NO PRETENSE, ALL TASTE

When Ryan Harms started Union Wine Company in 2005, he did so with the goal of creating Oregon wines that could be widely accessible to wine drinkers, without sacrificing quality. Underwood exemplifies this commitment and draws from the diverse palette of vineyards and wine growing regions across the Pacific Northwest to create approachable everyday drinking wine of exceptional value.

After back-to-back seasons that kept growers on their toes, 2025 largely played by the rules. A wet winter passed without damaging freezes, and bud break arrived close to the five-year average. A cool, damp April gave way to a warm, dry May, and the vines reached bloom in late June in good shape. July and August were dry, with no dramatic heat events, just steady ripening and cool nights that kept acidity intact. A few light summer showers kept the dust down without raising disease pressure. Harvest started in late August, earlier than most expected, and nearly everything was picked by the end of September, yielding wines of concentration and natural balance.

This Sauvignon Blanc comes from Washington's Horse Heaven Hills, perched above the Columbia River, where long, sunny days and steady winds make for bright, crisp white wines. Expect pomelo zest, white tea, and a saline finish.
