of girls and women with disabilities.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The absence of specific measures taken to promote the participation in political and public life of women with disabilities, particularly women with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;
- (b) The continued system of male guardianship, which subjects the enjoyment of most of the rights guaranteed to women with disabilities under the Convention to the authorization of a male guardian.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to ensure the full development, advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities, and that it:

- (a) Take measures to permit and promote the participation of women with disabilities in public and political life, including by setting and implementing specific quotas for women with disabilities, and mainstreaming the rights of women with disabilities across all laws, policies and programmes, with an intersectional perspective;
- (b) Repeal all discriminatory provisions in its legislation, which also affect women with disabilities, in particular those that require a male guardian's authorization of women's exercise of their rights under the Convention (CEDAW/C/SAU/CO/3-4, para. 16 (c)).

Senegal (2019)

9. The Committee is concerned about the lack of equal opportunities for women and girls with disabilities in obtaining access to education, employment and health care services, including HIV and AIDS-related services. It is also concerned about the higher prevalence of HIV/AIDS in women with disabilities. The Committee is concerned about the exclusion of women with disabilities from public and social life.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party take note of General Comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in its implementation of Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and:

- (a) Develop and adopt measures aimed at the empowerment and inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life geared towards addressing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, particularly in education, employment and health care services, including HIV and AIDS-related services;
- (b) Adopt effective measures towards combatting the spread of HIV/ AIDS and reduce the prevalence among women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) Adopt the necessary legal and other measures to increase the participation of women with disabilities in public and social life.

Spain (2019)

10. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That women with disabilities face multiple forms of discrimination because of their gender and disability, and may also be at risk of gender-based violence;
- (b) That public policies on disability and on gender equality, respectively, do not include measures to combat multiple and intersectional discrimination of women with disabilities.

11. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, as well as the Istanbul Convention of the Council of Europe, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Institute, as a matter of urgency, effective measures to identify, prevent and provide protection from the multiple discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, in particular women and girls with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, and allocate adequate resources for their support;

(b) Adopt effective and specific measures to ensure equality and prevent multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination of women and girls with disabilities in its gender equality policies, and to mainstream a gender perspective in its disability-related legislation and policies.

Türkiye (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about the lack of concrete indicators and mechanisms to measure and monitor the outcomes of public policies in achieving inclusive equality for women with disabilities. It is also concerned about the de facto inequality of women with disabilities in access to education and work, compared to men with disabilities. It is further concerned about the intersectional discrimination and exclusion of Roma girls with disabilities, particularly from education.

14. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt specific policies and affirmative action measures for the advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities and ensure that general public policies for women mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Adopt benchmarks and indicators concerning the progress on achieving inclusive equality for women and girls with disabilities, particularly in education and work, in urban and rural areas through general public policies on women;

(c) Adopt legislation and policies addressing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, including those belonging to Roma communities.

Vanuatu (2019)

12. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The persistence of patriarchal attitudes and discriminatory stereotypes concerning women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The lack of reasonable accommodation for women with disabilities.

13. Recalling its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen awareness campaigns, at village level, to modify stereotypes and prejudices against women and girls with disabilities and on their rights;

(b) Ensure women and girls disabilities and not denied reasonable accommodation in all areas, including the provision of individualized support in education, political and public life and economic activities, including through meaningful participation of women with disabilities.

Algeria (2018)

14. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There are no laws and policies to address the multiple or aggravated forms of discrimination experienced by women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Disability has not been mainstreamed in national efforts for gender equality;

(c) Organizations of women and girls with disabilities are neither involved nor consulted regarding the implementation of the Convention.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account article 6 of the Convention and the Committee's General Comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, in its implementation of Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and:

(a) Step up its efforts to mainstream the rights of women with disabilities in law and in practice, including by adopting laws to strengthen the legal protection to women and girls with disabilities against multiple and aggravated forms of discrimination;

- (b) Mainstream disability in all national efforts on gender equality, including the future “National Strategy for the Promotion and Integration of Women and its Action Plans”;
- (c) Ensure the consultation and involvement of representative organizations of women and girls with disabilities with regard to the implementation of the Convention.

Bulgaria (2018)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient implementation on measures to combat inter-sectional forms of discrimination, gender-based violence, and abuse against women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of mainstreaming of the disability perspective in gender legislation and policies, as well as the lack of mainstreaming of the gender perspective in the disability specific policies and legislation, including in the Action Plan for implementation of the Convention;
- (c) The lack of information about the provision of sexual and reproductive health care and rights of women with disabilities, including family planning.

18. The Committee, in line with its General comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and bearing in mind targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Step up efforts and take effective measures for combating inter- sectional discrimination of women and girls with disabilities, and violence and abuse they experience, in close cooperation with organizations of women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) Take effective measures in close consultation with organizations of women with disabilities to mainstream disability perspective into all gender specific policies and legislation, and to mainstream gender perspective in all disability specific policies and legislation;
- (c) Adopt public policies for the protection of the sexual and reproductive health and rights of women and girls with disabilities.

Malta (2018)

9. The Committee is concerned about the absence of reliable disaggregated data aimed at better understanding the human rights situation of women and girls with disabilities. It is also concerned about the multiple and intersectional discrimination that women with disabilities face, particularly in the area of employment, and the lack of information on policies and strategies to ensure the development, advancement, and empowerment of women in the political, social and economic spheres.

10. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen data collection and publication of the human rights situation of women and girls with disabilities and establish programmes in accordance with article 6 (2) of the Convention. It also recommends that all measures be undertaken in close consultation with women and girls with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Philippines (2018)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The overall lack of information about the situation of women and girls with disabilities, in particular their access to social protection and an adequate standard of living, economic, employment conditions, and enjoyment of political rights by women with disabilities;
- (b) The overall exclusion of women with disabilities, in particular women and girls with intellectual disabilities and with psychosocial disabilities as well as those from Indigenous peoples and other ethnic and religious minorities, in decision-making processes concerning matters affecting them.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party takes into account the Committee’s General comment No. 3 (2016) Women and girls with disability, and:

- (a) Strengthen data collection and publication of the human rights situation of women and girls with disabilities with a view to developing the appropriate policies to combat sex and gender-based discrimination;
- (b) Ensure that general legislation about gender equality and disability related legislation mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities. The State party should reinforce the application of the Compendium of Monitoring and evaluation Indicators on Gender Equality and Women's empowerment in all processes related to legislation and public policy reform;
- (c) Ensure that the Philippine Commission on Women, and the Commission on Human Rights of the Philippines allocate specific human, technical and budgetary resources for the advancement of the rights of women and girls with disabilities, and promotes full participation of organizations of women with disabilities in their work;
- (d) Undertake consultations with women and girls with disabilities with a view to using these as a basis for implementing law reform and policy changes, with particular attention to their family lives, education, health services, employment and all forms of gender-based violence against women as well as discriminatory practices;
- (e) Put into consideration the obligations of the Convention in implementing measures for the achievement of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

14. The Committee is concerned about the high level of gender-based violence against women and girls with disabilities, including sexual violence and abuse. In particular, it is concerned about the research data by organizations of persons with disabilities showing that rape cases filed by women and girls who are deaf or hard of hearing outnumber all other types of complaints of women with disability, in a ratio of 10:1. It is further concerned about violence against women and girls with psychosocial disabilities as they are overrepresented in the Supreme Court cases about gender-based violence.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish a time frame and a strategy to protect women and girls with disabilities against all forms of gender-based violence, and prohibit all forms of gender-based violence against women and girls with disabilities, including violence within the family;
- (b) Provide women and girls with disabilities with accessible information and reporting mechanisms to detect, prevent and combat all forms of violence, including sexual violence against women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) Adopt measures to provide women with disabilities with redress in cases of violence, including access to rehabilitation, and compensation.

Poland (2018)

9. The Committee is concerned that women with disabilities:

- (a) Despite being at highest risk of gender-based violence, including sexual violence, domestic and institutional violence, are inadequately protected from violence because of gaps in the legal framework on violence and disability;
- (b) Lack effective system to fight violence, including ineffective investigations in cases of violence and lack of support when subjected to violence;
- (c) Experience significant barriers to exercising their sexual and reproductive rights, including access to related education, contraception information and services, and to making decisions about their sexual and reproductive health;
- (d) Remain invisible in gender and disability policies, in policy making, data collection and research, and generally in legislation and policies.

10. Recalling its general comments No. 3 (2014) on Women and Girls with Disabilities, as well as the Istanbul Convention of the Council of Europe, the Committee urges the State party to:

- (a) Recognize women and girls with disabilities as rights holders, adopt a comprehensive strategy to prevent and eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls with disabilities in all settings, including home and institutions, and enact a legislation that ensure their protection against violence, the prosecution of perpetrators and the provision of redress to victims;

(b) Develop a strategy to prevent and combat violence against women and girls with disabilities in all settings, introduce disability specific indicators in the Blue Card procedure and ensure the development of accessible quality services for women and girls with disabilities victims of gender-based violence;

(c) Recognise sexual and reproductive health and rights of women and girls with disabilities, and provide them with inclusive services to help them caring for their children, support their decision-making on matters relating to their sexual and reproductive health, contraception as well as sexual education for women with disabilities according to the UNESCO international standards for comprehensive sexual education;

(d) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality and disability agendas, collect disaggregated data and carry out participatory researches on the social condition of women and girls with disabilities across the State Party, systematically consult and include them into policy making through their representative organisations.

South Africa (2018)

10. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The multiple forms of discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities in obtaining access to education, employment and health care and their exclusion from public and social life;

(b) The lack of legislation and policies, including affirmative action measures, aimed at addressing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, particularly against black women and girls with disabilities, including discrimination arising from traditional and cultural practices; and the limited opportunities for women with disabilities, particularly black women with disabilities, to be systematically involved in decisions that concern them directly;

(c) The absence of measures to prevent and combat discrimination and violence, including rape and other forms of gender-based sexual violence, exploitation, and abuse against women and girls with disabilities and the lack of information in accessible formats for health, psychosocial and legal services for victims of violence and abuse or to those who are at such risk.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party take note of general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in its implementation of Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals and:

(a) Adopt as a matter of priority measures to prevent and combat discrimination, violence and abuse against women and girls with disabilities and enact legislation and adopt effective strategies to that effect and ensure that information in accessible formats are available for victims to access health, psychosocial and legal services;

(b) Develop and adopt affirmative action measures aimed at the empowerment and full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life geared towards addressing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination against black women and girls with disabilities and raise awareness about all forms of discrimination arising from traditional and cultural practices.

North Macedonia (2018)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Existing legislation does not contain specific measures on women and girls with disabilities, particularly the Law on Prevention and Protection against Discrimination, and the Law on Equal Opportunities for Women and Men - and as a result, women and girls with disabilities face multiple and intersectional discrimination and exclusion in all areas of life;

(b) National gender policies and programmes do not include a disability perspective whilst disability is not mainstreamed in gender policies;

(c) There is a lack of specific measures to protect women and girls with disabilities, especially those with psychological disabilities and/or intellectual disabilities from gender-based violence;

(d) There is poor access to mainstream services and reasonable accommodation for women and girls with disabilities, especially those with psychosocial disabilities and/or intellectual disabilities.

14. In line with its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in the view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to address multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and, in particular:

(a) Include specific measures for women and girls with disabilities in the existing legislation, mainstream their rights in gender policies and programmes and promote affirmative action to advance the rights of women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Implement effective legal, policy and practical measures to address gender-based violence of women and girls with disabilities; prevent and investigate violations of their human rights and prosecute and punish those responsible; and ensure that those affected have access to immediate protection and accessible support services, including reasonable accommodation in mainstream services and shelter facilities;

(c) Take all measures necessary to increase accessibility of mainstream services and reasonable accommodation for all women and girls with disabilities and ensure the involvement of organizations of women and girls with disabilities in the development, implementation, and monitoring of such services.

Haiti (2018)

10. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The aggravated forms of discrimination, including multiple and intersectional discrimination and discrimination by association experienced, in particular by women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The marginalization and exclusion of women and girls with disabilities from existing programmes and policies promoting the rights of women, including the national policy on equality between women and men (2014-2020);

(c) The lack of specific and targeted support for organizations of women and girls with disabilities, insufficient participation of women and girls with disabilities in the decision-making processes concerning them, and the absence of programmes for their empowerment.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Integrate the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender equality legislation, as well as in laws and policies on disability, and conduct public awareness campaigns to modify stereotypes, prejudices and myths about women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Modify the national policy on equality between women and men (2014-2020) to include women and girls with disabilities and ensure a follow-up mechanism between the Ministry of the status of women and women's rights and organizations of women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Adopt a strategy to promote the empowerment of women and girls with disabilities and ensure consultation with and participation of organizations representing them in the formulation and implementation of policies that concern them.

Nepal (2018)

11. The Committee is concerned about the overall lack of information on social, economic, employment and other areas of public life, and political situations of women with disabilities in Nepal. In particular, it is concerned at the overall exclusion of women with disabilities in decision-making processes. The Committee is also concerned at the reportedly high incidence of sexual violence and abuse of women and girls, including cases of gang rape of women and girls with disabilities and that some cases remain unreported.

12. The Committee urges the State party to undertake consultations with organisations representing women and girls with disabilities with a view to using these as a basis for ensuring their participation in political and public life and in implementing law reform and policy changes, - with particular attention to their family lives, education, health services, employment. The Committee recommends that the State party combat discriminatory practices as stipulated under the Three Year Interim Plan (TYIP) (2010–2013) that lays emphasis on: policy, legal and institutional reform to eliminate all forms of discrimination affecting women and girls. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen and implement legislation and provide for accessible monitoring and reporting mechanisms to detect, prevent and combat all forms of violence, including sexual violence, against women and girls with disabilities.

Oman (2018)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The multiple forms of discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities in accessing education, employment and health care, and their overall marginalization and exclusion from public and social life and discriminatory laws relating to marriage and family matters;
- (b) Violence against women and girls with disabilities and the absence of specific mechanisms for them to lodge complaints, including seeking reparations and punishing perpetrators;
- (c) The absence of measures for advancement, empowerment and development of women and girls with disabilities, including participation and consultation with their representative organizations in decision-making processes that affect them.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 6 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in the implementation of Goal 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and further recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures in both law and in practice for the elimination of all forms of multiple and intersectional discrimination, and violence against women and girls with disabilities, including mechanisms for remedies and sanctions against perpetrators as well as access to medical, psychological and legal services on an equal basis with others;
- (b) Adopt measures for the advancement, empowerment and development of women and girls with disabilities, including participation and consultation with their representative organizations in all spheres of life and mainstream rights for women and girls with disabilities in all national strategies and action plans for women and girls, in particular education, employment and health care, including reproductive health strategies;
- (c) Carry out awareness-raising campaigns and education programmes at all levels, in particular the family level, to foster respect for the rights and dignity of women and girls with disabilities, and combat stereotypes, prejudices and misconceptions about women and girls with disabilities;
- (d) Strengthen capacity-building training programmes for professionals working with and/or for women and girls with disabilities, including government officials, on the rights and requirements of women and girls with disabilities;
- (e) Strengthen the capacity of the General Directorate of Women to effectively coordinate and develop a gender mainstreaming strategy to be used in all policies and programmes that reflect the situation of women and girls with disabilities;
- (f) Adopt concrete measures to promote the access of women with disabilities to inclusive education, health care, including sexual and reproductive health and rights, public and social life and decision-making processes.

Russian Federation (2018)

15. The Committee notes with concern the absence of a legal framework relevant to combating multiple and inter- sectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned about the insufficient implementation of public policies, including access to justice and complaint mechanisms, aimed at ensuring the development, advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities.

16. The Committee in line with its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, recommends that the State Party develop a legislative framework for combating multiple and inter- sectional discrimination of women and girls with disabilities in close cooperation with organizations of women and girls with disabilities.

Seychelles (2018)

14. The Committee is concerned that legislative and policy measures and action plans to support women and girls do not explicitly consider women and girls with disabilities nor address intersectional discrimination against them, including those living in rural and dispersed outer islands. It is also concerned by the absence of data and research carried out on multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women with disabilities with a view to designing adequate policy responses. It regrets the absence of any specific measures to increase the visibility of women with disabilities and ensure their full development, advancement and empowerment.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party, with reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Provide adequate support for women and girls with disabilities, including those living in rural and dispersed outer islands, particularly in the fields of education, health, employment and political and public life;
- (b) Mainstream the issues of women and girls with disabilities in the anti-discrimination legal provisions and policies related to women and girls;
- (c) Collect data systematically on women and girls with disabilities and establish indicators that can be used to assess the impact of the measures taken to counter discrimination against them with regard to their socio-economic and cultural participation;
- (d) Adopt specific measures for the full development, advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities.

Slovenia (2018)

8. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of specific legislation and policies regarding the rights of women and girls with disabilities, as well as insufficient measures addressing their multiple and intersectional discrimination;
- (b) The lack of specific measures to protect women and girls with disabilities, especially those with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and those living in institutions from gender-based violence;
- (c) The fact that poverty disproportionately affects women with disabilities, especially older women, and the negative impact of the economic crisis and subsequent austerity measures on them;
- (d) The underrepresentation of women with disabilities in decision-making processes related to legislation and public policies on disability;
- (e) The lack of specific and up-to-date information and data on the situation of women and girls with disabilities.

9. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and taking into account targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a twin-track approach by mainstreaming the rights of women with disabilities across all national action plans and strategies concerning women's rights in general and equality between women and men, as well as on sectorial plans, concerning access to justice, combating violence, education, health, political participation, employment, and social protection; and by adopting targeted and monitored measures aimed specifically at supporting and empowering women with disabilities;

(b) Provide women and girls with disabilities, especially women and girls with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities with specific protection measures and redress in cases of gender-based violence against them, ensuring dissemination of information in accessible formats about available remedies, and effective prosecution and sanctions of perpetrators;

(c) Redress the consequences of austerity measures for women with disabilities, and adopt measures to address the root causes of exclusion and poverty affecting women with disabilities, paying particular attention to older women with disabilities;

(d) Adopt measures to ensure the participation of women with disabilities in decision-making processes at the local and national levels, including by facilitating the establishment and functioning of organizations of women with disabilities and their access to financial resources, and adopting legislation requiring authorities to consult with representative organizations of women with disabilities;

(e) Allocate sufficient resources to conduct research and collect statistical data on the situation of women and girls with disabilities, disaggregated by age, geographical area, type of impairment, family situation, and place of residence.

Sudan (2018)

13. The Committee is concerned about women and girls with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional discrimination and exclusion in all areas of life and, in particular, is concerned about:

(a) The lack of legislation protecting women and girls with disabilities from gender-based violence, particularly at home and in institutions and the persistence of cases of neglect, violence, restraint and seclusion, sexual violence and abuse, including genital mutilation, of women and girls with disabilities, as well as the lack of access to shelters and adequate services for victims of such violence;

(b) National gender policies and programmes not sufficiently including a disability perspective whilst gender is not mainstreamed in disability policies;

(c) The lack of accessibility to mainstream services and reasonable accommodation for women and girls with disabilities, especially with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

14. In line with its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in the view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to address multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and, in particular:

(a) Implement effective legal, policy and practical measures to address gender-based violence including genital mutilation of women and girls with disabilities; prevent and investigate violations of their human rights and prosecute and punish those responsible; and ensure that those affected have access to immediate protection and accessible support services, including reasonable accommodation in mainstream services and shelter facilities;

(b) Include the rights of women and girls with disabilities in national gender policies and programmes, in particular the Sudanese National Strategy for Women, and mainstream gender into disability-related public measures;

(c) Take all measures necessary to increase accessibility of mainstream services and reasonable accommodation for all women and girls with disabilities and ensure the involvement of organizations of women and girls with disabilities in the development, implementation, and monitoring of such services.

Latvia (2017)

10. The Committee is concerned about the:

(a) Low level of participation of women with disabilities in political and public life and their invisibility in laws, programmes and policies related to the advancement of women;

(b) Lack of data and research on women and girls with disabilities, including insufficient recognition of the multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities in the State party.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party, with reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Mainstream the issues of women and girls with disabilities in the anti-discriminatory legal provisions and policies related to women and girls, including those aimed at combating gender-based violence;

(b) Promote the representation and participation of women with disabilities in political and public life;

(c) Collect data systematically on women and girls with disabilities and establish indicators that can be used to assess the impact of the measures taken to counter discrimination against them with regard to their social participation and inclusion;

(d) Ratify the Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence adopted by the Council of Europe.

Luxembourg (2017)

14. The Committee is concerned about the absence of reliable disaggregated data to better understand the human rights situation of women and girls with disabilities. It is concerned about the multiple and intersectional discrimination that women with disabilities face; that women and girls with disabilities are not systematically mainstreamed in the gender equality agenda and disability agenda; and by the inadequacy of programmes for the advancement, development and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities.

15. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen data collection and publication of the human rights situation of women and girls with disabilities with a view to developing the appropriate policies to combat discrimination. It also recommends that the State party mainstream gender in disability policies and mainstream disability in gender policies, and establish programmes in accordance with article 6 (2) of the Convention. It also recommends that all measures be undertaken in close consultation with women and girls with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Montenegro (2017)

12. The Committee is concerned about ongoing discrimination and violence against women and girls with disabilities and the fact that the measures taken by the State party to prevent such discrimination and violence and provide redress when they do occur have been largely insufficient. It is also concerned about:

(a) The lack of specific data on the situation of women and girls with disabilities;

(b) The largely insufficient specific measures concerning women and girls with disabilities in legislation and policies on gender and disability, as well as the absence of any measures concerning women and girls with disabilities who are subjected to intersectional forms of discrimination;

(c) The fact that women and girls with disabilities are frequently victims of gender-based violence and sexual exploitation, which they are often reluctant to report, and that violence prevention measures are insufficiently accessible;

(d) The lack of information on adequate and transparent funding and affirmative employment-related measures tailored to the needs of women with disabilities.

13. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, with the active involvement of women with disabilities through their representative organizations at all stages of the development of measures and decision-making processes:

- (a) Allocate sufficient resources to research and data collection on women and girls with disabilities, disaggregated by age, geographical area, type of impairment, family situation, and place of residence (institution or community care);
- (b) Include a disability perspective in gender equality legislation, policies and programmes, as well as a gender perspective in disability legislation and policies, and develop specialized policies for women with disabilities;
- (c) Prevent and combat the multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination that women and girls with disabilities face, with a particular focus on access to justice, protection against violence and abuse, education, health care and employment;
- (d) Include a disability perspective in all laws, policies and programmes on protection from violence, abuse and exploitation, take awareness-raising measures to encourage women and girls with disabilities to report all forms of harassment and violence to which they have been subjected, ensure their access to accessible information and adequate victim support services, including at the local level, and adequately punish perpetrators.

Morocco (2017)

14. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination against, and marginalization of, women and girls with disabilities, in the absence of programmes to promote their rights on an equal basis with men;
- (b) The discrimination by association experienced by women with children with disabilities;
- (c) The information received on cases of violence and abuse against women and girls with disabilities;
- (d) The absence of measures to prevent gender-based violence against women and girls with disabilities in all settings and to provide health, psychosocial and legal services for those who have been affected by such violence.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and target 5.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls with disabilities in the public and private spheres, including trafficking and sexual and other forms of exploitation. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities in gender-equality legislation and in disability-related legislation and policies, and conduct public awareness-raising campaigns to combat stereotypes, prejudices and myths about them;
- (b) Raise awareness about all forms of discrimination against women, and include the perspectives of women who are caregivers for children with disabilities in policies on tackling gender-based discrimination;
- (c) Revise bill 103-13 on combating violence against women, so as to include the disability perspective and address the specific risks of gender-based violence and the barriers to protection faced by women and girls with disabilities, in particular women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;
- (d) Put in place effective mechanisms to ensure that women and girls with disabilities who are victims of violence and abuse are protected and that they have access to medical, psychological and legal services on an equal basis with others.

Panama (2017)

16. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a gender equality plan, the fact that disability policies do not specifically cover women and girls and the lack of policies and strategies on the prevention and punishment of violence against women and girls with disabilities, including indigenous persons and persons of African descent with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations that represent women and girls with disabilities and bearing in mind the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities:

- (a) Include women with disabilities in the plans and strategies of the National Secretariat for Disabilities;
- (b) Revise its disability policies to incorporate a gender-based approach;
- (c) Revise its policies on violence against women with a view to introducing a disability dimension;
- (d) Allocate dedicated human and financial resources to the advancement and empowerment of women with disabilities;
- (e) Be guided by article 6 of the Convention in pursuing targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

18. The Committee is concerned about the invisibility of discrimination and violence, including domestic and sexual violence, against women with disabilities in the State party and notes that women with disabilities in rural areas and indigenous regions are particularly vulnerable. It is concerned that there are still some shelters for women victims of violence that are not accessible to all women with disabilities. The Committee regrets the lack of disaggregated data on cases of discrimination and/or violence against women with disabilities.

19. The Committee urges the State party to take all necessary measures to:

- (a) Combat violence against women with disabilities, including indigenous and Afrodescendent women with disabilities, in urban and rural areas and indigenous regions;
- (b) Ensure that shelters for women victims of violence are accessible for women with disabilities and that the officials in charge have received training on assisting persons with disabilities;
- (c) Systematically compile data and statistics on the situation of women and girls with disabilities and establish indicators that can be used to assess the impact of the measures taken to counter discrimination against them.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned that the rights of women and girls with disabilities have not been systematically mainstreamed into both the gender equality and disability agendas. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of measures and available data concerning the impact of multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organizations of women and girls with disabilities, mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities into disability and gender equality policies. It also recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, adopt inclusive and targeted measures, including the collection of disaggregated data, to prevent multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, in education, employment, health and access to justice and in terms of poverty and violence.

Armenia (2017)

9. The Committee is concerned that women and girls with disabilities face multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and exclusion in all areas of life. In particular, it is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of reference to women with disabilities in disability and gender- related national legislation and policies;
- (b) The lack of accessibility of mainstream services and reasonable accommodation for women and girls with disabilities, especially women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;
- (c) The lack of legislation and relevant regulations protecting women and girls with disabilities from gender-based violence, particularly at home and in institutions, as well as the lack of access to shelters and adequate services for victims of such violence;
- (d) The persistence of cases of neglect, violence, restraint and seclusion, as well as sexual abuse, of women with disabilities.

10. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to address multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party:

- (a) Incorporate a disability perspective in all national legislation and policies related to women and girls;
- (b) Take all measures necessary to increase accessibility of mainstream services and reasonable accommodation for all women and girls with disabilities, including by ensuring the involvement of representative organizations of women with disabilities in the development, implementation and monitoring of service provision programmes;
- (c) Strengthen its efforts to develop efficient community-based services to advance the deinstitutionalization of women and girls with disabilities and prevent any new institutionalization;
- (d) Implement effective legal, policy and practical measures to address gender-based violence against women with disabilities, particularly those living in institutions; prevent and investigate violations of their human rights and prosecute and punish those responsible; and ensure that those affected have access to immediate protection and accessible support services, including reasonable accommodation in mainstream services and shelter facilities, as well as means of redress;
- (e) Ratify the Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence;
- (f) Implement the recommendations contained in the concluding observations of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women concerning women with disabilities (see CEDAW/C/ARM/CO/5-6, paras. 27, 34-35 and 37).

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

12. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The insufficient information on a comprehensive gender equality policy or strategy in relation to the 2013-2017 Gender Action Plan;
- (b) The lack of wide-ranging consultations with and participation by organizations of women with disabilities also at the local level;
- (c) The lack of adequate and transparent funding and employment-related measures tailored to the requirements of women with disabilities;
- (d) The fact that “there is almost no record of” political participation of women with disabilities.

13. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt an effective strategy to ensure that laws provide for the full protection and enjoyment of the rights of women and girls with disabilities, in line with the Convention, and incorporate the disability perspective into all gender- equality policies and programmes, including employment-related policies and measures;
- (b) Take appropriate measures to prevent and combat multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination that women and girls with disabilities face, especially in access to justice, protection against violence and abuse, education, health and employment;
- (c) Ensure the effective participation of women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in consultations, political participation and decision-making processes.

Canada (2017)

15. The Committee is concerned that women with disabilities face intersectional discrimination, including in access to justice, which particularly affects indigenous women with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on legislation to promote the economic empowerment of women with disabilities through legislation and public policies on gender equality.

16. The Committee, in line with its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the federal strategy against gender-based violence includes lines of action and specific programmes and benchmarks to address all forms of violence against women and girls with disabilities;
- (b) Remove barriers and develop inclusive practices in order to create financial and practical support and address prejudices and negative stereotypes;
- (c) Ensure that indigenous women with disabilities have access to available education programmes, are aware of their rights under the Convention and have access to the support available to claim their rights;
- (d) Bear in mind its obligations under article 6 of the Convention while implementing targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Cyprus (2017)

17. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Women and girls with disabilities are not equally and systematically mainstreamed in the gender equality agenda;
- (b) There is a lack of measures to eliminate intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;
- (c) The application of a gender perspective with respect to legislation, policies and programmes for persons with disabilities, and with respect to data collection, is insufficient.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that women and girls with disabilities are mainstreamed into all gender equality policies, laws, regulations and action plans in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, with a special focus on the collaboration with women and girls with disabilities, in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention;
- (b) Adopt and implement effective measures to empower women and girls with disabilities and to ensure their protection from gender-based discrimination, including intersectional discrimination, and that such measures provide for effective access to all rights and services for women and girls with disabilities, both in urban and in rural areas on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Include a gender perspective in all legislation, policies and programmes for persons with disabilities and in the collection of data on all issues;
- (d) In taking the above measures, be particularly guided by general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, and target 5.1, 5.2, 5.5 and 5 (c) of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Honduras (2017)

15. Preocupa al Comité la falta de implementación de las normas y políticas públicas sobre los derechos de las mujeres así como la ausencia de políticas y estrategias para la prevención y sanción de la violencia en contra de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad.

16. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que incluya a las mujeres con discapacidad en los planes y estrategias del Programa Nacional de Discapacidad. Asimismo, recomienda que el Instituto Nacional de las Mujeres revise las políticas sobre discapacidad para incluir un enfoque de género, y revise las políticas de combate a la violencia contra las mujeres para incluir la dimensión de discapacidad, asegurando que todas estas acciones se hagan en consulta con mujeres y niñas con discapacidad a través de sus organizaciones representativas. Además, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte armonizar su legislación sobre los derechos sexuales y reproductivos con la Convención y desarrollar acciones para garantizar el respeto de los derechos sexuales y reproductivos de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

14. The Committee is concerned about multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, including several forms of gender-based violence against them, as well as the absence of public policies aimed at ensuring their development, advancement and empowerment. It also notes with concern that legislation and public policies emphasise caring roles of women in families with children with disabilities, instead of recognising women and girls with disabilities themselves as rights-holders under the Convention.

15. The Committee, in line with its General Comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognise in its legislation and practices the principle of equality between women and men with disabilities established in article 3 (g) of the Convention, and undertake measures to prevent multiple and intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Establish a time frame and a strategy to enforce the comprehensive legislation for securing women against violence, and prohibit all forms of gender- based violence against women and girls with disabilities, including within the family;

(c) Ensure that the Office of the Vice-president for Women and Family Affairs allocates human, technical and budgetary resources for the advancement of the rights of women and girls with disabilities, promote full participation of organizations of women with disabilities in its work;

(d) Ratify the Convention on the Elimination of All forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and its Optional Protocol; and

(e) Bear in mind its obligations under article 6 of the Convention while implementing targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Jordan (2017)

15. The Committee notes with concern the lack of a coordinated and strategic framework to combat intersectional discrimination experienced by women and girls with disabilities, including the cultural stigma regarding their ability to marry and found a family. It notes the absence of a disability perspective in all elements of the National Strategy for Women (2013-2017), including in strategic plans for the provision of reproductive health services in the State party.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a legislative framework to combat the intersectional discrimination experienced by women and girls with disabilities, together with a coordinated strategy for its implementation;

(b) Mainstream rights for persons with disabilities in all national strategies and action plans for women and girls, including reproductive health strategies;

(c) Carry out awareness-raising campaigns aimed at generating a change in cultural attitudes towards women and girls with disabilities.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

12. The Committee is concerned that women and girls with disabilities face multiple discrimination and exclusion in all areas of life. It is concerned about the low participation of women with disabilities in political and public life and their invisibility in the anti-discriminatory legal provisions and policies related to women. In particular, it is concerned that:

(a) Non-consensual termination of a pregnancy on the grounds of impairment is still practised;

(b) Legislation to prevent and combat domestic violence fails to protect persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls;

(c) Mainstream services for women affected by violence are inaccessible to women and girls with disabilities and, instead of providing reasonable accommodation, redirect women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities to psychiatric hospitals.

13. With reference to its general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities and in view of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party strengthen measures to address multiple discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and mainstream the issues of women and girls with disabilities in the anti-discriminatory legal provisions and policies related to women and girls, and that it promote the representation and participation of women with disabilities in political and public life. It also recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the right of women with disabilities to sexual and reproductive health on an equal basis with others and repeal legislation that allows for the non- consensual termination of pregnancy;

(b) Incorporate a disability perspective into all policies and strategies aimed at combating gender-based violence and take measures to ensure that laws address domestic violence against women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Ensure that women and girls with disabilities affected by violence have access to immediate protection and accessible support services, including reasonable accommodation in mainstream services and shelter facilities, as well as means of redress;

(d) Ratify the Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence adopted by the Council of Europe.

14. The Committee is particularly concerned that women with disabilities, especially women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, are still living in institutions where cases of neglect, violence, forced contraceptive measures, forced abortion, forced medication, restraint and sexual abuse, including by medical staff, remain common.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen its efforts to develop efficient community-based services to advance the deinstitutionalization of women, particularly those with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;

(b) Prevent any new cases of institutionalization;

(c) Implement effective legal, policy and practical measures to address gender-based violence against women with disabilities still living in institutions and to prevent, investigate and provide redress for violations of their human rights, and prosecute those responsible;

(d) Monitor residential institutions, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, in the interim period.

Bolivia (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned about the fact that women and girls with disabilities are not mentioned in policies and strategies aimed at equal opportunities for men and women, and most notably in the National Equal Opportunities Plan "Women Building a New Bolivia for Good Living".

16. The Committee recommends that the State party review and amend the National Equal Opportunities Plan to incorporate the perspective of women with disabilities. It urges the State party to review its policies on inclusion of persons with disabilities and ensure that they include a gender perspective. The Committee further recommends that the State party be guided by article 6 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in its efforts to achieve targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

16. The Committee is concerned about the limited measures taken to mainstream the disability perspective in the policies adopted by the High-level Presidential Advisory Office for Equality for Women and the national policy on women contained in CONPES social policy paper No. 161, and about the absence of the disability perspective in the policies and legislation designed to combat discrimination and gender-based violence.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the policies and strategies of the High-level Presidential Advisory Office for Equality for Women and the national policy on women contained in CONPES social policy paper No. 161 in order to better account for women with disabilities as a priority and in a cross-cutting manner;

(b) Incorporate the disability perspective in all the policies and strategies aimed at combating gender-based violence and take account of intersectional discrimination resulting from membership in Afro-Colombian, Raizal and indigenous communities, or from living in rural or remote areas;

(c) Be guided by article 6 of the Convention in pursuing targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned that the rights of women and girls with disabilities are not effectively mainstreamed and respected in law and in practice. It is also concerned that organizations of women and girls with disabilities are neither involved nor consulted on the implementation of the Convention.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream the rights of women with disabilities in law and in practice. It also recommends that the State party ensure the consultation and involvement of organizations of women and girls with disabilities with regard to the implementation of the Convention. It further recommends that the State party take into account article 6 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, while implementing targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Guatemala (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned by the lack of attention paid by the State party to preventing and combating the intersectional discrimination that is frequently suffered by women and girls with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of women with disabilities and taking into account the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities, ensure the inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all policies and programmes on gender equality and discrimination and take remedial measures and affirmative action to eliminate discrimination against them and to empower them, making sure to include those living in rural areas or indigenous communities. The Committee also recommends systematically compiling data and statistics on the situation of women and girls with disabilities and establishing indicators that can be used to assess the impact of the measures taken to counter discrimination against them. The Committee encourages the State party to entrust the Presidential Secretariat for Women with the task of allocating dedicated human and financial resources to the advancement and empowerment of women with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party be guided by article 6 of the Convention in its implementation of targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

21. The Committee is concerned by the fact that the legislation of the State party limits or restricts the sexual and reproductive rights of women and girls with disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party bring its legislation on sexual and reproductive rights into line with the Convention and ensure that those rights are not limited or restricted for women and girls with disabilities.

Italy (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned that women and girls with disabilities are not systematically mainstreamed in the gender equality agenda and disability agenda.

14. The Committee recommends that gender be mainstreamed in disability policies and disability be mainstreamed in gender policies, both in close consultation with women and girls with disabilities and their representative organizations. It also recommends that the State party take into account article 6 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities while implementing targets 5.1, 5.2 and 5.5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The multiple forms of discrimination that women and girls with disabilities experience in the State party, including as relates to loss of personal status and rights within the family as set out in the law on personal status and the Penal Code, and the lack of measures taken to address the issue;

(b) The overall lack of information on the social, economic and political situation of women and girls with disabilities and of measures to increase the participation of women with disabilities in the making of decisions affecting them.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal all legal provisions, including those in the law on personal status and the Penal Code (see CEDAW/C/ARE/CO/2-3, para. 14) in order to ensure that women and girls, including women and girls with disabilities, enjoy rights within the family on an equal basis with men and boys;

(b) Carry out awareness-raising campaigns and education programmes at all levels, in particular the family level, to foster respect for the rights and dignity of women and girls with disabilities and combat stereotypes, prejudices and misconceptions about women and girls with disabilities;

(c) Mainstream, in consultation with representative organizations, the full range of rights of women and girls with disabilities on the women's rights agenda with a view to developing policies to promote the autonomy and full participation in society of such women and girls;

(d) Be guided by article 6 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 3 (2016) on women and girls with disabilities in the implementation of target 5 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

15. Preocupa al Comité la ausencia de un plan de igualdad de oportunidades entre mujeres y hombres, que las políticas de discapacidad no incluyan específicamente a las mujeres y niñas, así como la ausencia de políticas y estrategias para la prevención y sanción de la violencia en contra de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad.

16. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que incluya a las mujeres con discapacidad en los planes y estrategias del Pronadis y del Instituto Nacional de las Mujeres, revise las políticas sobre discapacidad para incluir un enfoque de género, y las de combate a la violencia contra las mujeres para incluir la dimensión de discapacidad. Recomienda también que dichas acciones se lleven a cabo en consulta con organizaciones representativas de mujeres y niñas con discapacidad. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 6 de la Convención y el comentario general No. 3 del Comité sobre mujeres y niñas con discapacidad y las metas 5.1, 5.2 y 5.5 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, para eliminar toda forma de discriminación, y violencia en contra de las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, promoviendo su participación plena y efectiva en la sociedad.

Chile (2016)

13. Preocupa al Comité que las políticas de género y las políticas de discapacidad del Estado parte no incluyan a las mujeres con discapacidad, y que tampoco existan políticas y estrategias dirigidas a ellas específicamente.

14. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que incorpore a las mujeres con discapacidad en las políticas de género y en las políticas de discapacidad y que ponga en marcha políticas y estrategias dirigidas a ellas específicamente, todo ello en estrecha consulta con las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad a través de las organizaciones que las representan.

Lithuania (2016)

15. The Committee notes with concern the absence of concrete measures to prevent and eradicate discrimination against women and girls with disabilities as well as multidimensional discrimination of women and girls with disabilities based on other grounds, especially on the grounds of sexual orientation and gender identity, in the action plan for the National Programme on Equal Opportunities for Women and Men 2015-2021.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party revise its action plan for the National Programme on Equal Opportunities for Women and Men 2015-2021 to include an explicit focus on prevention and eradication of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, including multiple and intersectional discrimination, as well as measures for their development, advancement and empowerment, in particular to foster their participation in public life. The Committee also recommends that the State party include measures to prevent and eradicate discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity in the action plan.

Portugal (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of actions by the State party focusing specifically on preventing and combating the multiple and intersectional discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, as well as about the lack of information in this respect. It is also concerned that women with disabilities are not consulted when designing programmes and measures related to women in general or to persons with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party incorporate the perspective of women and girls with disabilities in its gender equality policies, programmes and strategies, and the gender perspective in its disability strategies, employing a twin-track approach which also includes levelling and affirmative action measures to eliminate multiple and intersectional discrimination from all areas of life, both in urban and in rural areas. Likewise, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure that women with disabilities are consulted, through their representative organisations, on the design of programmes and measures related to all issues affecting them directly.

Serbia (2016)

11. The Committee is concerned at the lack of specific actions implemented by the State party to prevent and combat multiple and intersectional discrimination that women and girls with disabilities face, particularly in access to justice, protection against violence and abuse, education, health and employment. It is also concerned at the lack of sufficient or transparent funding and employment-related measures tailored to the needs of women with disabilities, and that women with disabilities are not consulted in the design of programs and measures aimed at women in general or at persons with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) incorporate the perspective of women and girls with disabilities in its gender equality policies, programs and strategies and the gender perspective in its strategies on disability, to eradicate its multiple and intersectional discrimination in all areas of life;
- (b) take appropriate measures to prevent and combat multiple and intersectional discrimination that women and girls with disabilities face, particularly in access to justice, protection against violence and abuse, education, health and employment;
- (c) ensure consultation with women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, on the design, implementation and evaluation of programs and measures in all matters that affect them directly;
- (d) provide sufficient resources for the improvement of the status and the employment of women with disabilities and promotion of gender equality-related programmes.

Slovakia (2016)

21. The Committee is concerned that legislation and policies on gender equality are not disability-inclusive and that legislation and policies on disability rights are not gender-sensitive. It is also concerned that the State party does not have specific policies for women with disabilities and that they are not consulted on matters that affect them directly.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream disability in all legislation and policies on gender equality, and that gender is mainstreamed in all legislation and policies on disability rights. It also recommends that the State party establish specific policies regarding women with disabilities in close consultation with them through their representative organizations.

Thailand (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned at the lack of legislation, policies or programmes designed to protect women and girls with disabilities from multiple and intersectional discrimination and violence; at the limited opportunities for women with disabilities to be systematically involved in decisions that concern them directly; and that there is no strategy to ensure the full development, advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a strategy for guaranteeing full protection against discrimination, and enjoyment of the rights of women and girls with disabilities, particularly those living in rural areas and belonging to ethnic minorities;

(b) Ensure that women and girls with disabilities can participate effectively in decision-making processes at all levels on matters that concern them directly, including in the Thai Women's Assembly;

(c) Mainstream a perspective on women and girls with disabilities in its gender equality law, strategy, policies and programmes;

(d) In consultation with representative organizations of women with disabilities, implement a strategy to promote the full development, advancement and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities.

Uganda (2016)

10. The Committee is concerned about the multiple forms of discrimination faced by women with disabilities and the absence of measures to prevent and combat different forms of discrimination, including sexual violence, abuse and exploitation against them. It is also concerned about the lack of measures for the development, advancement, and empowerment of women and girls with disabilities.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a systematic approach to the rights of women and girls with disabilities, mainstream such rights across all laws, policies and programmes and collect data disaggregated by gender and disability;

(b) Take specific measures to tackle multiple and intersectional discrimination against women with disabilities in the State party, particularly women with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, including through financing, developing and supporting schemes that increase their economic and social independence;

(c) Ensure that gender and disability policies address the situation of women with disabilities and allocate appropriate human, technical and budgetary resources to promote the development, advancement and empowerment of women with disabilities.

Brazil (2015)

14. The Committee is concerned that measures taken by the State party for preventing violence against women and girls, such as the Maria da Penha law (Law No. 11340/2006) and the Women's Assistance Hotline – Dial 180, are not effective in combatting violence against women and girls with disabilities and are not fully accessible to deaf and other women and girls with disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends the State party to take immediate action to adopt a due diligence framework to ensure that its laws, policies and programmes targeting violence against women, including institutionalized women are accessible and effective in preventing and redressing violence against women and girls with disabilities, and include specific measures, targets and indicators.

16. The Committee is also concerned that the State party does not have a strategy to ensure the full development, advancement and empowerment of women with disabilities in accordance with article 6, paragraph 2 of the Convention.

17. The Committee recommends that, in consultation with women with disabilities and their representative organizations, the State party implement a strategy to promote each of the three elements of article 6, paragraph 2 of the Convention.

European Union (2015)

20. The Committee is concerned that the European Union has neither mainstreamed a disability perspective in all its gender policies, programs and strategies, nor adopted a gender perspective in its disability strategies.

21. The Committee recommends that the European Union mainstream women and girls with disabilities' perspective in its forthcoming Gender Equality Strategy, policies and programs, as well as a gender perspective in its disability strategies. It further recommends that the European Union develop affirmative actions to advance the rights of women and girls with disabilities, establish a mechanism to monitor progress, and fund data collection and research on women and girls with disabilities. It further recommends that the European Union accede to the Council of Europe Istanbul Convention as a step to combating violence against women and girls with disabilities.

Gabon (2015)

14. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific provisions targeting women and girls with disabilities and the absence of mainstreaming of their rights in legislation, policies and programs concerning women and gender equality such as the Decade on Women (2015-2025), as well as the lack of an explicit definition of discrimination against women. In addition, the Committee is concerned about the lack of implementation of social policies to allocate resources for women and children with disabilities including those living in rural areas and belonging to indigenous populations (pygmy communities) and ethnic minorities, and the lack of participation of women with disabilities in decision-making processes.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a twin track approach to ensure measures targeting women and girls with disabilities, comprising the immediate incorporation of a prohibition of discrimination against women which addresses situations of intersectional discrimination including on the basis of disability; the allocation of specific resources for women and girls with disabilities, specifically in the National Strategy on Gender Equality and Equity; as well as the close consultation and active involvement of women with disabilities in decision making processes, including in the above-mentioned strategy and in the Decade of Women of Gabon.

Kenya (2015)

11. The Committee is concerned about the multiple forms of discrimination faced by women with disabilities and the absence of measures to prevent and combat different forms of discrimination against them. It is also concerned about the lack of information on public policies and programmes on gender equality that include the rights of women and girls with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Systematically collect data and statistics on the situation of women and girls with disabilities living in rural and urban areas, belonging to ethnic minorities and pastoralist communities;

(b) Strengthen the mandate of the National Gender and Equality Commission with allocation of human, technical and budgetary resources specifically aimed at the advancement of the rights of women with disabilities; and

(c) Adopt a national strategy with a timeframe and indicators, to address intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, including those living in rural and urban areas, and ensure their effective participation in the design, implementation and monitoring of such strategy.

Mauritius (2015)

11. The Committee is concerned that the relations between the 'Forum of Women with Disabilities' and the State party remain unclear. The Committee also regrets that the particular situation of women and girls with disabilities is not adequately taken into account in the State party legislations and policies, as highlighted notably by the absence of any provisions concerning them in the Protection from Domestic Violence Act.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party, in full cooperation with organizations of women and girls with disabilities, include their rights into all laws, policies and programmes and take all necessary measures to protect them from multiple and intersectional discrimination and violence to enable them to fully enjoy all their rights under the Convention. The State party should ensure that laws against gender based discrimination and violence provide for proportionate enforceable sanctions and effective remedies.

Qatar (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned about the multiple forms of discrimination that women and girls with disabilities experience in the State party. It is concerned about the overall lack of information on the social, economic and political situation of women and girls with disabilities, and on the limited participation of women with disabilities in making decisions affecting them in general. It is also concerned that measures to mainstream the rights and needs of women and girls with disabilities in strategies have not been implemented.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party carry out awareness-raising campaigns and education programmes at all levels, particularly targeted at the family level, in order to foster respect for the rights and dignity of women and girls with disabilities, and combat stereotypes, prejudices and misconceptions about women and girls with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party, in consultation with women and girls with disabilities, through their representative organizations, mainstream their rights across the women's rights agenda with a view to developing policies to promote their autonomy and full participation in society.

Ukraine (2015)

11. The Committee is seriously concerned about the reports of trafficking, sexual abuse and exploitation of women with disabilities in institutions. It is also concerned that laws and policies of the State party promoting the equality of women do not take into account the situation of women with disabilities. Furthermore, it is concerned about the lack of data on gender-based violence against women with disabilities and the lack of access for women with disabilities to temporary shelters and services aimed at victims of domestic violence.

12. The Committee recommends the State party to take all necessary measures to conduct prompt and effective investigation into all reports of trafficking, sexual abuse and exploitation of women and girls with disabilities in institutions and prosecute and adequately punish perpetrators as well as take measures to provide remedies to victims of such crimes. The Committee also recommends that the State party ensure that all its policies and regulations on gender equality and combatting gender based violence address the situation of women and girls with disabilities. Furthermore, it urges the State party to revise its normative standards in order to provide access for all women and girls with disabilities who are subjected to violence, including physical access to its shelters and services aimed at victims of domestic violence.

Cook Islands (2015)

11. The Committee is concerned that the State party does not adequately address the question of promoting the full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in all spheres of life, particularly in health, education and employment.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party improve measures to promote the full inclusion of women and girls with disabilities by:

(a) Establishing a formal consultation mechanism to ensure that women and girls with disabilities across the country and their representative organisations are meaningfully consulted and are enabled to participate in the legislative and political spheres;

(b) Taking concrete steps to mainstream the rights of women and girls with disabilities across all laws, policies and programmes regarding gender equality, in line with the Convention.

Croatia (2015)

9. The Committee is concerned that a high proportion of women with disabilities have only primary school education or less. Moreover it is concerned about the gap between the number of men with disabilities and women with disabilities in employment. The Committee is worried about reports on violence against women and girls with disabilities in families and in institutions, in particular psychiatric institutions.

10. The Committee recommends that in consultation with organisations representing women with disabilities, measures are taken to advance the development and empowerment of women with disabilities in fields such as education and employment, and that immediate action is taken for the protection of women and girls with disabilities against violence, including sexual violence. The Committee recommends to mainstream women with disabilities into general gender equality policies. It recommends that both these measures and action should be accompanied by sufficient budget and clear time lines. The Committee recommends to systematically collect data and statistics on the situation of women and girls with disabilities with indicators that assess intersectional discrimination as well as to include an analysis of them in their next periodical report.

Czech Republic (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned at the absence of actions to prevent and combat multiple discrimination faced by women and children with disabilities, as well as, the lack of data on women and girls with disabilities relevant to combating inter-sectional discrimination they face.

14. The Committee calls upon the State party to implement programs and actions for women and children with disabilities, including measures for equality and affirmative action both in terms of disability and equality policy, as well as establishing a framework for data collection relevant to combating inter-sectional discrimination of women and girls with disabilities, in line with article 31 of the Convention and taking into account the conceptual and methodological framework for human rights indicators (HR/PUB/12/5), and step up implementation of the adopted policies to combat the above-mentioned discrimination.

Dominican Republic (2015)

10. The Committee is concerned that women and girls with disabilities are not specifically included in any of the seven priority objectives of the 2007–2017 Second National Gender Equality and Equity Plan. It is also concerned that the disability perspective is not applied in the work and policies of the Ministry for Women.

11. The Committee recommends that the State party include objectives for and indicators of the inclusion of women with disabilities in its national gender equity plans and in the work and policies of the Ministry for Women, in close consultation with organizations of the women concerned.

Germany (2015)

15. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient action to prevent and combat multiple discrimination of women and girls with disabilities, particularly migrants and refugees, and the inadequate collection of relevant data.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Implement programmes for women and girls with disabilities, particularly migrant and refugee women and girls, including affirmative action to eliminate discrimination in all areas of life;

(b) Systematically collect data and statistics on the situation of women and girls with disabilities with indicators to assess intersectional discrimination and include analytical information in this regard in its next periodic report.

Mongolia (2015)

11. The Committee is concerned about the overall lack of information on social, economic and political situations of girls and women with disabilities in Mongolian society, the incidence of violence, sexual abuse, and the limited extent to which women with disabilities participate in making decisions affecting them in general.

12. The Committee urges the State party to undertake consultations with women and girls with disabilities with a view to using these as a basis for implementing law reform and policy changes, with particular attention to their family lives, education, health services, employment and combating domestic and/or sexual violence. The Committee also recommends that the gender policy of the State party include girls and children with disabilities.

Turkmenistan (2015)

15. The Committee is concerned that women and girls with disabilities experience compounded forms of discrimination which affect their rights to education, health, employment and be protected from violence. It is also concerned at the lack of concrete information on the impact of the measures taken by the State party to involve women and girls with disabilities in development programmes and ensure their rights under the Convention.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party design and implement effective programmes, as part of the Law on State Guarantees of Equality of Women, including affirmative action measures, to promote the rights of women and girls with disabilities and eliminate discrimination against them in all aspects of life, and ensure that their views are duly considered in development programmes.

New Zealand (2014)

15. The Committee notes the projects funded by the Ministry of Social Affairs to assist women with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that this work be continued and strengthened to assist women with disabilities in obtaining education and employment and in combating domestic violence. The Committee also recommends that organizations representing women and girls with disabilities be involved in these programmes.

Denmark (2014)

18. The Committee is concerned that the Act on Gender Equality does not specifically address women and girls with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that the State party has not undertaken any specific initiatives aimed at women and girls with disabilities in the educational system, nor any specific measures for women with disabilities to find or maintain employment.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the perspective of gender and disability is encompassed in its laws and policies and its sectorial services, and in the implementation and evaluation of these. The Committee also recommends that the State party take measures to increase opportunities for adequate education and employment for women and girls with disabilities.

Republic of Korea (2014)

13. The Committee is concerned that legislation and policies concerning persons with disabilities do not include a gender perspective. It is also concerned about the lack of sufficient measures to prevent domestic violence against women with disabilities and sexual violence against women with disabilities, both inside and outside residential institutions. It is further concerned at the difficulties faced by women and girls with disabilities in participating in lifelong education programmes and at the lack of sufficient support for women with disabilities during pregnancy and childbearing.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream a gender perspective in its disability legislation and policies and develop specialized policies for women with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party take effective measures to address violence against women with disabilities, both inside and outside residential institutions, in particular by introducing a disability-sensitive perspective when formulating educational programmes on preventing sexual and domestic violence. The Committee further recommends that the State party ensure that women with disabilities receive appropriate lifelong education according to their choices and needs, regardless of whether they have finished or were excluded from mainstream education. It also recommends that the State party increase its support to women with disabilities during pregnancy and childbearing.

Belgium (2014)

13. The Committee is concerned at the lack of knowledge about whether women with disabilities are discriminated against because of their gender and about the extent to which women and girls with disabilities are discriminated against as compared to men and boys with disabilities, and to women without disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the integration of gender and disability perspectives in its legislation and policies, surveys, plans, evaluation and monitoring activities and services. It also recommends that the State party adopt effective and specific measures to prevent intersecting forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities.

Ecuador (2014)

16. The Committee is concerned about the discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities, which is aggravated by the convergence of various factors of social exclusion relating to gender and disability. It is also concerned that the National Council for Gender Equality has not taken measures to mainstream the needs of women and girls with disabilities and that such women and girls do not participate directly in the Council.

17. The Committee recommends that: (a) The State party implement the legislation and all programmes and activities targeting women and girls with disabilities, including measures of remediation and affirmative action, in order to eradicate discrimination against them in all spheres of life, in both urban and rural areas, by ensuring their effective participation in the design and implementation of such measures; (b) The National Council for Gender Equality incorporate into its work measures to address intersectional discrimination against women, taking into consideration disability as a factor of exclusion, and ensure the direct participation of women with disabilities in the Council.

Mexico (2014)

13. The Committee is concerned at the lack of specific assistance measures implemented by the State party to prevent and combat intersectional discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and the lack of information in this regard.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Put into effect the legislation and all of the programmes and actions targeting women and girls with disabilities, including corrective measures and affirmative action, to eradicate discrimination in all aspects of life, in both urban and rural areas, and to ensure their effective participation in the design and implementation of these measures;

(b) Systematically compile data and statistics on the situation of women and girls with disabilities, together with indicators for the evaluation of intersectional discrimination.

Sweden (2014)

13. The Committee is concerned that there is little knowledge about whether women with disabilities are discriminated against because of their gender, and to which degree women and girls with disabilities are discriminated against as compared to men and boys with disabilities. It is further concerned that studies, policies and plans of action concerning persons with disabilities do not include a gender perspective.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the perspective of gender and disability permeates its legislation and policies, surveys and plans, its implementation, evaluation and monitoring activities and its services. It also recommends that the State party adopt effective and specific measures to prevent intersectional forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities

Azerbaijan (2014)

16. The Committee notes that the State party has adopted a Law on Gender Equality N-150-IIIQ of 2006 and another on the Prevention of Domestic Violence in 2010. However, the Committee is concerned that these pieces of legislation do not specifically address women and girls with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt effective and specific measures to guarantee equality and to prohibit multiple forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt a twin track approach to mainstream a disability perspective into its gender legislation and policy, including with respect to addressing violence against women and ensuring effective access to information and services on sexual and reproductive health; and to facilitate advocacy by and on behalf of women and girls with disabilities. In this regard, the Committee encourages the State party to ensure that the National Activity Plan on the "Enhancement of the Efficiency of Human Rights and Freedoms" addresses the rights of women and girls with disabilities.

Costa Rica (2014)

13. The Committee regrets the absence of measures in the State party to achieve de facto equality of women with disabilities and of measures to ensure that women and girls with disabilities are effectively included in general gender equality policies. It is further concerned about the lack of specific actions by the National Institute for Women in respect of women and girls with disabilities and the lack of information provided by the State party on the progress of measures taken to accelerate their full and effective participation in political and public affairs.

14. The Committee requests the State party to ensure the inclusion of women and girls with disabilities in policies for women and gender equality through greater participation in the National Institute for Women. It further requests the State party to take steps to protect women and girls with disabilities from discrimination on the basis of disability and gender; and to accelerate measures to ensure their full and effective participation in political affairs.

Australia (2013)

16. The Committee is concerned at reports of high incidence of violence and sexual abuse against women with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party includes a more comprehensive consideration of women with disabilities in public programmes and policies on the prevention of gender-based violence, particularly so as to ensure access for women with disabilities to an effective, integrated response system.

Austria (2013)

16. While much has been achieved, the Committee notes that substantive equality between women and men has not yet been achieved. Women with disabilities face multiple forms of discrimination because of their gender and disability and may also be at risk of sexual violence and abuse.

17. The Committee is concerned about a lack of advocacy and support structures for women with disabilities. The Committee notes with concern that there is only one organisation representing women and it does not cover all women with disabilities in the State party.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt effective and specific measures to ensure equality and to prevent multiple forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities. The Committee encourages the State party to mainstream a gender perspective in its disability legislation and policy, and to facilitate advocacy by and on behalf of women and girls with disabilities. The Committee also encourages the State party, including the Länder, to offer services which are accessible to and targeted at women with disabilities.

El Salvador (2013)

17. The Committee is concerned that the Special Act on a Violence-Free Life for Women does not recognize the multiple forms of discrimination against women with disabilities. It is also worrying that organizations of women with disabilities are not encouraged to participate in decision-making.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party recognize in the law the multiple forms of discrimination against women and girls with disabilities and that it adopt specific legislation and strategies to fight them. The Committee recommends setting up a mechanism for the collection of disaggregated data on the situation of women and girls with disabilities, in consultation with organizations of women with disabilities.

Paraguay (2013)

17. The Committee notes the adoption of the third National Plan for Equal Opportunities for Women and Men 2008–2017, which includes women with disabilities as a cross-cutting theme. The Committee is nevertheless concerned that the actions set forth in the Plan make no reference to structural factors that prevent women with disabilities from exercising their rights. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the risks of violence to women, including forced sterilization, sexual and economic exploitation, and abuse and trafficking in persons.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party institute as a matter of urgency effective measures to identify, prevent and provide protection from the multiple discrimination suffered by women and girls with disabilities, in particular women and girls with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities and hearing impairments. The Committee also recommends the establishment of accessible care centres for women and girls who are victims of these forms of violence in urban and rural areas, in consultation with organizations representing women with disabilities.

Argentina (2012)

13. The Committee takes note with concern of the unconvincing measures taken by the State party to address the specific needs of women and girls with disabilities, and it regrets the lack of proper protection for their rights (see CEDAW/C/ARG/CO/6, paras. 43 and 44). It is particularly concerned that there is no strategy for mainstreaming gender and disability issues into legislation and programmes focusing on women, including those that deal with violence, access to justice, sexual and reproductive rights, and access to the labour market.

14. The Committee urges the State party to adopt a strategy for guaranteeing full protection and enjoyment of the rights of women and girls with disabilities, while also ensuring their effective participation in decision-making processes. In addition, the Committee recommends that the State party incorporate a disability perspective into all gender-equality policies and programmes, thereby guaranteeing the full and effective participation of women with disabilities on the same footing as other women.

China (2012)

57. The Committee is concerned about the discrimination faced by women and girls with disabilities and the lack of action of Hong Kong, China, government to reduce the occurrence of discrimination, such as neglecting article 6 in the promotion of the CRPD. The Committee is also troubled by the repeated occurrence of domestic violence against women and girls with disabilities.

58. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong, China, Women's Commission should integrate the amelioration of the living situation of women and girls with disabilities in their mandate and include a representative of women with disabilities in its Commission. It also asks Hong Kong, China, to raise awareness on article 6 of the CRPD, so as to ensure that women with disabilities enjoy their rights on an equal basis with men. In addition, the Committee calls upon Hong Kong, China, to prevent domestic violence against women with disabilities and to prosecute and punish the perpetrators and all those responsible.

Hungary (2012)

19. The Committee takes note that the State party's Government Decree 1004/2010 (I.21.) on the National Strategy Promoting the Social Equality of Women and Men "treats the implementation of measures promoting the equality of women and specifically the equality of women with disabilities in their full integrity" (CRPD/C/HUN/Q/1/Add.1). However, the Committee regrets the lack of specific actions aimed at promoting the equality of women and girls with disabilities in the Strategy.

20. The Committee calls upon the State party to adopt effective and specific measures to ensure equality and prevent multiple forms of discrimination of women and girls with disabilities in its policies, and to mainstream a gender perspective in its disability-related legislation and policies.

Peru (2012)

14. The Committee is concerned at the lack of measures directed towards women with disabilities in the Law 27050 and in the National Plan for Persons with Disabilities 2009-2018. The Committee wishes to remind the State party that women can be subjected to multiple forms of discrimination, as already noted by the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women in its last concluding observations (CEDAW/C/PER/CO/6). The Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities further notes with concern that women with disabilities do not benefit from special protection in the National Plan against Violence towards Women 2009-2015.

15. The Committee urges the State party to accelerate its efforts to eradicate and prevent discrimination against women and girls with disabilities, by incorporating gender and disability perspectives in all programmes, as well as by ensuring their full and equal participation in decision-making. The Committee urges the State party to amend its legislative framework to provide special protection to women and girls with disabilities, as well as to adopt effective measures to prevent and redress violence against women and girls with disabilities.

Spain (2011)

21. The Committee is concerned that public programmes and policies on the prevention of gender-based violence do not sufficiently take into consideration the particular situation of women with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that employment policies do not include a comprehensive gender perspective and that unemployment, inactivity and training rates are significantly worse for women than for men with disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Include a more comprehensive consideration of women with disabilities in public programmes and policies on the prevention of gender-based violence, particularly so as to ensure access for women with disability to an effective, integrated response system;
- (b) Include a gender perspective in employment policies, and particularly specific measures for women with disabilities;
- (c) Elaborate and develop strategies, policies and programmes, especially in the fields of education, employment, health and social protection, to promote the autonomy and full participation of women and girls with disability in society, and to combat violence against them.

Tunisia (2011)

14. While noting the improvements in the condition of women in general, the Committee is concerned by the negative perception of women with disabilities within the family and society, and the reported cultural, traditional and family pressures that favour the concealment of women with disabilities, and prevents them from obtaining a disability card, thereby limiting their opportunities to participate in society, and develop to their full potential.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Design and implement awareness-raising campaigns and education programmes throughout society, including at the family level, on women with disabilities in order to foster respect for their rights and dignity; combat stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices; and promote awareness of their capabilities and contributions;
- (b) Ensure the visibility of women with disabilities in the collection of data and statistics (see paragraph 37 below);
- (c) Undertake studies and research in order to identify the situation and specific requirements of women with disabilities, with a view to elaborating and adopting strategies, policies and programmes, especially in the fields of education, employment, health and social protection, to promote their autonomy and full participation in society, and to combat violence against women.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 7 CRPD
(Children with disabilities)*

September 2025

Article 7 - Children with disabilities

- 1. States Parties shall take all necessary measures to ensure the full enjoyment by children with disabilities of all human rights and fundamental freedoms on an equal basis with other children.*
- 2. In all actions concerning children with disabilities, the best interests of the child shall be a primary consideration.*
- 3. States Parties shall ensure that children with disabilities have the right to express their views freely on all matters affecting them, their views being given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity, on an equal basis with other children, and to be provided with disability and age-appropriate assistance to realize that right.*

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)

Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)

European Union (2015)

Gabon (2015)

Kenya (2015)

Mauritius (2015)

Qatar (2015)

Ukraine (2015)

Croatia (2015)

Belgium (2014)

Ecuador (2014)

Mexico (2014)

Costa Rica (2014)

Australia (2013)

Austria (2013)

Argentina (2012)

China (2012)

Hong-Kong

Hungary (2012)

Peru (2012)

Spain (2011)

Tunisia (2011)

Please note there are no recommendations on Article 7 in the first Concluding Observations on Republic of Korea.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

11. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Accessible, stigma-free, and community-based paediatric screening services for early identification, diagnosis, and registration of disabilities are lacking, particularly in rural and remote areas, increasing the risk of isolation from society and seclusion at home, particularly for children with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) The registration system for children with disabilities is inadequately implemented outside Pyongyang, with insufficient legal frameworks to ensure coordinated support, and the State Party has not provided information on measures taken so that children with disabilities who are socially isolated, including those confined to their homes and in rural and remote areas, are registered;
- (c) National data systems do not collect or analyse disaggregated data on children with disabilities, especially those under five, in institutional care, or outside Pyongyang, and do not report on the availability or reach of support services;
- (d) Children with disabilities living with their families in rural and remote areas face limited access to services and support, resulting in social exclusion and unequal opportunities.

12. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Establish accessible, stigma-free, community-based paediatric screening and early diagnosis services nationwide, and adopt measures to prevent the social isolation of children with disabilities by promoting their inclusion in family, education, community, and public life;
- (b) Implement a transparent, nationwide registration system supported by a legal framework ensuring coordinated services, support, and protections for children with disabilities, particularly outside Pyongyang;
- (c) Develop and maintain systems to collect, analyse, and publish disaggregated data – covering age, gender, disability type, and location – on children with disabilities, including those under five, in institutions, and in rural and remote areas, to inform policy and programmes;
- (d) Expand and adequately resource services and support for children with disabilities living with their families in rural and remote areas to ensure equal opportunities and full inclusion.

Finland (2025)

12. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The Open Government Action Plan 2023-2027 includes children with disabilities only implicitly;
- (b) Services and support for children with disabilities do not always allow them to live with their families in their communities;
- (c) Children with disabilities face barriers in accessing health care services, including mental health services;
- (d) Children with disabilities may face challenges in obtaining support to freely express their requirements and views on all matters affecting them, and for those requirements and views to be given due weight in accordance with a child's age and maturity.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of children with disabilities into all its laws, public policies, action plans and strategies, including in the Open Government Action Plan 2023-2027;
- (b) Provide adequate and appropriate services and support for children with disabilities, including children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, to live with their families in their communities, and ensure that deaf children with disabilities who have cochlear implants can in fact learn sign language and participate in deaf culture, and provide the adequate support mechanisms to this end;

- (c) Guarantee access of children with disabilities to health care services, including mental health services, and raise awareness among health care personnel on the rights and requirements of children with disabilities;
- (d) Improve accessible mechanisms for consultation of children with disabilities in all matters affecting them, and provide accessible, age-appropriate information and support to children with disabilities to participate in these mechanisms.

Kiribati (2025)

13. The Committee notes with concern the insufficient inclusion of children with disabilities in the design and implementation of policies and programs focused on children and young people, including the National Youth Policy and Action Plan 2018-2022, and those focused on disability, including the National Disability Policy and Action Plan.

14. Recalling its joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive disability-inclusive child rights policy and strategic plan to consolidate and implement actions to progress the rights of all children throughout the State party, including through mechanisms to ensure the inclusion of children with disabilities in the design and implementation of policies and programs focused on children and those focused on disability.

Maldives (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned at the limited implementation and enforcement of the existing legal framework for the protection of the rights of children with disabilities, in particular the insufficient early identification and intervention measures, barriers to access education, inadequate family support and risk of removal of children from their families. It is also concerned at the lack of provisions on the evolving capacities of children with disabilities and the lack of mechanisms to consult with children with disabilities and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them.

14. Recalling its joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the implementation of the Child Rights Protection Act and other relevant legislation to ensure early screening and intervention mechanisms which should be well documented and monitored, from infancy through the adolescence, involving health, education and social services, including referral pathways;
- (b) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the children's age and maturity;
- (c) Provide training of health, social services and educational professionals on the rights of children with disabilities and provide support to families of children with disabilities to ensure their adequate protection and respect for their best interest.

Canada (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The legal and institutional frameworks for children do not mainstream disability, and that significant disparities in policies and across federal, provincial, and territorial levels hinder the effective protection of their rights;
- (b) Programmes of the State Party on daycare and early childhood programs do not sufficiently address the requirements of children with disabilities, parents of children with disabilities, and of parents with disabilities;
- (c) Policies for children with disabilities do not incorporate the requirements, experiences, and cultural contexts of Indigenous children with disabilities and Black and other racialised children with disabilities, and that a lack of support for their families frequently forces their children to be placed into residential care or long-term care institutions;

(d) The Children's Rights Impact Assessment does not mainstream disability;

(e) The State Party lacks procedures and supports for children with disabilities to freely express their requirements and views on all matters affecting them, and for them to be given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity;

(f) Eligible supports available to First Nations children with disabilities under Jordan's Principle have been restricted, the planned defunding of the Inuit Child First Initiative and lack of an equivalent measure for the provision of supports for Métis children with disabilities.

14. Recalling its past Concluding Observations (CRPD/C/CAN/CO/1, paras. 17 and 18) and its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities:

(a) Mainstream the rights of children with disabilities into all its laws, public policies, action plans and strategies, at all levels and branches of government, including in Bill C-35 on early learning and childcare in Canada, and develop disaggregated data and indicators to measure the effective protection of the rights of children with disabilities guaranteed by the Convention;

(b) Allocate sufficient human, technical and financial support to ensure that children with disabilities have access to daycare and early childhood programs, on an equal basis with other children, and provide support to caregivers and early learning centres to stimulate and teach children with disabilities, including children with disabilities requiring more intensive support, such as children with multiple disabilities or who are deafblind;

(c) Ensure that all policies and programs affecting Indigenous and Black and other racialised children with disabilities are fully responsive to their requirements, experiences, and cultural context;

(d) Amend the Children's Rights Impact Assessment to mainstream disability and render the assessments reached with this tool publicly accessible;

(e) Establish accessible mechanisms for children with disabilities to freely express their requirements and views in all matters affecting them, and ensure that they are given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity in all legislative and administrative processes, on the Federal level and in the provinces and territories;

(f) Review decisions to restrict eligible supports under Jordan's Principle, and reconsider defunding the Inuit Child First Initiative, ensure that First Nations and Inuit children with disabilities receive adequate and timely supports and establish an equivalent program for Métis children with disabilities.

Dominican Republic (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The existing support programmes and services for children with disabilities is not sufficiently effective or widely accessible;

(b) The National System for the Protection of Children and Adolescents (SNP) continues to have structural deficiencies in providing care for children with disabilities and ensuring the prevention of violence, abuse and neglect including by its low levels of funding, a shortage of trained and certified personnel, and universally accessible spaces;

(c) The involvement of children with disabilities in decision-making processes that affect their lives is limited, and, while provisions exist to support such involvement, there is insufficient evidence to show that the views of children with disabilities are consistently and effectively considered.

14. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen and expand support programmes for children with disabilities, focusing on education, healthcare and inclusion, and ensure that these programmes are adequately funded, widely accessible and effectively monitored;
- (b) Take urgent measures to strengthen the National System for the Protection of Children and Adolescents (SNP) to ensure adequate care, protection, and inclusion of children with disabilities, including by increasing funding, recruiting and training certified personnel and ensuring that all services, facilities, and complaint mechanisms are universally accessible;
- (c) Develop mechanisms to ensure that children with disabilities can freely express their views on all matters affecting them and that their views are given due weight according to their age and maturity and provide age-, gender- and disability-responsive support to facilitate their participation.

European Union (2025)

22. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Institutionalization, violence and exclusion of children with disabilities across EU Member States, and the insufficient mainstreaming of the rights of children with disabilities in EU legislation and in legislation of Member States transposing EU law;
- (b) The limited availability of disaggregated data about the situation of children with disabilities, including children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, autistic children, children in institutions, and in situations of migration;

23. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the European Union:

- (a) Consistently mainstream the rights of children with disabilities across all children rights legislation, policies and projects, and introduce effective measures against institutionalization in its internal and external action and in the implementation of the Child Rights Strategy, the European Child Guarantee for vulnerable children, and the 2024 Commission Recommendation on developing and strengthening integrated child protection systems in the best interests of the child;
- (b) Strengthen the collection of disaggregated data on children with disabilities, including children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, living in institutions, and in situations of migration, to inform legislative, policy and funding measures addressing multiple and intersectional discrimination against children with disabilities.

Palau (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Limited access of children with disabilities to social and health-care services and education, particularly children with disabilities in rural communities and on the outer islands;
- (b) The lack of disability- and age-appropriate assistance for children with disabilities to participate and express their views on matters affecting them.

14. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the principle of the best interests of the child and respect the evolving capacities of children with disabilities in strategies and programmes on the rights of the children, and ensure their access to social and health-care services and inclusive education, on an equal basis with other children;
- (b) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity.

Tuvalu (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the insufficient inclusion of the rights of children with disabilities in laws, policies and programs focused on children, including in the National Youth Policy and the National Advisory Committee for Children's Rights;

(b) At the insufficient coordination mechanism to implement laws, policies and programs focused on children and those focused on children with disabilities, including the National Disability Policy 2018 and through the National Disability Coordinating Committee.

14. Recalling its joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a comprehensive disability inclusive children's policy and strategic plan to consolidate and implement actions to progress the rights of all children throughout the State party;

(b) Strengthen coordination, monitoring and evaluation of laws, policies and programs relating to children's rights by ensuring collaboration and partnership arrangements between the National Advisory Committee for Children's Rights and the National Disability Coordinating Committee.

Viet Nam (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Despite the State party's legal framework protecting children with disabilities, significant barriers remain in ensuring their access to inclusive education, early intervention programmes, and individualized support services;

(b) Children with disabilities are at a higher risk of abuse, neglect, and exploitation, but there is a lack of comprehensive data on the issue, and limited systems to ensure effective intervention and protection;

(c) Many children with disabilities are placed in institutional care, which hinders their inclusion into family and community life, contrary to the principles of the Convention;

(d) The lack of accessible information and communication tools prevents children with disabilities from fully participating in decision-making processes that affect their lives, including at home, in school, and within the community;

(e) Children with disabilities, especially those living in rural and remote areas, often lack access to healthcare services.

14. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take steps to ensure that all children with disabilities have equal access to inclusive education, early intervention programmes, and individualized support services, as well as improve the quality of such services to address their diverse needs;

(b) Enhance data collection on violence, abuse, and neglect of children with disabilities, ensuring that comprehensive and disaggregated data is used to strengthen protective mechanisms and support effective intervention programmes;

(c) Promote family-based care and community inclusion over institutionalization by developing policies that provide adequate support for children with disabilities and their families, ensuring their rights to live and grow within their communities;

(d) Ensure that children with disabilities, including indigenous children with disabilities, have access to accessible information and communication tools that enable them to participate in decision-making at home, school, and community levels, in accordance with their evolving capacities;

(e) Improve access to healthcare services for children with disabilities, particularly in rural and remote areas, by enhancing the availability of specialized healthcare, rehabilitation services, and assistive devices, and making them affordable and accessible to all children with disabilities.

Belarus (2024)

13. The Committee is concerned about the insufficiency within the existing system of social services and benefits as required for children with disabilities and their families.

14. Recalling the concluding observations adopted by the Committee on the Rights of the Child in 2020 (CRC/C/BLR/CO/5-6), and the Joint Declaration of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party develop a national plan with clear targets and timeframe towards phasing out institutionalization of children, and promote inclusion of children with disabilities enabling their life and inclusion within local community.

Belgium (2024)

14. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Children with disabilities are not included in decisions affecting their lives, on all levels of government;

(b) Support services for children with disabilities living in their homes are exceedingly scarce, leading to their increased institutionalization and placement in other non-inclusive structures.

15. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, including organisations of children with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

(a) Amend legislation on the relevant levels of government to ensure the right of children with disabilities to express their views freely on all matters affecting them, their views being given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity, and to be provided with disability and age-appropriate assistance to realize this right;

(b) Allocate sufficient resources to develop and provide the necessary support measures for children with disabilities and the persons caring for them to avoid their placement in institutions and in other non-inclusive structures.

Benin (2024)

13. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the national legislation, including the Law N° 2015-08 of 23 January 2015 the Children's Code insufficiently address the rights of children with disabilities, particularly their right to be heard in matters concerning them;

(b) By the absence of strategies in place to support providers of support and caregivers and early learning centres to stimulate and teach children with disabilities.

14. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take legislative and policy measures to provide support to children with disabilities and their families to ensure that they exercise their rights to participation on an equal basis with other children, and ensure inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family life and community life, by developing community-based inclusive strategies and programmes at the national and local levels;

(b) Amend the Children's Code to withdraw provisions in article 177 about segregated special education, include clear provisions on children with disabilities in all areas of life, and establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the children's age and maturity;

(c) Develop strategies for providing support required by children with disabilities, including by strengthening family and community networks providing support, allocating human, technical and financial support for children with support needs and supporting caregivers and early learning centres to stimulate and teach children with disabilities.

Burkina Faso (2024)

14. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The fact that children with disabilities are deprived, marginalized and highly vulnerable to poverty, malnutrition, and neglect. In particular, the Committee notes with concern that children with disabilities have lower rates of school attendance at all levels of education and lower rates of support and assistance;
- (b) The insufficient participation of children with disabilities in the Children's Parliament and lack of systematic involvement in decisions that affect their lives as a result, especially in rural areas.

15. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities , as well as targets 16.2 and 16.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a comprehensive strategy for the inclusion of children with disabilities. The strategy should be developed in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities, prioritize community-based inclusive strategies and programmes at the national and local levels and provide for measures to address child poverty and deprivation, prevent abandonment and ensure the accessibility of information and communications, transportation and community settings, such as schools, health-care facilities, libraries and sports centres;
- (b) Strengthen the implementation of processes that facilitate the effective participation of all children with disabilities and ensure that they are able to express their views freely on all matters affecting them, including through affirmative action to increase their participation in the Childrens' Parliament.

Denmark (2024)

25. The Committee notes that under the Child Act, children gain party status upon reaching the age of 10; however, it is concerned that children and young persons whose parents receive disability compensatory benefits due to the child's or young person's disability are still not considered parties in their own cases.

26. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities , the Committee recommends that the State party revise the Child Act to ensure that children and young persons with disabilities, whose parents receive disability compensation benefits, are granted party status on.

27. The Committee notes that the Government of the Faroe Islands has recently initiated a preparatory work for drafting a Children's Act aiming at coordinating cross-sectoral welfare services and services for children and young people; however, it is concerned that organizations for persons with disabilities, including those of children and young persons with disabilities, have not yet been included in the process.

28. The Committee recommends that the Government of the Faroe Islands take measures to closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities, in the drafting process of the Children's Act.

29. The Committee notes that almost all newborn children are screened for hearing loss in Denmark, and if a hearing loss of a certain degree is found, parents are offered their child receive a cochlear implant (CI) and a three-year Auditory-Verbal Therapy programme; however, the Committee is concerned that children with CI and their families are not offered Danish Sign Language training, which has negative consequences for children with CI who do not achieve an age-appropriate spoken language level.

30. The Committee recommends that Denmark ensure children with CI and their parents receive Danish Sign Language training in a timely manner. It also recommends the Faroe Islands and Greenland take analogous measures.

Ghana (2024)

14. The Committee is concerned that girls and boys with disabilities lack adequate support and opportunities to express their views and exercise their right to be heard, including in consultations on the drafting of laws and policies.

15. Recalling the CRC-CRPD Joint Declaration on the Rights of Children with Disabilities (2022) and the Guidelines to Deinstitutionalization including in Emergency Situations (2022), The Committee recommends that the State Party establish a national mechanism to enable girls and boys with disabilities to express their views and receive support, so as to fully participate in decision-making concerning their lives.

Mauritius (2024)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) While the Children's Act 2020 prohibits discrimination against a child on the basis of disability, it does not further address the requirements and interests of children with disabilities;

(b) There is insufficient disability-inclusive training for officials of the Early Childhood Care and Education Authority, and there is a lack of effective awareness by parents and guardians of children with disabilities regarding the existence and functions of this Authority;

(c) The National Children's Council lacks active involvement of children with disabilities in their activities;

(d) There is insufficient information about the National Children's Policy Paper and Costed Action Plan that was expected to incorporate targeted measures for children with disabilities, and about the complaints received and specific actions taken by the Office of the Ombudsperson for Children in relation to children with disabilities.

14. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Reinforce the Children's Act 2020 to recognize the right to full social inclusion of all children with disabilities and to consider elements of universal design and reasonable accommodation, and take effective measures to ensure the provision of quality inclusive services for children with disabilities in the public and private sectors, with sufficient allocation of necessary resources;

(b) Improve training on children with disabilities for officials of the Early Childhood Care and Education Authority, and raise public awareness on the existence of and services provided by the Authority;

(c) Strengthen the implementation of policies, mechanisms and processes, including by the National Children's Council, to facilitate the close consultation and active involvement of children with disabilities and ensure that they are able to express their views freely on all matters concerning them on an equal basis with other children, in a manner that respects their evolving capacity;

(d) Ensure the inclusion of time-bound targeted measures for children with disabilities in the National Children's Policy Paper and Costed Action Plan informed by the results of the 2022 Housing and Population Census, with benchmarks to facilitate the inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family and community life.

Netherlands (2024)

19. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) There are no specific laws and policies that explicitly address the requirements of children with disabilities;

- (b) The existing comprehensive support programs and services for children with disabilities may not be sufficiently effective or widely accessible;
- (c) There is a gap in the systematic collection and management of data concerning children with disabilities;
- (d) The involvement of children with disabilities in decision-making processes that affect their lives is limited. While provisions exist, there is insufficient evidence to show that the views of children with disabilities are consistently and effectively considered.

20. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities , the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop and implement specific laws and policies that explicitly address the rights of children with disabilities. Ensure these laws provide tailored support that considers the specific requirements of children with disabilities.
- (b) Strengthen and expand comprehensive support programs for children with disabilities, focusing on education, healthcare, and inclusion. Ensure that these programs are adequately funded, widely accessible, and effectively monitored.
- (c) Systematically collect and manage data on children with disabilities, balancing privacy concerns with the need for accurate information. Include data on the number of children receiving services, in detention, in refugee centers, and involved in trafficking.
- (d) Develop mechanisms to ensure that children with disabilities can freely express their views on all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight according to their age and maturity. Provide age, gender and disability-responsive support to facilitate their participation.

Ukraine (2024)

14. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The inadequate standard of living of children with disabilities, including the lack of inclusive education and transportation, as well as lack of access to adequate housing, equipment and accommodation for physical and occupational therapy;
- (b) The difficulties that children with disabilities face during the conflict, making it difficult to continue their life in community and forcing families to send them to institutions;
- (c) The lack of consideration of the opinion of children with disabilities in matters that concern them.

15. Recalling the joint Statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), as well as the Committee's Session report on the situation of persons with disabilities in Ukraine and in countries where they have fled after 24 February 2022, as a result of the aggression against Ukraine by the Russian Federation, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream the rights of children with disabilities in all its policies and programs and ensure access to all the devices they require;
- (b) Establish policies that support families of children with disabilities, both with training and funding, so that lack of support does not force them into institutionalization;
- (c) Establish mechanisms for children with disabilities to express their opinions on issues that interest and concern them.

Azerbaijan (2024)

15. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The limited access of children with disabilities to support and services in the community, affecting mainly children living in rural areas;
- (b) The lack of information about mechanisms available for children with disabilities to express their views freely on all matters affecting them.

16. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive strategy with budget allocations and time-bound programmes to ensure inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including equal access to education, health, sports, culture, leisure activities, habilitation and rehabilitation, in-home and community support appropriate to their age, sex, gender and regardless of level of support required;

(b) Adopt guidelines to ensure that children with disabilities can freely express their views on all matters affecting them, that their views are given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity, on an equal basis with other children, as well as age and disability-appropriate measures to support them in this regard.

Bahrain (2024)¹

14. The Committee is deeply concerned at:

(a) The lack of measures in national policies and legislation to ensure the inclusion of children with disabilities in all aspects of life and their lack of representation and participation in decision-making processes with regard to their rights and issues; (b) The institutionalisation of children with disabilities from the age of 4 years; and

(b) The placement of children with disabilities in residential institutions from the age of 4 years; and

(c) The absence of legislative and practical measures to ensure that children with disabilities are protected from all forms of violence in care institutions and domestic violence, including corporal punishment.

(d) Allowing children with disabilities, especially children with intellectual disabilities, to be sent to other countries to be placed in residential institutions with no follow-up mechanisms to monitor their situation.

(e) The legalisation of child marriage, including children with disabilities, in accordance with Article (20) of the Family Law No. 19 of 2017, which sets the age of marriage for girls at 16 years and permits the marriage of girls under this age with the permission of the Sharia Court.

