Founder & CEO, TradeVow

Digital Trade, Identity & Trust, Logistics, Trade Finance Execution

Stanley Montwedi is a founder-builder focused on translating trade policy, regulation, and ambition into operational digital infrastructure. As Founder & CEO of TradeVow, he works at the intersection of digital identity, trust frameworks, logistics orchestration, and trade finance to reduce friction, risk, and cost in cross-border trade—particularly across Africa and AfCFTA corridors.

With over two decades of experience delivering complex, multi-million-dollar transformation programmes in global financial institutions including HSBC, Barclays, and Deutsche Bank, Stanley has led large-scale initiatives spanning regulatory change, risk and finance platforms, data infrastructure, and operational execution under demanding supervisory and commercial environments.

Current Focus Areas

- Executing interoperable digital trade infrastructure aligned to AfCFTA and regional corridors
- Identity, trust, and verifiable trade data across institutions and borders
- Digitising logistics coordination and container-sharing models for SME trade access
- Linking trade events to finance, compliance, and risk controls in real time

Engagement

Stanley engages selectively across executive briefings, keynote and panel discussions, policy roundtables, closed-door advisory sessions, and media interviews on digital trade execution, AfCFTA readiness, and trust-based infrastructure.
