

Kenneth Mwale

SPECIALIST CONSULTANT

Kenneth Mwale is a seasoned leadership practitioner, pastor, trainer, and consultant with more than two decades of experience spanning ministry leadership, organisational development, entrepreneurship training, and community transformation. Originally from Zambia and resident in South Africa for over 27 years, Kenneth has built a reputation for authentic leadership, people development, and strategic influence across both faith-based and organisational environments.

He is married to Rabecca, and together they are raising two teenage children, Jethro and Jemimah. Kenneth is deeply committed to family, leadership development, and helping individuals and organisations discover purpose, resilience, and sustainable growth.

Throughout his career, Kenneth has served in senior leadership roles within churches, training institutions, and community organisations. His professional journey combines extensive ministry leadership with practical consulting experience in areas such as New Venture Creation, Corporate Governance, Financial Management, Conflict Resolution, Organisational Leadership, and Non-Profit Development. He previously led a consultancy focused on training emerging entrepreneurs, equipping young people for enterprise development, and helping NGOs and community-based organisations improve operational efficiency, governance, and sustainability.

Kenneth has worked closely with training institutions, government-supported initiatives, and development agencies in South Africa, facilitating leadership and entrepreneurship programmes at both community and institutional levels. His work with Non-Profit Organisations in partnership with the National Development Agency and the Department of Social Development contributed to strengthening governance systems and operational effectiveness within grassroots organisations. One of his development projects in the North West Province was recognised as the best-performing project by the Executive Director of the National Development Agency.

As a leader, Kenneth is passionate about building healthy organisations, empowering emerging leaders, and creating environments where people can grow spiritually, professionally, and personally. He is known for his ability to combine strategic thinking, relational leadership, and practical implementation in ways that inspire transformation.

Currently, Kenneth serves as Campus Pastor at Doxa Deo Tshwane Central Campus in Pretoria, where he leads teams, oversees strategic operations, manages financial and human resources, and fosters collaborative partnerships within the city ecosystem. His leadership philosophy is rooted in servant leadership, authentic influence, and long-term people development.
