About Min-E-Con

The trend towards miniaturization of electronic equipment which began more than 4 decades will continue for years. During much of this time Min-E-Con has been among the leaders in the design and manufacture of high density microminiature connection devices. The proven reliability of our "Fifty-Lok" contact design, its inherent low insertion and separation forces have made it the preferred choice of many customers.

Min-E-Con has excelled in the design and manufacture of microminiature connectors where high speed data transmission, reduced weight and size, higher contact densities and high reliability interconnections are a necessity.

Whether your needs are for a standard product, a new design or a complete interconnection system, our brochure will briefly provide you our capabilities.

Let Min-E-Con help provide a solution to your problem on Military, Oil and Gas, Medical and Commercial applications. You will receive a cost effective, ready to install system that can be intermateable and interchangeable with all existing connectors of the Micro Family currently in use.
