aedifion again named leading digital solutions partner in Bell Management Consultants' ESG Report 2025

- aedifion takes first place in the 'Digital Solution Partners' category for the second time in a row
- The ranking is based on a structured survey assessing methodological rigour, technological performance and implementation expertise
- The report highlights the paradigm shift towards robust data foundations, clear processes and measurable impact

Cologne, 13 January 2026 – The Cologne-based PropTech company aedifion has been ranked first in the 'Digital Solution Partners' category for the second time in a row in Bell Management Consultants' ESG Report 2025. The assessment focused on technological performance, professional expertise, and reliability in implementing complex ESG requirements. The award is based on a survey of clients who rated their ESG service providers according to their specific implementation skills.

Dr.-Ing. Johannes Fütterer, Managing Director of aedifion GmbH, said: "Being voted number one among digital solution partners for the second consecutive year is a strong signal. The results clearly show that good technologies alone are no longer enough. In times of increasing regulatory requirements, expertise, robust data and reliable processes are crucial. The fact that we are perceived as the most competent partner in this area is a strong mark of quality and motivates us to continuously developing our solutions."

The current ESG Report from Bell Management Consultants focuses on the theme 'From hype to implementation – data, processes and impact are decisive'. A key finding is that ESG reporting has evolved from a mandatory document into an operational management tool. The focus is shifting significantly from strategic positioning to delivery capability, efficiency and measurable impact. Digital solutions in particular are measured by whether they deliver robust data and enable operational implementation.

About aedifion

As a Cologne-based PropTech with more than 100 employees, aedifion operates Germany's leading software solution for optimizing building operations. At the heart of this technology is the AI-based cloud platform, which can reduce energy consumption, CO<sub>2</sub> emissions and operating costs of buildings by up to 40 percent. The plug-and-play solution collects real-time operational data, identifies malfunctions, provides actionable recommendations for optimization, and autonomously manages operations using real-time data such as weather forecasts, user behavior or electricity prices. The company combines engineering expertise in a broad solution portfolio and targets asset managers and asset owners who want to increase the value of their buildings and quickly and easily make their portfolio ESG-compliant.
