

Short duration lending, built for capital preservation.

Baruk Capital Group manages Baruk Private Credit Fund I, LLC, a short duration direct lending and specialty finance strategy built around disciplined underwriting, current income, and downside protection.

FOR INSTITUTIONAL AND ACCREDITED INVESTORS ONLY

01 A private credit strategy built on three disciplines

DURATION

Short Duration

Capital is deployed into short duration instruments, reducing mark to market risk and giving the portfolio frequent points to reassess credit quality and redeploy.

INCOME

Current Income

The strategy is built to generate current income from contractual repayment structures rather than relying on exit multiples or appreciation.

PROTECTION

Downside Protection

Underwriting emphasizes collateral position, cash flow visibility, and diversification across borrowers and sectors to protect principal.

02 How capital moves through the fund

01

Origination

Deal flow is sourced through a private network of specialty finance originators, private lenders, and family office co-investment partners, rather than broad market solicitation.

02

Underwriting

Each opportunity is evaluated on collateral position, borrower cash flow, and structural protections before capital is committed.

03

Structuring

Terms are structured around short duration exposure and contractual repayment, prioritizing principal protection over yield maximization.

04

Active Monitoring

Positions are monitored on an ongoing basis, with active portfolio management applied across the life of each loan rather than at origination alone.

03 Leadership

Joseph Kimbrough is the Managing Partner of Baruk Capital Group LLC and manages Baruk Private Credit Fund I. His background spans real estate investing and acquisition, commercial credit origination, and structured financing solutions, built through a private network of lenders, originators, and family office partners across the specialty finance market.

The fund is supported in a portfolio management capacity by a senior advisor with extensive institutional finance experience, who provides oversight on underwriting discipline and portfolio construction.

Baruk Capital Group is built with the discipline of an institutional alternative asset manager, prioritizing underwriting rigor, capital preservation, and long-term consistency across market cycles.