15. Recalling the recommendation of the Committee on the Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/BHR/CO/1-4 Para. 36), as well as the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Committee on the Rights of the Child (2021), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Include measures in the State party's child rights policies and legislation to ensure that they fully encompass the rights and issues of children with disabilities, in close consultation and with the active participation of children with disabilities and their organisations; and

(b) Repeal the provisions of Law No. 74 of 2006 (on the care, rehabilitation and employment of persons with disabilities) that allow for the licensing and provision of residential services; and

(c) Amend policies and legislation governing protection from violence and include measures to ensure that children with disabilities are fully protected from all forms of violence.

(d) Prohibit sending children with disabilities to other countries for the purpose of institutionalisation.

(e) Amend Article (20) of the Family Law No. 19 of 2017 and standardise the marriage age to 18 years for men and women, without granting an exception for the court to authorise the marriage of those under the age of 18 years.

Costa Rica (2024)

13. El Comité observa con preocupación:

a) La inexistencia de espacios para que los niños y las niñas con discapacidad manifiesten sus opiniones y necesidades y estas sean tomadas en cuenta;

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

- b) La persistente situación de pobreza entre niños y niñas con discapacidad, en particular entre niños y niñas indígenas y entre los que habitan en las zonas rurales y remotas;
- c) Que el Código de la Niñez y Adolescencia no aborde, ni de manera general ni explícitamente, la niñez con discapacidad y que su artículo 62 promueva la segregación y exclusión de los niños y niñas de la educación inclusiva.

14. El Comité recuerda su declaración conjunta con el Comité de los Derechos del Niño sobre los derechos de los niños con discapacidad (2022), así como las metas 16.2 y 16.7 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, y recomienda que el Estado parte:

- a) Asegure las condiciones para que los niños y las niñas con discapacidad puedan expresar sus opiniones y necesidades y estas se vean reflejadas en las leyes, políticas públicas y programas gubernamentales;
- b) Adopte acciones inmediatas para combatir la situación de pobreza en los niños y niñas con discapacidad, con particular atención a los niños y niñas indígenas y a los que habitan en zonas rurales y remotas;
- c) Modifique su Código de la Niñez y Adolescencia con el fin de proporcionar una protección expresa contra las formas múltiples e interseccionales de discriminación, incluida la discriminación basada en la intersección entre la discapacidad y otros motivos, y garantizar la educación inclusiva y de calidad para los niños y niñas con discapacidad.

Kazakhstan (2024)

15. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of measures to safeguard the rights of children with disabilities in the State party's legislation and the absence of a comprehensive policy framework for the implementation of the rights of children with disabilities in all areas of life;
- (b) That children with disabilities are subject to special social services and rehabilitation in segregated settings, namely: sanatoriums, rest homes (CRPD/C/KAZ/RQ/1, para. 45), stationary social service centres, day care organizations, rehabilitation centres, and small capacity homes;
- (c) The absence of information about practical measures to facilitate participation of children with disabilities in administrative procedures and decision-making.

16. Recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Review legislation, including the Children's Rights Act, the Education Act, the Social, Medical and Educational Support for Children with Disabilities Act, the Special Social Services Act and the Social Protection of Persons with Disabilities Act, with the aim of mainstreaming the rights of children with disabilities in line with the Convention and the human rights model of disability therein;
- (b) Adopt a national comprehensive policy to guarantee inclusion of children with disabilities in society and the full enjoyment of their rights and freedoms on an equal basis with others, and proceed to end special and/or segregated services and settings, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations;
- (c) Establish mechanisms ensuring that children with disabilities can form and express their views freely on all matters affecting them and that those views are given due weight, in accordance with the child's age and maturity, in all matters affecting them, including in education and in administrative and judicial processes.

Nicaragua (2024)

12. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) La persistencia de la situación de pobreza entre niños y niñas con discapacidad, en particular los niños indígenas y aquellos que habitan en las zonas rurales y remotas;
- b) La persistencia de la violencia intrafamiliar contra los niños y niñas con discapacidad;

- c) Que no existan espacios proporcionados por el Estado parte para que los niños y las niñas con discapacidad manifiesten sus opiniones y necesidades, y que estas sean tomadas en cuenta;
- d) Que no se dispone de información acerca de si la Guía de Cuidado y Apoyo relacionada con la discapacidad en la niñez ha sido aprobada;
- e) La persistencia de la institucionalización de niños y niñas con discapacidad y la falta de apoyos a sus familias para evitarla.

13. Recordando su declaración conjunta de 2022 con el Comité de los Derechos del Niño sobre los derechos de los niños con discapacidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

- a) Establezca acciones inmediatas para combatir la situación de pobreza en la que se encuentran niños y niñas con discapacidad, con particular atención a la situación de los niños indígenas con discapacidad y de los que habitan en zonas rurales y remotas;
- b) Establezca medidas de vigilancia y supervisión para el cumplimiento estricto del Código Penal contra el maltrato de niños y niñas con discapacidad en hogares, escuelas e instituciones tanto en zonas urbanas como rurales, y que establezca mecanismos para denuncias, se informe sobre las mismas y su seguimiento;
- c) Implemente mecanismos y las condiciones necesarias para que los niños y las niñas con discapacidad puedan expresar sus opiniones y necesidades y estas se vean reflejadas en las políticas públicas y programas;
- d) Apruebe e implemente la Guía de Cuidado y Apoyo relacionada con la discapacidad en la niñez y comparta los resultados obtenidos en el siguiente informe a este Comité;
- e) Establezca, en coordinación con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, un programa de desinstitucionalización dirigido a niños y niñas con discapacidad, estableciendo un programa de familias sustitutas.

Sweden (2024)

17. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That children with disabilities are exposed to multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, including in education, access to social services and personal assistance in the community, institutionalization, ill-treatment, violence and abuse, including sexual violence, in institutions;
- (b) That parents of children with disabilities, in particular children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, neurodivergent children, including autistic children, and children with Down syndrome, are not provided with adequate information and the requisite support by medical personnel;
- (c) Insufficient measures to ensure that the views of children with disabilities are heard in all decisions affecting them, including in criminal and asylum procedures.

18. The Committee, recalling its joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of the Child on the rights of children with disabilities, and the recommendations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the implementation of national legislation on children's rights by ensuring that it is inclusive of all children with disabilities in all areas of life, foster safe and nurturing children's environments, respectful of the life and dignity of children with disabilities, on an equal basis with other children;
- (b) Ensure the availability, accessibility and quality of inclusive early intervention services, as well as mobility aids, devices, assistive technologies and transportation for children with disabilities, and adequate information and necessary support for their parents;
- (c) Guarantee the respect of the evolving capacities of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their own views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, including in criminal and asylum proceedings, and ensure that their views are given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity; and ensure that they receive disability- and age-appropriate support to realize their right to be heard.

Zambia (2024)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The Child Policy, the National Disability Policy and other national policy documents do not specifically address the needs and interests of children with disabilities;
- (b) That the Children's Code Act does not include provisions on the evolving capacities of children with disabilities;
- (c) At the lack of strategies in place to support caregivers and early learning centres to stimulate and teach children with disabilities.

14. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take legislative and policy measures to recognise and provide support to children with disabilities and their families to ensure that they exercise their rights to participation on an equal basis with other children, and ensure inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family life and community life, by developing community-based inclusive strategies and programmes for children with disabilities both at national and local levels;
- (b) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity;
- (c) Develop guidelines and support strategies for caregivers of children with disabilities, and put in place measures to adequately address the needs of children with disabilities who require more intensive support such as children with multiple disabilities and the deafblind.

Andorra (2023)

15. The Committee notes that Act No. 14/2019 on the rights of children and adolescents provides for the participation of children and adolescents with disabilities as a guiding and cross-cutting principle, and Act No. 45/2022 that amends the Criminal Code uses the terminology and concepts in line with the Convention. However, it observes the following with concern:

- (a) The scarce participation of children with disabilities in the National Council for Children and Adolescents (Consell General dels Joves) and the communal councils for children and adolescents;
- (b) That Act No. 14/2019 allows that a judge may adopt residential care as a protection measure for cases in which it has not been possible or advisable to have family foster care or when the children or adolescent's needs so require, including those who require therapeutic care, such as children and adolescents with disabilities;
- (c) The absence of data on the number of children with disabilities in residential institutions.

16. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote the representation of children with disabilities on the National Council for Children and Adolescents (Consell general dels Joves) and the communal councils for children and adolescents, and ensure that children with disabilities can express freely in all matters affecting them and that those views are given due weight in accordance with the children's age and maturity;
- (b) Review legislation, including articles 93 and 95 of the Act No. 14/2019, and implement a policy on the inclusion of children with disabilities in line with the Convention, regardless of the type of impairment, in all areas of life, including family life and community life, and measures to the deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities;
- (c) Provide disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities in residential institutions.

Austria (2023)

20. The Committee is concerned about the close link of segregated education and institutionalization due to the frequent design of special education schools as residential schools, about a lack of support measures for organizations of children with disabilities to actively participate in public discourse, of prompt provision of early intervention services, and of individualized support services to live with the family.

21. The Committee recommends the State party, including the Länder, take effective measures in accordance with the human rights model of disability to end segregated institutional settings for children with disabilities in all areas of life, including in education, provide financial and technical support to organizations of children with disabilities for their active participation in public discourse, promptly available early intervention services, and individualized support for children with disabilities to live with their families.

Germany (2023)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of training of entities and their employees applying the new Act to Strengthen Children and Youth (KJSG) on the requirements of children with disabilities;

(b) The high cost of assistance services or inpatient treatment of children with disabilities for their parents;

(c) The lack of disaggregated data on refugee children with disabilities and children with disabilities in refugee-like situations, widely varying conditions in reception facilities often not tailored to the requirements of children with disabilities, and seemingly varying access to education, health care and cultural and leisure activities.

16. The Committee, recalling the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities, issued in 2022, recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish training programs for entities and their employees applying the new Act to Strengthen Children and Youth (KJSG) on the requirements of children with disabilities, including children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;

(b) Cover the disability-related costs of assistance services or inpatient treatment of children with disabilities;

(c) Strengthen the collection of comprehensive disaggregated data on refugee children with disabilities and children with disabilities in refugee-like situations, ensure that all reception facilities holding children with disabilities meet their requirements, and guarantee access to education, health care and cultural and leisure activities to all refugee children with disabilities and children with disabilities in refugee-like situations.

Israel (2023)

15. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The absence of specific measures to ensure recognition and inclusion of children with disabilities and insufficient measures to facilitate their participation in decision-making, including in relation to education, support, health and family matters;

(b) Information about situations of marginalization and heightened risks of poverty among Haredi, asylum-seeking and refugee children with disabilities and children in Arab communities and their lack of access to child-support benefits.

16. Recalling the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Implement a policy on the inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family life and community life, by developing community-based inclusive strategies and programmes for children with disabilities in the State party and in the occupied Palestinian territory, in accordance with applicable international law;

- (b) Establish mechanisms that respect the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form and express their views freely in all matters affecting them and that those views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity in education, administrative and legal processes;
- (c) Adopt mechanisms to recognize Haredi, asylum-seeking, refugee children with disabilities and children with disabilities in Arab communities, include them as beneficiaries of policies, including social security entitlements and allowances related to disability and for children in general.

Malawi (2023)

7. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That the review of several pieces of legislation and policies, in particular the Disability Act (Cap 33:06) and repeal of the Handicapped Persons Act of 1971 leading to a new piece of comprehensive legislation is yet to be completed, and that changes introduced to the almost enacted bill have been made without consulting or involving persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) That women and girls with disabilities were not explicitly mentioned in the Disability Act of 2012 and that the almost enacted Persons with Disabilities Bill of 2023 continues this omission;
- (c) The delay and lack of priority of disability-related policies and programmes to implement the Convention;
- (d) Discriminatory language and portrayal of persons with disabilities, including derogatory terminology in laws, among public authorities, and in the media.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Complete as expeditiously as possible its review of the Disability Act enacted in 2012 and repeal of the Handicapped Persons Act of 1971 and ensure that the new piece of legislation, and legislation in all areas of law, including family relations, mental health, property and personal security are brought into line with the Convention and the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Ensure involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities throughout the process of enacting the new disability Bill and ensure that proposals made by persons with disabilities are appropriately considered and addressed at all stages of the process;
- (c) Ensure that the new legislation being developed to replace the Disability Act of 2012 recognizes the rights of women and girls with disabilities, and incorporates measures to address marginalization and discrimination against them. The State party should address proposals submitted by women with disabilities through their representative organizations in their position paper presented to the Ministry of Justice;
- (d) Provide information to organizations of persons with disabilities concerning fund allocation for the Disability Trust fund, ensure appropriate financial resources to it, and set up criteria for distribution of resources encompassing all persons with disabilities regardless of type of impairment. The State party should gather disaggregated information about budget allocations, and ensure periodic and accessible accountability procedures;
- (e) Review and amend legislation and public policies with the aim to withdraw derogatory terminology concerning persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism, and ensure that training for public officials includes modules on women and girls with disabilities, gender equality, and persons with disabilities in marginalized situations.

9. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The lack of periodic consultations with persons with disabilities at the National Advisory and Coordinating Committee on Disability Issues, and the underrepresentation of organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and women with disabilities in consultative processes, particularly in discussion of sectorial strategies and programmes;

(b) That organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities lack financial resources to conduct advocacy and participate in public consultations.

10. Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national legislative framework for close consultations with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensuring mechanisms for the participation of organizations of women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and children with disabilities in the implementation, enforcement and funding of programmes aimed at supporting the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) Support organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, and persons with psychosocial disabilities, including by providing independent and self-managed funding and encourage their access to foreign funding as part of international cooperation and development aid and cover expenses for participation in consultations.

Mauritania (2023)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of measures to protect the rights of children with disabilities in the Child Care Protection and Justice Act No. 22 of 2010 and the lack of implementation of the programmes to address the situation of children with disabilities;

(b) Deprivation, marginalization and the high vulnerability of children with disabilities to child poverty, malnutrition, abandonment, and institutionalization, as well as the de facto inequality and discrimination in education and health. It particularly observes with deep concern that children with disabilities have lower rates of attendance at school at all levels, higher rates of moderate and severe growth stunting, and lower rates of early childhood education, and social transfers compared to other children;

(c) The limited coverage of programmes to provide social support to children with disabilities, including through early intervention or cash transfers.

16. Recalling the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities, of 2022, the Committee calls upon the State party to:

(a) Complete the review process of the Child Care Protection and Justice Act (No. 22 of 2010) and enact provisions to protect and fulfil the rights of children with disabilities on equal basis with other children;

(b) Adopt and implement a comprehensive strategy for the inclusion of children with disabilities as recommended by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/MWI/CO/3-5, para. 32). The strategy should be developed in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities and prioritize community-based inclusive strategies and programmes at the national and local level, comprise measures to address child poverty and deprivation, prevent abandonment, ensure accessibility to information and communications, transportation and to community settings, such as schools, health care facilities, libraries and sports centres;

(c) Gather statistics and monitor effective allocations to cover disability-related expenses of children with disabilities as part of the Social Cash Transfer Programme (CRPD/C/MWI/RQ/1-2, see para. 84) and develop social protection for children with disabilities, whose families are not covered by the unconditional cash transfer programme.

Mongolia (2023)

15. The Committee observes with concern the absence of mechanisms to consult with children with disabilities and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them.

16. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity, on an equal basis with other children, and to develop measures to ensure age-appropriate assistance.

Paraguay (2023)

15. El Comité observa con preocupación:

- a) La persistencia de la situación de pobreza entre niños y niñas con discapacidad en particular los indígenas y aquellos que habitan en las zonas rurales y remotas;
- b) La falta de información sobre casos de maltrato y desatención hacia los niños con discapacidad, sobre las medidas, mecanismos y recursos para prevenir y combatir los abusos físicos y sexuales y sobre los servicios existentes para atender a los niños con discapacidad víctimas de malos tratos, en particular en las zonas rurales y remotas;
- c) La falta de información estadística de los niños y niñas con discapacidad que han hecho uso del Fono Ayuda 147 que puede proporcionar orientación y ayuda en casos de violencia;
- d) Que no existan espacios suficientes proporcionados por el Estado parte para que los niños y las niñas con discapacidad manifiesten sus opiniones y necesidades y estas sean tomadas en cuenta;
- e) La persistencia de la institucionalización de niños y niñas con discapacidad y la falta de apoyos a sus familias para evitarla.

16. Recordando a la Declaración conjunta del Comité de los Derechos del Niño y del Comité sobre los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad sobre los derechos de los niños con discapacidad de 2022, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Establecer acciones inmediatas para combatir la situación de pobreza en los niños y niñas con discapacidad, con particular atención a los niños indígenas con discapacidad y a los que habitan en zonas rurales y remotas, reforzando el Programa Abrazo;
- b) Que en coordinación estrecha con las instituciones que integran el Sistema Nacional de Protección y Promoción Integral de la Niñez y Adolescencia establezca medidas de vigilancia y supervisión para el cumplimiento estricto de la Ley N.º 5659/16 de protección a niños, niñas y adolescentes contra el castigo físico, en hogares, escuelas e instituciones tanto en zonas urbanas como rurales, se informe sobre las denuncias y el seguimiento de estas;
- c) Reforzar y recopilar datos estadísticos de los niños y niñas con discapacidad que hacen uso del Fono Ayuda 147;
- d) Mejorar las condiciones para que los niños y las niñas con discapacidad puedan expresar sus opiniones y necesidades y estas se vean reflejadas en las políticas públicas y programas;
- e) Que se establezca un programa de desinstitutionalización dirigido a niños y niñas con discapacidad, reforzando el programa de familias sustitutas.

Angola (2023)

11. The Committee observes with concern the lack of consideration of the principle of the best interest of the child, in accordance with their views, in all matters relating to children with disabilities.

12. Recalling the Joint Statement on the Rights of Children with Disabilities adopted by the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party incorporate in law and practice the principle of the best interest of children with disabilities and their right to express their views in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity.

Argentina (2023)

15.El Comité observa con preocupación:

a)La falta de perspectiva de discapacidad de la Ley 26.061 (2005) sobre la protección integral de los derechos de las niñas, niños y adolescentes, y el limitado alcance de las medidas adoptadas para garantizar los derechos de niñas y niños con discapacidad, en particular en las zonas rurales y remotas;

b)Que persista la institucionalización de niñas y niños con discapacidad y la falta de apoyos a sus familias.

16.Haciendo referencia a la Declaración conjunta del Comité de los Derechos del Niño y del Comité sobre los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad sobre los derechos de los niños con discapacidad, de 2022, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a)Incorporar la perspectiva de discapacidad en la Ley 26.061 y en el sistema de protección integral de los derechos de las niñas, niños y adolescentes, con particular atención a los que se encuentran en zonas rurales y remotas;

b)Implementar un plan para la inclusión de los niños y niñas con discapacidad en la comunidad, incluyendo apoyos para sus familias y fortalecer campañas que promuevan su adopción.

Georgia (2023)

15. The Committee observes with concern:

(a)That current disability assessment is based on the medical model and prevents children with disabilities from access to individualized support and equal access to services in the community;

(b)That public programs for children with disabilities are limited in their coverage, disadvantaging particularly children with disabilities in situations of poverty, children belonging to ethnic minority groups and autistic children;

(c) That programs designed for children in the field of social work are not accessible to children with disabilities, bringing about further barriers for the development of children with disabilities, including children requiring higher levels of support.

16.With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities, of 2022, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Ensure that children with disabilities have access to social programmes aimed at the inclusion of children in the community regardless of impairment, and that programmes recognise their individual requirements and respond to them appropriately in urban as well as in rural areas;

(b)Expand coverage of programmes at the national and municipal level to foster inclusion of children with disabilities, including by: (i) addressing the situation of poverty affecting children with disabilities; (ii) ensuring that all children with disabilities have a standard of living adequate for their physical, mental, spiritual and moral development; and (iii) prioritizing safe living conditions, and the provision of food and free and accessible medical care and education;

(c)Develop disability-related quality standards and requirements applicable in all programmes designed for children, including in early childhood development programmes, in health care and education. The State party should ensure that such programmes are age-appropriate and address barriers of inclusion for all children with disabilities regardless of type of impairment, and that information about these programmes is available in accessible formats, such as Easy Read, augmentative means and other forms of communication.

Peru (2023)

14. Preocupa al Comité:

- a) El elevado número de niños, niñas y adolescentes con discapacidad que viven en instituciones administradas por el Programa Integral Nacional para el Bienestar Familiar (INABIF) y en las zonas rurales y remotas;
- b) Que el Programa Nacional Cuna Más que tiene como objetivo mejorar el desarrollo infantil de niñas y niños menores de 36 meses en localidades en situación de pobreza y pobreza extrema, cuente con escasos registros de atención a niñas y niños con discapacidad en sus servicios de cuidados diurnos;
- c) Que existan significativas brechas de desigualdad en la prestación de servicios de salud, diagnóstico temprano, acceso a terapias y rehabilitación, acceso a tecnologías de apoyo y dispositivos de asistencia para mejorar la calidad de vida de niños, niñas y adolescentes con discapacidad;
- d) La escasa participación de los niños, niñas y adolescentes con discapacidad en los Consejos Consultivos de Niñas, Niños y Adolescentes (CCONNA) en todo el Estado parte.

15. Recordando la declaración conjunta formulada entre el Comité de los Derechos del Niño y el Comité sobre los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad en relación con los derechos de los niños con discapacidad en 2022, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

- a) Garantice que los niños, niñas y adolescentes con discapacidad, especialmente los que viven en zonas rurales y remotas, en comunidades indígenas y en poblaciones migrantes y refugiadas, reciban protección, atención y apoyo efectivos y adecuados, y sean incluidos en la comunidad;
- b) Designa los recursos financieros y humanos suficientes para ampliar la cobertura del Programa Nacional Cuna Más para mejorar el desarrollo infantil, asegurando la incorporación de una perspectiva de discapacidad, así como la creación e implementación de sistemas permanentes de capacitación para el personal, asegurando la eficiencia y calidad de atención a la niñez con discapacidad;
- c) Elabore un plan de acción y destine recursos humanos y financieros para la prestación de servicios oportunos y en edad temprana para garantizar la calidad de vida de la niñez con discapacidad;
- d) Asegure que todos los Consejos Consultivos de Niñas, Niños y Adolescentes incluyan a niños y niñas con discapacidad y garanticen la accesibilidad en todos sus esfuerzos.

Togo (2023)

13. The Committee is deeply concerned about the stigma, discrimination and inhumane treatment children with disabilities continue to face, including their abandonment and isolation by their families due to the prejudices and negative stereotypes against them, particularly in rural areas. It is also concerned that children with disabilities are not represented in the National Council on Children and are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives, in particular in rural areas.

14. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take measures to prevent discrimination and stigmatisation of children with disabilities and develop awareness raising projects and programmes for children with disabilities in all areas of life;
- (b) Ensure that children with disabilities are represented in the National Council on Children;
- (c) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity;

(d) Implement a policy on inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family life and community life, by developing community-based inclusive strategies and programmes for children with disabilities both at national and local levels.

Tunisia (2023)

11. The Committee is concerned that inadequate consideration has been given by the State party to children with disabilities, notably regarding:

- (a) The lack of concrete practical measures to raise awareness of their rights vis-à-vis other children, their parents and other family members, and staff and trained professionals working for and with children;
- (b) The absence of specific mechanisms and channels available to children with disabilities for expressing their views on all matters concerning them and ways to ensure that their views are taken into consideration;
- (c) The absence of measures taken to ensure that they fully participate on an equal basis with other children in any decision affecting them;
- (d) The report of cases of abuse of children with disabilities in various settings, including in families and in learning institutions;
- (e) Outdated data on the household conditions and demographic situation of children with disabilities.

12. The Committee, recalling the Joint Statement CRC-CRPD on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop practical measures to strengthen the awareness and enable the recognition of the rights of children with disabilities in all settings;
- (b) Take appropriate measures to address, identify and remove all forms of discrimination faced by children with disabilities in their day-to-day life;
- (c) Avail channels to children with disabilities for expressing their views on all matters concerning them and ensure that their views are taken into consideration and that they participate in all activities of other children;
- (d) Put in place all necessary measures to prevent violations of rights including corporal punishment, abuse and violence against children with disabilities;
- (e) Update and make available data on the household conditions and demographic situation of children with disabilities.

Bangladesh (2022)

15. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) Insufficient awareness about the laws and policies in place for the protection of children with disabilities, particularly the National Children Policy of 2011 and the Children Act of 2013 (amended in 2018);
- (b) The stigma, discrimination, negative attitudes, harmful practices and stereotypes that prevail against children with disabilities, including their lack of access to health care, education and other services, including corporal punishment against children, particularly children with disabilities and refugee children with disabilities.

16. Recalling the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop a national strategy for the promotion and protection of the rights of children with disabilities, with sufficient budgetary allocations, human, technical and financial resources;
- (b) Adopt and implement necessary policy measures to address stigma, discrimination, negative attitudes, harmful practices and stereotypes against children with disabilities, and ensure their access to health care, education and other services without discrimination on an equal basis with other children, and prohibit all forms of corporal punishment against children, particularly children with disabilities.

China (2022)

18. The Committee is concerned about the lack of strategies in place to ensure the inclusion of children with disabilities, particularly those in rural areas and from ethnic minorities, in all matters affecting their lives.

19. With reference to the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) Joint Statement on the Rights of Children with Disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party develop strategies to ensure the participation of children with disabilities in consultation processes for the implementation of the Convention that are inclusive, child-friendly, transparent and respectful of their rights to freedom of expression and thought.

Indonesia (2022)

14. The Committee observes with concern the absence of policies, mechanisms and processes to consult with children with disabilities, including in children's forums conducted under Law 35 of 2014, and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them.

15. The Committee recalls the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), and recommends that the State party establish policies, mechanisms and processes to facilitate the effective participation of children with disabilities within children's forums and in decision-making processes to ensure they can express their views freely on all matters affecting them on an equal basis with other children.

Japan (2022)

17. The Committee observes with concern the:

(a) Early identification and rehabilitation system, as regulated by the Maternal and Child Health Act, directing children with disabilities, through their medical examination to their social segregation, hindering them from community and inclusive life prospects;

(b) Lack of clear recognition of the right of children with disabilities to be heard, and to express their views freely on all matters affecting them in all relevant laws, including the Child Welfare Act;

(c) Lack of full prohibition of corporal punishment of children, including children with disabilities, in home, alternative care and day care settings, as well as insufficient measures to prevent and protect children with disabilities against abuse and violence.

18. With reference to the Joint Statement of the CRC and CRPD Committees on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the existing legislation with the aim to recognize the right to full social inclusion of all children with disabilities and take all necessary measures, including universal design and reasonable accommodations, inter alia, alternative and augmentative methods of information and communication, to ensure their full enjoyment of the general childcare system from their earliest age on an equal basis with other children;

(b) Recognize the right of children with disabilities to be heard, and to express their views freely on all matters affecting them on an equal basis with other children, including in judicial and administrative proceedings, and to be provided with disability and age-appropriate assistance and communication in accessible formats to realize that right;

(c) Fully and explicitly prohibit the corporal punishment of children, including of those with disabilities, in all settings, and strengthen measures of prevention of and protection against abuse and violence of children with disabilities.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

12. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The multiple and intersectional discrimination against children with disabilities, particularly those affected by unexploded ordnance, children belonging to ethnic groups, children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and autistic children;
- (b) The lack of support of children with disabilities in education and in terms of access to social services in the community, and their institutionalization in medical-social establishments;
- (c) The absence of mechanisms to consult with children with disabilities and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them.

13. With reference to the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) Joint Statement on the Rights of Children with Disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that law and policy on children's rights are inclusive of and protect all children with disabilities from all forms of discrimination, including those affected by unexploded ordnance, children belonging to ethnic groups, children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, and autistic children;
- (b) Ensure that all children with disabilities, including those in rural and remote areas, receive effective and appropriate protection, care and support, and are included in the community;
- (c) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacities of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity.

New Zealand (2022)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) the lack of measures and standing mechanisms to ensure that children with disabilities, including Māori children with disabilities are able to express their views in legislative and policy development and decision-making processes;
- (b) The lack of disaggregated data collected on children with disabilities, including by the Ministry of Education and Oranga Tamariki (Ministry for Children) to inform implementation of national frameworks on children, such as the Child and Youth Wellbeing Strategy.

12. The Committee recalls the Joint Statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish measures and standing mechanisms to ensure that children with disabilities, including Māori children with disabilities are able to express their views on an equal basis with other children;
- (b) Strengthen the collection of comprehensive disaggregated data on children with disabilities, including on Māori children with disabilities to inform effective early intervention, particularly in the fields of education, care and protection and youth justice.

Republic of Korea (2022)

15. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The absence of mechanisms to consult with children with disabilities and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them;
- (b) The lack of access to general community-based services for children with disabilities;
- (c) That only 0.03 per cent of playgrounds are inclusive, which results in discrimination of children with disabilities and prevents them from enjoying their right to play on an equal basis with others.

16. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity;

- (b) Implement a policy on inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family life and community life, by developing community-based rehabilitation programmes for children with disabilities;
- (c) Review the Children's Play Facility Safety Management Act to ensure that playgrounds are inclusive and accessible for all children with disabilities.

Singapore (2022)

13. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive strategy to protect children with disabilities, in particular autistic children, children with intellectual disabilities and children with psychosocial disabilities, from stigma, discrimination, violence, ill-treatment and institutionalization;
- (b) That corporal punishment of children is legal, in violation of the fundamental right of all children to protection from corporal punishment and other cruel or degrading forms of punishment.
- (c) The absence of policies, mechanisms and processes to consult with children with disabilities, in which they can express their views in all matters concerning them.

14. With reference to the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) Joint Statement on the Rights of Children with Disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive strategy to ensure that children with disabilities, including children with intellectual disabilities and children with psychosocial disabilities, are adequately protected from violence, exploitation and abuse, and mainstream a disability perspective in the Children and Young Persons Act and the National Youth Council;
- (b) Amend the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 and explicitly prohibit corporal punishment for children with disabilities without exception;
- (c) Ensure enforcement and monitoring of the protection of children with disabilities from violence, exploitation and abuse in all settings, including in schools, and promote positive, non-violent and participatory forms of child-rearing through awareness-raising campaigns and training programmes, in accessible formats;
- (d) Establish policies, mechanisms and processes to facilitate the effective participation of children with disabilities and ensure that they can express their views freely on all matters affecting them.

Hungary (2022)

14. The Committee observes with concern that:

- (a) The State party applies the concept of the best interests of the child by giving priority to the opinions of experts and to institutional care;
- (b) The State party's legislation discriminates against children with disabilities through section 7 (2) a) of Act XXXI of 1997 concerning the protection of children and the placement of children under 12 years old in foster families, which exempts children with disabilities requiring higher levels of support, allegedly in their best interests, and thereby perpetuates their institutionalization;
- (c) There is a lack of access to general community-based services for children with disabilities, including as a consequence of the "individual development" measure, which results in discrimination against children with disabilities.

15. With reference to the joint statement of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on the rights of children with disabilities (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the concept of the best interests of the child is applied by taking into consideration the human rights model of disability, including the right of children with disabilities to express their views freely on all matters affecting them, as well as their right to a family life, including foster care;

- (b) Repeal provisions in the Child Protection Act that still allow for the institutional placement of children with disabilities and ensure the equality of children with disabilities with other children with respect to their right to a family life;
- (c) Ensure access to the general community-based social and educational services for all children with disabilities on an equal basis with other children by providing the necessary support and assistance to them.

Jamaica (2022)

14. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The absence of mechanisms to consult with children with disabilities and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them;
- (b) That despite the expansion of the Early Stimulation Programme available in 4 parishes out of 14 by creating three mobile units, the lack of access to these programmes island-wide due to lack of resources results in long waiting periods for assessment, early identification and intervention, in particular in rural areas;
- (c) That despite the fact that corporal punishment of children in Jamaica is unlawful in alternative care, in some day-care settings and in the penal system, it is not yet fully prohibited in the home, in day care for children aged 6 and over, and in schools, in violation of the fundamental right of all children to protection from corporal punishment and other cruel or degrading forms of punishment.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish a mechanism that respects the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity;
- (b) Expand the services of the Early Stimulation Programme by establishing more centres and mobile units to cover the requirements of children with disabilities island-wide;
- (c) Explicitly prohibit corporal punishment in all settings and ensure that the prohibition of corporal punishment is adequately monitored and enforced in all settings, including in schools and in relation to children with disabilities, and that positive, non-violent and participatory forms of child-rearing and discipline are promoted through awareness-raising campaigns and training programmes, in accessible formats.

Mexico (2022)

23. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The institutionalization of children with disabilities, and about the limited scope of specific measures taken to ensure that the rights of children with disabilities are protected, particularly in rural and remote areas, in indigenous communities and in migrant and refugee populations;
- (b) The lack of disaggregated data on children with disabilities, particularly on those living in institutions, on victims of violence and on those not attending school;
- (c) The insufficient measures adopted to ensure that children with disabilities can participate and express their views with respect to matters affecting them, such as legal proceedings, and the limited access to justice for children with disabilities, especially girls with disabilities who are victims of violence and abuse.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that children with disabilities, especially those in rural and remote areas, in indigenous communities and in migrant and refugee populations, receive effective and appropriate protection, care and support, and are included in the community;
- (b) Compile disaggregated data on children with disabilities, particularly on those living in institutions, on victims of violence and on those not attending school;
- (c) Adopt measures allowing children with disabilities to express their views in all matters related to their lives, including in administrative and judicial proceedings.

Switzerland (2022)

15. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That the scope and application of the concept in the State party's legislation of "the good of the child" does not adhere to the principle and standard of the best interests of the child contained in the Convention, leading to inadequate decisions in matters concerning children with disabilities;
- (b) That children with disabilities face multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination;
- (c) The lack of accessible complaints and redress mechanisms for children with disabilities who have experienced discrimination, and that the planned ombudsman's office for children's rights, when established, may not have a mandate to receive and investigate complaints from children;
- (d) The insufficient measures to ensure that the views of children with disabilities are heard in all decisions affecting them, including in criminal and asylum proceedings.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the concept of "the good of the child" to ensure that it adheres to the standard of the best interests of the child under international law, develop guidelines for its application, and ensure that, in matters concerning children with disabilities, its application is in line with the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Ensure that law and policy on children's rights are inclusive of and protect all children with disabilities, including children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, autistic children, undocumented children with disabilities and migrant, refugee and asylum-seeking children with disabilities, from all forms of discrimination;
- (c) Adopt a strategy to ensure the inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, and to foster a safe and nurturing environment that is respectful of the life and dignity of children with disabilities, on an equal basis with other children;
- (d) Establish the planned ombudsman's office for children's rights, and ensure that it is accessible to and inclusive of all children with disabilities and that it has a mandate to regularly monitor and evaluate progress at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels in the fulfilment of the rights of children with disabilities under the Convention and to receive, investigate and address complaints from children with disabilities;
- (e) Establish mechanisms that respect the evolving capacities of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their own views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, including in criminal and asylum proceedings, and ensure that their views are given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity; and ensure that they receive disability- and age-appropriate support to realize their right to be heard.

Venezuela (2022)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information on and monitoring and assessment of the situation of children with disabilities who were in institutions that were subsequently closed down;
- (b) The fact that children with disabilities, including those who are deaf, blind, deafblind or of short stature, are not specifically included, in a cross-cutting manner, in domestic legislation and that their opinions are not properly taken into account in matters that concern them, especially in indigenous communities and rural areas.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct a census and gather statistics on children with disabilities who were in institutions that subsequently closed down and on any rights violations they may have suffered in a family setting or while living on the streets; and put in place programmes to ensure their inclusion in family life, either by placing them with their nuclear family, if they have one, or with a foster family, and provide such families with the support they need, both in kind and financial, to participate in community life;

(b) Carry out any legislative reforms with the participation of organizations representing children with disabilities so that the protection of their rights is mainstreamed in them and establish effective mechanisms to enable them to participate actively in matters that concern them.

Djibouti (2021)

11. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) Limited access of children with disabilities to social and health-care services and education, particularly children with disabilities in rural areas and those in refugee camps;
- (b) Absence of safeguards and procedures to ensure that children with disabilities, particularly deaf children, children who are deafblind and children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, have the right to express their views freely on matters affecting them and to provide them with disability and age-appropriate assistance to realize this right;
- (c) Lack of information and measures on the protection of children with disabilities from abuse and violence, including corporal punishment at home and in schools;
- (d) Lack of information on the implementation of the annual action plan, signed in December 2020 with UNICEF, to promote and protect the rights of children with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that:

- (a) Mainstream the principle of the best interests of the child and respect the evolving capacities of children with disabilities in strategies and programmes on the rights of the children, and ensure their access to social and health-care services and inclusive education, on an equal basis with other children;
- (b) Adopt measures to allow children with disabilities, particularly deaf children, children who are deafblind and children with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, to express their views freely on matters affecting them and to provide them with disability and age appropriate assistance to realize this right;
- (c) Adopt legislation and policy measures to protect children with disabilities from exploitation, abuse and violence, including corporal punishment at home and in school, to provide them with support and redress and to hold perpetrators accountable, and to ensure the effective implementation, in consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities, of the annual action plan of 2020 to promote and protect the rights of children with disabilities.

France (2021)

15. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That children with disabilities are exposed to multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, including in education, access to social services in the community, institutionalisation in medico social establishments, ill-treatment, violence and abuse, including sexual violence, particularly in institutions;
- (b) Practices compelling hard of hearing and deaf children with disabilities to be fitted with cochlear implants at the expense of the learning of sign languages and inclusion in deaf culture;
- (c) The absence of mechanisms to consult with children with disabilities and to enable them to express their views in all matters concerning them.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that legislation on the protection of children is inclusive of children with disabilities, and adopt a specific strategy with timelines and benchmarks to facilitate inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, and to foster safe and nurturing children's environments, respectful of the life and dignity of children with disabilities, on an equal basis with other children;
- (b) Set up mechanisms to ensure that children with disabilities are protected against being compelled to use cochlear implants and have the opportunity to learn sign languages and participate in deaf culture, and that information about the impact of cochlear implants is made available to them;

(c) Establish mechanisms that respect the evolving capacity of children with disabilities to ensure that they can form their views and express them freely in all matters affecting them, and that these views are given due weight in accordance with the child's age and maturity.

Estonia (2021)

15. The Committee observes with concern:

(a) The higher prevalence of at-risk-of-poverty-rate affecting children with disabilities, and information about barriers for their access to mainstream social and educational services and facilities;

(b) The uneven protection at the local level of children with disabilities who have lost their disability status as a consequence of the reassessments implemented by the Social Insurance Board;

(c) That children with intellectual disabilities, children with autism, children with psychosocial disabilities, and children who are deaf blind face greater exclusion from quality early intervention services, technical aids, social rehabilitation and transportation;

(d) The lack of information about measures to ensure continuous access to inclusive services in the community for children with disabilities, once the support from European Structural Funds ends.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to address poverty among children with disabilities, implement appropriate social protection programmes and support for them, and their families, and provide access to and availability of inclusive social and educational services and facilities on equal basis with other children;

(b) Adopt measures to redress children with disabilities who have been excluded from disability status, provide for reassessments, and ensure adequate social protection for them across municipalities;

(c) Ensure the availability, accessibility and quality of inclusive early intervention services, as well as access to mobility aids, devices, assistive technologies and transportation for all children with disabilities;

(d) Adopt measures, including earmarked budgets to ensure continuity and development of mainstream services in the community that are inclusive of children with disabilities in the community.

Albania (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned that the National Agenda for Child Rights (2017-2020), which is currently at the implementation phase, refers to children with disabilities only with regard to health services and education, failing to take into account the respect of the rights of children with disabilities in all aspects of their life. The Committee is concerned about the lack of steps taken to improve available social and health care services, including early intervention-related services for children with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on the health care and educational assessment procedures in place and that individualized support and accommodations are not consistently provided for children with disabilities in mainstream schools based on students' requirements of individualized support.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Include, in the National Agenda for Child Rights 2017-2020, measures to taken into account the specific requirements of children with disabilities and that guarantee the respect of their rights in all spheres of life;

(b) Provide all children with disabilities, regardless of their impairment, with sufficient social and health care services, including early intervention and development services, in cooperation with representative organizations of children with disabilities, including at the local level, and with a transparent roadmap to achieve progress;

- (c) Ensure that health care and educational assessment procedures are in line with the Convention and the human rights-based approach and include the involvement of experts from multiple disciplines;
- (d) Adopt a legally defined procedure for the provision of reasonable accommodation at all levels of education and allocate the resources necessary to guarantee reasonable accommodation according to individual requirements in consultation with the child concerned.

Australia (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of focus on the rights of children with disabilities in the national plan of action for the realization of the rights of the child;
- (b) The lack of access to early intervention mechanisms for children with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of disability- and age-appropriate assistance for children with disabilities to participate and express their views;
- (d) The lack of culturally suitable support for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children with disabilities and their families;
- (e) The situation of refugee and asylum-seeking children with disabilities kept in detention facilities in the State party and offshore.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Include a focus on the rights of children with disabilities in any national plan of action for the realization of the rights of the child;
- (b) Ensure access for children with disabilities to quality and human rights-based early intervention mechanisms;
- (c) Amend all legislation to guarantee that children with disabilities are provided with age-appropriate support and accommodations to express their views in all matters that affect their rights or interests;
- (d) Fund and resource culturally suitable support for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children with disabilities and their families, in the local community;
- (e) Urgently remove all refugee and asylum-seeking children, particularly children with disabilities and their families, from detention facilities, ensure the provision of individualized support and recognize the denial of reasonable accommodation as a form of discrimination.

Ecuador (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The abandonment and institutionalization of children and adolescents with disabilities persist and that budgetary funds continue to be allocated for referral centres and shelters;
- (b) The lack of access to affordable universal health care for children with disabilities, particularly in the case of children with disabilities in indigenous communities and rural areas.

El Salvador (2019)

14. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are institutionalized on the basis of impairment, and that the State party continues to invest in residential institutions, without taking measures to ensure deinstitutionalization or investing in programmes for independent living in the community. It is also concerned:

- (a) At the lack of information and disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities living in rural and indigenous communities and on measures taken to combat poverty in rural and urban areas;
- (b) At the lack of measures taken by the State party to ensure that children with disabilities can express their views freely on all matters affecting them, and concerned that their views are given due weight in accordance with their evolving capacities, on an equal basis with other children, and also concerned at the lack of measures to closely consult with and actively involve organizations of persons with disabilities, including of children with disabilities;
- (c) At the lack of transparency in legal proceedings concerning children with disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends that, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities, the State party take immediate measures to deinstitutionalize children with disabilities living in residential centres, by developing and implementing comprehensive plans, with an adequate budget, for support services in the community, as well as social inclusion programmes. It also recommends that the State party:

(a) Strengthen the collection of disaggregated data on the number of children with disabilities living in rural and indigenous communities, with a view to designing adequate public policies to combat marginalization and poverty among children with disabilities and their families;

(b) Ensure that all children with disabilities can express their views freely in all matters affecting them, and that their views are given due weight in accordance with their evolving capacities, on an equal basis with other children, and that it consult and actively involve organizations of children with disabilities;

(c) Take all measures necessary in order to ensure that legal proceedings are transparent and give effect to the principle of the best interests of the child in decisions concerning children with disabilities.

Greece (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The protracted nature of the deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities;

(b) The scarcity of available information on accessible mechanisms and concrete measures taken to ensure that children with disabilities enjoy their right to be heard and to have their views taken into account in all matters affecting them.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party give primary consideration to the best interests of the child and:

(a) Ensure the expeditious deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities and take effective measures to guarantee their right to be cared for by their parents, extended family, safe foster or adoptive family; provide children with disabilities with quality early intervention, as well as other health-care and educational services, equally available in all urban and rural areas, endowed with sufficient resources, and designed in close consultation with and the active involvement of children with disabilities and their parents, through their representative organizations;

(b) Develop a comprehensive strategy and accessible services for the full and effective participation of children with disabilities in all decision-making processes affecting their lives, guaranteeing their right to have their views taken into account in all matters affecting them.

India (2019)

16. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The exclusion of and disregard for children with disabilities from basic public services such as health care and education, particularly girls with disabilities, and the lack of early intervention and support programmes for children with disabilities;

(b) The limited coverage of schemes to protect children with disabilities living in rural areas and to prevent abandonment on account of disability and poverty;

(c) The lack of measures to ensure that children with disabilities can participate and express their views with respect to matters affecting them, such as legal proceedings or the provision of care and protection.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Allocate financial resources to ensure the inclusion of all children with disabilities in basic public services and support, including in early childhood, ensuring accessible early development centres for all children;

- (b) Ensure the effective protection of all children with disabilities under the Child Protection Scheme and other programmes, prioritizing children in rural areas and children who face a risk of abandonment and institutionalization and strengthening measures to provide support in the community, including in foster families;
- (c) Adopt measures to enable children with disabilities to express their views in all matters related to their lives, including in administrative or judicial procedures.

Iraq (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of information on whether the draft bill on the rights of the child and the national policy for the protection of children's rights reflect all the rights to which children with disabilities are entitled in line with the Convention;
- (b) The fact that a large number of children with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities living in regions of the State party affected by armed conflicts, children with disabilities who are internally displaced, children with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and children with disabilities living in rural areas, face violations of their rights, such as lack of access to services and loss of educational opportunities;
- (c) The lack of information on mechanisms for children with disabilities to express their views regarding all matters affecting them.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream disability rights in national legislation, strategies and action plans for children;
- (b) Ensure that children with disabilities enjoy all the rights under the Convention and address stigma and discrimination against and stereotypes that are harmful to children with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities facing multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination;
- (c) Promote the full participation of children with disabilities, through representative organizations of persons with disabilities, in consultations, decision-making processes and policy development efforts.

Kuwait (2019)

14. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of specific protection for children with disabilities in legislation and policies, including Act No. 8/2010 and Act No. 21/2015;
- (b) The absence of a strategy to promote the exercise by girls and boys with disabilities of their freedoms and rights on an equal basis with other children and the lack of systematic information on measures taken and support available to enable children with disabilities reaching adulthood to start an independent life;
- (c) Discrimination in law and practice against children with disabilities, particularly those whose parents are Bidoon;
- (d) The absence of support measures enabling girls and boys with disabilities to express their views on all matters that concern them;
- (e) The absence of data about girls and boys with disabilities, including those whose parents are Bidoon;
- (f) The lack of capacity-building programmes on the rights of children with disabilities, in particular for personnel in the health, education and social services sectors.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party take all steps necessary to promote the realization of the rights of the child for girls and boys with disabilities on an equal basis with others, including those who experience multiple and intersectional forms of discrimination, by:

- (a) Introducing specific provisions protecting the rights of children with disabilities in Act No. 8/2010 and Act No. 21/2015;

- (b) Mainstreaming the rights of children with disabilities, including the principle of the best interests of the child, into legislation, policies, plans and programmes regarding children and young persons and providing adequate support for girls and boys with disabilities to help them start an independent life when they reach adulthood;
- (c) Eliminating all aspects of discrimination in relation to children with disabilities, including those whose parents are Bidoon;
- (d) Establishing a mechanism that guarantees the full participation of children with disabilities in decision-making processes and policy development to guarantee that services provided to them meet their requirements and to raise the awareness of children with disabilities about their rights, including the right to express their views freely, recognizing the evolving capabilities of children, on all matters affecting them;
- (e) Strengthening the collection of disaggregated data on children with disabilities, including Bidoon children with disabilities, with a view to developing appropriate public policies in all areas of the Convention;
- (f) Building the capacity of personnel in the health, education and social service sectors, in particular on the rights of children with disabilities.

Myanmar (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of specific policies and programmes to protect and promote the rights of children with disabilities;
- (b) The prevalent stigma, discrimination and harmful stereotypes against children with disabilities, and the barriers that hinder their access to education, health and other services.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a comprehensive action plan and strategy for the promotion and protection of the rights of children with disabilities, allocating sufficient human, technical and financial resources for its implementation;
- (b) Take measures to address stigma, discrimination and harmful stereotypes against children with disabilities, and ensure their access to education, health and other services without discrimination, on equal basis with other children.

Cuba (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of strategies in the National Action Plan for Children, Adolescents and their Families for the period of 2015 to 2020 to promote the best interests of the child and respect the evolving capacities of children with disabilities;
- (b) Reports of institutionalisation of children with disabilities and the lack of statistical data on the number of children affected by such measures;
- (c) Article 86 of the Family Code (1975) that allow for “moderate correction” of children, resulting in corporal punishment of children with disabilities;
- (d) The absence of measures to ensure that the views of children with disabilities are considered in all matters affecting their lives;
- (e) Allegations that the registration of newborn children with disabilities is delayed.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen measures to uphold the rights of children with disabilities, by adopting a comprehensive strategy and action plan for the promotion and protection of the rights of children with disabilities, by allocating specific human, technical and financial resources, as well as by establishing monitoring mechanisms for assessing their implementation;
- (b) Adopt measures for the de-institutionalisation of children with disabilities by providing them with safe alternative care in family settings and inclusive services in the community;
- (c) Expedite the revision of the Family Code (1975) to explicitly prohibit corporal punishment of children in all settings, including at home and in institutions;

- (d) Take measures to develop and strengthen respect for the rights of children with disabilities in society, particularly children with disabilities living in rural areas, and enhance support for families of girls and boys with disabilities;
- (e) Set up protocols, guidelines and mechanisms in the judicial and administrative procedures and proceedings to ensure the right of children with disabilities to have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them and their families;
- (f) Ensure that all children with disabilities are registered immediately at birth to ensure their right to have a name, to registration of their birth and to a nationality.

Niger (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Many children with disabilities are engaged in forced child begging and child labour, including as guides to adults with disabilities;
- (b) Children with disabilities lack access to social and health care services and equal education opportunities, particularly inclusive education, and experience high levels of abuse and violence, including corporal punishment at home, in schools and residential institutions;
- (c) There is a lack of representation of children with disabilities in national public policy discourse and a lack of opportunities for them to express their views and measures to eliminate discrimination against children with disabilities are limited.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party adhere to the Convention in the implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 16 (targets 16.2 and 16.7), and:

- (a) Adopt legislation and measures for children with disabilities to enjoy their rights and adequately protect them from abuse, violence and exploitation, and sanction perpetrators;
- (b) Effectively implement the Framework Document for the Protection of the child (2013); develop a national plan for the care of children with disabilities; mainstream disability rights in children strategies and action plans; prohibit corporal punishment of children with disabilities in all settings; and implement awareness-raising campaigns and education, especially in schools and at the community level to eliminate discrimination against children with disabilities;
- (c) Establish a mechanism to consult children with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

Norway (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient recognition of the principle of the best interests of the child in the Education Act, beyond the Act's chapter on school environment and bullying, and in the Patient's and Users' Act;
- (b) The institutionalization of children with disabilities;
- (c) The unequal access to treatment, care and other opportunities for children with disabilities of migrant or refugee parents, children with disabilities with Sami background, children with disabilities belonging to national minorities, including Roma and Tater/Romani;
- (d) The absence of accessible mechanisms to ensure the rights of children with disabilities to be heard, to have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them, particularly in education, beyond the issue of school environment and bullying, to participate in decision-making processes affecting their lives, respecting their evolving capacities, as well as the lack of accessible complaints.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Incorporate the principle of the best interests of the child in all legislation, and judicial and administrative decision-making procedures affecting children, including the Educational Act, beyond the Act's chapter on school environment and bullying, and the Patients' and Users' Act;
- (b) Take measures to ensure the right of children with disabilities to be cared for by family, alternative care within the wider family or within the community in a family setting;

(c) Take account of all children with disabilities in legislation, policies and measures under the principle of equal opportunity and community inclusion, paying particular attention to children with disabilities of migrant or refugee parents, children with disabilities with Sami background, children with disabilities belonging to national minorities, including Roma and Tater/Romani;

(d) Promote comprehensive strategies and accessible mechanisms for the full and effective participation of children with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting their lives, ensuring their right to have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them, particularly in education, beyond the issue of school environment and bullying, respecting their evolving capacities and ensuring that they have access to accessible and child-friendly complaints mechanisms.

Rwanda (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The fact that legislation, including article 54 of the Law No. 54/2011 relating to the Rights and the Protection of the Child does not protect the rights of all children with disabilities;

(b) Prevailing discrimination and social exclusion of children with disabilities, particularly in remote or rural areas;

(c) Insufficient opportunities for children with disabilities to systematically participate in decision-making on matters that concern them;

(d) Limited support services provided for children with disabilities and their families within the community;

(e) Insufficient measures to promote inclusive alternative care in family settings for children with disabilities without parental care, and increasing separation of children with disabilities to live in segregated residential settings.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to review its laws, in particular Law No. 54/2011 relating to the Rights and the Protection of the Child, to ensure protection for the rights of all children with disabilities in line with the Convention;

(b) Step up its efforts to allocate all necessary resources to eliminate discrimination against and exclusion of children with disabilities, with a particular focus on children at risk of intersectional discrimination;

(c) Establish policies and programmes to ensure the right of children with disabilities to express their views on all matters concerning them;

(d) Take measures, including within the National Commission for Children, to ensure support services and facilities are available in the community for children with disabilities and their families to ensure their right to family life, in line with their best interests;

(e) Adopt measures to support that children with disabilities live in family settings with appropriate support, including alternative care within the wider family or within the community in a family setting.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The lack of specific protections for children with disabilities in legislation, implementing regulations and policies, including in the Child Protection Act and the Protection from Abuse Act;

(b) Corporal punishment, discrimination, stereotypes against and marginalization of children with disabilities;

(c) Lack of capacity building programmes on the rights of children with disabilities in health, educational and social services for providers of such services;

(d) The absence of mechanisms to guarantee that children with disabilities have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them and their families, including in protection mechanisms;

(e) The absence of information on and the lack of meaningful consultations of families of deaf or hard of hearing children in the decision to undergo medical interventions with regard to cochlear implant procedures.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the Child Protection Act and the Protection from Abuse Act to introduce specific provisions protecting the rights of children with disabilities, and mainstream the rights of children with disabilities, including the principle of the best interests of the child, in national policies, plans and programs regarding children and youth;

(b) Prohibit violence against children with disabilities, including corporal punishment, take sanctions against perpetrators and adopt and implement a strategy to combat stereotypes and discrimination against children with disabilities;

(c) Build the capacities of all providers of services, including health, educational and social services, to children with disabilities, on the rights of children with disabilities;

(d) Develop and implement a mechanism that guarantees the full participation of children with disabilities, their families and representative organizations in decision-making processes and in policy development to guarantee that services provided to them respond to their requirements;

(e) Ensure that families and children with disabilities have given their prior and informed consent before proceeding to invasive health procedures, such as cochlear implants by respecting their evolving capacities, and facilitate the learning of sign language.

Senegal (2019)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Barriers, including stigmatization against children with disabilities, to access social protection, health care services and an inclusive quality education system, on an equal basis with other children;

(b) The absence of information, including statistical data, disaggregated by age and sex, on the situation of children with disabilities, including the number and proportion of those attending mainstream schools with adequate supports;

(c) Reported cases of exploitation, violence and abuse against children with disabilities, including corporal punishment, in the home, in schools and in institutions and the exploitation of children with disabilities in begging;

(d) The lack of effective representation of children with disabilities in national discourse, particularly in the Children's Parliament, and the opportunity to express their views and the weight attached to such views, regarding matters that concern them.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account the Convention in its implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 16 (targets 16.2 and 16.7) and:

(a) Adopt measures to combat stigmatisation against children with disabilities and ensure they have access to social and health care services and an inclusive quality education system, on an equal basis with others;

(b) Collect information, including statistical data, disaggregated by age and sex, on the situation of children with disabilities, including the number and proportion of children with disabilities attending mainstream schools with supports, with a view to better inform public policies on children;

(c) Repeal all provisions that authorize corporal punishment, including article 285 of the Family Code and adopt legislation and effective measures to ensure that children with disabilities are adequately protected from exploitation, violence, and abuse, including exploitation in begging and that perpetrators are sanctioned;

(d) Adopt a mechanism for conducting meaningful consultations with children with disabilities, through their representative organizations on matters that concern them and ensure their inclusion in the Children's Parliament and that full weight is given to their views, on an equal basis with other children.

Spain (2019)

12. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That children with disabilities are institutionalized in the State party and that measures taken to ensure the comprehensive deinstitutionalization of all children with disabilities are still insufficient;

(b) About the lack of access to universal and accessible health care services for children with disabilities, particularly in rural areas;

(c) About the lack of measures aimed at enabling children with disabilities to freely express their views on all matters affecting them on equal basis with other children.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take immediate measures to end the institutionalization of children with disabilities by, inter alia, developing and implementing a strategy to promote safe and supported family settings in the community, with specific timeframes and adequate allocated budget;

(b) Ensure universal access to primary health care services for all children with disabilities, including early intervention services;

(c) Ensure that all children with disabilities can express their views freely on all matters affecting them by, inter alia, ensuring disability and age-appropriate assistance.

Türkiye (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Insufficient data and information about the implementation of the First Strategy Paper and Action Plan on the Rights of the Children (2013-2017) and the Coordination Strategy Document on the Child Protection Services (2014-2019) and on their impact on the inclusion and participation of children with disabilities in society, and in public decision-making processes;

(b) The lack of effective mechanisms to support children with disabilities in the community, including children living in rural areas and for children with disabilities to lodge complaints about violation of their rights;

(c) The reports indicating that allowances for families of children with disabilities are subject to a degree of impairment assessed over 40 percent.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a transparent mechanism to monitor the impact of relevant policies and strategies on the rights of children with disabilities, in close consultation and with the direct involvement of organizations of children with disabilities, including children with intellectual disabilities;

(b) Improve early childhood development programmes for children with disabilities and develop community-based support for children with disabilities and their families, particularly children living in rural areas;

(c) Introduce a mechanism enabling children with disabilities to lodge complaints in a confidential way before public authorities, in cases of violation of their rights, particularly in the family, school, in institutions;

(d) Extend the coverage and implementation of child care allowances to families of all children with disabilities ensuring that single parents can also access this type of entitlements.

Vanuatu (2019)

14. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The absence of information on the measures taken to improve access to early identification and intervention programs by children with disabilities and the expiration of the National Disabilities Policy and Plan of Action (2008-2015), which has not been renewed;

(b) The lack of participation of children with disabilities in awareness raising events due to discrimination against them.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take the necessary measures to renew the National Disabilities Policy and Plan of Action (2008-2015) and ensure its implementation, especially to provide children with disabilities and their families with adequate assistance and support, including early identification and intervention programs, as foreseen in the Policy and Plan of Action;

(b) Adopt measure to combat discrimination against children with disabilities as well as strengthen its efforts to raise awareness among children with disabilities, their parents, families and the community, on the rights of children with disabilities.

Algeria (2018)

16. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Disability is not mainstreamed within national laws, policies and strategies on childhood;
- (b) Children with disabilities reportedly experience high levels of violence and neglect, including in the home, in schools, and in alternative care residential institutions;
- (c) There is an insufficient quantity of trained child care assistants, teachers and other professionals to carry out a policy of inclusive development and empowerment of children with disabilities;
- (d) Children with disabilities do not benefit from the required support to enjoy their rights on an equal basis with others, notably their right to access healthcare services, social protection, and inclusive education;
- (e) A large number of children with disabilities, particularly children with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities, are still living in residential alternative care institutions.

17. In line with the Convention and target 16.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream disability into national legislation, policies and strategies on childhood;
- (b) Adopt legislation and implement specific measures to protect children with disabilities from abuse and neglect and to investigate and sanction perpetrators;
- (c) Provide continuous quality training for all staff working with children on the rights of children with disabilities;
- (d) Increase resources to ensure that children with disabilities receive the support they require to enjoy their rights on an equal basis with others;
- (e) Encourage alternative care in family settings for children with disabilities and, in the meantime, ensure that residential alternative care facilities have adequately trained staff and sufficient financial resources to ensure the realization of the rights of children with disabilities in those facilities.

Bulgaria (2018)

19. The Committee is concerned by the fact that girls and boys with disabilities still live in homes for “children with mental retardation”, and homes for medical and social care for children, (CRPD/C/ BGR /1 para. 256). The Committee is further concerned that children with disabilities, in particular children with intellectual disabilities are not involved in matters affecting them.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure full deinstitutionalization of girls and boys with disabilities , and their right to live in a safe family environment, including foster families;
- (b) Increase further the resources allocated to development of inclusive support service network in local communities, and empowerment of families with children with disabilities in light of the Committee’s General comment No. 5 (2017) on living independently and being included in the community;
- (c) Increase awareness, strengthen the capacity, and accountability mechanisms at the municipal level to implement and finance support for inclusion of children with disabilities in the community;
- (d) Adopt regulations and programs to ensure that children with disabilities can express their views and opinions on all matters affecting them in family, schools, and in society, and in particular children who remain under institutionalization, in close consultation with representative organizations of children with disabilities.

Malta (2018)

11. The Committee is concerned about the institutionalisation of some children with disabilities whose families have been identified as being “unable” to take care for their children as per a Care Order issued under the Civil Code (Cap. 16). It is also concerned about the lack of information on the involvement of children with disabilities in measures taken by the Commissioner for Children to hear the views of children on the matters that concern them, such as the Council for Children convened by the Commissioner as per article 12 of the Commissioner for Children Act (Cap. 462).

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Reintegrate children with disabilities into communities who are currently institutionalized based on a Care Order under the Civil Code (Cap. 16) as expeditiously as possible, so that they can enjoy living in a family setting and access to education and other services within the community, on an equal basis with others;

(b) Adopt measures to fulfil the right of children with disabilities to be consulted on all matters that affect them, and to guarantee that they have disability- and age-appropriate support to realize that right, including in measures taken by the Commissioner for Children.

Philippines (2018)

16. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of information about measures to ensure inclusion of children with disabilities in society although the estimation of about 3.3 million of children with disabilities representing about 8 percent of the population in the State party;

(b) The absence of strategies to promote the best interests of the child in actions concerning children with disabilities;

(c) The institutionalization of children with disabilities and separation of children with disabilities from their families in rural areas while they are taken to schools;

(d) The absence of measures to ensure that children with disabilities views and opinions are considered in all matters affecting their lives.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive strategy and action plan for the promotion and protection of the rights of children with disabilities, and allocating specific human, technical and financial resources as well as monitoring mechanisms for assessing their implementation;

(b) Take measures to develop and strengthen respect for the rights of children with disabilities at home, and enhance support for families of girls and boys with disabilities, including early childhood programmes, in accordance with the standards set under international human rights law, in particular the Convention on the Rights of the Child. The State party should pay particular attention towards children with disabilities living in rural areas and children belonging to ethnic and religious minorities as well as migrant, refugee and asylum seeking children;

(c) Take measures to make mainstream schools accessible, so that children with disabilities in rural areas can attend schools while living with their families;

(d) Strengthen and ensure national coverage of referral systems, including community-based rehabilitation for children with disabilities across the country;

(e) Set up protocols and guidelines aimed at consulting with children with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensuring support according to their age and disability, in relation to issues affecting them.

Poland (2018)

11. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The institutionalization of children with disabilities in social care homes, including together with adults;

(b) Attitudes towards children with disabilities as being reliant on others and their lack of opportunities to express their opinion on matters pertaining to them directly;

(c) Lack of disaggregated data on children with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends the State Party to:

- (a) Expedite the deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities by providing them with safe alternative care in family settings and inclusive services in the community;
- (b) Take effective measures to support the empowerment of children with disabilities and create platforms for them to express their own views on all matters that concern them;
- (c) Collect disaggregated data and carry out participatory researches on the social condition of all children with disabilities.

South Africa (2018)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of legislation to give full effect to the right to inclusive education for all children with disabilities, in line with general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education, and as outlined in the recommendations from the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/ZAF/CO/2, paras. 43-45).
- (b) The high number of reported cases of corporal punishment, violence, abuse, neglect and inequality involving children with disabilities, especially autistic children and children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, by teachers and peers. The Committee is further concerned about reported cases of abuse of children with disabilities at schools and school hostels, with teachers allegedly being the perpetrators in most cases.
- (c) The large number of children with disabilities, nearly 600,000, who are out of school or studying in specialized schools or classes, in particular children with psychosocial disabilities, and children with disabilities placed in child centres or less regulated special service centres, all of which are based on long-term institutionalization, often located far from their families and communities, in isolation, and lack properly trained staff.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) In line with target 16.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, develop, adopt and implement legislation and concrete measures to ensure that children with disabilities, including autistic children, those with albinism and children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, are adequately protected from violence, abuse, including corporal punishment, and that sanctions are imposed against perpetrators; and that the Children's Act is amended without delay to explicitly prohibit all forms of corporal punishment in all settings;
- (b) Enact legislation giving full effect to the right to inclusive education for all children with disabilities, as outlined in the recommendations from the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/ZAF/CO/2, paras. 43-45), review the Education White Paper 6: Special Needs Education: Building an Inclusive Education and Training System (2001) with a view to further developing a legal and policy framework for inclusive education, and the inclusion of children with disabilities into mainstream schools;
- (c) Adopt a time-bound plan of action to address the high levels of physical, sexual, verbal and emotional abuse in special education schools, including special education school hostels. This plan must include a monitoring framework and process with a comprehensive vetting procedure, including for criminal records, for all teachers and officials working with children before recruitment, and ensure that the National Sexual Offenders Register and National Child Protection Register be adequately maintained;
- (d) Develop and adopt effective implementation plans for prevention and early intervention programmes in communities to enable early identification and support to children and adults with disabilities in family and community settings with adequate budget allocations, including training and continuous professional development of care workers and parents of children with disabilities, increased public awareness raising programmes to understand the importance of family and community based provisions instead of institutionalization.

North Macedonia (2018)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of specific legislation in regards to the rights of children with disabilities in the State Party;
- (b) The lack of criminalization of violence against children with disabilities, including corporal punishment and sexual violence, in all settings;
- (c) The expiration of the National Strategy for Equality and Non Discrimination 2005-2015 and the non-inclusion the rights of children with disabilities, including the principle of the best interest of the child, in national policies, plans and programs for children;
- (d) The prevalent stigma, discrimination and harmful stereotypes against children with disabilities, and the enduring approach to seclusion and institutionalisation;
- (e) The lack of early assistance and provision of services for independent living;
- (f) The absence of mechanisms to ensure the participation of children with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting their lives, in particular the lack of mechanisms to ensure the right of children with disabilities to have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them and their families, including participation in all protection mechanisms.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt specific legislation in regards to the rights of children with disabilities;
- (b) Criminalize violence against children with disabilities, including corporal punishment and sexual violence, in all settings and adopt and implement measures for sanctioning the perpetrators;
- (c) Adopt a new National Strategy for Equality and Non Discrimination that would provide for specific measures for the protection of rights of children with disabilities, based on sex, age, gender and ethnicity;
- (d) Mainstream the rights of children with disabilities including the principle of the best interest of the child in national policies, plans, programs, and compliance frameworks that apply to children and young people in general;
- (e) Adopt measures to address stigma, discrimination and harmful stereotypes against children with disabilities;
- (f) Provide continuous support for the child from early assistance to independent living;
- (g) Promote comprehensive strategies and mechanisms for full participation in consultations, decision-making processes and policy development through representative organisation to promote adequate choice of services that best fit the needs of the child taking into consideration the evolving capacities of the child.

Haiti (2018)

12. The Committee is seriously concerned by the abandonment and neglect of and violence against children with disabilities, including ill treatment and corporal punishment, within the family, at schools and in residential alternative care facilities. It is particularly concerned about:

- (a) The lack of consultation with the Office of the Secretary of State for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities during the development of the national strategy for the protection of the child;
- (b) Children with disabilities and their families not benefitting from social, health care, education, and economic services and support on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Insufficient resources, including adequately trained personnel and accessible facilities in residential alternative care facilities.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party take concrete legal and other measures to ensure the protection of children with disabilities from abandonment, neglect and abuse, including explicitly prohibiting corporal punishment in all settings. It also recommends that the State party collect and analyse disaggregated data on the situation of children with disabilities, including child abandonment and neglect, with a view to designing appropriate policy responses. In particular the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure the inclusion of children with disabilities in the national strategy for the protection of the child;

- (b) Increase resources for parents and families with children with disabilities and ensure they benefit from the same social, education, health care, education, and economic services and support on an equal basis with others;
- (c) Encourage alternative care in family settings for children with disabilities and, in the meantime, ensure residential alternative care facilities have adequately trained staff and sufficient financial resources to ensure the rights of children with disabilities in those facilities.

Nepal (2018)

13. The Committee is concerned about the absence of clear linkages between intended policies and actual implementation of policies such as the Ten-Year Children's National Action Plan or the Thirteenth Plan (2013–2016) aimed at protecting children. More specifically, the Committee is concerned about the absence of specific measures for supporting children with disabilities and their families, and also about the inadequacy of inclusive education for children, particularly those from rural areas, marginalized ethnic minority and indigenous communities. The Committee is also concerned at reports of abandonment of children with disabilities who as a result are exposed to exploitation and abuse.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps, which should include consultations with representative organizations of persons with disabilities and relevant ethnic minorities and indigenous groups to ensure overall improvement in increasing enrolment of children with disabilities for primary school education, implementing inclusive early childhood education, opportunities for vocational training for youth with disabilities, and undertake measures for the prevention of violence, abuse, exploitation and abandonment of children with disabilities. In doing so, the State party should pay particular attention towards marginalized groups of children with disabilities in rural and mountainous areas, in particular children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and those from indigenous groups.

Oman (2018)

15. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Both de jure and de facto discrimination of children with disabilities, especially with respect to access to social and health services and equal education opportunities, continues to be problematic in the State party;
- (b) Boys and girls with disabilities in the State party reportedly experience high levels of abuse and violence, including corporal punishment, in the home, in schools, in institutions and in alternative and day care settings;
- (c) There is a lack of effective representation of children with disabilities in national discourse, in particular in the Child First Association, the Children's Parliament, and the opportunity to express their views, especially regarding matters that concern them.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that all children with disabilities enjoy their rights under the Convention and in line with the best interest of the child principle, both de jure and de facto, including through the amendment of the Child Act of 2014 to explicitly prohibit corporal punishment of children in all settings, and that it intensify efforts to ensure the effective elimination of any form of discrimination against children with disabilities, through awareness-raising programmes, including campaigns and education, especially in the schools and at the community level;
- (b) In line with the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 16 (target 16.2), adopt legislation and concrete measures to ensure that children with disabilities are adequately protected from abuse and violence, and that perpetrators are sanctioned;
- (c) Mainstream disability rights in national strategies and action plans for children, including the adoption and implementation of a national plan for the care of children with disabilities, including in cooperation with UNICEF;
- (d) In line with the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 16 (target 16.7), adopt a mechanism for conducting effective consultation with children with disabilities, through their representative organizations and their full inclusion in the Child First Association and Children's Parliament and that full weight be given to the views of such children on an equal basis with other children.

Russian Federation (2018)

17. The Committee is deeply concerned by the large numbers of boys and girls with disabilities living in some institutions, referred to in paragraph 65 of written replies (CRPD/C/ RUS /Q/1/Add.1) to the list of issues prepared by the Committee.

18. The Committee recommends that the State Party adopt a strategy for deinstitutionalisation of boys and girls with disabilities with a set time frame and resources allocated to development of support service network in local communities and empowerment of families with children with disabilities and their further needs in light of the General Comment No. 5.

Seychelles (2018)

10. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of an explicit and comprehensive prohibition of corporal punishment of children in all settings in the State party and the absence of specific measures to address violence against children with disabilities;
- (b) The insufficient coordination of the provision of the necessary services for children with disabilities, among all responsible actors;
- (c) The lack of early assistance and placement of children with disabilities in residential treatment institutions;
- (d) The absence of mechanisms to ensure the participation of children with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting their lives, in particular the lack of mechanisms to ensure the right of children with disabilities to have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them and their families, including their participation in all protection mechanisms.

11. The Committee recalls the concluding observations adopted by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (see CRC/C/SVN/CO/3-4, para. 38), and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Explicitly prohibit any kind of corporal punishment of children in all settings, including alternative care institutions, and adopt a strategy to monitor the situation of children with disabilities in alternative care aimed at identifying all instances of violence against children with disabilities. The State party should ensure non-violent and participatory forms of child-rearing that include families with children with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure the effective coordination among different actors involved in child protection;
- (c) Adopt a national strategy with benchmarks and human technical and financial resources, aimed at ensuring full inclusion of children with disabilities in society, paying attention to the development of inclusive settings in early assistance, education, housing, health and all community services. The State party should ensure quality and independent monitoring of the living conditions of children with disabilities;
- (d) Adopt measures to fulfil the right of children with disabilities to express their opinion on all matters that affect them, and to guarantee that they have disability- and age-appropriate support to realize such right, including in judicial, administrative and policy-making procedures.

Slovenia (2018)

10. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of an explicit and comprehensive prohibition of corporal punishment of children in all settings in the State party and the absence of specific measures to address violence against children with disabilities;
- (b) The insufficient coordination of the provision of the necessary services for children with disabilities, among all responsible actors;

(c) The lack of early assistance and placement of children with disabilities in residential treatment institutions;

(d) The absence of mechanisms to ensure the participation of children with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting their lives, in particular the lack of mechanisms to ensure the right of children with disabilities to have their views taken into account on matters pertaining to them and their families, including their participation in all protection mechanisms.

11. The Committee recalls the concluding observations adopted by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (see CRC/C/SVN/CO/3-4, para. 38), and recommends that the State party:

(a) Explicitly prohibit any kind of corporal punishment of children in all settings, including alternative care institutions, and adopt a strategy to monitor the situation of children with disabilities in alternative care aimed at identifying all instances of violence against children with disabilities. The State party should ensure non-violent and participatory forms of child-rearing that include families with children with disabilities;

(b) Ensure the effective coordination among different actors involved in child protection;

(c) Adopt a national strategy with benchmarks and human technical and financial resources, aimed at ensuring full inclusion of children with disabilities in society, paying attention to the development of inclusive settings in early assistance, education, housing, health and all community services. The State party should ensure quality and independent monitoring of the living conditions of children with disabilities;

(d) Adopt measures to fulfil the right of children with disabilities to express their opinion on all matters that affect them, and to guarantee that they have disability- and age-appropriate support to realize such right, including in judicial, administrative and policy-making procedures.

Sudan (2018)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of measures taken to criminalize violence against children with disabilities, including corporal punishment and sexual violence, in all settings and under all circumstances;

(b) The absence of the rights of children with disabilities in national policies, plans and programs for children;

(c) The prevalent stigma, discrimination and harmful stereotypes against children with disabilities, and the enduring approach to seclusion and institutionalisation.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Criminalize violence against children with disabilities, including corporal punishment and sexual violence, under all circumstances and in all settings, including by amending the Children's Act of 2010 and the Criminal Code, and adopt and implement measures for sanctioning perpetrators;

(b) Mainstream the rights of children with disabilities in national policies, plans and programs for children;

(c) Take measures to combat stigma and stereotyping of children with disabilities within families and in society; and implement strategies to prevent abandonment, neglect, seclusion and institutionalization of children with disabilities.

Latvia (2017)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The continued institutionalization of children with disabilities in long-term care owing to the limited provision of family and community-based services for children of all ages and impairments, as well as for their families;

(b) The lack of access to mainstream, inclusive, quality education;

(c) The allegedly high rate of domestic violence perpetrated against children with disabilities;

(d)The charity and “cure” approach to children with disabilities that is perpetuated through television fundraising campaigns.

13.The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Reinforce support services for children with disabilities and their families in local communities, foster deinstitutionalization, prevent any new institutionalization and promote social inclusion and access to mainstream, inclusive, quality education;

(b)Investigate allegations of domestic violence against children with disabilities and ensure that the perpetrators are prosecuted under criminal law;

(c)Prevent and sanction any public campaigns that promote a charity and “cure” approach to children with disabilities.

Luxembourg (2017)

16.The Committee is concerned that some children with disabilities, particularly those with high support requirements, may not have lived with their families or have the access to education and other services within the community, on an equal basis with others, and may sometimes live in residential institutions abroad. It is also concerned that children with disabilities do not participate systematically in decision-making that affects their lives and that they lack opportunities to express their opinion on matters pertaining to them directly, including administrative and judicial procedures.

17.The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt measures to appropriately respond to the requirements of children with disabilities at the local, regional and national levels and ensure the equal rights of children with disabilities to life with their families, and have access to education and other services within the community;

(b) Adopt measures to fulfil the right of children with disabilities to be consulted on all matters that affect them, and to guarantee that they have disability- and age-appropriate support to realize that right, including in judicial and administrative procedures.

Montenegro (2017)

14.The Committee notes with concern that children with disabilities are not sufficiently included in decisions that affect their lives. It also notes with concern that:

(a)Discrimination and social exclusion of children with disabilities is prevalent;

(b)Data collected on the situation of children with disabilities is insufficient;

(c)Despite the prohibition against placing children with disabilities under 3 years of age in institutions, children with disabilities are frequently institutionalized, including in so-called day-care centres, and furthermore, the institutions are divided based on impairment;

(d)Early identification and intervention services are largely insufficient, particularly at the local level, and mostly follow the medical model;

(e) Support provided to parents of children with disabilities is insufficient.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party step up its efforts to allocate all necessary resources to eliminate discrimination against and exclusion of children with disabilities, with a particular focus on children at risk of intersectional discrimination. It also recommends that the State party:

(a)Establish policies and programmes that will ensure the right of children with disabilities to express their views on all matters concerning them;

(b) Take swift measures aiming at the deinstitutionalization of children and allocate all necessary resources to ensure that they have access to all necessary services in the context of community care instead of in the context of day-care centres or any other segregated settings;

(c) Provide all children with disabilities, regardless of their impairment, with sufficient early childhood intervention and development services in cooperation with representative organizations of parents of children with disabilities, including at the local level, in compliance with the Convention;

(d) Develop effective quality community-based support services for parents caring for children with disabilities.

Morocco (2017)

16. The Committee is concerned about reported violence against, abuse of and use of corporal punishment on children with disabilities, including abandoned children with disabilities, in the home, in alternative care and day-care settings and in schools.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt legislation and concrete measures to ensure that children with disabilities, including abandoned children with disabilities, are adequately protected from violence, exploitation and abuse, including corporal punishment, and that perpetrators are sanctioned.

18. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective representation of children with disabilities in national discourse, especially in the national parliament and congresses, and the lack of opportunity to express their views, especially on matters that concern them.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a mechanism for conducting effective consultation with children with disabilities through their representative organizations, and that it ensure the full inclusion of children with disabilities in the national forum of children, the children's parliament and children's governorate and municipal councils, on an equal basis with other children.

Panama (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are exposed to inequalities and subjected to discrimination, violence, abandonment, ill-treatment and institutionalization, and it notes that indigenous and Afrodescendent children with disabilities are particularly vulnerable. It is also concerned at the lack of legislation setting forth measures to protect children with disabilities from ill-treatment, abuse and exploitation and to prevent the abandonment, neglect and institutionalization of children with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Draw up and adopt legislation that sets forth measures to protect children with disabilities from ill-treatment, abuse and exploitation and to prevent the abandonment, neglect and institutionalization of children with disabilities and that it provides adequate resources for the effective implementation thereof;

(b) Adopt measures to ensure that children with disabilities have access to community services and programmes in order to strengthen the protection of their rights and to promote equal opportunities for family, community and social inclusion.

22. The Committee is concerned that national legislation does not expressly prohibit all forms of corporal punishment in homes, schools, day-care centres and alternative care settings.

23. The Committee urges the State party to repeal the provisions of the Civil Code and the Family Code that empower adults caring for children to "correct" and punish them moderately and recommends that it draw up legislation that completely prohibits corporal punishment in all settings, including in family settings and in indigenous and Afrodescendent communities, and take all necessary measures to ensure the implementation of that legislation.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a policy framework addressing the poverty of many families with children with disabilities;

(b) The failure to incorporate the human rights model of disability in public policies and legislation concerning children and young persons with disabilities;

(c) The lack of monitoring mechanisms and reliable indicators, particularly concerning bullying against children with disabilities in school;

(d) The absence of a general statutory duty upon public authorities to ensure adequate childcare for children with disabilities;

(e) The reported increase of incidents of bullying, hate speech and hate crime against children with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with organizations representing children with disabilities, develop and implement policies aimed at:

- (a) Eliminating the higher level of poverty among families with children with disabilities;
- (b) Incorporating the human rights model of disability into all laws and regulations concerning children with disabilities;
- (c) Setting up an independent monitoring mechanism to assess the situation of children with disabilities in school, particularly those facing bullying, through reliable indicators;
- (d) Securing sufficient and disability-sensitive childcare as a statutory duty across the State party;
- (e) Strengthening measures to prevent bullying, hate speech and hate crime against children with disabilities.

Armenia (2017)

11. The Committee is concerned by:

- (a) Reports on the institutionalization of a high number of children with disabilities in orphanages and residential special schools, including their transinstitutionalization from one institution to another under the guise of deinstitutionalization, and the continuing investment in such institutions;
- (b) The lack of State support, including early intervention, for children with disabilities and their families, and the high poverty rate among children with disabilities and their families, especially in rural and remote areas;
- (c) The insufficiency of measures to promote and encourage the adoption of children with disabilities;
- (d) Various forms of neglect, violence and abuse against children with disabilities, including in domestic and institutional settings;
- (e) Stigmatizing attitudes towards children with disabilities.

12. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Prioritize the deinstitutionalization of all children with disabilities and their resettlement in family settings, including by promoting foster care and providing appropriate community-based support to parents;
- (b) Provide children with disabilities and their families with adequate assistance, including early intervention, and implement specific measures to reduce poverty among them;
- (c) Promote and appropriately support adoption of children with disabilities;
- (d) Prohibit and criminalize all forms of violence and abuse against children with disabilities in all settings, including in the home and residential institutions;
- (e) Promote a positive image of children with disabilities;
- (f) Implement the recommendations contained in the concluding observations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child concerning children with disabilities (see CRC/C/ARM/CO/3-4, para. 36).

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

14. The Committee is concerned that corporal punishment of children, especially children with disabilities, is not explicitly prohibited in the family and in alternative care and day-care settings in the State party. It is also concerned that there is no universal and equal access to early childhood recognition and intervention services for children with disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Explicitly and universally prohibit corporal punishment of children, with particular attention to children with disabilities living in institutions;
- (b) Provide children with disabilities with sufficient early childhood intervention and development services in cooperation with organizations of parents with children with disabilities at the local level.

Canada (2017)

17. The Committee commends the support programme adopted in Quebec aimed at providing independent living for young persons of up to 21 years of age who are not autonomous, i.e., unable to stay at home on their own, as well as the network for “integrating” children with high-level support requirements in childcare services. However, the Committee notes with concern that the Government of Canada has not collected data on children with disabilities since 2006. It also notes that there are now more indigenous children in the care of Canadian services than there ever were in residential schools. It is further concerned about the lack of criteria established for applying the principle of the best interests of the child in actions concerning children with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Collect disaggregated information on the situation of and discrimination faced by children with disabilities, particularly indigenous children with disabilities, so as to formulate targeted programmes to tackle the exclusion they face;
- (b) Ensure earmarked budget allocations for children with disabilities in periodic expenditure programmes at all levels of administration and introduce monitoring indicators for such allocations;
- (c) Provide indigenous children with access to schools so as to limit their overrepresentation in Canadian welfare services. This can be achieved through direct communication with indigenous communities, as such communication will lead to a more issue-specific resolution;
- (d) Introduce guidelines among all levels of administration on how to implement the principle of the best interests of the child in the design, implementation and monitoring of legislation and policies concerning children with disabilities;
- (e) Prioritize the human rights of children with disabilities in public policies, in particular the recognition of the identity and evolving capacities of deaf children, deaf-blind children and hard-of-hearing children and their different requirements, autistic children and children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

Cyprus (2017)

19. The Committee is concerned about the limited access to early intervention and support provided to children with disabilities and their families, especially within the educational, health and social sector, and about the inadequate financial allowances available for families of children with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, adopt and implement human rights-based policies, laws and regulations to increase access by children with disabilities and their families to early intervention and other forms of individualized and necessary service and support, including earmarked financial support, in accordance with article 28 of the Convention.

21. The Committee notes with concern that the views of children with disabilities are insufficiently respected in matters concerning children. The Committee also notes with concern that the right of children with disabilities to inclusive education in mainstream schools may be restricted by parental consent, contrary to general comment No. 4 (2016) on the right to inclusive education.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with representative organizations of children with disabilities, adopt regulations and programmes to ensure that children with disabilities can express their views on all matters affecting them and that their views are fully respected. In that regard, the Committee also recommends that the State party ensure the right of children with disabilities to inclusive education in mainstream schools, in accordance with general comment No. 4 (2016).

Honduras (2017)

17. Al Comité le preocupa que en la legislación relativa a las niñas y niños no se contemple explícitamente el principio de no discriminación y que dicha ausencia afecte desproporcionadamente a niñas y niños con discapacidad. Asimismo, le preocupa que no existan medidas suficientes de protección para evitar el abandono de niñas y niños con discapacidad, que muchos aún estén institucionalizados, y la falta de datos sobre estos niños. Además, le preocupa al Comité el escaso alcance de medidas específicas para ellos en zonas rurales y en comunidades indígenas y afrohondureñas.

18. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que incluya en su Decreto núm. 79-36 (Código de la Niñez y Adolescencia) el principio de no discriminación, así como la protección a niñas y niños con discapacidad, con el objeto de reforzar las garantías a sus derechos y la igualdad de oportunidades para su inclusión familiar, comunitaria y social, y la suficiente dotación de recursos para su efectiva implementación. Asimismo, recomienda que adopte todas las medidas necesarias para poner en marcha un sistema eficaz de detección de malos tratos en los niños y niñas con discapacidad, tanto en el ámbito de la familia como en el entorno educativo, sanitario y en las instituciones.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

16. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The absence of mechanisms for children with disabilities to express their views and opinions regarding all matters affecting them;
- (b) The lack of information on measures to prevent abandonment, and mistreatment of children with disabilities;
- (c) The absence of strategies to promote the best interests of the child in actions concerning children with disabilities; and
- (d) The lack of disaggregated data about girls and boys with disabilities' access to health, education, an adequate standard of living including social protection, and enjoyment of sports, leisure and cultural activities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Set-up guidelines aimed at consulting with children with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensuring support according to their age and disability, in relation to issues affecting them;
- (b) Adopt a strategy to sensitize families and communities about the respect of the evolving capacities of children with disabilities, combat stereotypes against them and prevent isolation and neglect; and
- (c) Provide community-based services and support for children with disabilities with a view to eliminating institutionalization.

