UNLOCK THE VALUE OF A SINGLE BENEFITS PARTNER.

Benefits don't always work for working families. Part of the problem is that benefits packages are too complex. That's why leading companies find that working with a single benefits partner can offer huge advantages over stitching together solutions from multiple vendors.

Here are four reasons to build a single-source, integrated benefits package.

1. Drive down benefits costs.

Benefits are expensive. When you choose a single-source provider to manage all your benefits, you immediately unlock economies of scale and operational efficiencies.

Alleviate some of the redundant costs associated with multiple vendors and let HealthEquity manage everything, end to end.

2. Reduce administration time and hassle.

Real monetary cost is only one part of the equation. Your time and resources also go to managing relationships with multiple benefits partners. That means using multiple systems, accessing different reporting tools and navigating various service portals. Don't add layers of complexity.

Save time and resources by working with one benefits partner for all your needs.

3. Transform the employee experience.

A winning benefits experience is built on consistency. In the same way you shouldn't need to manage multiple vendors, your employees shouldn't need to navigate multiple, confusing experiences. When employees enjoy a cohesive experience across benefits options, they're more likely to use them. And benefits accrue when they're used in conjunction with others.

Deliver a single, integrated experience to ensure your employees get the most out of the benefits you provide.

4. Optimize outcomes with more powerful analytics.

Multiple benefits partners reduce visibility into employee behavior and engagement. Data insights are siloed across all vendor reports—and it's hard to aggregate that data to get a complete view. You don't know how to improve unless you can identify weaknesses.

Let HealthEquity manage all your benefits. We deliver comprehensive data insights that continuously drive better outcomes.
