

Privacy Policy

Last Updated: 18.01.2026

This Privacy Policy explains how Uniqgene Biotechnology and Trade Inc. (“Uniqgene”, “Company”, “we”) collects, uses, protects, and processes personal and confidential information in accordance with applicable data protection regulations.

Our registered address is:

284 Chase Road, A Block Unit 491, 2nd Floor, London, United Kingdom, N14 6HF

1. Purpose

During interactions, communications, and service delivery processes, Uniqgene and users may share certain confidential and personal information.

This Privacy Policy is designed to define the principles regarding:

- Protection of confidential information
- Processing of personal data
- Rights and obligations of both parties
- Secure handling of shared information

This policy does not impose any obligation on users to share data beyond what is required for service delivery.

2. Scope of Information Collected

“Confidential Information” includes, but is not limited to:

- Technical and scientific data
- Genetic analysis-related data (where applicable)
- Software systems, algorithms, and platform data
- Business processes and operational information
- User account information
- Contact details
- Service usage data
- Reports, analysis outputs, and platform interactions

This also includes information obtained verbally, digitally, visually, or through system-generated processes.

3. Use of Information

Collected information is used solely for the following purposes:

- Providing requested services
- Improving platform performance and user experience
- Delivering personalized recommendations and reports
- Maintaining system security
- Customer support and communication
- Legal and regulatory compliance

Uniqgene commits to using personal data strictly for the intended purpose and in compliance with applicable laws.

4. Data Protection and Confidentiality

Uniqgene applies industry-standard security measures to protect confidential and personal data.

We commit to:

- Limiting access based on the “need-to-know” principle
- Protecting user data with the same level of care as our own confidential information
- Preventing unauthorized access, disclosure, or misuse
- Not sharing data with third parties without explicit consent unless required by law

5. Exceptions to Confidentiality

The following information is not considered confidential:

- Information already publicly available
- Information independently developed without access to confidential data
- Information lawfully obtained from third parties
- Information required to be disclosed by legal authorities
- Information shared with explicit written consent

6. Data Ownership

All personal and confidential data remain the property of the data owner.

Nothing in this policy grants Uniqgene ownership rights over user data beyond operational usage required for service delivery.

No intellectual property rights are transferred under this policy.

7. Limitation of Liability

Uniqgene shall not be held liable for:

- Indirect damages
- Business losses
- Data usage consequences beyond intended platform purposes
- Third-party system failures

Users acknowledge that analytical outputs are intended to support decision-making and do not replace professional medical or clinical advice.

8. Policy Duration and Termination

This Privacy Policy remains valid during the use of Uniqgene services.

Even after termination of service usage, confidentiality and data protection obligations continue indefinitely.

Upon request, user data may be deleted or anonymized in compliance with legal requirements.

9. Legal Jurisdiction

This Privacy Policy is governed by the laws of the Republic of Turkey.

In case of disputes, the competent courts and enforcement offices shall be those located in Turkey.

10. Updates and Modifications

Uniqgene reserves the right to update this Privacy Policy when necessary.

All changes become effective once published on the website.