Jordan (2017)

17. The Committee is deeply concerned at the violence that boys and girls with disabilities reportedly experience in both care homes and the family setting. The Committee notes the absence of a disability perspective in national policies affecting children, including the Early Childhood Development Strategy and the National Strategy for the Family.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt the draft amendments to the Criminal Code which intensify punishments for acts of negligence or harm towards children with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that all cases in which children with disabilities are exposed to violence are reported and fully investigated, that perpetrators are prosecuted and appropriately punished and that victims are provided with adequate support and redress, including compensation and rehabilitation;
- (c) Mainstream disability rights in national strategies and action plans for children.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

16. The Committee is concerned about stigmatizing attitudes towards children with disabilities which are reinforced by a lack of community services. It is also concerned that children with disabilities do not systematically participate in making decisions that affect their lives and lack opportunities to express their opinion on matters pertaining to them directly. It is particularly concerned about the life-long institutionalization, from early childhood, of children with disabilities, especially those with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, in inhumane conditions, where they are exposed to neglect and segregated from the community.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party redouble efforts to promote a positive image of children with disabilities and increase the availability of mainstream support services to children with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party adopt safeguards to protect the right of children with disabilities to be consulted on all matters that affect them, and to guarantee disability- and age-appropriate support to realize that right. The Committee also recommends that the State party develop a national strategy for the deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities, which encompasses alternative care in family settings and inclusive support services and facilities in the community.

Bolivia (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned about the paucity of information on children with disabilities living in institutions, as well as the lack of measures to prevent their abandonment.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps to remove children with disabilities from institutions, to protect their right to live in a family environment and to be included in the community, and to prevent their abandonment.

Colombia (2016)

18. The Committee is concerned about the limited information available on the situation of children with disabilities, mainly those who have been institutionalized or who are living in poverty or in rural or remote areas, and about the steps taken to protect their rights and facilitate their remaining with or return to their families or foster families. It is also concerned about the lack of a ban on corporal punishment of children with disabilities.

19. The Committee urges the State party to more systematically gather data on children with disabilities and to take steps to prevent their abandonment, abuse and institutionalization. It encourages the State party to adopt a plan on the deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities, including those who are institutionalized on the basis of protection measures ordered by the Colombian Family Welfare Institute, and to provide community-based services and support to families, especially households headed by single mothers, in order to ensure the right of children with disabilities to grow up in a family environment and the right to have a family life. The Committee recommends that the State party repeal the provision in the Civil Code that authorizes adult childminders to correct and discipline children moderately and that it ban corporal punishment in any environment, including within the family and within indigenous and remote communities.

Ethiopia (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific legislation to address and ensure the protection of the rights of children with disabilities against abandonment, neglect, mistreatment and corporal punishment in all aspects of life.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement specific legislation to address the protection of children with disabilities against abandonment, neglect and mistreatment, including through the support of parents of children with disabilities. It also urges the State party to abolish, in law and in practice, corporal punishment against children with disabilities in all spheres.

Guatemala (2016)

23. The Committee is concerned at the high rate of maltreatment, abuse, corporal punishment, abandonment and institutionalization of children with disabilities; at the prevalence of the welfare and charity-based approach to their care; and at the limited scope of specific measures taken on their behalf in rural areas and indigenous communities.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend article 13 of the Act on the comprehensive protection of children and adolescents and article 253 of the Civil Code, as recommended by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (see CRC/C/GTM/CO/3-4, para. 54);

(b) Take all necessary measures to implement an effective system for detecting the maltreatment of children with disabilities in family, educational, health-care and institutional settings, and entrust the Office of the Advocate for Children and Adolescents with addressing the issue of children with disabilities who are subjected to abuse and maltreatment;

(c) Establish the legal basis and financial support necessary to ensure that all children with disabilities are able to live in a family setting and to exercise their right to inclusive local services for children;

(d) Ensure that children with disabilities are taken into account in laws, policies and measures regarding children, on an equal basis with other children and based on the principle of inclusion in the community;

(e) Put in place safeguards to protect the right of children with disabilities to be consulted on all matters of concern to them and ensure that they receive assistance that is accessible and appropriate to their disability and age;

(f) Prohibit and eliminate corporal punishment of children.

Italy (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned that nationwide data on the number of children with disabilities aged 0-5 years, disaggregated by age, disability and sex, is insufficient in scope and detail to understand the situation of children with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party improve immediately data collection to ensure early detection, intervention and service provision for all children with disabilities, particularly for the 0-5 age group.

17. The Committee is concerned that the policy framework for addressing child poverty for those with disabilities is inadequate and monitoring mechanisms are absent.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that policies aimed at addressing child poverty specifically include children with disabilities through their representative organizations and that the monitoring of the implementation of those policies and on poverty levels among children with disabilities is undertaken in close consultation with children living in poverty and their families.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned at the absence of:

(a) A strategy to promote the exercise by girls and boys with disabilities of their freedoms and rights on an equal basis with other children;

(b) Data about girls and boys with disabilities and that information on the measures and support available to children with disabilities reaching adulthood for starting an independent life is not collected systematically;

(c) Means for girls and boys with disabilities to express their views on all matters that concern them.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take all the steps necessary to promote the realization of the rights of the child for girls and boys with disabilities on an equal basis with other children, and provide adequate support for girls and boys with disabilities to help them start an independent life when they reach adulthood;

(b) Ensure safeguards to protect the right of girls and boys with disabilities to be consulted in all matters that concern them and to ensure that they receive appropriate assistance in that regard.

Uruguay (2016)

17. Al Comité le preocupa que en la legislación relativa a las niñas y niños no se contemple explícitamente el principio de la no discriminación y que dicha ausencia afecte desproporcionadamente a niñas y niños con discapacidad. Asimismo le preocupa que no existan medidas de protección para evitar el abandono de niñas y niños con discapacidad, que muchos aún estén institucionalizados, y le preocupa la falta de datos sobre estos niños.

18. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que incluya en su Ley número 17823 (Código de la Niñez y Adolescencia), el principio de no discriminación, así como que aumente la protección para niñas y niños con discapacidad con el objeto de garantizar sus derechos y la igualdad de oportunidades para su inclusión familiar, comunitaria y social, y la suficiente dotación de recursos para su efectiva implementación. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 7 de la Convención y las metas 10.2 y 10.3 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, para la plena inclusión de los niños y niñas con discapacidad, garantizándoles su igualdad de oportunidades y promoviendo legislaciones, políticas y medidas adecuadas contra la discriminación.

Chile (2016)

15. Al Comité le preocupa que en la legislación relativa a las niñas y niños no se contemple explícitamente el principio de la no discriminación; en particular, que dicha ausencia afecte desproporcionadamente a niñas y niños con discapacidad. Asimismo le preocupa que no existan medidas de protección para evitar el abandono de niñas y niños con discapacidad, o su institucionalización, debido a la falta de información y falta de apoyo a las familias, y a las condiciones de pobreza.

16. El Comité recomienda que en el proyecto de ley del sistema de garantías de los derechos de la niñez, actualmente en discusión por el Congreso, se incluya el principio de no discriminación, así como la protección especial a niñas y niños con discapacidad con el objeto de reforzar las garantías a sus derechos y la igualdad de oportunidades para su inclusión familiar, comunitaria y social, y la suficiente dotación de recursos para su efectiva implementación.

Lithuania (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of data and initiatives on protection from and prevention of sexual abuse and trafficking specifically targeting children with disabilities;

(b) The systematic lack of involvement of children with disabilities, especially children with intellectual or cognitive impairments and children with a reduced ability to express themselves vocally, in decision-making concerning their lives.

18. The Committee strongly recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop and implement an appropriate plan of action to eliminate all forms of sexual abuse and violence against children with disabilities within and outside of institutions, and collect disaggregated data in order to evaluate the effectiveness of measures that would be adopted under such a plan of action;

(b) Take legislative and administrative measures to guarantee the right of children with disabilities to express their views on all matters affecting them, particularly in judicial and administrative procedures, recognizing their evolving capacity and giving due weight to their views in accordance with their age and maturity, and to be provided with disability- and age-appropriate assistance to realize this right.

19. The Committee is concerned about the low number of children with disabilities and their families receiving support from the Ministry of Social Security and Labour and the narrow scope of support provided.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure that children with disabilities and their families receive the support that they need and that is appropriate given their individual requirements and develop the statistical tools necessary to measure the progress made in that respect.

Portugal (2016)

19. The Committee notes with concern the negative impact of austerity measures taken by the State party on the range of support services for families who have children with disabilities, and on support measures to ensure a quality inclusive education for children with disabilities. It also notes that the State party's disability strategies and strategies for children do not take into account the requirements of children with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt necessary measures, including the use of European Structural and Investment Funds and other pertinent funds, in order to minimise the impact of austerity measures on children with disabilities, enhancing support for families and ensuring the measures necessary for children with disabilities to receive a quality inclusive education. It also recommends that the State party ensure consultations with children with disabilities and with the organisations representing them on all issues affecting them, and that they are given disability- and age-appropriate support.

Serbia (2016)

13. The Committee is deeply concerned about the number of children with disabilities living in institutions, especially those with intellectual disabilities; that they constitute nearly 80% of children in institutions; and that information indicates that children with disabilities continue to be placed in institutions. The Committee is equally concerned that despite the legal prohibition on placement in institutions of infants under the age of 3 disabled infants with disabilities continue to be placed in institutions directly from maternity wards. It is further concerned that despite efforts to develop foster care, the level of day care, home assistance services, supporting housing, and counselling and therapy, within the framework of community-based services for families with children with disabilities in the State Party, remains insufficient. The State Party also seems to fail to develop efficient, sustainable and quality community-based care services based on the same standard at local level.

14. The Committee urges the State party to strengthen its efforts to deinstitutionalise children, in particular those with intellectual and/or psycho-social disabilities, to prevent any new institutionalisation of infant under the age of 3, and to ensure a more efficient transitions of boys and girls from institutions into families. In the interim period, it recommends the State party to provide children with disabilities with sufficient early childhood intervention and development services, to initiate education programmes for the staff in institutions, and to develop efficient community-based care services for those leaving institutions.

Slovakia (2016)

23. The Committee is deeply concerned about the number of children with disabilities living in institutions, especially those with intellectual disabilities.

24. The Committee urges the State party to prevent any new placement of children with disabilities in institutions, and to introduce an action plan with a clear timetable for its implementation and budget allocations to ensure the full deinstitutionalization of children with disabilities from all residential services and their transition from institutions into the community.

25. The Committee is concerned that there is a significant lack of early intervention and early diagnosis services in the health, social and educational areas and that financial support for families with children with disabilities requiring early intervention is insufficient.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a holistic and comprehensive network of health and social care services for the early diagnosis and intervention for children with disabilities, in close consultation with their representative organizations, and increase financial support for their families using public resources.

Thailand (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned about discrimination and stigma against children with disabilities, which results in reluctance by some parents of children with disabilities to register with the Department of Empowerment of Persons with Disabilities; the abandonment of children with disabilities by their families; and the number of children with disabilities living in institutions. The Committee is also concerned that children, their families and professionals working for and with children are unaware of their rights; entities working on their protection and promotion lack coordination; professionals in the field lack training; and reliable statistics and information on the situation of children with disabilities are lacking overall.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with representative organizations of children with disabilities:

(a) Adopt a strategy to combat stereotypes against children with disabilities and prevent their abandonment;

(b) Develop community-based services and assistance with a view to ending institutionalization;

(c) Raise awareness of the rights of children with disabilities and strengthen the provision of assistance appropriate to their age and impairment.

Uganda (2016)

12. The Committee notes with concern that legislation and policies fail to provide protection for the rights of children with disabilities. It is also concerned about the absence of information on the situation of deaf and deaf-blind children, and about measures to ensure their protection and inclusion in society.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Children's Act in line with the Convention in order to mainstream rights of children with disabilities across all programmes and provide necessary budget and resources for their protection;

(b) Adopt measures to include deaf and deaf-blind girls and boys in all public policies and programmes to ensure that their opinions and views are taken into consideration;

(c) Implement measures aimed at promoting the right of children with disabilities to be consulted in all matters concerning their lives and at enabling them to receive assistance appropriate to their age and disability.

Brazil (2015)

18. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and do not have the opportunity to express their opinion in matters that affect them directly.

19. The Committee recommends the State party to adopt safeguards to ensure consultation of girls and boys with disabilities and their representative organizations in all decisions that affect their lives.

European Union (2015)

22. The Committee is concerned about the number of boys and girls with disabilities living in institutions across the European Union who have no access to mainstream inclusive quality education. It furthermore notes with concern the adverse effect austerity measures have on availability of support services in local communities for families with children with disabilities, that disability strategies do not include children, and that the European Union Agenda for the Rights of the Child has expired.

23. The Committee recommends that the European Union take necessary measures, including through the use of ESI Funds and other relevant European Union funds, develop support services in local communities for boys and girls with disabilities and their families, foster deinstitutionalisation and prevent any new institutionalisation, and promote social inclusion and access to mainstream inclusive quality education for boys and girls with disabilities. It further recommends that the renewed Agenda on the Rights of the Child include a comprehensive rights-based strategy for boys and girls with disabilities and safeguards to protect their rights. The Committee recommends that all disability strategies address and mainstream the rights of boys and girls with disabilities.

24. The Committee is concerned at the lack of awareness regarding the rights of boys and girls with disabilities, that boys and girls with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and do not have the opportunity to express their opinion on those matters that affect them directly.

25. The Committee recommends that the European Union ensure that boys and girls with disabilities and their representative organisations be consulted in all matters affecting them – with appropriate assistance provided, according to their disability and age.

Gabon (2015)

16. The Committee is concerned that girls and boys with disabilities lack access to services to ensure their development, protection and participation, such as suitable health care and education services, in particular in rural areas. It is also concerned that there are inadequate resources to strengthen support services and information to families of girls and boys with disabilities to ensure they are included at home and in the community.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party review the situation of girls and boys with disabilities in terms of their access to suitable health care, and education services; allocate adequate resources to strengthen support services for girls and boys with disabilities and their families, to raise awareness among parents and the community; and to train professionals in the field.

18. The Committee is concerned that girls and boys with disabilities are not given adequate support and opportunities to express their views and exercise their right to be heard, including in consultations in the drafting of laws and policies.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party establish national mechanisms to enable girls and boys with disabilities to express their views (and receive support if they request it) to fully participate in decision making concerning their lives.

Kenya (2015)

13. The Committee is deeply concerned at the abandonment of children with disabilities who are rejected by their families and negative stereotypes against them, particularly in rural areas. It is also concerned about the institutionalization of children with disabilities and the prevalence of residential care. It observes with concern the absence of information on the situation of deaf, blind and deaf-blind girls and boys and about measures to ensure their protection and inclusion in society. The Committee takes note of the creation of children assemblies in 47 counties. Nevertheless, it is concerned that children with disabilities in particular in rural areas are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt as a matter of priority a strategy to combat stereotypes against girls and boys with disabilities within families and in society and implement an early warning mechanism to prevent abandonment of children with disabilities in urban and rural areas;

(b) Provide community-based services and assistance for girls and boys with disabilities with a view to eliminate institutionalization, and ensure that grants from the Transfer Programme for Orphans and Vulnerable Children reach children with disabilities in rural areas;

(c) Take measures to assess the situation of girls and boys who are deaf-blind and ensure that public policies and programmes are responsive to their specific needs; and

(d) Implement measures, in partnership with organizations of persons with disabilities and other civil society organizations aimed at promoting the right of children with disabilities to be consulted in all matters of concerning their lives and that they receive assistance appropriate to their age and disability.

Mauritius (2015)

13. The Committee shares the concern expressed by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/MUS/CO/3-5 para. 49) that the State party gives precedence to an integrative approach instead of eliminating the physical, socioeconomic and cultural barriers that prevent their full inclusion in schools and in society. The Committee is also concerned about the overreliance of the State party on NGOs to provide specialized services to children with disabilities without the necessary support, monitoring & regulatory guidance for these NGOs; the insufficient measures to prevent the placement of children with disabilities in 'centres de sauvegarde' ("Abris des Enfants en Détresse") and the rejection and stigmatization faced by these children.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective measures to ensure provision of quality inclusive services for boys and girls with disabilities both in public and private sectors in compliance with the Convention and allocate the necessary resources to these services. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure that NGO run programmes be regulated and closely supervised and that staff of these NGOs undergo specific monitoring. The Committee also recommends that the State party amend the National Children's policy and the National Child Protection Strategy with the view to incorporating targeted measures for children with disabilities to enjoy their rights on an equal basis with other children.

Qatar (2015)

15. The Committee is concerned by the absence of a strategy to promote that girls and boys with disabilities exercise freedoms and rights on an equal basis with other children. It is also concerned by the absence of data about girls and boys with disabilities and of systematic information on measures and support available for starting independent life available to children with disabilities reaching adulthood. The Committee is also concerned by the absence of means for girls and boys to express their views on all matters that concern them.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party take all the necessary steps to promote the realization of the rights of the child for girls and boys with disabilities on an equal basis with others, and provide adequate support for girls and boys with disabilities to help them start an independent life when they reach adulthood. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure safeguards to protect the right of girls and boys with disabilities to be consulted in all matters that concern them and to ensure that they receive appropriate assistance in this regard.

Ukraine (2015)

13. The Committee is deeply concerned about the reports of abandonment of children with disabilities in conflict areas of eastern Ukraine and widespread institutionalization of children with disabilities throughout the country. It is particularly concerned about the reports of sexual abuse and exploitation of children with disabilities in institutions and their trafficking abroad. It is also concerned about the poor conditions in care institutions for such children, including lack of rehabilitation programmes and lack of privacy, and is particularly alarmed about the reports of deaths of children with disabilities in institutions due to malnutrition related illnesses.

14. The Committee calls upon the State party to ensure the safety of all boys and girls with disabilities in its conflict affected areas by all possible means and especially those living in institutions to be among the priority groups to be evacuated in emergencies. The Committee also urges the State party to take prompt measures to investigate the reports of sexual abuse, exploitation and trafficking of boys and girls in institutions and prosecute and punish perpetrators. Furthermore, it recommends to strengthen its efforts for deinstitutionalization and, in the interim period, provide boys and girls with disabilities in institutions with adequate standards of living including quality nutrition and access to privacy.

Cook Islands (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned at the lack of awareness regarding the rights of children with disabilities and the absence of a specific strategy to address their rights. It is also concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and do not have the opportunity to express their opinion on matters that affect them directly.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party raise awareness of the rights of children with disabilities through training in schools, family settings and the wider community, in close cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities; and develop a comprehensive rights-based strategy for children with disabilities that adopts safeguards to protect their rights. The Committee further recommends that children with disabilities are consulted in all matters affecting them, with appropriate assistance according to their disability and age, aligned with the Committee on the Rights of the Child Concluding Observations (CRC/C/COK/CO/1).

15. The Committee notes an early identification of, and intervention for, children with disabilities project due to commence before 2016, however, the Committee is concerned that this project is of a temporary nature and unsustainable in meeting the long term needs of children with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a permanent early identification and intervention programme for children with disabilities, from birth to school age;

(b) Identify and provide additional paediatric specialist services that are not currently available;

(c) Provide families of children with disabilities financial assistance, training and support mechanisms to ensure children's inclusion and full participation in the family and the community.

Croatia (2015)

11. The Committee is seriously concerned about the high rate of child abandonment and institutionalization of children with disabilities in the State Party; for their lack of attention and care in the areas of education, health and habilitation; for their vulnerability to violence and abuse, as well as the limited scope of specific measures for them in rural areas. The Committee is also concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and do not have the possibility to express their opinion in matters that affect them directly.

12. The Committee recommends the State party to ensure equal protection of children with disabilities in all legislation, policies and measures aimed at children, and strengthen its policy for the de-institutionalisation of children with disabilities. It further recommends to establish and implement a strategy against abandonment of children with disabilities and to adopt safeguards to ensure consultation of children with disabilities in all matters affecting them. The Committee recommends that the State party introduce a clear strategy for a moratorium on new admissions to institutions and strengthen its efforts to provide psychological, financial and social service support measures to families.

Czech Republic (2015)

15. The Committee is deeply concerned by the persistence of the concept of "caring for children with disabilities in institutions" as public policy, and insufficient development of support services to boys and girls with disabilities and their families in local communities. The Committee is also concerned at the fact that children with disabilities are not able to systematically participate in decision-making that affects their lives and that they do not have the opportunity to express their opinion on matters pertaining to them directly.

16. The Committee calls upon the State party to abandon the concept of residential institution care for boys and girls with disabilities and to step up the efforts to develop support services for boys and girls with disabilities and their families in local communities, with a clear timeline and concrete benchmarks for implementation which are effectively monitored at regular intervals. The Committee also requests the State party to adopt safeguard measures, with a view to protecting the rights of boys and girls with disabilities to be consulted on all matters that affect them, guaranteeing effective assistance bearing in mind their disability and age.

Dominican Republic (2015)

12. The Committee is concerned at the lack of mechanisms to protect children with disabilities from neglect and the lack of means whereby children with disabilities can freely express their opinions and preferences on matters that affect them.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party develop policies based on the principle of the best interests of the child, that will ensure that children with disabilities have the possibility of living in a family and of being included in the community and that it implement mechanisms to ensure that they can express their views on issues affecting them.

Germany (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned: a) that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions affecting their lives; b) That the parents of children with disabilities cannot decide freely on the type of education and services for their children; c) about the unequal access to treatment and opportunities for children with disabilities of migrant or refugee parents.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt safeguards in order to protect the right of children with disabilities to be consulted in all matters affecting their lives, ensuring assistance that is appropriate to their disability and age;

(b) Ensure consideration of all children with disabilities in legislation, policies and measures under the principle of equal opportunities and community inclusion, paying particular attention to those who are children with disabilities of migrant parents or refugees.

Mongolia (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned that there are inadequate specific measures for providing special protection required by children with disabilities and to their families, aggravated in the case of girls with disabilities and those belonging to nomadic communities, as well as the inadequacy of education given, particularly to those in rural areas. The Committee is also concerned that boys and girls with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and do not have the possibility to express their opinion in matters that affect them directly.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party take steps, which should include consultations with DPOs, to ensure early intervention, overall improvement in increasing enrolment of boys and girls with disabilities for primary school education, implement inclusive early childhood education, opportunities for vocational training for youth with disabilities, and undertake measures for the prevention of violence, abuse and abandonment of children with disabilities. In doing so, the State party should pay particular attention to the situation of girls with disabilities, as well as boys and girls with disabilities from rural areas and nomadic communities. The Committee also requests the State party to adopt safeguards to protect the right of boys and girls with disabilities to be consulted in all matters affecting them, ensuring appropriate assistance according to their disability and age. All of these measures should also be in accordance with the concluding observations made by the Committee on the Rights of the Child to the State party in its last constructive dialogue with it.

Turkmenistan (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the concrete achievements of the programmes on early childhood development and early identification of developmental delays. It is also concerned that children with disabilities reaching the age of 16 are considered as adults for the purpose of disability benefits, in line with the concern expressed by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/TKM/CO/2-4, para. 42). It is further concerned about the lack of information on available measures and support for girls and boys with disabilities reaching adulthood for starting independent life.

18. The Committee urges the State party to:

(a) Evaluate the results achieved so far through the implementation of the programmes on early childhood development and strengthen those programmes and allocate adequate resources accordingly;

(b) Take measures to ensure that children continue receiving disability benefits up to the age of 18, in line with the recommendation made by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/TKM/CO/2-4, para. 43);

(c) Provide adequate support to adolescents with disabilities to start an independent life when they reach adulthood.

New Zealand (2014)

17. The Committee is concerned that it is still the case that some children with disabilities, especially Maori children with disabilities, have difficulty in accessing some government services, including health and education services. The Committee notes the recent work undertaken as part of the Disability Action Plan 2014–2018 to make services more accessible.

18. The Committee recommends that this work be increased to ensure that all children with disabilities are able to access government and related services, including to receive support to express their views.

Denmark (2014)

20. The Committee is concerned that, according to the National Council for Children, children who are hospitalized in psychiatric hospitals can be subject to forced treatment.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party abolish forced hospitalization and treatment of children in psychiatric hospitals and provide adequate opportunities for information and counselling to ensure that all children with disabilities have the support they need to express their views.

Belgium (2014)

15. The Committee is concerned that the State party is now among the European countries with the highest rates of children with disabilities placed in institutions, according to a 2013 European Union report on children with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically included in decisions which affect their lives and do not have the opportunity to express their opinion about issues that affect them directly.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate the necessary resources to support families of children with disabilities, in order to prevent the abandonment and placement of those children in institutions and to ensure their inclusion and participation in the community on an equal basis with other children. The Committee recommends the adoption of measures to protect the right of children with disabilities to be consulted on all issues affecting them through the provision of age- and disability-appropriate support.

Ecuador (2014)

18. The Committee is concerned that, despite the concerted efforts made by persons with disabilities in Ecuador, there are no dedicated structures for the participation of children with disabilities and no frameworks or incentives to promote the establishment of organizations of children with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party include a specific component for the participation of children with disabilities in its incentives supporting organizations of persons with disabilities, in order to preserve their identity and promote their involvement in protecting their own rights.

Mexico (2014)

15. The Committee is concerned at the high rate of child abandonment and the institutionalization of children with disabilities, at the prevalence of the welfare approach to their care and at the limited scope of specific measures taken for them in rural areas and indigenous communities. The Committee is also concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and that they do not have the opportunity to express their views regarding matters of direct interest to them.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that children with disabilities, especially those in rural areas and indigenous communities, are taken into account in laws, policies and measures regarding children, on an equal basis with their peers and based on the principle of inclusion in the community;

(b) Put in place safeguards to protect the right of children with disabilities to be consulted in all matters of concern to them and to ensure that they receive assistance appropriate to their disability and age.

Sweden (2014)

15. The Committee is concerned at reports indicating that children with disabilities are exposed to higher rates of violence than other children, and that there is a lack of awareness among staff working with children.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party develop research as well as a collection of data and statistics on violence against children with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party reinforce its strategy and initiatives for the sensitization and training of parents and staff working with children as well as for awareness-raising among the general public.

17. The Committee is concerned at reports that reveal that rates of mental health and psychosocial issues and disorders are high among young people; that school health services are underresourced; and that access to school psychologists and the psychosocial support system involves a long wait.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party increase the resources available for school health services to ensure that children have access to and receive appropriate psychosocial and mental-health support and psychiatric health care in a timely manner.

19. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions concerning their lives and that they lack opportunities to express their opinions on matters concerning them.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure existing safeguards and adopt additional ones to protect the right of children with disabilities to be consulted in all matters concerning them.

Azerbaijan (2014)

18. In its 2012 concluding observations on Azerbaijan (CRC/C/AZE/CO/3-4), para. 34, the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC) expressed deep concern regarding the high rate of infant mortality in the State party, which is allegedly the fifth highest in Europe. Furthermore, the CRC expressed concern that the State party's definition of a live birth is not consistent with the internationally recognized World Health Organization definition. The Committee reiterates the concerns by the CRC and further expresses concern at the lack of data on the number of children born with disabilities who are affected by the State party's high rate of infant mortality, particularly how this state of affairs are affecting the birth registration of boys and girls with disabilities

19. The Committee reiterates the recommendations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and requests the State party to expedite their implementation. The Committee further recommends that the State party compile data indicating the number of children born with disabilities who are affected by the high infant mortality rate in the State party. The Committee urges the State party to, therefore, conduct a study on the mortality of boys and girls with disabilities and to expeditiously step up its efforts to reduce infant mortality, in accordance with the implementation of the definition of a born alive of the World Health Organization.

Costa Rica (2014)

15. The Committee notes with concern that the State party has conducted no survey on the situation of children with disabilities, including indigenous children, who are placed in institutions, abandoned, victims of abuse or living in poverty or in rural settings. Furthermore, the Committee regrets that the National Child Welfare Agency reflects the assistance-based and irregular situation model, disregarding the rights of children with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned at the fact that disability is not mainstreamed in Act No. 7739, the Children and Adolescents Code, and that article 62 of the Code, on the right to special education, is not in line with article 24 of the Convention.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party take urgent measures to protect children with disabilities from abuse and abandonment, and to prevent institutionalization. It also urges the State party to guarantee freedom of expression and opinion for children with disabilities. The Committee also urges the State party to amend the Children and Adolescents Code to include disability as a cross-cutting theme, and to amend article 62 of the Code, on the right to special education, to guarantee children with disabilities inclusive education of quality.

Australia (2013)

18. The Committee is concerned that the National Framework for Protecting Australia's Children is focused on child protection against violence, abuse and neglect, and that there is no comprehensive national policy framework for children, including children with disabilities, that articulates how the rights of children should be implemented, monitored and promoted.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Increases efforts to promote and protect the rights of children with disabilities, by incorporating the Convention into legislation, policies, programs, service standards, operational procedures and compliance frameworks that apply to children and young people in general;

(b) Establishes policies and programmes that will ensure the right of children with disabilities to express their views on all matters concerning them.

Austria (2013)

19. In its 2012 Concluding Observations on Austria (CRC/C/AUT/CO/3-4), the Committee on the Rights of the Child expressed its concern about a number of ways in which the rights of children with disabilities were at risk of being abrogated.

20. The Committee endorses the recommendations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child and requests the State Party to implement those recommendations as speedily as is appropriate.

El Salvador (2013)

19. The Committee is concerned that the Child and Adolescent Protection Act does not include specific actions to ensure the protection of children with disabilities, aside from a few regarding health care. The Committee is concerned that children with disabilities living in poverty are more vulnerable to abandonment or placement in institutional care.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen its legislation and set up specific programmes to guarantee the rights of children with disabilities on equal terms, paying particular attention to children with disabilities living in rural areas and indigenous communities and to children with hearing, visual and intellectual impairments, ensuring their social inclusion and preventing abandonment and institutionalization, with priority for actions for underprivileged families.

Paraguay (2013)

19. The Committee notes with concern that the National Programme of Comprehensive Care for Children and Adolescents with Disabilities is limited solely to the prevention and early detection of disability characteristic of the medical model, and does not take account of the full range of rights recognized to children with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that the resources for implementation of a public policy on inclusion of children with disabilities are inadequate. The Committee regrets the lack of information on children with disabilities who are at risk of ill-treatment and abuse, including indigenous children with disabilities.

20. The Committee urges the State party to allocate sufficient resources as required to implement a broad policy on inclusion of children with disabilities in all areas of life, including family life and community life, by developing inclusive community-based rehabilitation programmes for children with disabilities as recommended by the Committee on the Rights of the Child in its concluding observations on the third periodic report of Paraguay (CRC/C/PRY/CO/3, para. 49). The Committee also asks the State party to investigate and document the situation of children with disabilities in rural areas and indigenous communities, with a view to providing protection from abuse and ill-treatment.

Argentina (2012)

15. The Committee notes with concern that Act No. 26.061 on the comprehensive protection of the rights of children and adolescents contains no provisions specifically on children with disabilities. It is also concerned at the lack of information on the situation of children with disabilities in the State party.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party should, as a priority, incorporate a disability perspective into Act No. 26.061 and the system for the comprehensive protection of children's and adolescents' rights. The Committee urges the State party to invest the greatest possible amount of available resources in ending discrimination against children with disabilities and to ensure that they are covered by health insurance schemes and receive the services and benefits, such as pensions and housing, to which they are entitled.

China (2012)

13. The Committee fears that children with disabilities in the state party are at a high risk of abandonment by their parents and are often placed in isolated institutions. For those children with disabilities living at home in rural areas, the Committee is concerned at the lack of community-based services and assistance.

14. The Committee urges the state party to take measures to fight the widespread stigma in relation to boys and girls with disabilities and revise their strict family planning policy, so as to combat the root causes for the abandonment of boys and girls with disabilities. It asks the state party to provide sufficient community-based services and assistance also in rural areas.

Hong-Kong

59. While commending the assessment and early education service offered by Hong Kong, China, government, the Committee is concerned that the services provided are not sufficient to match the overwhelming demand.

60. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong, China, allocate more resources to the services provided for children with disabilities in order to ensure that they are able to develop to their full potential.

Hungary (2012)

21. The Committee takes note of the State party's expression of dedication to protect and promote the rights of children with disabilities. However, the Committee is concerned about the high number of children living in institutional settings and about the fact that a large part of children with disabilities receives institutional care, instead of home care. It stresses the importance of allocating sufficient resources to enable children with disabilities to continue living with their families in their own communities.

22. The Committee calls upon the State party to undertake greater efforts to make available the necessary professional and financial resources, especially at the local level, to promote and expand community-based rehabilitation and other services in their respective local communities to children with disabilities and their families, in order to enable children with disabilities to live with their families, as recommended by the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC/C/HUN/CO/2).

Peru (2012)

16. While taking note that the Code on Children and Adolescents (Law 27337) recognizes certain rights of children with disabilities, the Committee is concerned at their de facto enjoyment of those rights. The Committee is concerned at the invisibility of children with disabilities, in particular indigenous children, in statistical data of the State party.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party make special care and assistance to children with disabilities, in particular indigenous children, a matter of high priority, and invest to the maximum extent of available resources in the elimination of discrimination against them, as well as gather accurate data to monitor the upholding of their rights. The Committee further recommends that the State party take steps to prevent violence, abuse and extreme abandonment of children with disabilities.

Spain (2011)

23. The Committee is particularly concerned at the reportedly higher rates of abuse of children with disabilities in comparison with other children. The Committee is equally concerned by the lack of early identification, family interventions and informed support of children with disabilities, which puts at risk their full development and ability to express their views; and by the lack of available resources and coordinated public administration in the social, health and education services, among others.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Increase efforts to promote and protect the rights of children with disabilities, and to undertake research on violence against children with disabilities, adopting measures to eradicate this violation of their rights,

(b) Establish policies and programmes that will ensure the right of children with disabilities to express their own views;

(c) Develop coordinated public policies with sufficient resources to ensure inclusive access to support services that include informed therapeutic, rehabilitation and habilitation services, and care which covers the health, psychosocial and education needs of children with disabilities, in particular during early childhood.

Tunisia (2011)

16. The Committee is particularly concerned at the low rate of reporting (signalement) of cases of habitual mistreatment of children, including children with disabilities, which may amount to situations of danger, in view of the results of the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey (MICS 2006) which indicated that 94 per cent of children aged between 2 and 14 years are disciplined in the home through violent means, whether verbal, physical, or through deprivation.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Evaluate the phenomenon of violence against boys and girls with disabilities, and compile systematic disaggregated data (see paragraph 39 below) with a view to better combating it;
- (b) Ensure that institutions providing care for children with disabilities are staffed with specially trained personnel, subject to appropriate standards, regularly monitored and evaluated, and establish complaint procedures accessible to children with disabilities;
- (c) Establish independent follow-up mechanisms; and
- (d) Take steps to replace institutional care for boys and girls with disabilities with community-based care.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 8 CRPD
(Awareness raising)*

September 2025

Article 8 - Awareness-raising

1. States Parties undertake to adopt immediate, effective and appropriate measures:

- a) To raise awareness throughout society, including at the family level, regarding persons with disabilities, and to foster respect for the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities;
- b) To combat stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices relating to persons with disabilities, including those based on sex and age, in all areas of life;
- c) To promote awareness of the capabilities and contributions of persons with disabilities.

2. Measures to this end include:

- a) Initiating and maintaining effective public awareness campaigns designed:

To nurture receptiveness to the rights of persons with disabilities;

To promote positive perceptions and greater social awareness towards persons with disabilities;

To promote recognition of the skills, merits and abilities of persons with disabilities, and of their contributions to the workplace and the labour market;

- b) Fostering at all levels of the education system, including in all children from an early age, an attitude of respect for the rights of persons with disabilities;

- c) Encouraging all organs of the media to portray persons with disabilities in a manner consistent with the purpose of the present Convention;

- d) Promoting awareness-training programmes regarding persons with disabilities and the rights of persons with disabilities.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

Finland (2025)

Kiribati (2025)

Maldives (2025)

Canada (2025)

Dominican Republic (2025)

European Union (2025)

Palau (2025)

Tuvalu (2025)

Viet Nam (2025)

Belarus (2024)

Belgium (2024)

Benin (2024)

Burkina Faso (2024)

Denmark (2024)

Ghana (2024)

Mauritius (2024)

Netherlands (2024)

Ukraine (2024)

Azerbaijan (2024)

Bahrain (2024)

Costa Rica (2024)

Kazakhstan (2024)

Nicaragua (2024)

Sweden (2024)

Zambia (2024)

Andorra (2023)

Austria (2023)

Germany (2023)

Israel (2023)

Malawi (2023)

Mauritania (2023)

Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)

Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)

Serbia (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
China (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)
Tunisia (2010)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Awareness-raising efforts remain limited, are not systematically aimed at educating the public, fail to challenge persistent stigma, misconceptions, harmful attitudes, and derogatory language toward persons with disabilities and do not represent the full diversity of persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual, psychosocial and non-visible disabilities, persons of short stature, deafblind persons and persons with multiple disabilities;

(b) Awareness materials on disability rights are not widely disseminated through the domestic intranet (Kwangmyong), radio, schools, healthcare centres, community events, or other national communication platforms, especially outside the capital, including in accessible formats.

14. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities:

(a) Develop and launch nationwide, inclusive, disability-sensitive awareness campaigns, accessible through the domestic intranet, media, and community platforms, that challenge stigma, harmful stereotypes, and discriminatory language, and reflect the diversity of persons with disabilities;

(b) Disseminate awareness materials broadly via Kwangmyong, radio, schools, healthcare centres, community events, and other platforms, ensuring outreach beyond the capital, including in accessible formats.

Finland (2025)

14. The Committee is concerned about findings of the Non-Discrimination Ombudsman that “one key factor behind the problems faced by people with disabilities is negative attitudes and a lack of knowledge”, and the lack of specific awareness-raising measures on the rights of persons with disabilities in educational settings in the public and private sector.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, design and implement a long-term, comprehensive awareness-raising program on the rights of persons with disabilities, covering all State entities and all parts of society, including educational settings in the public and private sector, with clear goals and monitoring mechanisms.

Kiribati (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The high prevalence of stigma, prejudice, stereotyping, harmful attitudes that have a detrimental impact on the lives of children and adults with disabilities throughout the State Party;

(b) The insufficient inclusion of organisations of persons with disabilities in awareness-raising activities, and incidences of naming organisations of persons with disabilities to obtain grant funding but not including them in the grant activity.

16. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop and resource an awareness-raising action plan with timeframes and measurable outcomes to implement the awareness raising priority area of the National Disability Policy and Action Plan in order to facilitate understanding of the Convention and to counter stigma, prejudice, stereotyping and harmful attitudes at the family, church and community levels across all islands;

(b) Ensure awareness raising on the rights of persons with disabilities is delivered in partnership with, and adequate resourcing of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations.

Maldives (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned about the high prevalence of stigma, prejudice, stereotyping, harmful attitudes and negative beliefs about the causes of disability that have a detrimental impact on the lives of children and adults with disabilities throughout the State party.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop and resource an awareness-raising action plan, with timeframes and measurable outcomes, about the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, combat stigma and prevent, promote positive images in media, investigate and prosecute harassment and discrimination of persons with disabilities, at the family, community and Local Island Council levels and across all islands;

(b) Provide training on the rights of persons with disabilities across all government ministries, the judiciary and law enforcement officers, and the media.

Canada (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Information about ableism and lack of intersectionality in awareness-raising initiatives, and their failure to address all rights covered in the Convention, as well as limited knowledge of the rights of persons with disabilities in many public and private entities;

(b) Negative perceptions and stereotypes in the State Party and society about persons with Down syndrome and other impairments, which results in a lack of accurate information being given to expectant parents in relation to prenatal screening programs, resulting in high rates of pregnancy termination.

16. Recalling its past Concluding Observations (CRPD/C/CAN/CO/1, paras. 19 and 20), the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Review, amend and adapt awareness-raising programmes to address stigma and ableism against persons with disabilities, and ensure that all related materials are accessible to all persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that prospective parents undergoing prenatal screening are provided with comprehensive information and non-directive counselling that does not promote stereotypes about persons with disabilities, including persons with Down syndrome, or values associated with a medical model of disability.

Dominican Republic (2025)

15. The Committee takes note of the organization of campaigns to promote and raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities. However, it notes with concern that prejudices and negative stereotypes of persons with disabilities continue to prevail in the public perception of disability. It is also concerned that the campaigns undertaken may not be enough to reinforce the image of persons with disabilities as rights holders.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a national strategy to promote a human rights-based model of disability that is sensitive to gender issues and children's needs. Such a strategy should target public officials, the media, health and justice professionals, the general public and the families of persons with disabilities, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities and with their active participation in its formulation, implementation and regular evaluation.

European Union (2025)

24. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of legal protection against disability-based hate speech and disability-based hate crime.

- (b) Stigma, ableist attitudes, harmful stereotypes and prejudice against persons with disabilities, including autistic persons;
- (c) Discriminatory eugenic attitudes towards persons with disabilities in prenatal medical diagnosis of impairments, affecting in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and autistic persons.

25. The Committee recommends that the European Union, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Continue existing efforts to combat hate speech against persons with disabilities, including persons with disabilities in marginalized groups and in migration situations, and to extend the criminal provisions against hate crimes to disability, and bring them to fruition;
- (b) Adopt a sufficiently endowed strategy to raise awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and autistic persons, which highlights the dignity of persons with disabilities and their contributions to society; and closely consults and actively involves organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and organizations of autistic persons;
- (c) Take sustained measures to counter stigma, ableism and discrimination in prenatal diagnosis of impairment, and provide persons with disabilities, and parents of children with disabilities with adequate support to raise children in the community.

Palau (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned at the persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes, prejudices towards persons with disabilities, as well as the absence of long-term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities, including the use of appropriate disability-related terms and language in line with the Convention.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy to raise awareness of and combat discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its effectiveness;
- (b) Introduce regular training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, the media, the politicians, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, as well as for the general public, both in rural and urban areas, in all accessible formats, including Braille, Easy Read, audio, tactile and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities.

Tuvalu (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned about the high prevalence of stigma, prejudice, stereotyping, harmful attitudes and negative beliefs about the causes of disability that have a detrimental impact on the lives of children and adults with disabilities throughout the State party.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Develop and resource an awareness-raising action plan with timeframes and measurable outcomes to implement Priority Area 1 (Awareness-raising and Advocacy) of the National Policy for Disability 2018 at the family, church, community and island council levels and across all islands;
- (b) Provide training on the rights of persons with disabilities across all government ministries, the judiciary and law enforcement officers, and the media.

Viet Nam (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) While public awareness-raising campaigns on disability rights are conducted, there is limited evaluation of their effectiveness in reducing stigma and discrimination against persons with disabilities;
- (b) Awareness-raising campaigns are often conducted through traditional media such as television, radio, newspapers, or posters, which may not be accessible to all persons with disabilities, particularly those with sensory or cognitive impairments and indigenous persons with disabilities;
- (c) Disability rights awareness is largely promoted on national disability days, with insufficient integration into mainstream media and educational curricula on a regular basis;
- (d) Despite efforts to promote awareness of the Convention through the National Plan for CRPD implementation, many persons with disabilities, particularly those in rural and remote areas and indigenous persons with disabilities, remain unaware of their rights under the Convention;
- (e) Although the Ministry of Labour, Invalids and Social Affairs organizes awareness-raising events in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, the limited funding and resources available to organizations of persons with disabilities hinder their ability to effectively lead outreach campaigns;
- (f) Although 112 disability-related publications have been produced, it is unclear whether they are accessible to persons with visual, intellectual, or auditory disabilities and to indigenous persons with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities and of women and girls with disabilities:

- (a) Establish a clear and systematic mechanism to evaluate the effectiveness of public awareness-raising campaigns on disability rights, particularly in terms of their impact on reducing stigma and discrimination, and use the findings to improve future campaigns;
- (b) Ensure that all public awareness-raising materials, including traditional media, are accessible to persons with disabilities by providing sign language interpretation, Braille, easy-to-read formats, indigenous language such as Khmer, and ensuring digital accessibility for all campaigns;
- (c) Integrate disability awareness into mainstream media and educational curricula on a year-round basis, beyond national disability days, to foster an inclusive and informed society;
- (d) Implement comprehensive measures to ensure that all persons with disabilities, particularly those in rural and remote areas and indigenous persons with disabilities, are well-informed of their rights under the Convention, including through community-based initiatives, local organizations, and digital platforms;
- (e) Provide financial and logistical support to organizations of persons with disabilities to enhance their capacity to effectively lead public awareness-raising campaigns and outreach efforts, ensuring they can reach all persons with disabilities and their families;
- (f) Ensure that all disability-related publications, including those produced by the Ministry of Labour, Invalids and Social Affairs, are available in accessible formats for persons with visual, intellectual, and auditory disabilities and indigenous persons with disabilities, and expand the distribution of accessible resources to reach a wider audience.

Belarus (2024)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Widespread stigmatization of persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) The limited information and awareness regarding the Convention and the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly the availability in Easy Read formats of the Convention and other human rights related publicity materials;

(c) The inadequacy of measures to combat stereotypes, as well as develop and disseminate messages on the rights of persons with disabilities in sectors of education, public service, law enforcement and judiciary, media and the general public;

16. The Committee recommends that in close consultation with, and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, the State party:

(a) Develop a National Action Plan to eliminate the stigma and the stereotypes about persons with disabilities and promote positive values to foster understanding of diversity in the community, through active collaboration with the media and the educational institutions by their curricula as well as other activities;

(b) Undertake measures to ensure the availability and access to full information regarding the Convention and other human rights instruments, particularly the rights of persons with disabilities, in accessible formats including in Braille, sign language, audio and Easy Read;

(c) Develop Guidelines and provide regular trainings to relevant staff in accordance with the human rights model at all levels of education, in public service, law enforcement and judiciary, media, and also the general public, including with the emphasis on eliminating disparities in rural and remote areas.

Belgium (2024)

16. The Committee notes with concern;

(a) The persistence of the medical model of disability and reports that persons with disabilities are widely perceived as recipients of society's generosity; and insufficient awareness-raising measures to promote the recognition of persons with disabilities as rights holders, on an equal basis with others, on all federal levels of government;

(b) That societal perceptions that persons with Down syndrome and other impairments are less valuable than other persons contribute to the high level of selective termination of pregnancies following prenatal diagnoses of Down syndrome or other impairments.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party

(a) Develop and implement, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, awareness-raising strategies and action programmes on all levels of government, based on the human rights model of disability, to increase awareness in state, economy, and society about the dignity and rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that prospective parents undergoing prenatal screening are provided with comprehensive information and non-directive counselling that does not promote stereotypes about persons with disabilities or values associated to the medical model of disability.

Benin (2024)

15. The Committee is concerned:

(a) By the persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudice towards persons with disabilities, including against women with disabilities, persons with albinism, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and children with disabilities;

(b) By the limited awareness-raising campaigns about the rights of persons with disabilities that are usually held in urban areas only and during specific contexts such as elections.

16. The Committee recommends that, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b) Introduce regular training and develop awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, the media, politicians, educators and professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, as well as for the general public, both in rural and urban areas, in all accessible formats, including Braille, Easy Read, audio and tactile, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities.

Burkina Faso (2024)

16. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities, including children and in particular women and girls, persons living with albinism and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons, in all aspects of life;

(b) The inadequacy of resources allocated to awareness-raising programmes and the fact that, in general, awareness-raising activities are concentrated in urban centres, thus forgetting the rural areas where the majority of persons with disabilities reside.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children and of women and girls with disabilities:

(a) Adopt measures to combat the stigmatization of all children with disabilities and ensure that they are protected from multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and have access to quality social and health services and an inclusive education system on an equal basis with other children;

(b) Increase budgetary allocation to conduct awareness-raising programmes including for policymakers, judges, law enforcement officials, the media and politicians, educators and professionals working in contact with or serving persons with disabilities as well as the general public, and widen their geographic coverage to include rural areas, in all accessible form and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to promote respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities, combat stereotypes, prejudices and prejudicial practices, with a special focus on women and girls with disabilities, persons living with albinism, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons.

Denmark (2024)

31. The Committee is concerned about ableism and prevailing stereotypes and prejudice towards persons with disabilities in society, and the low level of awareness in the population of the Kingdom of Denmark about the rights of persons with disabilities preventing inclusion of persons with disabilities in work, education and other areas of life. It is also concerned at the often-scarce respective knowledge of officials in many state, regional and municipal authorities, and the absence of periodic, regular and continuous awareness-raising measures aimed at general public, public officials and private actors on the rights of persons with disabilities under the Convention, including in the mass media and on the Internet.

32. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark devise and adopt a long-term national strategy, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, to raise awareness among the general public, the government, including legislative bodies, the administration and the judiciary, private sectors and persons with disabilities themselves and to combat stereotypes, and monitor its impact.

Ghana (2024)

16. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Public awareness on the Convention remains low and most individuals and communities continue to rely on the medical model in dealing with persons with disabilities and as such, discrimination and stigmatization persists;

(b) The incarceration of persons with disabilities in rural communities based on negative attitudes, myths and superstitions about disability..

17. The Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Take measures to carry out awareness raising campaigns on the rights of all persons with disabilities to promote their positive image through the media, schools, workplaces, cultural centres, religious institutions and through official government websites, in urban and rural areas;
- (b) Establish a comprehensive programme with mechanisms for evaluating results, targeting remote and rural areas, to eradicate myths and beliefs about persons with disabilities and in particular persons with albinism, in order to avoid practices that threaten their integrity and lives.

Mauritius (2024)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The insufficient awareness about the dignity, abilities and rights of persons with disabilities in society, including by public officials and the private sector;
- (b) The absence of a long-term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the design, implementation and monitoring of awareness-raising initiatives.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt a strategy to raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities; combat prejudice against them; and monitor the effectiveness of awareness-raising programmes, including periodic trainings for public officials in all areas of government, the private sector and the media to sensitize them on these concepts and on the use of appropriate language to combat the stigmatization of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Reinforce the capacity and resources of the Disability Empowerment Unit and National Empowerment Authority to carry out these functions, in collaboration with the National Human Rights Commission and other bodies.

Netherlands (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The widespread use of prenatal screening/testing (NIPT) to detect impairment in fetuses that may lead to the termination of pregnancies, reflecting underlying discriminatory attitudes towards persons with disabilities;
- (b) Reports of pressure by health personnel on parents to terminate pregnancies following a diagnosis of Down syndrome or other impairments, and the increase in selective terminations of pregnancies, promoting the medical model of and reinforcing societal perceptions that persons with Down syndrome and other impairments are less valuable.
- (c) The insufficient inclusion of disability awareness in educational curricula and training programs for civil servants and the insufficient involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in awareness-raising initiatives and the inadequate reach of communication campaigns in media and society, and about public awareness-raising campaigns not being sufficiently comprehensive in combating stigmatization, stereotypes, prejudice, harmful practices, negative attitudes, bullying, and hate crimes, particularly in relation to various types of impairment.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities:

- (a) Implement measures to protect the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, including awareness-raising campaigns to combat discriminatory attitudes and promote the inherent value of all persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that persons using NIPT are provided with comprehensive information and non-directive counselling that do not promote stereotypes about persons with disabilities and values associated to the medical model of disability, and help parents make fully informed decisions;

(c) Adopt and implement comprehensive awareness-raising programmes and measures such as targeted public awareness campaigns to combat stigma and discrimination, specialized training programs on the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, the media, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, the general public and families of children with disabilities, and establish a robust monitoring and enforcement mechanisms.

Ukraine (2024)

16. The Committee notes with concern that the State party:

(a) Still lacks comprehensive policies for awareness raising on the rights of persons with disabilities at national level, including in rural and remote areas and, consequently, the low level of knowledge on their rights, including the right to free legal aid, as well as information related to the conflict in accessible formats;

(b) The lack of active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development of awareness and sensitization campaigns.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that all its policies and public programs, including the National Strategy for Barrier-Free Environment in Ukraine up to 2030, comprise awareness raising campaigns addressing comprehensively the rights of persons with disabilities, including in conflict-affected areas. Such policies must include monitoring mechanisms and indicators aligned with the Convention;

(b) Guarantee the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development and supervising of all awareness-raising campaigns and policies.

Azerbaijan (2024)

17. The Committee is concerned about prevailing negative stereotypes and attitudes towards persons with disabilities in society and insufficient awareness raising amongst members of the public including journalists who rarely address issues experienced by persons with disabilities in media.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national plan to raise awareness about the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, combat disability stigma and prevent investigate and prosecute harassment and hate crimes against persons with disabilities, ensuring close consultations and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(b) Ensure that initiatives of the State Committee for Family, Women and Children Affairs aimed at enforcing inclusion of persons with disabilities and equality, address disadvantage and avoid charity and rehabilitation approaches;

(c) Conduct periodic training for the medical staff, the police, media, and courts, in relation to the rights of persons with disabilities in the Convention.

Bahrain (2024)¹

6. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The lack of a specific strategy to raise awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities and to combat stereotypes and prejudices about disability, especially in the areas of education, employment and the health sector.

(b) The launch of media and awareness-raising campaigns that convey erroneous and misleading messages about the rights of persons with disabilities by adopting stereotypical images that portray them as "superheroes" and advocate the use of terms that contradict the human rights paradigm and the Convention, in particular the terms "people with determination and people of determination".

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party should:

(a) Develop a national awareness-raising strategy and programme of action based on the principles of the Convention and the human rights-based model to promote a culture of diversity and combat disability stereotypes, in close consultation and with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organizations.

(b) Adopt and use terminology and language that reflects the concepts and principles underlying the Convention, away from stereotypes.

Costa Rica (2024)

15.El Comité toma nota de las campañas de sensibilización y promoción de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad. Sin embargo, nota con preocupación que en la percepción pública de la discapacidad siga prevaleciendo prejuicios y estereotipos negativos de las personas con discapacidad. Le preocupa la insuficiencia de las campañas emprendidas para reforzar la imagen de las personas con discapacidad como titulares de derechos.

16.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte una estrategia nacional para promover un modelo de discapacidad sensible al género y a la infancia y basado en los derechos humanos. Entre los medios de comunicación, los funcionarios públicos, los profesionales del sector de la salud y de la justicia, el público en general y las familias de las personas con discapacidad, en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en su formulación, aplicación, y evaluación periódica.

Kazakhstan (2024)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Stigmatization and negative stereotypes about persons with disabilities encouraging isolation, segregation and neglect of children and older persons with disabilities, in particular children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and autistic children;

(b) The negative labelling and portrayal of persons with disabilities in schools and among public officers and that some awareness-raising activities reinforce the charity approach to persons with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities:

(a) Develop a national strategy led by persons with disabilities addressing negative stereotypes about persons with disabilities, raising awareness about their intrinsic dignity as human beings and impairment as an equally valued aspect of human diversity, and about their human rights;

(b) Strengthen its awareness-raising programmes, including public campaigns about the rights of persons with disabilities, directing them to public employees, schools, universities, private enterprises, staff of the judiciary, health workers and service providers.

Nicaragua (2024)

14.El Comité toma nota de las campañas de sensibilización y promoción de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad, así como de la capacitación proporcionada a funcionarios públicos. Sin embargo, le preocupa que en la percepción pública de la discapacidad siga prevaleciendo un modelo asistencialista y médico, y que mujeres, niñas y niños con discapacidad sigan enfrentando violencia.

15.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte una estrategia nacional permanente a fin de promover un modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos, con enfoque de género y edad entre los medios de comunicación, los funcionarios públicos, profesionales del sector de la salud y de la justicia, la policía, el público en general y las familias de las personas con discapacidad, con la participación efectiva de las personas con discapacidad en su formulación, aplicación, y evaluación periódica.

Sweden (2024)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Negative attitudes against persons with disabilities, particularly against persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, permeating processes and decisions on pre-natal testing and abortion, geared toward the extinction of certain types of intellectual impairments;
- (b) The persistence of stereotypes, negative attitudes and hate speech in the State party towards persons with disabilities and particularly persons with disabilities who face multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination;
- (c) The lack of awareness among the general public, public officials, and decision makers of the rights of persons with disabilities, persons with disabilities' requirements especially in the areas of work, education and housing.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that medical and social advice on pre-natal testing and abortion rendered by professional staff does not convey negative attitudes against persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and is not aimed at extinguishing certain types of impairments;
- (b) Carry out media campaigns aimed at eliminating prejudices, negative stereotypes, harmful practices, and hate speech in all aspects of life and advancing sustained and systemic attitudinal change, particularly focusing on women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and children with disabilities;
- (c) Reinforce and increase intensive training courses on the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability for students, judges, law enforcement officers, police, teachers, health-care professionals and members of the community at large.

Zambia (2024)

15. The Committee notes that Zambia Agency for Persons with Disabilities (ZAPD) with support from the International Labour Organisation developed a communication strategy aligned to its new strategic plan in 2023. However, it is concerned at the persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes, prejudices towards persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, women and children with disabilities, as well as at the lack of awareness-raising campaigns about the dignity, capabilities and rights of persons with disabilities in society and in the media and the absence of long term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities with the effective participation of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that the existing awareness raising activities, such as workshops, seminars and meetings including commemoration of international days are usually conducted or held in urban areas only.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;
- (b) Introduce regular training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, the media, the politicians, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, as well as for the general public, both in rural and urban areas, in all accessible formats, including Braille, Easy Read, audio, tactile and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities;
- (c) Undertake specific public education on the rights of persons with albinism to address myths around albinism which have made them a target for ritual attacks.

Andorra (2023)

17. The Committee appreciates the establishment of 27 April as the national day of the Convention. Nevertheless, it expresses its concern about the following:

(a) Reports of negative attitudes, stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and women and children with disabilities;

(b) That persons with disabilities have not been meaningfully involved in the design, implementation and monitoring of the awareness-raising programmes implemented by the State party, and the lack of evaluation of the impact of these activities;

(c) The limited involvement of persons with disabilities to raise awareness and promote a positive image of them in the media.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities:

(a) Adopt a national strategy to raise awareness throughout society, particularly among persons with disabilities, their families, professional groups and government officials, aimed at eliminating negative stereotypes and prejudice towards persons with disabilities, in particular, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and women and children with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities are effectively and meaningfully involved in the design, implementation and periodic monitoring of training and awareness-raising programmes in accordance with the Convention, as well as in the evaluation of its impact;

(c) Adopt appropriate measures to ensure that the media is used to promote a positive image of them and foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of persons with disabilities.

Austria (2023)

22. The Committee notes with concern that awareness of the principles and rights enshrined in the Convention and of the obligations the States parties incur with its ratification seems to be insufficiently developed, particularly in the governments of the Länder.

23. The Committee recommends the State party, on the Federal level and particularly on the level of the Länder, institute, in close consultation with and the active participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, awareness-raising programs on the principles and rights enshrined in the Convention, the obligations incurred by the State party, including the Länder, and on the specific import of the present recommendations, directed to all persons holding political and judicial office, for government employees, and for medical personnel.

24. While the Committee recognizes women's rights to reproductive autonomy, it expresses concern that § 97 (1) 2. of the Criminal Code accepts the "serious risk that the child will be mentally or physically seriously damaged" as a specific ground for abortion.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party define the permissible grounds for an abortion without reference to the child's impairments.

Germany (2023)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive national strategy for awareness-raising activities and campaigns to foster respect for the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities and to advance sustained and systemic attitudinal change;

(b) The inaccuracies in the official German translation of the Convention conducive to substantive misinterpretations.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and fund a comprehensive national strategy to raise awareness throughout society, particularly among persons with disabilities, their parents and families, professional groups, the media and government officials at all levels, regarding the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, in order to combat stereotypes, prejudice and harmful practices in all aspects of life and to advance sustained and systemic attitudinal change;

(b)Revise the official German translation of the Convention, in close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, in order to accurately reflect its meaning in all aspects.

Israel (2023)

17.The Committee is concerned about negative stereotypes and devaluing of persons with disabilities. It is particularly concerned about the prevalence of negative stereotypes about women and girls with disabilities in society, portraying them as asexual, limiting their access to information about sexual and reproductive health and rights, curtailing their possibilities to build relationships and start a family.

18.The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including organizations of children with disabilities and women and girls with disabilities:

(a)Strengthen its awareness-raising programmes, including public campaigns with the aim to combat negative disability stereotypes in society;

(b)Ensure periodic training among public officials in all sectors of Government, the judiciary, the Police, and legal profession about the Convention and the rights of persons with disabilities;

(c)Adopt a strategy aimed at combating negative stereotypes about the rights of women and girls with disabilities to sexual and reproductive health and services, including training for health personnel.

Malawi (2023)

17.The Committee is concerned about information of disability stereotypes and prejudices relating to persons with disabilities portraying them as in need of protection, mystical or abnormal and particularly affecting persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, women and girls with disabilities and persons with albinism, as these underpin harmful practices, such as confinement, abductions, forced sterilization and killings. It is also concerned that awareness initiatives have been unsystematic, overlook specific groups of persons with disabilities and lack specific goals and assessments of progress.

18.The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations develop strategies to raise awareness about the dignity and rights of persons with disabilities, including campaigns, human rights education, training and media measures. The State party should in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities prepare and provide persons with disabilities and society with information about the rights of persons with disabilities in accessible formats, such as Easy Read, Braille and augmentative and alternative forms of communication, focus on changing negative attitudes, ensure direct involvement of persons with disabilities in their diversity, target community leaders, religious leaders, school communities, families, and the media, and establish mechanisms of periodic assessment.

Mauritania (2023)

15.The Committee is concerned about:

(a)The persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudice against persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, in all aspects of life;

(b)The lack of awareness-raising campaigns about the dignity, abilities and rights of persons with disabilities in society and the absence of a long-term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability, with the effective participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, particularly in rural and remote areas.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women and children with disabilities, to raise awareness of and combat prejudice against persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, and monitor its effectiveness;

(b) Strengthen training and awareness-raising programmes about the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability at all levels of education, in public service, in the media and for the general public, in accessible formats, including Braille, sign language and Easy Read, and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, particularly in rural and remote areas.

Mongolia (2023)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of awareness-raising campaigns and initiatives on the human rights model of disability and other disability issues, targeted at the general public, public officials and media with reference to the persistence of discriminatory attitudes, stigma, negative stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities, particularly women and children with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities. It is also concerned at the absence of long-term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities with the effective participation of persons with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive national strategy, in close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b) Introduce regular training and awareness-raising modules about the human rights model of disability and the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, the media, the politicians, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities. The Committee further encourages the State party, in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, to develop and carry out training initiatives aimed at all public sector officials as well as the general public, for understanding and implementing the human rights model of disability.

Paraguay (2023)

17. El Comité toma nota de las campañas de sensibilización y promoción de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad, así como de la capacitación a funcionarios públicos. Sin embargo, le preocupa que:

a) En la percepción pública de la discapacidad, siga prevaleciendo un modelo asistencialista y médico, y que mujeres, niñas y niños con discapacidad sigan siendo dejados atrás;

b) El Ministerio de Tecnologías de la Información y Comunicación no fomente que los medios difundan un mensaje sobre personas con discapacidad acorde a los estándares de la Convención.

18. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

a) Adopte una estrategia nacional a fin de promover un modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos, con enfoque de género y edad, entre los medios de comunicación, los funcionarios públicos, profesionales del sector de la salud y de la justicia, la policía, el público en general y las familias de las personas con discapacidad, con la participación efectiva de las personas con discapacidad en su formulación, aplicación, y evaluación periódica;

b)Asegure que el Ministerio de Tecnologías de la Información y Comunicación aliente a los medios de comunicación a difundir un mensaje sobre la discapacidad acorde con la Convención.

Angola (2023)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Awareness-raising activities and campaigns related to persons with disabilities are rather sporadic and often respond to specific issues and events;
- (b) Traditional and online media as well as social networks rarely involve persons with disabilities to raise awareness and promote a positive image of them;
- (c) Persons with disabilities are not actively consulted and included in the planning and implementation of public awareness raising campaigns about them.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation and involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in urban and rural areas, to raise awareness and combat prejudices against them, including persons affected by leprosy and persons with albinism, and to monitor the impact of such a national strategy;
- (b) Take appropriate steps, in consultation with persons with disabilities, to ensure that traditional and online media as well as social networks are used to raise awareness and to promote a positive image of them;
- (c) With their active involvement, introduce training and awareness-raising about their rights at all levels of education, as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats such as Braille, sign language or Easy read and, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions to society of all persons with disabilities.

Argentina (2023)

17.El Comité toma nota de las campañas de sensibilización y la creación de la semana por la promoción de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad. Sin embargo, le preocupa que en la percepción pública de la discapacidad siga prevaleciendo un modelo asistencialista y médico.

18.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que adopte una estrategia nacional a fin de promover un modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos entre los medios de comunicación, funcionarios públicos, profesionales del sector de la salud y de la justicia, el público en general y las familias de las personas con discapacidad, con la participación activa y efectiva de las personas con discapacidad en su formulación y aplicación, y con una evaluación periódica.

Georgia (2023)

17.The Committee expresses its concern about reports of widely held negative attitudes, stereotypes and prejudices targeted at persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, in all aspects of life. Such attitudes prevail among the general population, including parents and families of children with disabilities, and contribute to isolation from the community a lack of participation in support programmes available to persons with disabilities.

18.The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen awareness-raising activities like public campaigns, with different target audience groups, aimed at eliminating negative stereotypes and prejudice towards persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and children with disabilities;
- (b)Ensure the active involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities, including organisations of persons with intellectual disabilities and organizations of women with disabilities, in the design, implementation and periodic monitoring of such programmes. prioritizing safe living conditions, and the provision of food and free and accessible medical care and education;

Peru (2023)

16.El Comité toma nota de medidas adoptadas por el Estado parte para concienciar acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad. Sin embargo, le preocupa la persistencia de estereotipos y prejuicios sobre las personas con discapacidad, en particular los que apoyan la opinión de que las personas con discapacidad psicosocial son peligrosas. Asimismo, preocupa al Comité la incapacidad de las actuales campañas de comunicación para combatir la estigmatización facilitada por los medios de comunicación sobre las personas con discapacidad, incluso como resultado de las iniciativas privadas como el “Teletón”, las cuales refuerzan una visión de las personas con discapacidad como beneficiarios de caridad.

17.El Comité insta al Estado parte a que adopte medidas proactivas para promover el conocimiento de la Convención y su Protocolo Facultativo, incluyendo mediante el lanzamiento de campañas de comunicación para combatir la estigmatización y los estereotipos negativos relacionados con la discapacidad y promuevan el reconocimiento y el respeto del derecho a la igualdad de las personas con discapacidad en consonancia con el enfoque de derechos humanos, y a que cree e implemente programas permanentes de capacitación, en cuyo diseño e impartición participen las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, para todo el aparato estatal, incluidas las nuevas autoridades electas. Asimismo, recomienda que el Estado parte se abstenga de otorgar recursos a iniciativas privadas como el “Teletón”.

Togo (2023)

15.The Committee is concerned at the persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes, prejudices towards persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, women and children with disabilities, as well as at the lack of awareness-raising campaigns about the dignity, capabilities and rights of persons with disabilities in society and in the media and the absence of long term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities with the effective participation of persons with disabilities.

16.The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b)Introduce regular training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, the media, the politicians, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, and their representative organizations, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities.

Tunisia (2023)

13.The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities through their representative organisations have not been meaningfully involved in the design, implementation and monitoring of the awareness-raising programmes run by the State party, as they have not been involved in the development of related national policies and action plans. It is further concerned that whereas the State party has indicated that the Convention has been produced in simplified format for different levels of education and different age groups for persons with disabilities, these materials are as yet to reach most of the intended target groups.

14.The Committee, in accordance with the Convention and its General Comment No. 7 (2018) on participation of persons with disabilities recommends that:

(a)Take the necessary steps, without further delay, to ensure that persons with disabilities including women and children through their representative organisations are effectively and meaningfully involved in the development of policies, design, implementation and monitoring of the awareness-raising, programmes and action plans in accordance with the convention and as elaborated in General Comment No. 7 (2018) on participation of persons with disabilities;

(b) Take immediate measures to enhance the dissemination of the Convention and production of awareness raising materials and meaningfully involve persons with disabilities through their organisations in the development and distribution process, and to ensure that the simplified format of the Convention do reach the intended target groups within a reasonable timeframe and issue public report and data about it.

Bangladesh (2022)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The limited awareness raising campaigns and initiatives on disability issues, among the general public and public officials, with reference to the persistence of prejudices, stigma, stereotypes, derogatory language and discrimination against persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, persons affected by leprosy and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and the lack of information of awareness-raising initiatives in appropriate formats for all persons with disabilities, especially in rural and remote areas;

(b) The lack of inclusion of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in awareness raising programmes and campaigns as well as the lack of effectiveness of legislation and policies aimed at dissuading the negative and comical portrayal of persons with disabilities in the media, particularly persons affected by leprosy.

18. The Committee recommends that, in consultation with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, the State party shall endeavour to:

(a) Intensify awareness raising campaigns and initiatives and adopt a national strategy on awareness-raising to educate the general public and public officials in order to combat prejudices, stigma, stereotypes, use of derogatory language and discrimination that prevail against persons with disabilities, including persons affected by leprosy, women and girls with disabilities and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, particularly in rural and remote areas;

(b) Develop and implement awareness-raising programmes that will address prejudices, stereotypes, stigma and discrimination against persons with disabilities, including those based on superstitious and mythical beliefs and customs and intensify the promotion and protection of the rights of persons with disabilities, including the use of human rights language, involving the media, and all necessary public officials.

China (2022)

20. The Committee is concerned about the persistence of the medical model of disability and insufficient awareness-raising measures to promote the recognition of persons with disabilities as independent and autonomous rights holders, leading to harmful attitudes and behaviours, including stigma, discriminatory language and domestic violence against persons with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities:

(a) Adopt a national strategy in order to raise awareness among all persons with disabilities, including in rural areas, about their rights under the Convention and to provide them with information about measures taken to protect their rights;

(b) Implement comprehensive awareness-raising programmes, including training, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, the media, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, the general public and families of children with disabilities.

Indonesia (2022)

16. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a national strategy for awareness-raising activities and campaigns to foster respect for the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The limited participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including persons affected by leprosy and children with disabilities in awareness-raising programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy, to raise awareness throughout society, particularly among persons with disabilities, their parents and families, professional groups and government officials at all levels, regarding the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities to combat stereotypes, prejudice and harmful practices in all aspects of life;
- (b) Strengthen measures for close consultation and active participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organisations of persons affected by leprosy and children with disabilities in the design, development and delivery of awareness-raising programmes about the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities.

Japan (2022)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Insufficient efforts and budgetary allocation to raise awareness about the dignity and rights of persons with disabilities in society and in the media;
- (b) Discriminatory eugenic attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities or persons with psychosocial disabilities;
- (c) Insufficient participation of persons with disabilities in the preparation of awareness-raising initiatives, such as the “Barrier-Free Mindset” textbook, and insufficient evaluation of these measures.

20. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy to eliminate negative stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices against persons with disabilities, including close participation of persons with disabilities in its formulation and implementation, and periodic evaluation;
- (b) Strengthen measures to develop and adequately fund awareness-raising programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities for the media, the general public and families of persons with disabilities.

Lao People’s Democratic Republic (2022)

14. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Discriminatory attitudes, stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities, including persons affected by leprosy, and negative media portrayal of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Insufficient measures aimed at increasing awareness among the population about the rights of persons with disabilities and at increasing the ability of such persons to advocate for their own rights, and lack of evaluation of these efforts;
- (c) The lack of information made available on the Convention, particularly in rural areas;
- (d) The lack of awareness among policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, about the rights recognized in the Convention.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, in urban and rural areas, to raise awareness, combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and ensure that the media portray persons with disabilities in a positive manner in line with the Convention;
- (b) Reinforce actions aimed to empower persons with disabilities, including persons affected by leprosy, and periodically evaluate the impact of awareness-raising initiatives;
- (c) Make the Convention in Lao available in accessible formats, including Easy-read, Braille and Lao sign language;

(d) With the close consultation and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, reinforce capacity-building programmes on the Convention for public policymakers, judges, teachers, social workers, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities.

New Zealand (2022)

13. The committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive national strategy for awareness-raising activities and campaigns to foster respect for the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities and to create sustained and systemic attitudinal change;

(b) The limited participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, particularly underrepresented groups, such as persons of small stature in awareness-raising programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and fund a comprehensive national strategy to raise awareness throughout society, particularly among persons with disabilities, their parents and families, professional groups, the media and government officials at all levels, regarding the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, in order to combat stereotypes, prejudice and harmful practices in all aspects of life and to create sustained and systemic attitudinal change;

(b) Strengthen measures for close consultation and active participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, including underrepresented groups of persons with disabilities in the design, development and delivery of awareness-raising programmes about the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities.

Republic of Korea (2022)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of awareness-raising campaigns about the dignity, abilities and rights of persons with disabilities in society and in the media and the absence of long term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities with the effective participation of persons with disabilities;

(b) The persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes, prejudices, widespread hate and demeaning expressions towards persons with disabilities, including autistic persons, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities in political discourse and on social media.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation with and with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b) Introduce regular training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, the media, the politicians, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities.

Singapore (2022)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The persistence of discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudice against persons with disabilities, in particular autistic persons, persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons affected by leprosy, in all aspects of life;

(b) The lack of awareness-raising campaigns about the dignity, abilities and rights of persons with disabilities in society and the absence of a long-term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability, with the effective participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation with and the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, to raise awareness of and combat prejudice against persons with disabilities, in particular autistic persons, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons affected by leprosy, and monitor its effectiveness;

(b) Introduce training and awareness-raising programmes about the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability at all levels of education, in public service as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

Hungary (2022)

16. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the awareness-raising activities are rather sporadic and respond to issues and events;

(b) That electronic media and social networks rarely involve persons with disabilities to raise awareness and promote a positive image of persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation with and with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, in urban and rural areas, to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b) Introduce training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities.

Jamaica (2022)

16. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the awareness-raising activities are rather sporadic and respond to issues and events;

(b) That electronic media and social networks rarely involve persons with disabilities to raise awareness and promote a positive image of persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation with and with the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, in urban and rural areas, to raise awareness of and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b) Introduce training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education, as well as for the general public, in all accessible formats and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for the dignity, abilities and contributions of all persons with disabilities.

Mexico (2022)

25. The Committee is concerned that a welfare and medical model of disability is still prevalent in the public perception of disability; that the rights of children, adolescents and women with disabilities and sexual and reproductive health rights of persons with disabilities are subject to public prejudice, stereotyping and harmful practices; and that the Teletón campaigns still reinforce a view of persons with disabilities as recipients of society's charity.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party develop and implement, with the involvement of persons with disabilities, comprehensive awareness-raising programmes with the goal of promoting a human rights model of disability and awareness of the rights of children, adolescents and women with disabilities and of sexual and reproductive health rights of persons with disabilities. It further recommends that the State party bring Teletón campaigns fully into line with these goals.

Switzerland (2022)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of awareness about the dignity and rights of persons with disabilities in society and in the media, and the widespread negative media portrayal of persons with disabilities;
- (b) The overreliance on civil society organizations to conduct awareness-raising activities on the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Discriminatory attitudes, negative stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities, including autistic persons and persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy, applicable at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels, to eliminate negative stereotypes, prejudices and harmful practices against persons with disabilities;
- (b) Implement comprehensive awareness-raising programmes, including training, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the human rights model of disability for policymakers, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, the media, educators, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, the general public and families of children with disabilities;
- (c) Introduce training and awareness-raising modules about the rights of persons with disabilities at all levels of education and in all accessible formats in order to foster respect for the dignity and rights of all persons with disabilities.

Venezuela (2022)

14. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) The Ministry of People's Power for Public Health is responsible for awareness-raising campaigns, thus reinforcing the medical approach to disability, and that organizations representing persons with disabilities are not involved in designing such campaigns;
- (b) Stereotypes and harmful attitudes towards persons with disabilities persist in the State party and that the approach taken towards them continues to be welfare- and not human rights-based, in accordance with the Convention.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Reinforce and increase intensive training on the rights of persons with disabilities from a human rights perspective for public officials, health-care professionals, professionals working in the justice system and others, as well as members of the community at large;
- (b) Carry out media campaigns, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, aimed at eliminating prejudices, stereotypes and harmful practices in respect of persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, in both urban and rural areas.

Djibouti (2021)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Stigmatization, negative stereotypes, harmful practices, deep-rooted cultural beliefs against persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, women and girls with disabilities, and persons affected by leprosy, in the society, the families and among persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas;
- (b) Lack of long-term strategy for raising awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities with the effective participation of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Absence of raising-awareness campaigns and programmes on disability among refugees.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop and implement a strategy, in partnership with community and religious leaders and the media aimed at the public and the families, particularly in rural areas and in refugee camps, to raise awareness about the Convention and to combat stigmatization, prejudice, stereotyping of persons with disabilities, including against persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, persons with albinism, women and girls with disabilities and persons affected by leprosy;

(b) Conduct awareness-raising programmes, including training, for policymakers, administrative staff, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, health professionals and the media, to promote the human rights model of disability and to eliminate prejudices and the use of derogatory language against persons with disabilities;

(c) Adopt measures to ensure the effective participation of persons with disabilities, through their organizations, in the design and implementation of public awareness-raising campaigns and programmes.

France (2021)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Negative stereotypes against persons with disabilities, especially affecting autistic persons, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, and with Down syndrome;

(b) The devaluing of persons with disabilities through ableist policies and practices that underpin prenatal genetic screening on foetal impairment, particularly concerning trisomy 21, autism, and neonatal detection of deafness;

(c) The lack of visibility of persons with disabilities in public life, public media, including in TV;

(d) Measures to combat terrorism that perpetuate negative and harmful stereotypes of persons with psychosocial disabilities as dangerous and at a high risk for radicalisation and terrorism.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in partnership with organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Adopt and implement a strategy based on the human rights model of disability in order to eliminate negative stereotypes that devalue persons with disabilities, including in respect of the use of prenatal genetic testing, and ensure the implementation of measures issued by the National Consultative Commission on Human Rights from its independent periodic assessments of national programmes to eliminate stereotypes;

(b) Adopt measures to increase participation and visibility of persons with disabilities in public life and public media;

(c) Eliminate negative and harmful stereotypes of persons with psychosocial disabilities with regard to radicalisation and terrorism.

Estonia (2021)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of awareness about the dignity, abilities and the rights of persons with disabilities, in the media and in society;

(b) Negative stereotypes about disability, including in connection with prenatal genetic testing as a measure to primarily prevent future disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national strategy, in close consultation and involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness and combat prejudices against persons with disabilities, and monitor its impact;

(b) Introduce training and awareness raising about the rights of persons with disabilities in all levels of education, in all accessible formats and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, in order to foster the respect for dignity, abilities, and contributions of all persons with disabilities;

(c) Develop targeted programmes to identify and combat disability stigma and stereotypes in all areas of life, including prenatal genetic testing as a means of preventing disability which is not in line with the Convention.

Albania (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in local and nationwide campaigns, as well as the lack of regular awareness-raising programmes, including training, for personnel of the public and private media on the human rights model of disability enshrined in the Convention. The Committee is also concerned that the text of the Convention has not been made available in sign language Braille and Easy Read.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, with the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Adopt measures to develop local and national awareness-raising campaigns targeting, among others, public authorities, private sector service providers, and the general public, to systematically raise public awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities and the Convention;

(b) Train public and private media professionals about the importance of portraying the positive contributions made by persons with disabilities;

(c) Translate and disseminate the Convention in accessible formats, including sign language, Braille and Easy Read.

Australia (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about the lack of concerted efforts at all levels and about the low level of participation of persons with disabilities, particularly women, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons, persons with disabilities from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, to promote awareness-raising efforts about disability, including campaigns promoting a positive image and awareness of the contribution of persons with disabilities, in line with the Convention.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a national government strategy to promote a positive image and awareness of the rights of all persons with disabilities and that it ensure the consultation and participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities, particularly women, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons, persons with disabilities from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer persons with disabilities, in the development and delivery of all awareness-raising activities.

Ecuador (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned at the persistence of stereotypes and harmful attitudes in the State party towards persons with disabilities and particularly towards those persons who are faced with multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination. It is also concerned at the media campaigns being run by private organizations that use a charity-based approach.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Reinforce and increase intensive training courses on the rights of persons with disabilities from a human rights perspective for students, judges and personnel in the judicial branch, health-care professionals and members of the community at large;

(b) Carry out media campaigns aimed at eliminating prejudices, stereotypes and harmful practices, especially those focusing on persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;

(c) Take steps to ensure that autonomous decentralized municipal governments discourage charity-based campaigns.

El Salvador (2019)

16. The Committee is concerned that the State party's awareness-raising efforts remain limited to isolated and sporadic campaigns and training programmes, which lack a focused plan for raising awareness in all spheres about respect of the rights of persons with disabilities, including among education personnel, the judiciary, law enforcement officials, staff in the health sector, and at the family and community levels.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party launch an intensive awareness-raising strategy, that includes training programmes and media campaigns, based on the human rights model of disability, for judges, lawmakers, law enforcement officials and health and education personnel, in order to eliminate prejudices, stereotypes and harmful practices against persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, and to promote recognition of their rights in society.

India (2019)

18. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The prevalence of prejudices and stigmas underpinning the isolation and segregation of persons with disabilities, and the limited impact of and lack of information provided by awareness-raising campaigns undertaken in rural areas, where disability is seen as an “outcome of fate”;
- (b) The regressive negative portrayal of persons with disabilities in the media, and a recent spate of unaddressed discriminatory and derogatory narratives by political leaders and actors;
- (c) The lack of information made available on the Convention and other disability-rights related laws and policies, particularly in states in the north-east region.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party, in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy to raise awareness and combat prejudices and stigmas against persons with disabilities, including in rural areas and targeting schools, and monitor its impact;
- (b) Implement comprehensive awareness-raising programmes, including training, for policymakers, administrative staff at all levels of authority, the judiciary, law enforcement officers, the media, professionals and staff working with and for persons with disabilities and their families. The State party should promote the human rights model of disability, and address prejudices and the use of derogatory language against persons with disabilities in society and multiple and intersecting discrimination against intersex persons and on the grounds, inter alia, of sexual orientation and gender identity;
- (c) Translate the Convention and its Optional Protocol and the Committee’s general comments into the local languages and disseminate them widely in accessible formats.

Iraq (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a national strategy and about insufficient measures to raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, adopt a national strategy and undertake public awareness-raising campaigns to reinforce a positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of all the human rights recognized in the Convention.

Myanmar (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of comprehensive awareness-raising programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities across the State party. It notes with concern the persistence of negative stereotypes, prejudices and stigma against persons with disabilities, including that they “might be fated by something bad” based on traditional superstition.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, develop and implement comprehensive awareness-raising programmes that address negative stereotypes, prejudices and stigma against persons with disabilities, including those based on ritual beliefs, customs and superstitions, often targeting children with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party promote the human rights of persons with disabilities across the State party, targeting the media, public officials, judges, lawyers, the police, social workers and the general public, including ethnic and religious minorities.

Cuba (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about the absence of measures to promote awareness on the rights of persons with disabilities in the framework of the human rights model of disability.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, strengthen its efforts to carry out regular awareness-raising campaigns on the content of the Convention among public and private actors, in view of eliminating negative perceptions of persons with disabilities in society, and introduce awareness and capacity-building programs on the human rights model of disability for public officials.

Niger (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Stigmatization, abandonment, exploitation, neglect, harmful practices, prejudices and stereotypes against persons with disabilities in society and families;
- (b) The absence of awareness raising campaigns and programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities, including those with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, and the lack of adequate funding for such campaigns and programmes;
- (c) The lack of participation of persons with disabilities in awareness-raising campaigns and programmes and in the work of the National Technical Committee for the Advancement of Persons with Disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Undertake public awareness campaigns and programmes, involving community and religious leaders, and media, aimed at government officials, the public and families, to raise awareness about the Convention and combat stigmatization, abandonment, exploitation, neglect, prejudices, stereotypes and harmful practices against persons with disabilities, particularly children and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Provide sufficient budgetary allocations for awareness raising campaigns and programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities, and involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations.

Norway (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about the persistence of negative stereotypes, prejudices and language against persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of comprehensive and innovative awareness-raising programs on the rights of persons with disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, develop and implement innovative public awareness-raising and education programs for the media, public officials, judges and lawyers, the police, social workers and the general public with the aim of raising awareness and promoting the human rights-based concept of disability, addressing negative stereotypes, prejudices and language against persons with disabilities in society including on the grounds of sexual orientation and gender identity.

Rwanda (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about the persistence of negative stereotypes, stigma and prejudices towards persons with disabilities in society and the lack of programmes to raise awareness about their rights.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a national awareness-raising programme, with the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, and develop media campaigns, portraying positive images of persons with disabilities respectful of their rights and dignity and highlighting their contributions to society.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Measures aiming to raise awareness on the rights of persons with disabilities, including in the mass media, are based on a misconception that the promotion of the prevention of disability is a measure to implement the Convention, rather than the human-rights based approach to disabilities, and that awareness raising activities do not reach rural environments and places of employment;

(b) The Convention has not been disseminated in accessible formats such as Easy Read and Braille.

