

Samantha Lewis is a Partner at Mercury Fund. Sam lead's Mercury's fintech and blockchain practice, backing exceptional founders rewriting how people and agents move money, invest, and save across the globe. She has spent over 8 years building deep relationships across TradFi and web3 and believes the financial security of the future is in the hands of those innovating today. .

Prior to Mercury, Sam was the Investment Director at Goose Capital, where she learned VC from the ground up through sourcing, structuring, and portfolio management across deep tech and frontier investments. Prior to Goose Capital, Sam was a two-time founder in beauty and food products.

Sam is the co-host of the podcast MoneyMoves, where she and Dave Sutter (OpenTrade), and Ian Epstein (Profitr), explore the intersection of TradFi and web3 on a weekly basis

Sam holds a B.A. from Texas A&M University and an MBA from the Rice Jones School of Business. She is also a member of Class 16 of the Kauffman Fellows Program, where she currently leads the Blockchain Group for the program's global VC network.