INSIDER ALERT

GSOC Escalation Leads to Quick Recovery

Location: Sanford, North Carolina

@overhaul

Overhaul's Global Security Operations Center (GSOC) was recently alerted to a potential security threat involving a high-value shipment valued at over $670,000. The shipment, which originated in North Carolina and was destined for Miami, FL unexpectedly diverted from its planned route and began traveling north. This deviation prompted immediate escalation by GSOC.

Upon notification, Overhaul's GSOC promptly communicated the route deviation to the customer. The customer quickly confirmed that the shipment was not authorized to change direction, verifying that the cargo was subject to an active theft event. Overhaul's LE Connect team initiated direct outreach to local law enforcement agencies, providing them with real-time location intelligence and shipment details to enable a rapid response.

Thanks to the swift collaboration, law enforcement officers were able to locate the trailer in a truck yard in South River, NJ, where it had been abandoned without the driver. Police conducted a thorough search of the trailer and confirmed that the shipment remained secure and intact.

Police investigation is ongoing, with authorities focused on identifying the individuals responsible for the theft. Overhaul would like to thank the New Jersey State Police and the South River Police Department for their quick and effective response, which was instrumental in the successful recovery of the shipment.

Overhaul's recommendation

Overhaul recommends reviewing security protocols and establishing strong communication channels to effectively respond to future security threats. It is important to maintain a clear chain of escalation and thoroughly document all details for every driver, tractor, and trailer arriving to pick up cargo. This documentation should include comprehensive photographs capturing all identifying markings on both the tractor and trailer, as well as photos of the driver and their CDL. Additionally, ensure that all recorded information is verified against the details provided prior to the driver's arrival.