14. The Committee reminds the State party that the promotion of the prevention of disability is not a measure to implement the Convention and recommends that the State party, in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities and other stakeholders:

(a) Undertake public awareness campaigns, focusing on employers and rural areas, to portray persons with disabilities as rights holders, demonstrate their abilities and combat discrimination and negative stereotypes in the media;

(b) Disseminate the Convention in accessible formats, such as Easy Read and Braille.

Senegal (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned by the limited awareness in society, in the media, and among persons with disabilities themselves of the rights of persons with disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party conduct public awareness-raising campaigns, including human rights education programmes, in partnership with community, traditional and religious leaders, as well as media professionals, to combat stereotypes, stigmatization and prejudices against persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism. It also recommends that the State party promote a positive perception of persons with disabilities, particularly children and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities.

Spain (2019)

14. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The limited change in social perceptions about persons with disabilities achieved by awareness raising programmes and their lack of focus on the dignity and rights of persons with disabilities;

(b) The continuing stigmatization of persons with psychosocial disabilities in the media as well as by pharmaceutical industries as dangerous to society;

(c) Persisting negative stereotypes and degrading portrayal of persons with disabilities, such as persons with dwarfism in bullfighting comic shows in mainstream media channels.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures, in partnership with self-advocacy organisations of persons with disabilities, to design, launch and maintain public awareness and media campaigns aimed at eliminating negative stereotypes towards persons with disabilities, promoting the recognition and respect of their rights and encouraging positive perceptions and enhanced social awareness about them in society.

Türkiye (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about reports of predominant negative stereotypes and stigmatization of persons with disabilities in society, particularly:

(a) The absence of an overall awareness raising campaign to tackle stigma and prejudices against persons with disabilities, and the lack of information on the planned communication strategy of the Ombudsman Institution (KDK) Strategy Paper (2017-2021);

(b) The lack of available translations of the Convention in Turkish Sign Language and Braille;

(c) Discriminatory attitudes against life with a disability and biased information to expectant parents by counselling services, leading to termination of pregnancy, particularly in cases of a diagnostic of Down syndrome and spina bifida;

(d) Contents of primary school textbooks describing persons with disabilities as, among others, 'needy' and 'incompetent' and not considered as 'normal individuals'.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party address discriminatory stereotypes against persons with disabilities, and that it:

(a) Develop and implement an awareness-raising strategy, including campaigns in line with the Convention, with the meaningful involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities;

(b) Translate the Convention into Turkish Sign Language, Easy Read and other formats, and disseminate Braille transcriptions of the Convention;

- (c) Raise awareness among all, particularly medical professionals and services providers on the contributions of persons with disabilities and the need to eliminate negative attitudes, including by providing information on support for parents;
- (d) Promote positive perceptions and messages of persons with disabilities focusing on their dignity, capabilities and contributions to society through campaigns targeting the general population, schools, public officials, the private sector and educational institutions.

Vanuatu (2019)

16. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The high prevalence of stigma and negative stereotypes and attitudes against persons with disabilities;
- (b) The absence of continuous awareness raising programs on the rights of persons with disabilities with adequate involvement of persons with disabilities through their organizations in the design and implementation of programs.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement the necessary measures grounded on the human rights-based approach to disability in order to combat stigma, prejudice and stereotypes against persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt a national awareness raising strategy and implement continuous awareness campaigns, including in rural areas, with the involvement of all stakeholders, such as the media and persons with disabilities through their representative organisations.

Algeria (2018)

18. The Committee is concerned about stigmatization, prejudice against, and stereotypes of persons with disabilities among the public and in the media. It is also concerned that the State party misunderstands programmes for the prevention of disability, including those in Executive Decree No. 17- 187 of 3 June 2017, as being a measure of implementation of the Convention, which results in discrimination against persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the absence of a national policy to raise awareness about the human rights-based approach to disability.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take the necessary legal and other measures to transform prejudices and address stigmatization and stereotypes of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Eliminate all policies that aim to legitimize the prevention of disability as a measure of implementation of the Convention;
- (c) In close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop and adopt a national strategy to raise awareness and promote a positive image of persons with disabilities and knowledge about their rights as set out under the Convention.

Bulgaria (2018)

21. The Committee is concerned about the low level of awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities, and existing prejudice against persons with disabilities in the general public and in schools causing, among other, rejection of children with disabilities in schools.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party takes continuous and effective awareness raising strategies, including campaigns aimed at promoting the dignity, and rights of persons with disabilities in society, in the private and public sector, and in close and meaningful consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Malta (2018)

13. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities continue to be portrayed in the media from the perspective of the charity model of disability. It further notes with concern the insufficient, itemized budgetary allocation for measures aimed at increasing awareness among the population about the rights of persons with disabilities and at increasing the ability of persons with disability to advocate for their rights.

14. The Committee recommends that, in close collaboration with persons with disabilities, and their representative organizations, the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures to develop and adequately fund national awareness-raising campaigns, including through the adoption of the National Disability Strategy;
- (b) Train media professionals, civil servants and the public about the importance of reflecting and explaining the human rights model of disability;
- (c) Periodically review and evaluate the impact of its awareness-raising efforts.

Philippines (2018)

18. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The emphasis of the State party on prevention of impairment rather than inclusion and exercise of rights, and that public resources are allocated to once a year events that reinforce the medical approach to disability;
- (b) The lack of awareness regarding attitudinal barriers and other hardships confronting women and girls with intellectual disabilities and women with psychosocial disabilities;
- (c) The lack of information on the outcomes of 'sensitive trainings' and proclamations of the State party in addressing public apathy and negative attitudes against persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen awareness-raising campaigns, in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to foster a positive image of persons with disabilities as human rights-holders;
- (b) Ensure that awareness-raising activities recognize the cross-cutting nature of the Convention, and adopt the human rights model of disability as a key strategy to strengthen public awareness regarding disability;
- (c) Strengthen training and capacity building activities among public authorities, in particular civil servants responsible for implementing the Convention;
- (d) Operationalize monitoring instruments to ascertain awareness-raising campaigns and their outcomes in eliminating negative perceptions of persons with disabilities in society.

Poland (2018)

13. The Committee is concerned about :

- (a) The negative perceptions of disability as being "undesirable condition" and of persons with disabilities as being "of less value" than others;
- (b) Persons with disabilities not being recognised as rights holders in society;
- (c) The lack of measures taken to raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities as contained in the Convention.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take specific measures to foster respect for the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities among the general public and parents, including the public and private media, medical personnel, education personnel, employers, and promote a positive image of persons with disabilities as human rights-holders;
- (b) Involve the organizations of persons with disabilities when developing and delivering nationwide campaigns, awareness-raising programmes or training on the human rights model of disability and ensure systematic State-funded awareness-raising programmes.

South Africa (2018)

14. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a coherent and comprehensive national strategy to raise awareness among the public and private media about the on-going stigmatisation and marginalization of, and prejudices and stereotypes about persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism, even within family settings;

(b) The non-inclusion of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations, in awareness-raising campaigns and programmes, including in the planning and implementation of such campaigns and programmes.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a coherent and comprehensive national strategy to raise awareness among the society and media about the negative effects of stigmatisation of, prejudices and stereotypes about persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism;

(b) Undertake public awareness-raising campaigns, including human rights education programmes, in partnership with community, traditional and religious leaders, as well as media professionals, to combat stigmatization of and prejudices against persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism, aimed at reaffirming the value and dignity of such persons, in particular children with disabilities, and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;

(c) Adopt effective mechanisms for the inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, especially in rural communities, in the design and implementation and evaluation of awareness-raising campaigns and training programmes in conformity with the principles of the Convention.

North Macedonia (2018)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of national policy and strategy on disability awareness and the lack of efforts to prevent and combat disability stereotypes and discrimination on the basis of impairment;

(b) Ad hoc activities on awareness-raising campaigns focusing on impairments rather than rights and reinforcing the charity-based approach to disability.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national policy and strategy on disability awareness to prevent and combat discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, with the participation of persons with disabilities, aimed at combating stigma and stereotypes;

(b) Develop continuous campaigns about the Convention in the public and private sector and among the persons with disabilities and their representative organisations.

Haiti (2018)

14. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The high prevalence of taboos and negative stereotypes of disability, including discriminatory beliefs that disabilities are supernatural in origin or contagious;

(b) That negative attitudes resulting in stigmatization on grounds of sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, albinism, and the combination of these factors with disability, are highly prevalent in society and a major obstacle to the participation and inclusion of persons with disabilities;

(c) The absence of a coherent national strategy and policy for raising awareness on the human rights based approach to disability with adequate representation of organizations of persons with disabilities, which continues to perpetuate and reproduce negative attitudes towards persons with disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement the human rights based approach to disability to combat fear, prejudice and stereotypes against persons with disabilities;

(b) Formulate a national awareness raising strategy and implementation plan to effectively address stereotypes related to disability and stigmatization based on negative beliefs to prevent and address discrimination, including multiple and intersectional discrimination, against persons with disabilities;

(c) Implement continuous awareness campaigns, involving all stakeholders such as religious leaders and community opinion leaders and representative organizations of persons with disabilities;

(d) Increase the visibility of persons with disabilities in society including more media coverage against the abuse of persons with disabilities.

Nepal (2018)

15. The Committee is concerned at negative attitudes as manifested in everyday language and the lack of awareness regarding the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities from ethnic, Dalit, Madhesi and Muslim communities. The Committee also notes that awareness-raising measures are inadequate to the extent that even persons with disabilities and their families, let alone public and relevant professionals in general, are not exposed to the issues concerning the rights of persons with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, develop and implement public awareness-raising and education programmes on the rights as well as the situation of persons with disabilities, including through sensitization of the media, public officials, judges and lawyers, the police, social workers and the general public, in order to foster a positive image of persons with disabilities as autonomous holders of human rights. In doing so, the State party should ensure that such awareness-raising recognizes the cross-cutting nature of the Convention, particularly with regards to articles 2, 3, 5, 12, 13, 15, 16 and 21 and adopt a human rights model of disability as a key strategy to strengthen positive public awareness regarding the diversity of disabilities.

Oman (2018)

17. While noting the various initiatives to combat stereotypes, including through use of the media, the Committee is, however, concerned about:

- (a) The continued stigmatization of persons with disabilities, in particular children, by families and the society at large;
- (b) The absence of awareness raising campaigns and programmes focusing on the rights of persons with disabilities, in particular those with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;
- (c) The lack of involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in awareness-raising campaigns and programmes, including their participation in the planning and implementation of such campaigns and programmes.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Continue to undertake sustained public awareness campaigns, involving community and religious leaders, and media professionals, aimed at government officials, the public and families to combat the stigmatization of and prejudice against persons with disabilities aimed at reaffirming the value and dignity of such persons, in particular children with disabilities, and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Ensure that all persons with disabilities and their families are aware of the benefits and services that they are entitled to through the disabled identification card;
- (c) Ensure the inclusion of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations in awareness raising campaigns and training programmes that are in conformity with the principles of the Convention and based on the human rights model of disability.

Seychelles (2018)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Negative societal attitudes towards persons with disabilities, including the lack of awareness about their capabilities and rights, especially stigmatizing persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;
- (b) The absence of strategies, including awareness-raising campaigns, for combating stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt measures to raise public awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities in families, schools, and society;
- (b) Adopt an awareness-raising strategy, including engagement of mass media for promoting the respect and dignity of all persons with disability, regardless of impairment, and highlight their capabilities and contributions to society.

Slovenia (2018)

12. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Negative societal attitudes towards persons with disabilities, including the lack of awareness about their capabilities and rights, especially stigmatizing persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities;
- (b) The absence of strategies, including awareness-raising campaigns, for combating stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities.

13. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt measures to raise public awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities in families, schools, and society;
- (b) Adopt an awareness-raising strategy, including engagement of mass media for promoting the respect and dignity of all persons with disability, regardless of impairment, and highlight their capabilities and contributions to society.

Sudan (2018)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited knowledge and awareness about the rights of persons with disabilities within society in general and public officials in particular; and the absence of a comprehensive national disability awareness policy or strategy to strengthen efforts to prevent and combat disability stereotypes, as well as discrimination on the basis of impairment;
- (b) Awareness-raising campaigns focusing on impairments rather than rights and reinforcing the charity-based approach to disability.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national disability awareness policy or strategy to prevent and combat discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, with the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, aimed at combating stigma and stereotypes and reaffirming the value and dignity of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Conduct training activities to communication and media professionals consistent with the human-rights based approach to disability.

Latvia (2017)

14. The Committee is concerned about the negative prejudices towards persons with disabilities in society, especially with regard to persons with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities and with the participation and promotion of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, adopt a comprehensive public awareness-raising campaign about the Convention, with the aim of building a culture of diversity based on the participation and involvement in community life of all persons with disabilities, including those with intellectual and psychosocial disabilities.

Luxembourg (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned about the lack of awareness about the Convention and the rights of persons with disabilities among the general public. It is also concerned about the lack of systematic public awareness efforts, including campaigns, to promote the human rights of persons with disabilities, and that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, are rarely involved. It is also concerned that negative stereotypes of persons with disabilities persist in the media.

19. The Committee recommends that, in close collaboration with persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, through their representative organizations, the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures to develop, national awareness-raising campaigns targeting, among others, public authorities, private sector service providers, and the general public, to systematically raise public awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities, the Convention and its Optional Protocol;
- (b) Train media professionals about the importance of portraying the positive contributions made by persons with disabilities;
- (c) Periodically review and evaluate the impact of any awareness-raising efforts.

Montenegro (2017)

16. The Committee is concerned about the lack of sufficient training programmes for public and private media personnel on the human rights-based approach to disability, as well as training for students of architecture and engineering on accessibility and universal design.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party allocate all necessary human, technical and financial resources to:

- (a) Providing training for public and private media on the Convention, with particular emphasis on the human rights-based approach to disability, and encouraging the portrayal of a positive image of persons with disabilities, their rights and their contributions to society, with a view to eliminating negative stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities;
- (b) Taking effective steps to include in the curricula for students of architecture and engineering mandatory elements on the rights of persons with disabilities, with a special focus on accessibility and universal design.

Morocco (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned about negative perceptions of persons with disabilities in society. It is also concerned about attitudes that stigmatize on the basis of gender and sex identity and its association with disability, and the confusion that can arise from having a different sexual orientation and being a person with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen, with the participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations and the involvement of the media, public awareness-raising campaigns aimed at reaffirming the value and dignity of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Raise awareness among politicians, including the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government, with regard to the Convention and its Optional Protocol and secure their support in implementing the recommendations contained in the Committee's concluding observations;
- (c) Conduct dialogue in society, involving community and religious leaders, aimed at preventing the stigmatization of all categories of persons with disabilities;
- (d) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and conduct a revision of educational materials to prevent the confusion that can arise from having a different sexual orientation and being a person with disability.

Panama (2017)

24. The Committee is concerned that the State party's efforts to combat biased views and negative stereotypes of persons with disabilities remain insufficient, given the existence of public campaigns such as Teletón, which reinforce the charity-based model of disability.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party combat discrimination and negative stereotypes in the media, such as those present in public campaigns like Teletón, and promote public campaigns that portray persons with disabilities as rights holders and focus on their abilities, ensuring that organizations of persons with disabilities are consulted during the design of these campaigns.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

22. The Committee is concerned at the persistence of negative attitudes, stereotypes and prejudice against persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons with neurological and cognitive conditions such as dementia and Alzheimer's, and about their social protection entitlements

23. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, strengthen its awareness-raising campaigns aimed at eliminating negative stereotypes and prejudice towards persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and persons with neurological and cognitive conditions such as dementia and Alzheimer's. To that end, the State party should include mass media strategies and campaigns, with different target audience groups, based on the human rights model of disability.

Armenia (2017)

13. The Committee is concerned about the overall negative image of persons with disabilities and the lack of programmes to raise awareness about their rights, as well as about media coverage of disability that is based on stereotypes and perpetuates discriminatory attitudes towards persons with disabilities.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party implement, with the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, systematic awareness-raising programmes, including media campaigns, aimed at portraying positive images of persons with disabilities as human rights holders.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

16. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the local and the nationwide campaigns, awareness-raising programmes and training programmes for personnel of the public and private media, as well as on whether the text of the Convention has been made available in sign languages.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party translate the Convention into sign languages and organize training programmes for the public and private media on how persons with disabilities should be portrayed, in order to eliminate negative stereotypes and prejudices towards them. The Committee also recommends that the State party take effective and regular steps to raise awareness among members of parliament and government officials at the national and local levels on these matters, and update the training curricula of architects on the rights of persons with disabilities.

Canada (2017)

19. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information about indigenous persons with disabilities, given that they represent one of the most marginalized populations. It is also concerned about stereotypes and harmful messages in public campaigns about autistic persons. It is further concerned about the absence of information on awareness campaigns to promote the rights of persons with intellectual disabilities and to combat attitudinal barriers and prejudices against lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure appropriate dissemination of the Convention and the Committee's general comments, concluding observations and recommendations in sign languages and in accessible formats, modes and means of communication, such as easy-read formats and Braille;

(b) Recognize and proclaim November each year as Indigenous Disability Awareness Month, which is already being done by British Columbia and Saskatchewan;

(c) Adopt a human rights model of disability that recognizes autistic persons and reinforce their human dignity and value in all public campaigns and programmes to support their inclusion in society;

(d) Adopt a strategy aimed at recognizing and fostering the participation of persons with intellectual disabilities in society, including measures to combat stigmatization against such persons and to promote their leadership, the work of their representative organizations and self-advocacy;

(e) Undertake, in collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, research aimed at enhancing understanding of diverse gender identities and monitoring attitudinal barriers faced by lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons with disabilities;

(f) Set up strategies at the federal, provincial and territorial levels to increase awareness among society about the rights of persons with disabilities, through targeted capacity-building and public information programmes and human rights education.

Cyprus (2017)

23. The Committee notes with concern that awareness about the Convention is low. It is also concerned about the lack of adequate awareness-raising campaigns targeted at public and private actors on the Convention in general, in particular on the elimination of disability-based discrimination.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, regularly and in close collaboration with representative organizations of persons with disabilities in line with article 4 (3) of the Convention:

(a) Develop and implement adequately funded awareness-raising initiatives to eliminate sociocultural discrimination and to foster knowledge of the Convention among the general public of all ages, and in both the public and private sectors;

(b) Initiate and evaluate cross-sectoral campaigns and trainings reinforcing a positive image of persons with disabilities as independent, dignified and capable holders of human rights.

Honduras (2017)

19. Al Comité le preocupa que persisten en el Estado parte prejuicios y estereotipos negativos de las personas con discapacidad, especialmente niños y niñas, mujeres, afrohondureños e indígenas. Le preocupa también la falta de estrategias que promuevan específicamente el contenido de la Convención y el modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos y la existencia de campañas, como Teletón, receptora de fondos públicos, que refuerzan el modelo asistencialista hacia las personas con discapacidad. También le preocupa que el Estado parte, mediante Decreto Legislativo núm. 56 de 1984, proclamó el último viernes del mes de abril como el Día Hondureño de la Solidaridad con el Limitado, manteniendo un enfoque asistencialista y no de derechos como es el Día Internacional de las Personas con Discapacidad.

20. El Comité alienta al Estado parte a que, en cooperación con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, combata la discriminación y los estereotipos de las personas con discapacidad a través de campañas de sensibilización pública y de promoción de las personas con discapacidad como sujetos de derechos humanos ante la sociedad en general, los funcionarios públicos y los actores privados, incluyendo a los medios de comunicación, y que conmemore el día de la discapacidad con un enfoque de derechos. Asimismo, el Comité le recomienda que difunda ampliamente la Convención y los recursos disponibles para su implementación entre las personas con discapacidad y sus familias, especialmente en las zonas rurales, los pueblos indígenas y afrohondureños.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned about the absence of public campaigns, including in the media with the aim of raising awareness about the dignity and value of persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop a targeted strategy to raise awareness among society about the inherent dignity of persons with disabilities, and to promote respect for diversity of persons with disabilities in line with the Convention;

- (b) Ensure appropriate dissemination of the Convention and the Committee's General Comments and its Concluding Observations and recommendations in Persian language and in accessible formats, modes and means of communication;
- (c) Initiate dialogue among society and prevent the confusion between having different sexual orientation and being a person with disabilities.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned about the persistence of negative stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities in society and the lack of comprehensive awareness-raising programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party, in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, develop and implement public awareness- raising and education programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities, including through sensitization of the media, public officials, judges and lawyers, the police, social workers and the general public.

Bolivia (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned at the fact that the State party considers the primary prevention of impairments to be a measure contributing to implementation of the Convention. It is also concerned at the scant efforts made to disseminate the rights of persons with disabilities, and finds it regrettable that civil servants speak in an insulting and disrespectful manner about persons with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party launch awareness programmes on the rights of persons with disabilities, targeting policymakers and other officials and public servants, security and justice personnel and Bolivian society in general, and that it promote proper respect for the dignity of persons with disabilities.

Colombia (2016)

20. The Committee notes with concern that the public and private initiatives carried out to raise awareness about persons with disabilities, such as the Teletón and the Día Blanco celebration, reflect a charity approach to disability.

21. The Committee urges the State party to promote images that are respectful of the rights of persons with disabilities in all public education campaigns and to combat negative stereotypes, including through private initiatives. The Committee recommends that the State party support ongoing awareness-raising and training initiatives promoting the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities and aimed at public officials at all levels, justice officials, police and civil defence personnel, the media and Colombian society more generally, and, in doing so, work closely with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Ethiopia (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not adopted a national disability awareness policy or strategy to strengthen efforts to prevent and combat disability stereotypes and discrimination on the basis of impairment, including albinism.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a national disability awareness strategy to effectively prevent and combat disability stereotypes and discrimination faced by persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism.

Guatemala (2016)

25. The Committee is deeply concerned by the fact that persons with disabilities, especially women, children and indigenous peoples, are victims of customs, superstitions and practices that seriously violate their dignity, safety and other fundamental rights. It also notes that the State party's efforts to combat biased views and negative stereotypes of persons with disabilities are insufficient and that campaigns such as the Telethon, which is a recipient of public funding, reinforce a charity-based approach that runs counter to the Convention.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party combat stereotyping of and discrimination against persons with disabilities, launch public media campaigns to promote their human rights in which they are directly involved, and ensure that public funding is not used for purposes that violate the Convention. The Committee also recommends that the State party provide training for public officials at all levels and for professionals who work with persons with disabilities on the rights recognized in the Convention and that it distribute the Convention and the resources available for its implementation widely among persons with disabilities and their families, especially in rural areas and indigenous communities.

Italy (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned about the lack of effective and appropriate measures to promote the capabilities of persons with disabilities and lack of measures to combat stereotypes and prejudices through public awareness campaigns and the use of mass media.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to raise public awareness using mass media campaigns and by training people who work in the mass media about the negative effects of stereotypes and the importance of portraying the positive contributions made by persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the State party considers the primary prevention of impairment as a measure that promotes the rights of persons with disabilities, thereby contributing to perpetuating a negative image of persons with disabilities, which is contrary to the Convention;

(b) That persons with disabilities are perceived within the family and society in general as lacking the ability to live independently and to participate and be included in the community on an equal basis with others;

(c) About the lack of awareness of persons with disabilities about their rights under the Convention and about the services available to them.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to promote an image of persons with disabilities compatible with the human rights model of disability, to ensure that any policy aiming at the rehabilitation, treatment or prevention of disability does not undermine the dignity of persons with disabilities and to establish, together with organizations of persons with disabilities, awareness-raising campaigns and training programmes that are in conformity with the principles of the Convention and based on the human rights model of disability in order to overcome entrenched gender and disability stereotypes in society.

Uruguay (2016)

19. Al Comité le preocupa que persisten en el Estado parte prejuicios y estereotipos negativos de las personas con discapacidad. Preocupa también la falta de estrategias que promuevan específicamente el contenido de la Convención y el modelo de la discapacidad basado en los derechos humanos y la existencia de campañas privadas, como Teletón, que refuerzan el modelo caritativo hacia las personas con discapacidad.

20. El Comité alienta al Estado parte a que, en cooperación con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, combata la discriminación y los estereotipos de las personas con discapacidad a través de campañas de toma de conciencia pública y de promoción de las personas con discapacidad como sujetos de derechos humanos ante la sociedad en general, los funcionarios públicos y los actores privados, incluyendo a los medios de comunicación.

Chile (2016)

17. Al Comité le preocupa que los esfuerzos del Estado parte para combatir los prejuicios y estereotipos negativos de las personas con discapacidad continúan siendo insuficientes, dada la existencia de campañas públicas como Teletón, receptora de fondos públicos, que refuerzan el modelo asistencialista hacia las personas con discapacidad.

18. El Comité alienta al Estado parte a combatir los estereotipos y la discriminación en medios de comunicación e impulsar campañas públicas de promoción de las personas con discapacidad como sujetos de derechos humanos y no como objetos de caridad y asegurar que los fondos públicos no se utilizan para propósitos contrarios.

Serbia (2016)

15. The Committee is concerned that there is no established practice to raise awareness of persons with disabilities, particularly in mainstream schools, and that there is no mechanism to combat compounded harmful stereotypes and widespread discrimination,

16. The Committee encourages the State Party to implement awareness-raising campaigns, with the involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations and to actively promote a positive image of persons with disabilities by focusing on their skills and talents. Those campaigns should target the general population, public officials and the private sector, as well as educational institutions in accessible formats.

Slovakia (2016)

27. The Committee is concerned that the State party has not taken sufficient action to combat disability and gender stereotypes.

28. The Committee recommends that the State party develop all measures available, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness of the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities, in order to foster respect for them and combat disability and gender stereotypes in all areas of life.

Thailand (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned about persisting negative attitudes, stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial impairments, in society. It is also concerned about the State party's understanding of primary prevention of impairment as an implementation measure of the Convention.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party bolster specific awareness- raising campaigns, including a mass-media strategy, with different target audience groups based on the human rights-based model of disability aimed at eliminating in society negative stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial impairments. It also recommends that primary prevention programmes relating to impairment and their respective budgets be removed from action plans and policies aimed at implementing the Convention. The Committee further encourages the State party, in collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, to develop and carry out training initiatives aimed at all public sector officials as well as the general public, for understanding and implementing the human rights model of disability.

Uganda (2016)

14. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information to make the general public aware of cultural practices that stigmatize and hinder the development of persons with disabilities to enjoy rights like all other persons in society. It is also concerned that persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities as well as persons with albinism and deaf-blind persons are disproportionately affected by stigma, which limits their access to education, health and employment.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Increase awareness on the rights and dignity of persons with disabilities with the aim of combating disability and gender stereotypes, which can lead to discrimination against persons with disabilities among the public in general, and in particular in rural and urban areas, in all aspects covered by the Convention, through the mass media, jingles, workshops and public information campaigns;

(b) Ensure that human rights-based training programmes, including those organized through international cooperation are provided for all officials, the judiciary, the police, health professionals, teachers and social workers in all communities in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities;

(c) Strengthen efforts to raise awareness about the dignity and rights of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with albinism, persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and deaf-blind persons and ensure the involvement of their representative organizations in any campaign aimed at eliminating stigmatization and myths that underpin violence against them;

(d) Raise awareness among members of the Parliament, the executive and the judiciary with regard to the Convention and ensure their support in implementing the present concluding observations, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities.

Brazil (2015)

20. The Committee is concerned at the lack of strategies to specifically promote the contents of the Convention and the human rights model of disability to the general public, public officials and private actors.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities, undertake public awareness campaigns to reinforce the positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of all of the human rights enshrined in the Convention. The Committee also recommends the State party to provide training on the rights recognized in the Convention to all public authorities, and public and private professionals working with persons with disabilities. It also recommends to provide information on the Convention to persons with disabilities in special, indigenous persons with disabilities and their families.

European Union (2015)

26. The Committee is concerned that awareness-raising strategies on the rights of persons with disabilities are not continuous and do not include all institutions and staff members, and leave aside certain groups of persons with disabilities. The Committee is concerned that capacity building and training materials, public campaigns, statements and other documents released by the European Union institutions are not in accessible formats.

27. The Committee recommends that the European Union develop a comprehensive campaign to raise awareness of the Convention and combat prejudice against persons with disabilities, including women and girls, and especially persons with psychosocial disabilities, intellectual disabilities, and older persons with disabilities. The Committee recommends that all materials related to capacity building and training, awareness raising, public statements and other, be made accessible.

Gabon (2015)

20. The Committee is concerned that awareness raising campaigns for persons with disabilities focus on the prevention of disability and that negative attitudes towards persons with disabilities persist.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities, target the general public, persons with disabilities, organizations of persons with disabilities, the media, employers, health and educational professionals to foster the human rights model of disability and overcome entrenched gender and disability stereotypes by promoting the positive image of persons with disabilities, their rights, and their contributions to society.

Kenya (2015)

15. The Committee welcomes the information on awareness raising activities to public officials. However, it is concerned about stigmatization of persons with disabilities in society that hinder the exercise of their rights. It is also concerned that persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities are disproportionately affected by stigma which limits their access to education, health and employment.

16. The Committee calls upon the State party to set up a long-term strategy aimed at raise awareness and combating discrimination against persons with disabilities among the public in general, in rural and urban areas, including all aspects covered by the Convention. It also recommends that the State party carry out mass-media awareness-raising campaigns and workshops in order to foster positive image of persons with disabilities and their contributions to society. It further recommends that human rights-based training programmes are provided in both private and public sectors for all officials, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities and in collaboration with human rights institutes and organizations.

Mauritius (2015)

15. The Committee is concerned that awareness-raising campaigns for the public, including persons with disabilities, the Convention and the Optional Protocol, remain limited.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party design, develop and conduct together with persons with disabilities, and their representative organisations:

(a) Campaigns targeting specific discrimination issues in the aim of cultural transformation, for the general public and with the support of the mass media.

(b) Training for persons with disabilities, their families and their representative organisations as well as all relevant civil servants and key areas of the private sector in order for them to apply a human rights based approach to disability.

Qatar (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned that the State party's policy of "primary prevention of impairment" in place is contrary to the Convention and the rights of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that the high investment in the prevention of impairment contributes to perpetuating a negative image of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned that persons with disabilities are perceived within the family and society in general, as lacking the ability to live independently and to participate and be included in the community on an equal basis with others.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure that any rehabilitation, treatment, or prevention of disability policy does not undermine the dignity of persons with disabilities and to establish awareness-raising campaigns and training programmes that are in conformity with the principles of the Convention and based on the human rights model of disability in order to overcome entrenched gender and disability stereotypes in society.

Ukraine (2015)

15. The Committee notes with concern the lack of measures taken to raise awareness on the rights of persons with disabilities as contained in the Convention. The Committee is particularly concerned that public officials, professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, the public in general and the persons with disabilities themselves remain unaware of their rights.

16. The Committee urges the State party to step up its efforts to raise the awareness of its public on the rights of persons with disabilities, by conducting public campaigns, including the Convention in the curricula of schools and professional training of public officials and all relevant professionals.

Cook Islands (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned at the lack of awareness regarding the rights of children with disabilities and the absence of a specific strategy to address their rights. It is also concerned that children with disabilities are not systematically involved in decisions that affect their lives and do not have the opportunity to express their opinion on matters that affect them directly.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party raise awareness of the rights of children with disabilities through training in schools, family settings and the wider community, in close cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities; and develop a comprehensive rights-based strategy for children with disabilities that adopts safeguards to protect their rights. The Committee further recommends that children with disabilities are consulted in all matters affecting them, with appropriate assistance according to their disability and age, aligned with the Committee on the Rights of the Child Concluding Observations (CRC/C/COK/CO/1).

15. The Committee notes an early identification of, and intervention for, children with disabilities project due to commence before 2016, however, the Committee is concerned that this project is of a temporary nature and unsustainable in meeting the long term needs of children with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a permanent early identification and intervention programme for children with disabilities, from birth to school age;

(b) Identify and provide additional paediatric specialist services that are not currently available;

(c) Provide families of children with disabilities financial assistance, training and support mechanisms to ensure children's inclusion and full participation in the family and the community.

Croatia (2015)

13. The Committee is concerned at the insufficiency of awareness-raising measures on the rights of persons with disabilities and the fact that the medical and charity model of disability still prevail in mass media.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities and other stakeholders undertakes public awareness campaigns to reinforce the positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of all the human rights recognized in the Convention. It recommends the State party to provide training to all public authorities and public or private professionals working with persons with disabilities on the rights enshrined in the Convention.

Dominican Republic (2015)

14. The Committee notes with concern that there have been few campaigns to raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities, that they are not consistent with the human rights-based model and that they have not been given wide publicity.

15. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a strategy to raise awareness of the rights of persons with disabilities, using all the mass media and all alternative and accessible modes and formats, and covering government institutions.

Germany (2015)

19. The Committee is concerned that the measures put in place by the State party to reduce stigma faced by persons with disabilities, especially persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, have been ineffective.

20. The Committee recommends that, in consultation with DPOs, the State party:

(a) Develop a strategy to raise awareness and eliminate discrimination, ensuring that its preparation and implementation are evidence-based, that its impact can be measured, and that the public and private media are involved;

(b) Ensure that awareness-raising and human rights-based training programmes are provided for all officials involved in the promotion, protection and/or implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities.

Mongolia (2015)

15. The Committee is concerned about negative attitudes towards persons with disabilities, as manifested in everyday language and also through the media, as manifested by the "Disability Prevention Day" of the State party which represents a concept contrary to the Convention. The Committee also notes that measures for awareness-raising are inadequate to the extent that even persons with disabilities and their families, let alone public and relevant professionals in general, are not exposed to the issues concerning the rights of persons with disabilities.

Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that the disability issue in general appears to be confined to physical disabilities with inadequate attention accorded to intellectual and psychosocial disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen awareness-raising campaigns for fostering a positive image of persons with disabilities as autonomous holders of human rights. In doing so, the State party should ensure that such awareness-raising recognizes the cross-cutting nature of the Convention, particularly with regards to articles 5, 12, 13 and 27, and adopt human rights models of disability as a key strategy to strengthen positive public awareness of the diversity of disabilities. The Committee recommends that the State party take further efforts to promote the United Nations Day for Persons with Disabilities.

Turkmenistan (2015)

19. The Committee is concerned at the shortage of programmes and initiatives to eliminate negative stereotypes and prejudices of persons with disabilities in society including through the mass media. The Committee also regrets the lack of measures taken to make available the national sign language version of the Convention. It further regrets the lack of detailed data on the number of seminars and conferences organised to raise awareness on the Convention and the number of participants therein.

20. The Committee encourages the State party to implement awareness-raising campaigns with assistance from UN agencies and the involvement of DPOs, to actively disseminate positive images of persons with disabilities focusing on their abilities and related good practices as well as on the right to legal capacity in particular. These campaigns should target the general population, public officials and the private sector in accessible formats.

Denmark (2014)

22. The Committee is concerned about the reports of prevailing prejudice among the general population regarding various forms of disabilities, which negatively affects the ability of persons with disabilities to enjoy rights on an equal basis, including in the area of employment.

23. The Committee encourages the State party to devise and adopt a strategy with concrete and measurable targets, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to raise awareness throughout society – among the general public, the government and private sectors, and persons with disabilities themselves – to promote a positive image of persons with disabilities and knowledge about their rights.

24. The Committee notes with concern the limited information about the level of awareness of the contents of the Convention among public officials and private actors, including the concepts of reasonable accommodation and disability-based discrimination.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party undertake and regularly evaluate campaigns and other forms of training, in cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities, for public officials and private actors to further develop their knowledge of the rights and obligations stemming from the Convention, in particular in regard to reasonable accommodation.

Republic of Korea (2014)

15. The Committee notes that the State party fails to systematically and continuously publicize, and educate government officials, members of Parliament, the media and the general public on, the contents and purpose of the Convention.

16. The Committee encourages the State party to strengthen awareness-raising campaigns to reinforce the positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of human rights. In particular, it recommends that the State party systematically and continuously publicize, and educate government officials, members of Parliament, the media and the general public on, the contents and purpose of the Convention.

Belgium (2014)

17. The Committee is concerned that there is no sign that a paradigm shift has occurred following ratification of the Convention, whereby persons with disabilities are recognized as basic rights holders taking part in decisions affecting them and asserting their rights in society. The stigmatization and exclusion of persons with disabilities is evident in several policies because of, among other things, the continued existence of a strong medical model, reliance on residential care as the main form of care and the maintenance of the segregated education system.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party introduce a national strategy to raise awareness of the content of the Convention. In this regard, the Committee recommends that the State party carry out accessible information and awareness-raising campaigns on the rights of persons with disabilities and foster among the general public a positive image of persons with disabilities and their contributions to society, through close consultation with, and the active involvement of, representative organizations of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of those information and awareness-raising campaigns.

19. The Committee notes with concern that persons with disabilities are portrayed in the media mainly as persons with a disability rather than as citizens who participate fully in society.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party encourage print and broadcast media professionals to take account of diversity in their code of ethical conduct and provide them, and all relevant professionals, with appropriate training and awareness-raising to ensure better representation of persons with disabilities in the media.

Ecuador (2014)

20. The Committee is concerned that the prevention of disabilities is considered a State policy relating to the rights of persons with disabilities. The prevention of disabilities is not a policy that should be included in the promotion of the rights of persons with disabilities, because it tends to create a negative image of them.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party amend public policy so that the prevention of disabilities is not considered a policy that promotes the rights of persons with disabilities.

Mexico (2014)

17. The Committee is concerned that a substantial part of the resources for rehabilitating persons with disabilities are administered by a private entity such as Teletón. It also observes that the relevant campaign promotes the stereotype that persons with disabilities are the object of charity.

18. The Committee urges the State party to establish a clear distinction between the private nature of Teletón campaigns and the State's obligation to rehabilitate persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party develop campaigns to raise awareness of persons with disabilities as rights holders.

Sweden (2014)

21. The Committee is concerned about the lack of knowledge among the general population about different disabilities, relevant factors and reasonable accommodation needs related to disabilities, in particular in the education system and among decision makers.

22. The Committee encourages the State party to create a strategy that increases public knowledge about different disabilities and to reinforce not only a positive but also an informative image of men and women with disabilities as dignified, independent and capable individuals who are holders of all the human rights recognized in the Convention, with the aim to remove sociocultural discrimination barriers in public life. The Committee further recommends that specific programmes be established, in consultation with disabled persons' organizations, to raise awareness among public sector employees.

23. The Committee is concerned about the lack of promotion of the contents of the Convention among public officials and private actors, and in particular the new concepts that have been incorporated into human rights law, such as reasonable accommodation and disability-based discrimination.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party launch periodic, regular and continuous national campaigns and other training courses targeted to public officials and private actors to enable them to become acquainted with the general and specific contents of the Convention that have recently been incorporated into human rights law.

Azerbaijan (2014)

20. The Committee is concerned at reports of persisting negative stereotypes and prejudices against persons with disabilities in the society, which negatively affect their ability to enjoy rights on an equal basis with others.

21. The State party should introduce specific programmes, including awareness-raising programmes, aimed at eliminating negative stereotypes and prejudices towards persons with disabilities in society. The Committee calls upon the State party to take initiatives in relation to awareness-raising and training for government officials, health, legal, educational and social work professionals, the judiciary, police, elections officers, media practitioners/journalists and other staff to effectively modify society's perception of persons with disabilities as being in need of protection by portraying a positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of human rights. The Committee further recommends that the State party supports and includes Disabled Peoples' Organisations and their representatives as well as other civil society representatives, in its programmes so that they fully participate in awareness raising initiatives.

Costa Rica (2014)

17. The Committee notes with concern the lack of programmes and rights-based public campaigns to promote the human rights model of disability.

18. The Committee urges the State party to encourage extensive awareness-raising campaigns to reinforce the positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of human rights. In particular, it recommends that the State party fully inform persons with disabilities – and society at large – about their human rights, using various formats, media and modes of communication such as Braille and sign language and other accessible formats, and to encourage a culture of respect for those rights.

Austria (2013)

21. The Committee notes with concern that there appears to be very few awareness raising campaigns being conducted in Austria to counter negative and out-dated stereotypes about persons with disabilities which foment discrimination. The Committee is concerned that throughout Austrian society there does not appear to have been a complete understanding of the paradigm shift created by the human rights-centred approach in the Convention. The Committee is also concerned at reports that persons with disabilities face practical impediments in matters of adoption, and that those stereotypes are partly attributable to the persisting prejudices and stereotypes against persons with disabilities.

22. The Committee encourages the State party to take initiatives in relation to awareness-raising to effectively transform the perception of persons with disabilities based on the charity model and the "old-fashioned" understanding that all persons with disabilities need to be protected. Instead, the State party should make efforts to reinforce a positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of all the human rights recognized in the Convention. Furthermore, the State party should, in consultation with disabled persons' organisations, take specific measures, including awareness-raising campaigns, aimed at eliminating prejudices. The Committee recommends that further specific programs be established, in consultation with disabled persons' organisations, to address negative stereotypes and all practical impediments faced by persons with disabilities in relation to adoption.

El Salvador (2013)

21. The Committee is concerned at the lack of national awareness-raising campaigns designed to combat negative stereotypes of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the fact that organizations of persons with disabilities do not benefit from training programmes on the Convention.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party launch public information campaigns on the Convention and its application in the various spheres of life, in conjunction with organizations of persons with disabilities. In addition, it recommends promoting disability education as a cross-cutting theme in university courses. The Committee recommends that the State promote training programmes on the Convention for persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, in accessible formats and media.

Paraguay (2013)

21. The Committee notes with concern that awareness-raising campaigns on persons with disabilities have been designed using the medical model and favour prevention activities over recognition of persons with disabilities as the holders of rights. It is also concerned at the fact that the State party has not run any campaigns to eliminate negative attitudes to persons with disabilities, notably in the world of work.

22. The Committee urges the State party to encourage extensive awareness-raising campaigns to reinforce the positive image of persons with disabilities as holders of all the human rights recognized in the Convention. It particularly urges the State to fully inform persons with disabilities – and society at large – about their human rights, using various formats, media and modes of communication such as Braille and sign language and other accessible formats, and to encourage a culture of respect for those rights by means of information, communication and education.

China (2012)

15. The Committee is concerned that in the awareness-raising attempts of the state party, the medical model of disability prevails, which is not in accordance with the spirit of the CRPD. It is especially concerned with awareness-raising events such as the “All-China Occupational Skills Contest for Persons with Disabilities” and “Million Young Volunteers to Help Persons with Disabilities” program that depict persons with disabilities as helpless and dependent human beings segregated from the rest of society.

16. The Committee wishes to again remind the state party of the Convention’s human rights model of disability and asks the state party to promote this concept of persons with disabilities as independent and autonomous rights holders in its awareness-raising programs. It urges the state party to inform all persons with disabilities, especially those living in rural areas, of their rights, specifically the right to receive minimum welfare subsidies and the right to attend school. The committee recommends the state party to introduce awareness raising programme that shows the society positive perceptions of persons with disabilities.

Peru (2012)

18. While taking note of some steps taken by the State party to raise awareness on the rights of persons with disabilities, such as the national radio broadcasts, the Committee remains concerned at the insufficiency of these measures and at the existence of private fundraising initiatives using negative stereotypes and charity based approach (such as the Peruvian Telethon). The Committee draws the attention of the State party to the fact that far from promoting rights and empowering persons with disabilities, these campaigns perpetuate and reproduce stigma and, thus hinder the possibility of constructing a culture in which persons with disabilities are recognized as part of human diversity and society.

19. The Committee calls upon the State party to take proactive measures to enhance awareness of the Convention and its Optional Protocol at all levels, to develop policies and programmes implemented to ensure elimination of stereotypes and to focus on the dignity, capabilities and contributions to society of persons with disabilities.

Spain (2011)

25. The Committee commends the many initiatives taken by the State party to implement the Convention. However, it notes that more needs to be done to increase awareness in society, in the media and among persons with disabilities themselves of the rights of persons with disabilities,

26. The Committee calls upon the State party to take proactive measures to enhance awareness of the Convention and the Optional Protocol thereto at all levels, in particular among the judiciary and the legal profession, political parties, Parliament and Government officials, civil society, media, and persons with disabilities, as well as among the general public.

Tunisia (2010)

18. The Committee notes the strategy of information, education and communication to raise awareness on persons with disabilities, including training for judicial and education personnel. The Committee, however, regrets the lack of information about training provided to other public officials on the Convention.

19. The Committee encourages the State party to establish awareness-raising and training programmes that are in conformity with the principles of the Convention for all officials involved in the promotion, protection or implementation of the rights of persons with disabilities, including officials at the local level dealing with persons with disabilities.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 9 CRPD
(Accessibility)*

September 2025

Article 9 - Accessibility

1. To enable persons with disabilities to live independently and participate fully in all aspects of life, States Parties shall take appropriate measures to ensure to persons with disabilities access, on an equal basis with others, to the physical environment, to transportation, to information and communications, including information and communications technologies and systems, and to other facilities and services open or provided to the public, both in urban and in rural areas. These measures, which shall include the identification and elimination of obstacles and barriers to accessibility, shall apply to, inter alia:

- a) Buildings, roads, transportation and other indoor and outdoor facilities, including schools, housing, medical facilities and workplaces;
- b) Information, communications and other services, including electronic services and emergency services.

2. States Parties shall also take appropriate measures:

- a) To develop, promulgate and monitor the implementation of minimum standards and guidelines for the accessibility of facilities and services open or provided to the public;
- b) To ensure that private entities that offer facilities and services which are open or provided to the public take into account all aspects of accessibility for persons with disabilities;
- c) To provide training for stakeholders on accessibility issues facing persons with disabilities;
- d) To provide in buildings and other facilities open to the public signage in Braille and in easy to read and understand forms;
- e) To provide forms of live assistance and intermediaries, including guides, readers and professional sign language interpreters, to facilitate accessibility to buildings and other facilities open to the public;
- f) To promote other appropriate forms of assistance and support to persons with disabilities to ensure their access to information;
- g) To promote access for persons with disabilities to new information and communications technologies and systems, including the Internet;
- h) To promote the design, development, production and distribution of accessible information and communications technologies and systems at an early stage, so that these technologies and systems become accessible at minimum cost.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)
Georgia (2023)

Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)

Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)

Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)
China (2012)
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)

Tunisia (2010)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

15. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Comprehensive accessibility legislation is lacking and national accessibility standards for public and private infrastructure, transportation, schools, hospitals and other constructions have not been fully adopted or implemented, particularly in rural and remote areas, nor aligned with international standards. The State Party has not provided information to ensure the systematic use of universal design approaches in all products, environments, programmes and services.
- (b) No national authority has been designated with powers to consider complaints about lack of or insufficient accessibility;
- (c) Accessible information and communication formats are lacking, as well as sign language interpretation, tactile or auditory systems, mobility aids, and other assistive devices in public service settings.

16. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Adopt, implement, and enforce national accessibility legislation and standards that are developed in accordance with international standards and universal design principles in all new construction and upgrades, and develop time-bound plans to make hospitals, schools, housing, and transport systems accessible, including in rural and remote areas;
- (b) Establish a designated national authority mandated to consider complaints about lack of or insufficient accessibility;
- (c) Guarantee access to information and communications in accessible formats, as well as sign language interpretation, tactile and auditory systems, mobility aids, assistive technologies, and accessible digital platforms.

Finland (2025)

16. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Section 35 of the Building Act (751/2023) on Accessibility is not applicable to outdoor areas that are not adjacent to buildings; the rules on accessibility in the Government Decree on the Accessibility of Buildings of 2017 apply only to new buildings and to renovations and alterations of existing buildings requiring a building permit; the decree does not contain requirements for tactile, visual, auditive, language and other sensory measures; and that the State Party has not opted in to Annex 3 of the European Accessibility Act "Accessibility requirements for the purpose of article 4(4) concerning the built environment";
- (b) The State Party lacks a strategy to remedy the deficiencies in the accessibility of public transport as revealed in the Report on Accessibility of Public Transport Travel Chains of the Ministry of Transport and Communications of 2022;
- (c) Persons with intellectual disabilities face barriers in accessing essential online services, that public information provided by government, particularly municipalities, rarely uses Easy Read, and that universal design is seldom applied by public and private actors.

17. The Committee recommends the State party in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Enact legislation on accessibility of all built environment, extend accessibility requirements to existing buildings not subject to renovations or alterations, and develop and explicitly require tactile, visual, auditive, language and other sensory accessibility measures and opt in to Annex 3 of the European Accessibility Act "Accessibility requirements for the purpose of article 4(4) concerning the built environment";
- (b) Develop a comprehensive plan on accessible public transport with targets, time frames and budget allocations, and ensure that it incorporates the findings of the Report on Accessibility of Public Transport Travel Chains of the Ministry of Transport and Communications;

(c) Guarantee easy access of persons with intellectual disabilities to strong online identification tools and ensure that public and private actors regularly provide information to the public in Easy Read and apply universal design principles in the development of online tools.

Kiribati (2025)

17. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That despite the adoption of the Building Act 2024 and the completion of a national accessibility audit, most existing public buildings, including courthouses, healthcare facilities, schools and housing remain inaccessible, and there is no clear plan, budget or timeframe for their renovation;

(b) About the absence of accessibility standards and measures for public transport, information and communication technologies, and the lack of monitoring and enforcement mechanisms to ensure compliance with accessibility requirements.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Promote the principle of universal design in the revised National Disability Policy and Action Plan;

(b) Expedite the renovation of existing public buildings, as identified in the national accessibility audit, to bring them into compliance with accessibility standards;

(c) Collaborate with the Pacific Region Infrastructure Facility and donor and development partners for technical assistance to develop transport accessibility legislation and standards to address the inaccessibility of transport and associated infrastructure across sea, land and air;

(d) Develop accessibility legislation, standards and compliance mechanisms for information and communication technology, including for emergency phone lines;

(e) Develop and implement procurement policies that ensure that contracts and donor partnership agreements include disability-inclusive provisions for compliance with accessibility requirements and the principle of universal design.

Maldives (2025)

17. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That persons with disabilities face barriers to access physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, particularly in outer islands, and the adverse impact on children and adults with disabilities to participation and inclusion in all aspects of community life;

(b) At the absence of an institutionalized mechanism for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of accessibility legislation and standards and the lack of complaint procedures for violations for such legislation available to persons with disabilities and their representative organizations.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Adopt and implement an action plan and strategy to identify existing barriers to access on equal basis with others in the private and public sectors and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove those barriers to ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, both in the capital and on the islands and include monitoring and reporting of the progress of its implementation;

(b) Develop comprehensive legislation enforcing accessibility standards and codes with clear obligations and checks for the public and private sector, with strong enforcement mechanism that include penalties and remedial actions covering the built environment, all modes of transport, including maritime, and digital technologies;

(c) Establish formal mechanisms for the participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the processes for the development of accessibility legislation and standards and complaint mechanisms to lodge complaints of violations of accessibility and their right to equal access;

(d) Develop and implement procurement policies and ensure that funding contracts and donor partnerships are disability inclusive and contain provisions for compliance with accessibility requirements following the principle of universal design.

Canada (2025)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That the Accessible Canada Act does not provide for the duty to accommodate as a legal obligation, its accountability mechanisms for non-compliance are ineffective and persistent delays in its implementation;

(b) The lack of implementation of the accessibility obligations and rights enshrined by the Convention in many provinces and territories;

(c) The lack of close consultation and active involvement of First Nations, Inuit, and Métis persons with disabilities, off-reserve and non-status Indigenous persons with disabilities in the implementation of accessibility requirements;

(d) The insufficient availability of experts in universal design, reasonable accommodation and accessibility in public administration and the private sector;

(e) The scarce information on the implementation of the Accessible Procurement Resource Centre and how it has served to ensure accessibility across the State party;

(f) The lack of involvement of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development, implementation and monitoring of accessibility.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Amend the Accessible Canada Act and other domestic laws to explicitly incorporate the duty to accommodate as a legal obligation, with accountability mechanisms for non-compliance, and set a timeline for the issuance of regulations and their implementation, with clear indicators of progress;

(b) Ensure that all provinces and territories enact and implement accessibility legislation in conformity with the Convention;

(c) Ensure the Accessible Canada Act is applicable to First Nations, Inuit, and Métis territories, and provide the necessary support to implement the Act in their territories;

(d) Develop educational and training programmes on universal design, reasonable accommodation, and accessibility to ensure the further development of expertise in government and in the private sector on these matters;

(e) Ensure information on the performance and results of the Accessible Procurement Resource Centre publicly available and how it has served to ensure accessibility;

(f) Ensure that persons with disabilities and children with disabilities, are involved in the development, implementation and monitoring of universal design, reasonable accommodation, and accessibility policies, as well as in the evaluation of its effectiveness.

Dominican Republic (2025)

17. The Committee is concerned about the remaining gaps in ensuring the accessibility of the physical environment, transport, information and communication, including in digital formats, to persons with disabilities, despite existing legislation, such as Decree no. 363-16, and the limited possibilities for the legal enforcement of accessibility standards, in particular for existing buildings, goods and services. The Committee is particularly concerned about:

- (a) The majority of public buildings do not meet national accessibility standards;
- (b) Access to information for deaf and blind persons, as well as persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities is deficient as websites of the majority of public and private institutions are not accessible and do not meet digital accessibility standards;
- (c) The “Road for the Development of Inclusive Municipalities” project is inoperative, as the construction of public works, particularly streets and avenues, is the responsibility of the central government.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations develop and implement comprehensive accessibility measures to ensure access to physical environment, transport, information and communications, including in digital formats, to persons with disabilities on equal basis with others in both urban and rural areas.

European Union (2025)

26. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited Scope of the European Accessibility Act, which includes the built environment only as a voluntary clause for Member States, does not cover essential products such as household appliances, and does not sufficiently address accessibility of information;
- (b) The delays in the transposition of the European Accessibility Act by Member States, including derogations for application deadlines, allowing the emergency number ‘112’ to remain inaccessible until 2027 and some self-service terminals until 2045;
- (c) Regulation 2024/1670 on the Trans-European Networks (TEN-T) lacks clarity on implementation, lacks references to the European Accessibility Act, and does not mandate expert consultation and integrate accessibility into its monitoring;
- (d) The limited compliance by Member States with the Web Accessibility Directive, the exclusion of extranets and intranets from its purview, and its opt out provision for websites and mobile applications of schools, kindergartens or nurseries;
- (e) The gaps of accessibility requirements in digital legislation, such as in the Digital Services Act, that considers accessibility as voluntary good practice, or in the general objectives for the Digital Decade policy programme 2030, that does not take accessibility sufficiently into account;

27. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the European Union, within its competences and in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Adopt legislation to guarantee accessibility of the built environment, products and information;
- (b) Accelerate the implementation of accessibility standards in the Member States;
- (c) Amend Regulation 2024/1670 to provide for measures for implementation, and integrate accessibility into monitoring;
- (d) Ensure compliance by all Member States with the Web Accessibility Directive, extend the scope to intranet and extranet and delete its Article 1 (5);
- (e) Incorporate accessibility requirements into all digital legislation;
- (f) Provide staff training on accessibility and disability-inclusive methodologies and adopt transparent physical and digital accessibility policies with implementation roadmaps for all buildings, services, appliances and digital platforms.

Palau (2025)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That persons with disabilities face barriers to access the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public.

(b) The lack of sufficient budgetary allocations and the lack of mandatory accessibility criteria in public procurement at all levels.

18. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Adopt and implement an action plan to identify existing barriers to accessibility in the private and public sectors and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove those barriers to ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public;

(b) Take the necessary legislative and policy measures in the public and private sectors, such as the development of public procurement criteria, to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including regarding information and communications technologies and systems, and ensure effective sanctions measures for non-compliance.

Tuvalu (2025)

17. The Committee is concerned about the impact of the lack of accessibility throughout the State party across all mainstream essential services, housing, transport, information and telecommunications systems and facilities and the adverse impact on children and adults with disabilities to participation and inclusion in all aspects of community life.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop and resource an accessibility action plan with timeframes and measurable outcomes to implement Priority Area 4 (Information, Infrastructure and Transportation) of the National Policy for Disability 2018;

(b) Review and amend all laws and policies in relation to accessibility, including the Telecommunications Act 1993, the National ICT Policy 2017 and the draft National Building Code to ensure they are disability inclusive;

(c) Collaborate with the Pacific Region Infrastructure Facility (PRIF) to ensure that its technical advice and coordination of partner investments are disability inclusive and accessible, based on the principle of universal design;

(d) Develop and implement procurement policies to ensure that funding contracts and donor partnerships include disability inclusive provisions for compliance with accessibility requirements and the principle of universal design.

Viet Nam (2025)

17. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) A significant percentage of public buildings, including healthcare facilities, educational establishments, justice service locations and supermarkets, do not meet accessibility standards, hindering full participation of persons with disabilities in these areas;

(b) The availability of accessible public transport is minimal, with only a few of buses nationwide being accessible and some cities having regulations on the ratio of accessible vehicles;

(c) Only one accessible train carriage exists in Vietnam, and only certain major train stations have ramps to waiting rooms, limiting access to rail travel for persons with disabilities;

(d) Although airports have improved accessibility, smaller local airports still lack the necessary accessible facilities, affecting air travel for persons with disabilities;

(e) As Vietnam is a country with a lot of shipping, there is no consideration of accessibility to both transport and tourist boats

- (f) While the Law on Persons with Disabilities and the Law on Information Technology recognize ICT accessibility, implementation remains inconsistent, and many government websites and digital services do not fully comply with accessibility standards;
- (g) Vietnam Television provides limited programming with sign language interpretation and subtitles, and other media channels provide no accessibility for persons with disabilities;
- (h) Many libraries provide limited accessibility services, with some offering Braille and alternative text materials but lacking full accessibility to reading materials, including for indigenous persons with disabilities;
- (i) The enforcement of accessibility standards remains unclear, with few penalties issued for non-compliance with regulations, and there is no transparency in the allocation of funds collected from penalties for accessibility violations.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Take immediate steps to increase the percentage of public buildings, including healthcare facilities, educational establishments, justice service locations, and supermarkets, that meet accessibility standards, with clear timelines and mechanisms for implementation;
- (b) Accelerate the introduction of accessible public transport across all provinces by increasing the number of accessible buses, trains, and accessible vehicles in line with a nationwide strategy;
- (c) Expand accessibility features across the entire railway system, ensuring all stations and train carriages are fully accessible to persons with disabilities;
- (d) Establish a clear timeline for ensuring full accessibility in all Vietnamese airports, particularly focusing on smaller local airports to ensure equal access to air travel for persons with disabilities;
- (e) Expand physical accessibility and support for boarding and disembarking from both transport and tourist boats
- (f) Implement mechanisms to enforce accessibility requirements and strengthen monitoring systems to ensure all government and public sector websites, digital services, and online platforms comply with accessibility standards, including by conducting regular audits and establishing enforcement protocols;
- (g) Increase the number of television programmes with sign language interpretation and closed captions on national and regional media channels, ensuring equal access to information for all persons with disabilities;
- (h) Implement a strategy to increase the availability of accessible books and digital reading materials in libraries, including expanding Braille and alternative formats for persons with disabilities, including indigenous persons with disabilities;
- (i) Improve the enforcement of accessibility legislation by issuing penalties for non-compliance, tracking the number of violations, and publishing annual reports on how the funds from penalties are used to support social assistance activities for persons with disabilities.

Belarus (2024)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The need to implement measures on accessibility more broadly than the physical accessibility, given the limitations in providing access to information in various formats such as Easy Read, audio description and sign language, as required for different disabilities;
- (b) The lack of monitoring and review mechanism and system to ensure implementation of the provisions for accessibility for persons with disabilities.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on Article 9: Accessibility, the Committee recommends that in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, the State party:

- (a) Adopt a specific law on a barrier-free environment and accessibility, and include therein inclusive legally binding accessibility standards based on the principles of universal design with the aim of eliminating accessibility barriers in all areas, including in information and communications technologies, and within reasonable time frames;
- (b) Establish monitoring mechanisms and measures to evaluate the development of and monitoring of the application of accessibility in all sectors.

Belgium (2024)

18. The Committee notes that the State party's regions have regulatory accessibility standards. However, it remains concerned that:

- (a) Accessibility standards are limited to new buildings or to substantial renovations of existing buildings requiring a building permit, but do not extend to existing buildings, and regularly exclude measures guaranteeing access for persons with visual, hearing, intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Accessibility standards for infrastructure such as roads, parks, and other public infrastructure appear to be selective and scarce;
- (c) The implementation of accessibility requirements is not being systematically inspected upon completion of construction;
- (d) The lack of authoritative plans, containing clear time frames, competencies, budgets and monitoring mechanisms to render public transport accessible to persons with disabilities and, as a consequence, highly uneven accessibility depending on the transport provider, and a generally slow pace of rendering public transport accessible;
- (e) The lack of a guarantee of autonomous accessibility of rail and bus service and travel at sea.

19. Recalling its General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee reiterates its previous recommendations (para.21) and recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Complement existing accessibility standards for buildings with standards guaranteeing access for persons with visual, hearing, intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, extend the applicability of accessibility standards for buildings to existing buildings, public and private, irrespective of applications for building permits, and devise a plan to implement them with a clear time frame and monitoring;
- (b) Review accessibility standards for infrastructure such as roads, parks, and other public infrastructure, ensure that they guarantee accessibility to persons with all forms of impairments, and devise plans to implement them, with clear time frames, competencies, budgets and monitoring;
- (c) Ensure that the implementation of accessibility standards is systematically inspected upon completion of construction, and that remedial measures are taken expeditiously in case of non-compliance;
- (d) Devise authoritative plans, containing clear time frames, competencies, budgets and monitoring mechanisms, to render public transport accessible to persons with disabilities, including persons with high support requirements, and extend such plans to all modes of transportation, including transport by rail, bus, air and at sea;
- (e) Enact by law a guarantee of autonomous accessibility of rail and bus service and travel at sea, applicable in the areas covered by:
 - (i) Regulation (EU) 2021/782 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2021 on rail passengers' rights and obligations (recast);

- (ii) Regulation (EU) No 181/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 February 2011 concerning the rights of passengers in bus and coach transport and amending Regulation (EC) No 2006/2004;
- (iii) Regulation (EU) No 1177/2010 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24 November 2010 concerning the rights of passengers when travelling by sea and inland waterway and amending Regulation (EC) No 2006/2004.

Benin (2024)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That persons with disabilities face barriers in accessing the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, particularly in rural areas;
- (b) the lack of measures taken to implement the relevant national legislation on accessibility standards, of adequate budgetary allocations and of mandatory accessibility criteria in public procurement at all levels.

18. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Adopt and implement an action plan to identify existing barriers to accessibility in the private and public sectors and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove those barriers and to ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in both urban and rural areas;
- (b) Develop and implement accessibility standards and regulations, strengthen the implementation of the existing national legislation on accessibility and carry out an accessibility needs assessment of existing infrastructure with a time-bound plan to make it accessible;
- (c) Take the legislative and policy measures in the public and private sectors, necessary to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, such as the development of public procurement criteria, including for information and communications technologies and systems, and ensure effective sanctions for non-compliance.

Burkina Faso (2024)

18. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The barriers faced by persons with disabilities to the environment, public and private buildings, clean water and sanitation, public transport, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, particularly in rural areas, due to the limited scope and implementation of accessibility laws;
- (b) The inadequacy of the resources allocated to the implementation of the Operational Action Plan 2021-2023 of SN-3PH 2021-2025, particularly on accessibility;
- (c) The barriers faced by persons with disabilities to the digital work environment restricting their access to information and communication technologies, including on government websites, and in relation to software;
- (d) The insufficient awareness-raising and training for architects, designers and engineers concerning accessibility standards and universal design under the Convention.

19. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Conduct regular national accessibility studies and surveys to assess the current state of accessibility, identify gaps, and provide actionable recommendations;
- (b) Ensure rigorous evaluation and enforcement of accessibility laws, such as Law No. 012-2010/AN on the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities and Law No. 017-2006/AN on Urban Planning and Construction. Public procurement for transport facilities should also be reviewed to ensure compliance with accessibility criteria, with sanctions imposed for any violations;
- (c) Review Law No. 051-2015/CNT of 30 August 2015 on the right of access to information and administrative documents and establish accessibility standards for media and information and communication technologies, as well as for websites, in line with universal standards, and include digital accessibility in the various accessibility and digital transformation action plans;
- (d) Strengthen the promotion of awareness and training of professionals in the construction sectors on accessibility barriers faced by persons with disabilities and on adequate measures to remove them.

Denmark (2024)

33. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The recent and ongoing repeal of legal accessibility obligations, including the amendment to the Danish Building Regulations on single-family houses, and the draft amendment to the Greenland's Inatsisartut Act on accessibility requirement for public buildings and facilities;
- (b) The lack of a comprehensive strategy and plans to ensure accessibility in all areas of the Convention;
- (c) The insufficient implementation of accessibility and universal design in public transportation and services, hindering mobility and participation of persons with disabilities;
- (d) The barriers in the digital environment preventing access for persons with disabilities to information and communication.

34. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Review legislation in all parts of the Kingdom of Denmark which provides for exemptions from compliance with accessibility standards in buildings, including single-family houses and services and extend legal accessibility standards to all public spaces, buildings and services open to the public;
- (b) Adopt and implement a national strategy, with a duty for municipal authorities to set up plans and monitor compliance, to identify existing barriers to accessibility and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove these barriers and ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, including new buildings and buildings being renovated, historic buildings and roads with cobblestones, transportation, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, for all persons with disabilities;
- (c) Conduct awareness-raising training, spread information and promote understanding about the concept of universal design among public officials, including architects, engineers, personnel who are "working on the ground" with pavements, slopes, train stations, new technology;
- (d) Take measures to apply the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines and remove barriers preventing universal and equal access for persons with disabilities to websites and digital communications;
- (e) Provide live assistance and intermediaries, including guides, readers, and professional sign language interpreters, to facilitate accessibility to buildings and other facilities open to the public.

35. The Committee is concerned that the existing remote interpreting service for persons with hearing impairments in the area of social affairs and housing is only available between 8am and 3pm on weekdays, and only for a limited number of authorities, restricting their right to contact public authorities, particularly in case of emergencies, and to be included in society.

36. The Committee recommends that the Kingdom of Denmark take measures to ensure that persons with hearing impairments have access to remote interpreting 24 hours a day and to all relevant authorities.

Ghana (2024)

18. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The lack of implementation of laws, regulations and directives on accessibility to the built environment, the lack of compliance with the National Accessibility Standards and the National Building Code and that the concept of universal design is not enforced in domestic law;

(b) Article 60 of Law 715 of 2006 which establishes a ten-year moratorium for all public buildings to become accessible, 18 years after the expiration of the moratorium, inaccessible buildings are still being constructed and organizations of persons with disabilities are not involved in the evaluation of the implementation of the standards;

(c) Lack of consideration of housing for persons with disabilities in Act 715 or in the ongoing Affordable Housing Project and other ongoing housing plans;

(d) Physical, communication and information accessibility difficulties in public transport persists;

(e) Public information that reaches persons with disabilities is limited as it is not in accessible format such as Braille, Easy Read and in sign language.

19. Recalling its General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State Party:

(a) Implement and enforce the National Accessibility Standards and the National Building Code with the active involvement and in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(b) Enforce compliance with the Article 60 of Law 715 to ensure that inaccessible buildings do not continue to be constructed, ensure the active involvement and in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations and establish regulations to require construction professionals to comply with Act 715;

(c) Ensure the reform of Law 715, the Project Housing and plans ongoing housing to address the needs of persons with disabilities to accessible housing;

(d) Ensure compliant with existing laws on physical accessibility, communication and information accessibility in public transportation;

(e) Ensure that information on services provided to the public is also presented in accessible formats such as sign language, Braille and Easy Read, as well as other modes and means of communication.

Mauritius (2024)

17. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The buildings in the State party largely remain inaccessible, despite the 2022 amendment of the Building Control (Accessibility and Gender Compliance in Buildings) Regulations 2017 meant to facilitate access to buildings for persons with disabilities;

(b) There is a lack of information about the level of accessibility available across all islands of the State party and the level of public-private partnerships to ensure accessibility.

18. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Enforce the relevant laws, regulations and policies to ensure accessibility for persons with disabilities based on the principles of universal design and with the aim of eliminating accessibility barriers in all areas, and take measures to raise awareness in the construction industry;

(b) Take measures to ensure accessibility across all islands of the State party, with clear indicators to track progress, and promote public–private partnerships to expedite improvements in accessibility.

Netherlands (2024)

23. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The gaps still existing in ensuring accessibility to the physical environment, transportation, information, and communication for persons with disabilities, despite existing legislation, and the limited possibilities of legal enforcement of accessibility standards, particularly for existing buildings and goods and services;

(b) The slow integration of a 'universal design' approach in the State party's policies, including in municipal planning laws, and about insufficient accessibility requirements in public procurement laws and agreements;

(c) The delays in the full transposition of the European Accessibility Act (EAA) into national law, the lack of ambition to fully implement accessibility requirements for the built environment as well as the absence of mandatory monitoring of the accessibility progress and implementation both in the Residential Construction Decree and the Environment and Planning Act;

(d) The high number of inaccessible websites and apps of public sector bodies, despite the compulsory accessibility requirements, and the delays in the full implementation of the Web Accessibility Directive, as well as the reports on wrongful claims of full accessibility in accessibility declarations on government websites;

(e) The lack of digital accessibility and knowledge among private providers, particularly affecting persons with visual impairments.

24. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and Goal 9 as well as targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop and implement comprehensive measures to ensure full accessibility to the physical environment, transportation, information, and communication for persons with disabilities in both urban and rural areas;

(b) Expedite the integration of a 'universal design' standard in all accessibility policies, ensuring that environments, products and services are designed to be accessible and usable by everyone to the greatest extent possible without the need for adaptation or specialized design.

(c) Fully transpose the European Accessibility Act into national law swiftly, exceeding its minimum requirements; render the accessibility requirements for the built environment mandatory and incorporate these standards in national public procurement; establish an overarching enforcement and monitoring mechanism for accessibility of public spaces and the built environment through the Environment and Planning Act and the Residential Construction Decree;

(d) Take immediate steps to ensure that all websites and apps of public sector bodies are fully accessible and in compliance with national legislation and the European Standard EN 301 549; establish a stringent verification for accessibility declarations on government websites and process and regular monitoring to prevent wrongful claims of full accessibility;

(e) Enhance digital accessibility and knowledge among private providers, namely health care providers, by implementing targeted training programs, providing technical support, and offering incentives to adopt inclusive design practices.

Ukraine (2024)

18. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Insufficient enforcement and monitoring of laws and regulations on disability, particularly on physical access, accessible information, and communication technology and transportation, including in remote and rural areas;

(b) The fact that persons with disabilities are not systematically and meaningfully consulted in the review, implementation and evaluation of laws, policies, and regulations related to accessibility;

(c) The lack of a comprehensive strategy with specific goals, timelines, and indicators for the implementation of the “National Strategy for Barrier-Free Environment in Ukraine up to 2030”.

19. Recalling the General comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and its General comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility the Committee recommends that the State party in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Establish mechanisms to monitor and evaluate its accessibility policies, imposing effective sanctions on those who fail to apply accessibility and inclusivity standards;

(b) Set forth mechanisms to ensure that persons with disabilities participate, including through public hearings and consultations, in the review, implementation and evaluation of laws, policies, and regulations related to accessibility;

(c) Ensure that the “National Strategy for Barrier-Free Environment in Ukraine up to 2030” mainstreams disability;

Azerbaijan (2024)

19. The Committee remains concerned about:

(a) The fact that many existing buildings and structures do not comply with construction and accessibility standards, although accessibility of social infrastructure facilities and vehicles is clearly enshrined in the law;

(b) The limited information about accessibility of public transportation at the municipal level and in rural areas and that to date, only in the central districts of Baku, low-floor buses equipped with special equipment for the transportation of persons with disabilities have been launched;

(c) The number of employees of bodies and organizations that provide services to persons with disabilities who have received instructions or training;

(d) The non-implementation of the decree issued by the Baku Transport Agency allocating 5 per cent of parking spaces for vehicles of persons with disabilities, and the absence of special signs, either on the ground and along the road;

(e) The limited information about progress in developing information in accessible formats, including in Braille, Easy Read and Sign Language.

20. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility the Committee reiterates its previous Concluding Observations and recommendations (CRPD/C/CO/AZE/1, para. 23) and recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop a comprehensive accessibility plan in accordance with article 9 of the Convention, which sets benchmarks for the removal of existing barriers, and promote universal design for all buildings;

(b) Enforce legislation concerning accessibility, including in the Urban Planning Construction Code, through sanctions for lack of compliance and expedite the adoption of the 'Rules for creating necessary living and working conditions for people with disabilities in designing of buildings and facilities' ensuring that it address all areas of accessibility;

(c) Ensure public and private budgetary allocations with the goal of purchasing low floor buses with accessibility equipment and of improving the necessary adaptation of taxis, metro and trains, servicing municipalities and rural areas across the country;

- (d) Provide stakeholders in the public and private sectors at the national, regional and municipal level, with periodic training on accessibility and universal design, and involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and provision of that training;
- (e) Raise awareness about accessibility measures among the public and ensure implementation of the allocation of parking spaces for vehicles of persons with disabilities, including by developing specific signs, both on the ground and along the road;
- (f) Ensure that printed and electronic information and communication, as well as information and communication technologies and services that are provided or are open to the public, are fully accessible to persons with disabilities and provide Braille, Easy Read and professional sign language interpreters.

Bahrain (2024)¹

18. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of comprehensive accessibility standards and the inadequacy of the standards contained in the Guidance Manual for Construction in Urban Heritage Areas.
- (b) The absence of legal mechanisms and weak oversight mechanisms to ensure the application of the inclusive design standards contained in the guideline; (c) The lack of standards to ensure accessibility.
- (c) Lack of standards to ensure the accessibility of information, especially in websites and digital platforms.

19. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party should:

- (a) Include provisions in national legislation to ensure mandatory accessibility in public and private facilities.
- (b) Develop comprehensive accessibility standards in close consultation and with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organisations.
- (c) Provide accessibility in websites and digital platforms.

Costa Rica (2024)

17. El Comité toma nota de las aclaraciones por escrito proporcionadas por el Estado parte al concluir el diálogo constructivo. Sin embargo, le preocupa:

- a) El mal estado de aceras, la inaccesibilidad en espacios públicos, particularmente en las sedes judiciales, la falta de adecuación de las unidades de transporte, en particular en las regiones Chorotega, Norte, Brunca, Atlántica, Pacífico Central y región Sur del país, y de los autobuses para estudiantes con discapacidad sin los estándares de accesibilidad;
- b) La falta de información sobre los avances en la elaboración de normas y la implementación de planes de accesibilidad al entorno físico, del transporte, la información y comunicación en todos los formatos accesibles, en consonancia con la Convención;
- c) La inexistencia de comisiones de accesibilidad en todos los municipios del Estado parte;
- d) Los retrasos en la implementación de la Ley N. 7600 con respecto a la garantía de accesibilidad plena en el transporte público;

18. Recordando su observación general núm. 2 (2014) y las metas 11.2 y 11.7 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

- a) Colocar los recursos financieros necesarios para la reparación inmediata de las aceras en mal estado, la incorporación de unidades de transporte accesibles, así como para asegurar la accesibilidad en todos los espacios públicos, en particular en las regiones Chorotega, Norte, Brunca, Atlántica, Pacífico Central y región Sur del país;
- b) Asegurar la implementación de normas sobre accesibilidad al entorno físico y del transporte, así como de los planes de accesibilidad, con metas y plazos medibles, e imponer sanciones por incumplimiento;

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

- c) Crear comisiones de accesibilidad en los municipios en los que aún no exista y garantizar que todas las comisiones incluyan personas con discapacidad;
- d) Establecer metas y plazos concretos para lograr la plena accesibilidad de los transportes públicos, incluso en áreas remotas y zonas rurales;

Kazakhstan (2024)

19. The Committee appreciates the State party's information about requirements for universal design, accessibility standards in public transport, and the development of accessible housing. The Committee notes, however, with concern:

- (a) The narrow scope of accessibility requirements, emphasizing physical measures such as ramps, and the limited information about accessibility of schools, housing, medical facilities, shops, cultural and religious places, and other facilities open to the public, particularly at the community level and in rural areas;
- (b) The lack of a legally binding mechanisms to implement accessibility standards in buildings and on premises in the public and private sector;
- (c) The lack of unified standards on access to information for persons with disabilities, including information and communications technologies, and of standards rendering media and websites accessible.

20. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Develop and implement legally binding standards on accessibility of the built environment, including commercial buildings and housing, of public transportation, and of information and communication, including electronic technologies, and establish processes grounded in law to implement them expeditiously and reliably, including on the community level and in rural areas. Include in the standards of information and communication electronic technologies, measures to provide live assistance and intermediaries, guides, readers and professional sign language interpreters, Easy Read, Braille, captioning, augmentative means and modes of communication, and tactile communication;
- (b) Provide training on accessibility requirements to all organizations and personnel tasked with implementing them, in the public and in the private sector;
- (c) Provide effective remedies in case of noncompliance with accessibility requirements, including with regard to public and private actors, and ensure effective monitoring of the implementation of accessibility requirements.

Nicaragua (2024)

16. El Comité nota con preocupación:

- a) La falta de una legislación específica sobre accesibilidad, los pocos avances en la "Norma Técnica Obligatoria Nicaragüense de Accesibilidad" y que esta no contenga acciones específicas para el acceso a la información y comunicación, así como la falta de asignación de recursos suficientes y la falta de supervisión y sanciones por incumplimiento;
- b) Que, al hablar de accesibilidad, el Estado parte menciona en su reporte solamente modificaciones arquitectónicas principalmente en instituciones de salud, reforzando con esto el enfoque médico hacia la discapacidad;
- c) La limitada accesibilidad física, a la información y la comunicación en el transporte, tanto urbano como rural;
- d) Que las personas sordas sigan contando con poco acceso a la información y a la comunicación.

17. Recordando su observación general núm. 2 (2014), relativa a la accesibilidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Promulgar, en estrecha consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, una ley nacional sobre accesibilidad al medio físico, a la información y comunicación, que cuenta con metas a corto, y mediano plazo, un presupuesto específico y mecanismos de seguimiento de su aplicación y sanciones efectivas ante su incumplimiento;

b) Asegurar el cumplimiento efectivo de la norma técnica de accesibilidad actualizada, NTON 12011-13, agregándole los aspectos de acceso a la comunicación e información, incluso a través del uso de herramientas tecnológicas, en todos los ámbitos, desde la educación hasta el acceso a servicios públicos y culturales;

c) Implementar de inmediato acciones para resolver la accesibilidad al transporte, tanto en el aspecto físico, como en la información y comunicación, en coordinación estrecha con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad;

d) Atender de manera urgente la accesibilidad a la comunicación y a la información de las personas sordas, incluso mediante el uso de contenido multimedia accesible, la inclusión de subtítulos y la interpretación en lengua de señas.

Sweden (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the legal provisions and rules on accessibility in all areas of life, including in public procurement, are not evenly enforced across the State party's territory, and about the lack of measures to mainstream universal design in all domains of life, including in public transport, buildings, facilities, public spaces, services, as well as physical, informational, communicative and digital access, in research and in new technology such as artificial intelligence;

(b) The lack of institutionalized mechanism for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of accessibility standards and the lack of complaint procedures against violations of such standards available for persons with disabilities and their representative organizations;

(c) About barriers faced by persons with disabilities with regard to digital accessibility and electronic identification.

22. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) and referring to the pledges in the coalition agreement of 2021, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that national, regional and municipal legislation provide for accessibility in all areas of life, including in public procurement, in accordance with article 9 of the Convention, that they are effectively and evenly enforced, and promote universal design in the development of standards and guidelines;

(b) Establish institutionalized mechanisms for close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their organizations in the processes for the development of accessibility standards, as well as complaint mechanisms for persons with disabilities and their representative organizations to lodge complaints in cases of violation of their right to accessibility;

(c) Ensure digital accessibility and electronic identification for persons with disabilities.

Zambia (2024)

17. The Committee notes with concern that persons with disabilities face barriers to access to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in particular in rural areas. It is also concerned at the lack of measures taken to implement the relevant national legislation on accessibility standards, as well as the lack of sufficient budgetary allocations and the lack of mandatory accessibility criteria in public procurement at all levels.

18. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

(a) Adopt and implement an action plan and strategy to identify existing barriers to accessibility in the private and public sectors and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove those barriers to ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in both urban and rural areas;

(b) Ensure full participation, consultation and involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations in the development and implementation of accessibility standards and regulations, strengthen the implementation of the existing national legislation on accessibility, and the standards adopted by the Bureau of Standards and consider carrying out accessibility needs assessment of existing infrastructure with a time-bound plan to make them accessible;

(c) Take the necessary legislative and policy measures in the public and private sectors, such as the development of public procurement criteria, to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including regarding information and communications technologies and systems, and ensure effective sanctions measures for non-compliance.

Andorra (2023)

19. The Committee notes the amendments of the Accessibility Act of 1995 to improve standards. However, it is concerned about:

(a) The delay in updating the current Accessibility Act and the absence of a comprehensive national strategy covering physical accessibility, information, transportation and communication accessibility, and facilities and services open or provided to the public;

(b) The limited capacity of the Commission for the Promotion of Accessibility and the insufficient monitoring of accessibility regulations, in particular, concerning transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology.

20. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Expedite the preparation and approval of the new Accessibility Act in conformity with the Convention, and adopt a national strategy and accessibility plan to facilitate access for all persons with disabilities to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology and systems and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, with time frames and benchmarks, and sufficient resources for their implementation;

(b) Strengthen the capacity of the Commission for the Promotion of Accessibility and establish a monitoring, reporting and evaluation system that evaluates the implementation of the national accessibility standards and universal design, ensuring redress and sanctions in cases of non-compliance.

Austria (2023)

26. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The State party's narrow implementation of the European Accessibility Act, omitting important areas such as health services, educational goods and services, household appliances, the built environment, and the corresponding widespread inaccessibility of services by public and private entities, including services listed in article 2 European Accessibility Act;

(b) The regression in the standards for accessible construction of housing, compounding the already substantial obstacles for guaranteeing independent living;

(c) The lack of binding timeframes for rendering public transport by coach and bus accessible.

27. Recalling its General Comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Enact legislation and set standards for the accessibility of services, goods and infrastructure not covered by the European Accessibility Act, and implement them, including by allocating sufficient budgets;
- (b) Substantially improve accessibility requirements for housing, as set by ÖNORM B 1600, and refrain from following guidelines issued by the “Österreichisches Institut für Bautechnik (OIB)” lowering the standards of ÖNORM B 1600;
- (c) Set standards, binding time frames for rendering public transport not covered by European standards accessible and allocate sufficient budgets.

Germany (2023)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The narrow implementation of the European Accessibility Act, confined to the mandatory obligations, omitting important areas such as health services, educational goods and services, household appliances, the built environment, and the corresponding widespread inaccessibility of services rendered by public and private entities, including services listed in article 2 of the Act;
- (b) The insufficient quantity of affordable accessible housing in the State party and often inadequate building standards set by the Länder;
- (c) The widespread lack of accessibility of public transport;
- (d) The lack of institutionalized mechanisms for the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of accessibility standards.

20. Recalling general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and referring to the pledges in the Coalition Agreement of 2021, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend its legislation, at the Federal and Länder levels, to render all services by public and private entities provided to the public accessible, and intensify the implementation of existing provisions on accessibility;
- (b) Expand and strengthen legal requirements of accessible housing for public and private use, for new and existing buildings, permitting the building of new inaccessible housing only in narrowly defined exceptional circumstances, setting legally binding time-bound goals to be achieved for buildings owned or used by public entities, and incorporate existing accessibility standards such as DIN 18040-3 into law.
- (c) Enact and implement legal requirements guaranteeing the autonomous use of public transport by persons with disabilities, particularly with the following measures:
 - (i) Implement the forthcoming revised Regulation (EU) No. 1300/2014 (TSI-PRM) expeditiously and with a clear plan and timeframe, and, should the forthcoming revised regulation not guarantee autonomous access to stations and rail services, enact and implement national requirements to this end;
 - (ii) Enact and implement specific indicators, targets and monitoring mechanisms for the forthcoming revised Regulation (EU) 1315/2013 (TEN-T), ensuring autonomous accessibility of the respective new infrastructure;
 - (iii) Implement the existing requirements for accessibility of commuter rail services, bus, coach and trolley bus services, cable car services, and passenger navigation services expeditiously and with a clear plan; enact and implement requirements for the autonomous use of public transport in these areas;
 - (iv) Should the forthcoming revised Regulation (EC) No. 1107/2006 (PRM-Regulation) on air travel not cover the following guarantees, enact and implement provisions prohibiting the denial of boarding because of a disability and the requirement of an accompanying person, and guarantee full compensation for damaged or lost mobility equipment or assistance animals;
- (d) Establish institutionalized mechanisms for close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their organizations in the processes for the development of accessibility standards.

Israel (2023)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The delayed process of adopting accessibility provisions and the impact on access to transportation, public housing, university campuses, schools, broadcast services;
- (b) The legal exceptions to accessibility on the basis of undue burden, financial capacity, historical or ecological considerations, and the number of persons served by services open to the public as described in the State party report (CRPD/C/ISR/1, para. 19);
- (c) The limited measures to ensure accessibility of information, including information and communication technologies;
- (d) The lack of resources and support provided to local authorities in Arab communities to be able to comply with accessibility requirements.

20. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Adopt a national accessibility plan based on the principle of universal design with the aim of eliminating accessibility barriers in all areas, including in transportation, roads, sidewalks, public housing, university campuses, schools, broadcast services and information and communication technologies and within reasonable time frames;
- (b) Review and update regulations and standards that pre-date the Convention and consider the withdrawal of Section 19M of the Equal Rights Law concerning exceptions for compliance with accessibility standards in buildings and services open to the public;
- (c) Require public and private service providers to provide accessible printed and electronic information and communication, in line with international standards and adopt measures to ensure that persons with disabilities have affordable access to accessible information and communication technologies;
- (d) Prepare an assessment of accessibility requirements across local municipalities, including Arab communities and allocate human, technical and financial resources necessary to ensure accessibility across all municipalities.

