

Hi there,

Did you know 45% of employee badges still operate on insecure, legacy technology? We wanted to show just how vulnerable these badges can be, so we added a legacy credential to our system and challenged our newest colleague to breach it. The results were both eye-opening and alarming.

It's our mission to help organizations move beyond legacy tech, because the safety of your data and people is too important to leave to chance.

Do you know a colleague or friend who is still operating on a legacy security system?
