TERESA REILE - CEO & FOUNDER PATRIOX DRINKABLE OXYGEN

PRESENTER OXYNATION

Cancer survivor and health advocate with over 30 years experience corporate and non-profit executive. Teresa is a published author, sought after speaker and experienced human rights advocate.

@patrioxwater

WWW.PATRIOX.USt

After her near death experience, Teresa scoured the world for cutting edge science to heal herself which culminated in OXYNATION - the PRE-EMINENT gathering of the world's most prestigious scientists and doctors in Mitochondrial health, bioelectric medicine and Oxygen therapy.

Millions worldwide suffer from a lack of oxygen and they don't even know it. Cellular hypoxia (lack of oxygen in the cell) is at the root of almost 90% of chronic conditions. How to recognize cellular hypoxia, what to do about it and how to improve current treatment methods and outcomes for conditions like COPD, respiratory issues, lung and heart conditions, as well as cellular metabolism dysfunction are among a few of the amazing things you will learn at this conference."

Oxygen is a necessity not a luxury.

Mitochondrial health is the FUTURE.

OxyNation creates awareness about this issue and the opportunities new technologies provide.

As a lover of life and fun, Teresa decided that sickness was not going to rule her life. Instead, she chose to live life fully and have fun doing it. She founded Patriox Drinkable Oxygen company to help others overcome hypoxia and to live their lives with enthusiasm and zest. OXYNATION is not only educational, but it is going to be very fun, filled with celebrity, music, dancing and camaraderie.

TOP CUTTING EDGE RESEARCHERS IN THE WORLD AND SPEAKERS

Dr. Robert Lyons, biochemist, O.MD, ND, DHS

Associate Professor at the University of Humanitarian Medicine, Toronto Canada. Senior member of the Royal Society of Medicine, London, UK. Researched and developed High Oxygen Content Stable Bioavailable Liquid, new form on long chain clustered oxygen. He is an expert on hypoxia, related diseases including cancer and mitochondrial dysfunction and extensively research Indium XL and its health benefits. He served as Chief Instructor under General James Comstock, US Army Special Forces Green Barret Division and received the US Presidential Champion Gold Award.

Prof. Dr. Endre Mathe, geneticist and a molecular cell biologist

He was a Senior Research Scientist in Cambridge University at the Department of Genetics, where he conducted genetic cancer research on the implication of cell division and cancer. He is a Chair of the Nutrition Institute at University of Debrecen and Vasile Goldis Western University of Arad where he is studying plant extracts counteracting diabetes and inflammation that are also implicated in the regulation of cellular metabolism, redox potential maintenance and innate immunity. There he is also studying the relationship between hypoxia, oxygen, their genetic implication and aging.

Dr Deibby Mamahit - Autism and Brain Health Consultant Founder Brainworks

HER STORY IS TRULY SPECTACULAR

Mother of four, with two diagnosed with autism, led Dr Deibby down the rabbit hole of autism information, support, therapies and more. You will be amazed as you hear how she healed her own two children of autism and is bringing this knowledge to the world. This fearless mum, unsatisfied with what she found with traditional modalities traveled the world to find answers for her beloved kids.

She applied everything she learned to own children and after healing them, she founded BRAINWORKS, a health center to help other parents and children. Brainworks provides neurophysiological testing, comprehensive examinations and support to kids who need it.

DR. SALUME MASGHATI, MD

Dr. Salome Masghati, MD, received her medical degree at the University of Vienna, Austria, practices Obstetrics and Gynecology at UCLA, Los Angeles and Adventist hospital White Memorial, she is a board certified gynecology surgeon and uses functional and holistics methods to prevent female health issues including cancer. She researched in regards to Anti-N-methyl-aspartate receptor encephalitis in identical twin sisters: a role for oophorectomy and Comparative Thermal Effects of J-Plasma®, Monopolar, Argon, and Laser Electrosurgery in a Porcine Tissue Model.

DR. DANY SPENCER ADAMS

Founder, President and Chief Science Officer of Lucell Diagnostics, Inc. She is a pioneer in the field of Bioelectricity and the first entrepreneur to base a cancer-detection system on the physiological biomarker of living-cell membrane voltage. She did her graduate work at the University of Washington in Seattle at the lab of Dr. Thoms L. Daniel where she researched biomechanics and cell biology. In 1990 she presented at a NATO Advanced Studies Institute. Further research at the University of Washington led her closer to biophysics. This led to further studies at the Friday Harbor Laboratories. She then worked at the Levin Lab at the Forsyth Institute. At that lab the role of bioelectricity and its importance was elevated. She developed the use of voltage-sensitive dyes (VSD). This was a powerful addition in the field of bioelectricity. It overcame earlier limitations and enabled the first pictures of voltage asymmetries and showed that tumor cells were depolarized. (Hyperpolarization provides the voltage that is good for health while depolarization does the opposite). These studies found that our inability to regenerate is due to inhibition, not inability and that Hyperpolarization was found to be the crucial element, not protons. This provided the underpinnings to hyperpolarization induced regeneration. Her research then led her to the Tuft Center for Regenerative and Developmental Biology. The research there discovered how surface cell membrane voltage and resultant hyperpolarized spots marked the future position of eyes, nose, ears and mouth in test animal embryos. She found that voltage difference at cell regions in the outermost layer of cells precedes other biomarkers. Electricity comes first, determining other biomarkers. She was also able to establish the depolarized state of tumor cells, and that polarization could prevent or recede tumors. The knowledge gained from this brought her to her current company that uses Membrane Voltage Profiling to allow cancer surgeons to determine exactly where the cancer is so all of it is removed. MVP allows this to be done real time while the patient is on the operating table.

DR. DANE M. WOLF

is a mitochondrial biologist specializing in advanced imaging technologies. He completed his PhD at Boston University and University of California, Los Angeles, where he used live-cell super-resolution microscopy to study the structure-function relationship of mitochondrial cristae. As an EMBO Long-Term Fellow at the University of Cambridge, he investigated mtDNA dynamics using cutting-edge imaging approaches.

Dane is the founder of MitoGraphica, a scientific consultancy focused on mitochondrial image analysis and research support for both academia and industry. He is deeply passionate about mitochondria and is committed to advancing and communicating our understanding of their vital roles in human health and longevity.
