Reimagining connection to culture and Country in urban housing

Aboriginal Housing Victoria (AHV) welcomed renters to their new homes in Dandenong, Boonwurrung Country in early 2023.

The 10 apartments are for Aboriginal Victorians on the Victorian Housing Register, the Victorian social housing waitlist. The project was funded by the Victorian Government's Building Works package.

The apartments have been designed to help create community connections and be flexible enough to accommodate a range of renters over their lifespan, including young professionals, couples and small families.

Most importantly, the apartments have been specifically designed for Aboriginal renters, and reflect AHV's Indigenous design principles.

Indigenous architect James Gilliland and Indigenous landscape designer Charles Solomon worked closely with AHV's Nicky McNamara to create homes that reflect Aboriginal culture and connection to Country. Gilliland drew design inspiration from the culture and Country of the Ngaruk Willam people, one of the five clans of the Boonwurrung Nation.

“These are the first medium density apartments developed specifically for Aboriginal tenants” – Darren Smith, CEO, Aboriginal Housing Victoria

The landscape, which features plants selected for their symbolic meanings and traditional uses in medicine and tools, can be used by residents as a cultural learning tool. It also provides a beautiful shared space.

Another key feature of the development is a larger two-bedroom Elder residence near the front entrance. Elders are highly respected in the Aboriginal community. Positioning their home near the ground floor entrance means they have the opportunity to welcome people and be a first point of contact when visitors arrive. The Elder residence also provides space for family or friends to stay, and a large enough kitchen-dining area to have a cuppa and a yarn.

Some residents were initially apprehensive about apartment living, but were won over by the unique design, especially the centrality of Indigenous landscaping and connection to outdoor space.

Wodonga Education First Youth Foyer

Safe, stable housing for young people, and a support system to help build a better life

The Wodonga Education First Youth Foyer opened in 2025. Located at Wodonga TAFE's McKoy Street campus, it is now home to 40 young people, aged 16 to 24, who were previously experiencing or at risk of homelessness.

The Education First Youth Foyer program is designed to break the cycle of homelessness by empowering young people to build secure and sustainable futures.

Each resident has their own fully furnished studio apartment, complete with a kitchenette, bathroom, and study area. Shared facilities include a laundry, communal kitchen, and recreation and study spaces, fostering both independence and a sense of community.

To help residents build independence and fulfilling lives, they receive a range of services: access to education, training, and employment pathways; 24/7 on-site support from dedicated staff; and assistance finding stable housing when transitioning to independent living.

“Education First Youth Foyers like the one in Wodonga are essential to breaking the cycle of homelessness. Research shows they improve students' education, employment, housing, and health and wellbeing outcomes, and that these improvements are sustained even after they move onto other accommodation.”– Celia Adams, CEO Beyond Housing

The Wodonga Youth Foyer features several shared outdoor spaces

“The innovative Wodonga Education First Youth Foyer offers a safe and stable living environment so young people can focus on education and employment pathways and become active contributors and role models in their local community.” – Megan Hanley, CEO Junction Support Services

The Wodonga Education First Youth Foyer was developed in partnership by Beyond Housing, Wodonga TAFE, Junction Support Services and the Brotherhood of St Laurence, with funding from Homes Victoria:

- Beyond Housing was the project lead for the construction of the Wodonga Education First Youth Foyer and delivers the tenancy management component of the program.
- Junction Support Services is responsible for service delivery, including staffing, daily operations, and the overall program implementation.
- Wodonga Institute of TAFE provided the land for the Education First Youth Foyer and facilitates the Certificate I in Developing Independence for all students.
- Brotherhood of Saint Laurence supports the implementation of the Advantaged Thinking Framework across all Education First Youth Foyers.
- Homes Victoria provided funding through the Big Housing Build.

Beyond

Beyond Housing also manages an Education First Youth Foyer in Shepparton. In the first eight years, nearly 300 young people have advanced through the Shepparton Education First Youth Foyer, achieving successes such as five buying their own homes, one becoming a Youth Development Worker at Berry Street, and another serving as an Ambassador for the Foyer Foundation.

Residents can choose to study in their room, or in one of the shared study spaces.

About Beyond Housing

Beyond Housing is the largest community housing organisation in the Goulburn and Ovens Murray regions of Victoria, owning or managing over 1,000 properties. Beyond Housing also supports people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness, each year helping around 6,000 people and families in need to secure or maintain their housing.

