KEEP TEACHING

Keeping course continuity in the event of prolonged campus closure

COMMUNICATE WITH YOUR STUDENTS

- Decide on the way you will communicate with students and let them know. Keep it consistent.
- Don't wait until you have all the details. Keeping your students up-to-date and engaged will help build continuity in your teaching.

Use the Moodle Announcements Forum, which automatically emails your entire course.

SET REALISTIC GOALS

- Is your timeline still realistic? What due dates need to be adjusted?
- What needs to be updated or changed in terms of types of assignments or tools you are using?
- Make sure your learning outcomes are achievable.
- Flexibility is key!

DELIVER YOUR CONTENT

- Think about how you want to deliver your content. What will work best for you and your students?
- Options include written lectures, video lectures, discussion groups, the textbook, and links to outside sources.

The best approach is often a mix of content types!

ADAPT ASSIGNMENTS

- What kind of assignments and assessments do you use in-person?
- Which ones of those will have to be adjusted?
- Be flexible with deadlines and attendance.
- Think about what works best for you, your course, and your students!

MAKE MOODLE YOUR BEST FRIEND WITH MOODLE, YOU CAN

- Keep all of your course information in one location
- Email your entire class
- Post written or recorded lectures

- Create discussions
- Administer and grade quizzes, exams, and assignments
- Keep teaching, your way!
