WHERE THE 8.5% COMES FROM

Bondholder yield is funded by interest payments from underlying real-estate loans — not by issuing new bonds, leverage, or speculative investments. The arithmetic is straightforward.

STRUCTURE & AFFILIATED-LENDER DISCLOSURE

WHAT YOU OWN — AND WHAT BACKS IT

The Compound Real Estate Bond is an corporate obligation of the issuer (CREB Inc. or CREB II Inc.). The first-lien collateral secures loans held by Compound Direct Lending LLC, the issuer's affiliated lending subsidiary; cash flows from those loans are what enable the issuer to pay bondholders.

Compound Direct Lending is wholly owned by Compound Real Estate Holdings — the same parent as the issuers. This is a fully disclosed affiliated-lender structure. Controls include an independent credit committee, third-party property valuations on every loan, audited annual financials, maximum-LTV underwriting policy, single-borrower concentration caps, and continuous SEC oversight under Regulation A+ Tier 2.

RISK FACTORS

RISK	Description	How It Is Mnged
LOSS OF PRINCIPAL	The bond is an unsecured obligation of the issuer. CREB is not a bank deposit and is not FDIC-insured. The value of the bond may decline.	Bondholders are senior in the issuer's capital structure. Underlying loans are first-lien; borrower equity must be lost first before loan principal is impaired.
REAL ESTATE MARKET DECLINE	Property values may fall due to macroeconomic conditions, interest rates, or local market factors.	Conservative LTV underwriting (max 75%, weighted-average 62%). Borrower equity acts as a cushion. Geographic and property-type diversification.
BORROWER DEFAULT	A borrower may fail to make interest payments or repay principal at maturity.	First-lien position provides priority claim on the property. Active workout team. Reserves held against expected losses.
LIQUIDITY / REDEMPTION	Redemption requests may exceed available cash during periods of market stress.	20% U.S. Treasury & cash buffer. Short-duration loan book recycles capital quickly. Issuer reserves the right to gate redemptions per the offering circular.
CONCENTRATION	Losses on a small number of large loans could materially affect the portfolio.	5% single-borrower cap. Largest loan currently 1.8% of AUM. Diversified across borrowers, property types, and U.S. markets.
AFFILIATED-LENDER CONFLICT	The lending subsidiary (Compound Direct Lending) is wholly owned by the same parent as the issuer.	Independent credit committee, third-party property valuations, audited financials, and ongoing SEC reporting. Disclosed in the offering circular.
REGULATORY AND ISSUER	The issuer must remain in compliance with SEC and Investment Company Act requirements.	Continuously SEC-qualified under Regulation A+ Tier 2. Annual audited financials. Semi-annual reports filed publicly on EDGAR.