Malawi (2023)

7. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) That the review of several pieces of legislation and policies, in particular the Disability Act (Cap 33:06) and repeal of the Handicapped Persons Act of 1971 leading to a new piece of comprehensive legislation is yet to be completed, and that changes introduced to the almost enacted bill have been made without consulting or involving persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) That women and girls with disabilities were not explicitly mentioned in the Disability Act of 2012 and that the almost enacted Persons with Disabilities Bill of 2023 continues this omission;
- (c) The delay and lack of priority of disability-related policies and programmes to implement the Convention;
- (d) Discriminatory language and portrayal of persons with disabilities, including derogatory terminology in laws, among public authorities, and in the media.

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Complete as expeditiously as possible its review of the Disability Act enacted in 2012 and repeal of the Handicapped Persons Act of 1971 and ensure that the new piece of legislation, and legislation in all areas of law, including family relations, mental health, property and personal security are brought into line with the Convention and the human rights model of disability;
- (b) Ensure involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities throughout the process of enacting the new disability Bill and ensure that proposals made by persons with disabilities are appropriately considered and addressed at all stages of the process;

(c)Ensure that the new legislation being developed to replace the Disability Act of 2012 recognizes the rights of women and girls with disabilities, and incorporates measures to address marginalization and discrimination against them. The State party should address proposals submitted by women with disabilities through their representative organizations in their position paper presented to the Ministry of Justice;

(d)Provide information to organizations of persons with disabilities concerning fund allocation for the Disability Trust fund, ensure appropriate financial resources to it, and set up criteria for distribution of resources encompassing all persons with disabilities regardless of type of impairment. The State party should gather disaggregated information about budget allocations, and ensure periodic and accessible accountability procedures;

(e)Review and amend legislation and public policies with the aim to withdraw derogatory terminology concerning persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with albinism, and ensure that training for public officials includes modules on women and girls with disabilities, gender equality, and persons with disabilities in marginalized situations.

9.The Committee observes with concern:

(a)The lack of periodic consultations with persons with disabilities at the National Advisory and Coordinating Committee on Disability Issues, and the underrepresentation of organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and women with disabilities in consultative processes, particularly in discussion of sectorial strategies and programmes;

(b)That organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities lack financial resources to conduct advocacy and participate in public consultations.

10.Recalling its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Adopt a national legislative framework for close consultations with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, ensuring mechanisms for the participation of organizations of women and girls with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and children with disabilities in the implementation, enforcement and funding of programmes aimed at supporting the rights of persons with disabilities;

(b)Support organizations of persons with intellectual disabilities, and persons with psychosocial disabilities, including by providing independent and self-managed funding and encourage their access to foreign funding as part of international cooperation and development aid and cover expenses for participation in consultations.

Mauritania (2023)

17.The Committee notes with concern:

(a)That persons with disabilities face barriers to access to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in particular in rural areas;

(b)The insufficient services provided by the sign language interpreter system, and the limited availability of speech-to-text technologies.

18.Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and target 11.2 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, as well as target 11.7 to provide universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, in particular for women and children, older persons and persons with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Promote active participation and close consultation and dialogue with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in assessing and enforcing the implementation of accessibility laws, such as Decree No. 1467 (2006) and Decree No. 169 (2017), and the technical standards adopted, and impose sanctions for non-compliance;
- (b) Promote awareness-raising and training for professionals in the construction sectors about the accessibility barriers faced by persons with disabilities and the adequate measures to remove them;
- (c) Establish accessibility standards for information and communication media and technologies, as well as websites, in line with universal standards and include digital accessibility in the various accessibility and digital transformation action plans;
- (d) Review the public procurement of transport facilities and ensure that the specifications include accessibility criteria;
- (e) Carry out regular national accessibility studies and surveys, in close consultation with and with the active participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, to assess the situation of accessibility, including by identifying gaps and making recommendations to overcome them.

Mongolia (2023)

5. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) The Constitution of Mongolia does not contain a provision of discrimination on the ground of disability, and that disability-related legislation and policies have not yet been fully brought in line with the Convention;
- (b) The medical model of disability is still prevalent in the State party, in its legislation, regulations and practices, which has a negative impact by preventing the inclusion of persons with disabilities in society and limiting their access to appropriate services and support;
- (c) The lack of awareness among policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, about the rights recognized in the Convention.

6. The Committee recommend the State Party:

- (a) Amend its Constitution in order to include a provision of discrimination on the ground of disability in line with Convention, and harmonize all national legislation and policies with the Convention, recognizing persons with disabilities as rights holders on an equal basis with others, including by ensuring close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in particular women with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Review all national legislation and policies and harmonize them with the Convention, including by transposing into domestic law the human rights model of disability and by establishing systems aimed at the assessment of legal and environmental barriers to persons with disabilities and the provision of the necessary support and assistance to promote the independent living of persons with disabilities and their full social inclusion;
- (c) With the close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, provide capacity-building programmes for public policymakers, judges, prosecutors, teachers, and medical, health and other professionals working with persons with disabilities, on the rights of persons with disabilities and the obligations of the State party under the Convention.

7. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) About a lack of appropriate measures to ensure an effective coordination and operation of the National Council for the Protection of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities at all levels, and the General Authority for Development of Persons with Disabilities;
- (b) The lack of budget allocation and the insufficient cross sectoral collaboration and measures taken to implement the National program on Rights, Participation and Development for Persons with Disabilities (2018-2022).

8. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a)Take necessary mechanisms to ensure an effective function, coordination and operation of the National Council for the Protection of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities at all levels, including the national and local branch councils, and the General Authority for Development of Persons with Disabilities, in harmonizing the national legislations with the Convention and to ensure inter-sectoral synergy, promotion of human rights of persons with disabilities and increase the meaningful participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, in particular women with disabilities, in the decision-making;
(b)Adopt the necessary measures to increase budget allocation and ensure an effective cross sectoral collaboration to implement the National program on Rights, participation and development for Persons with Disabilities (2018-2022) and ensure monitoring of its implementation, and extend the National Programme beyond 2022.

9.The Committee is concerned about the insufficient participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including diverse organizations of persons with disabilities, in decision-making processes concerning disability-related laws, policies and programmes.

10.The Committee recalls its general comment No. 7 (2018) on the participation of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the implementation and monitoring of the Convention, and recommends that the State party strengthen and implement mechanisms for the effective involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in public decision-making processes, and ensure close consultation participation and that meaningful participation consultations are held with the whole range of organizations of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, intersex persons with disabilities, women with disabilities, refugees and migrants with disabilities, autistic persons, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender persons with disabilities and persons with disabilities requiring higher levels of support.

Paraguay (2023)

19.El Comité nota con preocupación:

a)Los pocos avances en la Ley No. 4934/13 sobre accesibilidad, incluyendo a la información y comunicación, en la implementación del Plan Estratégico 2016-2018 creado por el Consejo Consultivo y de las Normas Paraguayas de Accesibilidad al medio físico, así como la falta de asignación de recursos suficientes, la falta de supervisión y sanciones por incumplimiento;
b)Que los municipios no hayan integrado las normativas de accesibilidad a su cuerpo de legislación municipal, incumpliendo la Ley No. 4934/13 y la falta de información sobre las visitas de los evaluadores y certificadores; c)El incumplimiento de la Resolución N.º 62/14 que obliga a la incorporación de al menos 15% de autobuses accesibles en la flotilla y que dicha resolución es sólo válida para las empresas que operan en la capital y el área metropolitana; además preocupa que los choferes no cumplen con la obligación de asistir a los usuarios con discapacidad y no son sancionados por incumplimiento.

20.Recordando sus anteriores observaciones finales (CRPD/C/PRY/CO/1, párrafo 24), y su observación general núm. 2 (2014), relativa a la accesibilidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a)Actualizar el Plan Estratégico 2016-2018 para extenderlo a la fecha actual y para que abarque todas las jurisdicciones, con indicadores, recursos, mecanismos de evaluación, seguimiento y sanción, en consulta estrecha y con la participación activa de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan;
b)Garantizar que los municipios armonicen su legislación con la Ley N.º 4934/13 llevando la capacitación y la Guía de Accesibilidad Física a través de un Decreto del Ministerio de Economía y Finanzas que limite los recursos a aquellos municipios que no pidan el certificado de normalización antes y después de una construcción;

c)Asegurar que se cumpla y se expanda la Resolución N.º 62/14 para la incorporación de más buses accesibles en todo el territorio y facilitar programas de capacitación a los choferes y supervisión para que apoyen a los usuarios con discapacidad y establecer supervisiones frecuentes para sancionar el incumplimiento.

Angola (2023)

15.The Committee notes with concern:

- (a)The lack of a comprehensive accessibility strategy covering physical accessibility, information and communication accessibility, and digital access;
- (b)That despite the enactment of the Accessibility Law in 2016, its level of implementation remains low;
- (c)The lack of access, at an affordable cost, to information and communication technologies for persons with disabilities;
- (d)The barriers in the digital work environment preventing access for persons with disabilities to information and communication, including on government websites, in particular for persons who are blind or visually impaired.

16.The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and recommends that the State party:

- (a)Adopt a national accessibility strategy that is in line with the Convention and strengthen its mechanisms for monitoring accessibility at the municipal and rural areas;
- (b)Ensure the effective implementation of the Accessibility Law and ensure that educational, health and paramedical institutions, as well as other buildings in urban and rural areas comply with accessibility standards;
- (c)Ensure universal access to digital technology for all persons with disabilities, in particular for persons who are blind or visually impaired, both in educational facilities and at home;
- (d)Ensure greater access to information and communication for persons with disabilities in both the public and private sectors, including greater access to information on government websites.

Argentina (2023)

19.El Comité toma nota de las medidas adoptadas para mejorar la accesibilidad a la información y a las comunicaciones, los entornos y las páginas web. No obstante, le preocupa:

- a)Los pocos avances para garantizar la accesibilidad en áreas fundamentales como la educación, la salud, el acceso a la justicia y el transporte público, así como las brechas en materia normativa y de implementación de medidas de accesibilidad entre la Ciudad de Buenos Aires y las demás jurisdicciones, incluyendo las áreas rurales;
- b)La falta de accesibilidad del sistema de gestión de documentación electrónica y de la plataforma de trámites a distancia para personas con discapacidad visual, así como de la aplicación móvil Mi Argentina para personas con discapacidad visual y personas con discapacidad intelectual;
- c)El Código de Edificación de la Ciudad de Buenos Aires (2021) habilita la construcción de viviendas de menores dimensiones sin considerar los requerimientos de las personas con discapacidad;
- d)El limitado alcance de la formación de arquitectos, diseñadores e ingenieros en relación con las normas de accesibilidad y el diseño universal.

20.Recordando su observación general núm. 2 (2014), relativa a la accesibilidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a)Poner en marcha un plan nacional de accesibilidad, que abarque todas las jurisdicciones, con indicadores, recursos y mecanismos de evaluación, seguimiento y sanción, en estrecha consulta con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, para armonizar las normas de diseño universal y garantizar la accesibilidad, entre otros, de los edificios, el transporte, la información y la comunicación, así como otras instalaciones y servicios abiertos al público o de uso público;

b)Garantizar la plena accesibilidad del sistema de gestión de documentación electrónica, de la plataforma de trámites a distancia, y de la aplicación móvil Mi Argentina, y sancionar el incumplimiento de la Ley 26.653 de accesibilidad de la información de las páginas web;

c)Asegurar que el Código de Edificación de la Ciudad de Buenos Aires establezca dimensiones adecuadas para las viviendas, considerando los requerimientos de las personas con discapacidad; d)Facilitar programas de capacitación sobre el diseño universal y las normas de accesibilidad para profesionales en arquitectura, diseño e ingeniería.

Georgia (2023)

19.The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The absence of comprehensive national legislation about accessibility and of a national accessibility plan encompassing all areas of life;

(b) Accessibility barriers to the physical environment including to kindergartens, health care premises, court buildings, bank offices, notary bureaus and public transport, including inter-municipality transport;

(c) A lack of monitoring of accessibility regulations, particularly concerning the Technical Regulations –National Accessibility Standards;

(d) An absence of strategies and public investments to address accessibility barriers concerning information and communication, including communication technologies and systems.

20. With reference to the Committee’s general comment on article 9 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Draft and enact legislation on accessibility, including the draft Law on Web and Mobile Application Accessibility, and a national strategy and accessibility plan to implement accessibility requirements in all areas of life, with timeframes and benchmarks based on best international practices, and provide for sufficient funding for their implementation;

(b) Increase annual funding for accessibility projects to improve accessibility of public spaces, including outdoor areas, and new and existing buildings, especially those used for educational, health, administrative, and cultural purposes;

(c) Conduct a national assessment about all areas of accessibility encompassed by the Convention, providing for short and long-term measures to be taken by public and private stakeholders;

(d) Establish a monitoring, reporting and evaluation system that comprehensively evaluates the implementation of the National Accessibility Standards and its related projects, ensuring redress and sanctions for non-compliance;

(e) Ensure human, technical and financial resources, to provide for sign language interpretation, subtitles, captioning, audio description, Braille, Easy Read in all spheres of life.

Peru (2023)

18.El Comité nota con preocupación que:

a)El actual marco jurídico del Estado parte sobre la accesibilidad para las personas con discapacidad no contiene normas jurídicas vinculantes que aborden todos los ámbitos contemplados en la Convención, como el transporte, incluidos los respectivos procesos, procedimientos de denuncia y mecanismos de evaluación, en consulta con las personas con discapacidad, incluidas las de baja prevalencia como las personas de talla baja, y sus organizaciones;

b)El transporte público no sea totalmente accesible, incluidas las estaciones de abordaje para las personas con discapacidad, situación que se agrava fuera de la ciudad de Lima, y que los objetivos para hacer accesible el transporte público no garantizan el acceso de las personas con discapacidad en igualdad de condiciones con las demás;

c) Los gobiernos regionales y locales no utilizan el 0,5% de su presupuesto asignado a la accesibilidad.

19. Recordando su observación general núm. 2 (2014) relativa a la accesibilidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

a) Promulgue legislación vinculante para garantizar la accesibilidad en todos los ámbitos contemplados en el artículo 9 de la Convención y garantice la aplicación directa de dichas leyes en todos los niveles de gobierno. Además, que establezca competencias y procedimientos para aplicar las leyes de accesibilidad, instituir mecanismos de denuncia y supervisión, y definir recursos eficaces en caso de incumplimiento, así como mecanismos de consulta permanente con organizaciones y personas con discapacidad, incluidas las de baja prevalencia, como las personas de talla baja, para garantizar el Diseño Universal;

b) Adopte medidas concretas para garantizar que todos los proyectos de infraestructura de transporte y las licitaciones para la asignación de rutas de transporte público incluyan requisitos de accesibilidad, y para aumentar el número de flotas de transporte público y estaciones de embarque accesibles para las personas con discapacidad. Así mismo, que garantice que toda nueva infraestructura, incluyendo la nueva línea del metro de Lima, sea diseñada bajo el principio de Diseño Universal;

c) Cree mecanismos, incluyendo de apoyo técnico, para garantizar que los gobiernos regionales y municipales utilicen el presupuesto asignado a la mejora de la accesibilidad.

Togo (2023)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That persons with disabilities face barriers to access to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in particular in rural areas;

(b) The lack of measures taken to implement the relevant national legislation on accessibility standards;

(c) The ineffectiveness of policies regarding accessibility in public administration, the lack of sufficient budgetary allocations and the lack of mandatory accessibility criteria in public procurement at all levels.

18. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to Sustainable Development Goals 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

(a) Adopt and implement an action plan and strategy to identify existing barriers to accessibility in the private and public sectors and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove those barriers to ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in both urban and rural areas;

(b) Implement the existing national legislation on accessibility, in particular the Interministerial Order No. 1728/MUHCV/MSPC/MATDCL of 21 December 2017 on accessibility standards for buildings for persons with reduced mobility;

(c) Take the necessary legislative and policy measures in the public and private sectors, such as the development of public procurement criteria, to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including regarding information and communications technologies and systems, and ensure effective sanctions measures for non-compliance.

Tunisia (2023)

15. The Committee is concerned that the majority of public buildings do not meet the national accessibility standards of the State party, as set out in the normative specifications of the annex to Decree 2006 - No. 1467. It is also concerned that access to information for persons with hearing and visual disabilities as well as intellectual disabilities has been described as inadequate by these groups. websites of the majority of public and private institutions are not accessible and do not meet digital accessibility standards. Although public transport is free or at reduced rates for people with disabilities, it is not accessible for all types of disabilities. The Committee is also concerned that no statistics or studies on accessibility to assess and monitor the situation of accessibility have been carried out.

16. The Committee, recalling its General Comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility and SDG's Goal 11.2 on providing access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all as well as 11.7 on provide universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, particularly for women and children, older persons and persons with disabilities recommends that the State party:

- (a) Put in place strong measures to ensure the enforcement of the provisions of accessibility laws, in particular the Decree 2006 - No. 1467, and impose sanctions for non-compliance;
- (b) Promote awareness-raising and training for the professional in the construction sectors about the accessibility barriers faced by persons with disabilities and the adequate measures to remove them;
- (c) Promote active participation and close consultation and dialogue with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in assessing the implementation of accessibility laws such as Decree 2006 - No. 1467 and the technical standards adopted;
- (d) Establish accessibility standards for information and communication media and technologies as well as websites in line with universal standards and include digital accessibility in the various accessibility and digital transformation action plans;
- (e) Review public procurement of transport facilities and ensure that the specifications include accessibility criteria;
- (f) Carry out regular national accessibility studies and surveys in close consultation and active participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations to assess the situation of accessibility, including by identifying gaps and making recommendations to overcome them.

Bangladesh (2022)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a concrete implementation strategy to further the guidelines adopted on accessibility to public buildings, the physical environment and information and communication technologies and systems, public and private websites and to other facilities and services open or provided to the public, including lack of guidelines in the transportation sector, particularly in the rural areas, and especially for refugees;
- (b) The lack of inclusion of representative organisations of persons with disabilities in the design, implementation and monitoring of accessibility standards in relation to the built environment, transportation, information and communications technologies and systems, and other facilities and services open to the public.

20. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and Goals 9 and 11 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Develop and implement a national strategy for accessibility, to facilitate access for persons with disabilities to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology and systems, and other facilities and services, open or provided to the public, in both urban and rural areas, including for refugees;
- (b) Ensure effective implementation of existing policies and rules, particularly the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act of 2013, and develop a monitoring mechanism to measure progress, with the full and effective participation and consultation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities.

China (2022)

22. The Committee notes that the State is preparing the adoption of a Law on Construction of Barrier-Free Environments. It is concerned that organizations of persons with disabilities have not been sufficiently involved in developing a comprehensive accessibility strategy to embed universal design standards across all domains including public transport, buildings and facilities, new and existing housing, public spaces, services, construction, information, communication, and digital access, as well as to the natural environment, including green spaces open to the public, in all rural and urban areas.

23. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Seek to consult persons with various impairments and their representative organizations before adopting the Law on Construction of Barrier-Free Environments, with a view to establish inclusive legally binding accessibility standards;
- (b) Ensure that the Law on Construction of Barrier-Free Environments incorporates and is based on the principle of universal design, as required by the Convention (art. 4, para. 1 (f));
- (c) Seek to involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the evaluating of accessibility of roads, public buildings, public transport facilities, residential buildings and residential areas throughout the country, in accordance with the Regulations on Construction of Barrier-Free Environments (2012).

Indonesia (2022)

18. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of comprehensive national accessibility legislation and strategy across all levels of government, includes accessibility standards, monitoring and enforcement mechanisms and that covers all areas, including the physical and built environment, housing, transportation, information and communications technology;
- (b) The lack of implementation of Regulation 42/2020 concerning Accessibility to Settlements, Public Services, and Protection from Disasters for Persons with Disabilities;
- (c) The use for public information of the SIBI sign language, which is not well understood by the Deaf community, many of whom prefer and use BISINDO.

19. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt comprehensive national accessibility legislation and strategy across all levels of government that includes accessibility standards, monitoring and enforcement mechanisms in all areas, including the physical and built environment, housing, transportation, information and communications technology, and facilities and services open to the public, with necessary budget allocations;
- (b) Ensure the effective implementation of regulation 42/2020 on Accessibility to Settlements, Public Services, and Protection from Disasters for Persons with Disabilities.
- (c) Closely consult and actively involve the Indonesian Deaf community to strengthen the accessibility of public information through the use of preferred sign languages, including BISINDO.

Japan (2022)

21. The Committee notes with concern the:

- (a) Limited strategies to harmonize accessibility obligations at all levels to embed universal design standards and to encompass all domains;
- (b) Little progress in ensuring the accessibility to information and the accessibility of schools, public transportation, apartments, and small-scale shops, in particular, outside major cities;

(c) Insufficient awareness-raising and training for architects, designers, and engineers concerning accessibility standards and the universal design under the Convention.

22. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Implement an action plan and accessibility strategy, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to harmonize accessibility across all levels of government, to embed universal design standards, and ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communication, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, including those outside major cities;

(b) Enhance continuous capacity-building programmes on universal design and accessibility standards for architects, designers, engineers, and programmers.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

16. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) Persons with disabilities face barriers to access to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in particular, in rural areas;

(b) The relevant legislation does not include clear accessibility standards, the reference to the universal design and sanctions for non-compliance;

(c) The Lao sign language is yet to be officially recognized, which limits social interactions for persons who are deaf.

17. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and the Sustainable Development Goal 11, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement an action plan and strategy to identify existing barriers to accessibility and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove those barriers to ensure the accessibility of, inter alia, buildings, transportation, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public, in both urban and rural areas;

(b) Revise relevant legislation, particularly the Law No.05 on Construction, the Law No.24 on Land Transportation, and the Law No.01 on Media to establish and mainstream accessibility standards and the universal design, a system of sanctions for non-compliance, and complaints mechanisms for persons with disabilities;

(c) Officially recognize Lao sign language and develop training programmes and employment incentives to strengthen interpreter and trainer capacity.

New Zealand (2022)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The slow progress in implementing the Building Act 2004, which prolongs inaccessibility to public buildings and the progressive upgrade of existing buildings;

(b) Continued barriers experienced by persons with disabilities in accessing the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technologies and systems;

(c) The lack of affordable and accessible housing and the modest target of 15% accessibility for new build public housing;

(d) Reports from organisations of persons with disabilities that the Accessibility for New Zealanders Bill, currently before Parliament does not contain enforcement mechanisms, may not cover private entities or local government, lacks standard-setting and decision-making bodies, and lacks obligations to make tangible changes within fixed time frames.

16. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Expedite implementation of the Building Act 2004 and commit to targets and timeframes for implementation measures;

- (b) Adopt and implement an accessibility strategy underpinned by the principle of universal design to eliminate existing access barriers, in close consultation with and active involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities, including underrepresented groups, such as persons of small stature;
- (c) Adopt the principle of universal design and commit to a target of 100% accessibility for new build public housing and introduce mandatory accessibility requirements for new housing constructed by the private sector;
- (d) Establish a co-design and co-production process with organisations of persons with disabilities to address concerns about the Accessibility for New Zealanders Bill, following release of the Select Committee's report.

Republic of Korea (2022)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That despite the recent amendment to the Act on the Guarantee of Convenience Promotion of Persons with Disabilities, Senior Citizens, Pregnant Women and Nursing Mothers, there are still some exemptions related to the size of buildings and year of construction, which continues to prevent full accessibility of public buildings;
- (b) The lack of comprehensive and effective measures to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including the lack of information and communication technologies and systems;
- (c) That the amendment of the Act on Promotion of the Transportation Convenience of Mobility Disadvantaged Persons to improve special needs of transportation in January 2022 excludes inter-city buses, express buses and wide-area buses and the insufficient provision of information, including bus number and route as well as on-board guidance, impeding the use of buses by persons with visual and hearing disabilities;
- (d) The barriers in the digital work environment that prevent access for persons with disabilities to information and communication, as the obligation to guarantee accessibility is limited to national and public institutions.

20. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to Sustainable Development Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Amend the national legislation to include mandatory rules in ensuring accessibility of all buildings and structures, regardless of their size, capacity and date of construction;
- (b) Adopt a national accessibility strategy that includes all areas described in the Convention, and strengthen its mechanisms for monitoring accessibility at the municipal level, including by establishing a system of sanctions for non-compliance;
- (c) Increase the number of wheelchair-accessible buses in the public transportation system, in particular with regard to inter-city buses, express buses and wide-area buses, and ensure information including bus numbers and routes as well as on-board guidance are in accessible formats; improve the environment and public space to make them safe and accessible for persons with different disabilities;
- (d) Ensure universal access to digital technology for all persons with disabilities, in particular for persons with visual impairments, both in educational facilities and at home, in public and private websites and mobile applications.

Singapore (2022)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of comprehensive and effective measures, including legislation, to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including the lack of a comprehensive accessibility strategy covering all areas, in particular physical access, access to public transportation, accessible information and communications technologies, and other access to information technologies;
- (b) The insufficient services provided by the Sign Language Interpreter system, and the limited availability of speech to text technologies.

18. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national accessibility strategy, with concrete timeframes, that includes all areas covered by the Convention, including public transportation, and among others, the use of guide dogs and other service animals, and ensure the allocation of sufficient resources, and mechanisms for monitoring and redress;

(b) Adopt legislation, regulations, policies and programmes to ensure accessibility and affordability of Sign Language Interpreting services, speech to text technologies and other information technologies.

Hungary (2022)

18. The Committee notes with concern the lack of:

(a) A comprehensive strategy at the national level for developing accessible built environments, public services, public transportation, information and communication in the State party, particularly in rural areas and small towns;

(b) Progress in implementing the accessibility of built environments, public services, including automated teller machines (ATMs) for persons with visual impairment, public transportation, information and communication for persons with disabilities and the removal of accessibility deadlines by amending the Act on Passenger Transport services in 2013.

19. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) and recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive national strategy and implementation plan with clear time frames and adequate budget allocations for developing accessibility for built environments, public services, public transportation, information and communication in the State party to ensure the equalization of opportunities for persons with disabilities across the State party;

(b) Review its regulation in the areas of built environments, public services, public transportation, information and communication, including the regulations on public procurement, and establish mandatory requirements and timelines for ensuring accessibility for persons with disabilities, enforcement of such regulations, penalties for non-compliance and mechanisms for independent monitoring of the implementation of accessibility;

(c) Ensure that accessibility standards take into consideration Directive (EU) 2016/2102 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 October 2016 on the accessibility of the websites and mobile applications of public sector bodies, and the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.0 standard for all public websites;

(d) Complete the process of transposing Directive (EU) 2019/882 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2019 on the accessibility requirements for products and services and the European Electronic Communications Code (Directive (EU) 2018/1972) into national legislation and regulations.

Jamaica (2022)

18. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive accessibility strategy covering all areas, in particular physical access, accessible information and communications technology, and other digital access;

(b) That despite the enactment of the Building Act, 2018, in January 2019, the level of its implementation is low, and that many educational, health and paramedical institutions constructed prior to 2019 are not compliant with the Building Code;

(c) That persons with disabilities in rural areas face greater obstacles in gaining access to public transportation and built environments, as there are only a few operational wheelchair-accessible buses, which operate only in the capital and in the immediate environment within specified hours, and that there are open manholes, broken bridges and excavations left unprotected, which result in individual accidents to persons with physical and visual disabilities;

(d) The barriers in the digital work environment that prevent access for persons with disabilities to information and communication, including on government websites, in particular for persons with vision impairments.

19. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national accessibility strategy that includes all areas described in the Convention, and strengthen its mechanisms for monitoring accessibility at the municipal level, including by establishing a system of sanctions for non-compliance;

(b) Ensure the effective implementation of the Building Act, 2018, and bring educational, health and paramedical institutions, as well as other buildings in urban and rural areas, into line with accessibility standards;

(c) Increase the number of wheelchair-accessible buses in the public transportation system and extend these services to long-distance and rural areas' transportation needs, and improve the environment and public space in urban and rural areas to make them safe and accessible for persons with different disabilities;

(d) Ensure universal access to digital technology for all persons with disabilities, in particular for persons with visual impairments, both in educational facilities and at home.

Mexico (2022)

27. The Committee notes with concern that the State party's current legal framework on accessibility for persons with disabilities does not contain binding legal rules addressing all areas covered by article 9 of the Convention, including the respective processes, complaints procedures and evaluation mechanisms.

28. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the existing General Law for the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities on its compatibility with the Convention and on its application in practice;

(b) Enact binding laws guaranteeing accessibility in all areas covered by article 9 of the Convention, in keeping with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, ensuring direct application of such laws at all levels of government;

(c) Establish competences and procedures to implement accessibility laws, institute complaints and monitoring mechanisms, and define effective remedies in situations of non-compliance;

(d) Revise the existing national accessibility plan in light of the new laws on accessibility, and render it applicable to the physical environment, transport, information and communications, including information and communications systems and technologies, and other services and facilities open or provided to the public, in particular for persons with disabilities living in remote, rural and indigenous communities.

Switzerland (2022)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of a comprehensive accessibility strategy to harmonize accessibility obligations at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels, to embed universal design standards and to encompass all domains, including public transport, buildings, facilities, public spaces, services, and physical, information, communications and digital access, and including at the design and construction phases;

(b) The narrow scope of the Disability Discrimination Act, which sets a lower standard than that required under Convention obligations and which does not cover facilities and services provided to the public by private entities;

(c) That the increased application of European Union standards has established less stringent requirements for accessibility than those under the Convention, reducing the capacity of persons with disabilities and organizations of persons with disabilities to advocate the higher standard required under Convention obligations.

20. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt an accessibility strategy, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to harmonize accessibility across all levels of government, to embed universal design standards and to ensure access to all domains;
- (b) Amend the Disability Discrimination Act to extend its scope to cover all buildings irrespective of the need for renovation, all residential buildings regardless of the number of residential units, and all facilities and services that are open or provided to the public by private entities;
- (c) Address the inconsistency between European Union accessibility standards, Swiss legislation on the equality of persons with disabilities and the State party's obligations under the Convention.

Venezuela (2022)

16. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive plan to ensure the accessibility of the physical environment, information, communications and transport;
- (b) The lack of information on compliance with the regulations for the protection of the rights of users of telecommunications services, which imposes a duty on telecommunications service operators to make available terminal equipment suited to the needs of persons with different types of disabilities;
- (c) The lack of data on the interpretation services provided by the National Accessible Communication Service to persons who are hard of hearing and deaf persons in public and private institutions;
- (d) The lack of physical accessibility and accessible communications and information, and the lack of trained staff at hospitals to provide care during the pandemic.

17. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and bearing in mind Sustainable Development Goal 11, the Committee recommends that the State party, in coordination with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Develop a policy and comprehensive, broad-based plan for ensuring the accessibility of the physical environment, including public transport services in cities and provinces;
- (b) Ensure the accessibility of the physical environment, information and communications in facilities open to the public, with pamphlets being provided in accessible modes and means of communication such as Braille and other alternative modes and means;
- (c) Monitor compliance with the regulations for the protection of the rights of users of telecommunications services and gather statistics on persons with disabilities who use those services;
- (d) Monitor public services, such as health-care and judicial services, where interpretation in Venezuelan sign language is provided and introduce a registration system with disaggregated data on the number of sign language interpreters available, with the aim of ensuring the accessibility of information and public services;
- (e) Collect and publish data on how persons with disabilities coped with the pandemic in terms of accessibility of the physical environment, information and communications.

Djibouti (2021)

15. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The absence of regulations on accessibility standards and compliance mechanisms to ensure the effective implementation of the provisions on accessibility under Act No. 207/AN/17/7ème L (2018), including complaint mechanisms available for persons with disabilities;
- (b) The lack of a comprehensive accessibility strategy covering all areas, such as information and communications technology, to the physical environment, and public transport, including in rural areas, particularly for deaf persons, persons who are deafblind, persons with visual impairment, persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities and persons with other sensory impairments.

16. The Committee recalls its general comment No. 2 (2014) and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt legislative measures to set up accessibility standards, to establish a system of sanctions for non-compliance, and complaint mechanisms for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Adopt a national accessibility strategy that includes all areas described in the Convention, while paying particular attention to accessibility in rural areas and for deaf persons, persons who are deafblind, persons with visual impairment, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with other sensory impairments.

France (2021)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) Legislation reducing thresholds concerning accessibility requirements of apartments in new housing facilities, and disparities in implementing accessibility requirements across regions in the State party;
- (b) The limited implementation of accessibility and universal design in public services hindering participation in the community of persons with disabilities, with particular impacts on autistic persons, persons with sensory impairments, with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities;
- (c) The delay in implementing plans on accessibility standards including the Programmed Accessibility Agenda, accessibility in public transportation, information and communications, and in facilities and services open or provided to the public;
- (d) Limited measures to facilitate movement and orientation in all facilities open to the public;
- (e) Barriers in the digital work environment preventing access for persons with disabilities to information and communication, including on government websites, and in relation to software.

20. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Repeal provisions of the Law 2008-1021 of 23 November 2018 reducing the threshold of accessibility requirements for new housing and adopt a strategy, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to ensure that accessibility standards for housing and accommodation are progressively enhanced with the aim of full accessibility;
- (b) Adopt accessibility strategies, and raise awareness about the concept of universal design for persons with disabilities;
- (c) Reinforce mechanisms to make public transportation accessible to persons with disabilities;
- (d) Ensure that accessibility plans include measures to provide in buildings and other facilities open to the public signage in Braille and in Easy Read as well as forms of live assistance and intermediaries, silent hours in public spaces, and others;
- (e) Ensure universal access to digital technology for all persons with disabilities, including to business software and revise Decree No. 2019-768 of 2019 on accessibility to information for blind persons at government, public and private websites;
- (f) Apply the Directive (EU) 2016/2102 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 October 2016 on the accessibility of the websites and mobile applications of public sector bodies, and the WCAG 2.0 standard at all public websites;
- (g) Harmonise national legislation and regulations with the Directive 2019/882 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2019 on the accessibility requirements for products and services, and the European Electronic Communications Code (Directive (EU) 2018/1972).

Estonia (2021)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive accessibility strategy encompassing physical, information and communication, and digital access, and that mechanisms for monitoring accessibility have yet to be reinforced at the municipal level;
- (b) That persons with disabilities in rural areas face greater obstacles to access public transportation and physical environments;
- (c) The absence of accessibility standards within the e-Estonia system, and the underdeveloped accessibility to information communication and other services for persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, and persons with vision impairments.

20. The Committee recalls its General comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility, and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national accessibility strategy that includes all areas described in the Convention, and strengthen its monitoring mechanisms of accessibility at the municipal level, establishing a system of sanctions for non-compliance;
- (b) Review the Public Transport Act 2015, and the Building Code of 2015, and bring them into line with the Convention, recognising accessibility standards in urban and rural areas;
- (c) Ensure the accessibility standards within the e-Estonia system taking into consideration the Directive (EU) 2016/2102 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 October 2016 on the accessibility of the websites and mobile applications of public sector bodies, and the WCAG 2.1 standard at all public websites;
- (d) Take measures to transpose the Directive 2019/882 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2019 on the accessibility requirements for products and services, and the European Electronic Communications Code (Directive (EU) 2018/1972) into national legislation and regulations.

Albania (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a comprehensive national action plan for the implementation of the Law on Inclusion and Accessibility for Persons with Disabilities and of the Council of Ministers' Decision No. 1074 (2015) on removing environmental and infrastructure barriers in providing public services;
- (b) The lack of data on the application of administrative and financial sanctions in place for non-compliance with accessibility standards, including for older buildings open to the public and information and communications services in rural areas;
- (c) The lack of information on the accessibility of electronic media, including social media.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the link between article 9 of the Convention and targets 9 (c), 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals and, in line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive action plan for the implementation of the Law on Inclusion and Accessibility for Persons with Disabilities with sufficient budget, an efficient monitoring mechanism and benchmarks for the removal of barriers, with enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance;
- (b) Put in place a mechanism to monitor compliance with accessibility standards in all areas covered by the Convention and impose sanctions in the event of non-compliance;
- (c) Provide comprehensive information on the accessibility of electronic media, with special attention to social media.

Australia (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a national framework for reporting compliance with the Disability Standards for Accessible Public Transport 2002, the Disability (Access to Premises – Buildings) Standards 2010 and the National Standards for Disability Services;
- (b) The significant proportion of the existing built environment that is inaccessible and the lack of mandated national access requirements for housing in the National Construction Code;

(c) The lack of comprehensive and effective measures to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including the lack of information and communications technologies and systems.

18. In the light of article 9 of the Convention and its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party, taking into account goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

(a) Establish and enact a national framework for reporting compliance with the Disability Standards for Accessible Public Transport 2002, the Disability (Access to Premises – Buildings) Standards 2010 and the National Standards for Disability Services;

(b) Amend the federal law by including mandatory rules on access for all new and extensively modified housing;

(c) Take the necessary legislative and policy measures, such as the development of public procurement criteria, to implement the full range of accessibility obligations under the Convention, including regarding information and communications technologies and systems, and ensure effective sanctions measures for non-compliance.

Ecuador (2019)

21. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a comprehensive plan for ensuring the accessibility of the physical environment and of information and communications and at the shortage of sign language interpreters for deaf persons.

22. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to Sustainable Development Goal 11, the Committee recommends that, in coordination with organizations of persons with disabilities, the State party:

(a) Establish a comprehensive policy and plan for ensuring the accessibility of the physical environment and transportation services, including interprovincial, intercantonal and inter-parish public transportation services;

(b) Ensure the accessibility of information and communications in facilities open to the public, with pamphlets being provided in accessible modes and means of communication such as Braille and other alternative modes and means;

(c) Introduce a registration system that will provide disaggregated data on the number of available sign language interpreters in order to ensure the accessibility of public information and services.

El Salvador (2019)

18. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The insufficient measures taken to improve physical accessibility and communication accessibility, including transport, resulting in a lack of accessible public transport in remote and rural areas, including the lack of training for transport operators and the limited sanctions for violations;

(b) The fact that the Salvadoran Technical Standard on Accessibility to the Physical Environment, Urbanism and Architecture is not aligned with the principles of the Convention.

19. With reference to its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and taking into account Sustainable Development Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7, the Committee recommends that the State party establish a comprehensive monitoring mechanism to ensure strict implementation of accessibility standards and recommends that sanctions for non-compliance be increased and enforced. The Committee also recommends that the State party:

(a) Increase the number of transport routes that are accessible to persons with disabilities, particularly in rural areas, and allocate adequate budget for equipping public transport with accessibility features;

(b) Develop, promulgate, and monitor the implementation of minimum standards and guidelines regarding the accessibility of facilities and services that are open to or provided to the public.

Greece (2019)

13. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The slow progress being made in the implementation of the existing legal framework on accessibility, including the delay in the adoption of the relevant secondary legislation, in particular the secondary legislation provided for under Laws No. 4030/2011 and No. 4067/2012 in relation to the accessibility study for the issuance of building permits and the adaptation of existing buildings. It is also concerned about the delay in the establishment of the necessary implementing mechanisms, in particular the accessibility committees provided for in Law No. 4495/2017;

(b) The absence of a national strategy on the implementation of accessibility standards governing the built environment, goods and services, including transport, media and information and communication services, in both the public and the private sectors.

14. The Committee recommends that the State party, in light of its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and taking into account Sustainable Development Goals 9 and 11, particularly targets 11.2 and 11.7:

(a) Adopt the necessary legal and other measures, including the adoption of regulations and a comprehensive national action plan and long-term strategy on accessibility with sufficient budget allocations, concrete deadlines and an effective monitoring mechanism, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(b) Take the necessary measures to guarantee the accessibility of the built environment, goods and services, particularly the transport system in urban and rural areas, public and social media, and provide training to service providers, engineers, architects and urban planners on accessibility issues faced by persons with disabilities.

India (2019)

20. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of coordinated and cross-sectoral work and ownership of the Accessible India Campaign under the Ministry of Social Justice and Empowerment's flagship scheme;

(b) The lack of accessibility requirements for goods and services in the Bureau of Indian Standards Act and under the "broader obligations principle" in the Manual for Procurement of Goods 2017 of the Ministry of Finance;

(c) The slow progress in improving the accessibility of transportation, the physical environment and information and communications technology, including government websites.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and taking account of Sustainable Development Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Goals:

(a) Implement sections 40–46 of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2016, on accessibility, by taking a cross-sectoral approach, requiring all ministries engaged in public infrastructure to address accessibility in all planning and implementation processes with an appropriate time frame, budget, monitoring and evaluation, in order to improve accessibility, especially in rural areas, and involving persons with disabilities through their representative organizations at every stage;

(b) Ensure that accessibility requirements are included in public procurement legislation and policies for goods and services, especially in the Bureau of Indian Standards Act at the national and state levels;

(c) Enforce the accessibility of transportation services, including transport concessions and licences, and accessibility of information, and accelerate the implementation of the barrier-free buildings.

Iraq (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Persons with disabilities face challenges in accessing public buildings, facilities, transportation and information and communications services owing to the lack of sign language interpretation, augmentative and alternative communication devices, and Easy

Read, Braille, sign language and other accessible means, modes and formats of communication, such as pictograms;

(b) There is limited information on the measures taken by the State party to ensure that reconstruction programmes are developed in line with the concept of universal design, such as the national reconstruction and development framework for 2018–2027, which addresses the recovery and reconstruction of governorates affected by terrorist and military operations (Baghdad, Nineveh, Saladin, Al-Anbar, Kirkuk, Diyala, Babil), as well as the reconstruction and development of governorates indirectly affected by such operations.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Develop a strategy for the provision of live assistance, mobile applications, professional and certified sign language interpreters and other means to facilitate access to public buildings, facilities, transportation and information and communications services, and take measures to implement relevant national legislation and standards, including article 15 (7) and (8) of Law No. 38 (2013) and the accessibility requirements identified by the General Secretariat of the Council of Ministers (CRPD/C/IRQ/1, para. 49), including by establishing complaints procedures and monitoring mechanisms;

(b) Ensure, in cooperation with persons with disabilities, that accessibility requirements and the universal design concept are incorporated in all legislation, policies and programmes related to post-conflict reconstruction.

Myanmar (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about accessibility barriers faced by persons with disabilities to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communication technology and systems, and other facilities and services open or provided to the public. It is also concerned about the lack of:

(a) Provisions on accessibility in the legislation, including in the Procurement Law and that the National Building Code has not been adopted yet;

(b) Accessibility standards and guidelines, and effective measures to enforce them, including policy measures and sanction for non-compliance.

20. Recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Take the necessary measures, including amending the Procurement Law and expediting the adoption of the National Building Code, to facilitate access for persons with disabilities to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications, including information and communications technology and systems, and other facilities and services, open or provided to the public, in both urban and rural areas;

(b) Adopt accessibility standards and a comprehensive national action plan on their implementation, with sufficient technical and financial resources, indicators to assess improvements in accessibility and sanctions for non-compliance.

Cuba (2019)

21. The Committee takes note of the initiatives to improve accessibility to public buildings and spaces as per resolution No. 81/2016 of the Ministry of Construction and Decree No. 327/2014. It is concerned, however, about the limited nature of the initiatives to ensure accessibility of the physical environment and to improve access to information and communication. The Committee is further concerned about the lack of information on measures taken to ensure that the State party's public procurement procedures incorporate accessibility standards and that public procurement processes are accessible.

22. In line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement an action plan and strategy to identify existing barriers to accessibility and provide the human, technical and financial resources necessary to remove the barriers to make transportation, public buildings and facilities, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, accessible in both urban and rural areas. The plan should provide for audits, specific time frames, penalties for non-compliance, the allocation of sufficient resources and the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in all stages of its implementation, in particular the monitoring of compliance;

(b) Ensure that their public procurement procedures are accessible;

(c) Take into consideration article 9 of the Convention and general comment No. 2 in its efforts to meet Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Niger (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of legislation that sets out accessibility standards, including mechanisms to ensure compliance, and the absence of financial resources to support the provision of accessible standards;

(b) The absence of a national action plan on accessibility and the lack of consultation and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in developing and monitoring an accessibility plan;

(c) The absence of information about accessibility to public transport particularly in rural areas, and the lack of accessibility to information and communication technologies, for persons with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Develop a national action plan and policies for accessibility and services for persons with disabilities, and a road map for removing existing barriers with a concrete time frame and a monitoring mechanism, paying particular attention to communication and technology-related requirements of persons with disabilities, and persons with sensory impairments and psychosocial or intellectual disabilities; and ensure the allocation of sufficient resources, sanctions for non-compliance, and obligatory accessibility standards for public procurement;

(b) Ensure consultation and participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the development of any accessibility plan;

(c) Adhere to article 9 of the Convention in the implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 11, targets 11.2 and 11.7 to provide access to safe, affordable, inclusive, accessible and sustainable transport systems, and public spaces for persons with disabilities.

Norway (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Planning and Building Act does not set deadlines and budget for implementing the universal design principle for existing buildings and modes of transport, and that the action plan for universal design 2015-2019 also lacks clear deadlines for implementation;

(b) The Equality and Anti-Discrimination Act does not contain any specific provisions on access to goods, services and information and does not cover workplaces that are not accessed by the general public;

(c) There is no law governing universal access to goods, services, information and communication services to persons with disabilities who cannot use self-service options and that the regulations on the universal design of Information and Communications Technologies (ICT) are limited to enterprises aimed at the general public;

(d) There are no specific and effective measures and sanctions for the implementation of all legislation that provides for the access to the built environment and information, communications, including information and communication technology and systems.

16. In the light of article 9 of the Convention and its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in its efforts to meet goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.17 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Remove all existing barriers of access to buildings and services open or provided to public, such as transportation and information and communication services, including by promoting universal design of goods and services, Braille, captioning, sign language interpretation, Easy Read and other alternative formats and modes of communication to foster full accessibility for persons with disabilities;
- (b) Introduce regulations that set deadlines and concrete measures with earmarked funding for universal design of the existing buildings, prioritizing primary and secondary schools, and modes of transport in the Action Plan for Universal Design 2015-2019;
- (c) Take legislative and practical measures to guarantee access to goods, services, information and communication services to persons with disabilities who cannot use self-service options and ensure that the obligation of the universal design principle applies also to workplaces that are not accessed by the general public;
- (d) Revise the regulation on the universal design of ICT by requiring all enterprises that serve the general public to provide individualized services to persons with disabilities when required so as to ensure accessibility of information and communications, including ICTs;
- (e) Take specific and effective measures and sanctions for the implementation of all legislation that provides for the access to the built environment and information and communications, including information and communication technology and systems.

Rwanda (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Accessibility to the physical environment, transportation, services, information and communications is limited, especially in rural areas;
- (b) The provisions of the Building Code of 2015 on ensuring accessibility standards are not being fully implemented.

18. With reference to the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and in view of targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a comprehensive plan of action and standards on accessibility, including accessibility of the physical environment, transportation, services, information and communications;
- (b) Strengthen the implementation of the Building Code of 2015 and its accessibility standards, and the monitoring thereof by, inter alia, training civil servants in charge of monitoring, and introducing sanctions for non-compliance, in relation to accessibility, including through universal design and public procurement.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a mechanism in charge of monitoring the implementation of the Universal Access Programme, and of provisions regarding accessibility in the Disability Care Act, as well as at the lack of consultation of persons with disabilities in their implementation. It also expresses concern at the lack of sanctions imposed for non-compliance with accessibility provisions.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, establish a mechanism in charge of monitoring the implementation of its Universal Access Programme and grant this mechanism:

- (a) The responsibility to inspect the accessibility of public buildings, facilities, transportation as well as information and communication services, in close consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations;
- (b) The capacity to refer cases of non-compliance to the judiciary.
- (c) The ability to ensure meaningful consultation of persons with disabilities, including in the implementation of legislation and policies regarding accessibility.

Senegal (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of information, including statistical data on the accessibility of public and private buildings since the adoption of legislative measures, including on construction projects rejected due to non-compliance with accessibility standards, complaints received for non-compliance, sanctions imposed, and the complaint mechanisms available to persons with disabilities;

(b) The absence of a national action plan on accessibility for persons with disabilities, covering all areas including information and communication technologies, including online bank platforms, public transport, especially in rural areas and particularly for persons with sensory impairments and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Adopt measures to increase the availability of information and statistical data on the accessibility of public and private buildings open to the public, including the number of projects rejected due to non-compliance with accessibility standards, the number of complaints received for non-compliance, sanctions imposed as well as the means of recourse available to persons with disabilities to file complaints against about non-compliance with building standards;

(b) Develop, adopt and implement legislation and policies on accessibility of facilities and services for persons with disabilities, including introducing accessibility standards in public procurement, paying particular attention to persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, allocating sufficient resources, and providing effective sanctions for non-compliance;

(c) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organisations are involved and meaningfully consulted and can monitor the development of any accessibility plan;

(d) Pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 9.c, 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, with a view to providing access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable information and communication technology, transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, and universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, particularly for persons with disabilities.

Spain (2019)

16. The Committee is concerned that currently only the 0.6% of buildings in the State party are accessible, despite Spain's commitment to fulfil universal accessibility by the end of 2017. The Committee is concerned that measures taken to ensure universal accessibility, particularly for private buildings, have been insufficient or not effective. In particular the Committee is concerned about:

(a) The ineffectiveness of policies regarding accessibility in public administration, the absence of sufficient budget allocations and lack of mandatory accessibility criteria in public procurement at all levels;

(b) The lack of progress made in implementing accessibility measures for persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, blind, deaf, persons with autism or with dwarfism.

17. With reference to the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party take all legislative and budgetary measures to ensure accessibility in all areas, including private open to the public and public buildings and services, such as transportation, information and communication across the country. The Committee further recommends that the State party ensure that places open to the public have signage and information in Braille and in Easy Read, and that live assistance and intermediaries, including guides, readers and professional sign-language interpreters are provided to facilitate accessibility of buildings and public services, particularly for all persons with sensory or intellectual impairments. In particular, the Committee recommends that State party:

- (a) Ensure that all laws and measures related to public administration and procurement include the requirement for accessibility for persons with disabilities, including through universal design;
- (b) Establish monitoring mechanisms with the involvement of organisations of persons with disabilities to ensure that accessibility standards are met, as well as relevant sanctions for non-compliance with accessibility standards are enforced.

Türkiye (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The limited standards and legislation on accessibility and the reported lack of progress to meet the deadlines set by the law of the National Plan of Action on Accessibility;
- (b) The lack of publicly available, comparable, reliable and comprehensible data on financial sanctions and fines for non-compliance of accessibility standards, in electronic mass media, e-government services and banking services;
- (c) The reports that the Accessibility Monitoring and Audit Commissions are not fulfilling their legal obligations and the sanctions imposed by these commissions are not applied.

20. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive accessibility roadmap based on detailed data, which sets benchmarks for the removal of existing barriers, and promotes universal design for built environment, public services, such as transportation, information, and communication. It also recommends that the State party allocate sufficient resources for the monitoring of the implementation of accessibility standards with an updated national database throughout all provinces and local governments, including establishing enforceable and effective dissuasive sanctions for non-compliance.

Vanuatu (2019)

18. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Buildings are still not accessible for persons with disabilities despite the adoption of the National Building Code (2013);
- (b) There is the lack of accessible transportation;
- (c) The access to information and technology for persons with disabilities is still limited;
- (d) Persons with disabilities do not have adequate access to remedy;
- (e) There is no legal sanction for non-compliance with accessibility standards and guidelines, including infrastructural projects by foreign investment.

19. With reference to its general comment No.2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party take into account links between article 9 of the Convention and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, and that it:

- (a) Allocate sufficient human and financial resources for the implementation of the National Building Code (2013);
- (b) Ensure that accessible public transport is available for persons with disabilities throughout the State party;
- (c) Enforce the Information and Communication Technology Policy (2012) to provide access to information and technology for persons with disabilities;
- (d) Develop and promote the use of all accessible formats such as sign language, captioning, Braille and Easy Read, and adopt capacity-building programmes for translators and/or interpreters of such formats of communication;
- (e) Establish a mechanism to monitor compliance with article 9 of the Convention, provide remedy for persons with disabilities and introduce sanction in case of the non-compliance, including infrastructural projects by foreign investment.

Algeria (2018)

20. The Committee is concerned that existing legislation on physical accessibility is not monitored and implemented due to a lack of resources. It is also concerned about the absence of legislation to facilitate access to persons with disabilities other than persons with reduced mobility, to the physical environment, to transportation, to information and communications, including information and communications technologies and systems, and to other facilities and services open or provided to the public, both in urban and in rural areas.

21. Recalling its General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Introduce legislation and an accessibility policy to promote access to all persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, to the physical environment, to transportation, to information and communications, including information and communications technologies and systems, and to other facilities and services open or provided to the public, both in urban and in rural areas;

(b) Allocate the necessary resources to monitor its implementation;

(c) Be guided by article 9 of the Convention in the implementation of targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, paying special attention to persons with disabilities, and to provide universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, particularly for persons with disabilities.

Bulgaria (2018)

23. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) State party's legislation that is not fully in compliance with the provisions of article 9 of the Convention;

(b) Physical barriers that persons with disabilities face, particularly in remote and rural areas;

(c) Public transport and services opened to the public that are still not fully accessible for persons with disabilities;

(d) Information and communication including ICT services are still not accessible to persons with disabilities, and specially persons with sensory and persons with intellectual disabilities.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's General comment No. 2 (2014) Accessibility:

(a) Fully harmonize its' legislation with provisions of article 9 of the Convention;

(b) Intensify its efforts to work towards the creation of barrier- free environment across the State Party, including in remote and rural areas;

(c) Expedite the process to provide fully accessible public transport and services opened to the public, including through application of monitoring mechanisms in the private and public sector, sanctions and public procurement procedures;

(d) Intensify the efforts to ensure full accessibility of information and communication, including ICT to all persons with all types of impairments.

Malta (2018)

15. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Numerous public buildings and infrastructures remain inaccessible to persons with disabilities and are not in line with enforceable regulations, including the Development Control Design Policy Guidance and Standards of 2015; the "Access for All" Standards for the Built Environment issued by the Malta Consumer and Competition Affairs Authority (SM 3800) and Circular 2/14 of the Planning Authority;

(b) Public transport services are not always accessible to persons with disabilities and that there are no regulations prohibiting private transport services to discriminatorily charge clients with disabilities at a higher fare than clients without disabilities;

(c) There is a lack of accessible information and communications, and information and communications technology, for persons with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the link between article 9 of the Convention and targets 9 (c), 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals and, in line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Review the monitoring and enforcement mechanisms in place through the Planning Authority and the Test of Reasonableness Board of the Commission on the Rights of Persons with Disability to ensure that they have the means necessary to review construction plans and enforce national accessibility standards;

(b) Strengthen the enforcement mechanisms through Transport Malta to ensure that public and private service providers adhere to the 'concession agreements' between Transport Malta and local public bus transport operators, to the Taxi Services Regulations (SL 499.59) and to the "Access for All" Standards for the Built Environment issued by the Malta Consumer and Competition Affairs Authority (SM 3800);

(c) Ensure that information and communications, including information and communication technologies, are accessible to persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, and ensure that the law is strengthened, monitored and implemented;

(d) Empower persons with disabilities through their representative organizations to take part in the monitoring of the implementation of accessibility standards.

Philippines (2018)

20. The Committee is concerned that measures, such as the Batas Pambansa No. 344 also known as the Accessibility Law and the Republic Act No. 7277 do not include principles of accessibility through universal design as set forth in articles 2 and 9 of the Convention. It is also concerned about the absence of a national action plan for accessibility, that only city buses are required to comply with accessibility, and the fact that the current accessibility law does not include accessibility for all persons with disabilities. It is further concerned about the limited accessibility to modern jeepney.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by its General comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and involving the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Conduct review of its legislation and adopt a plan of action to develop accessibility to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications of all persons with disabilities. The State party should adhere to principle of universal design as laid down in article 2 of the Convention ensuring that the infrastructure, transportation, services, and technologies are designed for and usable by all people to the greatest extent possible, without the need for further adaptation or specialized design;

(b) Expand accessibility laws and guidelines to protect the accessibility of all persons with disabilities;

(c) Establish complaint procedures and monitoring of accessibility requirements concerning public and private services, facilities, and procurement procedures, ensuring the right of and resources for organizations of persons with disabilities to support complaint procedures and monitoring of accessibility;

(d) Strengthen technical and financial resources to ensure accessibility transportation beyond the available accessible seats in public buses;

(e) Increase the use of jeepney for all persons with disabilities;

(f) Put into consideration its obligations under article 9 of the Convention relevant to the Sustainable Development Goal 11, targets 11.2 and 11.7 to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems to persons with disabilities by adapting public transport, with special attention to the requirements of persons with disabilities;

(g) Adopt monitoring indicators to assess the improvement in accessibility.

Poland (2018)

15. The Committee is concerned about insufficient:

(a) Accessibility to buildings and public services such as transportation, information and communication for all persons with disabilities, especially in smaller urban or rural municipalities;

(b) Regulations providing for standards and obligations to implement the principles of universal design to buildings and public services, including regulations covering municipal housing construction, accessibility of ATM's and other self-service devices; it is also concerned that the Construction Law of 1995 contains few obligations to ensure accessibility for all persons with disabilities;

(c) Mechanisms to monitor the implementation of accessibility regulations and standards, and sanctions for non-compliance with accessibility requirements;

(d) Trainings on accessibility and universal design in the curricula of architectural, design and computer studies, including for the staff of responsible institutions.

16. With reference to the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take all measures to ensure accessibility in all areas, including buildings and public services such as transportation, information and communication services across the State Party;

(b) Update and enact regulations providing for standards and obligations to implement standards of universal design to products, environment, transportation, information and communication services, ATM's and other self-service devices, municipal housing to be used by all persons with disabilities across all State Party, including buildings built before 1995;

(c) Include the requirement for accessibility through universal design in the Public Procurement Law;

(d) Establish monitoring mechanisms that involve organisations of persons with disabilities to ensure that accessibility standards are respected in all determined areas, including in public investment projects, as well as relevant sanctions for non-compliance with accessibility standards;

(e) Foster mandatory training courses on accessibility and universal design in the curricula of architectural, design and computer studies, including for the staff of responsible institutions, including capacity-building of the local authorities responsible for monitoring implementation of accessibility standards.

South Africa (2018)

16. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The absence of laws enabling accessibility of persons with disabilities, and their inclusion, participation and meaningful consultation, through their representative organisations, in developing and monitoring an accessibility plan;

(b) The absence of a clear unified national strategy on accessibility for persons with disabilities, providing for such accessible facilities at banks, including online bank platforms for persons with disabilities, particularly those with sensory impairments and psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and including public transport in rural areas.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Adopt and implement legislation, a national strategy and policies on accessibility and services for persons with disabilities, paying particular attention to persons with sensory impairments and psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, allocate sufficient resources, provide effective sanctions for non-compliance, and introduce accessibility criteria in public procurement;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organisations are fully involved and meaningfully consulted on the development of any accessibility plan;

(c) Step up measures to enforce the National Building Regulations and Building Standards Act, monitor progress, and reinforce sanctions for lack of compliance with accessibility standards in public and private sector buildings.

North Macedonia (2018)

19. The Committee notes with concern that the State party's legislation provides for systematised and comprehensive approach to the right to physical access. However, it is concerned that:

- (a) There are no specific and effective measures and sanctions for the implementation of legislation that provides for the access to the built environment and the information, communication and technology systems;
- (b) The access to buildings, transport and public institutions and services remains insufficient outside of the capital, including lack of application of all international standards for accessibility at the international Airport;
- (c) The level of cooperation between the Government departments and agencies with organisations of persons with disabilities in regards to implementation and evaluation of accessibility standards is minimal;
- (d) The State party legislation does not provide systematic nor complete approach to accessibility of information and communication, including information and communication technologies and systems.

20. In the light of article 9 of the Convention and its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in its efforts to meet goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.17 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Review its legislation to provide for the mandatory application of accessibility standards in all areas, particularly regarding buildings, transport, other facilities and services open to the public, and information and communication technologies and systems, and for the strict application of sanctions to those who fail to apply them;
- (b) Include the accessibility standards as a requirement in all public procurement of services and construction and monitor the implementation;
- (c) Ensure that access to buildings, transport, information and communication technologies and systems and other facilities and services open to the public and public institutions and services is available on all the territory of the State party;
- (d) Speed up the adoption of the comprehensive national action plan on implementing the accessibility standards in close consultation with the organisations of people with disabilities, with clearly defined timeframes, monitoring and evaluation benchmarks.

Haiti (2018)

16. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The absence of a legislative framework to regulate accessibility of the built and physical environment and information and communications technologies;
- (b) The absence of a mechanism monitoring compliance of accessibility;
- (c) The absence of policies relating to accessibility targeting all persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, in accordance with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

- (a) Expedite the adoption of legislative measures to comply with article 9 of the Convention, including accessibility of the built environment, transport, buildings and facilities as well as information and communications technologies and provide for penalties in case of non-compliance;
- (b) Establish an appropriate entity to evaluate and monitor compliance with article 9;
- (c) Adopt and implement a comprehensive action plan on accessibility, including training on all the different dimensions of accessibility through universal design;
- (d) Take into account links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all and improving road safety and to provide universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces.

Nepal (2018)

17. The Committee is concerned that the State party's measures on accessibility are limited, as noted in the National Policy and the Plan of Action on Disability (2006), to persons with disabilities in urban and city environment thereby excluding all groups of persons with disabilities living in rural and remote rugged mountainous areas.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party in line with the Committee's General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Broaden its policy for accessibility to include all groups of persons with disabilities, including those living in rural and remote rugged mountainous areas;

(b) Strengthen measures, including public procurement to grant access by persons with disabilities to information and communications technologies, including by the provision of low-cost software and assistive devices for all persons with disabilities, including those living in rural areas;

(c) Strengthen its monitoring and enforcement mechanisms on accessibility to ensure that the National Policy and the Plan of Action on Disability (2006), the Right to Information Act, 2007, the new comprehensive Accessibility Guidelines (2013); the Thirteenth Plan (2013–2016) and the current Fourteenth Implementation Plan, are duly implemented.

Oman (2018)

19. The Committee notes the numerous initiatives in creating a barrier-free society. The Committee is, however, concerned about:

(a) The lack of information on the legislation setting out accessibility standards, and a complaint mechanism to enforce accessibility standards;

(b) The lack of information on monitoring and inspections of facilities to ensure accessibility, as well as information regarding compliance and sanctions;

(c) The absence of laws that ensure the accessibility of persons with disabilities, and their inclusion, participation and consultation, through their representative organisations, in developing and monitoring an accessibility plan of the State party;

(d) The composition and mandate of the Specialised Subcommittee to Address the Creation of a Barrier-Free Environment.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with General Comment No. 2 on Accessibility (2014):

(a) Adopt and implement legislation and policies for barrier-free facilities and services, including the Social Action Strategy, paying particular attention to communication-related requirements of persons with disabilities, with particular reference to persons with sensory impairments and psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, the allocation of sufficient resources, enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance, obligatory accessibility criteria for public procurement, and a road map for removing existing barriers based on detailed data with indicators, and a concrete time frame and a monitoring and enforcement mechanism;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organisations are fully involved and consulted on the development of any accessibility plan of the State party, including the Specialised Subcommittee for the Creation of a Barrier-Free Environment;

(c) Be guided by article 9 of the Convention in the implementation of Sustainable Development Goal 11, targets 11.2 and 11.7 to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, with special attention to persons with disabilities; and provide universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, particularly for persons with disabilities.

Russian Federation (2018)

19. The Committee notes with concern that in spite of the adoption of the State Accessible Environment Programme for 2011–2020, the creation of a barrier-free environment across the State Party, including in remote and rural areas, is "limited by the need to strike a balance between such conditions and the economic possibilities of society, in accordance with the principle of reasonable accommodation”, according to paragraph 25 of the State party’s written replies (CRPD/C/ RUS /Q/1/Add.1). The Committee is also concerned that the Programme does not provide accessibility for all types of impairments.

20. The Committee recommends that the State Party intensify its efforts to fully implement the State Accessible Environment Programme for 2011–2020, and work towards the creation of a barrier-free environment across the country, including in remote and rural areas, in line with the Committee’s General comment No. 2. It also recommends that the State party ensure that the Programme is implemented effectively and ensures accessibility to all types of impairments.

21. The Committee notes with concern that deaf persons face challenges in accessing emergency hotline 112 across the State Party, including in remote and rural areas.

22. The Committee recommends that the State Party ensure access to emergency hotline 112 across the State Party, including in remote and rural areas, especially for deaf persons.

23. The Committee notes with concern that persons with disabilities in some major cities face challenges in accessing parking spaces free of charge.

24. The Committee recommends that the State Party take appropriate measures to ensure that persons with disabilities can access to parking spaces free of charge.

25. The Committee also recommends the State party to be guided by article 9 of the Convention and the Committee’s General Comment No2 (2014) on accessibility in implementing targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Seychelles (2018)

14. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) Delays in the implementation of legislation about accessibility, such as the ‘Accessible Slovenia Strategy’ and the Act on equalisation of opportunities for persons with disabilities, as well as delays in implementing the minimum standards of accessibility of all goods and services available to the public and private services;

(b) The fact that numerous public buildings as well as services, including public transport remain inaccessible, especially in non-capital areas;

(c) The lack of implementation of digital accessibility and the lack of accessibility to information and communication technology products and services, as well as broadcasting services;

(d) The insufficient measures for ensuring accessibility of information and communication for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, despite the obligations contained in inter alia the European Directive on the accessibility of websites and mobile applications.

15. With reference to the Committee’s general comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that the ‘Accessible Slovenia Strategy’ and the Act on equalisation of opportunities for persons with disabilities are fully operational and effective; it further recommends adopting clear accessibility standards and measures to ensure sanctions for lack of compliance with accessibility standards;

(b) Develop the operational measures to implement accessibility of transport services, and accessibility to all buildings open to the public, increase budget allocations for such measures, especially in non-capital areas;

(c) Adopt a strategy to ensure accessibility in the public procurement policy and require private actors to adhere to accessibility policies;

(d) Ensure the full implementation of the European Directive on the accessibility of websites and mobile applications, especially in the education system;

(e) Ensure the promotion and availability of alternative and augmentative modes of communication and Easy Read information.

Slovenia (2018)

14. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) Delays in the implementation of legislation about accessibility, such as the 'Accessible Slovenia Strategy' and the Act on equalisation of opportunities for persons with disabilities, as well as delays in implementing the minimum standards of accessibility of all goods and services available to the public and private services;
- (b) The fact that numerous public buildings as well as services, including public transport remain inaccessible, especially in non-capital areas;
- (c) The lack of implementation of digital accessibility and the lack of accessibility to information and communication technology products and services, as well as broadcasting services;
- (d) The insufficient measures for ensuring accessibility of information and communication for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, despite the obligations contained in inter alia the European Directive on the accessibility of websites and mobile applications.

15. With reference to the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on Accessibility and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the 'Accessible Slovenia Strategy' and the Act on equalisation of opportunities for persons with disabilities are fully operational and effective; it further recommends adopting clear accessibility standards and measures to ensure sanctions for lack of compliance with accessibility standards;
- (b) Develop the operational measures to implement accessibility of transport services, and accessibility to all buildings open to the public, increase budget allocations for such measures, especially in non-capital areas;
- (c) Adopt a strategy to ensure accessibility in the public procurement policy and require private actors to adhere to accessibility policies;
- (d) Ensure the full implementation of the European Directive on the accessibility of websites and mobile applications, especially in the education system;
- (e) Ensure the promotion and availability of alternative and augmentative modes of communication and Easy Read information.

Sudan (2018)

19. The Committee notes that the State party introduced accessibility standards, through the Construction Code for newly constructed buildings and transport system, but is concerned that the Code is not legally binding. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of a plan and timeframe to extend accessibility standards to all areas with legally enforceable sanctions, monitoring mechanisms and removing existing barriers, both regarding infrastructure and access to information and technology.

20. In the light of article 9 of the Convention and its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in its efforts to meet goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.17 of the Sustainable Development Goals:

- (a) Review its legislation to provide for the mandatory application of accessibility standards in all areas, monitoring mechanisms and for sanctions to those who fail to apply them;
- (b) Develop in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities a comprehensive national accessibility action plan with timeframes, monitoring and evaluation benchmarks;
- (c) Expedite the availability of materials produced in Braille, Easy Read, audio and other accessible formats.

Latvia (2017)

16. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a comprehensive national legal, policy and strategic framework accompanied by the necessary monitoring mechanisms in the State party to ensure compliance with accessibility standards based on universal design that guarantee persons with disabilities access, on an equal basis with others, to all facilities and services open or provided to the public throughout the State party, including access to information, means of communication and transport.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt, in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, a comprehensive national accessibility action plan with time frames, indicators, and monitoring and evaluation benchmarks to effectively implement universal design standards in accessing the physical environment, transportation, information and means of communication, while imposing sanctions for noncompliance;

(b) Pay attention to the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and to the link between article 9 of the Convention, and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Luxembourg (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The legal framework on accessibility is not in conformity with the obligations under the Convention and that accessibility guidelines and standards are not mandatory;

(b) Public transport services, including accessible transport services catering to persons with disabilities, are insufficient;

(c) There is a lack of accessible information and communications for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the link between article 9 of the Convention and targets 9 (c), 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals and, in line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

(a) Introduce legislation and policy measures on accessibility in line with the Convention, with appropriate enforcement mechanisms, including public and private buildings, access to emergency services, public transport and infrastructure;

(b) Ensure that information and communications, including information and communication technologies, are accessible to persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others;

(c) Invest in the promotion of Easy Read and plain language, augmentative and other alternative formats, including sign language and Braille.

Montenegro (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a comprehensive accessibility strategy or harmonized legislation. It notes with concern that most public services and buildings, electronic banking and automated teller machine services, the 112 hotline for emergency situations and public transport are reportedly not accessible or are insufficiently accessible for persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that, in line with article 9 of the Convention, its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, the State party:

(a) Adopt an adequately resourced comprehensive accessibility strategy and an action plan with an efficient monitoring mechanism, benchmarks and reasonable timelines for the removal of barriers, with enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance;

(b) Take particularly swift measures to ensure the accessibility of the 112 hotline;

(c) Promote universal design for all buildings, public services and public transport with particular focus on applicable information and communications technology solutions, in consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including at the local level.

Morocco (2017)

22. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of information on the binding requirements for compliance with the accessibility standards contained in the laws that regulate urban planning and architecture, and the lack of monitoring mechanisms to ensure enforcement of the law;
- (b) The lack of information on the accessibility of information and communications technologies, including government and private websites, for all persons with disabilities;
- (c) The lack of information about the accessibility of public transport, particularly in rural areas.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

- (a) Develop a strategic plan for the provision of accessible information and communication technologies, in which it sets out guidelines for the procurement of goods and services, and ensure the inclusion of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the process;
- (b) Put in place a mechanism to monitor compliance with accessibility standards in all areas covered by the Convention, ensure the enforcement of law 10-03 on accessibility and impose sanctions in the event of non-compliance with the law;
- (c) Pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, with a view to providing access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, with special attention to persons with disabilities, and universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, particularly for persons with disabilities.

Panama (2017)

26. The Committee notes the recent improvements made to public buildings and spaces but is concerned at the lack of accessibility in many public spaces, in particular in public transportation, airports, land terminals, tourist sites and government buildings, especially for persons with reduced mobility, deaf persons, persons with visual impairments and persons with intellectual disabilities. The Committee is further concerned at the limited progress in implementing Act No. 15 of 2016 on accessibility for persons with disabilities. It is also concerned by the failure to observe international standards on the accessibility of information and communications.

27. In line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement a plan containing measurable indicators to make transportation, public buildings and facilities, information and communication, including information and communications technologies, accessible in both urban and rural areas. The plan should provide for audits, specific time frames, penalties for non-compliance, the allocation of sufficient resources and the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in all stages of its implementation, in particular the monitoring of compliance;
- (b) Adopt the international standards on the accessibility of information and communications;
- (c) Take into consideration article 9 of the Convention and general comment No. 2 in its efforts to meet Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

24. The Committee is concerned by the insufficient scope, content and number of obligatory and implemented accessible standards relating to, among others, the physical environment, affordable housing, information and communications technology (ICT), transport and information in urban and rural areas. It is also concerned that austerity measures have hindered the advancement of accessibility for persons with disabilities.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Identify outstanding gaps across the State party in terms of obligatory accessibility standards in all areas of the Convention, among others, the design of affordable and accessible physical environments, housing, ICT, information formats and transport infrastructure, including emergency services and green and public spaces in both urban and rural areas, and ensure that the standards are met;

(b) Pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and targets 9, 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals;

(c) Monitor the development towards full inclusion through accessibility and sanction violations of accessibility regulations.

Armenia (2017)

15. The Committee is concerned about the overall lack of accessibility for persons with disabilities in the State party. It is also concerned about the lack of implementation of the existing accessibility norms and standards set out in the national legislation to eliminate obstacles and barriers relating to facilities, urbanism, construction and public services such as transport, information and communication services. It is also concerned that the Code on Administrative Offences does not stipulate sanctions for breaches of accessibility norms and standards, and that there are no monitoring mechanisms in place at the State level to ensure the effective implementation of such norms and standards.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take all measures to ensure the implementation of legal guarantees to accessibility in all areas, including urbanism, construction and public services such as transportation, information and communication services;

(b) Remove all barriers to access to buildings and public services, such as transportation, information and communication services, including by promoting universal design, Braille, subtitling, sign language interpretation, and easy-read formats and other alternative modes of communication;

(c) Review the Code on Administrative Offences to include appropriate sanctions for breaches of accessibility norms and standards, and set up a monitoring mechanism based on reporting at the State level to ensure the effective implementation of such norms and standards;

(d) Adopt a time-bound accessibility strategy and plan of action and ensure their implementation and monitoring in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned that there is no comprehensive accessibility strategy nor harmonized legislation at all levels with effective sanctions, and that most public buildings and institutions, with special regard to those providing public legal assistance and/or services for persons with disabilities in particular, as well as public transport, are reported as inaccessible. It is also concerned that electronic mass media services are not provided in a format accessible to persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive accessibility strategy and an action plan with sufficient budget, an efficient monitoring mechanism and benchmarks for the removal of barriers, with enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance;

(b) Promote universal design for all buildings, public services and public transport;

(c) Provide accessible information and social communication media, with special attention to electronic media, in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility (art. 9 of the Convention);

(d) Pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 9, 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Canada (2017)

21. The Committee notes the process undertaken to consult with Canadians on the development of new federal legislation expected to address various areas of the Convention. However, it is concerned about barriers to accessibility, in particular persisting barriers to access to transport, in particular in rural areas and to aircraft, and the lack of accessibility of information and communication for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

22. The Committee, in line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, recommends that the State party:

(a) Review current accessibility legislation and plans at the federal, provincial and territorial levels to ensure that they address all features of accessibility, in particular the physical environment, transportation (including civil aviation) and information and communication, including information and communications technologies and systems, and that they comprise mechanisms to monitor and regularly evaluate compliance with accessibility standards;

(b) Ensure the availability of alternative modes of communication, in particular easy-read versions of public documents and fundamental legislation, such as the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms;

(c) Adopt sectoral plans to enhance information and communication services in public transport for hard-of-hearing, deaf, blind and deaf-blind persons with disabilities;

(d) Set up a time frame and targets for implementing access to caption services in French and descriptive video content for websites and social media;

(e) Bear in mind its obligations under article 9 of the Convention while implementing Sustainable Development Goals 9 and 11 (targets 11.2 and 11.7).

Cyprus (2017)

25. The Committee is concerned about the insufficient comprehensive and mandatory measures ensuring that persons with disabilities have access on an equal basis with others to indoor and outdoor environment, information and communication and other goods, products and services in both urban and rural areas. It further notes with concern that information on public websites is not provided systematically in accessible formats and in compliance with the most recent Web Content Accessibility Guidelines.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen its efforts to improve accessibility, including by increasing the allocation of human, technical and financial resources and applying internationally recognized standardization with a view to ensure accessibility to public and private indoor and outdoor environments, information, communication and emergency services, as well as professional sign language interpretation, and augmentative and alternative communication in both rural and urban areas. The Committee also recommends that the State party significantly strengthen the monitoring of compliance with those regulations and systematically enforce sanctioning for non-compliance. In so doing, the State party should be guided by the Sustainable Development Goals, especially target 11.7, and by general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

27. The Committee notes with concern that public transport is insufficiently accessible in all its forms, including that only one third of buses are accessible and that persons with disabilities who have wheelchairs are charged more for the use of taxis – often double the charge – compared with the rest of the population.

28. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by general comment No. 2 (2014) and target 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, ensure access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport for all, including persons with disabilities regardless of their type of impairment. In particular, it recommends that the State party ensure that all new means of public transport brought into the public transport system offer full accessibility and that no additional charges are made for the use of taxis and other means of public transportation by those who have wheelchairs or other necessary devices.

Honduras (2017)

21. El Comité observa con preocupación que las infraestructuras de transportes, edificios y los servicios de información y comunicaciones abiertos al público no son plenamente accesibles para las personas con discapacidad del Estado parte. Le preocupa también que la Secretaría de Obras Públicas, Transporte y Vivienda, siendo la entidad gubernamental que regula lo concerniente al sistema vial, urbanístico y del transporte, reconoce que no se han adoptado suficientes medidas para supervisar y sancionar el incumplimiento de las normas de accesibilidad en línea con los estándares internacionales.

22. De conformidad con su observación general núm. 2 (2014) sobre accesibilidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que implemente un plan de acción con metas, plazos y recursos necesarios, para aplicar la accesibilidad en el transporte, los servicios, el entorno físico, la información y la comunicación, tanto en las ciudades como en las zonas rurales, con auditorías, plazos concretos y sanciones por incumplimiento, en donde se involucre a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en todas las etapas de su desarrollo, especialmente en el monitoreo del cumplimiento. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que tome en cuenta el artículo 9 de la Convención y la observación general núm. 2 en el cumplimiento de las metas 9, 11.2 y 11.7 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenibles.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

20. The Committee observes that the State party adopted accessibility standards, and has carried out plans to improve accessibility of housing. However, the Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of information about plans to ensure accessibility in rural areas;
- (b) The absence of measures to achieve accessibility to information and communication, including information and communication technologies;
- (c) The absence of measures to monitor and sanction non-compliance with accessibility standards both in the public and private sector; and
- (d) The lack of information about plans to ensure accessibility to services and buildings including schools, medical facilities and workplaces and on how representative organizations of persons with disabilities are consulted in the development of measures to accomplish accessibility.

21. The Committee, in line with its General comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national action plan on accessibility with time-bound benchmarks and budget allocations, that comprises rural and urban areas and all dimensions of accessibility;
- (b) Include in its legislation, the principle of universal design and promote its application by relevant stakeholders;
- (c) Make public investments, through public procurements measures aimed at providing accessible and subsidised information and communication technologies and systems for persons with disabilities;
- (d) Introduce mechanisms to monitor and evaluate compliance with accessibility standards in public and private spheres;
- (e) Consult on permanent basis with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, about accessibility measures required to access facilities and services; and
- (f) Bear in mind the linkages between article 9 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goals 9 and 11, targets 11.2 and 11.7.

Jordan (2017)

19. The Committee is concerned that the National Building Code, issued pursuant to the National Building Law (No. 7 of 1993), which sets out accessibility standards for facilities, buildings and roads, is not effectively implemented. It notes the overlapping roles of entities responsible for granting licences and monitoring the implementation of the Code, which lead to patchwork adherence to accessibility standards and insufficient application of sanctions for non-compliance.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen the implementation of accessibility standards and the monitoring thereof by, inter alia, clarifying which entities are mandated to monitor implementation, building the capacity of and providing ongoing training to civil servants and experts in charge of monitoring, involving persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the monitoring and sanctioning of those who fail to apply accessibility standards.

21. The Committee notes with concern that blind and deaf persons and persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities face challenges in accessing public buildings, facilities, transportation as well as information and communication services owing to the lack of sign language interpretation, augmentative and alternative communication devices, and easy-to-read and other accessible means, modes and formats of communication, such as pictograms.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party systematize the provision of public signs in Braille and easy-to-read formats, ensure the provision of live assistance, intermediaries, guides, readers, accessible information kiosks, ticket vending machines, websites, mobile applications and professional and certified sign language interpreters to facilitate access to public buildings, facilities, transportation and information and communication services, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned by the overall lack of accessibility for persons with disabilities in the State party. It is concerned about the insufficient implementation of the guarantees relating to accessibility stipulated in laws No. 121 and No. 60, and government decision No. 599, and to eliminate obstacles and barriers relating to access to facilities and public services such as transport, information and communications. It is also concerned that the Contravention Code does not stipulate sanctions for failure to ensure accessibility in all areas and that existing sanctions are rarely enforced.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take all measures to ensure the implementation of legal guarantees to accessibility in all areas including urbanism, construction and public services;

(b) Ensure that the sanctions for non-compliance are developed and enforced for all areas of accessibility;

(c) Adopt a time-bound accessibility plan of action and ensure its implementation and monitoring, in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(d) Pay attention to the link between article 9 of the Convention and Goal 9 and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Bolivia (2016)

21. The Committee is concerned at the lack of accessibility plans with specific targets and time frames. It is also concerned that no account is taken of the views of persons with disabilities in the design of such plans and the definition of indicators and sanctions for non-compliance.

22. The Committee urges the State party to implement accessibility plans with measurable goals and time frames, as well as sanctions for non-compliance. It also recommends that it allocate adequate budgetary funds to implement accessibility plans and ensure that they can be monitored and evaluated by organizations of persons with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the State party be guided by its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and by article 9 of the Convention in its efforts to achieve targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Colombia (2016)

48. The Committee is concerned that the transition of persons with disabilities from institutions to living in the community has not begun, and that there is a lack of support services for independent living.

49. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Implement a plan for the deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, with specific timelines and sufficient resources for its implementation;
- (b) Ensure that community services are available to persons with disabilities and are inclusive of persons with disabilities, and develop and make available at all levels, including municipalities and communities, the support services required by persons with disabilities, including personal assistance, to enable them to choose their place of residence and to live independently.

22. The Committee notes with concern the absence of a national plan for implementing accessibility standards and the little progress made to ensure accessibility in rural areas, public transport, public service facilities, information and communication means, and accessibility for deaf persons, deaf-blind persons and persons with intellectual disabilities. It is concerned, moreover, that accessibility is not a prerequisite for the purchase and sale of public goods and services.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party be guided by the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and that it:

- (a) Develop and carry out an accessibility plan for the physical environment of public facilities, transport, and information and communication means, including related technology that complies with internationally recognized standards, throughout Colombia, with specific deadlines and non-compliance penalties and, in doing so, work closely with organizations of persons with disabilities, and seek to involve them in particular in monitoring the plan's implementation;
- (b) Take into consideration the accessibility requirements of persons with disabilities who need more extensive support;
- (c) Include accessibility as a prerequisite when issuing licences for provision of public goods or services;
- (d) Be guided by article 9 of the Convention in pursuing targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Ethiopia (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned at the lack of implementation of laws, regulations and directives on infrastructure accessibility, the lack of compliance with the existing Building Code and that the concept of universal design is not enforced in domestic law. It is also concerned that policies on accessibility are limited to physical impairment and do not target all persons with disabilities, and that no criteria on accessibility have been adopted and applied within public procurement policies.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party fully implement laws, regulations and directives on infrastructure accessibility, including the Building Code. It also recommends that the State party adopt a comprehensive plan of action and standards on accessibility, including accessibility of the environment, transportation, buildings and facilities, information and communications. It further recommends that the State party introduce training and sanctions for non-compliance in relation to accessibility, universal design, procurement and construction, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and to implement targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Guatemala (2016)

27. The Committee notes that the Assistance to Persons with Disabilities Act (Decree No. 135-96) covers the regulation of issues regarding access to the physical environment, to transportation and to information and communications. However, it notes with concern that the Act does not stipulate penalties for non-compliance and that implementation of the Act is very limited, especially in rural areas and remote communities.

28. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, amend the Assistance to Persons with Disabilities Act (Decree No. 135-96) and all relevant legislation and adopt standards and regulations on accessibility, in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, ensuring that they stipulate penalties for non-compliance. It also recommends implementing accessibility plans in rural areas and remote communities, with targets, time frames and the necessary resources, in the framework of the State party's policy on comprehensive rural development and infrastructure for development. In addition, the Committee recommends that the State party be guided by article 9 of the Convention in its implementation of targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Italy (2016)

21. The Committee is concerned about insufficient information on complaints and the monitoring of accessibility standards, including within the use of public procurement, and the lack of enforcement and sanctions for non-compliance.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party strengthen data collection, monitoring and sanctions mechanisms, including within public procurement laws and policies, to ensure compliance with accessibility standards. This must include website accessibility and access to emergency services, public transport, buildings and infrastructure. It also recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, with special attention to the needs of persons with disabilities; and provide universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, particularly for persons with disabilities.

23. The Committee is concerned about insufficient data concerning the limited availability of accessible communications across the public sector, including the education sector.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party carry out an audit and action plan to ensure the provision of live assistance and intermediaries, including guides, readers and professional sign language interpreters, and augmentative and alternative communication across all public sectors. In particular, augmentative and alternative communication must be provided free of charge in the education sector.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned that almost all initiatives to ensure accessibility for persons with disabilities address physical disabilities, are not systematic, are often associated with charitable initiatives and are limited in scope. The Committee is also concerned about the absence of:

(a) Specific binding legal and policy frameworks to ensure accessibility for persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, to all facilities and services open or provided to the public throughout the State party, including access to information, means of communications and transport;

(b) Cases involving the handing down of legal sanctions for non-compliance with accessibility standards and guidelines.