Beyond Housing is a member of the Community Housing Industry Association of Victoria (CHIA Vic), the peak body for the community housing sector in Victoria. CHIA Vic works to support the growth of community housing as the most effective and efficient means of ensuring more disadvantaged Victorians can enjoy the dignity of safe, secure and appropriate housing.

Horsham modular homes

Embracing new construction methods in regional Victoria

Haven Home Safe (HHS) adopted modular building design to deliver 25 new homes in the regional Victorian town of Horsham. Completed in 2024, the project comprises three one-bedroom homes and 22 two-bedroom homes.

The homes feature innovative design and community living. They include all-electric appliances, heat-pump water systems and individual rainwater tanks delivering a seven-star NatHERS rating. This means residents live in more energy efficient and comfortable homes that cost less to run, support renter health and wellbeing, and contribute to emissions reductions.

Building communities that are connected is a core principle for HHS. For all new builds, the organisation adopts a placemaking approach that helps people create a sense of belonging through the safety of their home, connection with their local communities and access to green space.

“We’re strong advocates for not only building homes that meet people’s needs, but also for fostering communities that are connected.” – Trudi Ray, CEO Haven Home Safe

“We were impressed by the benefits of building with a modular prefabricated system. The speed of construction is much quicker than traditional construction methods, as well as having a lower carbon footprint and being able to reduce the amount of construction waste” – Trudi Ray, CEO Haven Home Safe

HHS decided to use modular prefabricated homes when they discovered there were no local building companies who could meet the project's requirements. Through this method the modules are built off-site in a warehouse using a staged approach. Full site works happen before the modules are transported to the building site and craned into position. On-site carpentry joins the modules together, like a complex jigsaw, delivering the same end-product as traditional construction methods.

Modular prefabricated homes have a multitude of benefits, particularly in how it reduces construction waste. Additionally, it enables faster delivery of new homes for regional Victoria where skilled labour shortages often delay projects.

HHS partnered with Homes Victoria, who contributed $7.3 million of the overall $10.1 million project through the Big Housing Build.

About Haven Home Safe

By increasing the diversity of housing options available and shaping communities that forge a connection between people and place, HHS can deliver a better future for all Victorians.

For over 45 years HHS has worked with government, public and private partners to mobilise funding and collaborate for better solutions for clients.

New Epping

Social and affordable homes forging strong community connections

Haven Home Safe, in partnership with Homes Victoria, Riverlee, Hacer, MGS Architects and City of Whittlesea, welcomed residents to 151 new social and affordable homes in early 2023. These quality homes on Wurundjeri Country are part of Stage 1 of New Epping; an urban regeneration and mixed-use precinct 18km north of Melbourne CBD.

Many residents have local ties to the area – such as families with children in local schools – and key workers who have struggled to afford private rental accommodation.

Part of Haven Home Safe's approach to building strong communities is the inclusion of a placemaking strategy, developed in partnership with Village Well. This approach guides residents to become a community of neighbours who take pride in their homes, care for one another, and actively engage with the wider community. Informed through extensive consultation with the local community and stakeholders, the placemaking framework helps to design customer-centric processes for the expression of interest allocations, and moving in stages and beyond to ensure thriving tenancies.

A dedicated Community Place Manager is also integral to the approach, providing residents with a trusted and welcoming on-site presence, helping people as they move in and navigate this new beginning. The Community Place Manager connects residents with local services such as employment services and the local library; and is responsible for planning and facilitating community building events. This commenced with a regular afternoon tea event that helped people to meet their neighbours and make community connections.

Communal outdoor space

Rex was one of the first residents to move in, and as a compassionate and caring disability advocate, he is looking to the future and thinking about re-joining the workforce. He has already been an active member of the community, attending local events with his neighbours.

"I absolutely love it (living here), it is just great, very easy to get around, people are nice and the community around me makes such a difference."

I love it here; you can't make a place without a community and the community is so nice here. Also, it's so close to the shops and it is very easy to get around. I have a lot of my friends who live in the area and often visit me so that's nice – Rex, Haven Home Safe renter at New Epping

The 151 apartments are located across three buildings and comprise 78 one-bedroom apartments and 73 two-bedroom apartments. Four of the apartments are Gold Plus rated designed for people with mobility impairment. The buildings also feature communal spaces such as outdoor recreation spaces with barbecues and edible community gardens.

