A DAY IN LIFE

Dan, co-founder of an AI startup, is weeks from raising his Series A but overwhelmed by calls and pitches.

After a lead investor invites him to an event On The Grid, Dan visits the local Grid Club in New York and downloads The Grid app.

Within seconds, his profile is auto-generated—accurate and polished. Then Elis, The Grid’s AI guide, asks, “What’s your priority today?”

Dan replies, “I’m raising a Series A and looking to meet aligned investors.” Elis responds, “Let’s get you on the Grid.”

CHECK-IN AT THE GRID CLUB

Dan arrives at the Grid Club in New York—no front desk, just facial recognition. His phone switches to “On The Grid” mode.

Elis prompts: “Checked in. Your 12:30 investor meeting is confirmed. Three relevant members are here. Connect now?”

Dan taps “Yes” and instantly meets a founder with complementary AI work. They connect before lunch and plan a follow-up.

After his meeting, Elis asks, “How did it go?” Dan replies via quick text. Elis updates his profile, boosts his Impact Rating, and awards credits to improve future matches.

That evening, Dan gets a notification: “Private dinner: AI + Healthcare founders at 7PM. 2 seats left. Interested?”

He registers with one tap—no RSVP site, no email thread, just seamless connection.

REMOTE – ON THE GRID, ANYWHERE

Two days later, Dan works from his Brooklyn apartment—no club nearby but still On The Grid.

He gets a suggestion: “3 investors online now; one open for a call.” Dan views anonymous bios, requests a 15-minute chat, and Elis schedules the call and sends quick summary.

The call goes well. Elis asks, “How did it go?” Dan’s feedback updates profiles, improves matches, and unlocks an exclusive Off The Grid AI founders’ tour and lunch in Central Park.

Even offline, Elis connects him to people and experiences he might’ve missed.