20. In the light of its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt legislation for barrier-free facilities and services open to the public and a comprehensive accessibility plan, paying particular attention to communication-related needs, the allocation of sufficient resources, enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance, obligatory accessibility criteria for public procurement, and a road map for removing existing barriers based on detailed data with a concrete time frame and a monitoring and enforcement mechanism;

(b) Promote a universal design for all buildings and public services, information and social media, transport and services open to the public, and incorporate accessibility standards into public procurement criteria;

(c) Be guided by article 9 of the Convention in the implementation of targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Uruguay (2016)

21. El Comité observa con preocupación que el transporte, el entorno físico, la información y la comunicación, abiertos al público no son plenamente accesibles para las personas con discapacidad, especialmente en el interior del Estado parte. Preocupa también la inexistencia de un órgano nacional que se ocupe de supervisar y sancionar el incumplimiento de los estándares de accesibilidad.

22. De conformidad con la observación general número 2 del Comité (2014) sobre accesibilidad, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que implemente un plan de acción para aplicar la accesibilidad en el transporte, el entorno físico, la información y la comunicación, conforme al concepto de diseño universal, tanto en zonas rurales como urbanas del Estado parte, con auditorías, plazos concretos y sanciones por incumplimiento, en donde se involucre a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en todas las etapas de su desarrollo, implementación, y especialmente en el monitoreo del cumplimiento. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 9 de la Convención y las metas 11.2, 11.3 y 11.7 de los Objetivos de Desarrollo Sostenible, para proporcionar transporte accesible, urbanización inclusiva con planificación y gestión participativa, y acceso universal a zonas verdes y espacios públicos seguros, inclusivos y accesibles.

Chile (2016)

19. Al Comité le preocupan los pocos avances en el cumplimiento de la Ley núm. 20422 en materia de accesibilidad, así como la inexistencia de mecanismos de queja por la violación a los derechos de las personas con discapacidad relativas a la falta de accesibilidad.

20. El Comité recomienda que el Estado parte adopte un plan de accesibilidad general teniendo en cuenta la observación general núm. 2 (2014) del Comité sobre accesibilidad (artículo 9 de la Convención), que incluya la accesibilidad en el transporte, las edificaciones e instalaciones públicas, la información y la comunicación, tanto en las ciudades como en las áreas rurales, con plazos concretos y sanciones por incumplimiento, en donde se involucre a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en todas las etapas de su desarrollo, especialmente en el monitoreo del cumplimiento. Además, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte que preste atención a los vínculos entre el artículo 9 de la Convención y el Objetivo de Desarrollo Sostenible 11, en particular las metas 11.2 y 11.7.

Lithuania (2016)

21. The Committee is concerned at the limited scope of measures taken and the reportedly insufficient progress made to promote the application of universal design principles in the physical environment and in transport, especially to improve accessibility within and around private and public buildings and throughout the chain of transport, including in parking spaces, in train stations, on platforms and in intercity buses, taxis and ferries. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of an effective mechanism for monitoring the accessibility of buildings.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and in close collaboration with organizations representing persons with disabilities:

(a) Develop and implement a plan of action with a clear time frame, measurable baselines and indicators, and regulations and standards to guarantee the progressive application of universal design principles to the physical environment, including in accessible housing and transport, in both urban and rural areas, with a view to ensuring accessibility for all persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that such a plan of action, regulations and standards encompass the physical, environmental, informational and communications aspects of accessibility for all persons with disabilities, provide for corresponding dissuasive sanctions and enforcement mechanisms and halt the use of European Union funds for the development of inaccessible constructions, websites and other infrastructure;

(c) Allocate the human and financial resources necessary for the effective implementation of such a plan of action, regulations and standards and establish mechanisms to monitor their implementation;

(d) Pay attention to the link between article 9 of the Convention and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Portugal (2016)

21. The Committee notes that the Accessibility Act has been under review since 2012, the second phase of the National Plan for the Promotion of Accessibility for the period 2011-2015 has yet to be started, and that recent legislation concerning urban regeneration provides for exemption from accessibility requirements. It also notes that legislation fails to distinguish between the licensing body and the monitoring body, and that sanctions for non-compliance with accessibility regulations are rare.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 11, targets 11.2 and 11.7 to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, paying special attention to the needs of vulnerable people, women, children, persons with disabilities and the elderly; and provide universal access to green and public spaces that are safe, inclusive and accessible, particularly for women and children, the elderly and persons with disabilities.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party take effective measures, in close consultation with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, in order to adopt swiftly an amended accessibility act which is in compliance with the Convention, as set forth in the Committee's General Comment No 2 (2014) on accessibility, including effective and accessible complaints and implementation mechanisms.

Serbia (2016)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a national accessibility strategy and legislation with effective sanctions for non-compliance, the low degree of accessibility of public buildings, institutions and services, and electronic mass media services in the State Party.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive accessibility plan with efficient monitoring, and a roadmap which sets benchmarks for the removal of existing barriers; and promote universal design for all buildings and public services, public transport, and accessible information and social communication media with special regards to electronic media, in line with General Comment no.2 on Accessibility. In this regard, the Committee recommends that the State party allocate sufficient resources to monitor the implementation of accessibility standards with the support of an updated national database throughout its territory; establish enforceable and effective, dissuasive sanctions for non-compliance; increase subtitling and sign language interpretation in the media; and involve organisations of persons with disabilities (DPOs) in the process. The Committee also recommends the State party pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and Sustainable Development Goal 11, targets 11.2 and 11.7.

Slovakia (2016)

29. The Committee is concerned that national legislation does not provide for the monitoring of compliance to guarantee accessibility to buildings or transport.

30. The Committee recommends that the State party implement policies, guidelines and training, along with sanctions for non-compliance, in relation to accessibility, universal design, procurement and construction, especially with regard to the proposed new building act, in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

31. The Committee is concerned about the lack of accessibility to public information and communication, including in relation to transport.

32. The Committee recommends that the State party make provision for public signs in Braille and easy-to-read formats, and live assistance, intermediaries, guides, readers, accessible information kiosks, ticket vending machines, websites, mobile applications and professional sign language interpreters to facilitate accessibility to buildings, transport and other facilities open to the public.

33. The Committee further recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Thailand (2016)

21. The Committee is concerned about the lack of implementation of legislation on accessibility, especially in remote and rural areas. It is also concerned about the lack of coherent standards on accessibility, effective enforceability and sanctions for non-compliance.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the effective cooperation of cross-cutting ministries and the adoption of a comprehensive accessibility plan covering all facets in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, with sufficient resource allocation, enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance and a defined time frame for its implementation, by setting up a national database for its monitoring. The Committee recommends that the State party pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals, in order to provide access to safe, affordable, accessible and sustainable transport systems for all, notably by expanding public transport, with special attention to the needs of persons with disabilities and to provide universal access to safe, inclusive, accessible, green public spaces, particularly for persons with disabilities.

Uganda (2016)

16. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The challenges faced by persons with disabilities, both in rural and urban areas, in gaining access to transportation and information in accessible formats such as sign language, Braille and easy-to-read formats for persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Insufficient resources to implement government policies and programmes in relation to accessibility, including in the transport sector;
- (c) The lack of low-cost information and communications technologies for persons with disabilities, including those living in rural areas, the lack of regulation for the implementation of the Public Control Act and about the fact that public procurement requirements do not include accessible standards.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility:

- (a) Adopt an action plan to ensure accessibility to the physical environment, transportation, information and communications technologies and systems, with adequate resources and a time-bound framework;
- (b) Introduce a monitoring mechanism and effective sanctions for non-compliance with accessibility standards in all areas covered by the Convention, including in the transport sector;
- (c) Strengthen measures, including public procurement to grant access by persons with disabilities to information and communications technologies, including by the provision of low-cost software and assistive devices for all persons with disabilities, including those living in rural areas;
- (d) Encourage the banking sector to recruit professional sign language interpreters to assist deaf persons in their banking transactions;
- (e) Pay attention to the links between article 9 of the Convention and targets 11.2 and 11.7 of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Brazil (2015)

22. The Committee notes with concern that accessibility of built environment, transport, information and communication and services open to the public is not fully achieved, especially in remote and rural areas.

23. The Committee recommends to the State Party to take efficient measures to ensure accessibility of built environment, transport, information and communication and services open to the public, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014), on accessibility, in rural and remote areas, including by full implementation of the existing legislation, including public procurement, and policies, efficient monitoring and sanctioning all that fail to comply fully with accessibility standards.

European Union (2015)

28. The Committee is concerned that a European Accessibility Act has not yet been adopted by the European Union, and that existing European policies, legislation, regulations and programmes have not been sufficiently assessed.

29. The Committee recommends that the European Union take efficient measures for prompt adoption of an amended European Accessibility Act that is aligned to the Convention, as elaborated in the Committee's General comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, including effective and accessible enforcement and complaint mechanisms. It further recommends that the European Union ensure participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the process of adoption of the Act.

Gabon (2015)

22. The Committee is concerned about the lack of implementation of legislation on the accessibility of built environment, in particular new buildings and constructions, as well as transportation. Furthermore the Committee is concerned by the absence of legislation on accessibility of information and communications technology and other services.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party: implement legally enforceable accessibility standards, including effective sanctions for non-compliance; allocate financial resources; and, in close consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities, develop a comprehensive national accessibility action plan complete with timeframes, indicators, monitoring and evaluation, and which binds all public procurement processes in line with General Comment No. 2.

Kenya (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The barriers for persons with disabilities to access public transportation in urban and rural areas and the lack of measures to enforce the guarantees concerning accessibility in all areas of life; and

(b) The lack of measures to sanction non-compliance with existing accessibility standards;

18. In line with General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Finalize and adopt the draft Consolidated National Action Plan on Accessibility and Disability Rights for the implementation of Persons with Disabilities Act No. 14 of 2003 and related provisions of the Constitution 2010; and

(b) Effectively implement the regulations of non-compliance as provided in Persons with Disabilities Act and ensure adjustment orders are issued to non-compliant stakeholders.

Mauritius (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities encountered various obstacles to access the physical environment and information communication services, transport and services opened to the public and therefore cannot exercise their rights on equal basis with others due to the lack of effective measures taken by the State party to eliminate existing barriers to accessibility.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party proceed to the announced revision of the Building Act, the Roads Act, the Morcellement Act and the Town and Country Planning Act and to adopt a legally binding accessibility action plan, with benchmarks, indicators and timelines, to cover all aspects of the built environment, public service provision, information and communications, including sign language interpretation as well as assistive listening systems and air and sea transport, as referred to in the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility. A regular monitoring and evaluation of the plan with the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities should be conducted within specified periods of time and sanctions provided in case of non-compliance.

Qatar (2015)

19. The Committee is concerned about the absence of specific legal and policy frameworks to ensure accessibility for persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, to all facilities and services open or provided to the public, including access to information, communications and transport.

20. In light of its general comment No. 2 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party adopt legislation for barrier-free public facilities and services. It also recommends a comprehensive accessibility plan with the allocation of sufficient resources, enforceable and effective sanctions for non-compliance, and a road map based on detailed data with a concrete timeframe. The Committee also recommends that the State party promote universal design for all buildings and public services, information and social communication media, transport and services open to the public, and that it incorporate accessibility standards into public procurement criteria.

Ukraine (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned that implementation of the 2009 action plan “Ukraine without Barriers” by public and private entities is not monitored. It is also concerned that under the Regulation of the Urban Planning Act of 2011 constructors are no longer required to obtain experts examination of buildings in terms of their accessibility. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that most public facilities, including health and education facilities and communication services remain inaccessible for persons with disabilities, including children.

18. The Committee recommends the State party to efficiently implement its plan “Ukraine without Borders” and monitor implementation of accessibility standards by:

- (a) clearly defining the organs with the mandate to monitor the implementation at all levels;
- (b) capacity-building and continuous training in charge of monitoring;
- (c) involving organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring;
- and
- (d) imposing effective sanctions on those who fail to apply accessibility standards.

19. The Committee calls upon the State party to ensure access to premises open to the public for persons with disabilities, including children and especially deaf persons, blind persons and persons with intellectual disabilities, by providing sign language interpretation, Braille print signage, and augmentative and alternative communication, and all other accessible means, modes and formats of communication, such as pictograms. In doing so, the Committee recommends to consult its General comment no. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Cook Islands (2015)

19. The Committee is concerned that the review of compliance of the Building Code in relation to the Convention has not been conducted, and progress on accessibility to existing public buildings and services, footpaths and street signage, information and communication, public service provision, air and sea transport has been limited.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

Review the Building Code in consultation with disabled persons organisations;

Adopt a legally bound accessibility action plan with benchmarks, indicators and timeline, to cover all aspects of the built environment, public service provision, information and communications, air and sea transport, as referred to in the Committee’s General Recommendation 2, and regular monitoring and evaluation of the plan with the participation of organisations of persons with disabilities to eliminate all existing barriers within specified periods of time.

Croatia (2015)

15. The Committee is concerned that accessibility to buildings, places, transportation and information and communication is still rather low, especially outside of the capital-city area. The Committee is concerned that accessibility is narrowly construed to pertain to the physical environment and transportation, whereas information and communication services are neglected.

16. The Committee recommends that the State Party assess accessibility with respect to buildings, places and transportation as well as accessibility to information and communication services, as referred to in the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014), and adopts action plans to improve accessibility with clearly defined and realistic deadlines and indicators. Organizations of persons with disabilities should be involved in planning and implementation of these accessibility plans. It further recommends allocating sufficient resources to make public and private transportation accessible.

Czech Republic (2015)

17. The Committee notes with concern that provisions of the Building Act on ensuring accessibility are still not fully implemented. Furthermore, the Committee notes that deaf persons, blind persons and persons with intellectual disabilities still face challenges in accessing premises open to the public due to lack of sign language interpretation, Braille print signage, and augmentative and alternative communication and other accessible means, modes and formats of communication, such as pictograms.

18. The Committee urges the State party to strengthen the monitoring of implementation of accessibility standards by:

- (a) clearly defining the organs with the mandate to monitor the implementation;
- (b) capacity-building and continuous training in charge of monitoring;
- (c) involving organizations of persons with disabilities in the monitoring; and
- (d) sanctioning those who fail to apply accessibility standards.

19. The Committee calls upon the State party to ensure access to premises open to the public for persons with disabilities, especially deaf persons, blind persons and persons with intellectual disabilities, by providing sign language interpretation, Braille print signage, and augmentative and alternative communication, and all other accessible means, modes and formats of communication, such as pictograms.

Dominican Republic (2015)

16. The Committee notes with concern that action on accessibility on the metro and the renovation of public facilities is very limited. It is also concerned about the lack of technical standards, manuals and protocols on accessibility, of effective monitoring mechanisms and of any national plan covering all public buildings and spaces. It also notes the lack of mechanisms to involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of accessibility plans covering all the points contained in the Convention.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt standards and regulations on accessibility to the physical environment, transport, information and communication, in line with the Convention and in keeping with the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on article 9: Accessibility, and that it implement accessibility plans with measurable goals and time frames in the short and medium term, as well as sanctions for non-compliance. It also recommends that adequate budgetary funds be allocated to implement municipal accessibility plans and to ensure monitoring and evaluation of those plans by organizations of persons with disabilities.

Germany (2015)

21. The Committee is concerned about: a) the lack of binding obligations for private entities, particularly private media and websites, to avoid creating new barriers and eliminate existing barriers relating to accessibility; b) the inadequate implementation of regulations governing accessibility and universal design.

22. The Committee draws the attention of the State party to its General Comment No. 2 (2014) and recommends that the State party:

- (a) Introduce targeted and effective measures, such as compulsory obligations, monitoring mechanisms, and effective penalties for infringement, to extend accessibility for persons with disabilities in all sectors and areas of life, including the private sector;

(b) Encourage public and private broadcasting bodies to evaluate their work comprehensively regarding the implementation of the right to accessibility, especially on the use of sign language.

Mongolia (2015)

17. The Committee is concerned that the State party's measures on accessibility have tended to be limited to the physical aspects of accessibility and overlooks other barriers posed by information and communication technologies (ICT). In particular, the Committee is concerned that Braille and sign language have not been legally recognised in the State party and that there is currently only one television channel with severely limited broadcasts of accessible content. Furthermore, while noting the positive steps taken by the State party to enact legislation for accessibility, the Committee is concerned that resource allocation and enforcement measures for the effective implementation of accessibility legislation remains inadequate.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party broaden its policy for accessibility to include removing barriers to accessing Information and Communication Technologies in order to enhance possibilities for participation of persons with disabilities in society. It recommends to the State party to provide legal recognition for sign language and Braille, and take measures to improve the quantity and diversity of accessible content in its media. Furthermore, the Committee recommends that the State party increase its resource allocation for the implementation of measures to ensure accessibility of public transport, buildings and public spaces. The Committee also recommends that the State party strengthen its monitoring and enforcement mechanisms on accessibility. This should include ensuring commensurate sanctions for the non-fulfilment of accessibility standards stipulated by legislation, in line with the Convention and the Committee's General Comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility.

Turkmenistan (2015)

21. The Committee is concerned at the insufficient implementation of the accessibility related procedures of the Social Protection Code, in particular in rural areas, and at the lack of information on the existence of accessibility standards, any monitoring mechanism and system of sanctions.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive accessibility plan with sufficient resources, including establishing enforceable and deterrent sanctions for non-compliance as well as a roadmap based on detailed data in accordance with article 9 of the Convention as elaborated in the Committee's General Comment N.2, which sets benchmarks for the removal of existing barriers, and promote universal design for all buildings and public services, information and social communication media, transports and services open to the public, in urban and rural areas included.

New Zealand (2014)

19. The Committee notes the review into access to building for people with disabilities which the Government commissioned in late 2013. This review is now being evaluated by a reference group.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party enact measures to ensure that all public buildings, as well as public web pages providing services for all, are made accessible to persons with disabilities, and recommends that consideration be given to ensuring that new future private houses are made fully accessible. The Committee also recommends that the exemption of factories and industrial premises where fewer than 10 people are employed, from the accessibility requirements of the Building Act 2004 and the Building Code, be discontinued.

Denmark (2014)

26. The Committee is concerned at the absence of comprehensive measures to ensure to persons with disabilities access, on an equal basis with others, to the physical environment, to transportation, to information and communications, and to other facilities and services open to or provided to the public, both in urban and rural areas. The Committee also notes with concern the lack of systematic compliance with the Building Regulations and the limited access to transport. The Committee further notes with concern that information on public websites is not systematically published in accessible formats.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a comprehensive plan to ensure to all persons with disabilities access to facilities, information and services, which would include concrete objectives, time frames, budgets, sanctions and evaluation, as elaborated in the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility. In this regard, the Committee recommends that the State party: (a) conduct continuous training on universal design and accessibility standards, including the Building Regulations, for relevant professionals, and systematically enforce sanctions for those who fail to implement accessibility standards; (b) ensure that private entities that offer public transport and other services observe accessibility requirements; and (c) adopt regulations on digital accessibility and access to information technology and communication, and promote the responsibility of public institutions to present information and communications on its websites in accessible formats, in accordance with international standards.

28. The Committee is concerned that television programmes on the KVF public service channel in the Faroe Islands are only subtitled and/or interpreted into sign language if they are considered to be of "major interest and significance in society".

29. The Committee requests that the Government of the Faroe Islands ensure access, both for people who are deaf and for those who are hard of hearing, to all the programmes broadcast by KVF.

Republic of Korea (2014)

17. The Committee is concerned about the low number of accessible buses and taxis in rural and urban areas. It is also concerned that accessibility standards for buildings are restricted by minimum size, capacity and date of construction and have not yet been applied to all public buildings. The Committee is further concerned that many websites remain inaccessible for persons with visual impairment, and that web accessibility catering for each disability type, such as hearing impairment and intellectual and psychosocial disabilities, remains weak.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party review current public transportation policies, with a view to ensuring that persons with disabilities can use all types of public transportation safely and conveniently. It encourages the State party to apply accessibility standards to all public facilities and workplaces, regardless of their size, capacity or date of construction, in accordance with article 9 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility. The Committee further recommends that the State party amend the relevant laws to ensure that all persons with disabilities can gain access to information via Internet websites on an equal basis with others, and facilitate access to smart phones for persons with visual and other impairments.

Belgium (2014)

21. The Committee is concerned about poor accessibility for persons with disabilities, the absence of a national plan with clear targets and the fact that accessibility is not a priority. It notes that government action has focused primarily on accessibility for persons with physical disabilities and that few measures have been taken to promote accessibility for persons with hearing, visual, intellectual or psychosocial disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party establish a legal framework with specific, binding benchmarks for accessibility, including in respect of buildings, roads and transport, services, and e-accessibility. This legal framework should also provide for the monitoring of accessibility and set out a detailed time frame for monitoring and evaluating the incremental changes made to infrastructure. Dissuasive penalties for non-compliance with these provisions must be incorporated into the legal framework. The Committee urges the State party to ensure that public authorities issuing building permits receive training on accessibility and universal design. In that regard, the Committee recommends that the State party develop a coherent accessibility strategy, including a national plan with clear short-, medium- and long-term objectives. It recommends that all aspects of accessibility should be promoted, in accordance with the Convention, and in the light of the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014), with specific regard to sign-language accessibility. Sign language should be made available across the country in order to ensure access to public services for persons with disabilities on an equal basis with other citizens, in the various official languages and in different formats, regardless of place of residence, and particularly for procedures relating to law and order.

Ecuador (2014)

22. The Committee is concerned that: (a) The concept of accessibility contained in the Ecuadorian Technical Regulation does not cover matters relating to information and communication, including information and communication technology (ICT) and simplified language tools, as set out in the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility; (b) Contrary to the provision contained in the Committee's general comment No. 2, public transport networks in Ecuador are not yet accessible to persons with disabilities, who have to use more challenging transport options to carry out their daily activities; (c) Although guidelines on the accessibility of web content were adopted in January 2014, their implementation has been delayed, particularly in the case of websites providing government information.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party: (a) Amend the Ecuadorian Technical Regulation so that it includes specific accessibility requirements relating to information, communication and technology and to simplified language tools; (b) Launch a comprehensive programme to adapt public transport in Ecuador, including in rural areas, so that all transport becomes accessible within a pre-agreed time frame; (c) Step up efforts to implement regulation NTE INEN-ISO/IEC 40500:2012 "Information technology – World Wide Web Consortium (W3C) Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.0", so that persons with disabilities can have access to the Internet and ensure that the Guidelines are binding, particularly on the websites of public institutions offering various services to persons with disabilities.

Mexico (2014)

19. The Committee notes with concern that the State party's current legal framework on accessibility for persons with disabilities does not address all the aspects covered by article 9 of the Convention. The Committee is also concerned that the State party has no specific mechanisms for evaluating compliance with accessibility legislation in all the areas covered by the Convention.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Accelerate the regulation process in connection with the laws on accessibility, in keeping with the Committee's general comment No. 2 on accessibility (2014);
- (b) Establish monitoring and complaints mechanisms and define effective penalties for non-compliance with accessibility laws;
- (c) Take measures to ensure that accessibility plans encompass existing buildings, in addition to new constructions;
- (d) Design and implement a national accessibility plan applicable to the physical environment, transport, information and communications, including information and communications systems and technologies, and other services and facilities open or provided to the public; and
- (e) Ensure that private entities duly consider all aspects of accessibility for persons with disabilities and those that are subject to penalties for non-compliance.

Sweden (2014)

25. The Committee is concerned that rules pertaining to accessibility in buildings are not adhered to, and notes that public procurement procedures are not used to fully foster accessibility.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that municipalities and local authorities are sensitized about the accessibility principle, with a view to aligning relevant local and regional laws, such as building and planning codes, in accordance with article 9 of the Convention; that they have the necessary funding and guidance to monitor, evaluate and secure full accessibility to buildings; and that the reasonable accommodation needs of persons with disabilities are integrated in municipal planning as appropriate. The Committee further recommends that accessibility requirements be systematically included in all public procurement agreements.

27. The Committee is concerned that public material published by the State, regions, county councils and municipalities, including new laws, statutes and regulations, are rarely published in accessible formats.

28. The Committee encourages the State party to supplement the regulatory framework concerning the public sector's responsibility to present its information and communications in accessible formats.

Azerbaijan (2014)

22. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the existence of an accessibility plan and at reports that public transport and other public buildings remain inaccessible by persons with disabilities due to existing barriers.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party develop a comprehensive accessibility plan in accordance with article 9 of the Convention, which sets benchmarks for the removal of existing barriers and promotes universal design for all buildings. In this regard, the Committee recommends that the State party allocate sufficient resources for the monitoring of the implementation of accessibility standards throughout the State party, including establishing enforceable and deterrent sanctions for non-compliance. The State party should also intensify its efforts aimed at adapting information into accessible formats and the use of modern accessible information communication technology systems.

Costa Rica (2014)

19. The Committee is concerned that measures to implement the Act on Equal Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities (Act No. 7600) in the area of accessibility have focused on physical and public transport accessibility, while disregarding information and communication accessibility. The Committee is further concerned that only 18 out of 81 municipalities have Municipal Commissions on Accessibility and Disability and that the impact of these commissions is not known.

20. The Committee urges the State party to adopt regulations on accessibility to the physical environment, transport, information and communication, in line with the Convention, and to implement accessibility plans with measurable goals and timetables, as well as sanctions for non-compliance. The Committee urges the State party to comply with the statutory deadline of 2014 for ensuring full accessibility to public transport. It also recommends that adequate budgetary funds be allocated to implement municipal accessibility plans and to ensure monitoring and evaluation of those plans by organizations of persons with disabilities.

Australia (2013)

20. The Committee notes that the Disability Standards for Accessible Public Transport 2002 and the Disability (Access to Premises – Buildings) Standards 2010, introduce regulations to address accessibility barriers for persons with disabilities. However, it remains concerned at the level of compliance with accessibility standards and regulations.

21. The Committee recommends that sufficient resources be allocated to ensure monitoring and implementation of the Disability Standards and requirements.

Austria (2013)

23. The Committee commends the State party for its achievements in the area of accessibility to buildings, to transport and to information. The Committee notes that various cities and Länder have developed plans for improving accessibility to facilities. However, it is concerned that accessibility is poor in some areas, particularly outside Austria's larger cities. It is particularly concerned that, in at least one Länd, there is a minimum number of people set for requiring a barrier-free environment for public facilities. In addition, accessibility shall also consist of barrier-free info-communication accessibility in Austria's media, at ORF in particular.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party develop an overarching inclusive approach to accessibility in accordance with Article 9 of the Convention. The building standards should not be limited to buildings of a minimum size or capacity, but should apply to all public facilities in accordance with article 9. The Committee also recommends decreasing the timelines of staged plans that currently operate in some cities and Länder and also the plan for subtitling ORF programs.

El Salvador (2013)

23. The Committee is concerned at the absence of a mechanism monitoring compliance with accessibility standards and the lack of technical aids provided to low-income persons with disabilities. The Committee is also concerned at the lack of efforts to ensure access in rural areas and community services.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Establish a mechanism to monitor laws on accessibility, involving organizations of persons with disabilities, and impose penalties for non-compliance;

(b) Urgently adopt an action plan on accessibility that includes all aspects covered in article 9 of the Convention, allocates a larger budget and focuses on rural areas.

Paraguay (2013)

23. The Committee notes the approval of the Act on Accessibility of the Physical Environment for Persons with Disabilities; it is, however, concerned at the complete absence of any standards for the accessibility of information and communication and of information and communication technologies (ICTs), the gaps in implementation, the narrow definition of accessibility and in particular the lack of mechanisms to monitor the adoption of accessibility standards. It also regrets the absence of specific action to ensure the accessibility of public facilities, and of guarantees of implementation in the private sector, and the complete lack of information or provisions on accessibility in the departments and municipalities of Paraguay.

24. The Committee urges the State party to implement the Act on Accessibility of the Physical Environment by allocating financial resources, setting time frames for modification of infrastructure and buildings, and establishing oversight mechanisms and means of penalizing non-compliance, in consultation with disabled persons' organizations, which should be authorized to assist in monitoring implementation.

25. The Committee recognizes the State party's efforts to train the staff of public transport systems. It regrets, however, the absence of a legal framework instituting a requirement of accessibility in public transport.

26. The Committee urges the State party to adopt provisions and instruments regulating and implementing, in accordance with articles 1 and 9 of the Convention, the accessibility of public transport at the national level that covers infrastructure and conveyances, signage and map design in accessible and easy-to-understand formats.

Argentina (2012)

17. The Committee takes note of the State party's current legislation on accessibility for persons with disabilities. However, it notes with concern that, despite the establishment of the Advisory and Monitoring Committee, the State party does not have effective mechanisms for overseeing and evaluating compliance with accessibility legislation in all the areas covered by the Convention or for regulating and monitoring the imposition of sanctions for non-compliance. The Committee is also concerned about the challenge posed by the State party's federal structure in terms of the achievement of full accessibility for all persons with disabilities in every province and municipality in its territory.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party establish effective mechanisms for monitoring and evaluating compliance with accessibility laws in the State party and that it take the necessary measures to facilitate the alignment of the relevant federal and provincial legislation with the Convention and the development and implementation of accessibility plans. The Committee also urges the State party to ensure that private entities take due account of all aspects of accessibility for persons with disabilities.

China (2012)

17. While appreciating the state party's advancements concerning accessibility in urban areas, the Committee takes note of the lack of information concerning both the accessibility in rural areas as well as the effects of non-compliance with accessibility measures and monitoring and evaluating accessibility

18. The Committee asks the state party to provide such information in its next report. Considering the large proportion of persons with disabilities who live in rural areas (75 %), it specifically urges the state party to ensure that accessibility is guaranteed not only in urban, but also in rural areas. It also asks the state party not to restrict the barrier-free infrastructure to environments often frequented by persons with disabilities.

Hong-Kong (2012)

61. While noting that Hong Kong, China, has improved the barrier-free access of government buildings, leisure and cultural facilities and public housings in recent years, the Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities still face difficulties in terms of accessibility. The Committee especially regrets that the building standards set out in the "Design Manual – Barrier Free Access" do not apply retroactively and that they are not applicable to premises under the management of the government or the housing authority. The Committee is concerned that the monitoring mechanism to evaluate the accessibility of buildings is insufficient, thus restricting the persons with disabilities' ability to live independently in the community.

62. The Committee encourages Hong Kong, China, to continue reviewing the "Design Manual-Barrier Free Access" and apply these standards retroactively as well as to premises under the management of the government or the housing authority. It recommends that Hong Kong, China, strengthen the monitoring process of accessibility.

Hungary (2012)

23. The Committee notes with appreciation that the State party has set deadlines for fulfilling the provisions of the law for accessibility of public services rendered by the state (31 December 2010), the accessibility of educational, health and social services as well as that of municipality client services (31 December 2008, 2009 and 2010 respectively) and has allocated considerable funds for the removal of barriers by 2011, 2012 and 2013. However, the Committee is concerned that the above-mentioned deadlines have not been fully met and that there are initiatives to postpone them further. The Committee is also concerned about the financial challenges faced by the authorities charged with monitoring the implementation of the accessibility legislation.

24. The Committee calls upon the State party to undertake efforts to meet the deadlines for removal of accessibility barriers set in its own legislation and policies, without any postponement of the set deadlines. The Committee calls upon the State party to strengthen the monitoring mechanisms additionally in order to ensure accessibility and to continue providing sufficient funds for the removal of accessibility barriers and the continued training of relevant monitoring staff.

Peru (2012)

20. The Committee regrets the lack of information on the level of implementation of the State's requirement to have, by 2010, 60 per cent of public facilities accessible for persons with disabilities, as well as the absence of information on compliance with accessibility standards by private companies.

21. The Committee urges the State party to speed up the plans and programmes directed to make public facilities, communications and public transportation, in the urban and rural areas, accessible for persons with disabilities and to ensure that private entities duly take into account all aspects of accessibility for persons with disabilities.

Spain (2011)

27. The Committee takes note that Act 26/2011 introduces regulatory amendments that will shorten the timelines for meeting accessibility requirements in public facilities and with respect to goods and services available to the public. However, it remains concerned at the low level of compliance with these requirements, in particular at the regional and local levels, in the private sector, and in relation to existing facilities. The Committee is aware of situations of discrimination faced by air passengers with disabilities, including situations of denial of boarding. The Committee reminds the State party that article 9 of the Convention also requires States to ensure access to information and communication.

28. The Committee recommends that sufficient financial and human resources be allocated as soon as possible to implement, promote and monitor compliance with accessibility legislation through national measures as well as through international cooperation.

Tunisia (2010)

20. The Committee takes note of the National Strategy on environmental management and the implementation of the first Action Plan in this area, covering the period 2008-2010. However, it remains concerned that gaps continue to impede full accessibility for persons with disabilities, on an equal basis with others, to all facilities and services open or provided to the public, including access to information, communications and transport.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, undertake a comprehensive review of the implementation of laws on accessibility in order to identify, monitor and address those gaps. It recommends that awareness-raising programmes be conducted for the relevant professional groups and all stakeholders. It further recommends that sufficient financial and human resources be allocated as soon as possible to implement the national plan on accessibility for existing and future infrastructure.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 10 CRPD
(Right to life)*

September 2025

Article 10 - Right to life

States Parties reaffirm that every human being has the inherent right to life and shall take all necessary measures to ensure its effective enjoyment by persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

Finland (2025)

Maldives (2025)

Canada (2025)

European Union (2025)

Viet Nam (2025)

Belarus (2024)

Belgium (2024)

Benin (2024)

Burkina Faso (2024)

Ghana (2024)

Netherlands (2024)

Ukraine (2024)

Azerbaijan (2024)

Bahrain (2024)

Kazakhstan (2024)

Nicaragua (2024)

Sweden (2024)

Zambia (2024)

Andorra (2023)

Germany (2023)

Israel (2023)

Malawi (2023)

Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)

Peru (2023)

Togo (2023)

Bangladesh (2022)

China (2022)

Indonesia (2022)

Japan (2022)

New Zealand (2022)

Republic of Korea (2022)

Singapore (2022)

Hungary (2022)

Mexico (2022)

Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
France (2021)
Australia (2019)
India (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
South Africa (2018)
Oman (2018)
Montenegro (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Sweden (2014)
China (2012)

Please note there are no recommendations on Article 10 CRPD on the Concluding Observations on Kiribati (2025), Dominican Republic (2025), Palau (2025), Tuvalu (2025), Denmark (2024), Mauritius (2024), Costa Rica (2024), Austria, Mauritania, Mongolia, Paraguay, Angola, Lao Democratic People's Republic, Djibouti, Cuba, Niger, Norway, Vanuatu, The Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Poland, Philippines, Algeria, Malta, Nepal, Russian Federation, Seychelles, Slovenia, Sudan, Latvia, Luxembourg, Morocco, Panama, Armenia, Armenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Jordan, Republic of Moldova, Guatemala, Italy, United Arab Emirates, Uruguay, Chile, Lithuania, Portugal, Serbia, Slovakia, Thailand, Brazil, European Union, Mauritius, Qatar, Cook Islands, Croatia, Czech Republic, Dominican Republic, Germany, Mongolia, Turkmenistan, Belgium, Denmark, Ecuador, Mexico, New Zealand, Republic of Korea, Azerbaijan, Costa Rica (2014), Australia, Austria, El Salvador, Paraguay, Argentina, Hungary, Peru and Tunisia.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

17. The Committee is deeply concerned about:

- (a) Credible reports of infanticide of children with disabilities, including accounts of killings carried out in medical facilities with official consent, and the State Party's failure to provide any data or information about preventive measures;
- (b) Domestic legislation does not explicitly guarantee the right to life for persons with disabilities, including in detention and healthcare settings, where they face heightened risks of systematic denial of medical care, starvation, and abuse, without independent oversight;
- (c) Credible reports that eugenic and discriminatory medical policies and practices persist, based on the notion of "disability prevention";
- (d) The legality and practice of the death penalty in the State Party, disregarding the limits recognized under international law, and the lack of information provided on the question of its application to persons with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Take effective measures to end infanticide of children with disabilities, investigate all allegations and investigate and punish perpetrators with proportionate penalties;
- (b) Amend domestic laws to explicitly guarantee the right to life of persons with disabilities in all contexts, including detention and healthcare, and establish independent monitoring bodies with unrestricted access to places of detention;
- (c) Prohibit eugenic and discriminatory medical policies and practices, particularly those framed as "disability prevention";
- (d) Abolish the death penalty and immediately cease imposing and carrying out the death penalty in regard to persons with disabilities, in accordance with the limits established under international law, in line with relevant recommendations emanating from the universal periodic review process.

Finland (2025)

17. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The restrictions on the right to care and intensive care for children with disabilities;
- (b) The practice to advise families of children with disabilities to limit resuscitation, treatment in intensive care or life-supporting treatment for them;
- (c) The authority of doctors, in some circumstances, to limit treatment without the patient's consent, creating the risk of disproportionately limiting treatment for persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends the State party, in close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Ensure that all persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, have access to care and intensive care on an equal basis with others, without any restriction based on disability;
- (b) Ensure that advice on resuscitation, treatment in intensive care or life supporting treatment to families of children with disabilities is provided on an equal basis with others, not proposing any limitations of such treatment based on disability;
- (c) Eliminate all forms of substitute decision making on medical interventions and guarantee personal and free informed consent of persons with disabilities for all medical treatment.

Maldives (2025)

19. The Committee is gravely concerned:

- (a) About the legality of the death penalty in the State party, which continues to on persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, as well as women that are victims of domestic and sexual violence. It is particularly concerned at the information provided by the State party's delegation on the State party's intention to lift the moratorium on the application of death penalty;

(b) Persons with disabilities who are on death row face harsh and degrading conditions, isolation, lack of access to sanitation, services, reasonable and gender-specific accommodation, rehabilitation and intellectual activity;

(c) About the increasing rate of suicide among the population, and the criminalization of attempt of suicide, which prevents persons with disabilities to seek mental health support.

20. Recalling the recommendation of the Human Rights Committee (CCPR/C/MDV/CO/2, para. 28), the Committee recommends the State party:

(a) Maintain the moratorium on the application of the death penalty with a view to abolish the death penalty, and encourages it to ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty;

(b) Immediately release all the persons with disabilities currently on death row and guarantee adequate support services including psychosocial support and reasonable accommodation;

(c) Provide training to the judiciary to avoid imposing the death penalty on persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and train police and prison staff to respect the rights of persons with disabilities who are on death row and ensure the provision of reasonable accommodation and gender specific accommodation;

(d) Make the information on the situation of persons sentenced to death penalty publicly available, including with disaggregated data on disability and reporting on the accommodation provided.

Canada (2025)

19. The Committee is extremely concerned about the 2021 amendments to the State Party's Criminal Code through Bill C-7 that expanded the eligibility criteria for obtaining Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD), known as "Track 2" MAiD by removing the 'foreseeable death' criteria. The Committee recalls that similar concerns about Track 2 MAiD have been addressed directly to the State Party by the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women, the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and during the Universal Periodic Review. The Committee further notes that the Special Rapporteur on the rights of persons with disabilities, the Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights and the Independent Expert on the enjoyment of all human rights by older persons have stated that disability is not a reason to endorse medical assistance in dying. The Committee also notes with concern that:

(a) The federal government did not challenge the Quebec Truchon decision which fundamentally changes the whole premise of medical assistance in dying when natural death is reasonably foreseeable to a new program that establishes medically assisted dying for persons with disabilities based on negative, ableist perceptions of the quality and value of the life of persons with disabilities, including that 'suffering' is intrinsic to disability rather than the fact that inequality and discrimination cause and compound 'suffering' for persons with disabilities;

(b) The concept of 'choice' creates a false dichotomy by setting up the premise that if persons with disabilities are suffering, it is valid for the State Party to enable their death, with safeguards not guaranteeing the provision of support, and ableist assumptions deemphasising the myriad of support options for persons with disabilities to live dignified lives, and the systemic failures of the State Party to address the social determinants of health and well-being, such as poverty alleviation, access to healthcare, accessible housing, prevention of homelessness, prevention of gender-based violence, the provision of community-based mental health supports and employment supports;

(c) Evidence from the Ontario Office of the Chief Coroner and federal government data indicating that Track 2 MAiD is disproportionately accessed by women with disabilities and persons with disabilities in marginalised situations, and there is an upward trajectory of persons with disabilities killed through Track 2 MAiD;

(d) The expansion of Track 2 MAiD in 2027 to persons whose “sole underlying medical condition is a mental illness” and the proposed expansion of MAiD to include “mature minors” and advance requests for MAiD;

(e) The inadequate consultation process with Indigenous Peoples including non-status and off-reserve Indigenous persons with disabilities in relation to MAiD;

(f) The absence of a federal independent oversight mechanism to monitor, regulate and handle complaints in relation to MAiD.

20. To ensure the right to life for persons with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Repeal Track 2 Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD), including the 2027 commencement of Track 2 MAiD for persons whose “sole underlying medical condition is a mental illness”;

(b) Not support proposals for the expansion of MAiD to include “mature minors” and advance requests;

(c) Significantly invest and implement comprehensive measures, at federal, provincial, and territorial levels to ensure the systemic failures in relation to the social determinants of health and well-being are addressed, such as poverty alleviation, access to healthcare, accessible housing, prevention of homelessness, prevention of gender-based violence, the provision of community-based mental health supports, care services at home and personal assistance, and employment supports;

(d) Strengthen distinctions-based, community-led consultation processes with Indigenous Peoples, including non-status and off-reserve Indigenous persons with disabilities, respecting the principle of self-determination;

(e) Establish and resource a federal independent oversight mechanism to monitor, regulate and handle complaints in relation to MAiD.

European Union (2025)

28. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Deaths of persons with disabilities in institutional settings that received financial support from EU funds, including during the COVID-19 pandemic, without sufficient preventive measures and redress mechanism;

(b) Discriminatory medical protocols and higher mortality rates of persons with disabilities in institutions, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic, and in situations of armed conflict in neighbouring countries.

29. The Committee recommends the European Union:

(a) Adopt, within its competences, concrete initiatives and actions in the second half of the Disability Rights Strategy, to prevent deaths of persons with disabilities in institutions, including by:

(i) Developing standards for Member States on the prevention and investigation of deaths in institutions that received EU funding, providing funds to increase Member States’ capacity in this area, and by aligning other strategies on health and long-term care with this objective;

(ii) Requiring to thoroughly investigate violence against and deaths of persons with disabilities in institutions that receive funding from the EU, and by including data collection on cases of deaths in of persons with disabilities in institutions in Eurostat’s responsibilities;

(iii) Applying its accountability framework, including the suspension of funding and the recovery of funds, to institutions in which deaths could have been prevented;

(b) Develop non-discriminatory medical guidelines and standards ensuring equal access to life-saving treatments, particularly during health emergencies, and align EU policy and standards among Member States.

Viet Nam (2025)

19. The Committee expresses profound concern about the continued existence of the death penalty.

20. The Committee urges the State party to abolish the death penalty. It also recommends that the State party ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty.

Belarus (2024)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The legality and practice of the death penalty in the State party, as applicable also to persons with disabilities in disregard of the limits recognized under international law;

(b) The reported deaths of persons with disabilities during the course of their detention or the serious health conditions faced by persons with disabilities that may pose a threat to their lives as a result of deprivation of health-care services and lack of reasonable accommodation.

20. Recalling the concluding observations as adopted by the Human rights Committee in 2018 (CCPR/C/BLR/CO/5), the Committee recommends that the State party to enforce an immediate moratorium on executions of persons with disabilities, and ensure access to effective health care services for persons with disabilities in detention or prison facilities, day and residential care centers, as well as allow independent inspection and fact-finding committees to visit them, monitor and assess their situation.

Belgium (2024)

20. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Reports that persons with disabilities in institutions, including residential care institutions and psychiatric institutions, have a substantially lower life expectancy than the general population;

(b) Reports that persons with psychosocial disabilities have died as a result of police interventions due to the use of restraints and due to a lack of training of police officers;

(c) The absence of information on the prevalence of suicide among young persons with disabilities between the age of 15 to 29, despite suicide being the most frequently cited cause of death for young people of this age bracket.

21. The Committee recommends that State party:

(a) Systematically collect data on the life expectancy and death rates of persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities, in institutions, and establish comprehensive mechanisms to ensure that persons with disabilities in institutions receive quality healthcare, medical and other healthy living supports, and closely monitor their implementation until the deinstitutionalization process for persons with disabilities is finalized;

(b) Strengthen efforts to prevent deaths of people with disabilities through the use of force by police, prison officers and other law enforcement personnel through the development of a comprehensive action plan that included measures for mandatory training, the elimination of force and the implementation of multidisciplinary non-coercive supports;

(c) Collect statistical data on the causes of death of young persons with disabilities and provide the requisite accessible services, including psychosocial services, to remedy these causes.

Benin (2024)

19. The Committee is concerned by information received on children born with disabilities and so-called "sorcerer's" children who are allegedly killed or abandoned by their parents. It is further concerned at the lack of information on legal action taken against the perpetrators of such infanticides.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a legislative framework to protect persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism from abduction and murder, and to ensure that all perpetrators are brought to justice;
- (b) Conduct awareness-raising campaigns to change perceptions and attitudes towards persons with disabilities and combat stereotypes, myths and beliefs associated with albinism, which can incite ritual killings and attacks of persons with albinism and adopt the Plan of Action to End Attacks and Other Human Rights Violations Targeting Persons with Albinism in Africa (2021–2031);
- (c) Recalling the recommendation issued by the Committee on the Rights of the Child to the State party (CRC/C/BEN/CO/3-5, paragraph 29), prevent and eradicate infanticide, and to take prompt and active measures to protect infants' right to life and to ensure that all perpetrators of infanticide are brought to justice.

Burkina Faso (2024)

20. The Committee is concerned about reports of attacks on the life and physical integrity of persons with disabilities, notably on persons with hearing impairment in Ziniaré, and the lack of specific mechanisms to prevent, record, investigate and prosecute attacks on the lives of persons with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish specific mechanisms to prevent attacks on the life and physical integrity of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Record, investigate and prosecute violations of the lives of persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism.

Ghana (2024)

20. The Committee notes with concern that

- (a) Reports of harmful cultural practices like infanticide and ritual killings of children with disabilities, so called "spirit children";
- (b) The enforcement of existing constitutional provisions prohibiting such practices is lacking, leaving individuals, particularly those with disabilities, at risk of practices that violate their rights.

21. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Amend national laws to include specific protections for the right to life of persons with disabilities, and take measures that strengthen sanctions, to ensure an effective protection of the right to life of persons with disabilities, notably persons with albinism and children with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) Launch public education campaigns to dispel myths about disabilities, targeting communities, schools, and traditional leaders, and implement State interventions, including safe shelters, psychosocial support, and community-based monitoring systems to protect persons with disability at risk.

Netherlands (2024)

25. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The significant number of persons with disabilities who have died under the responsibility of law enforcement officers, compared to persons without disabilities.
- (b) The recent changes in the euthanasia law and the lack of specific protection measures to ensure adequate decision-making for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the existing stigma around 'confused behaviour' does not have a negative impact on the work of law enforcement;

(b) Ensure that persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities can freely express their informed consent under the new euthanasia law by, inter alia, establishing mechanisms ensuring full, unbiased and disability-responsive information and protecting from undue influence and pressure.

Ukraine (2024)

20. The Committee is concerned about reports that persons with disabilities have been extrajudicially executed in the context of the conflict and occupation.

21. The Committee recalls that the right to life is non-derogable and enjoys a status of peremptory norm (CCPR/C/21/Rev.1/Add.6), which entails the obligation of the State party and the occupying power to protect the right to life of all persons with disabilities. The Committee calls upon the State party to increase efforts to investigate the extrajudicial executions of persons with disabilities during Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine, and to establish criminal responsibility, adopt measures to restore the dignity of victims, and provide comprehensive reparations to survivors, including family members and communities.

Azerbaijan (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned about the impact of non-communicable diseases on the mortality rate of persons with disabilities and the lack of information about the deaths of persons with disabilities residing in institutions.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that health programmes to address non-communicable diseases include persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, and that early identification and information about prevention and treatment are available for persons with disabilities in accessible formats;

(b) Prevent arbitrary deprivation of life of persons with disabilities living in institutions, including by periodically monitoring registries of deaths in institutions, setting up early warning mechanisms in institutions and ensuring investigations of deaths, prosecutions and where appropriate convictions of perpetrators.

Bahrain (2024)¹

20. The Committee is seriously concerned that the State party's Constitution does not explicitly recognise the right to life as a fundamental right that is inviolable and must be respected. In particular, the Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of fair trial guarantees for persons with disabilities for offences punishable by the death penalty in the Penal Code No. 15 of 1976, as amended, Law No. 58 of 2006 on the protection of society from terrorist acts and Law No. 15 of 2007 on narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances.

(b) The health conditions faced by convicted persons with disabilities that may pose a threat to their lives as a result of poor health care services and lack of accommodations.

21. Recalling the recommendation of the Human Rights Committee on the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (CCPR/C/BHR/CO/1 Para. 32), the Committee recommends that the State party should:

(a) Immediately suspend the execution of existing death sentences and refrain from issuing new ones, especially against persons with disabilities.

(b) Provide accommodations for convicted and detained persons with disabilities and allow independent inspection and fact-finding committees to visit them and explore their physical and mental health conditions.

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

Kazakhstan (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Reports about deaths of persons with disabilities in residential institutions, including in psychiatric settings and detention facilities, in special social service centres for children particularly in the eastern and southern regions, and about the limited number and scope of investigations into and insufficient accountability for actions leading to death or threatening life;
- (b) Reports of suicides among persons with disabilities between 2018 and 2020, and scarce information about measures to prevent them;
- (c) Reports of interruptions of health treatment and medication for persons with disabilities with chronic diseases due to low income and the high cost of the required treatment.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt measures to safeguard the life of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with disabilities in residential institutions and psychiatric settings, and conduct expeditious and independent investigations of any deaths in such institutions;
- (b) Conduct independent investigations of suicides among persons with disabilities and adopt measures to provide psychosocial support to prevent suicides among persons with disabilities;
- (c) Protect the right to life of persons with disabilities in critical health situations by, inter alia, ensuring affordable access to the required medical treatment and medication.

Nicaragua (2024)

18. Al Comité le preocupa que:

- a) En el periodo de 2012 a 2019 se registraron un total de 526 feminicidios, un promedio de 75 feminicidios por año, y que se desconoce cuántos de esos se perpetraron en mujeres o niñas con discapacidad;
- b) Se cuente con información sobre desaparición forzada de mujeres y adolescentes migrantes, y no se conozca cuantas de ellas tienen alguna discapacidad.

19. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) Tipificar el delito de feminicidio y establecer sanciones severas para este tipo de crímenes;
- b) Investigue, con base en la Ley General de Migración y Extranjería (Ley núm. 761), las desapariciones forzadas de mujeres y niñas migrantes, especialmente aquellas con discapacidad, se establezca justicia restaurativa para ellas y se investigue y, en su caso, sancione a los perpetradores.

Sweden (2024)

23. The Committee notes the information provided by the State party's delegation on the training provided to the police force, and the development of a handbook on interacting with persons with psychosocial disabilities, as well as a planned strategy for mental health and suicide prevention, which is going to include a disability perspective. However, it notes with concern:

- (a) A disproportionately high use of firearms by the police force against persons with psychosocial disabilities, and a substantial rise in the use of firearms by the police force in recent years, as evidenced in the report "Polismyndighetens användning av särskilda hjälpmedel för våldsanvändning, Redovisning av data fram till 31 december 2022";
- (b) The lack of measures taken to prevent avoidable deaths among persons with disabilities in institutions.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen the training for law enforcement officers in order to avoid the excessive use of force and firearms, in particular with regard to persons with psychosocial disabilities, and persons with disabilities from intersecting backgrounds of marginalization;

(b) Develop a comprehensive approach to prevent avoidable deaths among persons with disabilities in institutions, including by providing training to all professionals working with persons with disabilities, such as health, social, education and community workers, and ensure that criminal acts are effectively prosecuted.

Zambia (2024)

19.The Committee is deeply concerned at reports of attacks, mutilation, abduction and murder of persons with albinism.

20.The Committee, recalling its jurisprudence recommends that the State party:

(a)Take immediate and urgent legal and policy measures to safeguard and protect persons with disabilities and persons with albinism from abduction and murder, and to ensure that all perpetrators are brought to justice;

(b) Conduct awareness raising campaigns to change perceptions and attitudes towards persons with disabilities and combat stereotypes, myths and beliefs associated with albinism which motivate ritual killings and attacks on persons with albinism.

Andorra (2023)

21.The Committee is concerned about insufficient safeguards concerning the consideration of the will and preference of persons with disabilities as regards their health care and treatment, including in palliative care.

22.The Committee recommends that the State party reinforces safeguards, including adopting protocols to ensure that all decisions about medical treatment in life-threatening situations and palliative care are made on the basis of the will and preference of the person concerned and that the latter is provided with appropriate support.

Germany (2023)

21.The Committee notes with appreciation that the State party enacted a federal law governing triage decisions in situations of insufficient medical capacities, and that these rules prohibit any direct and indirect discrimination based on disability. However, the Committee is concerned that the triage criterion of “actual or short-term probability of survival”, as laid down in the law, may discriminate persons with disabilities indirectly, despite the legal prohibition of such discrimination.

22.The Committee recommends that the State party review the new federal law on triage decisions in situations of insufficient medical capacities and enact a triage criterion that effectively prevents any direct or indirect discrimination of persons with disabilities.

Israel (2023)

21.The Committee is concerned about:

(a)Reports of deaths of persons with disabilities at border controls by security forces, during public demonstrations and as a consequence of law enforcement operations and hostilities, including air strikes and risks of persons with disabilities in the context of public demonstrations against Government initiatives of judicial reform;

(b)Application of section 5C of the Civil Wrongs (Liability of the State) Law, 5712 – 1952 excluding liability for damages, and decisions to close investigations;

(c)The impact of triage measures for critical health care for persons with disabilities, in particular ventilators during the COVID-19 pandemic.

22.The Committee recalls the recommendations issued by the Human Rights Committee (CCPR/C/ISR/CO/5, see para. 27) and recommends that the State party:

(a)Prevent the unnecessary and disproportionate use of force, including unwarranted lethal force by security forces against civilians, including persons with disabilities, ensure investigations to identify and bring perpetrators to account and ensure that victims are provided with full reparations;

- (b)Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to effective remedies in cases of unwarranted use of force and review legislation to allow complaints by persons with disabilities affected by acts or omissions by the occupying power;
- (c)Expedite the inception of multidisciplinary crisis teams to intervene in cases relating to law enforcement operations in relation to persons with psychosocial disabilities and ensure close consultations and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Law Enforcement and Security Forces' Interactions with persons with disabilities (CRPD/C/ISR/RQ/1, paras. 50 and 51);
- (d)Take measures to prevent injuries and violence against persons with disabilities in the context of public demonstrations, and ensure that use of force complies with applicable international human rights law;
- (e)Ensure that access to critical health care for persons with disabilities is based on human rights based ethical decision-making principles and procedures in emergencies, including related to COVID-19.

Malawi (2023)

21.The Committee is concerned about:

- (a)The absence of the right to life as an explicit right to be protected under the Disability Act of 2012 (Cap 33:06);
- (b)The expiry of the National Action Plan on Persons with Albinism in Malawi (2022) and that persons with albinism continue to experience violent and fatal attacks, and disappearances due to misconceptions and beliefs hindering their right to life and enjoyment of life;
- (c)Lack of financial resources and implementation of the National Action Plan on Persons with Albinism In Malawi, which limits its effectiveness in protecting the right to life of persons with albinism.

22.The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations :

- (a)Include the right to life as an explicit right to be protected in the new Persons with Disabilities Bill;
- (b)Renew, review and implement the National Action Plan on Persons with Albinism in Malawi promptly so it exists beyond 2022, ensuring close consultation with and active involvement of persons with albinism, including, women and girls with albinism and children with albinism, through their representative organizations;
- (c)Allocate financial resources that are sufficient to implement the National Action Plan on Persons with Albinism in Malawi so that it can be more effective in protecting the right to life of persons with albinism

Argentina (2023)

21.Preocupan al Comité los informes relativos a las muertes de personas con discapacidad en centros de salud mental, así como la falta de información y la ausencia de investigaciones y sanciones en estos casos.

22.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte adoptar medidas efectivas para prevenir las muertes en centros de salud mental y llevar a cabo investigaciones exhaustivas e independientes sobre las causas y circunstancias de las muertes acaecidas en estos establecimientos, sancione a los responsables y otorgue reparaciones integrales en estos casos.

Georgia (2023)

21.The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) According to paragraph 2 of Article 148 of the Law of Georgia on Healthcare, if a person with a terminal illness is unconscious, a relative or a legitimate representative has the right to decline the services of resuscitation, end-of-life-care and palliative care and/or palliative treatment for the patient, referred to by the State party in its replies to the list of issues and questions (CPRD/C/GEO/RQ/1 para, 54);

(b) Substitute decision-making curtails the right of persons with disabilities under guardianship to take decisions concerning their healthcare and treatment, particularly life - ending measures, and that decisions made by legal representatives and healthcare practitioners prevail (CPRD/C/GEO/RQ/1 para, 56).

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities and the Public Defender of Georgia:

(a) Repeal provisions that allow for denial of end-of-life care and palliative care on the basis of third parties' assessments and reaffirm the value of lives of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, including by taking legislative measures and adopting protocols to ensure that all decisions about medical treatment in life-threatening situations are made on the basis of the will and preference of the person concerned, and that the latter is provided with appropriate support;

(b) Review its legislation and amend provisions that restrict the autonomy of persons with disabilities in healthcare.

Peru (2023)

20. Al Comité le preocupa la falta de datos sobre las personas con discapacidad que murieron como consecuencia de la pandemia del COVID-19, incluso en instituciones públicas y privadas, dado que el Estado parte tuvo una de las tasas de mortalidad más altas del mundo.

21. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que investigue el impacto de la pandemia del COVID-19 en la vida de las personas con discapacidad, incluidas las personas mayores, y tome las medidas necesarias para que se dé prioridad a la vida de las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo durante las emergencias.

Togo (2023)

19. The Committee is deeply concerned that persons with disabilities are subject to inhumane treatment and harmful practices, in particular children are likely to be killed or abandoned by their parents. It is also concerned at reports on abduction and murder of persons with albinism.

20. The Committee, recalling its jurisprudence² recommends that the State party take appropriate legal and policy measures to safeguard and protect persons with disabilities, especially children and persons with albinism from abandonment, murder and abduction, and to ensure that all perpetrators are brought to justice.

Bangladesh (2022)

21. The Committee is concerned about reported cases of infanticide on the basis of impairment.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party take appropriate legal and policy measures to safeguard and protect children with disabilities from infanticide based on impairment.

China (2022)

24. The Committee is concerned about the lack of action taken to prevent the neglect, abandonment and starvation threatening the life of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, and reported cases of the termination or withdrawal of medical treatment without the consent of the person concerned.

²X. v. The United Republic of Tanzania, Communication No. 22/2014 of 5 October 2017

Y. v. The United Republic of Tanzania, Communication No. 23/2014 of 30 October 2018

Z. v. The United Republic of Tanzania, Communication No. 24/2014 of 15 October 2019

25. The Committee recommends that the State party expeditiously assess and provide remedies for persons with disabilities whose right to life is threatened. It further recommends the training of healthcare professionals on procedures to ensure that the consent of persons is sought as a requirement to terminate or withdraw medical treatment.

Indonesia (2022)

20. The Committee notes with concern reports of deaths in social care institutions, the lack of investigations, standards of care and safeguards, monitoring, reporting and accountability frameworks, including sanctions.

21. The Committee recommends that the State Party establish a comprehensive quality and safeguards framework for social care institutions that includes investigations, monitoring, reporting and accountability mechanisms, including sanctions, until deinstitutionalisation is achieved.

Japan (2022)

23. The Committee is concerned about the reports on the cases of deaths of persons with disabilities resulted from the:

- (a) Lack of safeguards of the right to life of persons with disabilities, including lack of consideration of their will and preferences as regards the non-start and/or continuation of their medical treatment, including in palliative care;
- (b) Physical and chemical restrains in the condition of involuntary hospitalisation on the bases of impairment;
- (c) It is also concerned by the lack of statistics on the causes and circumstances of and independent investigation on the deaths in psychiatric hospitals.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities and independent monitoring mechanisms:

- (a) Explicitly recognize the right to life of persons with disabilities and ensure the respective safeguards, including the expression of their will and preferences and the required support for it, as regards their treatment, including in palliative care;
- (b) Prevent any form of involuntary hospitalisation and treatment on the bases of impairment of a person and ensure necessary support to persons with disabilities in community-based services;
- (c) Conduct thorough and independent investigation on causes and circumstances of the cases of deaths in psychiatric hospitals.

New Zealand (2022)

17. The Committee is concerned about the negative perceptions and the devaluing of persons with disabilities that were expressed during the passage of the End of Life Choice Act 2019, and the potential negative impact of this on the implementation, monitoring and review of the Act.

18. The Committee recommends that monitoring and review mechanisms for the End of Life Choice Act 2019 provide publicly available information on the impact on persons with disabilities, including the effectiveness of safeguards to counteract negative perceptions held by medical professionals and to prevent coercion in decision-making.

Republic of Korea (2022)

21. The Committee is deeply concerned about:

- (a) The high rate of suicide and disappearances among autistic persons, persons with psychosocial disabilities, as well as cases of parents with disabilities killing their children before committing suicide;
- (b) The deaths of persons with disabilities in institutional settings, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt and implement a national suicide and disappearances prevention strategy for persons with disabilities, with specific measures to target autistic persons, persons with psychosocial disabilities and families, and to ensure close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) Develop measures in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities and independent monitoring mechanisms, to initiate emergency deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities to ensure safe and independent living in the community and to protect the right to life in critical health situations.

Singapore (2022)

19. The Committee is gravely concerned about the legality, the imposition and the execution of the death penalty in the State party on persons with intellectual disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities, and autistic persons, as well as for crimes not involving intentional killing. It is equally concerned about the execution of a person with intellectual disabilities despite the prior intervention of the Committee's Chair.

20. The Committee urgently recommends the State party abolish the death penalty for persons with psychosocial disabilities, for persons with intellectual disabilities, and for autistic persons, as well as for crimes not involving intentional killing, and immediately halt all impositions and executions of the death penalty in such cases, in accordance with the limits established under international law. It encourages the State party to ratify the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and its Second Optional Protocol, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty.

Hungary (2022)

20. The Committee notes with concern the lack of investigation and prosecutions concerning the deaths of persons with disabilities, including of children with disabilities, in residential institutions.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party expeditiously start investigations into the deaths of persons with disabilities in institutions, recognize such deaths as "extraordinary events", which may be due to the abuse endured in institutions, and prosecute and punish perpetrators. It also recommends that the State party provide remedies and redress to the families of victims in cases of deaths of persons with disabilities and expedite deinstitutionalization for all persons with disabilities who remain in institutions.

Mexico (2022)

29. The Committee is concerned about multiple reports indicating a high risk of death of children and adults with disabilities in institutions, resulting from various forms of restraints and improper medical treatment in psychiatric hospitals, and from insufficient professional assistance and support.

30. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) In close consultation with, and including the active involvement of, persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, conduct a thorough inquiry into all deaths of children and adult persons with disabilities in all institutions since the Committee's previous concluding observations;
- (b) Provide protection to the victims of these crimes and bring perpetrators to justice.

Switzerland (2022)

21. The Committee notes with concern that the guidelines issued by the Swiss Academy of Medical Sciences on decisions regarding resuscitation do not sufficiently protect the right to life of persons with disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party develop human rights-based decision-making guidelines, in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, to ensure that decisions regarding resuscitation do not discriminate on the basis of disability.

Venezuela (2022)

18. The Committee is concerned about the rates of social violence, including a homicide rate of 23.1 per cent, and reports of crackdowns during demonstrations resulting in death or disability.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct formal investigations into the causes of the homicide rate and, in particular, into how many persons with disabilities are included in this rate;
- (b) Investigate how many persons with disabilities have been assaulted or imprisoned during the demonstrations, how many people have been left with a disability during these events and what measures have been taken to compensate them.

France (2021)

21. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) The high suicide rate among autistic persons and persons with psychosocial disabilities;
- (b) The deaths of persons with disabilities in institutional settings, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Strengthen measures to implement a national suicide prevention strategy for persons with disabilities, with specific measures to target autistic persons and persons with psychosocial disabilities and to ensure close consultation and active involvement of people with disability through their representative organisations;
- (b) Develop measures in consultation with organisations of persons with disabilities and independent monitoring mechanisms, to initiate emergency deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities to ensure safe and independent living in the community and to protect the right to life in critical health situations.

Australia (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The significantly lower life expectancy of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities within Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, than that of the general population;
- (b) A significant number of persons with disabilities expressing suicidal ideation, particularly within Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, due to, inter alia, lack of support, poverty and isolation;
- (c) The high rate of premature and unexpected but avoidable deaths among persons with disabilities in care settings.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Address the low life expectancy of persons with disabilities, especially persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with disabilities within Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities;
- (b) Ensure that its national mental health and suicide prevention plans include targeted measures for persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, and develop, in consultation with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons with disabilities, culturally appropriate measures to prevent, identify and address the high rate of suicide among those populations;
- (c) Ensure a comprehensive approach to suicide prevention among persons with disabilities in the training of all professionals working with and for persons with disabilities, including health, social, education and community workers.

El Salvador (2019)

20. The Committee is deeply concerned at the killings of persons with disabilities, often perpetrated by criminal gangs, at the alarming rise in femicides, which also affect women and girls with disabilities, and at the low rate of prosecution and conviction of the perpetrators.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party immediately adopt measures to effectively address killings of persons with disabilities perpetrated by criminal gangs, and in particular femicides of women and girls with disabilities, and ensure that the perpetrators are prosecuted and convicted.

India (2019)

22. The Committee is concerned about the deaths of children with disabilities in institutions, and information about “mercy killings” of intersex children with disabilities. It is also concerned about information about alleged extrajudicial executions of persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities in conflict areas.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure respect for the right to life of all persons with disabilities, enforce investigations aimed at identifying the cause of death of children with disabilities in institutions and sanction the perpetrators. It also recommends that the State party protect intersex children from attacks against their lives and any related harmful practices, and adopt measures to prevent the execution of persons with disabilities in relation to violence and armed conflict.

Kuwait (2019)

20. The Committee is concerned about the legality and practice of the death penalty and about the execution of persons with disabilities in the State party in disregard of the limits recognized under international law.

21. The Committee urges the State party to abolish the death penalty and immediately halt all executions of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, in accordance with the limits established under international law. It also recommends that the State party ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty.

Rwanda (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned that, whereas no specific killing in the State party itself has been reported, the right to life of persons with albinism in the State party and in the East African region, in general is under threat due to myths and false beliefs and practices.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate measures to protect persons with albinism against threats of abduction and killings, and conduct awareness-raising efforts, including a public information campaign on the rights of persons with albinism in consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, including persons with albinism and their organizations.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned at the legality of capital punishment in the State party. It is moreover concerned at the application of this sentence to persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party abolish the death penalty for persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and suspend all current death sentences, in order to comply with its obligation under Article 10 of the Convention.

Senegal (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about the absence of measures to prevent crimes against persons with disabilities, particularly persons with albinism, protect victims and prosecute perpetrators.

18. The Committee recommends that the State Party take necessary measures to prevent criminal behaviour, sometimes resulting in death towards persons with disabilities, particularly persons with albinism, and provide protection to victims of such crimes and bring perpetrators to justice.

Spain (2019)

18. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Reported cases of violence against women with psychosocial disabilities perpetrated by their intimate partners, which in some cases resulted in their death;
- (b) Reported deaths of persons with psychosocial disabilities as a result of involuntary restraint and improper medical treatment in psychiatric hospitals;
- (c) Reported cases of deaths of persons with disabilities resulting from insufficient professional assistance and support.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party take all appropriate measures to address gender-based violence against women with psychosocial disabilities and to prevent, investigate and provide redress for violations of their human rights, and prosecute those responsible. It also recommends that the State party ensure that services and facilities for persons experiencing violence in the public or private sphere, are accessible to persons with disabilities, including shelters, victim support services, reporting and complaint mechanisms, include a gender and a child rights perspective and are confidential. Finally, it recommends that State party ensure that members of the law-enforcement officials, judiciary, health and social services receive mandatory and regular training on the prevention and detection of violence and abuse of persons with disabilities.

Türkiye (2019)

21. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information and monitoring on the situation of persons with disabilities in institutions, particularly women, and the reported deaths of persons with disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party establish an effective and transparent mechanism to investigate situations of neglect and destitution of persons with disabilities, particularly women, and deaths of persons with disabilities in institutional settings, and release periodic public records on this matter.

Bulgaria (2018)

25. The Committee is concerned about information of reported cases of neglect, overmedication, and refusal of access to health care affecting persons with intellectual and persons with psychosocial disabilities, which have allegedly caused the death of persons with disabilities.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party takes effective measures to prosecute and convict perpetrators and ensure the respect of the right to life of children and persons with disabilities, in particularly those still institutionalized.

South Africa (2018)

18. The Committee is concerned about extreme forms of violence against persons with disabilities, especially persons with albinism and children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, including kidnappings, killings and attacks for witchcraft practices, and the absence of measures to prevent these crimes, protect victims and to prosecute and convict perpetrators.

19. The Committee strongly recommends that the State party:

- (a) Take all necessary measures to prevent the killings of persons with disabilities, particularly persons with albinism, and ensure their protection and that perpetrators are brought to justice and are given sanctions commensurate with the gravity of these crimes;
- (b) Ensure full implementation of the Ekurhuleni Declaration on the Rights of Persons with Albinism adopted in 2013 and ensure effective investigations of violations of the rights of persons with albinism.

Haiti (2018)

18. The Committee is deeply concerned of the heightened risks to the right to life of persons with disabilities, particularly women, due to violence and crime against them, exacerbated by superstitions and negative beliefs of disability. The Committee regrets reports of three women with a hearing impairment who were savagely murdered in 2016 on the grounds that they were evil spirits. It further regrets that, to date, the perpetrators have not been prosecuted and sentenced.

19. The Committee urges the State party to take all legal and other measures necessary to ensure that persons with disabilities can enjoy their right to life on an equal basis with others. It recommends that the State party ensure that all personnel in the administration of justice system are equipped with the resources to prosecute and punish crimes that infringe on the right to life of persons with disabilities.

Oman (2018)

21. The Committee notes with concern reports on the cultural practices of “compassionate” and “honour killing”, especially with regards to children with disabilities who may be killed by their mothers.

22. The Committee strongly recommends that the State party adopt appropriate measures to eliminate the practices of “compassionate” and “honour killing” especially where it affects children with disabilities, including by taking measures to address the stigmatization of and prejudice against such children aimed at reaffirming the value and dignity of children with disabilities within the family and the society at large.

Montenegro (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned about reported cases of death through suffocation in psychiatric hospitals and the fact that no specific prevention measures with safeguards have been taken since those reported deaths occurred. It notes with concern that hospitals lack specific protocols on how to proceed following allegations of abuse and that it is not mandatory to conduct an autopsy following the death of persons placed in institutions.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish anonymous and accessible complaint mechanisms in all hospitals, particularly psychiatric hospitals and departments, and in institutions, and develop an obligatory protocol that all hospitals and institutions are required to follow upon any abuse allegations;
- (b) Make autopsy mandatory in cases of death in hospitals and institutions;
- (c) Introduce specific safeguards to avoid accidents such as suffocation in all hospital and institution settings.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

26. The Committee notes with concern that the substituted decision-making applied in matters of termination or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment and care is inconsistent with the right to life of persons with disabilities as equal and contributing members of society.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a plan of action aimed at eliminating perceptions towards persons with disabilities as not having “a good and decent life” and recognizing persons with disabilities as equal to others and part of the diversity of humankind. It also recommends that the State party ensure access to life-sustaining treatment and/or care.

Canada (2017)

23. The Committee is concerned about the adoption of legislation that provides for medical assistance in dying, including on the grounds of disability. It is also concerned about the absence of regulations for monitoring medical assistance in dying, the absence of data to assess compliance with the procedural safeguards regarding such assistance, and the lack of sufficient support to facilitate civil society engagement with and monitoring of this practice.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure persons who seek an assisted death have access to alternative courses of action and to a dignified life made possible with appropriate palliative care, disability support, home care and other social measures that support human flourishing;

- (b) Establish regulations pursuant to the law requiring collection and reporting of detailed information about each request and intervention for medical assistance in dying;
- (c) Develop a national data standard and an effective and independent mechanism to ensure that compliance with the law and regulations is strictly enforced and that no person with disability is subjected to external pressure.

Cyprus (2017)

29. The Committee is concerned about the lack of preventative measures and disaggregated data on, inter alia, the causes and numbers of deaths of persons with disabilities residing in psychiatric facilities, institutions, group homes or other places of living.

30. The Committee urges the State party to adapt, monitor and enforce all possible measures to identify causes of death, including suicide, and take all prevention measures necessary to address the situations of risk of death among persons with disabilities.

Honduras (2017)

23. Al Comité le preocupa que las personas con discapacidad vean amenazada su vida por motivos de extorsión por las maras o bandas criminales.

24. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que proteja especialmente la vida de las personas con discapacidad de extorsiones y amenazas.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

22. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities may be at risk of facing a greater risk of death penalty due to lack of procedural accommodations, in criminal proceedings.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to replace death penalty as form of punishment and ensure that persons with disabilities are not subject to arbitrary deprivation of life.

Bolivia (2016)

23. The Committee is concerned at reports of cases of killing of newborn children with disabilities in the State party's most remote communities; these cases are motivated by persistent prejudices.

24. The Committee urges the State party to strengthen measures to protect children with disabilities and guarantee their right to life. It recommends that it adopt awareness-raising and educational measures for families of children with disabilities and their communities. It also recommends that the State party provide the necessary assistance to the families of children with disabilities to ensure that they have general information, services and support in their family life and in attaining an adequate and dignified standard of living.

Colombia (2016)

24. The Committee is concerned about reports that persons with disabilities were extrajudicially executed and later falsely reported as guerrillas in 10 cases of "false-positives".

25. The Committee recommends that the State party increase efforts to investigate the execution of persons with disabilities in "false-positive" cases during the armed conflict and establish criminal responsibility, and that it adopt measures to restore the dignity of victims and grant reparations to their families.

Ethiopia (2016)

21. The Committee is deeply concerned that protection of the right to life of persons with disabilities, especially persons with albinism and children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, is not effective either in law or in practice.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures, including effective investigations and strengthening sanctions, to ensure an effective protection of the right to life of persons with disabilities, especially persons with albinism and children with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities.

Uganda (2016)

18. The Committee is concerned about the violations of the right to life of persons with disabilities in some communities where myths abound that disability is a “curse” leading to harmful consequences to persons with disabilities.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party raise public awareness on the right to life of persons with disabilities and take legal action against perpetrators.

Gabon (2015)

24. The Committee is concerned about the practice of ritual crimes in the State party, including against persons with disabilities.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt all appropriate legal, administrative and educational measures, including awareness-raising programs, to absolutely eradicate all instances of ritual crimes.

Kenya (2015)

19. The Committee is concerned by different forms of violence against persons with albinism in particular girls, including kidnaps, killings and attacks for the purpose of witchcraft practices, and the absence of measures to protect victims and to prosecute and convict perpetrators.

20. The Committee calls upon the State party to:

(a) Promptly investigate all cases of violence against persons with albinism ensuring that they are appropriately prosecuted and punished;

(b) Create shelters and redress services for victims of attacks including healthcare, counseling and free legal aid; and

(c) Redouble efforts to raise awareness about the dignity and rights of persons with albinism and ensure the involvement of organizations of persons with albinism in any campaigns aimed at eliminating stigmatization and myths that underpin violence against persons with albinism.

Ukraine (2015)

20. The Committee is concerned about the reports that children with disabilities from institutions are at high risk to be targeted for trafficking of organs by organized crime groups.

21. The Committee urges the State party to implement immediate protection measures for children with disabilities who remain institutionalized and take measures to eliminate any risks of organ trafficking involving children with disabilities. The Committee also recommends to carry out systematic monitoring of institutions for children with disabilities.

Sweden (2014)

29. The Committee expresses its deep concern about the increasingly high rate of suicide among persons with disabilities, including boys and girls, in the State party.

30. The Committee urges the State party to adopt all necessary measures to prevent, identify and address situations of risk of suicide in persons with disabilities, including boys and girls.

China (2012)

19. The Committee expresses its utmost concern about the abduction of persons with intellectual disabilities, most of them children, and the staging of “mining accidents” in Hebei, Fujian, Liaoning and Sichuan, resulting in the victim’s death in order to claim compensation from the mine owners.

20. The Committee strongly urges the state party to continue investigating these incidents and prosecute all those responsible, and impose appropriate sanctions. It also asks the state party to implement comprehensive measures to prevent further abductions of boys with intellectual disabilities and provide remedies to the victims.

Hong-Kong

63. The Committee is concerned about the heightened suicide risk among persons with intellectual or psycho-social disabilities (35 % of the overall suicide rate in Hong Kong SAR).

64. The Committee calls upon Hong Kong, China, to provide the necessary mental treatment based on free and informed consent of the person and counselling to these persons. The Committee recommends a regular assessment of their suicide risk.

Spain (2011)

29. The Committee welcomes the fact that Act 26/2011 amends regulations to contain provisions to reflect the right to accessibility when granting informed consent to medical treatment. It however regrets that guardians representing persons with disabilities deemed “legally incapacitated” may validly consent to termination or withdrawal of medical treatment, nutrition or other life support for those persons. The Committee wishes to remind the State party that the right to life is absolute, and that substitute decision-making in regard to the termination or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment is inconsistent with this right.

30. The Committee requests the State party to ensure that the informed consent of all persons with disabilities is secured on all matters relating to medical treatment, especially the withdrawal of treatment, nutrition or other life support.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 11 CRPD
(Situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies)*

September 2025

Article 11 - Situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies

States Parties shall take, in accordance with their obligations under international law, including international humanitarian law and international human rights law, all necessary measures to ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including situations of armed conflict, humanitarian emergencies and the occurrence of natural disasters.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
China (Hong Kong)
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)
Spain (2019)
Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)

Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Malta (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
Italy (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)
Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)

Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Spain (2011)

Please note there are no recommendations in the Concluding Observations on Article 11 on Russian Federation, Brazil, Croatia, Belgium, Ecuador, New Zealand, Costa Rica, Argentina, China, Hungary, Peru and Tunisia.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

19. The Committee welcomes article 62 of the Law of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on the Provision of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, according to which persons with disabilities shall be rescued, treated and assisted first in times of emergency. However, the Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities and their representative organizations are not closely consulted nor actively involved in the design, implementation, and monitoring of disaster risk reduction, climate change adaptation, and humanitarian response plans, contrary to the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, and Goal 7 of the Incheon Strategy.

20. The Committee recommends that the State Party closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, including those of women and girls with disabilities in the design, implementation, and evaluation of all disaster risk reduction, climate change adaptation, and humanitarian response plans at national and local levels, in line with the Sendai Framework, the Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines, and the Incheon Strategy.

Finland (2025)

20. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of mandatory requirements and monitoring mechanisms for disability inclusion in humanitarian action, civil protection, disaster risk reduction and climate change, including in the Åland Islands;

(b) The insufficient mechanisms for organizations of persons with disabilities, including those on the Åland Islands and for Sámi persons with disabilities to be closely consulted and actively involved in the design and implementation of policies concerning humanitarian action, civil protection, disaster risk reduction and climate change;

(c) The inaccessible emergency and early warning systems, including the cessation of the trial sign language emergency calls via video link program and the postponement of real-time text (RTT) for emergency calls until 2027.

21. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee's Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

(a) Ensure that the legislative, policy and implementation frameworks on humanitarian action, disaster risk reduction, civil protection and climate change are inclusive of measures for the protection and safety of persons with disabilities, establish reporting, capacity building and monitoring mechanisms and, incorporate disability inclusion indicators based on the principles and standards of the Convention;

(b) Establish formal engagement mechanisms for persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including those on the Åland Islands and for Sámi persons with disabilities, to facilitate the design, implementation and monitoring of policies concerning humanitarian action, civil protection, disaster risk reduction and climate change;

(c) Establish and implement accessible emergency and early warning systems, including by expediting implementation of relevant EU Directives and development of new emergency and early warning practices to ensure accessibility for all persons with disabilities.

Kiribati (2025)

19. The Committee recognizes the vulnerability of the State Party to the impacts of climate change and disasters and notes with concern:

(a) The insufficient attention paid to the situation of persons with disabilities in the Climate Change Policy, the Kiribati Joint Implementation Plan (KJIP) and disaster legislation.

(b) The lack of disability-inclusive measures in disaster preparedness and response, including accessible early-warning systems, evacuation services and shelters, and reports that humanitarian aid, including food, clean drinking water and proper sanitation, is not available to persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others.

20. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure the inclusion of disability perspectives in all national frameworks on climate change and disaster risk reduction, including the Climate Change Policy, the Kiribati Joint Implementation Plan (KJIP) and disaster legislation to safeguard the rights and livelihoods of persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities have access to humanitarian aid on an equal basis with others, including through adequate funding, and that related information and communication, including on protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and disasters, on evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices and sanitation facilities, as well as decision making processes are accessible for persons with disabilities.

Maldives (2025)

21. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the lack of effective implementation of the Disability Act and specific integration of all groups of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, in emergency planning and response, in particular in the National Strategy for Disaster Risk Reduction (2024-2030) and the National Disaster Management Plan;

(b) At the limited availability of information on evacuation, emergency, and risk management systems in accessible formats, as well as the insufficient training on disaster risk reduction and emergency preparedness for persons with disabilities.

22. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including by:

(a) Strengthen the legislative and policy framework on disaster risk reduction and emergency response, in particular the Disaster Management Act (2015) and the Climate change policy framework to ensure they are disability inclusive;

(b) Ensuring that persons with disabilities have access to humanitarian aid on equal basis with others, including through adequate funding, and that related information and communication, including on protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, on evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices, as well as decision making processes are accessible for persons with disabilities.

Canada (2025)

21. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Policies and action plans to address situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including in relation to climate change, the opioid crisis, disaster risk reduction and emergency management do not provide extensive guidance and concrete measures for the protection and safety of persons with disabilities, and that there are barriers to emergency responses, access to emergency management information and early warning systems;

(b) First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities, and Black and other racialized communities experience environmental racism, such as polluting industries and hazards, which have detrimental health impacts causing or exacerbating impairment and secondary impairments, including life-threatening illnesses.

22. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, the Charter of Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Review federal, provincial, and territorial plans and policies to ensure that preparation and response measures to address situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including climate change, environmental action, the opioid crisis, public health, and other emergencies are disability inclusive, and establish protocols to ensure the provision of accessible information, communications and early warning systems, and training for public bodies and emergency service staff in these protocols;

(b) Ensure that the implementation of the 2024 National Strategy Respecting Environmental Racism and Environmental Justice Act is disability inclusive and addresses the intersection between environmental racism and ableism.

Dominican Republic (2025)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Information received through several UN agencies about the lack of access to information, emergency services and social protection programs during the Covid-19 pandemic, which reflects the lack of inclusion of the requirements of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction plans and strategies;

(b) The insufficient consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in developing the disaster risk reduction and emergency strategies, plans and programs;

20. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and its guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including by:

(a) Ensuring that disaster risk response plans and strategies at the national, regional and municipal levels are drafted in close consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, and explicitly address their specific requirements in all situations of risk;

(b) Ensuring the full accessibility of all communication measures, including emergency numbers and hotlines, implementing real-time communication methods and providing round-the-clock access to services such as text messaging, video relay services and other accessible communications technologies to ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively reach emergency services at all times.

European Union (2025)

30. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of mandatory requirements and monitoring mechanisms for disability inclusion in humanitarian action, civil protection, disaster risk reduction and climate change;

(b) The limited support for organizations of persons with disabilities to be closely consulted and actively involved in the implementation of policies pertaining to humanitarian action, civil protection, disaster risk reduction and climate change.

31. Recalling its previous concluding observations (paras. 33 and 35), the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the European Union, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure that the EU legislative, policy and implementation frameworks on humanitarian action, disaster risk reduction, civil protection and climate change protect the safety and security of persons with disabilities, enhance reporting, capacity building and monitoring mechanisms and incorporate indicators on disability inclusion and the principles and rights of the Convention;

(b) Promote disability-inclusive responses to prevent avoidable deaths in emergencies, establish close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in decision-making processes and monitoring of responses to humanitarian emergencies, pandemics, and other disasters and in global, regional and national negotiations on climate change, and support official recognition of organizations of persons with disabilities as part of a Disability Constituency within the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change.

Palau (2025)

19. The Committee notes the vulnerability of the State party to natural disasters and is concerned:

(a) That persons with disabilities are not sufficiently involved in disaster risk reduction plans at the national and community levels, including the National Disaster Risk Reduction Framework (2016 -2030);

(b) At the lack of unified measures taken to establish an emergency notification system that is accessible for all persons with disabilities regardless of the type of impairment.

20. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations improve the accessibility of warning information for persons with all categories of disabilities, particularly for persons with visual and hearing impairments, those with deafblindness and those with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and ensure that persons with disabilities are represented in the National Emergency Committee (NEC) and included in the National Disaster Risk Reduction Framework (2016 -2030).

Tuvalu (2025)

19. The Committee notes the vulnerability of the State party to disasters and is concerned about insufficient specific attention paid to the situation of persons with disabilities in Tuvalu National Climate Change Policy 2021 – 2030, as well as in disaster legislation and that humanitarian aid, including food aid, clean drinking water and proper sanitation, is not available for persons with disabilities on equal basis with others.

20. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies , the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including by:

- (a) Reviewing the National Climate Change Policy 2021 – 2030 and the relevant national legislation, policies and guidelines, including the disaster legislation under review to ensure they are disability inclusive;
- (b) Ensuring that persons with disabilities have access to humanitarian aid on equal basis with others, including through adequate funding, and that related information and communication, including on protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, on evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices, as well as decision making processes are accessible for persons with disabilities.