Energy costs are a significant burden for people on low incomes and this is taken into account when designing social and affordable housing. Several design features help lower residents' ongoing energy costs including average eight-star NATHERS energy rating, electric only appliances, and rooftop solar panels. The apartments are designed to Liveable Housing Australia (LHA) gold and silver standard, making them adaptable over time to support aging in place, and resulting in generally larger apartments with good circulation spaces.

Apartment kitchen and living room

Location is key to creating vibrant communities, and these apartments meet that need in spades. Located close to public transport; shops such as Pacific Epping Shopping Centre; green open spaces such as Edgars Creek; education facilities including early education and Melbourne Polytechnic TAFE; and health facilities including Victorian Aboriginal Health Services, Epping Medical Centre, and Orange Door Mental Health Services.

Ashwood Chadstone Gateway

A community of social and private housing that has thrived for more than a decade

HousingFirst has provided social housing to hundreds of people for more than a decade at Ashwood Chadstone Gateway on Wurundjeri Country.

Completed in 2013, the project was the first large-scale public housing renewal project in Victoria. Six sites of vacant land and public housing in poor condition were redeveloped, resulting in a sixfold increase in the number of social housing homes on the site.

The project was led by HousingFirst with support from the Victorian State Government and the Federal Government for land and capital grant funding.

The site includes 210 social housing homes for people on the Victorian Housing Register (the waitlist for social housing in Victoria), and 72 privately owned homes. The sale of private homes supported project financing, with a requirement that HousingFirst build additional social housing in Essendon and Parkville, which it has successfully delivered.

Spread across four buildings, the homes range from one to four bedroom apartments and townhouses. One building houses people aged 55 and over, and 75 apartments are disability modified, or adaptable in the future.

At Ashwood Chadstone the social enterprise cafe has been a very rewarding and hugely successful program for both the tenants and the students – Clive Bowden, Chief Commercial Officer, HousingFirst

The Ashwood Chadstone Gateway community is a thriving and engaged community. Key to the community's success is HousingFirst's commitment to enhancing resident personal well-being through community programs.

The community programs empower residents to build and enhance connection with their neighbours, and improve their knowledge, skills and employment prospects. Programs include Pocket Market, CafEducation, The People's Shed and CommunityFirst meetings.

Pocket Market – a monthly low-cost fruit and vegetable market operated by HousingFirst and Berengarra, with produce delivered fresh from Yarra Valley farms.

CafEducation – an on-site social enterprise café run in partnership with Berengarra School as a training opportunity for the students. The café also provides the resident community with low-cost food and meeting spaces.

The People's Shed – a weekly event that gives residents a space to come together to work on DIY projects, share tools and talk.

CommunityFirst meetings – these well attended meetings provide an opportunity for residents to hear updates from HousingFirst staff, and provide feedback and have questions answered.

About HousingFirst

HousingFirst was born from a community campaign in the 1980s to stem the loss of affordable housing within the City of Port Phillip. Since then, the organisation has expanded to provide affordable long-term housing for low income households in 15 additional local government areas across metropolitan Melbourne. HousingFirst's mixed-tenure approach means many of its developments are home to a range of low to medium income residents, owner occupiers, market renters and commercial tenants. HousingFirst also provides more targeted accommodation specifically for singles, couples, families, the young, employed, unemployed, women, men, mothers with babies and over 55s across a range of houses, apartments, townhouses, self-contained studios and rooming houses. HousingFirst has secured funding through the Big Housing Build, including for a 152-home development in Brighton East.

Marlborough Street Balaclava

46 new affordable homes for low-income households

In October 2023, HousingFirst welcomed residents to their new homes in Marlborough Street, Balaclava. The homes are a mix of one, two and three-bedroom apartments offering diverse accommodation options to meet the needs of many types of renters.

The 46 architect-designed apartments have an 8.2- NatHERS rating and feature many environmentally sustainable and energy efficient elements, including naturally cross ventilated corridors, solar panels and passive shading techniques.

Residents can also enjoy a beautiful community terrace 'veggie garden', which provides a space to bring residents together.

The homes were available for people on the Victorian Housing Register (VHR), Victoria's single social housing waiting list. Residents are primarily older people, people living with a disability, and people escaping family violence.

The project is the result of a successful collaboration between registered community housing organisation HousingFirst and all three levels of government.

