Core Fiber operating companies and trade names by state

Last updated: September 25, 2026

Plain English Summary

“Core Fiber” is the brand name used by a family of local operating companies. The company whose network serves your address is the one you contract with. It is named on your order confirmation and on your bill, and this page lists every company that provides service under the Core Fiber name, by state.

1. How to Identify Your Serving Company

Under the Core Fiber General Terms & Conditions, the Core Fiber company whose network serves your Service Location is the contracting party (“Company”) for your Services (Section 19 of the General Terms). Your serving company is identified on your order confirmation and on each invoice. Where more than one company uses the same trade name in a state, the company named on your invoice is your serving company.

Each serving company is separately organized and separately holds the registrations and authorizations required to provide its services. The Network Management and Open Internet Disclosure, the Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI) Policy, and the E911 Service Acknowledgment apply to each serving company that provides the relevant service. All serving companies are affiliates under common ownership and share the same customer support, billing, and privacy practices.
