Characteristics of the vintage

After a dry winter, spring began with episodes of frost, though their impact was far less severe than in 2021. The season was exceptionally warm overall. A few thunderstorms brought some rainfall in June, followed by hot and dry conditions throughout July and August. On the eve of the harvest, the grapes were very healthy thanks to the dry conditions. However, they seemed to have low juice content.

Harvest began on September 8, marking a record early start. The grapes were superb, and juice yields ultimately proved less disappointing than expected, given the significant water stress experienced by the vines.

"Merlots are outstanding on the finest terroirs, particularly on clay-limestone soils. Fruity without any hint of over-ripeness, smooth yet well-balanced, they display an irresistible elegance and charm." "The resulting wines are remarkably balanced and harmonious, structured yet fleshy, retaining the freshness and vibrancy that are the hallmark of great Bordeaux wines." — Institute of Vine and Wine Sciences, University of Bordeaux, Oenology Research Unit.