“The creative thinking at the heart of this project, where a carpark has been transformed into 46 homes, can truly change not only spaces but lives.” – Cr Heather Cunsolo, City of Port Phillip Mayor

The site, which is located close to shops and public transport, was previously a public car park. The City of Port Phillip (CoPP) donated the land to HousingFirst, who developed the site. In addition to the 46 social housing homes, the development also includes a ground floor space for a social enterprise, and a basement public car park which was transferred back to the CoPP.

The project was funded under the Victorian Government’s Building Works Package, and the Federal Government’s National Housing Infrastructure Facility (NHIF).

This project aligns with CoPP’s strategic direction outlined in their Council Plan 2021-31 and Affordable Housing Strategy, In Our Backyard – Growing Affordable Housing in the City of Port Phillip 2015 – 2025.

“We want to foster a community with strong social connections, where people feel safer and welcome and have access to affordable housing and the information and services they need to support their health and wellbeing.”

Camelia Crescent co-operative housing

Brand new low maintenance homes in Geelong

In early 2023, the Northern Geelong Rental Housing Co-operative Ltd (NGRHC) completed three 2-bedroom homes in Wadawurrung Country, Geelong.

The three units are state-of-the-art, with double insulation, double glazing, solar panels and private and communal gardens. The homes have been designed to allow residents to age in place for as long as they can live independently.

The new homes enabled existing co-operative members to move to appropriately sized low-maintenance housing, freeing up larger homes for new renter-members.

Residents contribute to maintaining the communal gardens

Residents quickly formed a tightknit community

About co-operative housing

A housing co-operative is a community of people who voluntarily work together to meet their common need for affordable and sustainable housing. Members live in separate homes but actively participate in the management and running of the housing co-operative as a whole, with opportunities for all members to participate in the co-operative, according to their capacity and ability.

The three members who chose to relocate to the new homes already knew each other from the early days of the co-op so were able to quickly establish a tightknit community with shared history. The residents all contribute to maintaining the property's communal garden and are thrilled with their new homes.

This project was funded by Homes Victoria as part of the $5.3 billion Big Housing Build.

Jimmy Kennedy Homes Shepparton

Independent living units for people aged 50 and over

Wintringham Housing was thrilled to welcome residents to their brand new homes on Yorta Yorta Country, in the heart of Shepparton in early 2023.

The Jimmy Kennedy social housing units provide 28 one-bedroom homes for people aged 50 and over in the Hume Region who have experienced or are vulnerable to homelessness. A key feature that sets Jimmy Kennedy apart from other housing is that it is co-located with residential aged care, which allows residents to age in place and remain living in a community where they are already settled.

Tanya at Jimmy Kennedy social housing

Jimmy Kennedy social housing units – exterior

Tanya is a new resident at Jimmy Kennedy Social Housing. Prior to moving in, she lived in a very small country town for 30 years, but had to relocate to Shepparton to access the health services she needed.

Unable to find a home she could afford in the private rental market, she stayed with her relatives, moving from house to house. It was always in the back of her mind that she didn't have a permanent place to call home.

Tanya was thrilled when she moved into her new home, which she loves:

"I don't have to worry about anything anymore. I'm not going to get kicked out of here, I can stay as long as I want."

Wintringham has been there supporting me all the time."

“Moving into this place was special – it was like they have my back, and they’ll have my back forever. It’s like being in a little community and they’re all willing to help you.” – Tanya, resident at Jimmy Kennedy social housing

Tanya loves living in her new home

On-site housing support services are available to residents to help them maximise their health and wellbeing and maintain their tenancies. Assistance is also offered to help residents connect with external supports and engage with the community if they choose.

With accessibility at the forefront, these homes have been purpose-built to Wintringham's international award-winning standards. Features include modified bathrooms built to disability standards, built-in wardrobes, external power points for easy mobility scooter charging, lift access, and a communal garden space.

The project was made possible through funding from the Victorian Government; the Victorian Branch of the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Federation (ANMF); the Ian Potter Foundation; and an Australian philanthropic trust.

The Village Daylesford

Safe, affordable and environmentally sustainable homes for low-income women

In early 2026, renters moved into their brand-new homes at the Village Daylesford in Middleton Field, a new suburb in the Daylesford township.

The site includes 31 new homes, four of which are owned and managed by Women's Property Initiatives (WPI), a not-for-profit community housing provider.

The one-bedroom WPI homes are rented to women from the social housing waiting list.