Viet Nam (2025)

21. The Committee takes note of the establishment of Provincial Steering Committees for Disaster Prevention and Control and Provincial Search and Rescue Committees. However, it is concerned that:

- (a) Certain regulatory and implementation gaps remain concerning the prevention and management of natural disasters, as well as the reduction of disaster risk for persons with disabilities, and persons with disabilities and their representative organizations have not been adequately included in these processes;
- (b) The languages for communication and information during risk situations remain undefined, and targeted groups, including individuals with hearing and visual disabilities, have not received adequate information and warnings;
- (c) From central to local level, no awareness-raising has been conducted on planning and execution of disaster risk reduction and early warning activities, and prevention and management of situations of risks and humanitarian emergencies;
- (d) The absence of disaggregated data on persons with disabilities by type of impairment, age, and sex hinders the assessment of their situations and the identification of their backgrounds, making it challenging to develop suitable support plans in risk and humanitarian emergency scenarios.

22. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee's Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including by:

- (a) Implementing measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, collaborate closely with Provincial Steering Committees to identify and address the specific needs required to provide necessary support during risk situations and humanitarian emergencies, tailored to each type of disability, and ensure their active and adequate inclusion in these discussions;
- (b) Defining and implementing clear communication and information protocols during risk situations, ensuring that targeted groups, including individuals with hearing and visual disabilities, receive adequate information and warnings;
- (c) Establishing cooperation with international organizations to ensure that, in close collaboration with persons with disabilities, awareness-raising on disaster risk reduction is conducted and documents on the prevention and management of risk situations and humanitarian emergencies for persons with disabilities are improved;
- (d) Developing statistics disaggregated by age, sex, and type of disability for individuals most vulnerable to harm during situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

Belarus (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of specific measures for persons with disabilities in the State party, those impacted or displaced by the humanitarian crisis in Ukraine, particularly in regard to the risks for children with disabilities facing situations of institutionalization, or, their involvement and abuse in the context of the conflict;
- (b) The lack of participation of and consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities in the formulation of National Emergency Risk Reduction Strategy 2019–2030;
- (c) The absence of specific measures and evacuation plans that are responsive to persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

22. The Committee, recalling the Guidelines on Deinstitutionalization, including in Emergency Situations (2022), recommends that in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, the State party:

- (a) Expeditiously establish an identification system of persons with disabilities affected by conflict, including women and children with disabilities, internally displaced persons with disabilities, those with disabilities in refugee-like situations and those of Ukrainian origin, ensuring all humanitarian access and support to their requirements;
- (b) Adopt a disability-inclusive response for children with disabilities impacted by conflict avoiding their institutionalization, support reunification with the families or community members, particularly with attention to those children with disabilities that were unaccompanied or abducted during the course of conflict in the region, and provide them with the necessary support to live in safe conditions as well as the basic services, such as health and education;
- (c) Review and harmonize the National Emergency Risk Reduction Strategy 2019–2030 to promote the protection measures, including evacuation of persons with disabilities.
- (d) Ensure that the emergency response mechanisms, services and evacuation plans are inclusive, available and accessible for all persons with disabilities, such as by visual and vibrational alarms and alerts, for deaf persons and deafblind persons, and adopt evacuation methods to allow persons with physical disability to keep their assistive devices, as well as provide dedicated training for the emergency services staff.

Belgium (2024)

22. The Covid 19 pandemic and the 2021 floods resulted in a noted increase in deaths and suffering of persons with disabilities, due to the absence of an adequate coordinated framework for the protection and safety of persons with disabilities and a lack of disability-inclusive coordinated prevention and response measures across federal, regional and community levels. The Committee is concerned that:

- (a) Evacuation plans that include persons with disabilities, including persons with mobility impairments, are often lacking and that there is insufficient coordination among the existing plans;
- (b) Emergency services, emergency phone numbers and emergency digital applications are often inaccessible for persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with hearing impairments;
- (c) Local authorities and emergency services frequently remain unaware of the presence and requirements of persons with disabilities, resulting in persons with disabilities being left unnoticed and without appropriate help in crisis situations.

23. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies (2022) , the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Adopt a comprehensive crisis management plan that fully includes persons with disabilities by, inter alia, rendering fully accessibly all evacuation plans, crisis communication, emergency services, and guarantee essential services at all times, including in the home, and ensure respect for privacy of persons with disabilities;

(b) Develop a disability-inclusive strategy across all levels of government for all types of risks and emergencies, including climate change and public health emergencies, and recognize the requirements of persons with disabilities in situations of risk in such a strategy.

Benin (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned:

(a) By the lack of specific and comprehensive protocols and guidelines for the evacuation of persons with disabilities during situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and disasters, the lack of budget allocations, and barriers to guaranteeing reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems and community needs assessments;

(b) By the lack of information on measures taken to ensure persons with disabilities receive warnings during risk situations in accessible formats;

(c) That the situation of persons with disabilities has not been addressed in managing situations of risk and in coordination of the national response to the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and disasters, responsive for the requirements of persons with disabilities, and ensure that reasonable accommodation is made so that information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices are accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas;

(b) Develop early warning systems that are accessible for all persons with disabilities, in situations of risk;

(c) Ensure that the rights of persons with disabilities are protected and promoted in all stages of disaster risk reduction, including in recovery measures.

Burkina Faso (2024)

22. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That persons with disabilities including women and children with disabilities, internally displaced persons with disabilities and those with disabilities in refugee-like situations, have been disproportionately affected by the current military operations, security crisis and internal displacement they have led to;

(b) About the lack of disability-inclusiveness of Law No. 012-2014/AN of 22 April 2014 on the Prevention and Management of Risks, Humanitarian Crises and Disasters;

(c) That persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons, do not receive effective communication during situations of risks and emergencies.

23. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee's Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Ensure the safety and security of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, among which those currently affected by armed conflict, including age and gender responsive protection for women and children with disabilities, internally displaced persons with disabilities, those with disabilities in refugee-like situations and those of ethnic Peul origin, ensuring humanitarian access to them and the delivery of humanitarian assistance, including access to food, water and medical assistance;

(b) Revise Law No. 012-2014/AN of 22 April 2014 on Risk Prevention and Management, humanitarian crises and disasters to provide for specific measures for the protection and support of persons with disabilities as per international guidelines;

(c) Ensure that all persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons, in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including public health emergencies, have access to accessible modes of communication and information, including Easy Read, Braille and sign language.

Denmark (2024)

37. The Committee is concerned about the lack of an overarching disability-inclusive strategy for coordination of prevention and response measures in Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland in relation to disaster risk reduction, climate change and emergency management and for the implementation of the Charter on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action;

38 .Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee’s Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee’s Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies , the Committee recommends that Denmark, the Faroe Islands and Greenland, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations: develop a uniform mechanism for the identification of refugees and asylum-seekers with disabilities, persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, including persons under temporary protection from Ukraine, to ensure implementation of specific protection and safety measures and the provision of reasonable accommodation, and ensure equality of access to essential services and disability-related support, including accessible communication, accessible housing, adequate livelihoods, assistive devices and support for entering the labour market.

Ghana (2024)

22.The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) The current National Disaster Management Organization Act 517 of 1996 neglects the disaster management requirements of persons with disabilities, failing to ensure their inclusion in disaster management legislation, policies, and plans, and lacks a policy framework to address their requirements in emergencies, resulting in inadequate protection and support in situations of risk;

(b) Lack of accessibility of Disaster risk information and warnings to all persons with disabilities, putting their safety and well-being at significant risk during situations of risk;

23. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the National Disaster Management Organization Act 517 of 1996 to include the disaster management needs of persons with disabilities, develop a comprehensive policy framework that ensures their inclusion in legislation, policies, and plans, make disaster information accessible, involve persons with disabilities in planning, and provide targeted support and resources for their protection and support in situations of risk;

(b) Make disaster risk information and warnings accessible to all persons with disabilities, regardless of the type of impairment, to ensure their safety and well-being during emergencies;

Mauritius (2024)

19. Noting the National Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Act 2016, the National Disaster Risk Reduction Management Centre and related systems and tools, the Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of consideration of the rights of persons with disabilities in the Climate Change Act 2020 and the National Climate Change Adaptation Strategies and Action Plans;
- (b) The insufficient attention paid to persons with disabilities during the recovery phase of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic;
- (c) The absence of ongoing and effective collection of information on the location and requirements of persons with disabilities in preparation for situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;
- (d) The continued need to ensure that all persons with disabilities, including persons who rely on sign language, are able to receive information in accessible formats during an emergency, including natural disasters;
- (e) The absence of a systematic and effective way to ensure that methods for training officials and other individuals involved in emergencies are based on the human rights model of disability;
- (f) The lack of consultation and involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development, implementation and monitoring of emergency situations including disaster risk management.

20. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee's Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies, the Committee recommends that the State party ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including by:

- (a) Reviewing the legal framework and action plans to reinforce the rights of persons with disabilities and to ensure the inclusiveness and accessibility of preparedness and disaster risk reduction measures and management, with regard to situations of risk and humanitarian emergency, including climate change;
- (b) Mainstreaming disability into its COVID-19 recovery plans and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;
- (c) Determining through surveys and other instruments on an ongoing basis the location and requirements of persons with disabilities to ensure that their rights are protected during situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;
- (d) Ensuring that all persons with disabilities, including persons who rely on sign language, are able to receive information in accessible formats during an emergency, including natural disasters;
- (e) Ensuring that methods for training officials and other individuals involved in emergencies are based on the human rights model of disability in line with the Convention;
- (f) Creating a systematic method of close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the development, implementation and monitoring of relevant laws, bodies and related systems and tools such as the National Multi Hazard Emergency Alert System, in order to protect the rights of persons with disabilities during emergency situations and ensure accessible and disability-inclusive disaster risk management.

Netherlands (2024)

27. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of inclusion of the requirements of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction plans and strategies to protect persons with disabilities in situations of risk, and the insufficient consultation of persons with disabilities in the drafting of such plans and strategies;
- (b) Information and communication measures not being accessible for all types of disabilities during emergencies and that the safety and well-being of persons with disabilities during emergencies are not guaranteed.

28. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and the Committee's Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies , the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including by:

(a) Ensuring that disaster risk response plans and strategies at the federal, regional, and municipal levels are drafted in close consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organisations and explicitly respond to their specific requirements in all situations of risk;

(b) Ensuring the full accessibility of all various communication measures, including emergency numbers and hotlines implementing real-time communication methods and providing 24/7 access to services such as text messaging, video relay services, and other accessible communication technologies to ensure that persons with disabilities can effectively reach emergency services at all times.

Ukraine (2024)

22. The Committee notes with concern that the State party did not take preventive measures to address risks, including in humanitarian emergencies, which could have allowed a better protection of persons with disabilities during the conflict. It observes that several factors have impeded the safety and security of persons with disabilities in the context of the conflict, and the increase in the number of persons that have acquired impairment. It is further concerned that:

(a) In civil protection and evacuation plans, no specific actions have been contemplated for persons with disabilities and amendments to such plans have not involved persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, causing serious difficulties for their protection and evacuation, as well as in the coordination of decisions on where, how and to whom ensure humanitarian aid. In addition, evacuation points are not accessible;

(b) The lack of accessibility of emergency and evacuation plans, as well as in shelters and emergency infrastructure;

(c) Persons with disabilities are more exposed to violence and to loss of their aids and devices in the armed conflict, and women and girls with disabilities face gender -based violence, abuse and marginalization in the conflict, increased risk of trafficking, and forced marriage;

(d) The procedure to obtain a conflict-related disability status is difficult and discriminates in access to social entitlements and long-term rehabilitation services depending on the region where hostilities leading to disability were conducted;

(e) Persons with disabilities in occupied territories, asylum seekers, refugees with disabilities and in refugee-like situations that have received international protection in other countries often face difficulties accessing entitlements from Ukraine;

(f) Insufficient comprehensive measures to protect the rights of internally displaced persons with disabilities – which, according to the State, totals 205,196 as of January 1, 2024 –, particularly about the insufficient access to adequate housing and social programs;

(g) The fact that some women and girls with disabilities are forced to cross the border and are subjected to violence, including sexual violence.

(h) The deterioration of the situation of older persons with disabilities, their increased institutionalization, and difficulties they faced to evacuate from conflict areas and protect from hostilities;

(i) The separation and forcible transfer of children, including children with disabilities, from Ukraine-controlled territories to Russia-controlled territories, and the insufficient information available about children with disabilities in territories under occupation, including information on how many are in institutions, if they have been separated from their families, and if they are receiving education and financial support;

(j) The State party has not sufficiently ensure that third countries receiving children with disabilities do not place them in institutions;

(k) Humanitarian, recovery, post conflict and development projects, including those with international and regional partners, do not mainstream disability and have not been developed in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(l) The State party did not mainstream disability in its response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

23. In light of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and the Guidelines on de-institutionalization including in emergencies (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Reform civil protection, emergencies and evacuation plans to provide adequate support and protection for persons with disabilities, accessible warning systems, shelters, and evacuation routes at home, in institutions and at the border. The State party should also:

(i) Provide persons with disabilities with information on disaster risk reduction and emergencies in accessible formats, including in Braille, Easy Read, sign language and using alternative modes and formats of communication;

(ii) Ensure accessible facilities for respite care and for keeping and maintenance of personal devices;

(iii) Ensure the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the planning and distribution of the humanitarian aid.

(b) Ensure that the national preparedness plans provide for inclusive and accessible warning systems and shelters for persons with disabilities and secure sufficient funding in its regular budget and that from development and recovery projects to ensure that the campaign “Ukraine without Barriers” and other accessibility projects are implemented;

(c) As per 2022 CEDAW’s Concluding Observations (CEDAW/C/UKR/CO/9), adopt legal safeguards to protect women and girls with disabilities from forced marriages under harassment and ensure that these cases are investigated, perpetrators sanctioned, and comprehensive reparations are provided for victims;

(d) Establish agile and expeditious mechanisms so that persons with disabilities can obtain a conflict-related disability status, access social entitlements and long-term rehabilitation services in all regions;

(e) Ensure that persons with disabilities in occupied territories, asylum seekers, refugees with disabilities and persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations access entitlements from Ukraine;

(f) Guarantee a human rights-based response for internally displaced persons with disabilities, particularly those who have been displaced for prolonged periods, including in relation to violence and armed conflict, ensuring that they are provided with assistance and accessible and safe shelters;

(g) Prevent persons with disabilities, especially women and children with disabilities, from crossing the border without their consent and prevent and punish violence, including sexual violence, against them;

(h) Recalling the Report on the human rights protection of older persons in emergency situations (A/HRC/42/43) of the United Nations Independent Expert on the enjoyment of all human rights by older persons, develop comprehensive and inclusive policies specifically tailored to the needs of older persons with disabilities, to ensure that their rights are respected and to eliminate any protection gaps they face in emergencies;

(i) Make sure that children with disabilities in the armed conflict remain with their families in community-based environments and that, in cooperation with the international community, take all measures necessary to facilitate the return of children with disabilities who have reportedly been forcibly transferred to the territory of the Russian Federation;

(j) Ensure that third countries receiving children with disabilities from the State party, do not institutionalize them and commit to interrupt any international development funding that is being used to perpetuate the segregation of persons with disabilities and re-allocate such funding towards projects and initiatives that are in compliance with the Convention;

(k) Mainstream disability in all its future humanitarian, reconstruction, development and post-conflict projects with international and local partners, and develop them in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations. It also recommends that national legislation ensure that all businesses participating in the reconstruction comply with accessibility standards and establish enforcement mechanisms to that end;

(l) Adopt an overarching national plan to coordinate the implementation of programs to respond to pandemics and other public health emergencies, including a disability-inclusive COVID-19 response and recovery plan.

Azerbaijan (2024)

23. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of appropriate security measures and evacuation plan responsive to persons with disabilities;

(b) The detrimental impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic on the general population and on persons with disabilities, in particular on women with disabilities, including on the mental health, well-being and reduced income of persons with disabilities;

(c) The extensive presence of landmines in the State party's territory, in connection to armed conflict (HRI/CORE/AZE/2023, see paras. 76 to 79 and 86);

(d) The lack of information and training for persons with disabilities and personnel working with them about risk preparedness, on risk management and protection.

24. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and its own guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including situations of armed conflict, including by:

(a) Adopting a comprehensive strategy to ensure the safety and protection of all persons with disabilities in situations of risks and emergencies, including measures to prevent risks, address vulnerability, provide accessible early warning, information and evacuation plans responsive to persons with disabilities in the low mobility population group;

(b) Ensure the close consultation and the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the development of the post COVID-19 and long-term effects recovery plans and that these address inequalities and impacts faced by persons with disabilities, in particular on women and girls with disabilities, in urban and rural areas. The State party should ensure that the situation of persons with disabilities is addressed in its preparedness plans;

(c) Expedite the process to ratify or accede the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and transfer of Anti-personnel mines and on their destruction (Anti-personnel mine ban Convention) of 1997 and ensure that anti-personnel mines be removed as soon as possible and to develop systems that protect the rights of persons with disabilities who have been affected by landmines;

(d) Provide persons with disabilities and their personal assistants with comprehensive information preparedness and disaster risk reduction and ensure training about disability inclusion for public officials and other stakeholders intervening in disaster risk reduction and management.

25. The Committee notes with concern the risks of persons with disabilities, including women and children with disabilities, internally displaced persons with disabilities and those with disabilities in refugee-like situations, in the context of armed conflict.

26. The Committee recommends that State party:

(a) Protect persons with disabilities affected by armed conflict, including women and children with disabilities, internally displaced persons with disabilities, those with disabilities in refugee-like situations and those of ethnic Armenian origin, ensuring humanitarian access to them and the delivery of humanitarian assistance, including access to food, water and medical assistance;

(b) Ensure close consultations and the active involvement of women with disabilities in peacebuilding and reconstruction efforts, in line with the recommendations issued by the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW/C/AZE/CO/6, para.14) related to the meaningful and inclusive participation of women at all stages of peace and reconstruction processes;

(c) In implementing the provisional measures issued by the International Court of Justice on 17 November 2023 in the case concerning Application of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (Armenia v. Azerbaijan) to ensure the safe return to the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Armenian refugees with disabilities that had to flee in the context of armed conflict and the safe unimpeded and expeditious movement of persons with disabilities who wish to depart from the Nagorno-Karabakh region in a safe, unimpeded and expeditious manner.

Bahrain (2024)¹

22. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of inclusion of persons with disabilities in national plans and programmes to address crises and natural disasters.

(b) The lack of specialised training for personnel working in emergency and civil defence services to ensure that these services reach persons with disabilities in an effective and timely manner.

23. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and the Guidelines for the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, the Committee recommends that the State party

(a) Review its emergency, risk, crisis and disaster response plans and include measures to ensure that they are inclusive of persons with disabilities.

(b) Develop and implement, in close consultation and with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organisations, specialised training for civil defence and emergency services personnel on how to effectively and timely deliver services to persons with disabilities.

Costa Rica (2024)

19. Al Comité le preocupa la falta de medidas adoptadas para asegurar que los procesos de rehabilitación y reconstrucción después de la emergencia se basen en evaluaciones de riesgos en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad y accesibles para las personas con discapacidad.

20. De conformidad con el Marco de Sendái para la Reducción del Riesgo de Desastres 2015-2030, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte, en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad, velar por que los procesos de rehabilitación y reconstrucción después de la emergencia se basen en evaluaciones de riesgos accesibles para las personas con discapacidad, entre otras cosas aplicando los principios del diseño universal y de mejora de la construcción.

Kazakhstan (2024)

23. The Committee notes with appreciation the measures taken by the State party during the COVID-19 pandemic, including financial support and online mechanisms to recognize disability status for persons with disabilities during lockdown. The Committee notes, however, with concern:

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

(a) The risks for persons with disabilities in earthquakes, in particular in southern regions of the State party, and the limited scope of provisions for the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in legislation and risk reduction plans;

(b) The impact of nuclear testing from 1949 to 1989 on persons with disabilities, including on their sexual and reproductive health and rights;

(c) The absence of information on participation of persons with disabilities in the planning and implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030 and in climate change adaptation and in the recovery plans from the COVID-19 pandemic.

24. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and its own guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies (2022), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review its national legislation related to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, particularly the Civil Protection Act (No. 188-V) of 2014 and the guidelines approved by the Ministry for Emergency Response Order No. 48 of 26 November 2020, in order to establish early warning systems for persons with disabilities and to address the requirements of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and emergencies;

(b) Adopt a comprehensive strategy and plans, with timeframes, targets and budget allocation, to ensure the safety and protection of all persons with disabilities in situations of risks and emergencies, regardless of the type of impairment, including measures to prevent risks, address vulnerability, early warning, accessible information and evacuation plans responsive to persons with disabilities;

(c) Adopt measures to monitor and address the consequences of nuclear testing and the impact on persons with disabilities, including measures to mitigate the impact on sexual and reproductive health and rights;

(d) Strengthen mechanisms for close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the design and implementation of disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation plans at the national and local levels, at all stages of the process, and in its COVID-19 recovery plans.

25. The Committee is concerned about substantial gaps in the protection of refugees with disabilities and persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, from infringement of their rights in situations of risk, due to their exclusion from generally available social protection provided by the Social Code and other laws, and their restricted access to education, the health-care system and other social services.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party review and amend its laws, including the Social Code, to guarantee access to social protection, education and health care for refugees with disabilities and persons with disabilities in refugee-like situations, on an equal basis with others, and provide accessible information about these services.

Nicaragua (2024)

20. El Comité reconoce los esfuerzos del Estado parte con la elaboración de Guías sobre gestión de riesgo para personas con discapacidad, sin embargo, le preocupa:

a) La falta de información sobre participación de las personas con discapacidad en la elaboración de las Guías;

b) Desconocer si se emplearon dichas Guías durante la pandemia de Covid-19 y las medidas tomadas post-Covid para atender a las personas con discapacidad;

c) La información recibida sobre criminalización, represalias y amenazas contra mujeres activistas medioambientales, incluidas mujeres afrodescendientes, indígenas y mujeres con discapacidad;

21. De conformidad con el Marco de Sendái para la Reducción del Riesgo de Desastres 2015-2030, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a) La revisión y actualización, en estrecha consulta con las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan, de la “Guía de participación de las Personas con

Discapacidad en los planes de respuestas departamental, municipal y comunitario” y de la “Guía para elaboración de planes familiares de respuesta ante situación de emergencias”, para que ambas incluyan información accesible, puntos de reunión, refugios de emergencia, rutas de evacuación seguros y accesibles, así como refugios accesibles y con personal capacitado;

b) Elaborar y difundir investigaciones y estadísticas sobre el impacto de la pandemia y sus secuelas en las personas con discapacidad y velar por que todas las personas con discapacidad y sus familias en situaciones de riesgo y en el contexto de emergencias humanitarias puedan recibir la información necesaria en formatos accesibles y en los dispositivos apropiados, incluyendo los sistemas de alerta temprana de emergencias;

c) Cesar inmediatamente la criminalización, represalias y amenazas contra mujeres activistas medioambientales, incluidas mujeres afrodescendientes, indígenas y mujeres con discapacidad.

Sweden (2024)

25. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the lack of an overarching disability-inclusive, human rights-based strategy for disaster risk reduction, humanitarian action and emergency management, including public health emergencies to coordinate prevention and response measures across national and local levels;

(b) About the extent to which the Climate Policy Framework is disability-inclusive, including for Sami people with disabilities;

(c) That persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons do not receive effective communication during situations of risk and emergencies;

(d) That refugees, and asylum seekers with disabilities, persons under temporary protection from Ukraine do not receive adequate access to essential services and disability related supports.

26. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and the Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop an overarching disability-inclusive, human rights-based strategy for all situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including public health emergencies, climate change and disaster risk reduction, to ensure coordination at the national, regional and municipal levels;

(b) Take measures to ensure implementation of the Climate Policy Framework is disability-inclusive, including for Sami people with disabilities and consistent with the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change;

(c) Ensure that all persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and neurodivergent persons in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including public health emergencies, have access to accessible modes of communication and information, including Easy Read, Braille and sign language;

(d) Ensure that refugees and asylum seekers with disabilities, including persons under temporary protection from Ukraine have access to essential services and disability related supports, including accessible communications, accessible housing, adequate livelihoods, assistive devices and support for entering the labour market.

Zambia (2024)

21. The Committee is concerned:

(a) At the lack of specific and comprehensive protocols and guidelines for the evacuation of persons with disabilities during humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, the lack of budget allocations, and barriers to guarantee reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems and community needs assessments;

(b) That persons with disabilities are not given special consideration by the Disaster Management and Mitigation Unit, and that the establishment of committees for managing situations of risk and coordination of humanitarian assistance does not provide for inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(c) That persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular those who are still in institutions, and at the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and devices, and health services.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) In close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, develop protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, providing clarity of the specific requirements of persons with disabilities, and ensure that reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices are made accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas;

(b) Review the Disaster Management Act No. 13 of 2010 and other laws, policies and guidelines to expressly provide for specific State response to protect persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergency;

(c) Align the disaster management and risk reduction policy and strategies with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015- 2030);

(d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and pandemics, all persons with disabilities can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate devices, are fully included into the emergency measures, such as rescue operations, evacuation or emergency services and have access to health services.

Andorra (2023)

23. The Committee notes that Act No. 28/2022, Qualified Civil Protection Act, provides special attention to persons with disabilities in awareness-raising campaigns and that adequate assistance must be provided to them, including information and protection measures. Nevertheless, it is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a disability-inclusive perspective in strategies and plans to manage situations of crisis, humanitarian emergencies and climate change, including civil protection plans;

(b) The absence of information on the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in policies concerning situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and climate change;

(c) The disproportionate impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities, in particular those who are still in institutions.

24. Taking into account the Sendai Disaster Risk Reduction Framework 2015-2030, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a gender- and disability-responsive strategy and plans to manage situations of crisis, humanitarian emergencies and climate change, ensuring the accessibility of critical infrastructure, such as evacuation centres, and of information and communication, as well as the provision of reasonable accommodation and the availability of emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices to all persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure that the National Civil Protection Commission closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities in the planning, implementation and monitoring processes of disaster risk reduction;

(c) Mainstream disability into its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including with regard to ensuring equal access to health services and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic, deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and provide them with appropriate support to live in the community.

Austria (2023)

27. The Committee notes with concern the lack of involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities on the Länder level, resulting in a lack of inclusive and accessible communication and services in disaster management plans. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of data on persons with disabilities in the context of situations of risk.

28. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, and the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Guidelines on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, 2019, the Committee recommends that the State party, in particular the Länder, closely consult with and actively involve organizations of persons with disabilities in the design and implementation of disaster response and recovery measures, and render these measures, including evacuation mechanisms, warning systems, shelters, transportation, and humanitarian support facilities, fully accessible for persons with disabilities, as envisaged by the National Action Plan on Disability (NAP) 2022-2030

Germany (2023)

23. The Committee is concerned about the following:

(a) The lack of close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations in disaster risk reduction and humanitarian action, including the planning of COVID 19 pandemic mitigation responses that resulted in adverse impacts on persons with disabilities;

(b) The lack of an overarching disability inclusive, human rights-based strategy for disaster risk reduction and humanitarian action that is in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and the IASC Guidelines, Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, 2019.

24. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and the IASC Guidelines, Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, 2019, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement with persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, develop:

(a) A national public health emergency plan that addresses the specific requirements of and responses for persons with disabilities and that operates across all levels of Federal, Länder and municipal governments;

(b) An overarching disability inclusive, human rights-based strategy for all situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including public health emergencies, climate change and disaster risk reduction.

Israel (2023)

23. The Committee is concerned about the detrimental impact of the protracted occupation, hostilities, violence and insecurity on persons with disabilities living in occupied territories, including in Gaza, and measures restricting the movement of people and goods, and the destruction of essential services, resulting in lack of food, electricity, water and sanitation, essential health care and education.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party comply with the Convention and International Humanitarian Law, through adopting measures to ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in the occupied Palestinian territory, including by:

(a) Ensuring that persons with disabilities are humanely treated and protected against acts of violence, and adopting measures to ensure adequate living conditions of persons with disabilities, including their access to quality mobility aids, devices, assistive technologies, access to food, clean water, services and goods in the community, electricity, health services, rehabilitation, education and housing, without discrimination;

- (b) Ensuring access of children with disabilities to non-discriminatory birth registration services, psychosocial care to address trauma, and services in the community, such as playgrounds, recreation, leisure and learning activities, preventing family separation and ensuring family reunification;
- (c) Identifying and preventing the risks, harms and requirements of persons with disabilities during military operations and preventing attacks and damage on infrastructure and civilian premises, including hospitals, rehabilitation centres and ambulances, and to protect schools from military attacks;
- (d) Facilitating unrestricted humanitarian assistance to adults and children with disabilities and the access of humanitarian actors.

25. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The delay in adopting the regulations concerning accessibility in population evacuation incidents and absorption in emergencies, due to enter force in 2024, and about the national coordination of existing plans and programmes concerning accessible warning and evacuation systems, shelters, and other emergency services for persons with disabilities;
- (b) The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities, in particular persons living in congregate settings and information about further restrictions during the pandemic that exacerbated isolation and segregation.

26. Recalling the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, the IASC Guidelines, Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, 2019 and its Guidelines on deinstitutionalisation, including in emergencies (2022), the Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Develop a national plan to address all aspects of situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including in relation to public health emergencies and disaster risk reduction and including in the Occupied Palestinian Territory;
- (b) Adopt a national overarching plan to coordinate implementation of programmes that respond to pandemics public health emergencies, including a COVID-19 response and recovery plan that is disability inclusive.

Malawi (2023)

23. The Committee notes with concern that persons with disabilities have been particularly impacted during the COVID-19 pandemic and in the context of disasters, including the cyclone Freddy and subsequent floods. However, the Committee observes that emergency response and the measures in the recovery period have yet to address specific risks and impacts affecting persons with disabilities. It particularly notes with concern :

- (a) That the policy framework adopted to manage disaster response, including the National Climate Change Management Policy (2016), the Disaster Preparedness and Relief Act of 1991 and the Disaster Contingency Plan (2021-2022) lack focus on women and girls with disabilities, and information indicating that women and girls with disabilities are often the last in accessing rescue services during crisis;
- (b) The lack of systematic data collection about the impacts of emergencies and disasters on persons with disabilities, including the lack of information about the situation of at least 52,211 internally displaced persons with disabilities as a consequence of cyclone Freddy, and about the emergency response provided to them;
- (c) The continuing impacts of COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities that have yet to be addressed, including the loss of support through personal assistance;
- (d) The lack of measures to provide persons with disabilities with early warning information on accessible formats.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations:

- (a) Be guided by the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, for the period 2015-2030 and introduce measures that explicitly refer to persons with disabilities, including women and girls with disabilities in its policy framework concerning situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, in all phases: prevention and preparedness, rescue, recovery, reconstruction and reconciliation. The State party should expand the coverage and type of disaster and humanitarian aid and response available for women and girls with disabilities;

(b) Be guided by the Guidelines on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action and establish a data collection system on persons with disabilities in situations of emergencies, aimed at identifying impacts of emergencies, identify barriers from accessing assistance, and gaps in resources and assistance available for persons with disabilities, including internally displaced persons with disabilities;

(c) Expand the scope of measures addressing persons with disabilities in the Malawi Socio Economic Recovery Plan (2021-2023) in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular adopt measures and indicators of progress concerning equal access to vaccines programmes, effective access to social protection schemes, deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities, including children with disabilities, access to support to live in the community;

(d) Develop, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations of persons with disabilities, disability and gender-inclusive and accessible warning systems and evacuation protocols.

Mauritania (2023)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of specific and comprehensive protocols for the evacuation of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, and the persistence of barriers to guarantee reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems and community needs assessments;

(b) The lack of adequate involvement of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation plans, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities, and in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, Sustainable Development Goals 11, accelerate the adoption of the National Strategy for protecting the rights of persons with disabilities in disaster situations and develop protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, that recognize and accommodate the specific requirements of persons with disabilities, and provide reasonable accommodation, accessible information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices in both urban and rural areas.

21. The Committee is concerned about the disproportionate impact of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic on persons with disabilities, in particular persons with disabilities in institutions and in family, including through domestic violence, in particular sexual violence and abuse, and about the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and support measures.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line by the guidance prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the policy brief prepared by the United Nations Sustainable Development Group on a disability-inclusive response to COVID-19:

(a) Mainstream disability into its COVID-19 recovery plans and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic, and protect persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities, from sexual violence and abuse;

(b) Take measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities who are living in institutions, including in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community, in accordance with the Committee's guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies;

(c) Closely involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including organizations of women with disabilities, at all stages of the development and implementation of COVID-19 recovery plans;

(d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities are able to receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate electronic devices.

Mongolia (2023)

21. The Committee is concerned:

(a) That the Law on Disaster Protection and the Plan of Action to decrease the natural disaster risks and actions during the disaster, as well as the Instruction to announce the emergency of the National Emergency Management Agency do not contain specific provisions on the assistance for persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, and lack provisions on accessibility, including the use of sign language and Easy read;

(b) At the low level of involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030 and climate change adaptation and Goal 7 of the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific at the national level and in its reporting process.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review the national legislation related to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and amend it in order to include provisions on protection of persons with disabilities, and adopt inclusive and accessible disaster risk reduction plans, including sign language interpretation and Easy read, to all persons with disabilities, particularly children, women, persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with sensory impairments;

(b) Closely consult persons with disabilities through their representative organizations on the design and implementation of all disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation plans at the national and local levels and at all stages of the process, and adopt a comprehensive strategy, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific and Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13.

23. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular those who are still in institutions, and at the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and devices.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

(a) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 recovery plans, including in respect of ensuring equal access to vaccines and telemedicine, and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;

(b) Adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities who are living in institutions, including in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community, in line with the Committee's general comment No. 5 (2017) on living independently and being included in the community and the Committee's Guidelines on Deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies (2022);

(c) Actively involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations at all stages of developing and implementing COVID-19 recovery plans;

(d)Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate devices.

Paraguay (2023)

21.Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

a)Que las personas con discapacidad no hayan participado en la elaboración del Protocolo Institucional Integral para planes de emergencia y evacuación;

b)La escasa cantidad de información accesible en la prevención de las situaciones de riesgo, las catástrofes y las emergencias humanitarias, en particular respecto a los sistemas de alerta temprana de emergencias;

c)El limitado acceso a la información para las personas con discapacidad sobre la pandemia por coronavirus (COVID-19), incluyendo subtítulos, interpretación en Lengua de Señas Paraguaya y lenguaje sencillo, así como la falta de información sobre el impacto de la crisis en personas con discapacidad, en particular, aquellas que residen en instituciones;

22.De conformidad con el Marco de Sendai para la Reducción del Riesgo de Desastres 2015-2030, el Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

a)La consulta estrecha y participación de las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan en la revisión y actualización del Protocolo Institucional Integral para Planes de Emergencia y Evacuación, incluyendo información accesible, puntos de reunión, rutas de evacuación seguras y accesibles, así como refugios accesibles con personal capacitado;

b)Velar por que todas las personas con discapacidad y sus familias en situaciones de riesgo y en el contexto de emergencias humanitarias puedan recibir la información necesaria en formatos accesibles y en los dispositivos apropiados, incluyendo los sistemas de alerta temprana;

c)Integrar la perspectiva de discapacidad en sus planes de recuperación ante la pandemia del COVID-19, por cuanto se refiere a programas de salud, económicos y sociales, asegurar el acceso a la información en formatos accesibles, así como difundir estadísticas sobre el impacto de la pandemia en las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo aquellas que viven en instituciones.

Angola (2023)

17.The Committee is concerned about the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities, in particular about the lack of reliable data on how the COVID-19 pandemic has impacted them.

18.The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

(a)Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including in ensuring equal access to vaccines, and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;

(b)Adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in their communities;

(c)Involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including those of women and girls with disabilities, at all stages of developing and implementing COVID-19 response and recovery plans;

(d)Ensure that all persons with disabilities in situations of risk and in humanitarian emergencies can gain access to information through accessible modes of communication and information.

Argentina (2023)

23.Al Comité le preocupa lo siguiente:

- a) En el marco del Plan Nacional para la Reducción de Riesgos y Desastres 2024-2030 que se encuentra en proceso de elaboración, la poca información sobre la incorporación de la perspectiva de discapacidad en la elaboración de este Plan, y la falta de consulta a las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad en este proceso;
- b) La escasa cantidad de información accesible sobre las situaciones de riesgo, las catástrofes y las emergencias humanitarias, en particular respecto a los sistemas de alerta temprana de emergencias;
- c) El limitado acceso a la información para las personas con discapacidad en la difusión de medidas de prevención y mensajes oficiales sobre la pandemia de la enfermedad por coronavirus (COVID-19), incluyendo subtítulos, interpretación en Lengua de Señas Argentina y lenguaje sencillo, así como la falta de información sobre el impacto de la pandemia en personas con discapacidad, en particular, aquellas que residen en instituciones.

24. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte:

- a) En estrecha consulta con las personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan, garantizar que el Plan Nacional para la Reducción de Riesgos y Desastres 2024-2030 incorpore la perspectiva de discapacidad, incluyendo información accesible, puntos de reunión, refugios de emergencia y rutas de evacuación seguros y accesibles, de conformidad con el Marco de Sendái para la Reducción del Riesgo de Desastres 2015-2030;
- b) Velar por que todas las personas con discapacidad y sus familias en situaciones de riesgo y en el contexto de emergencias humanitarias puedan recibir la información necesaria en formatos accesibles y en los dispositivos apropiados, incluyendo los sistemas de alerta temprana de emergencias;
- c) Integrar la perspectiva de discapacidad en sus planes de recuperación ante la COVID-19, entre otras cosas por cuanto se refiere a programas de salud, económicos y sociales, asegurar el acceso a la información en formatos accesibles de los mensajes dirigidos a la población general sobre la materia, así como difundir estadísticas sobre el impacto de la pandemia en las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo aquellas que viven en instituciones.

Georgia (2023)

23. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of a disability-inclusive perspective of plans to manage situations of crisis, including accessibility for persons with disabilities of crisis communication, risk information, critical infrastructure and services;
- (b) The lack of mechanisms to facilitate participation of organizations of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction policies and strategies, and in the recovery phase;
- (c) The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and the measures taken to alleviate its consequences, particularly restrictions to use public transport, non-accessibility of remote learning and medical services, and the suspension of rehabilitation programmes;
- (d) The lack of information about the situation and the rights of persons with disabilities in the occupied territories of Abkhazia, Georgia, and Tskhinvali Region/South Ossetia, Georgia, including measures related to the possibility for persons with disabilities to access humanitarian aid and to essential services in the community.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a gender- and disability-responsive strategy to ensure that critical infrastructure as well as risk information and crisis communication are fully accessible, covering all types of impairment, that it is available in local languages and accessible formats including Easy Read and sign language, and that takes into account the Sendai Disaster Risk reduction Framework;
- (b) Establish mechanisms to closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities in preparedness, management and recovery policies, and adopt measures to raise the capacity of organizations of persons with disabilities, including organizations of women with disabilities to enable them to interact effectively with government, administrative entities, the military, rescue and emergency organizations and other stakeholders during emergencies;

(c) Mainstream disability into its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including with regard to ensuring equal access to vaccines, health services and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic, and adopt measures for deinstitutionalization for persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community;

(d) Take measures, in cooperation with humanitarian actors and ensuring participations of organizations of persons with disabilities, to ensure access by persons with disabilities in the regions of Abkhazia, Georgia, and Tskhinvali Region/South Ossetia, Georgia, to humanitarian aid, evacuation programmes and to community-based services.

Peru (2023)

22. Al Comité le preocupa que:

a) En los últimos meses, debido a la situación política actual, se hayan denegado derechos fundamentales a personas con discapacidad, incluido su derecho a protestar, se las haya detenido arbitrariamente, hayan resultado heridas y no hayan podido acceder a servicios y apoyo;

b) Debido a la ausencia de protocolos con perspectiva de discapacidad, las personas con discapacidad queden excluidas de las medidas de protección y de auxilio en caso de inundaciones, deslaves, terremotos y otras catástrofes naturales y relacionadas con el clima, incluidas alertas y comunicaciones accesibles, evacuaciones, refugios y otros servicios y disposiciones;

c) Las insuficientes consultas con las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad para planificar, aplicar, supervisar y evaluar los procesos de reducción del riesgo de desastres y de mitigación del cambio climático.

23. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

a) Aplique medidas efectivas para garantizar la vida, la seguridad y los derechos de las personas con discapacidad, en especial las mujeres y niñas con discapacidad, en la actual situación política, incluido el derecho de reunión y protesta pacíficas;

b) Elabore y aplique protocolos que incluyan a las personas con discapacidad en la planificación y la prestación de servicios en situaciones de riesgo y emergencias humanitarias, incluidos los peligros relacionados con el clima, en todas las fases: prevención y preparación, rescate, recuperación, reconstrucción y reconciliación, y que garanticen la accesibilidad universal de los entornos, los servicios, las comunicaciones y la información, como los refugios temporales, las evacuaciones, las alertas accesibles y la difusión de información en todos los formatos accesibles, incluidos el braille y la lengua de señas peruana;

c) Vele por que los planes para la reducción del riesgo de desastres y las estrategias y políticas sobre el cambio climático a todos los niveles se formulen junto a las personas con discapacidad y respondan de forma explícita a sus necesidades específicas en todas las situaciones de riesgo, de conformidad con el Marco de Sendái para la Reducción del Riesgo de Desastres 2015-2030.

Togo (2023)

21. The Committee is concerned at the lack of protocols for the evacuation of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, and barriers to guarantee reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems and community needs assessments.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including those of women and girls, develop protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, providing clarity of the specific requirements of persons with disabilities, and ensure accessibility to information, evacuation centres, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments and assistive devices are made accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas, and reasonable accommodation is considered in all situations.

23. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular those who are still in institutions, and at the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and devices. It is also concerned at the lack of effective inclusion of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the implementation of NOVSSI program to alleviate the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on vulnerable groups.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

- (a) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including in respect of ensuring equal access to vaccines, and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;
- (b) Adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community;
- (c) Involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations at all stages of developing and implementing COVID-19 response and recovery plans;
- (d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate devices, and are fully included into the emergency measures, such as rescue operations, evacuation or emergency services.

Tunisia (2023)

17. The Committee is concerned that there are no specific legislations or policies in place to ensure the inclusiveness and accessibility of preparedness and disaster risk reduction measures for the protection of persons with all types of impairments. It is further concerned that persons with disabilities through their representative organisations are not involved in disaster preparedness and responses.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Put in place strategies and policies to ensure the inclusiveness and accessibility of preparedness and disaster risk reduction measures and management strategies, needs-assessment, emergency evacuation procedures, early public warning systems, and recovery strategies and to guarantee that information on risk situations reach all members of the community, including persons with disabilities, particularly persons who are deaf or hard of hearing or deafblind, and persons with visual impairments, and are developed in accessible formats and languages;
- (b) Ensure that persons with disabilities and their representative organisations, including women and girls organisations, are meaningfully consulted and actively participated in all steps relating to comprehensive strategies, plans, and protocols in disaster risk reduction and humanitarian emergencies, including those related to armed conflict and extreme climate conditions, namely in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation, and the systematic collection of disability disaggregated data;
- (c) Take measures to regularly and effectively train rescue and emergency personnel on the inclusion of an age and a disability perspective based on human rights.

Bangladesh (2022)

23. The Committee notes the vulnerability of the State party to natural disasters and is concerned about:

(a) The lack of effective inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the design and implementation of disaster risk reduction strategies in the State party, particularly in the National Disaster Response Plan and the Standing Orders on Disasters, as well as a lack of appropriate policies and measures with respect to persons with disabilities in humanitarian emergencies, including evacuation, rescue, shelter, relief and post-disaster rehabilitation schemes;

(b) The fact that persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities and those belonging to ethnic and religious minorities, including Rohingya refugees, are disproportionately affected in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters and need especial protection.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Paris Agreements on Climate Change and Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13:

(a) Ensure the effective inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations, in the design and implementation of disaster risk reduction strategies in the State party, particularly in the National Disaster Response Plan and the Standing Orders on Disasters, and adopt and implement appropriate policies and measures for humanitarian emergencies, including evacuation, rescue, shelter, relief and post-disaster rehabilitation schemes, that includes all refugees;

(b) Increase humanitarian protection for persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities and those belonging to ethnic and religious minorities, including Rohingya refugees, and include them in all evacuation, rescue, shelter, relief and post-disaster rehabilitation schemes.

China (2022)

26. The Committee notes with concern the lack of inclusion of the specific needs of persons with disabilities within disaster risk reduction plans and strategies to protect persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, as well as insufficient measures to involve persons with disabilities in the formulation of such plans and strategies including in decision-making processes to address the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences and during the recovery period.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party, being guided by the COVID-19 and the Rights of Persons with Disabilities: Guidance and Policy Brief: A Disability-Inclusive Response to COVID-19 by the OHCHR and in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and the Paris Agreement on Climate Change, and with the active participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Prioritize the provision of emergency assistance to persons with disabilities, strengthen efforts to incorporate the requirements of all persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including access to emergency information and alarm signals through alternative modes of communication and information;

(b) Mainstream disability in COVID-19 response and recovery plans, with a specific emphasis on ensuring equal access to mainstream health care systems for persons with disabilities, still in institutions or living independently, and protecting persons with disabilities from the effects of the pandemic, including the increased social isolation;

(c) Ensure equal participation of persons with disabilities in all measures affecting them, including the measures to address the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences, and measures taken during the recovery period.

China (Hong Kong)

65. The Committee notes with concern the lack of inclusion of the specific needs of persons with disabilities within disaster risk reduction plans and strategies to protect persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, as well as insufficient measures to involve persons with disabilities in the formulation of such plans and strategies including in decision-making processes to address the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences and during the recovery period.

66. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong SAR, China, being guided by the COVID-19 and the Rights of Persons with Disabilities: Guidance and Policy Brief: A Disability-Inclusive Response to COVID-19 by the OHCHR, and in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and the Paris Agreement on Climate Change, with the active participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Prioritize the provision of emergency assistance to persons with disabilities, strengthen efforts to incorporate the requirements of all persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including access to emergency information and alarm signals through alternative modes of communication and information;

(b) Mainstream disability in COVID-19 response and recovery plans, with a specific emphasis on ensuring equal access to mainstream health care systems for persons with disabilities, still in institutions or living independently, and protecting persons with disabilities from the effects of the pandemic, including the increased social isolation;

(c) Ensure equal participation of persons with disabilities in all measures affecting them, including the measures to address the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences, and measures taken during the recovery period.

Indonesia (2022)

22. The Committee is gravely concerned about the lack of information about the situation in West Papua and how the State Party is protecting and safeguarding West Papuans with disabilities in the context of ongoing armed clashes in conflict areas.

23. The Committee recommends that the State Party end the conflict in West Papua, progress passing of the Bill on Indigenous Peoples (RUU MHA), conduct an independent investigation into the situation in West Papua, including in relation to persons with disabilities, ensure unrestricted humanitarian aid and relief reaches West Papuans with disabilities, including internally displaced people with disabilities and implement protection measures to safeguard West Papuans with disabilities.

24. The Committee is concerned about the exclusion of refugees, asylum-seekers and stateless persons with disabilities from the narrow interpretation of the provisions of Law No. 8/2016, and their limited access to education, the health care system and other social services.

25. The Committee recommends that the State Party explicitly recognise that Law No. 8/2016 also applies to asylum seekers, refugees, and stateless persons and enable their access to education, the health system and other social services, including by providing accessible information about these services.

26. The Committee notes with concern the absence of a comprehensive disaster risk reduction framework, including laws, prevention and response plans, and specific protection and assistance for persons with disabilities, developed in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt, in close consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations a comprehensive disaster risk reduction framework, including prevention and response plans, and specific protection and assistance for persons with disabilities in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Paris Agreement on Climate Change and Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13.

28. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular those in institutions and women and girls with disabilities, and that there is a lack of accessible emergency information targeting persons with disabilities.

29. The Committee, recalling the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, recommends that the State party:

- (a) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, including in relation to gender-appropriate accessible emergency information, equal access to vaccines, and other economic and social programmes to address the negative impact of the pandemic;
- (b) Relocate persons with disabilities from institutions to community living settings with appropriate support.

Japan (2022)

25. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Limited protection under the Basic Act on Disaster Management for the rights of persons with disabilities of privacy and non-discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodation;
- (b) Lack of accessibility of evacuation shelters and temporary housing in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;
- (c) Insufficient consultations with organizations of persons with disabilities to plan, implement, monitor and evaluate processes of disaster risk reduction and climate change, including earthquakes and nuclear plant disasters;
- (d) Limited accessible information on situations of risk, disaster, and humanitarian emergencies, including accessibility of emergency alert system for persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (e) Lack of implementation of the “Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030” in the Kumamoto Earthquake, Northern Kyushu Heavy Rain Disasters, West Japan Heavy Rain Disasters and Hokkaido Eastern Iburi Earthquake;
- (f) Lack of disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic, including access to information, vaccines, health services and other economic and social programmes, and the disproportionate impact of the pandemic for persons with disabilities who are still in institutions.

26. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Amend the Basic Act on Disaster Management to reinforce the rights of persons with disabilities to privacy and non-discrimination, including the denial of reasonable accommodations, and issues related to disaster prevention and reduction and situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;
- (b) Ensure that shelters, temporary housing and other services provided in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies are accessible and disability-inclusive, taken into account age and gender;
- (c) Build resilient communities engaging the whole community, including persons with disabilities and their families into disaster prevention and reduction planning, by developing individual emergency plans and support systems based on community focal points, identifying gathering points, emergency shelters, and evacuation routes that are safe and accessible;
- (d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities and their families can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate devices;
- (e) Ensure that disaster risk reduction plans and strategies and policies on climate change at all levels are formulated with persons with disabilities and explicitly respond to their specific needs in all situations of risk, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030;
- (f) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including in respect of ensuring equal access to vaccines, health services and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic, and adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community.

Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)

18. The Committee is concerned about the:

- (a) Absence of reference to the specific requirements of persons with disabilities in legislation and policies, including the Law No.71 on Disaster Management and the National Emergency Preparedness and Response Plan;
- (b) Lack of specific protocols for the evacuation of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, and barriers to guarantee reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centers, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, and community needs assessments;
- (c) Lack of consultation of organizations of persons with disabilities in planning, implementing, monitoring and evaluating disaster risk reduction and climate change strategies;
- (d) The disproportionate effect of the COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities, in particular, persons who are in institutions, and at the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and healthcare services.

19. Recalling the guidance issued by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on COVID-19 and the rights of persons with disabilities, the Secretary-General's policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to COVID-19, the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, and the Paris Agreement on Climate Change, and with the active participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that national legislation, policies and programmes that address situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies are disability-inclusive, and take into account the requirements of persons with disabilities, including those belonging to ethnic and religious groups and victims of unexploded ordnance;
- (b) Develop protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, providing clarity of the specific requirements of persons with disabilities; and ensure that reasonable accommodation and accessibility to information, evacuation centers, emergency relief assistance, early warning systems, community needs assessments, and assistive devices are made accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas;
- (c) Ensure the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities with a gender-balanced participation in the design and implementation of legislation and policies relating to climate change and disaster risk reduction and management, including the National Disaster Prevention and Control Committee;
- (d) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including in respect of ensuring equal access to vaccines, and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic.

Republic of Korea (2022)

23. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) That the Framework Act on the Management of Disasters and Safety of 2018 lacks disaster risk reduction plans, policies and protocols for the prevention and reduction of risks for persons with disabilities;
- (b) At the low level of involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030 and climate change adaptation and Goal 7 of the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific at the national level and in its reporting process.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Accelerate adoption of inclusive and accessible disaster risk reduction plans to all persons with disabilities, particularly children, women, persons with psychosocial disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with sensory impairments;
- (b) Closely consult persons with disabilities through their representative organizations on the design and implementation of all disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation plans at the national and local levels and at all stages of the process, and adopt a comprehensive strategy, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13.

25. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular those who are still in institutions, and at the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and devices.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

- (a) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including in respect of ensuring equal access to vaccines, and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;
- (b) Adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community;
- (c) Involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations at all stages of developing and implementing COVID-19 response and recovery plans;
- (d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate devices.

Singapore (2022)

21. The Committee is concerned:

- (a) About the lack of specific and comprehensive disaster risk reduction plans, policies and protocols for the prevention and reduction of risks for persons with disabilities;
- (b) That persons with disabilities are not sufficiently involved in disaster risk reduction plans in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 – 2030 and climate change adaptation and Goal 7 of the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Accelerate the adoption of inclusive and accessible disaster risk reduction plans for all persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities and women with disabilities, persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Closely consult with and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, on the design and implementation of all disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation plans at the national and district levels and at all stages of the process, and adopt a comprehensive strategy, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, the Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13, and the Incheon Strategy to “Make the Right Real” for Persons with Disabilities in Asia and the Pacific.

23. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, including by sexual violence and abuse in particular persons with disabilities in institutions, and about the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and support measures.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, instructed by the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

- (a) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic, and protect persons with disabilities, particularly women and girls with disabilities from sexual violence and abuse;
- (b) Adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community, in accordance with the Committee's Guidelines on deinstitutionalization, including in emergencies;
- (c) Closely involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, including organizations of women with disabilities, at all stages of the development and implementation of COVID-19 response and recovery plans;
- (d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate electronic devices.

Hungary (2022)

22. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) Neither the Fundamental Law, the Disaster Protection Act, nor their respective protocols provide for specific measures in relation to the safety of persons with disabilities and various types of impairments in situations of risk and emergencies arising from conflict, natural disasters or refugee and migration crises;
- (b) Persons with disabilities placed in residential institutions and psychiatric settings, and persons with disabilities living independently have been disproportionately impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, facing greater risks of contracting COVID-19, including due to lack of access to the general health system and social isolation;
- (c) Persons with disabilities have had limited participation in decision-making processes to address the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences and during the recovery period.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party, following the guidance issued by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on COVID-19 and the rights of persons with disabilities and the United Nations policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to COVID-19, and in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and with the active participation of representative organizations of persons with disabilities:

- (a) Revise its legislation, protocols, plans and measures in relation to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies arising from conflict, natural disasters or refugee and migration crises by incorporating the requirements of all persons with disabilities in such situations, including access to emergency information and alarm signals through alternative modes of communication and information;
- (b) Mainstream disability in COVID-19 response and recovery plans, with a specific emphasis on ensuring equal access to mainstream health-care systems for persons with disabilities, still in institutions or living independently, and safeguarding persons with disabilities from the effects of the pandemic, including increased social isolation;
- (c) Ensure equal participation of persons with disabilities in all measures affecting them, including the measures to address the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences, and measures taken during the recovery period.

Jamaica (2022)

20. The Committee notes the vulnerability of the State party to natural disasters and is concerned that persons with disabilities are not sufficiently involved in disaster risk reduction plans at the national and local levels. While noting that the Office of Disaster Preparedness and Emergency Management includes persons with disabilities where there is an imminent hazard, the Committee is concerned at the lack of unified measures taken to establish an emergency notification system that is accessible for all persons with disabilities regardless of the type of impairment.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Improve the accessibility of warning information for persons with all types of impairment, particularly for persons with visual and hearing impairments and those with intellectual disabilities;

(b) Closely consult persons with disabilities through their representative organizations on the design and implementation of all disaster risk reduction plans at the national and local levels and at all stages of the process, and adopt a comprehensive strategy, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and Sustainable Development Goals 11 and 13;

(c) Continue to ensure that the Office of Disaster Preparedness and Emergency Management adequately addresses the specific requirements of all persons with disabilities in disaster risk responses.

22. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities have been disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, in particular those who are still in institutions, and at the barriers faced by persons with disabilities in gaining access to emergency information and devices.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party, guided by the guidance and policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

(a) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including in respect of ensuring equal access to vaccines, and other economic and social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;

(b) Adopt measures to deinstitutionalize persons with disabilities in times of emergency and to provide them with appropriate support to live in the community;

(c) Involve persons with disabilities and their representative organizations at all stages of developing and implementing COVID-19 response and recovery plans;

(d) Ensure that in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, all persons with disabilities can receive the necessary information in accessible formats and on the appropriate devices.

Mexico (2022)

31. The Committee notes a lack of specific protocols for the evacuation of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and the occurrence of natural disasters.

32. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop specific protocols for evacuation in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and the occurrence of natural disasters, that are adapted to the specific situations of each state, providing clarity of the whereabouts of persons with disabilities and their specific requirements;

(b) Design and disseminate, in accessible formats, such as Braille, sign language, Easy Read and audio and video transcription, in all of the State party's official languages, including those used by the indigenous communities, information on early warning mechanisms in case of risk and humanitarian emergency, protection systems, and institutional and community crisis response networks, and identify adequate places of refuge and shelters accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas;

(c) Train all civil defence staff in addressing issues of security and protection for persons with disabilities in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and the occurrence of natural disasters.

33. The Committee notes with concern the lack of a disability-inclusive response to the disproportionate impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities and persons with disabilities living in institutions. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of data on the impact of the pandemic on persons with disabilities.

34. The Committee recommends that the State party follow the guidance issued by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on COVID-19 and the rights of persons with disabilities and the Secretary-General's policy brief on a disability-inclusive response to COVID-19, and that it:

- (a) Adopt a disability-inclusive response to the COVID-19 pandemic for persons with disabilities by implementing emergency deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities, preventing their abandonment in their homes and providing them with the necessary support to live in the community in safe conditions;
- (b) Implement support programmes for persons with disabilities to address the aggravated consequences of the pandemic, considering specific measures for women with disabilities regarding economic empowerment, access to health services, including sexual and reproductive health rights, and provision of information in accessible formats, as well as measures for persons with disabilities living in institutions;
- (c) Compile data on infections, illness and death of persons with disabilities as a result of SARS-CoV-2, disaggregated by type of impairment, gender, residence in rural and urban areas and socioeconomic status;
- (d) Closely consult with and involve persons with disabilities, in particular women and girls with disabilities, and their representative organizations at all stages of the development and implementation of COVID-19 response and recovery plans, and in the preparation of such plans for future crises.

Switzerland (2022)

23. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The lack of inclusion of the specific needs of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction plans and strategies to protect persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, and the insufficient measures to involve persons with disabilities in the formulation of such plans and strategies;
- (b) The lack of an action plan to implement the Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action;
- (c) The lack of a proactive response to the specific needs of persons with disabilities in regard to COVID-19, including the lack of information for the public, transport authorities and the media regarding mask exemptions, which has resulted in the constant vilification of autistic persons with exemptions.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that disaster risk reduction plans and strategies at the federal, cantonal and municipal levels are formulated with persons with disabilities and explicitly respond to their specific needs in all situations of risk, in accordance with the Convention and with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030;
- (b) Adopt an action plan to implement the Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action with clear and measurable objectives and indicators, including for disaster risk reduction, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, and in accordance with the Guidelines on the Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action issued by the Inter-Agency Standing Committee;
- (c) Ensure disability-inclusive COVID-19 response and recovery plans, strengthen cooperation with organizations of persons with disabilities and ensure that information on pandemic measures, including mask exemptions, is provided to the public, the relevant authorities and the media.

Venezuela (2022)

20. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of contingency plans for emergencies of any kind that take into account persons with disabilities, as was observed during the pandemic;

(b) The situation of migrants, refugees and asylum-seekers, which has a disproportionate impact on persons with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take steps, based on the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, article 11 of the Convention and the situations that arose during the COVID-19 pandemic, to ensure that prevention and risk-reduction protocols are validated by persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, and allocate a specific budget and assign trained staff for that purpose;

(b) Apply follow-up protocols to provide ongoing support to migrants, refugees and asylum-seekers with disabilities transiting through the State party.

Djibouti (2021)

17. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The need to align the Act no. 140/AN/06/5ème on the national policy for risk and disaster management with the Sendai Framework on Disaster Risk Reduction to ensure inclusive and accessible disaster risk reduction plans to support and protect persons with disabilities, particularly children and women with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with sensory impairments, in the situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;

(b) The lack of information on the effects of COVID-19 on persons with disabilities during general lockdowns and confinement measures, particularly persons with disabilities living in poverty and older persons with disabilities, and on the access of persons with disabilities to vaccine and other economic and social programmes, on an equal basis with others;

(c) The absence of consultation process with organizations of persons with disabilities regarding the development and implementation of immediate and long-term responses to the pandemic.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Act No. 140/AN/06/5ème on the national policy for risk and disaster management to align it with the Sendai Framework on Disaster Risk Reduction and accelerate the adoption of inclusive and accessible disaster risk reduction plans to persons with disabilities, particularly children and women with disabilities, persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons with sensory impairments;

(b) Mainstream disability in its COVID-19 response and recovery plans, to ensure equal access of persons with disabilities to vaccines and economic and social programmes, particularly for persons with disabilities living in poverty and older persons with disabilities.

France (2021)

23. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of disability-inclusive response to the disproportional impact of COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities due to the greater risks of contracting COVID-19 in institutions;

(b) The lack of accommodations for persons with disabilities in the context of general containment measures against COVID-19, and information about the refusal of admission to hospitals of persons with disabilities;

(c) That simultaneous visual and vocal alarm systems in public environments and services has yet to be provided;

(d) The absence of emergency accommodations for persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, living in refugee or asylum seeker camps, or those of Roma ethnic minority.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party, being guided by the COVID-19 and the Rights of Persons with Disabilities: Guidance and Policy Brief: A Disability-Inclusive Response to COVID-19 by the OHCHR:

- (a) Ensure the disability-inclusive response to the disproportional impact of COVID-19 pandemic on persons with disabilities by implementing emergency deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities, preventing abandonment at homes, and provide them with necessary support to live in the community in safe conditions;
- (b) Review the implementation of measures to contain the pandemic and establish accommodations in order to ensure appropriate response to persons with disabilities, including by providing assistance at home, the use of transparent masks for supporting deaf persons or support in online working environments;
- (c) Ensure accessibility of information about the pandemic for all persons with disabilities, including through sign language, reproduction of visual and vocal alarm systems;
- (d) Provide persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, living in refugee or asylum seeker camps, Roma persons with disabilities with access to emergency accommodations and humanitarian assistance in situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters.

Estonia (2021)

21. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) That persons with disabilities still in institutions, including psychiatric settings have been disproportionately impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, facing greater risks of contracting COVID-19 and further isolation in the context of general lockdowns and confinement measures;
- (b) That organizations of persons with disabilities have yet to be consulted with respect to the immediate and long-term responses to the pandemic;
- (c) Barriers for persons with disabilities, in accessing emergency information and devices, such as mobile applications and fire alarms, and the helpline 112.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party, be guided by the COVID-19 and the Rights of Persons with Disabilities: Guidance and Policy Brief: A Disability-Inclusive Response to COVID-19 by the OHCHR, ensure:

- (a) Mainstreaming disability in the COVID-19 response and recovery plans, including equal access to vaccines, and other economic, or social programmes to tackle the negative impact of the pandemic;
- (b) Adopt measures to undertake emergency deinstitutionalization of persons with disabilities, providing them appropriate support to live in the community;
- (c) The involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in all stages of the COVID-19 response and recovery;
- (d) Access to information in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, through alternative modes of communication and information, and full accessibility to the emergency number 112 to all persons with disabilities.

Albania (2019)

21. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the development and implementation of disaster risk reduction and management strategies, as well as the lack of provision of accessible information for persons with disabilities on situations of risk, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement an accessible and comprehensive emergency strategy and protocols for situations of risk in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, including through hotlines, a text message-warning application, and manuals in sign language, Braille and Easy Read, in line with its general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility, and that it require all public services to develop plans for the evacuation of persons with disabilities in regular, close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including at the local level.

Australia (2019)

21. The Committee, recognizing that the effects of climate change contribute to exacerbating inequality and vulnerability among persons with disabilities, remains concerned about the lack of:

- (a) Nationally consistent emergency management standards that ensure access to disability-specific and disability-responsive support during emergencies;
- (b) A mechanism for engagement with organizations of persons with disabilities in the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 at the national level and in its reporting process.

22. The Committee reiterates its previous recommendation on the matter (CRPD/C/AUS/CO/1, para. 23) and recommends that the State party, in close consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, establish a fully accessible and inclusive mechanism to engage with persons with disabilities in the implementation and monitoring of the Sendai Framework.

Ecuador (2019)

23. The Committee is concerned that the Inclusive Risk Management Strategy still lacks a protocol for the prevention and reduction of risks for persons with disabilities.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party put in place, without delay, a protocol for the prevention and reduction of risks for persons with disabilities that has been validated by persons with disabilities through their representative organizations. It further recommends that the State party earmark a specific budget allocation for that purpose.

El Salvador (2019)

22. The Committee is concerned that only a few persons with disabilities, through their organizations, contributed to the Road Map for Inclusion, Protection and Attention to Persons with Disabilities in Emergencies and Disasters. Taking into consideration the fact that the State party is at risk from natural hazards, the Committee is also concerned that no budget has been allocated for the implementation of the road map and of the Strategic Plan of Action scheduled for 2020.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with persons with disabilities:

- (a) Ensure that budget is allocated for implementation of the road map and of the Strategic Plan of Action scheduled for 2020, and establish a contingency budget for humanitarian emergencies and disasters;
- (b) Implement the Strategic Plan of Action and monitor the accessibility of the shelters that are usually set up in emergencies;
- (c) Ensure that the specific requirements of all persons with disabilities are taken into consideration, and that they are provided with information in accessible formats.

Greece (2019)

15. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of standards governing the administration and services provided for persons with disabilities in general situations of risk and in refugee and asylum processes, and the compliance of the current risk management practices with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030;
- (b) The insufficient measures taken to identify asylum seekers with disabilities, refugees with disabilities and persons with disabilities who are in refugee-like situations who are arriving in the State party, to ensure their access to health care, adequate accommodation, basic facilities, security and safety, and to take specific measures and provide for individualized support, such as personal assistance, particularly for women and children with disabilities.

16. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt effective asylum and refugee processes and develop a comprehensive strategy and protocols for general emergency risk situations, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030. It also recommends that the State party render reception facilities accessible and provide the necessary health-care services, in line with the Committee’s general comment No. 2, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;
- (b) Immediately ensure that the vulnerability assessment of persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, who are refugees, asylum seekers and persons in refugee-like situations be carried out systematically upon their arrival in the State party by trained personnel and on the basis of the human rights model of disability and of specific guidelines for the identification of persons with disabilities;
- (c) Ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly children with disabilities, who are refugees, asylum seekers and persons in refugee-like situations, have access to social protection, assistive technologies, information and adequate services, particularly safe shelter, sanitation and medical care through, inter alia, the provision of individualized support; immediately guarantee that conditions in reception facilities respect the dignity of persons with disabilities, particularly children, who are refugees, asylum seekers or persons in refugee-like situations; and provide for their regular transfer to the mainland.

India (2019)

24. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of policies regarding consultation of organizations of persons with disabilities in planning, implementing, monitoring and evaluating disaster risk reduction strategies;
- (b) The information gaps on the number of internally displaced persons with disabilities, particularly those living outside formal camps or resettlement areas, and the absence of humanitarian assessments to ensure appropriate and disability-inclusive emergency responses, including for persons at a higher risk of displacement;
- (c) The lack of information about persons with disabilities in Jammu and Kashmir and strategies to ensure appropriate humanitarian assistance.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement:

- (a) Ensure the effective involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in the disaster risk reduction strategy and/or national disaster management plan or guidelines, ensuring the implementation of measures for accessibility and the inclusion of persons with disabilities in situations of risk;
- (b) Develop early warning systems in situations of risk that are accessible for all persons with disabilities;
- (c) Ensure a human rights-based response for internally displaced persons with disabilities, particularly those who have been displaced for prolonged periods, in all situations of risk, including in relation to violence and armed conflict, natural disasters or the exploitation of natural resources, and adopt policies to protect the rights of internally displaced persons with disabilities, ensuring that they are provided with assistance and accessible and safe shelters;
- (d) Adopt measures to assess the situation of persons with disabilities in Jammu and Kashmir and ensure their access to assistance and community basic services, such as health and education, and consider endorsing the Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action.

Iraq (2019)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The disproportionate effect that armed conflict, other acts of violence committed against civilian populations and displacement in the State party have had on persons with disabilities and about the increase in the number of persons with disabilities due to conflict-related injuries and the lack of medical and other basic services, particularly in the Kurdistan Region; (b) The absence of a reference to the need for individualized supports for persons with disabilities during emergencies in Law No. 44 (2013) on civil defence and in Law No. 38 (2013), as well as in policies and programmes, including the national policy for managing the file on internally displaced persons in Iraq endorsed by the Council of Ministers in its decision No. 414 (2015).

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Allocate the human, technical and financial resources necessary to provide services, including habilitation and rehabilitation services, mental health services, sanitation, safe spaces, education and vocational training, to persons with disabilities, particularly women and children with disabilities, who are victims of violence in the context of armed conflict or who are internally displaced, migrants or refugees, including measures to facilitate the safe and voluntary return of persons with disabilities, and to enforce Law No. 57 (2015) on victims of terrorism;

(b) In compliance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, ensure that national legislation, policies and programmes that address situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies are disability-inclusive, including by making continued efforts to render early warning and public warning systems accessible to persons with disabilities.

Kuwait (2019)

22. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of a specific strategy, protocols and tools to prevent, protect, assist and involve persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;

(b) The lack of information on how humanitarian aid, including evacuation systems, transport, shelters and assistive devices, is made accessible to persons with disabilities.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) With the participation of organizations of persons with disabilities, design and enact a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy and protocols fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030;

(b) Adopt measures to ensure that information on evacuation systems, transport, shelters and assistive devices in situations of risk and emergency is provided to persons with disabilities in accessible formats.

Myanmar (2019)

21. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The rights and the specific requirements of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies are not sufficiently taken into account in the Natural Disaster Management Law or the Action Plan on Disaster Risk Reduction, and there is a lack of protocols, plans and measures with respect to persons with disabilities in these situations;

(b) Persons with disabilities, especially women and girls with disabilities and those belonging to ethnic and religious minorities, face heightened risks in areas affected by conflict and humanitarian emergencies, including where stateless, internally displaced and returnee populations are resident or hosted in Northern Rakhine, Shan, and Kachin States.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Design and adopt specific legislation, protocols, plans and measures for the protection and safety of all persons with disabilities in situations of risk and in humanitarian emergencies, which take into account the specific requirements of all persons with disabilities;

(b) Strengthen the humanitarian protection for persons with disabilities affected by conflict and humanitarian emergencies, including those belonging to ethnic and religious minorities, particularly in Northern Rakhine, Shan, and Kachin States.

Cuba (2019)

23. The Committee is concerned about the lack of awareness of persons with disabilities on the existence and nature of protocols on assistance for persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, the limited dissemination of handbooks and guides on assisting persons with disabilities in potential disaster situations, and the lack of information in accessible means and formats of communication.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop and disseminate widely a national plan on situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies that provides for assistance for all persons with disabilities that takes into account their requirements, through specific and cross-cutting approaches, and a protocol on risk mitigation for persons with disabilities in situations of risk through accessible early-warning systems, including in sign language, Easy Read and Braille, focusing in particular on persons living in rural areas, and continue to provide training to first responders;

(b) Include persons with disabilities in all stages of disaster management with a view to ensuring that their requirements and rights are respected.

Niger (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a co-ordinating body for risks and national disasters that adequately incorporates persons with disabilities. It is concerned about the lack of information on how humanitarian aid is made accessible to persons with disabilities, including emergency related information, evacuation systems, transport and shelters.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the full inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in designing the National Emergency Management System Plan, and adopt a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy that is fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015-2030).

Norway (2019)

17. The Committee is concerned about the disproportionate impact on persons with disabilities in situations of risk and emergencies, and about the absence of comprehensive policies related to disaster risk reduction that include persons with disabilities and their representative organizations in the planning, implementation and monitoring processes of national disaster risk reduction strategies.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, through active consultations with representative organisations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Develop an emergency information and warning system that is fully available, free and accessible, throughout the State party for all persons with disabilities regardless of impairment;

(b) Adopt a comprehensive disaster risk reduction strategy that guarantees the accessibility and inclusion of persons with disabilities in all situations of risk.

Rwanda (2019)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a disability perspective in the general strategy, plan, protocols and tools in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;

(b) The lack of civil protection personnel with knowledge and skills to assist persons with disabilities in disaster risk situations;

(c) The inaccessibility of information regarding disaster risk reduction and response for persons with disabilities, in particular persons who are deaf, blind, deaf-blind and persons with intellectual disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure that the national strategy, plan, protocols and tools to deal with situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, are inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities, and that through their representative organizations, they are included in structures responsible for disaster preparedness, management and recovery;

(b) Train and equip emergency response teams with the knowledge and skills to assist persons with disabilities in disaster risk situations;

(c) Put into place measures to ensure that information on disaster risk reduction and response is accessible to all persons with disabilities, including persons who are deaf, blind, deaf-blind and persons with intellectual disabilities.

Saudi Arabia (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The precarious situation of refugees and asylum-seeking persons with disabilities, resulting from the State party's military action in the region;

(b) Insufficient measures taken to guarantee that its preparedness, protection and disaster relief measures, shelters and evacuation routes, including corresponding information material, are accessible to persons with disabilities.

20. The Committee, recalling that if the State party exercises effective control over individuals in another jurisdiction (CCPR/C/96/D/1539/2006, para 14.2), or if it is a link in the causal chain that would make possible violations in another jurisdiction, the guarantees of the Convention apply, recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the respect of all the rights of persons with disabilities in the exercise of its powers in other jurisdictions, including in armed conflict, and facilitate the rapid and unimpeded passage of humanitarian relief for civilians in need (see A/HRC/33/38, paras. 71 (b) and (d));

(b) Adopt and implement a fully inclusive and accessible emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy to ensure the protection and safety of persons with disabilities at risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030, and guarantee the provision of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities on emergency-related information, evacuation systems, transport and shelters.

Senegal (2019)

19. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The absence of a national plan for disaster risk reduction to support persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, especially persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities and persons who are blind or visually impaired;

(b) The lack of access to information in accessible formats including emergency related information, evacuation systems, transportation and available shelters.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Ensure the inclusion, meaningful consultation and effective participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the Civil Defence Directorate and in designing the National Emergency Management System Plan;

(b) Adopt and implement a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy that is inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015-2030);

(c) Adopt measures to ensure the provision of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, especially for persons who are deaf, and persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, women and children with disabilities, on the accessibility and the inclusion of such persons in humanitarian aid, including emergency related information, evacuation systems, transport and shelters.

Spain (2019)

20. The Committee is concerned that legislation, protocols and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies do not sufficiently take into account the specific requirements of all persons with disabilities.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and through the active participation of representative organisations of persons with disabilities, design and adopt specific legislation, protocols, plans and measures for the protection and rescue of all persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, which take into account the specific requirements of all persons with disabilities.

Türkiye (2019)

23. The Committee is concerned about the absence of information on a comprehensive strategy and plan of action that ensures inclusion and accessibility of disaster risk reduction measures. It is also concerned about the absence of periodic risk assessments and disaggregated data collection that allows the State party to identify and address the specific risks that persons with disabilities face in armed conflicts, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national strategy and protocols on disaster risk reduction and humanitarian emergencies, inclusive of persons with disabilities, in line with the criteria indicated in the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk reduction 2015-2030;
- (b) Ensure that the Disaster and Emergency Management Presidency involves organizations of persons with disabilities in the development of risk assessments, plans for disaster risk reduction and data collection efforts;
- (c) Ensure continuous human, financial and technical resources for post-emergency rehabilitation, resettlement, reconstruction, and rebuilding processes, which are accessible and responsive to the specific requirements of persons with disabilities.

Vanuatu (2019)

20. The Committee notes the vulnerability of the State party to natural disasters and is concerned that persons with disabilities are not sufficiently involved in disaster risk reduction plans at national, provincial and community level. It is also concerned that some persons with disabilities were still left behind during the evacuation from Ambae Island in 2018 and that there is a lack of unified measures taken for emergency notification system, which are accessible for persons with disabilities regardless of types of impairment.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Improve the accessibility of warning information for all different types of impairments, particularly for persons with visual and hearing impairment and those with intellectual disabilities;
- (b) Consult closely with persons with disabilities through their organizations in the design and implementation of all disaster risk reduction plans at the national, provincial and community level and adopt a comprehensive strategy, which incorporates recommendations made by the joint study into the Cyclone Pam response from the perspective of persons with disabilities in 2016 and 2017, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015–2030 and Goals 11 and 13 of the Sustainable Development Goals;
- (c) Continue ensuring that clusters under the National Disaster Management Office, including the Gender Protection Cluster, adequately address the specific requirements of all persons with disabilities in disaster risk responses.

Algeria (2018)

22. The Committee is concerned at the absence of measures to respond to the specific requirements of refugees with disabilities in the context of humanitarian crises.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt, within a clear timeline, a risk and emergency strategy and ensure that disability issues are integrated into the strategy, in compliance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Bulgaria (2018)

27. The Committee notes with concern that deaf and hard of hearing persons, blind persons and persons with intellectual disabilities face challenges in accessing information on situations of risk across the State party, including in remote and rural areas. It is also concerned about the lack of information in sign language, electronic format, Braille, printed and Easy Read about early warning systems.

28. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure access to information on situations of risk, including in sign language, electronic format, Braille, and Easy Read across the State party, including in remote and rural areas.

Malta (2018)

17. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on the inclusion of persons with disabilities in the planning, implementation and monitoring processes of disaster risk reduction, such as the General Emergency Plan, the regional evacuation plan, and of the development of new technologies and services. It is also concerned that some reception centres for asylum seekers and the Office of the Refugee Commissioner are not accessible for persons with disabilities and that information for persons with disabilities, particularly asylum seekers, is lacking in accessible formats.

18. The Committee recommends in line with the Sendai Framework For Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 that the State party ensure that persons with disabilities are included in the planning, implementation and monitoring processes of disaster risk reduction. It further calls on the State party to improve the access to facilities and information for asylum seekers with disabilities.

Philippines (2018)

22. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on measures taken to implement the Philippine Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Act and the coordination mechanisms by the National Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Council with respect to persons with disabilities in situations of risk. It is also concerned about the information that during the 2017 Battle of Marawi in Lanao del Sur province, many women, at-risk groups such as children, persons with disabilities were left in the center of gunfire and chaos causing massive internal displacement.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt an effective mechanism in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 in order to have an accessible communication strategy (e.g. hotlines, a text message-warning application, general manuals in sign language and Braille, etc.) and comprehensive emergency strategy and protocols for situations risk;

(b) Ensure that disaster risk reduction strategies are inclusive and accessible for persons with disabilities, and comply with the commitments of the Chapter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action, and the 2016 Humanitarian Summit;

(c) Enact legislation and enforce measures requiring all public services to develop individual and local plans for the safe evacuation of persons with disabilities during situations of risk, in close consultation with persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations.

Poland (2018)

17. The Committee is concerned that legislation, protocols and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies do not sufficiently include specific requirements of persons with disabilities.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, through active consultations with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, design and adopt specific regulations, plans and measures for the protection and rescue of all persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

South Africa (2018)

20. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a national plan for disaster risk reduction to support persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, especially persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities and persons who are blind or visually impaired. It is also concerned about the lack of access to information in appropriate formats including emergency related information, evacuation systems, transportation and shelters.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national plan to ensure the protection of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and to ensure universal accessibility and inclusion for persons with disabilities at all levels of disaster risk reduction policies and their implementation in line with general comment No. 2 (2014) on accessibility and the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015);

(b) Design and disseminate information in accessible formats to all persons with disabilities, in all of the State party's official languages, about early warning mechanisms in case of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

North Macedonia (2018)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

22. The lack of incorporation of disability or accessibility and support to people with disabilities in the National Protection and Rescue Directorate, and the lack of emergency number in accessible formats, accessible equipment and provision for emergency and rescue trainings for people with disabilities.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Revise its legislation, policies and guidelines to ensure that Disaster Risk Reduction management and humanitarian aid is accessible and inclusive for persons with disability;

(b) Provide emergency number in accessible formats, equipment and provision for emergency and rescue trainings for people with disabilities.

Haiti (2018)

20. The Committee notes with concern that:

(a) The existing disaster risk reduction national strategic plan does not include a disability perspective for the protection of persons with disabilities in situations of risk, including disasters and that the State party relies on ad-hoc mobilization efforts by volunteers to reach out to persons with disabilities in cases of natural disasters;

(b) Organizations of persons with disabilities were not engaged in the formulation of the disaster risk reduction national strategic plan;

(c) Persons with disabilities do not have equal access to humanitarian and emergency services including the distribution of humanitarian assistance, and that shelters, centres and facilities are often inaccessible.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party, in consultation with persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

(a) Expedite the revision of the disaster risk reduction national strategic plan with clear guidance and accessible protocols that are inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities, and take them into consideration, in all situations of risk, in accordance with the 2015-2030 Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction and raise awareness, including through public media campaigns about such protocols in case of natural disasters;

(b) Ensure that persons with disabilities are effectively engaged in the design and implementation of measures for their protection and safety in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;

(c) Take measures to improve the accessibility of humanitarian and emergency services, including distribution of assistance, shelters and facilities.

Nepal (2018)

19. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific protective measures and support for persons with disabilities targeting specifically vulnerable groups who were disproportionately affected (women, people with leprosy, children and indigenous peoples) by the 2015 earthquake.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt an effective mechanism in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 in order to have an accessible communication strategy (e.g. hotlines, a text message-warning application, general manuals in sign language and Braille, etc.), and comprehensive emergency strategy and protocols for situations of disaster and risk. The Committee also recommends that the State party require all public services to develop individual and local plans for the safe evacuation of persons with disabilities in consultations with them through their representative organizations. In this regard, the State party should ensure that post-disaster recovery and rehabilitation efforts follow a human rights based approach in order to effectively protect all persons with disabilities.

Oman (2018)

23. The Committee is concerned that the National Emergency Management System Plan does not adequately incorporate persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on how humanitarian aid is made accessible to persons with disabilities, including emergency related information, evacuation systems, transport and shelters.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure the full inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in designing the National Emergency Management System Plan, and adopt and implement a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy that is fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015-2030). The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure the provision of information in accessible formats for persons with disabilities, especially for women and children, and persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and also for the deaf, on the accessibility and inclusion of such persons in humanitarian aid, including emergency related information, evacuation systems, transport and shelters.

Seychelles (2018)

16. The Committee is concerned that legislation, protocols and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies do not sufficiently consider the specific requirements of persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, through active consultations with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, design and adopt specific regulations, plans and measures for the protection of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and emergency, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Slovenia (2018)

16. The Committee is concerned that legislation, protocols and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies do not sufficiently consider the specific requirements of persons with disabilities.

17. The Committee recommends that the State party, through active consultations with representative organisations of persons with disabilities, design and adopt specific regulations, plans and measures for the protection of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and emergency, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Sudan (2018)

21. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The absence of a national strategy for the protection of persons with disabilities in emergency and humanitarian situations;
- (b) The limited support provided to persons with disabilities who are internally displaced, refugees or asylum seekers.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a disaster risk reduction strategy that is accessible and inclusive of persons with disabilities, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction; and ensure that humanitarian actors are trained in the human rights-based approach to disability;
- (b) To strengthen its efforts to provide adequate support to persons with disabilities who are internally displaced, refugees or asylum seekers.

Latvia (2017)

18. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific plans, prepared in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, on prevention, protection and assistance for persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a disaster risk reduction and management plan that ensures accessibility and the inclusion of all persons with disabilities, providing for a single point of contact in situations of emergency and disasters, in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Luxembourg (2017)

22. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information about training for personnel of emergency services on the rights of persons with disabilities. It is also concerned about the lack of information on access to appropriate processing facilities and mental health support, including counselling, for asylum seekers and refugees with disabilities arriving in the State party, especially those with psychosocial disabilities.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party train emergency services personnel on the rights of persons with disabilities. It also recommends that the State party ensure that asylum seekers and refugees with disabilities arriving in the State party have access to facilities on an equal basis with others, beyond physical accessibility, and that persons with psychosocial disabilities have access to appropriate support and rehabilitation.

Montenegro (2017)

22. The Committee is concerned about the lack of any comprehensive strategy, protocols or standards, and about the lack of regular training of relevant professionals and in public buildings to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to help in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies. It is also concerned about the lack of equal access to information, such as accessible and adapted manuals, including guidelines in line with its general comment No. 2.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt an effective mechanism in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 in order to have an accessible and comprehensive emergency strategy and protocols for situations of risk (including, for example, hotlines, a text message warning application, general manuals in sign language and Braille), and to require all public services to develop individual and local plans for the safe evacuation of persons with disabilities, in consultation with persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, including at the local level.

Morocco (2017)

24. The Committee is concerned about the absence of a national strategy for the protection of persons with disabilities from risk situations, including natural disasters, and the lack of information on the accessibility of humanitarian and emergency services for persons with disabilities.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a disaster risk reduction strategy that provides for accessibility for and inclusion of persons with disabilities, in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Panama (2017)

28. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a protocol on assistance for persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and the limited dissemination of handbooks and guides on assisting persons with disabilities in potential disaster situations.

29. In line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop, adopt and disseminate widely a national plan on situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies that provides for priority assistance for all persons with disabilities, through specific and cross-cutting approaches, and a protocol on risk mitigation for persons with disabilities in situations of risk through accessible early-warning systems, including in sign language, Easy Read and Braille, focusing in particular on persons living in rural areas and indigenous regions, and continue to develop the road map and provide training to first responders;

(b) Incorporate a disability perspective in its policies and programmes on climate change;

(c) Include persons with disabilities in all stages of disaster management with a view to ensuring that their needs and rights are respected.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)

28. The Committee is concerned about the impact on persons with disabilities in situations of emergencies, including floods and fire, and the absence of comprehensive policies related to disaster risk reduction that include persons with disabilities in the planning, implementation and monitoring processes of disaster risk reduction.

29. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a comprehensive disaster risk reduction plan and strategies that provide for accessibility and inclusion of persons with disabilities in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities;

(b) Mainstream disability in all humanitarian aid channels and involve organizations of persons with disabilities in setting priorities on aid distribution in the context of risk and humanitarian emergencies, paying attention to the Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action;

(c) Develop information and warning systems in humanitarian emergencies that are accessible for all persons with disabilities;

(d) Ensure that organizations of persons with disabilities participate in resilience teams at the local level and have an active role in advising on and formulating policies and guidelines regarding disaster preparedness and planning.

Armenia (2017)

17. The Committee is concerned that legislation, protocols and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies do not take the requirements of persons with disabilities into consideration.

18. The Committee recommends that the State party include a disability perspective in all legislation, protocols and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and take measures in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)

20. The Committee is concerned about the lack of a comprehensive strategy for protocols to support persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies. In line with its general comment No. 2 (2014), it is especially concerned about the lack of equal access to information in appropriate formats.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt an effective system in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 in order to have an accessible (e.g. through hotlines, a text message-warning application, general manuals in sign language and in Braille) and comprehensive emergency strategy and protocols for situations of risk, and that it require all public services to develop plans for the evacuation of persons with disabilities in consultation with representative organizations of persons with disabilities, including at the local level.

Canada (2017)

25. The Committee takes note of several policy measures at the federal, provincial and territorial levels that provide for comprehensive plans on preparedness and disaster risk management and reduction and that are inclusive of disability requirements. However, the Committee notes with concern the absence of disaggregated information about the situation of asylum seekers and refugee persons with disabilities in the State party.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Conduct research on the effective access of asylum seekers and refugee persons with disabilities to the protection of their rights under the Convention;
- (b) Ensure the provision of accessible information, including easy-read versions of official documents, during asylum-seeking processes and with respect to social protection and rehabilitation programmes for asylum seekers and refugees with disabilities;
- (c) Set up programmes to build capacity among international cooperation and assistance officials with regard to the rights of persons with disabilities;
- (d) Consider endorsing the Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action.

Cyprus (2017)

31. The Committee is concerned about the lack of sufficient measures guaranteeing full inclusion of persons with disabilities in emergency responses, including access to the telephone-based emergency service “112” for persons with disabilities, especially those with intellectual and sensory disabilities.

32. The Committee recommends that the Office of the Commissioner of Electronic Communications and Postal Regulations provide sufficient means of access to the telephone-based emergency service “112” in order for it to be made fully accessible to all persons with disabilities in emergency situations, as required by European Union Directive 2009/136/EC.

Honduras (2017)

25. El Comité observa con preocupación que si bien existen las entidades responsables de coordinar y dirigir las situaciones de riesgo y emergencias humanitarias no se incluye un protocolo especial para mitigar los riesgos de personas con discapacidad en situaciones de riesgo.

26. El Comité recomienda que el Sistema Nacional de Riesgos incorpore un protocolo específico para mitigar los riesgos de personas con discapacidad en situaciones de riesgo con unas alertas tempranas accesibles que incluyan lengua de señas y sistema braille prestando especial atención a las que viven en zonas rurales y remotas. Asimismo, le recomienda incorporar la discapacidad en sus políticas y programas sobre cambio climático.

Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)

24. The Committee takes note of the State party information about its demining program. However, the Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of appropriate preparedness and information about risk reduction strategies during emergencies, in formats accessible to persons with disabilities, and information about accessibility of shelters and evacuation routes; and
- (b) The absence of information on the situation of refugee persons with disabilities and on how they are included in disaster risk reduction strategies.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Ensure that the disaster risk reduction plan and strategies provides for accessibility and inclusion of persons with disabilities, in all situations of risk, in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction; and
- (b) Take measures to facilitate the protection of persons with disabilities in refugee camps, such as accessible shelters, water and sanitation, education and health, evacuation during emergencies and rehabilitation.

Jordan (2017)

23. The Committee notes that the State party is host to a significant number of refugees. It is concerned about the lack of a comprehensive, accessible and disability-inclusive disaster risk management strategy. It is also concerned that deaf persons are limited to using a certain type of mobile telephone when accessing the emergency hotline service.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party take into account the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015-2030) in adopting and implementing a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy and protocols that are fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities, including refugees with disabilities. The Committee also recommends that the emergency hotline service be made accessible to persons with disabilities, particularly deaf persons, via the independent technologies platform.

Republic of Moldova (2017)

22. The Committee is concerned that legislation and plans on situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including Law No. 1491 on humanitarian aid, does not take the requirements of persons with disabilities into consideration in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

23. The Committee recommends that the State party include a disability perspective in all legislation and plans relating to situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and that it adopt measures in line with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Bolivia (2016)

25. The Committee is concerned that accessibility and inclusion of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction is insufficient, and that there are no response protocols in this regard.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures, in the light of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (2015-2030), for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in strategies for climate change adaptation and disaster risk reduction, for the inclusion of accessibility in infrastructure and evacuation routes, and for the provision of information on disaster risk reduction, including in Braille and sign language and using alternative modes and formats of communication.

Colombia (2016)

26. The Committee notes with concern the limited participation of persons with disabilities in the development and implementation of risk reduction strategies and the lack of information accessibility.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures, in the light of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in strategies for climate change adaptation and disaster risk reduction; for the inclusion of accessibility in infrastructure and evacuation routes; and for the provision of information on disaster risk reduction, including in Braille and sign language and using alternative modes and formats of communication.

28. The Committee is concerned at:

- (a) The fact that during the peace negotiations between the Government of the State party and the Fuerzas Armadas Revolucionarias de Colombia – Ejército del Pueblo (FARC-EP), the disability perspective has not been considered a priority in the context of the rehabilitation and social reintegration of victims with disabilities;

(b) The lack of accessibility of the Central Register of Victims and the shortage of reliable information and statistics on victims with disabilities;

(c) The large number of victims of anti-personnel mines and the limited efforts to ensure their full rehabilitation and community reintegration;

(d) The lack of accessibility and of the disability perspective in victim reparation programmes, such as that operated by the Land Restitution Unit, and the requirement of judicial interdiction in order to benefit from compensation as victims.

29. The Committee recommends that the State party include the disability perspective in all victim reparation and assistance programmes, in coordination with the National Disability System and in consultation with victims with disabilities and the organizations representing them, in particular by:

(a) Adopting rehabilitation and social inclusion policies for persons with disabilities who are victims of the armed conflict, including measures for their rehabilitation and community reintegration with a gender approach, aimed specifically at persons who have developed psychosocial disabilities as a consequence of the armed conflict;

(b) Ensuring the accessibility of all procedures related to the Central Register of Victims, especially in rural areas and the most remote locations;

(c) Eliminating the interdiction requirement for victims of the armed conflict to benefit from reparation and support programmes.

Ethiopia (2016)

23. The Committee is concerned at the absence of measures to tackle humanitarian crises, specifically relating to persons with disabilities and their specific requirements.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt, within a clear timeline, a risk and emergency strategy and ensure that disability issues are integrated into the strategy, in compliance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Guatemala (2016)

29. The Committee is concerned that the State party's action plans and national policy on preparedness and response in the event of humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters do not take into account the needs of persons with disabilities.

30. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that its action plans and national policy on preparedness and response in the event of humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters are inclusive and accessible to all persons with disabilities, focusing in particular on those living in rural and remote areas. It also recommends mainstreaming disability in its climate change policies and programmes, taking into consideration the outcomes of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 with regard to persons with disabilities, the outcome document of the Climate Summit and the Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action.

Italy (2016)

25. The Committee is concerned about the challenges encountered by refugees, migrants and asylum seekers with disabilities arriving in the State party, especially those with psychosocial disabilities, in accessing appropriate processing facilities and mental health support, including counselling.

26. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that all persons with disabilities arriving in the State party are able to access facilities on an equal basis with others and that those with psychosocial disabilities are given appropriate support and rehabilitation through strengthened systems. It also recommends that the State party ratify the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of their Families and endorse the 2016 Charter on Inclusion of Persons with Disabilities in Humanitarian Action.

United Arab Emirates (2016)

21. The Committee notes that in 2009 the Ministry of Social Affairs issued technical guidelines for civil defence personnel on ways to plan the evacuation of persons with disabilities in emergency situations. The Committee is concerned, however:

(a) That, apart from those guidelines, there are no strategies, protocols or tools to prevent, protect, inform, assist and involve persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies;

(b) About the lack of detailed information regarding the training to be provided to all staff involved in the evacuation of persons with disabilities during emergencies.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt and implement a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy and protocols that are fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities;

(b) Regularly provide basic training to persons charged with evacuating persons with disabilities in the event of an emergency.

Uruguay (2016)

23. Al Comité le preocupa que el Sistema Nacional de Emergencia, Ley número 18621, no cuente con protocolos específicos para el tratamiento de personas con discapacidad en situación de emergencia nacional. También le preocupa la poca divulgación de los manuales y guías prácticas para el apoyo a las personas con discapacidad en situaciones de riesgo de desastres, el desconocimiento del personal de protección civil acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y la poca accesibilidad en vías de evacuación a nivel nacional.

24. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que proporcione capacitación permanente sobre los derechos humanos de las personas con discapacidad al personal de protección civil. Dicha formación deberá incluir la divulgación de los instrumentos elaborados para la inclusión de las personas con discapacidad en las estrategias para la reducción de riesgos de desastres, y la inclusión de la accesibilidad en infraestructura y las rutas de evacuación.

Chile (2016)

21. Al Comité le preocupa la poca divulgación de los manuales y guías prácticas para el apoyo a las personas con discapacidad en situaciones de riesgo de desastres, el desconocimiento del personal de protección civil acerca de los derechos de las personas con discapacidad y la poca accesibilidad en vías de evacuación a nivel nacional. Asimismo, le preocupa la falta de accesibilidad de los servicios e información relacionada con la reducción de riesgos de desastres para las personas con discapacidad.

22. El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que capacite de manera permanente al personal de protección civil en materia de derechos humanos de las personas con discapacidad. Dicha formación deberá incluir la divulgación de los instrumentos elaborados para la inclusión de las personas con discapacidad en las estrategias para la reducción de riesgos de desastres, la provisión de servicios digitales de comunicación, la inclusión de la accesibilidad en infraestructura y las rutas de evacuación, así como la información relacionada con la reducción de los riesgos de desastres. También le recomienda que preste especial atención a la accesibilidad a la información, incluido el Braille, la lengua de señas y los medios y formatos alternativos de comunicación, y deberá tener en cuenta el Marco de Sendai para la Reducción del Riesgo de Desastres.

Lithuania (2016)

23. The Committee notes with concern that the requirements of persons with disabilities, especially those who are deaf, deaf blind or hard of hearing, are not explicitly factored into disaster response measures at the national and local levels, including the emergency call application called "GPIS112".

24. The Committee recommends that the State party implement, in close collaboration with organizations of persons with disabilities, initiatives securing the inclusion of persons who are deaf, deaf blind or hard of hearing in emergency response and mitigation plans and adapt emergency call lines to respond to the requirements of persons who are deaf, deaf blind or hard of hearing through the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

Portugal (2016)

24. The Committee is concerned that the policies of civil protection and humanitarian assistance in the State party do not take sufficiently into consideration the needs of persons with disabilities in these areas.

25. The Committee recommends that all elements of the State party's disaster-reduction policies and programmes to be inclusive and accessible for all persons with disabilities.

26. The Committee notes that certain disability-related aspects are considered in the State party's policies and programmes regarding migration, refugees and asylum. However, it is deeply concerned that migrants, refugees and asylum seekers with disabilities often find themselves in situations of destitution or extreme poverty.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party redouble its efforts in its policies and programmes regarding migration, refugees and asylum in order to support migrants, refugees and asylum seekers with disabilities in situations of destitution or extreme poverty.

Serbia (2016)

19. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a general strategy, plan, protocols and tools to protect and assist persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies. It is especially concerned about the lack of accessibility of evacuation plans and subsequent reconstruction plans, and lack of equal access to information, with special regards to mass media. Manuals for emergency situations are not in accessible formats either.

20. The Committee encourages the State party to adopt fully accessible and comprehensive emergency strategy, protocols and accessible informative services (e.g. hotlines, SMS-warning application, manuals in sign language and in Braille) adequately tackling the requirements of persons with disabilities, in particular when evacuating them. Additional measures should be taken in relation to information provided via mass media to ensure that deaf and hard of hearing persons have access to it, and to the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030. The needs of persons with disabilities should also be considered in the planning and implementation of reconstruction programmes, taking into account accessibility standards and universal design.

Slovakia (2016)

34. The Committee is concerned that public broadcasting of warnings about natural disasters and emergencies is inaccessible.

35. The Committee recommends that the State party make available early warning systems in all formats, especially sign language and text messages (or other equivalent mobile applications) to ensure persons with disabilities can prepare and respond to emergency situations.

36. The Committee is concerned about the situation of refugees and asylum seekers with disabilities seeking admission to the State party and the fact that those who are detained are not provided with appropriate support and reasonable accommodation.

37. The Committee recommends that the State party mainstream disability in its refugee policies and that any detention of persons with disabilities in the context of asylum seeking is provided in line with the Convention.

Thailand (2016)

23. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific plans of prevention, protection and assistance for persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, prepared in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a disaster risk reduction and management plan that ensures accessibility and the inclusion of all persons with disabilities, and that provides for a single point of contact in situations of emergency and disasters in accordance with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction.

Uganda (2016)

20. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The lack of reference to persons with disabilities in the National Policy for Internally Displaced Persons and the non-establishment of the National Disaster Preparedness and Management Commission;
- (b) The absence of specific provisions for refugees with disabilities in Northern Uganda through the Peace, Recovery and Development Plan;
- (c) The absence of provisions for evacuation of persons with disabilities in emergency situations such as fire outbreaks.

21. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Adopt a national plan to ensure the protection of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and also universal accessibility and disability inclusion at all stages and levels of all disaster risk reduction policies and their implementation;
- (b) Provide information in accessible formats in all languages used in the State party, including Swahili and indigenous and refugee languages as well as sign language, about early warning mechanisms in case of risk and humanitarian emergencies;
- (c) Monitor, in close consultation with organizations of persons with disabilities, the implementation of the Peace, Recovery and Development Plan to ensure that the requirements of persons with disabilities, including refugees with disabilities, are addressed in post-conflict districts of Northern Uganda;
- (d) Finalize the draft Uganda national disaster risk reduction and management policy, in close consultation with representatives of persons with disabilities to include provisions for identification and support for persons with disabilities, include persons with disabilities in the National Disaster Preparedness and Management Commission, and consider implementing the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030.

European Union (2015)

30. The Committee is concerned that emergency number 112 is not fully accessible across the European Union to all persons with all types of disabilities and that Member States' civil protection policies are not in line with the new Council conclusions on the inclusion of persons with disabilities in disaster risk management.

31. The Committee recommends that the European Union take necessary measures to ensure that emergency number 112 is fully accessible across the European Union to all persons with all types of disabilities and that all aspects of disaster risk reduction policies and programs are inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities.

32. The Committee is concerned about the lack of inclusion of persons with disabilities in all European Union policies and guidelines on humanitarian aid as well as the lack of mechanisms to share knowledge and good practices in line with the Convention between different European Union institutions and between European Union Member States.

33. The Committee recommends that the European Union: (a) Adopt an implementation plan, in line with the Council Conclusions of February 2015 and the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030; (b) Establish a mechanism to build capacity and share good practice between different European Union institutions and between the European Union and its Member States on disability-inclusive and accessible humanitarian aid; (c) Establish a monitoring and accountability framework for the implementation of European Union policies and programmes including the collection of disaggregated data on sex, disability and age.

34. The Committee notes with deep concern the precarious situation of persons with disabilities in the current migrant crisis in the European Union. It is furthermore concerned that refugees, migrants and asylum-seekers with disabilities continue to be detained within the European Union in conditions which do not provide appropriate support and reasonable accommodations. The migration decision-making procedure is not accessible for all persons with disabilities and information and communication is not provided in accessible formats.

35. The Committee recommends that the European Union mainstream disability in its migration and refugee policies. In addition, the Committee recommends that the European Union issue guidelines to its agencies and Member States that restrictive detention of persons with disabilities for migration and asylum seeking purposes is not aligned to the Convention.

Gabon (2015)

26. The Committee is concerned about the lack of emergency and disaster risk reduction strategies and policies that are inclusive of persons with disabilities.

27. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a national risk reduction policy and emergency management protocols that are accessible to and inclusive of persons with disabilities, developed in close consultation with them and their representative organisations. In addition, ensure that all related information and humanitarian relief are distributed in accessible formats and ways to persons with disabilities.

Kenya (2015)

21. The Committee is concerned about the absence of information on the situation of internally displaced persons with disabilities, and those living in refugee camps, as well as the lack of information on emergencies and disaster strategies in accessible formats for persons with disabilities.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national plan to ensure the protection of persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies and to further ensure universal accessibility and disability inclusion at all stages and levels of all disaster risk reduction policies and their implementation;

(b) Provide information in accessible modes, means and formats of communication for all persons with disabilities, in all of the State party's official languages, and indigenous languages about early warning mechanisms in case of risk and humanitarian emergency; and

(c) Adopt measures to monitor the situation of persons with disabilities in refugee camps and internally displaced persons with disabilities and ensure that they are entitled to access all services available, including accessible shelters, water and sanitation, education and health.

Mauritius (2015)

19. The Committee regrets the lack of clarity as to the legal framework, which the State party will include in the National Risk Reduction and Disaster Management Bill to meet its obligations under article 11 of the Convention.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations, in the drafting process of the National Risk Reduction Disaster Management Bill, in order to ensure accessible and disability inclusive disaster risk management.

Qatar (2015)

21. The Committee is concerned by the lack of a specific strategy, protocols and tools to prevent, protect, assist and involve persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy and protocols fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities.

Ukraine (2015)

22. The Committee is concerned about the reports that persons with disabilities were abandoned and could not be evacuated during the conflict in the east of the country. It is particularly concerned about the reports that there were no warning system for deaf and blind people and that persons with multiple forms of disabilities could not use bomb shelters. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of accurate data on displacement, casualties and injuries among persons with disabilities during the conflict. Furthermore, the Committee notes alarming reports that the humanitarian aid, including aid provided by international donors, is not accessible to persons with disabilities and contributes to their exclusion from relief efforts.

23. The Committee urges that the State party, including at the local level, take all necessary measures to facilitate the protection, including evacuation, of persons with disabilities who currently remain in the conflict areas of the country and ensure that its emergency response mechanisms and evacuation plans are inclusive and accessible to all persons with disabilities. It particularly calls upon the State party to prioritize persons with disabilities in its evacuation plans, including by training the personnel involved. The Committee further recommends to mainstream disability in all humanitarian aid channels and involve organizations of persons with disabilities in setting priorities on aid distribution.

24. The Committee is concerned that a lack of systematic registration process for persons with disabilities who are internally displaced hinders their access to social protection, emergency and humanitarian aid services, including shelters, medicine, benefits, pensions that are necessary for adequate standard of living.

25. The Committee urges the State party to take all necessary measures to systematically register internally displaced persons with disabilities and provide them with adequate standard of living.

Cook Islands (2015)

21. The Committee is concerned that accessibility and inclusion of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction and response protocols is insufficient.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party conduct systematic disaggregated data collection to inform the development of accessible and inclusive protocols, especially for Deaf persons, by implementing and funding the Joint National Action Plan for Disaster Risk Management, and ensure the necessary budget allocations including through the use of financing originating from international cooperation.

Czech Republic (2015)

20. The Committee is concerned that national emergency protocols do not contain provisions for persons with disabilities, in particular deaf people.

21. The Committee urges the State party to ensure disaster risk reduction and emergency response mechanisms are inclusive and accessible to all persons with disabilities.

Dominican Republic (2015)

18. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a strategy for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in plans and strategies for dealing with risks and humanitarian emergencies, the unavailability of information in accessible formats and the lack of sign language interpreters.

19. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a policy inclusive of persons with disabilities in its strategies, plans and protocols for dealing with situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, including the provision of information in Dominican Sign Language.

Germany (2015)

23. The Committee is concerned about: a) access to the national emergency call system, especially for Deaf persons; b) the absence of a specific strategy for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in disaster risk reduction and humanitarian relief.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party establish uniform emergency control centres across the State party, including modern protocols for Deaf persons. The Committee also recommends that the State party adopt a human rights-based strategy for disaster risk reduction and humanitarian relief which should be inclusive and accessible to persons with disabilities.

Mongolia (2015)

19. The Committee is concerned about the lack of specific protective measures and assistance to persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, despite the fact that the State party is subjected to frequent natural disasters.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt a national plan of assistance in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, and make the manual inclusive of and accessible to all persons with disabilities, especially deaf persons, including ensuring its dissemination in accessible formats.

Turkmenistan (2015)

23. The Committee is concerned at the lack of a specific strategy, protocols and tools to prevent, protect, assist and involve persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies, with special regards to mass media, ensuring their equal access to information, especially when designing and executing evacuation plans and subsequent reconstruction plans, in compliance with accessibility standards.

24. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement a comprehensive emergency and disaster risk reduction strategy and protocols fully inclusive of and accessible to persons with disabilities , in particular when evacuating them, with specific regards to Deaf and hard of hearing people and people with multiple forms of disabilities. The needs of persons with disabilities should also be considered in the planning and implementation of reconstruction programmes, taking into account accessibility standards.

Denmark (2014)

30. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information from the State party on the involvement by persons with disabilities and their organizations in the elaboration, implementation and evaluation of the Strategy for Danish Humanitarian Action 2010–2015, and at the absence of specific alert systems or protocols to provide persons with disabilities with the necessary support and protection in the event of risk situations or emergencies.

31. The Committee recommends that the State party take action to ensure that disaster risk reduction is fully inclusive of persons with disabilities, to develop and enforce accessible alert systems or protocols, and to organize training for rescue and emergency personnel to provide persons with disabilities with the necessary support and protection in the event of risk situations or emergencies.

Republic of Korea (2014)

19. The Committee is concerned about the absence of specific strategies in accessible formats for all persons with disabilities in situations of emergencies, including natural disasters. The Committee is particularly concerned that the enforcement decrees of the Framework Act on Building and the Act on the Promotion of Convenience for the Disabled, Senior Citizens, and Pregnant Women fail to include evacuation systems for persons with disabilities.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt and implement a comprehensive plan to ensure, in situations of risk, including the occurrence of natural disasters, the protection and safety of persons with disabilities in consideration of the characteristics of their disabilities, and to further ensure universal accessibility and disability inclusion at all stages and levels of all disaster risk reduction policies and their implementation.

Mexico (2014)

21. The Committee notes with concern the lack of specific prevention, protection and assistance plans for persons with disabilities in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies.

22. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt a national plan of assistance in situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies that includes persons with disabilities on a cross-cutting basis and the institutions that care for them;

(b) Design and disseminate, in accessible formats in all of the State party's official languages, including those used by the indigenous communities, information on early warning mechanisms in case of risk and humanitarian emergency, protection systems, institutional and community crisis response networks, and identify adequate places of refuge and shelters accessible to persons with disabilities in urban and rural areas; and

(c) Train all civil defence staff in addressing issues of security and protection for persons with disabilities in situations of risk – such as armed violence, humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters – including a gender and age perspective.

Sweden (2014)

31. The Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the State party's efforts to reduce risks and on its preparedness to provide persons with disabilities with the necessary support in the event of a disaster.

32. The Committee recommends that the State party undertake to ensure that disaster risk reduction is fully accessible and disability inclusive, and take measures to ensure its preparedness to provide persons with disabilities with the necessary support in the event of a disaster.

Azerbaijan (2014)

24. The Committee notes that the State party has an Activity Plan on the evacuation of persons with disabilities from areas of emergency and the provision of humanitarian assistance. However, the Committee is concerned at the lack of detailed information regarding the training provided to staff involved in the evacuation of persons with disabilities during emergencies.

25. The Committee urges the State party to take measures to provide training to persons charged with the task of evacuating persons with disabilities in the event of an emergency. The Committee recommends that the State party undertake to adopt and implement a comprehensive plan on disaster risk reduction, which is fully accessible and fully inclusive.

Australia (2013)

22. The Committee notes with concern that despite the adoption of local and state emergency response and mitigation plans, disability needs are often not explicitly factored into disaster response measures and that there are as yet no specific measures in National Plans to address emergency intervention strategies for persons with disabilities.

23. The Committee calls upon the State party in consultation with people with disabilities, to establish nationally consistent emergency management standards, that are implemented across all three levels of government; to ensure inclusivity across diverse disabilities and to cover all phases of emergency management preparation, early warning, evacuation, interim housing and support, recovery and rebuilding. It further recommends inclusion in National Plans of emergency response schemes for persons with disabilities.

Austria (2013)

25. While taking note of the efforts by the State party to develop a plan on disaster preparedness, and its contributions to development cooperation and humanitarian aid, the Committee is concerned at the lack of information on the State party's preparedness to provide persons with disabilities with the necessary support in the event of a disaster.

26. The Committee urges the State party to provide information in its next periodic report on the specific measures taken to ensure its preparedness to provide persons with disabilities with the necessary support in the event of a disaster. The State party should also increase its efforts to implement the twin-track approach in order to fully achieve disability inclusion in all spheres of the Austrian Development Cooperation.

El Salvador (2013)

25. The Committee is concerned that information regarding plans on prevention, risk mitigation and care of persons with disabilities in emergency situations are not available in accessible formats, and that organizations of persons with disabilities are not assigned a role in such situations.

26. The Committee urges the State party to define a concrete role for organizations of persons with disabilities in the design of the national civil protection system and to ensure that information on emergency mechanisms is made available in accessible formats.

Paraguay (2013)

27. The Committee notes that the State party has finished formulating its national policy on risk protection and civil defence. However, it notes with concern the absence of objectives and specific strategies to include persons with disabilities, despite their vulnerability in emergency and risk situations.

28. The Committee urges the State party to adopt the national risk-management policy as a matter of urgency, ensuring the involvement of disabled persons' organizations and taking due account of their input and recommendations.

Spain (2011)

31. The Committee is concerned at the insufficiency of specific protocols for persons with disabilities in emergency situations.

32. The Committee calls upon the State party to review its laws and policies related to emergency situations with a view to including provisions guaranteeing the security and protection of persons with disabilities.

IDA's Compilation of CRPD Committee's Concluding Observations

*Article 12 CRPD
(Equal recognition before the law)*

September 2025

Article 12 - Equal recognition before the law

1. States Parties reaffirm that persons with disabilities have the right to recognition everywhere as persons before the law.
2. States Parties shall recognize that persons with disabilities enjoy legal capacity on an equal basis with others in all aspects of life.
3. States Parties shall take appropriate measures to provide access by persons with disabilities to the support they may require in exercising their legal capacity.
4. States Parties shall ensure that all measures that relate to the exercise of legal capacity provide for appropriate and effective safeguards to prevent abuse in accordance with international human rights law. Such safeguards shall ensure that measures relating to the exercise of legal capacity respect the rights, will and preferences of the person, are free of conflict of interest and undue influence, are proportional and tailored to the person's circumstances, apply for the shortest time possible and are subject to regular review by a competent, independent and impartial authority or judicial body. The safeguards shall be proportional to the degree to which such measures affect the person's rights and interests.
5. Subject to the provisions of this article, States Parties shall take all appropriate and effective measures to ensure the equal right of persons with disabilities to own or inherit property, to control their own financial affairs and to have equal access to bank loans, mortgages and other forms of financial credit, and shall ensure that persons with disabilities are not arbitrarily deprived of their property.

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)
Finland (2025)
Kiribati (2025)
Maldives (2025)
Canada (2025)
Dominican Republic (2025)
European Union (2025)
Palau (2025)
Tuvalu (2025)
Viet Nam (2025)
Belarus (2024)
Belgium (2024)
Benin (2024)
Burkina Faso (2024)
Denmark (2024)
Ghana (2024)
Mauritius (2024)
Netherlands (2024)
Ukraine (2024)
Azerbaijan (2024)
Bahrain (2024)
Costa Rica (2024)
Kazakhstan (2024)
Nicaragua (2024)
Sweden (2024)
Zambia (2024)
Andorra (2023)
Austria (2023)
Germany (2023)
Israel (2023)
Malawi (2023)
Mauritania (2023)
Mongolia (2023)
Paraguay (2023)
Angola (2023)
Argentina (2023)

Georgia (2023)
Peru (2023)
Togo (2023)
Tunisia (2023)
Bangladesh (2022)
China (2022)
Macao
Indonesia (2022)
Japan (2022)
Lao People's Democratic Republic (2022)
New Zealand (2022)
Republic of Korea (2022)
Singapore (2022)
Hungary (2022)
Jamaica (2022)
Mexico (2022)
Switzerland (2022)
Venezuela (2022)
Djibouti (2021)
France (2021)
Estonia (2021)
Albania (2019)
Australia (2019)
Ecuador (2019)
El Salvador (2019)
Greece (2019)
India (2019)
Iraq (2019)
Kuwait (2019)
Myanmar (2019)
Cuba (2019)
Niger (2019)
Norway (2019)
Rwanda (2019)
Saudi Arabia (2019)
Senegal (2019)

Spain (2019)
Türkiye (2019)
Vanuatu (2019)
Algeria (2018)
Bulgaria (2018)
Philippines (2018)
Poland (2018)
Malta (2018)
South Africa (2018)
North Macedonia (2018)
Haiti (2018)
Nepal (2018)
Oman (2018)
Russian Federation (2018)
Seychelles (2018)
Slovenia (2018)
Sudan (2018)
Latvia (2017)
Luxembourg (2017)
Montenegro (2017)
Morocco (2017)
Panama (2017)
United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (2017)
Armenia (2017)
Bosnia and Herzegovina (2017)
Canada (2017)
Cyprus (2017)
Honduras (2017)
Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2017)
Jordan (2017)
Republic of Moldova (2017)
Bolivia (2016)
Colombia (2016)
Ethiopia (2016)
Guatemala (2016)
United Arab Emirates (2016)

Uruguay (2016)
Chile (2016)
Lithuania (2016)
Portugal (2016)
Serbia (2016)
Slovakia (2016)
Thailand (2016)
Uganda (2016)
Brazil (2015)
European Union (2015)
Gabon (2015)
Kenya (2015)
Mauritius (2015)
Qatar (2015)
Ukraine (2015)
Cook Islands (2015)
Croatia (2015)
Czech Republic (2015)
Dominican Republic (2015)
Germany (2015)
Mongolia (2015)
Turkmenistan (2015)
New Zealand (2014)
Denmark (2014)
Republic of Korea (2014)
Belgium (2014)
Ecuador (2014)
Mexico (2014)
Sweden (2014)
Azerbaijan (2014)
Costa Rica (2014)
Australia (2013)
Austria (2013)
El Salvador (2013)
Paraguay (2013)
Argentina (2012)

China (2012)
Hungary (2012)
Peru (2012)
Spain (2011)
Tunisia (2010)

Democratic People's Republic of Korea (2025)

21. The Committee is concerned about article 21 of the Civil Law, which provides that persons with disabilities “in physical function” shall conduct acts of civil legal affairs through their parents or guardians, and about articles 53 and 54 of the Law of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea on the Provision of the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, which regulate guardianship.

22. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, abolish guardianship regimes and all forms of substituted decision-making and to adopt supported decision-making frameworks that respect the will and preferences of persons with disabilities, in line with General Comment No. 1.

Finland (2025)

22. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The large numbers of persons with disabilities under guardianship, and that, despite the reforms to the Guardianship Services Act (442/1999), there are insufficient legal and policy measures to replace substitute decision-making with supported decision-making;

(b) The limited scope and lack of clarity in the application of the supported decision-making service under the Disability Services Act and the use of guidelines by the welfare services counties that can limit access to this service;

(c) Insufficient measures to mitigate the risk arising from ratification of the 2000 Hague Convention on the International Protection of Adults (2000 Hague Convention) in promoting substitute decision-making measures and institutionalisation.

23. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Revise legislation to eliminate all forms of substitute decision-making regimes and establish a legislative and policy framework for the implementation of supported decision-making;

(b) Review and monitor the supported decision-making service to ensure it meets the standards and principles of the Convention, clearly define its application and extend its scope beyond the Disability Services Act, and ensure that access is not restricted through the guidelines of welfare services counties;

(c) Monitor and assess the impact of the implementation of the 2000 Hague Convention on persons with disabilities and their right to self-determination to determine there is no regression from the CRPD.

Kiribati (2025)

21. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The absence of effective law and policy guarantees to ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, can exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

(b) The lack of supported decision-making mechanisms and services which results in reliance on substituted decision-making by families and others.

22. Recalling its General Comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Review the national legislation to ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, are not practically deprived of their legal capacity;

(b) Establish supported decision-making mechanisms and services that ensure the provision of individualized support and respect for the autonomy, will and preference of persons with disabilities;

(c) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the Parliament on the practical recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;

(d) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;

(e) Organize and resource the development of information about what supported decision making is, in accessible formats, including digital ones and Braille, sign language and Easy Read and distribute to persons with disabilities and their families.

Maldives (2025)

23. The Committee is concerned at:

(a) The absence of supported decision-making mechanisms for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

(b) The draft Mental Health Act does not explicitly provide for supported-decision-making.

24. The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

(a) Review the national legislation to ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities are not deprived of their legal capacity and are recognised as persons before the law on equal basis with others, and replace substitute decision-making systems, including guardianship, with supported decision-making systems, which ensures the provision of individualized support and respects the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;

(b) Incorporate provisions in the draft Mental Health Act to establish supported decision-making;

(c) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the Parliament on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making.

Canada (2025)

23. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The prevalence of substitute decision-making regimes across all jurisdictions, and the lack of national leadership to promote and advance well-established supported decision-making models throughout Canada;

(b) The British Columbia Mental Health Act that explicitly overrides mental health care consent and supported decision-making rights through the “deemed consent” provisions that go beyond the terms of the State Party interpretative declaration and conditional reservation under article 12;

(c) The systemic flaws within the “designated representative” mechanism under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act, including a lack of proper assessment in the appointment of representatives, the broad and contested scope of their role, inadequate training, and competence to support persons with disabilities and their powers to make substitute decisions.

24. Recalling its prior Concluding Observations (CRPD/C/CAN/CO/1 paras. 27 and 28) and its General Comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law the Committee recommends that the State Party, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations:

(a) Take leadership in collaborating with provincial and territorial governments to eliminate substitute decision-making by creating and implementing a nationally consistent framework for supported decision-making;

(b) Repeal all legislation, including the British Columbia Mental Health Act, that overrides personal, free, and informed consent and supported decision-making rights and ensure that federal, provincial, and territorial mental health frameworks respect the legal capacity of persons with disabilities;

(c) Address the systemic flaws within the “designated representative” mechanism under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act by establishing mandatory policies and procedures, training, and compliance measures to ensure it acts as a supported decision-making mechanism based on the will and preference of persons with disabilities and respects the universal standard of legal capacity.

Dominican Republic (2025)

21. The Committee notes the provisions of article 23 of the Organic Law on Equal Rights for Persons with Disabilities (Law 5-13). However, the Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of a mechanism to implement the provisions set forth in article 23 of Law 5-13 and the continued use of substituted decision-making system that result in loss or limitation of legal capacity, and the lack of supported decision-making mechanisms;

(b) Despite decision No. 4 of 30 September 2015 of the Monetary Board, access to bank services continues to be discriminatory for persons with disabilities, particularly for blind people who are catalogued as “illiterate” and required to bring witnesses to carry out any banking procedure.

22. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Develop mechanisms to implement article 23 of the law on equal rights for persons with disabilities and ensure that the supported decision model is effectively used in all cases;

(b) Harmonize the Constitution, the Civil Code and the Family Procedural Code with the Convention as soon as possible so as to guarantee all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, equal recognition before the law;

(c) Abolish all procedures which violate the right of persons with disabilities to have equal and independent access to banking services.

European Union (2025)

32. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of action under its competences to work towards the removal of guardianship regimes and restrictions of legal capacity of persons with disabilities in Member States, and to provide support for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity;

(b) That the European Union considers authorizing its Member States to ratify the Hague Convention of 13 January 2000 on the international protection of adults, thereby providing cross-border recognition of, inter alia, substitute decision-making regimes;

(c) That barriers remain for persons with disabilities in the European Union to control their property and financial affairs, and to have equal access to bank loans, mortgages and other forms of financial credit, including in cross-border situations.

33. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the European Union, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Call on Member States to replace substitute decision-making regimes with supported decision-making systems that respect the will and preference of persons with disabilities, and to provide training on supported decision-making to public officials, families, and service providers;
- (b) Halt efforts to authorize EU Member States to join or remain parties to the Hague Convention of 13 January 2000 on the International Protection of Adults; do not proceed with the proposed Regulation COM/2023/280 final, and do not proceed with the proposed Council Decision COM(2023) 281 final/2;
- (c) Devise legislation eliminating discrimination of persons with disabilities to control their property and financial affairs, including to access banking services.

Palau (2025)

21. The Committee is concerned that persons with disabilities, particularly those with intellectual, psychosocial or multiple disabilities, continue to be denied their legal capacity on the grounds of disability in law and in practice.

22. Recalling its General Comment No.1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Repeal and amend, without delay, all legal provisions that restrict the legal capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of impairment;
- (b) Replace all substituted decision-making regimes with supported decision-making regimes that respect the autonomy of persons with disabilities, and increase awareness among persons with disabilities, their families and relevant officials, including the judiciary, about the rights of persons with disabilities, particularly the right to equal recognition before the law;
- (c) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, in consultations and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the Parliament on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;
- (d) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;
- (e) Organize and fund the development of information about what supported decision making is, in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read and distribute to persons with disabilities and their families.

Tuvalu (2025)

21. The Committee is concerned about the denial of legal capacity for persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities as well as of the absence of supported decision-making mechanisms for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others.

22. The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

- (a) Review the national legislation to ensure that persons with disabilities, in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities are not deprived of their legal capacity and are recognised as persons before the law on equal basis with others, and replace substitute decision-making systems, including guardianship, with supported decision-making systems, which ensures the provision of individualized support and respects the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the Parliament on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;

(c) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making.

Viet Nam (2025)

23. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Civil Code of 2015 (91/2015/QH13), which stipulates that persons with mental or physical disabilities who are incapable of exercising their rights may do so through their legal representatives, guardians or legal aid organizations, has not been amended;

(b) The Penal Code includes provisions for mitigating circumstances of criminal responsibility for persons with disabilities who commit crimes, which prevents them from receiving due process, procedural adjustments, safeguards, and support when facing charges;

(c) No actions have been taken to replace the guardianship regime and other systems of substituted decision-making with decision-support mechanisms for persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, as well as persons with autism.

24. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Review and reform the Civil Code to align it with the Convention and ensure full recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities, include relevant safeguards and access to the support necessary to exercise that capacity, and take steps to introduce provisions to provide decision-making support for persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure due process, procedural accommodations, and support for persons with disabilities when facing criminal charges;

(c) Reform legislation to abolish guardianship for individuals with psychosocial, intellectual, and autistic disabilities, and establish mechanisms to support their decision-making.

Belarus (2024)

23. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) Persons with psychosocial disabilities and/or intellectual disabilities continue to be subjected to legal incapacitation proceedings due to their medical diagnoses, often preceded by involuntary hospitalization;

(b) Partial incapacitation procedures introduced in 2020, lacks compliance with the Convention, and decision-making supportive mechanisms are absent for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

(c) Article 375 of the Criminal Procedure Code, in contravention to the Convention stipulates that a case of legal incapacity for a citizen may be tried by the court of law without his participation;

(c) Number of persons with disabilities restoring their legal capacity is low within the last some years;

(d) Persons with disabilities are excluded from Article 376 of the Civil Procedure Act, which provides measures for possibility of initiation of proceeding by third parties to remove restrictions on the legal capacity of a person.

24. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and with active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations:

(a) Replace its guardianship and mental health regulations, by a supported decision-making mechanism and abolish all forms of deprivation of legal capacity on the basis of disabilities;

- (b) Harmonize the national legislation, in particular the Criminal Procedure Code and the Civil Procedure Act with the general principles, and article 5 and 12 of the Convention;
- (c) Review all legislation and measures with a view to eliminating all restrictions of rights as a result of a declaration of legal incapacity or on the grounds of a person's impairment;
- (d) Provide the authorities, including law enforcement agencies and courts, with training and awareness on the requirements of the right to legal capacity of persons with disabilities.

Belgium (2024)

24. The Committee acknowledges that the State Party has carried out some reforms of its guardianship law with the intention that assistance take precedence over representation. However, recalling its previous recommendations (para.23), the Committee is concerned:

- (a) That, despite legislative reforms, such as the Law of 8 November 2023, current legislation continues to contain substitute decision-making regimes for persons with disabilities, including by allowing judges to select administrators for persons with disabilities;
- (b) At reports that the numbers of persons under guardianship are increasing and that there is a lack of data on the number of persons under guardianship with assistance and with representation;
- (c) At the very high workload and insufficient resources of the justices of the peace who oversee the appointment and management of administrators for persons with disabilities.

25. Recalling its General Comment No. 1 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation with and the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organisations:

- (a) Revise its legislation in order to eliminate all forms of substitute decision-making and replace them with measures for supported decision-making that respect the will and preference of persons with disabilities, and develop a comprehensive strategy for the implementation of supported decision-making mechanisms, with appropriate safeguards, across all levels of federal, community, regional and municipal governments;
- (b) Until the completion of such legislation and implementation strategies, gather statistical data about the numbers of persons under guardianship ("judicial protection"), disaggregated by type of guardianship, type of impairment, gender, race, sex, age and other relevant status;
- (c) Provide the required resources and support measures for persons with disabilities exercising their legal capacity; and until the abolition of substitute decision-making regimes, provide the resources and the appropriate tools to enable the justices of the peace to take decisions on a case-by-case basis and ensure that the implementation of the reformed law follows the spirit in which it was intended.

Benin (2024)

23. The Committee notes with concern the existence of discriminatory provisions in the national legislation depriving persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities of their legal capacity and the absence of supported decision-making mechanisms for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others.

24. The Committee recommends that, in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

- (a) Review the national legislation, including the Law No. 202-07 of 7 June 2002 (Persons and Family Code), to repeal tutorship and curatorship regimes on the basis of impairment and guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to equal recognition before the law, and replace substitute decision-making systems with effective mechanisms of supported decision-making in accordance with the provisions and principles of the Convention, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations;
- (b) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;

(c) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, in consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the parliament, on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making.

Burkina Faso (2024)

24. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Provisions of the Personal and Family Code of Burkina Faso (1989) that restrict the legal capacity of persons with disabilities through a system of guardianship and curatorship, and its revision in the absence of involvement of persons with disabilities;

(b) The absence of supported decision-making mechanisms for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

(c) The absence of information on the number of persons placed under restricted capacity regimes, including guardianship and curatorship, and limited review of court decisions for purposes of restoring such persons' legal capacity.

25. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Amend the Personal and Family Code with the aim to withdraw guardianship and to introduce supported decision-making for all persons with disabilities, regardless of the impairment, and ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;

(b) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the parliament, on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;

(c) Collect and disaggregate data on the number of persons subject to restricted capacity regimes and regularly review court decisions for purposes of restoring legal capacity.

Denmark (2024)

39. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The insufficient measures taken to repeal restrictions on legal capacity on the basis of actual or perceived impairment under the Legal Incapacity and Guardianship Act and its 2019 amendments;

(b) Scarce systematic and disaggregated data on the number of guardianships issued and the number of persons with disabilities who have regained legal capacity since the ratification of the Convention by the State party;

(c) The lack of measures to repeal substitute decision-making systems and enact supported decision-making systems, and the inadequate support measures for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

40. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends the Kingdom of Denmark, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

(a) Amend the Legal Incapacity and Guardianship Act to guarantee full legal capacity to all persons with disabilities, and review existing guardianships and all remaining interdiction and incapacitation orders and adapt them to the new system of supported decision-making;

- (b) Collect data on guardianship of persons with disabilities disaggregated by race, sex, gender, age, disability and other relevant status;
- (c) Eliminate all forms of the existing substitute decision-making system and replace them with systems of supported decision-making that respect the will and preference of persons with disabilities in all areas of life, and develop a comprehensive strategy in the Kingdom of Denmark for the implementation of supported decision-making systems with appropriate and proportionate safeguards across all levels of national and municipal governments.

Ghana (2024)

24. The Committee notes with concern that:

- (a) The State Party's Constitution lacks specific measures to ensure persons with disabilities can exercise their legal capacity on equal basis with others, and the Persons with Disability Act (Act 715) does not address this subject matter, and lack of sufficient steps to develop a comprehensive policy framework with necessary safeguards to prevent abuse and protect their rights;
- (b) Lack of participation of persons with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting their legal capacity and rights, with substituted decision-making still prevalent.

25. The Committee recommends that the State Party:

- (a) Amend the Constitution and the Persons with Disability Act (Act 715) to ensure persons with disabilities can exercise their full legal capacity equally with others, and develop a comprehensive policy framework with necessary safeguards to prevent abuse and protect their rights;
- (b) Closely consult and actively involve persons with disabilities in decision-making processes affecting their legal capacity and rights and eliminate substitute decision-making and replaced it with supported decision-making model.

Mauritius (2024)

21. The Committee remains concerned that regimes of substitute decision-making and guardianship are still in place and no progress has been made to institute supported decision-making mechanisms in line with the Convention, leading to a failure to recognize the will and preferences of persons with disabilities.

22. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law and its previous recommendation, the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations, abolish guardianship measures in law and in practice and redirect organizational and financial resources from substituted decision-making towards developing supported decision-making mechanisms that respect the dignity, autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities, regardless of the level or mode of support they may require.

Netherlands (2024)

29. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) The effect of the interpretative declaration to art. 12 of the Convention;
- (b) The lack of recognition of the right of persons with disabilities to equality before the law by upholding substitute decision-making regimes that result in loss or limitation of legal capacity, and the lack of comprehensive and coordinated measures to transition from substitute decision-making to supported decision-making models, and that supported decision-making mechanisms are not being implemented for everyone;
- (c) Negative effects linked to administrative guardianship in all areas of life, such as special banks that segregate and make the existence of guardianship visible to anyone, high costs associated with changing administrators and guardianship as a legitimate reason to refuse a person as a tenant.

30. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party, in close consultation and with active involvement of persons with disabilities, through their representative organizations:

- (a) Withdraw its interpretative declaration to art. 12 of the Convention;
- (b) Repeal all legislation and policies that permit substitute decision-making and replace them with supported decision-making regimes that respect the will and preference of persons with disabilities and their right to equal recognition before the law, and fully implement supported decision-making, including monitoring and complaints mechanisms at no cost, and introduce a system of supported decision-making in the Caribbean territory of the Netherlands;
- (c) Ensure that access to housing cooperatives and banks is not negatively impacted by existing guardianship regimes.

Ukraine (2024)

24. The Committee notes with concern that the 2017 reforms that the State party approved on the legal capacity of persons with disabilities are insufficient and do not align with the Convention. In particular, it is concerned about:

- (a) The removal of legal capacity for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, which is still allowed;
- (b) The fact that persons with disabilities only have legal standing for procedures related to the deprivation of their legal capacity;
- (c) The arbitrary application and assessment of forensic psychiatric examinations in cases related to the removal and restoration of legal capacity;
- (d) Judicial decisions restoring the legal capacity of persons with disabilities remain extremely low, and the lack of a review procedure for decisions on the removal of legal capacity rendered before 2017;
- (e) Free legal assistance for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities is still restricted based on their impairment.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Abolish all laws and practices on substitute decision-making and those that deny the full legal capacity of persons with disabilities and introduce supported decision-making mechanisms;
- (b) Recognize the full legal and procedural standing of persons with disabilities to access courts regarding all matters and not only regarding the restoration of their legal capacity;
- (c) Disseminate amongst persons with disabilities their right to appeal decisions removing their legal capacity, including campaigns in long-term care institutions;
- (d) Ensure that the 2-year limitation for the deprivation of legal capacity is enforced in practice by long-term care institutions and courts;
- (e) Establish a procedure to review and appeal decisions on the removal of legal capacity rendered before 2017;
- (f) Amend its legal framework with the aim to recognize the right to appoint an independent or third-party expert in cases of removal and restoration of legal capacity, and any other legal proceedings related to the rights of persons with disabilities.

Azerbaijan (2024)

27. The Committee observes with concern:

- (a) Provisions in the State party's Civil Code authorizing deprivation of legal capacity and guardianship on the basis of impairment (arts. 28. 8 and 33.4), affecting in particular persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and at least 828 decisions of guardianship taken by courts in 2023;
- (b) The prevalence of substitute decision-making through measures purported to provide persons with disabilities with support, such as patronage (art. 39 of the Civil Code) and in the "Guidelines on the Regulations of Notary Actions in the Republic of Azerbaijan" (section 22);

(c) The absence of measures to ensure the right of persons with disabilities to own or inherit property, control their own financial affairs, access bank loans and mortgages.

28. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee reiterates its previous Concluding Observations (CRPD/C/AZE/CO/1, para. 27) and it recommends that the State party:

(a) Recognize the full legal capacity of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, review with the aim to repeal provisions in the Civil Code and regulations that authorize restriction of legal capacity of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities and introduce a mechanism to restore legal capacity for persons with disabilities under guardianship and provide information in accessible formats about restoration of legal capacity;

(b) Introduce legislation, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, providing supported decision-making that recognizes the autonomy, will and preference of persons with disabilities, ensures that informal and formal support arrangements are available, accessible and includes advance planning for support and decision-making and the right to refuse/modify a support relationship;

(c) Ensure the rights of persons with disability to own or inherit property, to control their own financial affairs and banking procedures to have equal access to bank loans, mortgages and other forms of financial credit and banking procedures, in both the public and private sectors, and the right not to be arbitrarily deprived of their property.

Bahrain (2024)¹

24. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The diminution of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities, in particular persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities, in accordance with articles 77, 78, 79 and 80 of the Civil Code No. 19 of 2001, which consider any act by a person with an intellectual disability or a person with a psychosocial disability to be voidable with the possibility of requesting the person to be placed under restraint.

(b) The absence of any mechanism to provide support for the exercise of legal capacity and decision-making for persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities.

25. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal provisions in national laws, in particular the Civil Code and the Family Code, that deny persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities the right to exercise their legal capacity

(b) Eliminate all forms of proxy decision-making, including guardianship, and replace them with an effective mechanism to support decision-making in accordance with the provisions and principles of the Convention, in close consultation and with the active participation of persons with disabilities and their organisations.

Costa Rica (2024)

21. El Comité toma nota de las aclaraciones proporcionadas por el Estado parte al concluir el diálogo constructivo. Sin embargo, le preocupa:

a) La aprobación, en 2023, de la Ley N. 10412, Ley Nacional de Salud Mental, que ha retomado la figura de la “persona garante” en los procesos de atención psicosocial, con una redacción que podría acercar esta figura a la de la curatela, abolida por la Ley de Promoción de la Autonomía Personal de las Personas con Discapacidad (Ley N. 9379);

¹ When compiling the recommendations, the Concluding Observations were only available in Arabic. This document includes an automated translation to English by DeepL.

b) La falta de medidas concretas para eliminar la figura de interdicción de la Constitución y en legislación del Estado parte, en particular el Código Civil, y la derogación del artículo 5 de la Ley N. 9379 para la Promoción de la Autonomía Personal para las Personas con Discapacidad, que reconoce la capacidad jurídica a las personas en situación de discapacidad, mediante la aprobación de la Ley No. 9747, el Código Procesal de Familia, en 2019;

c) Que no se cuente con información sobre el número de personas con discapacidad, en particular de personas con discapacidad psicosocial y/o intelectual, sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, incluida la incapacitación y curatela, así como de la limitada información del número de sentencias judiciales que se encuentran en la actualidad para restaurar su capacidad jurídica.

22. Recordando su observación general núm. 1 (2014), relativa al igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley, el Comité recomienda que el Estado parte:

a) Garantice que la figura de la persona garante no se utilice fuera de los parámetros de establecidos en la Convención, y que exista un mecanismo de control periódico de las funciones de los garantes, así como que se cuente con información sobre el proceso que permita a las personas con discapacidades a renunciar voluntariamente a su garante o nombrar un sustituto, asegurando a las personas con diferentes discapacidades el pleno ejercicio de su capacidad jurídica;

b) Armonizar, a la brevedad posible, la Constitución, el Código Civil y el Código Procesal de Familia con la Convención para garantizar el igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley de todas las personas con discapacidad, incluso las personas con discapacidad intelectual y/o psicosocial, eliminando entre otros aspectos, las disposiciones que permiten la restricción de su capacidad jurídica, como las figuras de la incapacitación y la curatela, así como garantizar medidas adecuadas de apoyo, en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de las organizaciones de personas con discapacidad;

c) Recolectar datos desagregados sobre el número de personas con discapacidad, en particular las personas con discapacidad psicosocial y/o intelectual, sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, así como del número de sentencias judiciales con las que se cuentan en la actualidad para restaurar su capacidad jurídica.

Kazakhstan (2024)

27. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) Legislation in the State party, including article 26 of the Civil Code, restricting legal capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of impairment, in particular of persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, and that persons with disabilities are subjected to guardianship and thereby deprived of political and civil rights, including their rights to vote, to marry, to found a family, and to manage assets and property;

(b) The absence of mechanisms for supported decision-making for persons with disabilities;

(c) Legal restrictions for persons with disabilities under guardianship to request reviews of judicial decisions concerning their guardianship and to regain legal capacity.

28. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Initiate a comprehensive legislative reform aimed at recognizing legal capacity of all persons with disabilities and abolishing guardianship enshrined in the Civil Code, and replace them with supported decision-making measures that guarantee the autonomy, will and preference of persons with disabilities;

(b) Raise awareness in all quarters of society and the State, including among persons with disabilities, their families and community members, the legislature, government and administration, and the judiciary, on supported decision-making and legal capacity of persons with disabilities, in close consultation and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations;

(c) Until the formal establishment of supported decision-making, systematically review guardianship appointments, provide legal support and advice for persons with disabilities on how to regain their legal capacity, and ensure that persons with disabilities have the right to choose a support person in decision-making processes.

Nicaragua (2024)

22. El Comité nota que en la Ley de los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad (Ley 763) se consigna la plena capacidad jurídica de las personas con discapacidad, sin embargo, le preocupa que:

a) El Código Civil utiliza términos peyorativos hacia las personas con discapacidad intelectual o psicosocial y contiene artículos que limitan el goce y ejercicio de la capacidad jurídica de dichas personas, así como de las personas con discapacidad visual y auditiva contando con capítulos sobre la “guarda de los dementes” (cap. VII) y sobre la “guarda de los sordomudos y ciegos” (cap. VIII);

b) El Código de Familia señala, en sus artículos 22 al 31, que cuentan con capacidad jurídica las personas “no declaradas incapaces” y que tienen limitada esta capacidad personas que “padecen de alguna enfermedad mental, que no los priva totalmente de discernimiento” y “las personas que por impedimento físico no puedan expresar su voluntad de modo inequívoco, sin que hayan sido declarados incapaces” y actuarán “por medio de representación legal, derivada de la autoridad parental, nacida de la designación de tutela” ;

c) No existe información sobre el número de personas sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, incluyendo la incapacitación y curatela.

23. Recordando su observación general núm. 1 (2014), relativa al igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley, el Comité urge al Estado parte a:

a) Armonizar el Código Civil de la Nación con la Convención para eliminar los términos peyorativos hacia las personas con discapacidad, particularmente hacia personas con discapacidad psicosocial y/o intelectual, garantizar el igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley de todas las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo la eliminación de las disposiciones que permiten la restricción de su capacidad jurídica, así como las figuras de la incapacitación y la curatela;

b) Armonizar el Código de Familia con la Ley de los Derechos de las Personas con Discapacidad (Ley 763) y los artículos 12, 13, 19 y 23 de la Convención para reconocer la plena capacidad jurídica de las personas con discapacidad;

c) Recolectar, de manera constante, datos desagregados sobre el número de personas sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, y revisar las sentencias judiciales para restaurar su capacidad jurídica;

d) Implementar mecanismos de distinto tipo para la toma de decisiones con apoyo y salvaguardias que respeten la autonomía, la voluntad y las preferencias de todas las personas con discapacidad, independientemente del nivel de apoyo que puedan solicitar, facilitar el apoyo entre grupos de pares, y proveer mecanismos accesibles de denuncia.

Sweden (2024)

27. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of measures taken to replace substitute decision-making regimes with supported decision-making mechanisms;

(b) The limited support measures for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

(c) The lack of nationally consistent application and unequal access across municipalities to the support provided by the ‘Personligt Ombud’ programme;

(d) Insufficient training on supported decision-making and its application, in particular within the judicial system.

28. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014), Equal recognition before the law, and in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Eliminate all forms of substitute decision-making and replace them with a system of supported decision-making that respects the will, preference and autonomy of persons with disabilities;

(b) Develop a national comprehensive strategy for the implementation of supported decision-making mechanisms with appropriate and proportionate safeguards across all levels of national, regional and municipal governments;

(c) Review the 'Personligt Ombud' programme to consider its application to all persons with disabilities and to ensure national coordination and consistency across municipalities;

(d) Develop and provide training programmes on supported decision-making across government agencies and other relevant sectors, including justice, health, banking and finance and social services.

Zambia (2024)

23. The Committee notes with concern the discriminatory provisions of the Mental Health Act No. 6 (2019) which deprives persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities of their legal capacity, as well as the absence of supported decision-making mechanisms for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others.

24. The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

(a) Review the national legislation, in particular Section 4 (2) of the Mental Health Act No. 6 of 2019, to guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to equal recognition before the law and replace substitute decision-making systems, including guardianship, with supported decision-making systems, which ensures the provision of individualized support and respects the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;

(b) Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, in consultations and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, health professionals, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the Parliament on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;

(c) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;

(d) Organize and fund the development of information about what supported decision making is, in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read and distribute to persons with disabilities and their families.

Andorra (2023)

25. The Committee acknowledges that Act 30/2022, Qualified Act on the Person and the Family, recognizes the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and the obligation to offer a system of support and abolish the institution of guardianship and extended or rehabilitated parental authority. However, it observes with concern:

(a) Legal provisions, including articles 53 and 56 of the Act 30/2022, providing that "curatorship" must be established for persons with disabilities "who require this kind of support to exercise their legal capacity" and allow its establishment through judicial authority;

(b) The limited implementation of supported decision-making mechanisms to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others;

(c) The absence of information on the number of persons with disabilities under guardianship and on the review of court rulings to restore their legal capacity.

26. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, recommends that the State party:

(a) Review national legislation, including articles 53 and 56 of Act 30/2022, to guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to equal recognition before the law, and abolish provisions allowing restrictions of their legal capacity on the basis of impairment;

(b) Develop and implement a range of innovative supported decision-making systems that ensure the provision of individualized support in all aspects of life, tailored to all types of impairment, and respect the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;

(c) Collect disaggregated data on the number of persons with disabilities under guardianship and regularly review court rulings to restore their legal capacity.

Austria (2023)

29. The Committee notes the enactment of the 2nd Protection of Adults Act of 2018, and the close consultation with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities in its development, but it is concerned about the significant remaining elements of substituted decision-making and the high number of established legal adult representations and court-appointed representations, about the lack of progress made in the implementation of the law, particularly the lack of community-based services for supported decision-making provided by the Länder, and the lack of awareness about the law in many parts of the State and society.

30. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party repeal the remaining elements of substituted decision-making in its laws, substantially strengthen community-based services for supported decision-making, particularly those within the competencies of the Länder, and implement them comprehensively, and train the employees of all public and private entities who have a role in implementing the law. The Committee also recommends the State party regularly evaluate the implementation of the 2nd Protection of Adults Act, with a strong emphasis on the measures taken by the Länder.

Germany (2023)

25. The Committee is concerned that:

(a) The Act on Reform of Child and Adult Guardianship Law 2021 does not eliminate all forms of substitute decision-making;

(b) There is no national comprehensive strategy for the implementation of supported decision-making mechanisms.

26. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Eliminate all forms of substitute decision-making and replace it with a system of supported decision-making;

(b) Develop a national comprehensive strategy, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organisations across all levels of Federal, Länder and municipal governments for the implementation of supported decision-making mechanisms.

Israel (2023)

27. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The extensive application of substitute decision-making mechanisms, in particular that legal capacity can be removed for persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities often on a permanent basis, and the large number of guardianship orders for property and personal affairs (70,843 in 2022);

(b) That supporters are appointed by courts on the basis of the “best interests” principle and that there is a low number of supporters of decision-making being appointed (1,500 as of May 2023);

(c) The limited number of reviews of guardianship decisions and that current reviews do not encompass guardianships established before the reform to the Legal Capacity and Guardianship Law in 2016.

28. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party in close consultation and active involvement of representative organizations of persons with disabilities:

(a) Review and/or repeal laws and associated policies that have the purpose or effect of denying or diminishing the recognition of any person with disabilities as person before the law;

(b) Develop and implement a national supported decision-making framework that respects individual choices, will and preference of persons with disabilities;

(c) Establish a mechanism for the regular review of guardianship appointments, including those decided previous to the adoption of the Amendment No. 18 to the Legal Capacity and Guardianship Law 2016;

(d) Raise awareness about supported decision-making among persons with disabilities, their relatives, the judiciary, the Police, and legal profession, social workers, media and the community.

Malawi (2023)

25. The Committee is concerned about the deprivation of legal capacity of persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, including in the sphere of political participation, property rights, marriage and family relations and the right to free and informed consent, in the absence of measures of supported decision-making. It also notes that prevailing stereotypes in society lead to instances of de facto guardianship of persons with disabilities.

26. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend or repeal legislation that denies legal capacity on the basis of disability, recognise the right of persons with disabilities to equal recognition before the law and establish a system of supported decision-making measures that respects persons autonomy, will and preferences. The State party should adopt measures to combat both formal and informal substitute decision-making;

(b) Recognize a broad range of formal and informal support mechanisms, including advance planning for support and decision-making;

(c) Collect disaggregated data on persons with disabilities being restricted of legal capacity and set up mechanisms to restore legal capacity;

(d) Develop awareness raising programmes targeting persons with disabilities, notaries, judges and court staff, health care providers, financial service providers and other actors involved in the exercise of legal capacity (supporters, family members and communities) about the right to legal capacity of persons with disabilities and the right to request support for decision-making.

Mauritania (2023)

23. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of measures to replace substitute decision-making systems with supported decision-making systems that respect the autonomy, rights, will and preferences of persons with disabilities in all areas of life;

(b) The provisions of the Civil Code and Personal Status Code provisions constitute violation and deprivation of enjoyment and exercise for the legal capacity on basis of disability, as well as the lack of legislation and other policy measures to ensure that persons with disabilities, particularly persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, enjoy their legal capacity on an equal basis with others, including their capacity to enter into contracts, open bank accounts and take out bank loans and mortgages, and marry a partner of their choice;

(c) The lack of data on persons with disabilities still under guardianship, disaggregated by age, sex and type of disability.

24. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal all legislation that allows for restricted legal capacity and substituted decision-making, and adopt legislation to ensure supported decision-making;

(b) Develop awareness-raising campaigns, in consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, civil servants, judges, health professionals and social workers, on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;

(c) Adopt measures to collect data on persons still under guardianship, disaggregated by age, sex and type of impairment, with a view to restoring the full legal capacity of all persons with disabilities.

Mongolia (2023)

25. The Committee remains concerned about the lack of progress made to abolish the guardianship and substituted decision-making regime under the Civil Code, limiting the legal capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, and at the lack of a timeframe to completely replace this system with supported decision-making system. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of information about supported decision-making in accessible formats to increase understanding for persons with disabilities and their families.

26. The Committee reiterates its previous recommendation (CRPD/C/MNG/CO/1, para. 21) and recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

(a) Repeal all discriminatory legal provisions on substitute decision-making systems, including guardianships and wardships, with supported decision-making systems, which ensures the provision of individualized support and respects the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;

(b) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making system;

(c) Organize and fund the development of information about what supported decision making is, in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read and distribute to persons with disabilities and their families.

Paraguay (2023)

23. Al Comité le preocupa que, pese a encontrarse dentro del Eje/Área 7 del Plan de Acción Nacional por los Derechos de Personas con Discapacidad:

a) No se han realizado acciones concretas para armonizar el Código Civil y otras normativas para eliminar los regímenes de sustitución de decisiones y para que se reconozca el derecho de las personas con discapacidad a la plena igualdad ante la ley;

b) No se cuente con información sobre el número de personas sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, incluyendo la incapacitación y curatela, y la limitada revisión de las sentencias judiciales para restaurar su capacidad jurídica.

24. Recordando sus anteriores observaciones finales (CRPD/C/PRY/CO/1, párrafo 30), su observación general núm. 1 (2014), relativa al igual reconocimiento ante la ley, el Comité urge al Estado parte:

- a) Armonizar, a la brevedad posible, el Código Civil con la Convención para garantizar el igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley de todas las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo la eliminación de las disposiciones que permiten la restricción de su capacidad jurídica, incluyendo las figuras de la incapacitación y la curatela, así como garantizar medidas adecuadas de apoyo, en estrecha consulta y con la participación activa de personas con discapacidad y las organizaciones que las representan;
- b) Recolectar datos desagregados sobre el número de personas sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida y revisar de manera regular las sentencias judiciales para restaurar su capacidad jurídica.

Angola (2023)

19. The Committee is concerned that substituted decision-making is still permitted in property management, financial management, contract management and health, amongst other areas, limiting the capacity to act of persons with disabilities on the basis of their psychosocial and/or intellectual disability.

20. The Committee recommends that the State party take necessary measures to ensure that its domestic legislation guarantees the right of all persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial and/or intellectual disabilities, to equal recognition before the law, and that it establish supported decision-making mechanisms in all areas of life.

Argentina (2023)

25. Al Comité le preocupa:

- a) Que, pese a los avances, el Código Civil y Comercial de la Nación, adoptado por la Ley 26.994 (2014), mantiene la posibilidad de restringir el ejercicio de la capacidad jurídica, en particular de personas que “padecen una adicción o una alteración mental permanente o prolongada”, y las figuras de la incapacitación y la curatela (artículos 31 - 42);
- b) La ausencia de información sobre el número de personas sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, incluyendo la incapacitación y curatela, y la limitada revisión de las sentencias judiciales para restaurar su capacidad jurídica;
- c) Que en contradicción con el modelo de derechos humanos, la designación judicial de apoyos implique la restricción de la capacidad jurídica y que, en ese marco, sólo se considere a las Curadorías Oficiales como posible proveedor de apoyos;
- d) El uso del criterio de beneficio de la persona en el proceso judicial de determinación de capacidad jurídica, así como la falta de salvaguardias y de mecanismos accesibles de denuncia.

26. Recordando su observación general núm. 1 (2014), relativa al igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley, el Comité urge al Estado parte:

- a) Armonizar el Código Civil y Comercial de la Nación con la Convención para garantizar el igual reconocimiento como persona ante la ley de todas las personas con discapacidad, incluyendo la eliminación de las disposiciones que permiten la restricción de su capacidad jurídica, así como las figuras de la incapacitación y la curatela;
- b) Recolectar datos desagregados sobre el número de personas sujetas a los regímenes de capacidad restringida, y revisar las sentencias judiciales para restaurar su capacidad jurídica;
- c) Implementar mecanismos de apoyo de distinto tipo para la adopción de decisiones, y salvaguardias que respeten la autonomía, la voluntad y las preferencias de todas las personas con discapacidad, independientemente del nivel o el modo de apoyo que puedan solicitar, facilitar el apoyo entre grupos de pares, y proveer mecanismos accesibles de denuncia.

Georgia (2023)

25. The Committee is concerned about:

- (a) Legislation and practices that continue to deny legal capacity to persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities who are considered to have “antisocial personality disorder”, coma patients, and persons with advanced Alzheimer’s, and legislation limiting the exercise of legal capacity of persons with disabilities, including in the area of family life, parental rights, the right to work, and the right to participate in political and public life;

(b) Insufficient progress in ensuring that persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities living in institutions regain their legal capacity;

(c) The fact that appointment of support personnel still relies solely on the medical assessment and evidence provided by the Forensic Bureau, the delay in implementing a range of supported-decision mechanisms, and the limited awareness in government and society about the right of persons with disabilities to equal recognition before the law and supported decision-making;

(d) The limited scope of mechanisms to address conflicts of interest between persons with disabilities on the one side and social workers and family members appointed as support persons on the other side.

26. The Committee, recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, and with reference to the assessment of the legal capacity reform conducted by the Public Defender of Georgia, in 2022, recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal all provisions allowing substitute decision-making in any situation, and end situations of de facto guardianship as, inter alia, with respect to many persons with disabilities classified as “support recipients”;

(b) Ensure that supported decision-making is provided on the basis of the will and preferences of the person concerned, that persons with disabilities have the right to accept or refuse support and participate themselves with appropriate information in accessible formats, in all procedures concerning the appointment of support persons. The State party is recommended to introduce a range of supported decision-making alternatives tailored to any type of impairment;

(c) Introduce safeguards to prevent and address conflicts of interest between persons with disabilities and support personnel and ensure that the right of persons with disabilities to choose and access support prevails;

(d) Prioritize and establish accessible and expeditious mechanisms to ensure that persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities in institutions regain their legal capacity and have access to genuine support measures compatible with the Convention.

Peru (2023)

24. Al Comité le preocupa la escasa aplicación del Decreto Legislativo N° 1384, Decreto Legislativo que reconoce y regula la capacidad jurídica de las personas con discapacidad en igualdad de condiciones con las demás. El Comité observa con preocupación que:

a) No se ha realizado la estrategia de implementación del sistema de apoyos y salvaguardas y siguen existiendo restricciones y denegación de la capacidad jurídica, incluida la toma de decisiones por sustitución informal;

b) Que no se hayan revocado las sentencias de interdicción a personas con discapacidad dictadas antes de la reforma;

c) No ha habido medidas de sensibilización ni de difusión de información sobre la reforma y las implicaciones en todos los sectores, ni de comunicación a las personas con discapacidad afectadas por la reforma;

d) Los jueces y notarios no están familiarizados con el cambio de paradigma de la toma de decisiones sustitutiva a la toma de decisiones con apoyo;

e) No se han realizado inversiones suficientes, incluso a los equipos multidisciplinarios que apoyan al sector justicia, para promover las opciones de toma de decisiones con apoyo;

f) El artículo 172 del Código Penal sancione la agresión sexual cuando las víctimas no puedan dar su consentimiento. Dentro de la categoría de impedidos para consentir se incluye a las personas con “anomalías psíquicas” o “retardo mental”, esta disposición no está en consonancia con la reforma de la capacidad jurídica, que reconoce el derecho de las personas con discapacidad a tomar decisiones, incluidas las relacionadas con los derechos sexuales y reproductivos.

25.El Comité recomienda al Estado parte que:

- a)Elabore, apruebe y aplique de forma adecuada, y mediante un proceso de consulta, la estrategia de implementación del sistema de apoyo y salvaguardias, incluso mediante la financiación de redes y servicios de apoyo impulsados por la comunidad;
- b)Restablezca rápidamente la capacidad jurídica de las personas que actualmente permanecen bajo tutela;
- c)Garantice campañas públicas, la difusión de información y la capacitación de jueces, notarios, funcionarios públicos, el sector privado, las personas con discapacidad, sus familias y las comunidades sobre el Decreto Legislativo N° 1384;
- d)Supervise, a través del Ministerio de Justicia y Derechos Humanos (MINJUS), la aplicación del Decreto Legislativo N° 1384 en el ámbito notarial, y establecer mecanismos de denuncia en los casos en que los notarios se nieguen a atender casos que involucren a personas con discapacidad;
- e)Fortalezca las capacidades de los equipos multidisciplinarios que apoyan al sector justicia para evaluar y determinar los requerimientos de apoyo, la voluntad y preferencias de los usuarios, incluso por medio de alternativas de comunicación accesible con las personas con discapacidad;
- f)Reforme el artículo 172 del Código Penal para garantizar los derechos sexuales y reproductivos de las personas con discapacidad en igualdad de condiciones con las demás, incluido el derecho a consentir relaciones sexuales.

Togo (2023)

25.The Committee notes with concern:

- (a)That article 6 of Act No.2004-005 deprives persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, of their legal capacity and placed under guardianship;
- (b)At the absence of supported decision-making mechanisms for persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others.

26.The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

- (a)Repeal article 6 of Act No. 2004-005 and review the national legislation to guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with intellectual and/or psychosocial disabilities, to equal recognition before the law and replace substitute decision-making systems, including guardianship, with supported decision-making systems, which ensures the provision of individualized support and respects the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;
- (b)Develop awareness-raising campaigns and capacity-building programmes, in consultations with and active involvement of organizations of persons with disabilities, for all stakeholders, including the families of persons with disabilities, community members, public officials, the media, the judiciary and members of the Parliament on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and supported decision-making;
- (c)Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;
- (d)Organize and fund the development of information about what supported decision making is, in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read and distribute to persons with disabilities and their families.

Tunisia (2023)

19.The Committee is concerned that the State party continues to uphold guardianship and substituted decision making for persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, contrary to the Convention which recommends supported decision making. It is further concerned that the State party continues to uphold Law No. 66-2008 of 3 November 2008, on the facilitation of transactions for persons with motor disabilities, which allow financial institutions such as banks to limit the access of persons with disabilities including deaf persons and blind persons to their own finances when they are not accompanied by a witness in which case, if they go to the bank counter alone, they are denied the right to withdraw their own money. In some reported cases, the bank even requires that the witness be designated by a court decision.

20. The Committee, recalling its General Comment No. 1 (2014) on Legal Capacity recommends:

(a) Review all laws, including article 106 of the Code of Obligations and Contracts and articles 160, 162 and 163 of the Personal Status Code, that uphold guardianship and substituted decision making and replace such provisions with ones that uphold supported decision making and individual autonomy in accordance with the Convention;

(b) Repeal the Law No. 66 and replace it with a law that establishes the principles of autonomy, privacy and independence of persons with disabilities in their administrative and financial transactions.

Bangladesh (2022)

25. The Committee is concerned that the Contract Act 1872, the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and the Hindu Inheritance (Removal of Disabilities) Act of 1928, deny legal capacity to persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, women with disabilities and persons belonging to religious and/or ethnic minority groups to enter into a contract or inherit property, and provide for a substituted decision-making regime.

26. The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014), the State party:

(a) Repeal the Contract Act of 1872, the Transfer of Property Act of 1882, the Hindu Inheritance (Removal of Disabilities) Act of 1928 and all other laws and policies which deny persons with disabilities, particularly persons with intellectual disabilities, women with disabilities and persons belonging to religious and ethnic minority groups, to enter into a contract or inherit property, to control their own financial affairs and to have equal access to bank loans, mortgages and other forms of financial credit;

(b) Introduce supported decision-making mechanisms which appropriately respect the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities.

China (2022)

28. The Committee is concerned about the persistence of the substitute decision-making regime, enabled by the absence of measures to abolish the discriminatory provisions of the Civil Law (2017) (articles 21-24 and 28-31) allowing adults to be denied or restricted in their legal capacity to act based on "incapability of discerning his or her conduct".

29. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with article 12 of the Convention and the Committee's General Comment No. 1 (2014):

(a) Recognize the discriminatory nature of the substitute-decision making regime and abolish all provisions allowing restrictions of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of impairment;

(b) Adopt a mechanism to restore full legal capacity of all persons with disabilities, regardless of their impairment;

(c) Develop and implement, in close consultation and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organisations, a nationally consistent supported decision-making framework that respects the will and preference and individual choices of persons with disabilities.

Hong-Kong (2022)

67. The Committee is concerned about regulations in the Mental Health Ordinance and the Guardianship Order that can lead to determination of legal incapacity and assignment of guardianship for adults with disabilities, stripping them of the right to exercise their legal capacity, including the right to social participation, the right to enter into a marriage and to form a family. The Committee is particularly concerned at reports of women with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and/or psychosocial disabilities being disproportionately impacted by substituted decision-making regimes.

68. The Committee recommends that Hong Kong SAR, China, in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law:

(a) Adopt laws and policies that replace the substitute decision-making system with supported decision-making mechanisms that respect the autonomy, will and preference of persons with disabilities, and ensure effective participation of women with disabilities to inform the drafting of laws and policies;

(b) Review all legislation with a view to eliminate all restrictions of rights as a result of a declaration of legal incapacity or on the grounds of a person's disability;

(c) Provide training on the requirements of the right to legal capacity of persons with disabilities to the authorities, including law enforcement agencies and courts.

Macao

82. The Committee is concerned about the regimes of "interdiction" and "inabilitation" and the appointing of guardianship for those declared "interdicted" or "inabilitated", stripping them of the right to exercise their legal capacity, including the right to social participation, the right to enter into a marriage and to form a family.

83. The Committee urges Macao SAR, China, in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law:

(a) To adopt laws and policies that replace the substitute decision-making system with supported decision-making mechanisms that respect the autonomy, will and preference of persons with disabilities;

(b) Review all legislation with a view to eliminating all restrictions of rights as a result of a declaration of legal incapacity or on the grounds of a person's disability;

(c) Provide training on the requirements of the right to legal capacity of persons with disabilities to the authorities, including law enforcement agencies and courts.

Indonesia (2022)

30. The Committee is concerned that national legislation can deem people as lacking competence, in particular persons with psychosocial disabilities and persons with intellectual disabilities, placing them under conservatorship.

31. The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party review Law 8 of 2014 on mental health, articles 433 and 434 of the Civil Code, the Criminal Code and article 32 of Law 8 of 2016 on persons with disabilities to be harmonized with the Convention to guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities to equal recognition before the law and to establish supported decision-making mechanisms in all areas of life.

Japan (2022)

27. The Committee is concerned about:

(a) Legal provisions that deny the right of persons with disabilities to equal recognition before the law by allowing the restriction of their legal capacity, in particular, of persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, based on assessments of their mental capacity, and by perpetuating substitute-decision making systems, under the Civil Code;

(b) Basic Plan on the Promotion of the Use of the Adult Guardian System approved in March 2022;

(c) Use of the term “the best interest of a person” within the Guidelines for Support for Decision-Making Relating to the Provision of Welfare Services for Persons with Disabilities of 2017.

28. Recalling its General Comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Repeal all discriminatory legal provisions and policies with a view to abolishing substitute decision-making regimes, and amend the civil legislation to guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities to equal recognition before the law;

(b) Establish supported decision-making mechanisms that respect autonomy, will and preferences of all persons with disabilities, regardless the level or mode of support they may require.

Lao People’s Democratic Republic (2022)

20. The Committee observes with concern that:

(a) Provisions in legislation, including the Civil Code, the Penal Code, the Law on Civil Procedure and the Law on Criminal Procedure, deny the right of persons with disabilities to equal recognition before the law, particularly persons with intellectual or psychosocial disabilities, on the basis of actual or perceived impairment;

(b) The perpetuation of substituted decision-making and fail to recognize the will and preferences of persons with disabilities.

21. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Civil Code, the Penal Code, the Law on Civil Procedure and the Law on Criminal Procedure and repeal any laws and associated policies and practices that have the purpose or effect of denying or diminishing the recognition of any person with disabilities as a person before the law;

(b) Develop and implement, in close consultation with and active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, supported decision-making mechanisms that respects the will, preferences and individual choices of persons with disabilities.

New Zealand (2022)

17. The Committee is concerned about the negative perceptions and the devaluing of persons with disabilities that were expressed during the passage of the End of Life Choice Act 2019, and the potential negative impact of this on the implementation, monitoring and review of the Act.

18. The Committee recommends that monitoring and review mechanisms for the End of Life Choice Act 2019 provide publicly available information on the impact on persons with disabilities, including the effectiveness of safeguards to counteract negative perceptions held by medical professionals and to prevent coercion in decision-making.

Republic of Korea (2022)

27. The Committee is deeply concerned about the lack of progress made to abolish the guardianship and substituted decision-making regime, limiting the active capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of psychosocial and/or intellectual impairment, and at the lack of a timeframe to completely replace this regime with supported decision-making system. The Committee is also concerned about the lack of information about supported decision-making in accessible formats to increase understanding for persons with disabilities and their families.

28. The Committee reiterates its previous recommendation (CRPD/C/KOR/CO/1, para. 22) and recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

- (a) Replace substitute decision-making systems, including guardianships and wardships, with supported decision-making systems, which ensures the provision of individualized support and respects the autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities;
- (b) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process and in the training of the relevant personnel on the recognition of the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and on the mechanisms of supported decision-making;
- (c) Organize and fund the development of information about what supported decision making is, in accessible formats such as Braille, sign language and Easy Read and distribute to persons with disabilities and their families.

Singapore (2022)

25. The Committee is concerned about the deprivation of legal capacity of persons with disabilities under certain conditions, and about the persistence of the guardianship and substituted decision-making regime, in particular with regard to medical decisions, depriving persons with psychosocial and intellectual disabilities of their right to equal recognition before the law.

26. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the Committee recommends the State party expedite the review of its national legislation, including the Mental Capacity Act, the Vulnerable Adults Act, the Mental Health (Care and Treatment) Act, the Criminal Procedure Code, and the Prisons Act, and guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities, including persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities, to equal recognition before the law, establish supported decision-making mechanisms in all areas of life, take all appropriate measures for the provision of individualized support, and train the relevant personnel accordingly.

Hungary (2022)

24. The Committee notes with concern:

- (a) The discriminatory nature of restriction on the legal capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of impairment, the absence of measures to abolish the discriminatory provisions of the Civil Code and the persistence of the substitute decision-making regime, depriving persons with disabilities of their rights;
- (b) That attributes of a substituted decision-making regime have been retained in the supported decision-making mechanism established in Act CLV of 2013, which resulted in a measure that is ineffective and discriminatory.

25. The Committee recommends that the State party, in line with article 12 of the Convention and the Committee's general comment No. 1 (2014):

- (a) Recognize the discriminatory nature of the substitute decision-making regime and abolish all provisions allowing restrictions on the legal capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of impairment;
- (b) Adopt a mechanism to restore full legal capacity of all persons with disabilities, regardless of their impairment;
- (c) Revise all provisions as regards the supported decision-making mechanism with the aim of ensuring that supported decision-making mechanisms respect the dignity, autonomy, will and preferences of persons with disabilities in the exercise of legal capacity by all persons with disabilities.

Jamaica (2022)

24. The Committee is concerned that national legislation allows substituted decision-making in property management, financial management, health care, and contract management, among other areas, limiting the active capacity of persons with disabilities on the basis of psychosocial and intellectual impairment.

25. The Committee recommends that in line with its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party expedite the review of the Mental Health Act and harmonize its national legislation, including article 13 (3) (g) of the Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms Act (Constitutional Amendment) and section 8 (2) of the Property (Rights of Spouse) Act to guarantee the right of all persons with disabilities, including persons with psychosocial disabilities, to equal recognition before the law and to establish supported decision-making mechanisms in all areas of life.

Mexico (2022)

35. With reference to paragraph 23 of its previous concluding observations, the Committee is concerned about provisions in the Federal Civil Code and the Federal District Civil Code that contain rules on legal incapacity and guardianship for adults with disabilities, despite a judgment by the National Supreme Court of Justice of 2019. It is equally concerned about the rules conferring guardianship of children in institutions on the institution housing them. The Committee also notes with concern that the proposed national code for civil and family procedures fails to provide support measures allowing persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity, and that, in particular, women with disabilities, persons with intellectual disabilities and persons with psychosocial disabilities are disproportionately impacted by substituted decision-making regimes.

36. The Committee recommends that the State party, in accordance with the Committee's general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law:

(a) Adopt laws and policies that replace the substitute decision-making system with supported decision-making mechanisms that respect the autonomy, will and preference of persons with disabilities, and ensure effective participation of women with disabilities to inform the drafting of laws and policies;

(b) Review all federal and state legislation with a view to eliminating all restrictions of rights as a result of a declaration of legal incompetence or on the grounds of a person's disability;

(c) Provide training on the requirements of the right to legal capacity of persons with disabilities to the authorities, including courts.

Switzerland (2022)

25. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) The lack of recognition of the right of persons with disabilities to equality before the law, including the existence of laws denying or restricting the legal capacity of persons with disabilities and placing them under guardianship;

(b) The absence of measures to support persons with disabilities to exercise their legal capacity on an equal basis with others.

26. Recalling its general comment No. 1 (2014), the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Amend the Civil Code and the Act on the Protection of Adults and repeal any laws and associated policies and practices that have the purpose or effect of denying or diminishing the recognition of any person with disabilities as a person before the law;

(b) Develop and implement, in close consultation with and with the active involvement of persons with disabilities and their representative organizations, a nationally consistent framework for supported decision-making that respects the will, preferences and individual choices of persons with disabilities.

Venezuela (2022)

22. The Committee notes that:

(a) Although article 410 of the Civil Code, under which persons with disabilities were considered civilly incompetent, was expressly repealed, the Committee is concerned that systems based on substitute decision-making, and the concepts of guardianship and curatorship, were not abolished;

(b) The National Assembly is currently drafting a new piece of legislation on persons with disabilities.

23. The Committee recommends that, bearing in mind article 12 of the Convention and its general comment No. 1 (2014) on equal recognition before the law, the State party:

(a) Ensure that the new legislation is consistent with the Convention, including with regard to the removal of restrictions on the legal capacity of persons with disabilities, and that it replaces substitute decision-making systems that deny persons with disabilities their legal capacity, including guardianship and curatorship, with supported decision-making systems; and take all measures to provide tailored support, properly inform persons with disabilities about such alternatives and train the personnel involved;

(b) Ensure the effective, independent participation of persons with disabilities through their representative organizations in the reform process.

Djibouti (2021)

19. The Committee notes with concern:

(a) That the legislation, including articles 166, 167, 176 and 179 of the Family Code, articles 565 and 579 of the Civil Code, and article 27 of the Criminal Code, deprives persons with disabilities, particularly for persons with psychosocial or intellectual disabilities, of their legal capacity and uphold them under guardianship regime;

