GUIDA

GUIDA is a Melbourne-based design studio creating products and experiences that enrich everyday life. Working at the intersection of technology and design, we develop original collections in house while collaborating with individuals and businesses to bring new ideas into the world.

Founded by Thomas Guida in 2026, GUIDA is a team of industrial designers, fabricators, and creative collaborators who bring together different perspectives, skills, and disciplines to explore ideas, challenge assumptions, and create considered outcomes. With experience across government, commercial, and independent projects, we approach every challenge with curiosity and care — developing solutions that endure and matter.

We believe good design comes from understanding — the needs of people, the potential of materials, and the context in which products exist. By listening deeply, exploring possibilities, and shaping ideas with clarity and intent, we create work that leaves a lasting mark on how people experience the world around them.

SIGNAL

Signal is a multifunctional table lamp, machined from a single piece of aluminium billet. Stood vertically, it works as an uplight, bouncing off its surroundings for a soft, indirect wash. Laid on its side — supported by a single stainless steel stud — the chrome-capped globe reflects into its shallow dish for a low ambient glow at the edge of a surface, or casts forward to illuminate the foreground when set further back.
