

Aziz Gilani is a Partner at Mercury Fund. Aziz joined Mercury Fund as an Associate in 2008. His investments range from Healthcare IT, to DevOps tools, to Cyber Security.

Aziz served as an advisory board member/advisor to SXSW from 2012 to 2025. Aziz has also served on the Mayor of Houston's Tech Taskforce, the US Government's National Advisory Council for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, and is currently a board member of the NVCA.

Aziz received the 2021 National Venture Capital Association Service Award for his work with public policy makers. In 2022, Aziz was appointed to the National Advisory Council for Innovation and Entrepreneurship by US Commerce Secretary Gina Raimondo.

Aziz has a BBA from the University of Texas where he was a TILF scholar, an MBA from Northwestern University where he was an FC Austin Scholar, and he is a member of Class 14 of the Kauffman Fellows Program. Aziz is also an adjunct professor at Rice University's Jones School of Business, where he has taught a course on Entrepreneurial Finance since 2010.