

If She's a Fox

Am G C F (capo 1)

If she's a fox, she's the kind that makes a friend
In the hound who'll learn to hunt by the time this summer ends

If you point her to your heart break, she'll go get the scotch tape
And sanitize with whiskey, Hopin' it'll fix thee
Stitching with her eyes closed, That'd make your pulse go
No one taught her this though, Bleeding through her red clothes

"She's a fox, she a thing with a sharp eye, they say 'deadly' you say 'strong mind'"
It's like a snap of a branch in the forest, when they say "she's broke" as if you hadn't noticed
Maybe they're right, she's a fox, and you know it
But she's not sly, cunning, cutting, or a vindictive, she's an innocent creature of the west winds

Prey would paint her as a wolf, but she's chasin', butterflies in the sunrise
She plays in puddles in the dead, of night, so you can't call her fun "spite"
Her tail's been matted by the stains, of time, tangled in preconceptions

That's so black and blue bleeding ginger bruise

If she's a fox, she's the kind who'll steal the crown
And she'll hide it in a woods till the prince is not so proud
Let her tell you how her head aches, Hold her hands to kill the pain
Treading with her arms on you, Writhing with the weight of two
She ain't tryna to drown you, but no one ever taught her to so
Call out to the war boats, Surely they should still float
Get in when it's sinking, Better get scotch taping

"She's a fox, she a thing with a sharp eye, they say 'deadly' you say 'strong mind'"
It's like the dance of a left and a right wing, when they're synced they soar into heights of a high roll
Maybe they're right, she's a fox, and you know it
But she's not sly, cunning, cutting, or a vindictive, she's an innocent creature of the west winds

The dim glimmer of a girl, too shy, help her crush all these eggshells
Red ain't somethin' that she should hide, and cleverful wit takes confidence

That's so black and blue bleeding ginger bruise
"What have they done to you?" It's what fear will do
"Cause they don't know you"
