+ № 01 · How it works

How It Works

Every trip run end to end, or any part of it. You just move.

Serious people do not have time to plan their own travel, and the people who usually do it for them book flights and hotels and little else. The trip itself, the meetings, the cars, the paperwork, the things that go wrong at a border or a front desk, still land back on you. I handle the whole thing, so travel stops being a job you manage and becomes something that simply works.

You tell me where you are going and why. I build the trip, book every piece of it, and stay reachable the entire time you are moving. If something breaks, a delayed flight, a bad hotel, a visa problem at the desk, you call me and I fix it. I am not a booking service that disappears once the tickets are sent.

WHAT I HANDLE

- + Flights, hotels, cars, and drivers, booked and coordinated end to end.
- + Full itineraries, built around the real purpose of the trip.
- + Visas and the cross-border paperwork, handled directly.
- + Business meetings, viewings, and networking set up on the ground.
- + Security and discretion arranged for high-profile travellers.
- + A fixer reachable throughout, so a problem mid-trip is mine to solve, not yours.

Take all of it or any single part.

+ № 02 · Trips with a purpose

Business Travel

Trips with a purpose, handled by someone who knows the purpose.

Business travel is not a holiday with meetings in it. The trip exists to get something done, and every part of it should serve that: the timing, the location, the car waiting when you land, the gap in the schedule before the meeting that matters. Most travel services book the logistics and never think about the objective. I start with the objective.

I plan and run business trips for executives and teams moving across borders, built around what the trip is actually for. Because I work in cross-border deals and markets myself, I understand why you are going, not just where, and I build the trip so the work is the easy part.

WHAT I DO HERE

- + Flights, hotels, cars, and drivers, timed and placed around your schedule.
- + Itineraries built around the meetings and the objective, not around sightseeing.
- + Ground logistics in-market, so you arrive and everything is already handled.
- + Team travel coordinated, for groups moving together or converging from different places.
- + The whole trip run end to end, with me reachable throughout if anything shifts.

+ № 03 · Go and see it yourself

Scouting & Networking

Go and see it yourself, with the ground already arranged.

Some trips are about getting eyes on something. A property or an investment you want to inspect in person before you commit. A conference, an event, or the people in a market you need to meet. These trips are only worth taking if the ground is set up properly, because a week on the other side of the world with a half-full schedule is a week wasted.

This is where travel meets the rest of what I do. I arrange the trip and fill it with purpose: days of property viewings booked with agents, meetings set up with the right people, a conference or event handled end to end. You land with a schedule that earns the trip.

WHAT I DO HERE

+ Property and investment scouting trips, with days of viewings booked with agents on the ground.
+ Meetings and introductions set up in-market, drawn from real local contacts.
+ Conferences and events booked and run end to end, travel and access included.
+ Networking trips built around the people actually worth your time.
+ The market knowledge behind it, so you are seeing the right things and meeting the right people.

+ № 04 · Time away, not logistics

Leisure & Family

Holidays and family travel, run so you only have to enjoy them.

A family holiday should not take weeks of planning and elevated cortisol, and a folder of confirmations to sift through. The point is the time away, not the logistics behind it. For high-profile travellers there is a second concern: privacy and security, handled quietly, so the trip is relaxed rather than exposed.

I plan and run leisure and family travel to whatever depth you want, from a single booking to the entire trip. The itinerary, the places, the experiences, the discretion. You arrive, and everything is already taken care of.

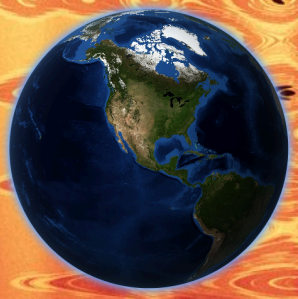

WHAT I DO HERE

- Full family and leisure itineraries, built around how you actually want to travel.
- Flights, hotels, cars, and drivers, booked and coordinated.
- Bespoke experiences arranged, the things you would not find or book yourself.
- Privacy and security handled discreetly for high-profile travellers and families.
- Me reachable throughout, so a problem on the trip never becomes yours to solve.

+ № 05 · The friction, taken off your desk

Logistics & Visas

The friction that ruins trips, taken off your desk.

The part of travel that goes wrong is rarely the flight or the hotel. It is the visa that was not quite right, the paperwork a border official wanted, the document nobody told you to carry. Cross-border movement has a layer of admin under it that most people only notice when it stops them at a desk, and by then it is too late.

I handle that layer directly. The visas, the paperwork, the cross-border requirements, checked and in order before you travel, so the friction is dealt with in advance rather than discovered at the worst moment.

WHAT I DO HERE

+ Visas arranged and the applications handled directly.
+ Cross-border paperwork and documentation checked and in order before departure.
+ The entry requirements for where you are going, known and met in advance.
+ The admin layer managed across multiple countries on a single trip.
+ Problems at the border or the desk handled in real time, because I am reachable throughout.