WPI worked with support service providers from in and around the Daylesford area to rent the homes and ensure continued support for the renters if they need.

Low-income women have a safe and affordable home at the Village.

The homes are a short distance from the main street, with easy access to shops, cafes, community resources, medical and other services.

Thoughtfully designed with a focus on environmental sustainability and community connection, each home is carbon neutral and incorporates passive design principles to achieve a minimum 7.5-star NatHERS rating. Interaction and connection are encouraged through a blend of shared and private open spaces which celebrate the natural environment.

The Village was delivered by Hygge Property. WPI received funding from Homes Victoria through the Big Housing Build and generous support from donor, Helen Imber.

Nightingale Village – apartment exterior and nearby park.

I'm just so blessed, I feel like I've been given a second chance in life. I consider myself one of the lucky ones. It's really hard out there if things go wrong. And if you're aged, I think it's even harder. – Val, WPI renter, Nightingale Village

Val, one of WPI's residents, says that before living in Nightingale she was financially strapped and became very depressed.

In July 2022 Val moved into her new home in Nightingale Village and shares what the experience has been like:

"It's given me another lease on life. The residents here really took us WPI tenants into their fold. They invited us to join the building WhatsApp chat, and really made us feel welcome."

"Living here I don't need a car. I have access to car share and the train is right here. I love it."

"With affordable rent it is so good not to worry constantly about money and to know that you've got a roof over your head for as long as you need it, and you're not going to go hungry. I look forward to having a long, happy life."

The homes were funded through Homes Victoria's Social Housing Growth Fund and a generous contribution from charitable organisation Matrix Guild, who also have nomination rights for four of the homes.

These homes provide WPI's renters with an opportunity to be part of an eclectic, inclusive and vibrant community and are beautiful spaces to live in. Nightingale Village also includes privately owned properties and homes owned by community housing organisation Housing Choices Australia.

WPI's renters have been warmly welcomed into this diverse and inclusive community. Many have participated in community events and initiatives and really feel like they are part of something special.

YWCA Bendigo

Affordable homes for women and their families in East Bendigo

YWCA welcomed six women and their families to their new homes on Dja Dja Wurrung Country in East Bendigo in 2021.

The five three-bedroom townhouses were architecturally designed by DKO Architecture and built by renowned builder GJ Gardner Homes. The project was a finalist for the Category of Modernisation of a Built Form Development in the 2021 PowerHousing Awards.

The properties were offered to women at below-market rates to give women and their families, including those who have experienced family and domestic violence, an opportunity to secure a safe affordable home.

The development contains five two storey, three-bedroom, two and a half bathroom townhouses. Each townhouse has a lock-up garage and a landscaped, fully fenced and secure private open space.

All homes in the development are six-star energy rated and have several environmentally friendly features that also reduce costs for renters including solar panels, double glazed windows, energy efficient appliances and a water tank. To help renters connect with services, education, employment and community, each townhouse also has NBN connectivity.

YWCA selected the development's location to ensure residents are close to key services. The development is located approximately 2km from Bendigo railway station; 1.2km from the edge of the CBD; and within 1km of a full-line supermarket, TAFE education centre and several open space amenities including Bendigo East Bushland Reserve and Lake Weeroona.

Through a partnership with WomenCAN, residents also have the opportunity to undertake peer-supported training which will provide them with a Certificate III in individual support aged care.

I love it here. It's big enough for a family but still low maintenance – Renter, YWCA Bendigo Affordable Housing Development

The project was fully funded by YWCA who purchased the land on the open market and engaged Melbourne based and renowned architects DKO Architects to design the homes. YWCA commercially tendered the project on a fixed price contract with GJ Gardener the successful builder.

The project was constructed during COVID-19 lockdowns which caused time delays to the program. Despite these challenges, the project remained within budget and was completed to a high standard.

Gretel, one of the development's residents tells her story and explains how important developments like this are:

"I cried when I got this place. I'd applied for a number of places and kept getting turned down. As a young woman and casual worker, it was hard to find somewhere within my budget that would take me. If I hadn't gotten this place, I'd probably be relying on family for a couch or spare room."

"If you're in a rough place or a situation you don't want to be in, there are people out there and organisations like YWCA who will help and give you a chance. I know there are other young women in Bendigo who could benefit from places like this."

There are a lot of country people struggling with the price of rentals, especially single mums. If I wasn't living here, I'd be in a private rental - if I could find somewhere.
