Why a woman's wellness exam is important

Periodic pelvic exams are important because they can detect reproductive diseases or complications early on. In the event a problem is detected, these early detections can lead to earlier treatments and a more successful outcome.

THIS WEEKS' NEWS UPDATE

TOURISM IN THE DOLDRUMS

Thailand's tourism sector reported a 0.2% decline in international arrivals in the first four months of 2025, prompting the government to implement measures to revive the struggling industry. Despite the Tourism Authority of Thailand (TAT) maintaining its revenue growth target, it may lower its foreign arrivals projection amid ongoing economic uncertainties. A significant concern is the Chinese market, which previously accounted for 25% of foreign arrivals. While Chinese outbound travel increased, arrivals to Thailand dropped by 30%, with flight routes to Japan and South Korea surging while routes to Thailand declined by 25%. Analysts indicate that a recovery in Chinese arrivals could be slow, affecting revenue for airlines and hospitality operators. Meanwhile, tourism stakeholders urge the government to introduce targeted incentives, including nationwide sales and subsidies for tour operators, to attract more international visitors.

THAILAND'S HOTEL MARKET IN 2025: FEWER DEALS – BIGGER BETS

Thailand's hotel investment market is stabilizing after a surge in post-pandemic transactions, with JLL projecting deal volume to reach THB13 billion ($385 million) in 2025 – down 40% from 2024's record. Despite fewer deals, the average transaction size is expected to rise to THB1.8 billion ($53.2 million), driven by luxury demand and interest in strategic assets. Bangkok will continue to dominate the market, accounting for 60% of transactions, though JLL anticipates increased interest in emerging destinations within Thailand. Additionally, the financing landscape is evolving, with greater access to leasing, green loans, and sustainability-linked financing attracting new investors, despite higher interest rates.

OUTLOOK SEEN DIM FOR CARRIERS UNTIL Q3

Thailand's aviation sector faces a challenging outlook, with international arrivals expected to stay muted until Q3 due to a sharp drop in Chinese tourists, according to analysts. Asia Aviation (AAV), holding a 40% market share, is shifting capacity to domestic routes, increasing competition and likely reducing fares. The March 28 earthquake further impacted Chinese arrivals, which fell by 43-48% from February to April. Meanwhile, Japan, Vietnam, and South Korea are gaining Chinese market share by easing visa requirements. Krungsri Securities expects foreign arrivals to remain flat at 35-36 million in 2025, with airline profit growth slowing to 7%, down from 141% in 2024.

Thai Airways International has resumed all regular flights to Pakistan after the reopening of civil airspace between Pakistan and India. Services to Karachi, Lahore, and Islamabad are now operational, with round-trip flights TG341 and TG345 resuming on Tuesday and TG349 and TG350 restarting on Wednesday. India also reopened 32 airports previously closed amid clashes with Pakistan, according to the Airports Authority of India. The airports are now fully operational for civil flights, following a ceasefire agreement over the weekend. The restoration of flights and airport operations is expected to ease travel disruptions and enhance connectivity between India, Pakistan, and other destinations, reinforcing Thai Airways' network in the region.

PROPERTY MARKET UPDATE

MAY 2025

MARKET SUMMARY

High Supply, Diverging Demand—Phuket's Market Becomes More Selective

As of Q1 2025, the island has a total of 40,600 units for sale across 343 active developments. Condominiums remain the dominant product, comprising nearly 83% of total supply with 33,704 units across 124 projects. The majority of this inventory is non-branded. The landed property segment—which includes villas, townhouses, and semi-detached homes—has also gained notable traction. A total of 6,896 landed units are currently on the market across 219 projects.

In recent years, several Bangkok-based developers, including Sansiri and Ananda, have expanded their presence in Phuket in response to growing demand for residential real estate on the island. By total supply, RHOM Bho Property holds the largest share, with 4,820 units across nine projects in Phuket, followed by Origin Group, Sansiri, Supalai, and Laguna.

PHUKET PROPERTY MARKET INSIGHTS

C9 INSIDER OPINIONS

- In a marketplace with robust inventory, project success depends less on broad appeal and more on alignment with specific buyer segments—such as end-users in mixed-use developments, entry-level buyers focused on price, or those seeking features like ocean views. Properties with weak unique selling points (USPs) are expected to underperform as the next property cycle approaches.
- Flexible design is becoming increasingly valuable. Units that cater to both end-users and mid-term rental demand (1–12 months) are gaining traction, particularly in light of legal restrictions on daily rentals. Features like dual-key layouts, ample storage, and integrated services are especially attractive.
- As more branded properties enter the market, future differentiation will rely on post-sale delivery, customized services and amenities, rental management, and the overall owner experience. Developers must build and maintain brand trust beyond the initial launch to preserve long-term value.

PRICE INDICATORS

Premiums Widen Across Product Types and Locations

Phuket's residential prices continue to rise, with clear premiums emerging across branded, landed, and beachfront segments. As of 2025, condominium median price is THB 144,000 per sq.m, while villas / landed properties have a median price of THB 70,000 per sq.m. One-bedroom condos can reach up to THB 19.4 million in Chergntalay, THB 15.4 million in Rawai, and THB 9.1 million in Karon, while three-bedroom villas / landed properties are priced up to THB 137.9 million in Chergntalay, THB 42.7 million in Rawai, and THB 40.4 million in Karon.

Branded properties outperform non-branded stock across all categories:

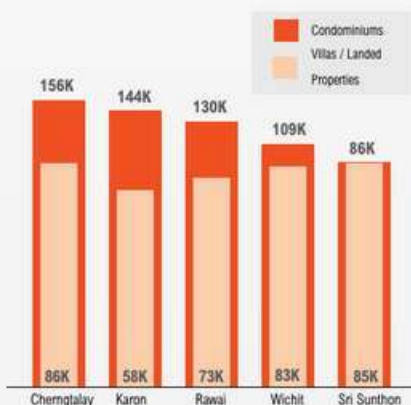

- Branded condominiums average THB 181,000 per sq.m, a 28% premium over non-branded units (THB 141,000 per sq.m).
- Branded villas / landed properties are priced up to 2 times higher than non-branded (THB 162,000 vs. THB 73,000 per sq.m).

KEY INSIGHT: Condo Market Faces a Growing Resale Challenge

More than 32,000 units in active condo supply and older projects beginning to enter the resale market, developers will face rising competition on both price and product features. Differentiation through amenities, branding, and post-sales service is now essential to preserve pricing power and avoid inventory drag.

	139K	100K
Chergntalay	147K	108K
Karon	148K	103K
Rawai	122K	100K

KEY INSIGHT: Legacy Pricing Creates Competitive Edge in the Resale Market

Non-branded condominiums in the primary market average THB 139,000 per sq.m, reflecting a 39% premium over the secondary market average of THB 100,000 per sq.m. This pricing gap highlights the added value of newer developments, which feature modern layouts, upgraded specifications, and enhanced amenities. In contrast, resale units—while still trading above their original purchase prices—benefit from historical cost advantages, including lower land and construction costs at the time of development.
