Ensure Fairness in SBA Size Standards

SBA's proposed overhaul would consolidate nearly 1,000 small business size standards into just 338, letting far larger firms compete directly against true small businesses. Congress should act to ensure SBA rigorously scrutinizes the rule's real-world impact on small businesses before finalizing any changes.

Repeal the Corporate Transparency Act (CTA)

The CTA continues to weigh on the small-business community. NSBA's SCOTUS case over the constitutionality of the law remains pending, and the Administration updated the rule by eliminating enforcement on U.S. businesses. However, Congress should act now to codify the rule change and eliminate the CTA.

Improve Access to Capital

Too many small businesses still struggle to secure the loans, credit, and early-stage capital they need to grow. Congress should act to strengthen and expand SBA lending programs and other federal capital-access tools so small businesses can compete on a level playing field.

Lower Health Care Costs for Small Business

Health care remains small businesses' #1 cost concern, with fewer small employers able to afford offering coverage at all. Congress should act to rein in the hidden fees and middlemen that drive up costs, and to give small employers more flexible, affordable coverage options.
